Carroll Speaks At '68 Graduation

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, retiring state superintendent of public instruction, will be this year's commencement speaker at East Carolina University.

Dr. Carroll, who is not seeking re-election this year after serving as state superintendent for some 16 years, will address the Class of '68 in Ficklen Stadium at 5 p.m. Sunday, May 26.

In announcing Dr. Carroll's acceptance of the speech engagement, President Jenkins said: "We are happy that this able and dedicated servant of education in North Carolina will address our graduates. It is especially fitting that he speak to them on this occasion because he became state superintendent the same year many of them began the first grade."

Dr. Carroll also has had a close association with the university. He has spoken on the campus frequently and served on the board of trustees from 1956 to 1957, the latter four years as ex-officio member and chairman.

A native of Warsaw and a Duke University graduate, Dr. Carroll has had a long career in the field of public education in the state. After serving as teacher, coach and principal in various locations he was superintendent of Swain County Schools and High Point City Schools before his appointment as state superintendent in August 1952 to fill the vacancy left by the death of Dr. Clyde A. Erwin.

During his career, Dr. Carroll has served many professional organizations in his field in addition to carrying out his official duties. He was president of the Council of Chief State School Officers in 1960-'61.

Lipscomb. Lipscomb has also participated in the State Student Legislature.

President of State Student Legislature, George Francis Francis has been a delegate to the State Student Legislature for three years and a delegate to the Mid-South Model United Nations for three years. He is past president of the North Carolina Model Security Council and the North Carolina State Student Legislature. He is presently a delegate to the International Student Movement for the United Nations being held this month in Geneva, Switzerland.

President of the Mid-South Model United Nations, Bill Hicks. He has participated in the North Carolina Model Security Council and the Mid-South Model United Nations.

Undersecretary of Public Relations, Jack Hart. Hart is a former staff member of the East Carolinian. He has served as a delegate to the Associated Collegiate Press conventions, and to the North Carolina Model Security Council and the Mid-South Model United Nations.

Overcash, Secretary of External Affairs, has served two years as a delegate to State Student Legislature and Mid-South Model United Nations, two years as Secretary-General of the North Carolina Model Security Council, and one year as a delegate to the National Model United Nations.

Emergency Fund Cures 'Between Checks Famine'

Robert Miller, Assistant Dean of Men wishes to remind men students of the availability of the Men's Residence Council Emergency Loan Fund. A maximum loan of twenty dollars is available for period of two weeks to men students who have paid their MRC activity fee.

The interest-free loans are available as a service to the students from a base loan fund of $700. No charge is made except when a student makes no effort to repay the loan within the specified time or does not seek an extension on his loan period. In these cases a charge of 10 percent is made on the seventh calendar day after the two-week loan period is ended. Only five penalties have been made this year.

During the period of September 1 - April 22, 231 loans were made at an average of $15 each for a total of $4,215. Miller urges students who have their MRC activity card to use this fund whenever necessary.

Pirate's Jamboree Weekend promises to be a wild concoction of sights and sounds for even the most discriminating onlooker. Some of the activities planned are included in the above montage.

Praise Shows Good Image

A letter in today's issue from the Pinkerton Security Agency, who have the heavy responsibility for the efficiency of moving the large crowds present at basketball games and special events, praises the East Carolina student body for their consideration and pleasantness.

Such praise from this organization, who are responsible for a task which very nature is often sufficient to draw criticism and ridicule, speaks well for the students on this campus.

The good-will of the public at large should be very important to every student here, for any praise or criticism directed to the student body is not aimed at one individual, but at nearly 10,000 separate individuals.

'Sock-It-To-Me' Weekend

This weekend promises to be a big one on this campus, as Pirate's Jamboree gets into swing Friday.

A big list of events has been scheduled for students, including pianists Ferrante and Teicher, singer Johnny Rivers, dance group Ruby and the Romantics, and comedian Murray Roman. Also slated for the big weekend are the annual Purple and Gold football game, an orchestra concert, and a choral concert.

When the idea of Pirate's Jamboree weekend was originally conceived, it was intended to be for East Carolina what Jubilee Weekend is to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Just how well it has succeeded is largely up to the opinion of the individual student. However, judging from the varied activities offered for the enjoyment of the student body, any failure of the weekend is not on the hands of the entertainment committee or the administration.

Whether or not the weekend will be successful will be largely determined by the amount of participation by the students. All required for a great weekend will be attendance at these events.

New Dorms: They're Everywhere!

When one walks westward on the main campus, he is confronted, either knowingly or unknowingly, with a strange paradox.

Upon reaching the end of the woman's area of the campus, the observer will see a structure called New Dorm, which is presently the residence of slightly more than 400 women.

Though the building is called New Dorm, it is in reality not new at all, for this is the third year of use of the edifice. During that period of time the subject of finding an appropriate name for it has been discussed and voted upon by its residents, but it still bears the outdated title of "New" Dorm.

A little deeper thinking into the subject will lead one to consider what will happen next year when the structure under construction next to it will be completed. Since that will be an even newer building than the present New Dorm, the problem of choosing a suitable name for it will present itself.

It seems a little strange that appropriate labels are readily assigned to classroom buildings that are not even finished, but finding a name for a three year old residence hall is so nearly impossible.

Perhaps the name "New" Dorm is to be the permanent official title of the building. If so, what will the newer structure be called? Perhaps an appropriate name might be "Newer" Dorm, or even New Dorm B . . . that way, regardless of the future growth of this university, there will never again be a problem concerning the selection of an appropriate name for a new building.

Teacher Draft Dissent

Dear Sir:

I forward the enclosed statement to the East Carolinian as a matter of news interest. You will see from the list of signatories that a number of ECU teachers have chosen to indicate in this manner their private and public dissent from the manner in which the current Selective Service Act operates. They pledge themselves to "work to change a law that is neither compatible with individual conscience nor shows a sufficient respect for it."

ECU Forum

The enclosed petition, which was sent to all N.C. congressmen, senators, and the President, was originated at UNC-Chapel Hill in this past winter, in support of students and others who conscientiously objected to their draft call on the basis of personal condemnation of the war in Vietnam, and who therefore risk a jail sentence.

Sincerely,

Philip J. Adler

(Ed. note. The petition we received listed over 550 names of North Carolina college faculty and campus chaplains. East Carolina faculty signa-

natures included:

Congratulation ECU

Gentlemen:

On behalf of the Pinkerton Security Agency, the guards and myself, I wish to thank you for the wonderful and warm reception accorded us during the special events at East Carolina University.

I wish to congratulate the faculty, the students, and all who participated in these events for the splendid cooperation and discipline you have displayed.

To the students especially my sincere appreciation for their Christian attitude.

You are one of the nicest clients that any agency could ever wish to work with. Thanks a million and keep up the good works. Looking forward to being with you many more times in the future.

Captain John R. Roberson
Pinkerton Security Agency

The EAST CAROLINIAN will accept all notices pertaining to the student body subject to the approval of the staff. Notices for the Tuesday issue must be in by four p.m. on Sunday; and by four p.m. Tuesday for the Thursday issue.

New Grading System

Pass-Fail?

By Whitney Hadden

By WHITNEY HADDEN
Editorial Editor

Several colleges and universities across the country have recently introduced some form of the pass-fail system. We feel that this program would be a valuable asset to East Carolina, and that careful consideration and study should be initiated to plan a workable program for the school.

The University of Utah is having great success with the pass-fail system, a program instituted last fall by a faculty committee on grading practices.

At Utah, the new system allows for any student to select one pass-fail course per quarter, not to exceed three in the freshman - sophomore, or six in the junior - senior years.

Certain required courses and some English and mathematics courses are not included under the system, and it is left up to the discretion of a student's major department whether it will accept or reject "pass" grades in fulfilling major requirements for graduation.

A "pass" grade produces regular University credit in hours, but no grade is given to affect the student's grade-point average. In other words, the student would receive four hours credit toward his degree, but these hours are not divided into his grade points with other hours not taken as pass-fail.

A student enters a course as a pass-fail student. His professor records his grades and at the end of the quarter turns in to the registrar a pass or fail grade.

At other schools, certain courses are pass-fail and all students in these courses receive a pass-fail grade. The advantage of the Utah system is that it requires no real overhaul of the course programming.

ECU students could benefit greatly from a pass-fail system, as they would be allowed to take courses in which they have interest, but are afraid to enter and chance making a poor grade.

A political science major might enjoy and profit from a course in music or art, yet without a pass-fail system, could fear to compete for grades with other students majoring in these areas. The pass-fail system allows a student to broaden his education without having to risk his grade-point average.

Over recent years, many educators have felt that too much stress has been placed on grades, when in actuality, grades seem to have little bearing on success in later life.

A pass-fail system takes some of this stress away from grades, and gives students a chance to obtain a more rounded education. A school that offers such a program could attract more and better students, and in this way, a pass-fail system would be beneficial not only to the student body, but to the institution of East Carolina as a whole.

My column, which was to have appeared in last Tuesday's issue of the paper disappeared in route to the printers. It was not censored however. At least that's what I've been told. I apologize for its disappearance and hereby offer today's column in its place.

A new course is being offered to us next year. It is Anthropology 69, subtitled Sexology. I have checked this out, and this is a legitimate course. Someone in the Administration has shown us his sense of humor. Of course the humor is kind of flaky but it's funny none the less.

As much as I cut up the MRC, I have to feel sorry for them. My reason for writing about them was to get its members to rid themselves of apathy and get out and do something.

Recently the MRC asked dorm residents to file and run for MRC offices for next year. There are five posts to be filled and only five people are running. This way nobody loses. If the lazy people in the dorms would get out and start working then maybe your MRC would become useful instead of useless.

Keeping with the MRC theme, I'd like to make a report on those Water Fountains for Scott Hall. They are still not installed (As if you didn't know) The Maintenance Department is not putting the fountains in because they are afraid that the water will freeze. Water freezing, in Greenville, in the summer???

Our ECU Maintenance men aren't wrapped too tight!!

Last column I reported that the MRC was supposed to have a mock trial of me . . . for libel. Of course they chickened out. One of them even came up and talked to me. She said she was sorry that the WRC couldn't take part in the trial, but they had other commitments. I prefer to think that the WRC faltered when they thought of their existence being made public. They couldn't stand the publicity.

This past weekend will go down in ECU history as the week of the beach party. ECU students hit the beaches in full force. From Myrtle Beach to Virginia Beach, East Carolina was well represented.

Even the supposedly dead Pseudoman was washed ashore at Carolina Beach. His first words were, of course, "a tall blue please." He has returned.

44 PERCENT FEWER TEETH DEPARTMENT. The following is a true event. Nothing has been changed or altered. The Student Soda Shop has broken into the limelight again.

An unsuspecting friend of mine recently purchased a brownie from the CU. After two bites, he realized that some of the nuts sprinkled on top of the brownie were not really nuts at all. Some troll of a person had put a rock in the brownie.

After the stabbing pain had subsided, my friend found himself with a broken tooth. He had to shell out a small fortune to get his tooth repaired. The School has done nothing from Grannie Grunt's Pectolus Bakery and Dry Cleaning Service. Come on CU, let's get with the system or we'll all start wearing our "Ban the Brownie" buttons.

The Yearbooks are here . . . at long last. They will be given out Monday the 29th in the little white building by the Old Gym.

Passion Perfumes Of Men Now Compete With Women

Today, the American women spend more than $440 million a year to encourage "Passion through Perfume." It is revealing to look into the facts behind the relationship of scent and sex, and to examine the psychology behind the unprecedented boom in men's fragrance products.

The erotic nature of perfume is an established fact—women have used it to titillate and excite the male since earliest times and eminent psychiatrists acknowledge it as one of the psychological aphrodisiacs.

So naturally, during times when the Puritanical doctrine condemns pleasures of the flesh, perfume is regarded as a sinful sensuous indulgence.

Only now, after centuries of subjection to this Puritanical code, is society throwing off the shackles of hypocrisy, rebelling against out-moded sexual mores, and rediscovering the erotic delights of fragrance.

For to the true sybarite, the application of fragrance is pure, hedonistic ecstasy . . . the bliss of bathing in perfumed water, smoothing on silken lotions, spraying on mists of cool cologne, and fluffing on clouds of fragrant powder.

Perfume brings out all the femininity in a woman . . . it caresses her body and arouses her senses . . . it makes her feel more alluring, more exciting, more provocative.

And the way that perfume affects men can never be overestimated. During one historical period its fascination was considered so dangerous as a means of seducing men into matrimony, that it was banned by law.

In fact, the types of perfume popular at any particular time actually reflect the economic and cultural fluctuation of a nation . . . when men are away fighting wars, women instinctively seek heavy animal-like scents . . . when times are affluent, and women have stature, security and independence, they seek sophisticated blended perfumes.

Now he too has acquired a standard of living that permits him the luxuries of his forbears . . . for perfumes has always been the privilege of the rich and the noble. The Romans waged wars in order to bring home perfume . . . Napoleon used 54 bottles of cologne a month . . . George IV spent 500 pound on perfume . . . Nero had perfumes showered from the ceiling of his dining salon and in Louis XV day, etiquette prescribed the use of a different perfume each day.

So it is only natural that as man elevates his own position, until it resembles that of ancient aristocrats, so he affords himself the opportunity to enjoy the privileges of the high-born.

Enchantment Of Spring Frisbees Soar

By RITA L. BEST
Features Editor

Spring has finally defeated Old Man Winter and is graciously giving way to Lady Summer.

All around the campus a new appearance is taking place. Even Old Austin has a new look as she is decked with pink and white azaleas.

Some professors have decided to join the Spring movement instead of trying to defeat the romantic stary-eyed students and are holding a few of their classes in the out of doors. But even they are finding excuses to stay out in the open with statements like "This fresh air is just what the doctor ordered for that backache that I had last winter" or "Did you know that my poetry classes have been completely inspired by this Spring weather?" Oh! Well, why make excuses? Everyone likes the mysterious enchantment of Spring!

Classes are lacking while the mall has become the favorite gathering place for those already bitten by the "bug." Those poor professors who are suffering to teach those who are still braving the long, hot classes are thinking and longing for the good ol' days down at the fishing hole. Some Spring fever victims have even retreated to soaking their weary feet in the cool, refreshing waters of Wright fountain.

Be certain and don't spend the week ends on campus alone. All the action has been taken to the beaches along with newly painted surf boards, floral "jams" and skimpy bikinies, and lots of ice cold refreshment(?).

But if you happen to be one of those lost souls who has not experienced the joy of the bite of the bug, the long strolls on the malls, or the shade from the trees or arboreum, take this piece of advice: WATCH OUT FOR FLYING OBJECTS, THEY MIGHT BE FRISBEES!!!!

That sunny beach weather is rapidly pushing all thoughts of work out of the minds of even the most dedicated. This one piece, knit swim suit for men seems just the thing to get those all-important second looks from the opposite sex while at surfside or poolside.

Placement Service Offers Summers Sun '68 With Pay

The East Carolina Placement Service is co-ordinating with the Pitt Technical Institute to provide jobs at the North Carolina Beaches for ECU students and students of Pitt Tech. One meeting was held on April 22 to discuss the training programs for the summer job opportunities. Oia Porter of Pitt Tech related to the students information regarding the possibilities of opportunities as working as a waiter or waitresses and as motel clerks in such places as Manteo and North Carolina Beaches. Summer employees will receive $1.25 plus tips.

Student Teachers Intern Over NC

Sixty-five North Carolina counties and 16 other states are represented by 337 East Carolina University teaching interns in various public schools of the area during the spring quarter.

Most of the student teachers (287) are North Carolinians, but also represented are the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Each student is given an intern assignment through the office of Dr. Thomas A. Chambliss who coordinates the student teacher program of the School of Education.

This term the students are teaching in school systems in 26 counties of North Carolina. One is assigned to the Norfolk, Va., schools. The interns conduct regular classes under the direction of supervisors and are graded for their on-the-job performances.

Gamma Beta Phi Elects President

George W. Bright III has been named president of the East Carolina University chapter of Gamma Beta Phi national honorary society.

Other officers elected include: Carolyn Westbrook, vice president; Rebecca Langley, secretary; Judy Coggins, attendance officer; Helen Berry, treasurer; and Frances Scott, historian-reporter.

An outgrowth of the National Beta Club, a high school scholarship and leadership organization, the Gamma Beta Phi Honorary Society was established for college students who have earned at least a 2.5 average and who exhibit good character. The ECU Lambda chapter was organized in January 1965.

Anderson Speaks To EC Republicans

Gene Anderson, executive secretary of the North Carolina Republican Party, and Harold Herring, organizations chairman for the N.C. Federation of College Young Republicans, followed up their speeches on "Campaign Issues and Methods" with a 30 minute "bull-session" Monday night.

Most of the questions asked concerned the August National Convention and upcoming elections.

Anderson said that "barring some unforeseen disaster, Richard Nixon will probably be the nominee." While agreeing that Nixon is the frontrunner, Herring expressed his view that Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York is a possible obstacle to Nixon's path. He sees Governor Ronald Reagan of California as the probable standard-bearer if there is a Nixon-Rockefeller stand-off.

The two politicians named Senator Charles Percy of Illinois, Reagan, Governor Claude of Florida, Governor Russell Rhodes of Ohio, and Senator John Tower of Texas as possible vice-presidential nominees. Anderson noted that the nominee for the second spot is practically unpredictable since the method of his selection will not even be decided until the convention.

Asked about how the N.C. Congressional races look, Anderson enthusiastically emphasized, "We expect to take at least six, maybe even seven districts." In the state assembly "45 percent of the house and 21 percent of the Senate wouldn't surprise" the young executive secretary.

In their speeches both men pointed out the "opportunities for youth in the Republican party." Herring described Democrats as "old and tired" and his party as "young and vibrant."

Praising the growth of the two party system, Anderson foresaw that "it will offer a lot, whether we win or lose — by keeping the Democrats on their toes with active competition."

He added, "The Democrats are raising the same problems that they haven't been able to solve in North Carolina for 67 years."

"The Republicans are looking toward the East, while the Democrats have turned their backs on the East for so long," Anderson promised. "The number of Council of State candidates from eastern N.C., including John East, (a rising star) shows this," he continued.

Accusing the Johnson administration of being "out of touch with reality," Herring looked at the Republican gains in the 1966 election as showing "the winds of change."

"Every citizen can share the abundance of society in proportion to his ability," advocated Herring in a statement on welfare. He claimed that poverty funds were merely used as "building blocks for power politics."

Herring predicted that "strength, not weak supplication was the way to deal with Communists. We noted the Israel six-day war as an example that 'the price of freedom is high, but never to high.'"

Prior to the speeches, new officers were installed. President Chuck White, Vice-President Bev Carawan, Secretary Connie Whisnant, and Treasurer George Francis will lead the club next year. Nancy Canup, Reid Overcash, and Leta Culbertson are Executive Committee members also.

Remodeling Begins In UU Soda Shop

It was announced today by Jim Burwell, Secretary of the newly established SGA Department Of Institutional Improvements, that his department's first project is underway. It concerns remodeling the UU soda shop and it will be accomplished with the combined efforts of three groups: the Industrial Arts Club, responsible for expanding the serving counter, putting a canopy over the counter, and adding other minor improvements; members of the Art Department will cover the back wall with murals painting and/or sculpture; George Schreiber of the Drama Department will be in charge of the lighting.

Mr. Burwell stated further that plans for this project will be completed by the end of this school year, in order that construction may be completed in time for the beginning of fall quarter. When asked why this project was being undertaken in light of the plans for the new soda shop to be built within the next two or three years, Mr. Burwell replied, "It is the intention of myself and the newly elected SGA President, David Lloyd, that the student now residing at East Carolina University should have immediate benefits and not just pictures and promises of future plans."

The Pirates Jamboree Dance, featuring Ruby and The Romantics, on Saturday, April 27 in Wright Auditorium will be open to anyone. Tickets will not be required.

Industrial Club Plans UU Project In End Of Year Activities

The Industrial and Technical Education Club is on the move. Last Thursday, April 17, the club held a southern barbecue dinner. After the meal the club's president, Earl Bunch, called the members' attention to several projects which will materialize in the near future.

According to Mr. Bunch, the two projects on which the club will be working. The first is the renovation of the university's soda fountain. Having allocated a sum of money for this purpose, the student body approached this department to work jointly with the Art and Drama department on the project. The Industrial and Technical Education Club will be working in connection with the Epsilon Phi Tau fraternity.

The soda fountain will be designed in such a way that it can be prefabricated and installed over a period of two days.

The second project that the club is undertaking is the construction of some indoor signs for the American Legion Society.

SGA Honors Lloyd At Annual Banquet

The annual SGA Banquet was held Tuesday night at the Candlewick Inn. Approximately 100 people attended, including officers, members, and invited guests.

The primary concern of the banquet was to install the new SGA officials which were elected last spring. David Lloyd was installed as President, after which he in turn installed his cabinet.

Many awards were given to many members of the SGA. Dean James Mallory presented the following awards: Most Outstanding Men's Judicial Member - Ray Owen; Most Outstanding Men's Honor Council Member - Howard Salenius; Most Outstanding Women's Judicial Member - Joann Vaughn; Most Outstanding Women's Honor Council Member - Anita Todd.

Later, Steve Moore presented Jean Harvey with the Most Outstanding Committee Member award.

Most Outstanding Legislative Member was Jim Young, presented by Dean Rudolf Alexander.

David Lloyd received the Most Outstanding Executive Council Member award from Henry Howard, Director of the ECU News Bureau.

In his acceptance speech, newly installed president Lloyd quoted from the preamble of the SGA constitution, and asked if it were being adhered to. In his speech, Lloyd emphasized responsibility and the equality of all ECU students to fair and just representation in the student body. "Are we doing everything to help students at East Carolina express themselves as individuals, 'no matter if they have long hair or dark skin?'" asked Lloyd.

Later in his speech Lloyd expressed his thoughts concerning free thought. "... a type of thought which is necessary to attain not an ECTC education of yesterday, but an education of a University."

As for all of his recommendations, Lloyd concluded by saying that, "This reality can't and will not be fulfilled in one year or maybe even ten years, but I hope that the new SGA administration will be a considerable start toward the completion of these goals."

Any student interested in applying for Editor of the 1968-69 Rebel is asked to submit a written application to Dr. James H. Tucker in the Nursing Building immediately.

May 10, the Industrial and Technical Education Club will send several of its members to Charlotte to attend the North Carolina Industrial Arts Association.

Purple-Gold Game Saturday Kicks-Off EC Spring Practice

By LESTER NORRIS

Although spring is traditionally thought of as baseball weather, footballs will be in the air at Ficklen Stadium this coming Saturday at 2 p.m. as the annual Purple-Gold football game officially ends spring practice for East Carolina.

Head Coach Clarence Stasavich predicts a closely contested, spirited game. During the past six years the two teams have won three games each, without either team winning more than two touchdowns.

The gold team, which is composed of the first offensive and defensive teams, would appear to have the edge.

Starting defensively for the gold team is Rober Post and John Elrod at the ends, Wayne Lineberry and David Roberts at the tackles, Steve Davis and George Wheeler at the guards, Paul Weathersbee at middle linebacker, Jeff Dudley at roveback, Mike Boaz and Dwight Flanagan at halfback, and Fella Rhodes at safety.

The gold offensive team has Jim Adkins and Bob Withrow at the ends, David Brill and Walter Adams at the tackles, Dave Hamilton and Ben Grieb at the guards, Bill Tucker at center, Dennis Young at tailback, Butch Colson at fullback, Charlie Overton at blocking back and Tommy Bullock at wingback.

The purple team, having provided some surprises in the past, will be out to live up to that tradition again Saturday. Defensively, Don Wilmer and Tom Pulley will start at the ends, John Morris and Phil Bilodeau at the tackles, Alex Monroe and Wilbur Sasser at the guards, Terry Edmondson at center, Mike Mills at tailback, Mike McGuirk at fullback, Jim Gudger at blocking back, and George Whitley at the wingback spot.

Other than the none gridders that will not play due to injuries or participation in other sports, Coach Stasavich said that Pirate fans will be getting a look at men that will make up next fall's team.

ECU students will be admitted free by presenting their ID card at the gate. The general public will be asked to donate $1.00. All proceeds will go to the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Greene & White Sign For Buc Gridiron

Gratten White, an offensive fullback and defensive linebacker, and Edward Greene, an end off the 1967 Hamlet High football team, have signed football grants with East Carolina University.

Greene stands 6-2 and one-half and weighs 188 pounds and was a tri-captain on the Hamlet team, president of the student body and a delegate to Boy's State.

White, who stands 6-0 and weighs 190, was an all-conference defensive player of Hamlet.

Row, Row, Your Boats! Crew Readies For Regatta

The ECU crew team is slated to row in the Dad-Vail Regatta in Philadelphia on Friday, May 10.

The meet, held on the Schuylkill River, promises to be an important one to the team, as it determines the national champion in the Small College Division. Among the many colleges represented, ECU's team will be facing Marietta College of Marietta, Ohio, the present National Champions.

In preparation, Coach Vic Pezzulla has revamped the team's training program so as to place optimum stress upon both speed and endurance.

For endurance, each practice session opens with a mile run, followed by calisthenics and weight-lifting.

When the team then hits the water, the attention shifts to speed, with time trials twice a week, and work on ever-faster starts three times each week.

Other crew coaches watching the team in action have been quoted as saying that the regimen seems to be paying off, and ECU's representatives should be able to hold their own at the Dad-Vail Regatta.

Pirates Deal Wildcats Double Trouble For Two EC Victories

East Carolina batters pounded out 21 hits and scored 20 runs as Vince Colbert and Dennis Burke each recorded route going victories as the Bucs dealt the Davidson Wildcats two losses, 8-0 and 12-4.

The two wins kept East Carolina in the southern division lead with a perfect 4-0 mark. The Citadel is in second, with Furman and Davidson bringing up the rear.

In the first game victory, Vince Colbert hurled a four-hit shutout while striking out eight batters. Colbert didn't walk a man as he racked up his third win as against two losses.

Richard Corrada with three hits and Dave Goings with two hits were the only Buc players with more than one hit in the first game. The Bucs had three home-runs account for five runs as Corrada and Jimmy Lanier each cracked out solo shots and Stu Garrett a three-run shot.

In the second game, Garrett continued his heavy hitting as he connected for his second and third homers of the day his first two times at bat. Garrett went two-for-two in the night-cap. In his last time up, he walked with the bases loaded, driving in his seventh RBI of the day.

Dennis Burke went the route, scattering five hits while striking out eight batters and walking only one. The four Wildcat runs were all unearned as four Buc errors let in the runs.

Burke was the only other player besides Garrett to get two hits in the night-cap as he went two for three, scored two runs and drove in one. Burke got his two hits in the fifth inning as the Bucs sent 11 men to the plate while scoring eight runs.
