Morrisette Heads Island Program

By CARRIETTA HILL

Dean William C. Morrisette of Chowan College was appointed director of the ECU instructional program on Roanoke Island in Dare County.

Morrisette will coordinate the development of a program on property given to ECU last fall. The property consists of about 90 acres at Manteo Airport and two school buildings in Manteo.

The proposed program will offer this summer, through its division of Continuing Education (DCE), courses in drama, music, art, and community relations.

Morrisette's appointment was announced by Dr. David J. Middleton, dean of ECU's DCE, which is handling the development of the Dare campus.

Middleton said the Dare Program provides an opportunity for all eligible individuals to attend university courses while in the Dare County area during the summer.

This program is particularly designed for those who find it impossible to attend ECU as regular day students on the campus at Greenville.

He added, "We expect a substantial number of teachers to earn credit toward renewal of teaching certificates through these courses this summer."

Middleton expressed his satisfaction concerning Morrisette's qualifications.

Morrisette, a native of Shiloh in Camden County, has his BS and MA degrees from ECU. He has done further work at Duke University and Michigan State University.

After college he coached at Luccama for 3 years, then was principal at Weaverville for 6 years. He joined the Chowan staff in 1960 as a professor of history and was promoted to dean the next year.

Middleton feels that the new program has made a good start. He hopes that it will "help the residents of Eastern North Carolina with their plans for continuing and broadening their general education."

Further information about the Dare County program is available from the DCE offices located in Erwin Hall.

He has also been invited by the U.S. State Department to lecture in West Germany during the month of June at various U.S. and German Cultural Centers. His itinerary will include Berlin, Hamburg, Hannover, Darmstadt, Kassel, Stuttgart, and Frankfurt.

Dr. Napp's lecture topics include race relations, youth problems, and the American social structure. In addition to his lecture program, he will participate in youth workshops and seminars in Hamburg and Frankfurt.

Do You Have The Knack? Playhouse Offers Lessons

By JAY PAUL

A knack is a clever way of doing things, but "The Knack" is a clever way of getting women.

The East Carolina Playhouse will present Ann Jellicoe's play, "The Knack," May 6-9 in McGinnis Auditorium. Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m.

Jane Barrett, who has the leading female role of Nancy comes to the big city of New York. While looking for the YWCA she passes a house where three eligible bachelors, Tolen played by Cullen Johnson; Colin, by Richard Bradner; and Tom, played by Greg Zittel, live.

Tolen seems to have the knack of winning the opposite sex and he doesn't hesitate to use it. He usually chases the girl and then meets her later for a date. Colin, on the other hand, wants the knack but can't seem to bring himself to go chasing the girls. All Tom wants to do is paint walls (and other things), and doesn't even have any interest in girls.

When Nancy meets these three, she tries to impress them. None of them pay any attention to her, not even Tolen. Eventually, Tom and Colin set out to try to win Nancy for themselves.

As the play progresses, the only person to have success with Nancy is Tolen. He just has the "knack" for attracting women.

"The Knack" is directed by Amanda Loessin. Stage Manager is Carlton Edwards, costumes by Mary Stephenson, lighting by George Schriber, and John Sneden is responsible for scenery.

Tickets for "The Knack" may be picked up in the Central Ticket Office May 1-9.

Johnny Rivers Violates Contract; Entertainer Delays Concert

"We would have been entirely within our legal rights to have called off the Johnny Rivers show, due to a contract violation," stated Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Rudolph Alexander, who serves as advisor to the SGA Popular Entertainments Committee.

Alexander was speaking in answer to allegations made by popular recording artist Johnny Rivers at Saturday's mall concert for Pirate's Jamboree. Rivers intimated that the committee failed to carry out its obligations by not having people to meet him at the airport when he arrived, by failing to make some-one available to assist him with the equipment, and by not having a person to guide his entourage to the campus.

Dean Alexander explained that he had contacted the Bobby Roberts Management Agency of Los Angeles last Thursday, and that the agency had informed him that they would take care of all arrangements and accommodations for the members of the show.

Entertainments Committee Chairman Ada Sanford pointed out that the contract with Rivers included a clause stipulating that the performers would be present at one p.m. Saturday in order to run through a sound rehearsal and to prepare the sound equipment for use at two.

After waiting fifteen minutes after the designated time for the sound rehearsal, the committee managed to get in touch with Rivers, awakening him fifteen minutes later. It was 2:30 when Rivers finally arrived at the concert site, without having gone through the required sound rehearsal.

Dean Alexander said this entailed a breach of contract by Rivers, and that the SGA would have been entirely within their rights to renegotiate the contract and arrive at a lower figure on those grounds.

Sanford answered the charges about the alleged lack of persons on hand upon the arrival of the group, saying, "It is normal for entertainers to request such assistance in the contract. Whenever an entertainer asks to be met, or aided in any way, the committee always makes arrangements to fulfill their wishes. In this case, we acted upon the information given by the management agency, assuming that they were empowered to act for Rivers."

Film Rescheduled

The travel-adventure film, "The Mighty Mississippi," will be presented on Tuesday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. This program was scheduled for February but had to be postponed. James Metcalf, noted adventurer and photographer, brings this final event on the 1967-1968 Lecture series, and admission will be by ID Cards for students, faculty and staff. Tickets for the public will be available at the door for $1.00 each.

IFC Cancer Drive Raises $825 For Pitt

At road blocks set up Saturday, passing motorists contributed $825 to the Interfraternity Council's "Greek Cancer Drive." Located in and around Greenville, the road blocks were manned by approximately 100 members of the fraternities on campus, whose collections were given to the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Association.

Working in cooperation with Assistant Dean of Men Bob Miller, and supported by several prominent Greenville business leaders, IFC President Gary Phipps was more than pleased with the outcome of the fund-raising campaign.

"The drive was a success," he said, "only because of the near-perfect fraternity participation. To the men of these fraternities I extend my sincere thanks and genuine appreciation."

Phipps was also pleased with the apparent good will expressed by the contributors. "Everyone must certainly have some inclination of the monumental task involved in conquering cancer," added Phipps. "The money we collected Saturday can do nothing but help that fight. With this consideration in mind, I am sure the people contributed with pleasure."

Phipps wished to thank each contributor individually, but realized the impossibility and offered a general "Thank you, one and all." He concluded his remarks by stating that the collection was done in an atmosphere of brotherhood—whether in Greek letters or in mankind.

A trophy will be awarded to Phi Alpha Sigma fraternity for highest percentage of participation. Tau Kappa Epsilon was runner-up.

Buc Cagers' School

The announcement of the Buccaneer Basketball School marks another milestone for East Carolina University in its drive to attain the true university status the student body and administration so strongly desire.

While the opening of a school to train young high school boys in the skills needed for success on the basketball court may not seem to some a very memorable achievement, it must be remembered that it is a function carried out by the other major universities across the nation. East Carolina can not afford to lag behind.

Eastern North Carolina has long needed such a camp program for its young men. They have had to travel away from their university in Greenville to obtain training at other campuses in this or other states.

The school gets into swing this summer with a two week program, designed to provide individual training for each youth who attends. This is unique among camps of this nature, for most of them place their emphasis on quantity of campers, rather than the essential quality of instruction provided.

This kind of program for the attainment of excellence in the athletic department will go a long way toward promoting East Carolina University as a strong sports center in the East. Head basketball coach Tom Quinn, the director of the school, hopes it will serve as an incentive for young men to consider East Carolina as the right place to get an education, whether or not they come to participate in athletics.

East Carolina University can never become the true university of the East until it takes the lead in all the small facets that go with such a position. Enough improvements like the institution of the Buccaneer Basketball School will push it to that prestigious position.

The Students' Voice

Last week, East Carolina students were given the opportunity to participate in Choice '68, a nationwide presidential preference poll, in which they were allowed to vote for their choice of the major contenders in the 1968 executive race. Voters were also allowed to make choices from a list of foreign and domestic policies.

This weekend, a fairly large number of East Carolina students will once again be able to go to the polls. However, unlike the Choice '68 voting of last week, this polling will be for keeps, as voters choose their preferred party's candidates for the November elections.

North Carolina's primaries are set for Saturday, May 4. Both parties will enter primary candidates this year, marking a boost in Republican hopes for a strong two-party system. Heading the Democratic gubernatorial ticket are Mel Broughton, incumbent lieutenant governor Bob Scott, and Dr. Reginald Hawkins. Running for the G.O.P. nomination are Congressman Jim Gardner and Jack Stickley. Also on Saturday's ballots will be a host of candidates running for other elected offices, giving voters a chance to indicate their preferences for government office from the state level down to the local school board.

The opportunity to vote should not be taken lightly, as the ballot is the backbone of the democracy of America. As trite as it may seem, voting IS a duty, not just a privilege. Only as long as it is exercised by thoughtful citizens are America and the state of North Carolina true democracies.

The student, contrary to the beliefs of many, usually uneducated, persons, is perhaps the best informed voter at the polls. He has had the opportunity to hear the problems of the day discussed in an academic atmosphere, with both sides represented and a host of possible solutions proposed. He should be willing to use the knowledge he has gained to better the world in which he will be working, raising a family, and living.

Every student on this campus who is eligible to vote should be ready to go to the polls and express his choice, regardless of what candidate or party he supports.

Symphony Praise

To the Editor:

The East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra receives my praise for its excellent performance on Sunday, April 28, during the institution's Seventh Annual Contemporary Music Festival. Most enjoyable is "Symphonic Prelude," a composition by visiting Professor Whitcomb. It is truly unfortunate that only a few persons were present to enjoy this fine aggregation of musicians.

Sincerely,
George Rickman

Rally Around

To the Editor:

I think it is a disgrace that on the campus of 10,000 students a student can walk all day long and not see an American flag. Unless of course you might walk in front of Old Austin way down on the far West end of campus. In these times of war and civil disorders, it looks as if we could at least have more than this obscure flag.

My suggestion is that other flags be placed on the island in front of Belk dorm and near Wright. I also feel that it would be quite appropriate for the ROTC to be responsible for putting these flags up and taking them down each day, in uniform. Then they could serve their country with the uniform they wear.

Thank you
Gerald W. Roberson

(Ed. Note: It is our understanding that the R.O.T.C. does raise and lower the flag in front of Old Austin each day in full uniform.)

S.O.U.L.S.

To Students of ECU:

In his dedication address for the Baptist Student Union, President Jenkins said that we should rise above the differences in race and creed through the spirit of Christ.

One of the major problems in race relations today has been the disadvantaged Negro. He is disadvantaged because he does not exercise or is aware of his rights. A program is now being conducted to help alleviate this problem through education.

The education that is being offered is Voter Education. It teaches the people how and why and provides transportation for them to exercise this right.

It is through faith and brotherhood that we engage in this campaign, based on the assumption that through Christ we can help our people here on earth.

In following with the wish of President Jenkins we would like to ask for faculty and students to volunteer to help us in this campaign any way that they can, to help remove this problem from our community.

I may be contacted in the Union or interested students may call 752-6820 and leave a message. Let us help our fellow man through Christ as the President of this great institution of learning has requested.

Thank you,
Charles E. Davis
President S.O.U.L.S.

This, That, and The Other

Mock Election

Walt Whittemore

Last week's mock presidential election, presidential - preference poll, or whatever else it may have been dubbed may now be added to the ever-expanding list of futile (and feeble) efforts by someone to amuse and learn about the student body.

Last February, we had Al Capp giving one of his unforgettable lectures. Not only was the chosen auditorium obviously too small, but someone saw fit to make ticket sales to the general public, thereby denying attendance to inestimable numbers of students and faculty members.

Then we had the Beach Boys in concert several weeks ago. However, due to an oversight by someone on the technical staffs (after all, the entertainment committee cannot assume the credit or blame for everything) relatively few members of the audience were able to hear both the vocal and instrumental portions of the performance.

Now we have the election. Perhaps a limited — or "odd," if you prefer — choice of candidates could be forgiven. Perhaps the limited choices over Vietnam and the several economic programs could be forgiven. Perhaps ignoring other topics of interest — the Selective Service System, for example — could be overlooked. But when all of these mistakes are made, someone must complain.

Concerning the choices offered for the "ideal" president, let me point out two oversights of the pollsters. The first could be excused, for despite President Johnson's withdrawal from the race, he cannot be totally discounted in such a poll. However, the gross disrespect paid the late Dr. King by placing him on the ballot should not go unnoticed.

The alternatives provided for the Vietnam controversy left even more to be desired. It seems that the pollsters have forgotten that some moderates and middle-of-the-roads are still left among the American public. Why was it that the testers were so irresponsible as to force everyone to choose between a stand as a hawk or as a dove?

Finally, the poll asked each "voter" to indicate the preferred economic program to be emphasized by the federal government. Not only did the testers ignore the fact that these programs are continuously overlapping but the pollsters did not allow voters to show if they support more than one program.

It seems logical that someone might defend the aforementioned flaws on the grounds that no one is perfect and that these flaws will be eliminated the next time around. But, what about those of us who don't anticipate being around four years from now?

Lovely young ladies are the very epitome of Spring on the East Carolina campus, and the three coeds who are contestants for Military Ball Queen are no exception. From left are Elaine Harris, Jere Gallagher, and Jane Burgess. One of the three will be named Queen Saturday night at the event sponsored by the Arnold Air Society.

Finalists Compete For Crown; ROTC Selects Military Ball Queen

By NELDA S. LOWE
Features Editor

The 1968 Military Ball Queen will be crowned Saturday night, May 4 at the annual ball sponsored by the Arnold Air Society.

Finalists for the crown are Mary Jane Burgess, Jere Gallagher, and Elaine Harris. They were selected from a field of nine nominated by the Angel Flight from within its ranks.

Jane Burgess

Miss Mary Jane Burgess is a sophomore history major from Wilson Mills, N. C. She pledged Angel Flight last year as a freshman and is now Sergeant-at-Arms. She has interests in dancing and piano but stated, "Right now my main interest is in school and Angel Flight. All my extra time is spent with the corps."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Burgess, she considers her selection a "real honor" and is "very proud of it."

Jere Gallagher

The daughter of Col. and Mrs. James B. Gallagher, Jere also considers her selection a "very nice honor." She is a sophomore physical education major from Fort Bragg, N. C. Besides being a member of Angel Flight, Jere is a Marshal and a sister of Delta Zeta sorority.

Elaine Harris

"I'm quite honored to represent Angel Flight and ROTC in the running because they both mean a lot to me. Angel Flight is a very worthwhile organization." These are the words of Elaine Harris, a junior Business Education major and the third candidate competing for the "very title."

Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman E. Harris of Ayden, N. C. She is vice president of Phi Beta Lambda, professional business organization; vice president of her Angel Flight pledge class; served as a Student Counselor in Umstead Hall; and enjoys sewing, dancing, and outdoor sports.

It is a somewhat dubious distinction to be named the ugliest man on a campus of almost 10,000, but sophomore Gerald Roberson received that "honor" Tuesday, as the annual MRC Ugliest Man On Campus Contest closed. Roberson combined old clothes, magic marker, long underwear, an old cigar, a vodka bottle, and the help of friends to produce his winning image.

Free Flick

Satiric comedy will be the bill of fare this Friday evening when the campus free flick will be "Texas Across the River," starring Dean Martin, Joey Bishop, and Alan DeLon. The two showings will be at 7 and 9 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

This riotously funny Western lampoons the whole gamut of traditional plots and situations that used to separate the cowboys from the Indians and the good guys from the bad guys. Dean Martin, the Texas cowboy, kids everything in sight, assisted by his trusted Indian sidekick, Joey Bishop. Bishop, it develops, is a half-breed Indian—half brave and half chicken. Bishop attempts to follow in the footsteps of his fearless father, the chief, and the results nearly steal the show.

Roberson Wins 'Ugliest' Award

The Ugliest Man on Campus contest came to an end Monday, April 29, with Gerald Roberson as the winner. Gerald is a 19 year old sophomore from Kinston, North Carolina.

Mr. "Ugliest Man" said that the credit for his outfit goes to his suite mates who "just grabbed stuff from around the room." His costume consisted mainly of a Magic Marker beard, long underwear, swim trunks, and a few contemporary sayings written on his bare chest.

When asked why he entered the contest, Gerald grinned and replied, "Just for the devil of it." However, he was not disappointed in the prize money or the prospect of a good-looking date.

The contest was sponsored by the men's Residence Council, and the proceeds from the penny votes will go to charity.

First place winner receives $10.00, and the second place winner, Bennie Bunn, receives $5.00.

State Announces Summer Job Program For Students

On April 26, Governor Moore announced a special employment program to find summer jobs for 100,000 high school and college students in North Carolina.

He said, "When schools close this summer there will be many young citizens in need of gainful employment to help provide money to continue their education in the fall. We are asking that private business and industry help North Carolina by providing meaningful jobs for these deserving young men and women."

The summer employment program for students was developed in conjunction with the Governor's Council for Economic Development, the several participating State agencies and representatives of business and industry, the Governor said.

The Governor reported that the first private organization to endorse the summer employment program was the North Carolina Citizens Association, a Statewide group of business and industry leaders dedicated to sound government and a growing economy.

He said that other public and private agencies and organizations are being contacted to help with the summer employment effort. These include numerous trade associations, regional development groups, etc. All are being urged by the Governor to give full support and encouragement to the program.

Summer jobs made available by business and industry will be listed with the North Carolina Employment Security Commission. The Commission has offices throughout the State and will work with employers and students in placement.

Our 54 local offices and five more units will be happy to serve as clearing houses for their respective areas and to refer the students to available jobs most compatible with their abilities and interests. Cooperation of schools will be solicited to expedite the application process," he said.

Kendall added, "With almost 50,000 covered employers in North Carolina plus many large firms exempt from unemployment insurance coverage, the provision of 100,000 additional summer jobs would be an inexpensive but valuable investment in the future of our younger citizens."

Recruitment for the summer job program will be done in high schools, colleges and universities throughout the State. The Department of Public Instruction and the State Board of Higher Education are coordinating information programs for students in the public schools and in the public and private systems of higher education.

Governor Moore said the summer employment program for students would complement and include existing private and governmental job programs. "This is a major undertaking and every resource must be utilized in finding suitable employment for our young men and women," he said.

"I urge all young people who need summer employment to take advantage of this opportunity. You will help yourself and North Carolina," the Governor said.

A limited supply of applications are available in the office of Dr. James Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs. Additional information is also available.

Workshop Theatre Presents Play By Tennessee Williams

The ECU Workshop Theatre will present two one-act plays May 15-16: Tennessee Williams' "Twenty Seven Wagons Full of Cotton," and Carlton Edward's "Green Jello, Purple Paint." Both will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in UU 201.

"Twenty Seven Wagons Full of Cotton" has its setting in the Mississippi delta during the late depression years. Jake (Jim Fleming), the owner of a small cotton gin, has a burning ambition to get ahead in the world, using any means available. His wife, Flora (Angela Ritchie), is the answer to the Mississippi people's sexual ideal. The story opens with Jake's ginning interest being threatened by incoming big business. Jake retaliates by burning down his competition's warehouse. Jake's best friend, Viccarro (Bob Tompkins), is both the victor and victim. The play concludes with an unusual twist of events, resulting in a happy-sad, bitter-sweet ending, that should provide for delightful entertainment.

"Green Jello, Purple Paint" written and directed by Carlton Edwards, senior drama major, concerns a young girl who is trying to find her place in the world. The young girl, Phyllis (Evelyn Marshall), has the unique wish of being embalmed in green jello. She also paints her face purple, which is symbolic of the mask that she is presenting to the world. Her boyfriend (Mark Ramsay), tries to go along with her in most of her endeavors, but later finds the going rough. The understanding mother of Phyllis is played by Linda Meyer.

Admission is free for both plays, and all students and faculty members are invited to attend.

Jerry Beaver will open Saturday night's coffeehouse with his interpretations of "modern folk" songs. Performing from 8-8:45 p.m., Beaver should be a highlight of the series.

At 9 p.m. Pam Honaker will perform a series of dramatic readings featuring the poets of this decade. Miss Honaker has played roles in many productions of the ECU Theatre and has published several poems of her own.

At 9:30, Room 201 will shake to the country sound of the Bluegrass Experience. Featuring Tom Edwards on banjo, Wilbur Drye on mandolin, and Leroy Savage on guitar and electric stomach, the Bluegrass Experience will provide an "ethnic" hour of pure folk.

"Foggy Mountain Breakdown," "Old Joe Clark," and "Amelia Earhart" are featured numbers.

M.C. for both nights will be Taylor Green, a sophomore from Greensboro. In addition to his duties as M.C., Green will entertain between sets with his standup comedy.

Acts for Monday and Tuesday will be announced.

Admission will be free to all.

This is typical of many scenes tourists can expect to see during the summer European tour.

Company Tour Offers New View Of Europe

NO JOKE! NO HITCH! Would you believe that for $555 you can enjoy a 21-day tour through Bavaria, Austria, and Switzerland this August? A North Carolina Wesleyan College professor, Vance Mizelle, will lead a group of about 30 on the ALPINE CAMPING TOUR this summer, the first of a series of college-oriented trips under the aegis of Lufthansa German Airlines. The group will fly jet to Germany on August 3, travel private chartered bus on an itinerary which includes Munich, Oberammergau, Garmisch, Salzburg, Innsbruck, Berchtesgaden, Zurich, Lucerne, and Interlaken — and all the camping gear will be included in the price of the tour!

Highlights

Highlights of the tour will be a sampling of Munich's famous gemütlichkeit, the music festivals of Salzburg and Bragenz, and excursions to the Jungfrau and Mt. Pilatus in the Swiss Alps. Although many Americans imagine camping to be carrying a pack on your back, chopping down trees and pitching a tent Davy Crockett fashion, this is not true at all. European camp sites afford the vacationer a great many features to help him be clean, comfortable, and happy. In ten major cities where the Mizelle family camped a few years ago all sites were either within or almost within the city limits. It's a lot more fun and more pleasant than you might have thought.

Camping in Europe is an exciting and unique kind of holiday travel. And at $555 it beats any other peak-season tour. It may be within your means. If you would like a folder and further information, contact Mr. Mizelle at N.C. Wesleyan College.

EC Plans Summer Basketball Camp For High School Boys

East Carolina University has become the first Eastern North Carolina college to offer a summer basketball school for junior and senior high school boys.

The formation of the camp is a sign of an improving basketball program at East Carolina, but more important, it shows Head Coach Tom Quinn's desire to teach young boys how to play the game of basketball. Few high school players come to the collegiate ranks prepared for the brand of game played. This is due mainly to the fact that few high schools have programs which can give the individualized instruction that is needed, so summer camps such as this one must fill the void.

With an awareness of the need for individualized teaching in our schools and summer camps throughout the nation, Coach Quinn and Freshman Coach Kirk Stewart have formed the Buccaneer Basketball school.

First Camp This June

Boys between the ages of 12 and 18, who have not started their senior year in high school will be eligible to attend the camp. The first camp program to be held in Eastern North Carolina will start on June 16 and end on June 29. Boys who wish to attend for just one week must attend the first session from June 16 to June 22.

Quinn is in his second year as head coach at East Carolina. He has worked as a supervisor at Camp All-America in New York, and started the Indian Day Camp while at Newberry College in South Carolina. With his extensive experience, the camp will have an excellent director.

Kirk Stewart brings four years of work in the Y.M.C.A. youth programs and a year as Summer League Director with the Greenville Recreation Department into the program. He is one of Coach Quinn's former standout players from High Point College where he was an All-Conference player. He is in his second year as an assistant to Coach Quinn.

Aiding the coaches in instruction and guidance will be Physical Education and Recreation majors who will serve as camp counselors. Besides aiding in instruction, the counselors will also live-in with the campers to provide round-the-clock supervision.

Different Type of Instruction

The biggest asset of the camp will be in its instruction techniques. In most camps, enrollment is high and instruction is on a mass scale. Enrollment in the Buccaneer Basketball School will be limited to between 80-100 boys to assure each boy of "a summer with a purpose."

To do this, each boy will be given comprehensive screening and thorough testing to form a critical evaluation of his strengths and weaknesses as related to all phases of basketball. In turn, each boy will receive special instruction in his particular weaknesses. Further tests are given during the camper's time in camp to provide step-by-step progress reports.

Lectures by Coach Quinn and his staff, plus a number of visiting high school, college, and professional coaches from various sections of the country will supplement the active floor program. Instruction even goes beyond the end of camp as each boy will be given recommendations for follow-up drills and practice sessions.

Minges To Be Used

Another big asset in the summer basketball program will be the use of the new Minges Coliseum. Its eight electrically operated goals are spaced far enough apart to prevent crowding on the floor.

Other facilities that the campers will be allowed to use include the Minges Natatorium where the recent National AAU championships were held, the weight training and isometric room, the student union, and any of the outdoor fields for tennis, football, or baseball.

Aside from the recreational facilities, the campers will be housed in dormitories on campus and will be served the same menu that the varsity basketball team follows in the pre-season practices.

The Buccaneer Basketball School is something new to Eastern North Carolina and ECU, and it should succeed because of its uniqueness.

East Carolina head cage coach Tom Quinn and assistant coach Kirk Stewart talk over tactics in basketball action this winter in Minges Coliseum. The Pirate skipper and Stewart have opened a new basketball program at East Carolina, as they will head a summer camp for high school boys in June.

Crew Pitted Against Southern Teams In Southern Sprints

The East Carolina crew team heads for the first of two important regattas this Friday.

The Southern Sprints to be held on May 3 and 4 at Wrightsville Beach near Wilmington will pit the Buc crew against Jacksonville University, The Citadel, and the University of Alabama; all members of the Southern Rowing Association.

Originally, seven teams were slated to attend, but prior commitments caused the University of Virginia, Richmond Professional Institute, and Florida Southern College to withdraw.

According to Coach Vic Pezulla, ECU expects its toughest competition from Jacksonville University, one of the stronger teams in the small-college division. The last time the two schools met, the Buc varsity went down to defeat while the jayvees won over the formidable Jacksonville junior varsity.

Coach Pezulla expects less trouble from The Citadel and the University of Alabama, as both schools have relatively new crew programs. This will be the first major competition for The Citadel.

"Peaking for a regatta is like the final practice before a big football game," Coach Pezulla said in describing his team's preparations for the regatta.

Each weekly series of practices fall into a pattern. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday are used for a gradual build-up in speed, while Thursday and Friday work is aimed at reducing difficulties. In general, hard work on whole, rather than stress on any particular thing, is the rule.

Since the Dad-Vail Regatta to determine the national small-college champion is to be held on May 10, Coach Pezulla said that he is approaching the Southern Sprints as a warm-up for this more important event. With such an outstanding, but young team, Pezulla hopes that the team will come through with a good showing in both regattas.

EC Pitcher Surprises Many Burke Stands Undefeated

Nobody paid much attention when Dennis Burke showed up at East Carolina University and went out for the baseball team.

But that was almost four years ago and now everybody is paying attention to the Westfield, N.J. native.

Burke, who once had a string of 15 straight wins with the Pirates as a freshman and varsity pitcher, is undefeated this season in three decisions and has a .63 earned run average.

Very Little Fanfare

Coach Earl Smith, a shrewd judge of baseball talent generally, is the first to admit that Burke has been a surprise for him.

He came down here with very little fanfare and I was told that he might be able to pitch college ball," Smith recalls. "That turned out to be the understatement of the year. He has become one of the top collegiate pitchers in the Southeastern States.

Has 19-2 Overall Record

As a varsity pitcher, Burke has won 14 and lost two after compiling a 5-0 record as a freshman.

The first loss he suffered was to Furman last season, a 1-0 game, in which he gave up five hits and his teammates got only one. The other loss was in the championship playoff game against West Virginia, which the Pirates finally lost by 10-7 after committing six errors. Burke had gone out for a pinch-hitter trailing by only one run.

"He's not the overpowering type pitcher," Smith says. "He changes up on his curve and fastball and it is not a change-up in the ordinary sense. He says he doesn't even realize it much of the time."

"On occasions," Burke says, "I'll deliberately throw a change-up off my curve or fastball, but I'm not aware that I'm changing speeds on almost every pitch. Coach Smith says I do, though, so I guess I do."

It's the kind of thing that keeps batters off stride and is considered the key to Burke's success.

"He throws without seeming effort," Smith says. "And he's a low-ball pitcher."

"Another thing is the speed he works. He wastes no time on the ground and the games in which he works usually are much shorter than average."

Hopes To Play Some In Pros

Burke, a tri-captain on the 1968 Pirate team, is a physical education major at East Carolina and is looking forward to returning to his home area to teach and coach.

A 6-0, 173-pound lefthander, his size has caused the professional scouts to shy away from him a bit, but there has been interest shown and he feels he would like to try the pros at least for a summer to get an idea if he could follow that as a career.

Dennis Burke, the stylish southpaw hurler for the Pirates, is considered to be a pro prospect. The New Jersey native has won 19 games out of 21 decisions in almost four years of collegiate competition.

Crew Team Racks Up Double Victory

The Buc crew team recorded two more victories as both the varsity and junior varsity defeated Howard University of Washington, D.C. last Saturday on the Potomac River.

The two wins boosted the team's record up to 9-7 for the year.

The junior varsity zipped through the mile course in a good time of 6:23 to win easily.

The varsity went the mile in a slower 6:31.5 to win. The varsity slowed up under orders from Coach Vic Pezzulla who wanted the crew team to see how it felt to have a boat running next to them. This was in preparation for the Dad-Vail Regatta in which as many as six boats will race at one time.

The Buc crews have one remaining race after the Dad-Vail Regatta on May 10, and that is with Asheville.

ECU Crew team practices on the Tar river off the port terminal road.

Pirate linkster Phil Buzell shows excellent follow-through form, as he comes off the tee in a recent practice match. The Buc golfers are going full speed ahead, with eight big wins on their victory chain.

Seahawks Snap Pirate Golfers Winning Streak

The Pirate golf team saw their eight match winning streak snapped as the Wilmington College Seahawks got revenge for an earlier 23 and one-half - 3 and one-half drubbing by the Pirates as they took a 17-10 verdict last Thursday.

Undaunted, the golf team went down to Charleston, S.C. on Friday and defeated The Citadel and the University of South Carolina in a three-way match to start another winning streak.

The South Carolina Gamecocks had just taken first place in the South Carolina state golf tournament last week with The Citadel coming in third.

Howard Permar was the only Buc golfer to come off the road trip with three wins, while Vernon Tyson came off the trip with a pair of wins and a draw to his credit. Mike Schleuter and Jack Williams each won two and lost one on the trip.

Over at Wilmington, the best Buc scores were recorded by Schleuter and Vernon Tyson who shot 72's while winning their respective rounds.

In the three-way match down in Charleston, S.C., Permar, Williams, and Marshall Utterson each shot 74's. Permar and Williams won both of their matches, while Utterson had a draw and a win in two tries.

Following closely with 75's, Schleuter split in two decisions while Vernon Tyson collected a win and a draw in his two matches as did his twin brother, Joe Tyson, who shot a 76.

The Southern Conference Tournament is the next stop for the Buc golfers. The tournament will be held May 6, 7, and 8, at The Dunes golf course in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The Bucs head into the tournament with a perfect 4-0 mark against conference opposition and a 10-2 overall mark.

"We are (now) in competition for a $5,000 award from the ECU Arts Council," Callaway said. He added that he would use the money
