Seven Amendments Approved For Summer Constitution

Seven amendments to the Summer School Constitution were passed by the SGA legislature in the regular legislative session Monday, after the proposed amendments had weathered the compulsory one week stay in rules committee.

Summer school SGA president Cherry Stokes proposed six of the seven amendments, including those which set qualifications and a designated number of members for the judiciary, gave the president the veto, set qualifications for the office of secretary, and set a one week period for the administration of the oath of office.

Legislator Courtney Andrews proposed an amendment dealing with the extension of the term of the regular SGA treasurer to cover the summer session.

All seven were passed by the necessary two thirds majority.

Two of the amendments dealt with setting the number of members on the Men's and Women's Judiciaries at seven regular members and one alternate, elected by the legislature from a list of names submitted by the SGA Executive Council.

Another set the regular qualifications of being a full-time student in good standing, with a C average for members of the judiciary.

A like amendment set qualifications for the office of secretary, requiring that candidates for that office have been enrolled for at least three quarters.

The item veto was granted to the SGA president in another amendment passed by the legislature, allowing him to veto any part of a bill, in addition to being able to negate the whole law.

A period of one week was set for the administration of the oath of office to all elected officials, replacing the old clause that failed to set any time limit on such administering of the oath.

The Andrews amendment allowed the SGA treasurer's term to run from the time of his installation until the elections the following year, eliminating the break for summer school. Prior to this amendment, a treasurer was elected for the summer session, which Andrews felt caused a break in the continuity necessary to efficient operation of the office.

Stokes also mentioned that other amendments had been sent to the rules committee for consideration, which would require all amendments that would affect the student body as a whole to be ratified by the student body, rather than the legislature.

'Season Five' In Second Stage; Running 'Boys From Syracuse'

Rogers and Hart's Shakespearean musical comedy, "The Boys From Syracuse," opened Monday night, July 8, as "Season 5" of the East Carolina University Summer Theatre moved into its second week.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. According to box office reports, good seats are still available for remaining performances.

"The Boys From Syracuse," satire on the misadventures arising from a case of mistaken identity in ancient Greece, is based on Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." It first opened on Broadway in 1938 and was revived in 1963 for a second successful run.

When the production first opened it would become "the greatest musical comedy of all time."

Starring are three newcomers to the Summer Theatre — John Ryan of Tampa, Fla., as Antipholus of Syracuse, Lillian Sberdal of New York City as Adriana, and Gary Beach of Alexandria, Va., as Antipholus of Ephesus.

Summer Theatre set designer John Sneden assumes a dual role in "The Boys From Syracuse." He designed sets for it and will play a main supporting role as Dromio of Ephesus. Sneden has served as set designer in all four previous Summer Theatre seasons.

Playing Dromio of Syracuse, twin brother of the Ephesus Dromio, is James Slaughter, also a member of the ECU drama department. Slaughter was cast as Nicky Holroyd in the season opener, "Bell, Book and Candle."

Other main supporting roles are played by Madge Bunce of Chapel Hill (Angelo), Eleanor Timmerman of Durham (Luciana), and Michele Ellis of New York City (the courtesan).

"The Boys From Syracuse" is produced by Edgar R. Loessin and directed by Richard Lyle. Choreography is by Mavis Ray, costumes by Brook Van Horne and lighting by H. Michael Byrum. Roger Stephens, a veteran of both sides of the Summer Theatre footlights, is musical director.

"The Boys From Syracuse" will be followed by three other musicals, "The King and I" (July 15-23), "Guys and Dolls" (July 26-Aug. 3) and "The Desert Song" (August 5-11). A non-musical comedy, "The Odd Couple," will conclude "Season 5" with a six-day run Aug. 12-17.

Chapman Named To News Bureau Post

Geoffrey C. Chapman has joined the staff of East Carolina University as assistant director of news and public relations.

Chapman, an ECU graduate and former Sunday editor of the Greenville Daily Reflector, has already assumed his duties with university public relations director Henry B. Howard.

Chapman, 27, is a native of Elizabeth City but grew up in Newport. He is a graduate of Newport High School and has an AB degree from East Carolina.

In addition to his work with the Reflector, he is a former student assistant in the ECU News Bureau and has had several articles and stories published, most recently short stories titled "Wanderlust" and "Crazy Annie" in ECU's literary magazine, The Rebel.

In announcing Chapman's appointment, Howard said the new officer "brings a solid background in news to our staff." He added, "Mr. Chapman is a very fine writer and a very capable young man. We are confident that he will make many excellent contributions to our public relations program."

Chapman is the son of Mrs. Amy L. Chapman and the late Ganes T. Chapman of Newport. He is married to the former Eddie Garner, also of Newport and also an ECU graduate (BS, '64). Mrs. Chapman is a staff member of the Martin County Board of Education. The Chapmans make their home in Greenville at 701 Johnston St.

FOGGY MOUNTAIN BREAKDOWN—All set to break into their award-winning rendition of "Foggy Mountain Breakdown" from the motion picture "Bonnie and Clyde" are Flatt and Scruggs, who entertain at East Carolina July 24 in Wright Auditorium.

Flatt, Scruggs Tuned For EC Country Show

Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs will appear in concert July 24, 1968, in Wright Auditorium. Tickets will be on sale for the public and will be $2.00 at the door.

Complete sellouts not uncommon when the names of Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs appear on a marquee. This pair unquestionably plays a starring role in the ever increasing popularity of Country Music. They have also had a heavy hand in preventing traditional American music from passing out of the American scene.

They play the music of life yesterday, today, and tomorrow, the purest of what this earth has to offer and unaffected by the passing of time. Their music is earthy, spontaneous, uncomplicated and rooted in the U.S. folk music tradition. It is one of the freshest, and yet the oldest sound in folk music. Their music is often called the lineal descent of old time string band music of the Southern mountain region. It has a resilient, virile spring, not easily ignored or forgotten.

Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs met in Nashville in 1945, formed their group in 1948, and since that time have managed to carve themselves a place in history. Despite the wide expanse of their itinerary they have not changed as people. They are quite aware they have achieved their stature in the music world through the respect and friendship of many, many people.

It was in 1945, that the young Carolina banjoist, Earl Scruggs dazzled audiences with a new hard driving, three-fingered technique of playing the banjo. It was artistry that gave life to a band style, powerful and exciting. The style had its origination in the Carolina area for that is the area where Scruggs earned and developed his uniquely different technique of playing the banjo which is now referred to as Scruggs-Style-Picking. One music critic has called him the Paganini of the banjo. Earl grew up in a musical atmosphere. His father was a banjo player, and his mother, brothers and sisters all played some form of musical instruments.

Lester Flatt has a remarkable voice ability that keeps the show moving along and providing down some narrative throughout the performances. He has a refreshing singing style which has given him the status of an outstanding performer in singing blues, ballads, and hymns. Lester has been singing as long as he can remember.

and performed for many local gatherings and community affairs in his early boyhood days. His talent developed quite naturally since he, too, grew up in a traditional minded, folk-singing family.

The other members comprising the unit include violinist Paul Warren; dobro guitarist Buck (Uncle Josh) Graves; bassist E. P. Tullock, Jr. (Cousin' Jake); and rhythm guitarist Johnny Johnson.

If any single word can best characterize the approach of this group, it is "natural." They don't manufacture effects; they don't introduce new songs unless the songs fit comfortably into the way they like to communicate, and they certainly don't have to lay down elaborate blueprints for what they want to do.

It appears their music grows better as it ages. Their voices have mellowed and are void of a nasal twang. It is evident they have the ability to read each other's musical minds. As Mr. Don Law, their Columbia A&R Director, stated, "they don't have to say much to each other. It just flows out."

If the information imparted to you about Flatt and Scruggs is not convincing enough, perhaps their rendition of "Foggy Mountain Breakdown" better known as the theme song from "Bonnie and Clyde" will sway your mind. For such an experience, come see them in concert in Wright Auditorium, if you dare!

Construction Begins On Largest Building

Construction of East Carolina University's largest classroom building yet is underway.

The newest ECU construction project fits snugly between the new music building and Memorial Gymnasium. It will be a quadrangular structure with a 4 - story south wing parallel to East 10th Street and a trio of 3-story wings framing in a large courtyard to the north.

Total budget for the new building and its equipment is $3.3-million. That includes a state appropriation of $2.3-million and a federal grant of $1-million.

L. P. Cox of Sanford is the general contractor. Others are Bie-mann and Rowell of Raleigh (plumbing), Bullock and Humble of Greensboro (heating and air conditioning), Watson Electrical of Wilson (electrical work), Southern Elevator of Greensboro (elevators), and MACO Electronics of Raleigh (intercommunications system).

The architectural firm is Jesse Page and Associates of Raleigh.

During construction some 75 parking spaces in the area will be temporarily out of service. But a 225-car lot across 10th Street to the south will more than take up the slack.

The new building will be the new home of the university's departments of geography, history, political science and sociology.

LARGEST BUILDING—Construction has already begun on East Carolina's newest classroom building, which upon completion will match the architect's drawing above. The building will be the largest on campus after it is finished, and will be located between Memorial gym and the music building.

Needed Amendments

Monday's legislative session produced the net result of seven amendments to the Summer School Constitution.

Included were amendments relating to the judicial system, the power of the president, the office of secretary, the office of treasurer, and a clause setting a requirement for the administering of the oath of office.

All seven were necessary to produce a more effective summer school student government body. All seven were useful in stabilizing the summer government, or in eliminating vagueness in the Constitution.

The passage of these seven do not bring an end to the need for change in the Constitution, however. Amendments will be necessary as long as the document remains in use.

Three other amendments have been suggested to the legislature, all dealing with a compulsory referendum on proposed amendments that affect the entire student body.

For example, if a radical change were to be proposed for the judicial system, an amendment to the Constitution would be necessary. The amendment currently being studied by the rules committee, if passed, would require that an amendment on the judicial system, since it would affect the entire student body, would have to be submitted to the student body for ratification.

The Constitution as it now stands is rather vague on this issue, listing only one means of ratification: that by two thirds of the legislature.

The proposed amendment will eliminate this vagueness in the summer Constitution, and will tend to put power in the hands of the electorate (student body).

Last Chance

Next Tuesday will mark the day of final exams for the first session of summer school for 1968.

After that day, the work done in the past five weeks will be final, and will be from that point unchangeable. There will be no second chance; there will be no room for a strong comeback effort.

The time for a strong comeback effort is now. There are still a few days until the end of the term. Intensive study in those remaining days could mean the difference between passing marks on the record of this session, and some which are not so good.

In a vast number of cases, this upcoming weekend will mean the difference between an increase in the quality of grades and a lowering of marks from those presently held.

Some of the students on this campus are holding excellent grades at this time. A sudden relaxing of effort this weekend could cost them those fine marks. Others, not so fortunate, find that good grades on the final exams are the only thing that will give them a chance to pass. Hard work this weekend could be the thing needed for that extra spurt.

BODKINS

From The Executive Desk

By Cherry Stokes, SGA President

SGA work has been going full swing this week, with many important matters being considered by your elected officials.

The Men's and Women's Judicial bodies have met on several cases this week. At the present, these bodies are operating efficiently, but some changes may be made in the future.

The legislature met Monday at 3:00 p.m., and a great deal of legislation was enacted. There will be a new ID system next summer for the summer school students, which will give picture ID cards for $.50 to all summer school students. These picture ID cards will be more convenient for cashing checks, going to concerts, and in use for other activities in and around campus. This will eliminate the need for an activity card, since there will be numbers on the bottom for punching out.

The crowning of the Summer School Queen will be at a dance August 1. The Inmates from Raleigh will provide the music, and the dance will be open to the students and their dates. The dance is set for 8:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

The remodeling of the University Union will be started as soon as the murals for the walls are completed. This will be about the middle of August.

After a discussion with Dr. Jenkins, there is a very good possibility that a mini-bus type of conveyance may be purchased by fall quarter for the transportation of students to the new gym, to the hill, and around the general campus area. The plans are still incomplete, but the prospect is encouraging. Dr. Jenkins has been in contact with the firm which builds these buses, and is trying to work out a plan to give the students the best type of transportation available.

The plans for the bell tower of Old Austin are still incomplete, but we hope that when the tower is removed, work may begin on the park immediately, instead of storing it. The park is planned for the area between the old gym and Umstead. As more information becomes available, it will be passed on to you immediately.

In closing, read the newspaper, study hard, and best of luck on your exams!

A Sense Of Style

By Don Pierce

Usually it is a little thing — the way a man walks perhaps; Robert Mitchum, say, with that hubris in his haunches, that faint sneer in his swagger, that balancing bit on the balls of his feet. Style.

Style is not just the mere wearing of a flower, but the casualness of it being there, the button-hole being just a 16th of an inch longer so that the flower will drape exactly into place.

Style is many things. Style is Cool Hand Luke and the ever-present bottle opener on the string around his neck. Style is Y. A. Tittle, blood in his eyes, going for the bomb when the Packers are killing him. Style is Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who, as he sat on the street, sipping sherry and watching his house burn down, observed that man should be able to enjoy a drink before his own fireside.

Style is Bob Hope on tour with the troops, with the ever-present golf club. Style is the blue light on the speedometer of a Ferrari; the slight fragrance in the elevators at the Boston Ritz. Style is Tony Lema and the champagne parties when he won; style is girls in summer dresses. And if style is living, it is also dying. Style is Rubirosa, Aly Kahn, Hemingway, dying violently, as they lived.

But style is not to be confused with class, although the two are so alike that they escape definition. Style is the way Bobby Kennedy wore his hair, the way he spoke, but class was Bobby Kennedy as he stepped to Jacqueline Kennedy's side in her time of need. Style was Joe Dimaggio as he drifted under a fly slowly, effortlessly, as if he belonged there; class was what he had when he barred Peter Lawford from Marilyn Monroe's funeral.

If there is one concrete difference between style and class it is this: style changes, year in, year out, while class is enduring.

In the coming weeks I shall be discussing in this column the types and varieties of style; who has style and who doesn't. And maybe, in your reading and my writing, we shall revive style.

A Student Bill Of Rights

By Bob McDowell

Now is the time for the students of East Carolina University to begin to think about the initiation of meaningful reform within the framework of the Student Government Association.

Prior to this time, political parties on this campus have centered their platforms around the principle of appeasement — they have anticipated the demands of the student body and catered to them. Platform planks run from the insipid to the inane.

The Student Party topped their platform with a plank advocating "Night swimming pool hours." A careful check of the arrangements in use for the existing facilities would have shown that "night hours" were already being observed.

Not to be outdone, the University Party called for initiating a committee within the SGA "to investigate the possibilities of establishing a proportionate and equal tuition ratio in all North Carolina state-supported institutions" — a power jealously exercised by the North Carolina State Legislature. It is evident that this plank was included in the platform at least partially for the purpose of getting the out-of-state-student vote. The establishment of such a committee is beyond the scope of any single state university, let alone the scope of one political party of one university.

The political platforms are not totally devoid of meaningful reform; there is ample evidence of bipartisan support for the extension of women's hours and the liberalization of the existing housing regulations which limit the women's choice of domicile to "approved" housing.

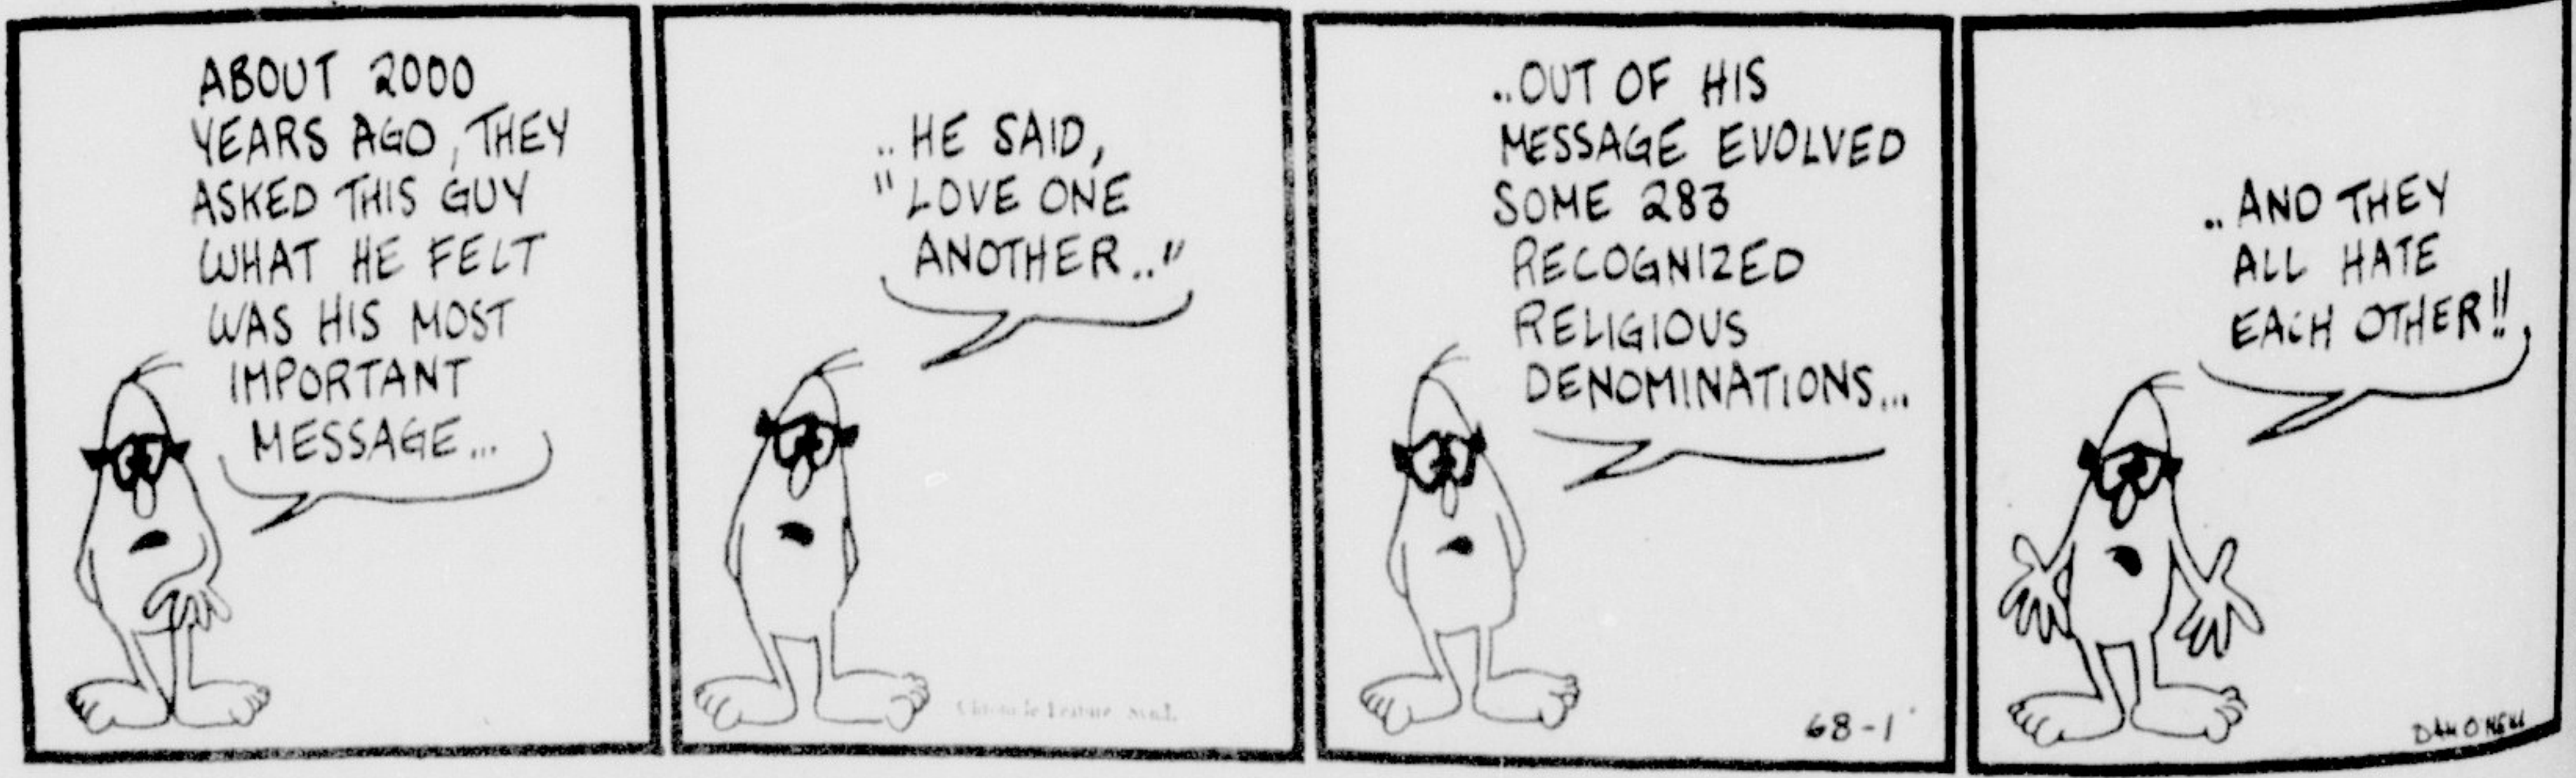

Even in the advocacy of "all-night" dormitories for women over 21 years of age, both parties seemed to have by-passed the issue on which all such regulations hinge — the question of the limits of administrative jurisdiction. There is no clear definition of limits of the power that is available to the administration in student, administrative, or faculty affairs. Rules are made and enforced by an all-powerful, yet undefined authority.

Student Bill of Rights
Before parties can begin to consider rules changes they should first seek to incorporate a Student Bill of Rights into the existing constitution. Such a statement of rights would provide a basis from which all existing rules could be examined in light of their constitutionality and fairness to the students. With the incorporation of such a bill of rights into the Key and updated to a "concrete" single all existing rules can be revised standard. A clear definition of student rights would insure fair treatment for all students in their dealings with the administration and would alleviate the uncertainty that exists in the minds of some students, who feel that their rights can and would be abridged for the sake of expediency.

A stated bill of rights would relieve the SGA legislature of the task of revising the Key by innumerable minuscule rules changes and expedite the modernization of the present rules.

Amendment into Law
The obstacles confronting advocates of a bill of rights are not insurmountable. It can be added to the existing SGA constitution in the form of an amendment when proposed by two-thirds of the student legislature or petitioned by ten percent of the student body, reviewed by the attorney general of the Cabinet to insure consistency in form and content, published in the student newspaper, voted on by the student body, and signed by the president. The process from beginning to end would take approximately three weeks.

Union 'Face-Lift' Set For Fall Quarter

The University Union Soda Shop will undergo a face-lifting operation Fall quarter. The West wall of the soda shop will be covered with a creosote frieze to be designed and sculpted by Jack Lewis, an ECU art student. Colored lights will be installed to light the frieze and enhance its display. Joe Clark, director of the Soda Shop, is also seeking a practical, as well as eye-pleasing, way to decorate the window dividing the Soda Shop from the University Bookstore. A canopy over the Soda Shop counter had been proposed. However, due to interference with air conditioning, this suggestion has been waylaid until a future date. The changes are being made in the Soda Shop to lend more atmosphere to a seemingly popular place on campus. Clark went on to say that plans are presently being completed for a new up-to-date Soda Shop. It will be located between the Music Building and the Home Economics Building. Hopefully, the new University Union will be completed by next spring. However, the present Union will be maintained and remodeled to continue serving the students.

ECU Angel Flight To Host Area Conclave For 1968-69

East Carolina University's Angel Flight will maintain headquarters for the area B-2 conclave during the 1968-'70 terms. The local flight was named to the post at a recent area conclave here, at which time the flight also won the "Outstanding Flight Award." Members of the area executive board for 1968-69 are Lt. Col. Linda Lee Staley of McLean, Va., commander; Capt. Sandy Sanderson of Pink Hill, area administrative officer; Capt. Ruth Millinder of Fayetteville, area information officer; Capt. Ellen Frances Benditz of Greensboro, comptroller; and 1st Lt. Linda West of Burlington, chaplain. All are members of the ECU Angel Flight. Other member schools of Area B-2 are N. C. State University, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, A&T University, Duke University, and Virginia Polytechnical Institute. Angel Flight is a service sorority which acts as hostess for all Air Force ROTC events at East Carolina. It is an auxiliary organization to the Arnold Air Society, whose members are selected AFROTC cadets.

Library Boasts Nine Of Twenty Best Newspapers

Joyner Library at East Carolina University subscribes to nine of the top 20 daily newspapers in the world, as judged by a panel of 26 journalism educators across the United States.

Librarian Wendell W. Smiley says the library takes 30 dailies in all, including specialized, local, regional and national papers.

On ECU's "Best 20" subscription list are the New York Times, the Times of London, the Guardian (England), the Christian Science Monitor, Le Monde (France), the Washington Post, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Frankfurter Allgemeine (Frankfurt, West Germany) and Die Welt (West Germany).

Remaining in the top 20 are Switzerland's Neue Suercher Zeitung, the Times of India, Mexico's Excelsior, the Swiss Journal de Geneve, the Scotsman of Scotland, Asahi Shimbun (Japan), Dagens Nyheter (Sweden), Corriere della Sera (Italy), La Nacion (Argentina) and Denmark's Berlingske Tidende.

In judging the world's best dailies, the panel considered many various factors ranging from editorial views and world news coverage to the quality of staff and printing excellence.

ECU Expansion Grows To Three More Areas

East Carolina University has continued to expand horizons of course offerings to include areas of the state surrounding Clinton, Murfreesboro, Fayetteville.

A graduate course in science education is to be offered at Clinton this summer. "Selected Earth Science Topics For Elementary Teachers," Science Education 340G, has been scheduled to be taught at the Sampson County Board of Education Building each Monday through Friday evening. The course began July 8 and will continue through July 19. Mr. James D. Nicholson will be the instructor. Science 340G is the study of selected topics in Earth Science which are suitable for the elementary school.

Turning to the Fayetteville area two graduate courses in education are being offered.

"History and Philosophy of Education," Education 423, will be taught at Fayetteville State College each Monday through Friday morning. Course work began July 8 and will continue through July 19.

Education 415, "Techniques of Teaching," will also be taught at Fayetteville State each Monday through Friday morning beginning July 22 and continuing through August 2. Dr. Malvin E. Moore will be instructor for both courses.

Then moving from education courses offered in other N. C. cities, ECU also offers a graduate course in art at Chowan College in Murfreesboro.

"Arts and Crafts," Art 370G, a workshop course, will be taught at Chowan each Monday through Friday morning work began July 8 and will continue through July 19. Mr. Joe Buske will be instructor.

Content Excellent In 'Wild' Movie

By REID OVERCASH

I sat through "Wild in the Streets" and when it was over, I was speechless. I was speechless because of its stirring content and meaningful lesson to the human race, and in particular the youth.

This movie stars Christopher Jones as Max Frost, who, persecuted by his parents as a child, finally rips his house to bits, blows up his father's car, and runs away from home to eventually become a multi-millionaire rock singer at the age of twenty-two. He forces Hal Holbrook, who is running for the Senate position for California, to base his campaign on lowering the voting age to 15.

After this accomplishment, they had continued success in lowering the age of Representatives, Senators, and President to fourteen. Max Frost then runs for President, wins, and confines all people over 30 to concentration camps to be psyched out on L.S.D.

"Wild in the Street" as a meaningful lesson, but it lacks in coherence and dialogue. Christopher Jones is too Super-Cool, as is his entourage, while Hal Holbrook is not enough of a politician to suit his purpose in the film. However, this picture has good music, which is more befitting a teeny-bopper hit.

Accidents Reveal Austin Dangers

By CHLOE CRAWFORD

There's a nasty rumor going around that "Old" Austin is not going to be torn down after all. Various opinions on the subject are circulating. By next week, it'll be said that the old building is being saved for posterity or tradition... similar to the Ivy at Harvard.

However, the truth will be out. In actuality, the destruction company can't find enough fools, heroes, or whatever it takes to work in that suicide area. Workers are quitting by the score every day.

On Monday, July 8, a student went to work for them and the first thing he did was fall through the roof onto a rafter.

After hoisting himself up, he realized that he was in dire pain. A doctor's examination proved that he had badly bruised some ribs. The pain and bruised ribs he could take, but the pigeon waste was unbearable. It is an understatement to say that working conditions are not the best available in the business world.

CONCERT CROWD Crowds were especially large for the Spanky and Our Gang concert on the mall Monday night, as East Carolina students joined Greenville residents to fill the grassy area.

Yale Grad Finds EC Interesting; Makes Comparison Of Two Schools

By DIANNE ALDRIDGE

"Because of the girls, East Carolina is much nicer than Yale," stated Richard Pierce, a Phi Beta Kappa from Yale.

A graduate majoring in math, Richard is taking organic chemistry this summer at EC to meet medical requirements.

In comparing the two schools, Richard notes that at EC there is much more interest in campus politics than at Yale, where virtually none exists. However, at Yale, there is much more enthusiasm about national politics, according to Pierce.

"Innovated the past year, the grading system is much nicer at Yale," commented Richard. "No D's are given. Students receive honors, high pass, and pass... the equivalent of an A, B, and C. Everyone who passes gets at least a pass." Since there is less pressure on students this system encourages them to take more varied courses.

"Oh," Richard quipped, "another thing I like is the library. Here, no smoking is allowed in the reading room. On Friday nights the library is almost deserted, where at Yale, it is always full. A serious atmosphere is stimulated by the large number of graduate students." Yale has 4,000 men undergraduates.

A Greenville native, Richard graduated Magnum Cum Laude and received Departmental Honors in math. He was captain of the intermura, swimming team his sophomore year. Richard is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Norwin C. Pierce and resides at 205 Pineview Drive.

Athletic Dept. Signs Twelve For Football Grant-In-Aids

The East Carolina University Athletic Department has announced the signing of five outstanding boys to football grants-in-aid. With this week's announcement, a total of twelve boys have officially been signed in the past three weeks. The list hits five different states with one boy coming from North Carolina, and the other four coming from New York, New Jersey, Maryland, and South Carolina.

James Daniel Winfield of nearby Washington, North Carolina, is a 6-0, 215 pound tackle who played football at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Virginia.

Coach Henry Vansant, who recruited Winfield, said, "Dan has the size and athletic ability necessary to be a tremendous college football player."

Eugene Montgomery Kiernan, of Irvington, New York, is a transfer from the New York Military Academy in Cornwall, New York.

"Monty appears to be one of the more serious and dedicated young men that I have met during the past year," Coach Vansant said. "He should be able to contribute to our program. Monty is most impressive as a running back, defensive end, and linebacker."

Kiernan, a 6-2, 200 pounder, earned eight athletic letters in high school, with three in football, four in track, and one in cross country.

Peter DeBow Foolley is a 5-10, 195 pound quarterback and defensive halfback from River Vale, New Jersey. He prepped at Massanutten Military Academy in Woodstock, Virginia for one year.

"Peter is a fine sprintout quarterback, and we consider him to be a prime prospect to play the tailback position in our single wing offense," Coach Vansant said. "He seems to have a burning desire to excel."

Joseph Francis Noon is the fourth player announced this week who has prepped at military academy. He is a 5-11, 190 pound offensive and defensive halfback and linebacker from Cheverly, Maryland.

Noon played football, baseball, and track at St. Johns College High School in Washington, D.C., where he was named to the All-Metropolitan and All-Catholic Leagues.

Pirates Boast Top Coaches For Eleven Loop Sports

Dedication to athletics and athletes is a primary requirement of any good coach, and East Carolina University is blessed with a coaching staff that is willing to put their whole heart and soul into the Pirate sports program.

Three major sports share most of the East Carolina athletic spotlight. Football, under the coaching of Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich, is perhaps the biggest sport from the spectator's point of view. Basketball, coached by Tom Quinn, is in a period of rapid growth and has a new Christmas holidays tournament scheduled for Minges Coliseum this year. Baseball, coached by Earl Smith, is usually a strong sport at East Carolina in terms of conference championships.

A Host of Other Sports

In addition to the three major sports, there are a host of other activities that, judging from the performance of East Carolina teams, cannot accurately be called "minor sports." Among these are eight other sports in which East Carolina fields Southern Conference teams. These are indoor and outdoor track under the direction of Bill Carson, who also coaches the cross-country squad; tennis, headed by Jimmie Grimsley; swimming, which is under the direction of Ray Scharf who just recently succeeded Dr. Ray Martinez, who was appointed to the new post of Director of Aquatics here at East Carolina; the soccer, golf, and wrestling teams are coached by the versatile Johnny Welborn.

Stas Continues With Single-Wing

Athletic Director and head football coach Clarence Stasavich has become a virtual legend among gridiron buffs across the nation. He promises to retain his use of the single-wing formation, the parting of his hair down the middle, and his love for football until the day he dies. During his coaching career, which spans over twenty years, he has compiled a masterful 164-50-8 mark, which puts him in a class with the top five coaches in the country with over twenty years of coaching.

Quinn Begins Rebuilding Program

Basketball Coach Tom Quinn is a relative newcomer to the East Carolina coaching family, coming here from High Point College in the fall of 1966.

While at High Point, Quinn's teams became known for their vertical-stripped stockings and their winning ways, as his squads piled up three conference crowns, two district crowns, and went to the NAIA tourney twice.

Since coming to East Carolina,

Quinn has been held back by the need for rebuilding the basketball program, and has not been winning games with his accustomed regularity. However, this year's squad, his second here, showed a vast amount of improvement over that of last year, and hopes are bright for the 1968-69 campaign.

Earl Smith Continues Baseball Power

Baseball Coach Earl Smith has been associated with East Carolina University sports for over 25 years. While in college here, Smith played three sports: baseball, basketball, and football.

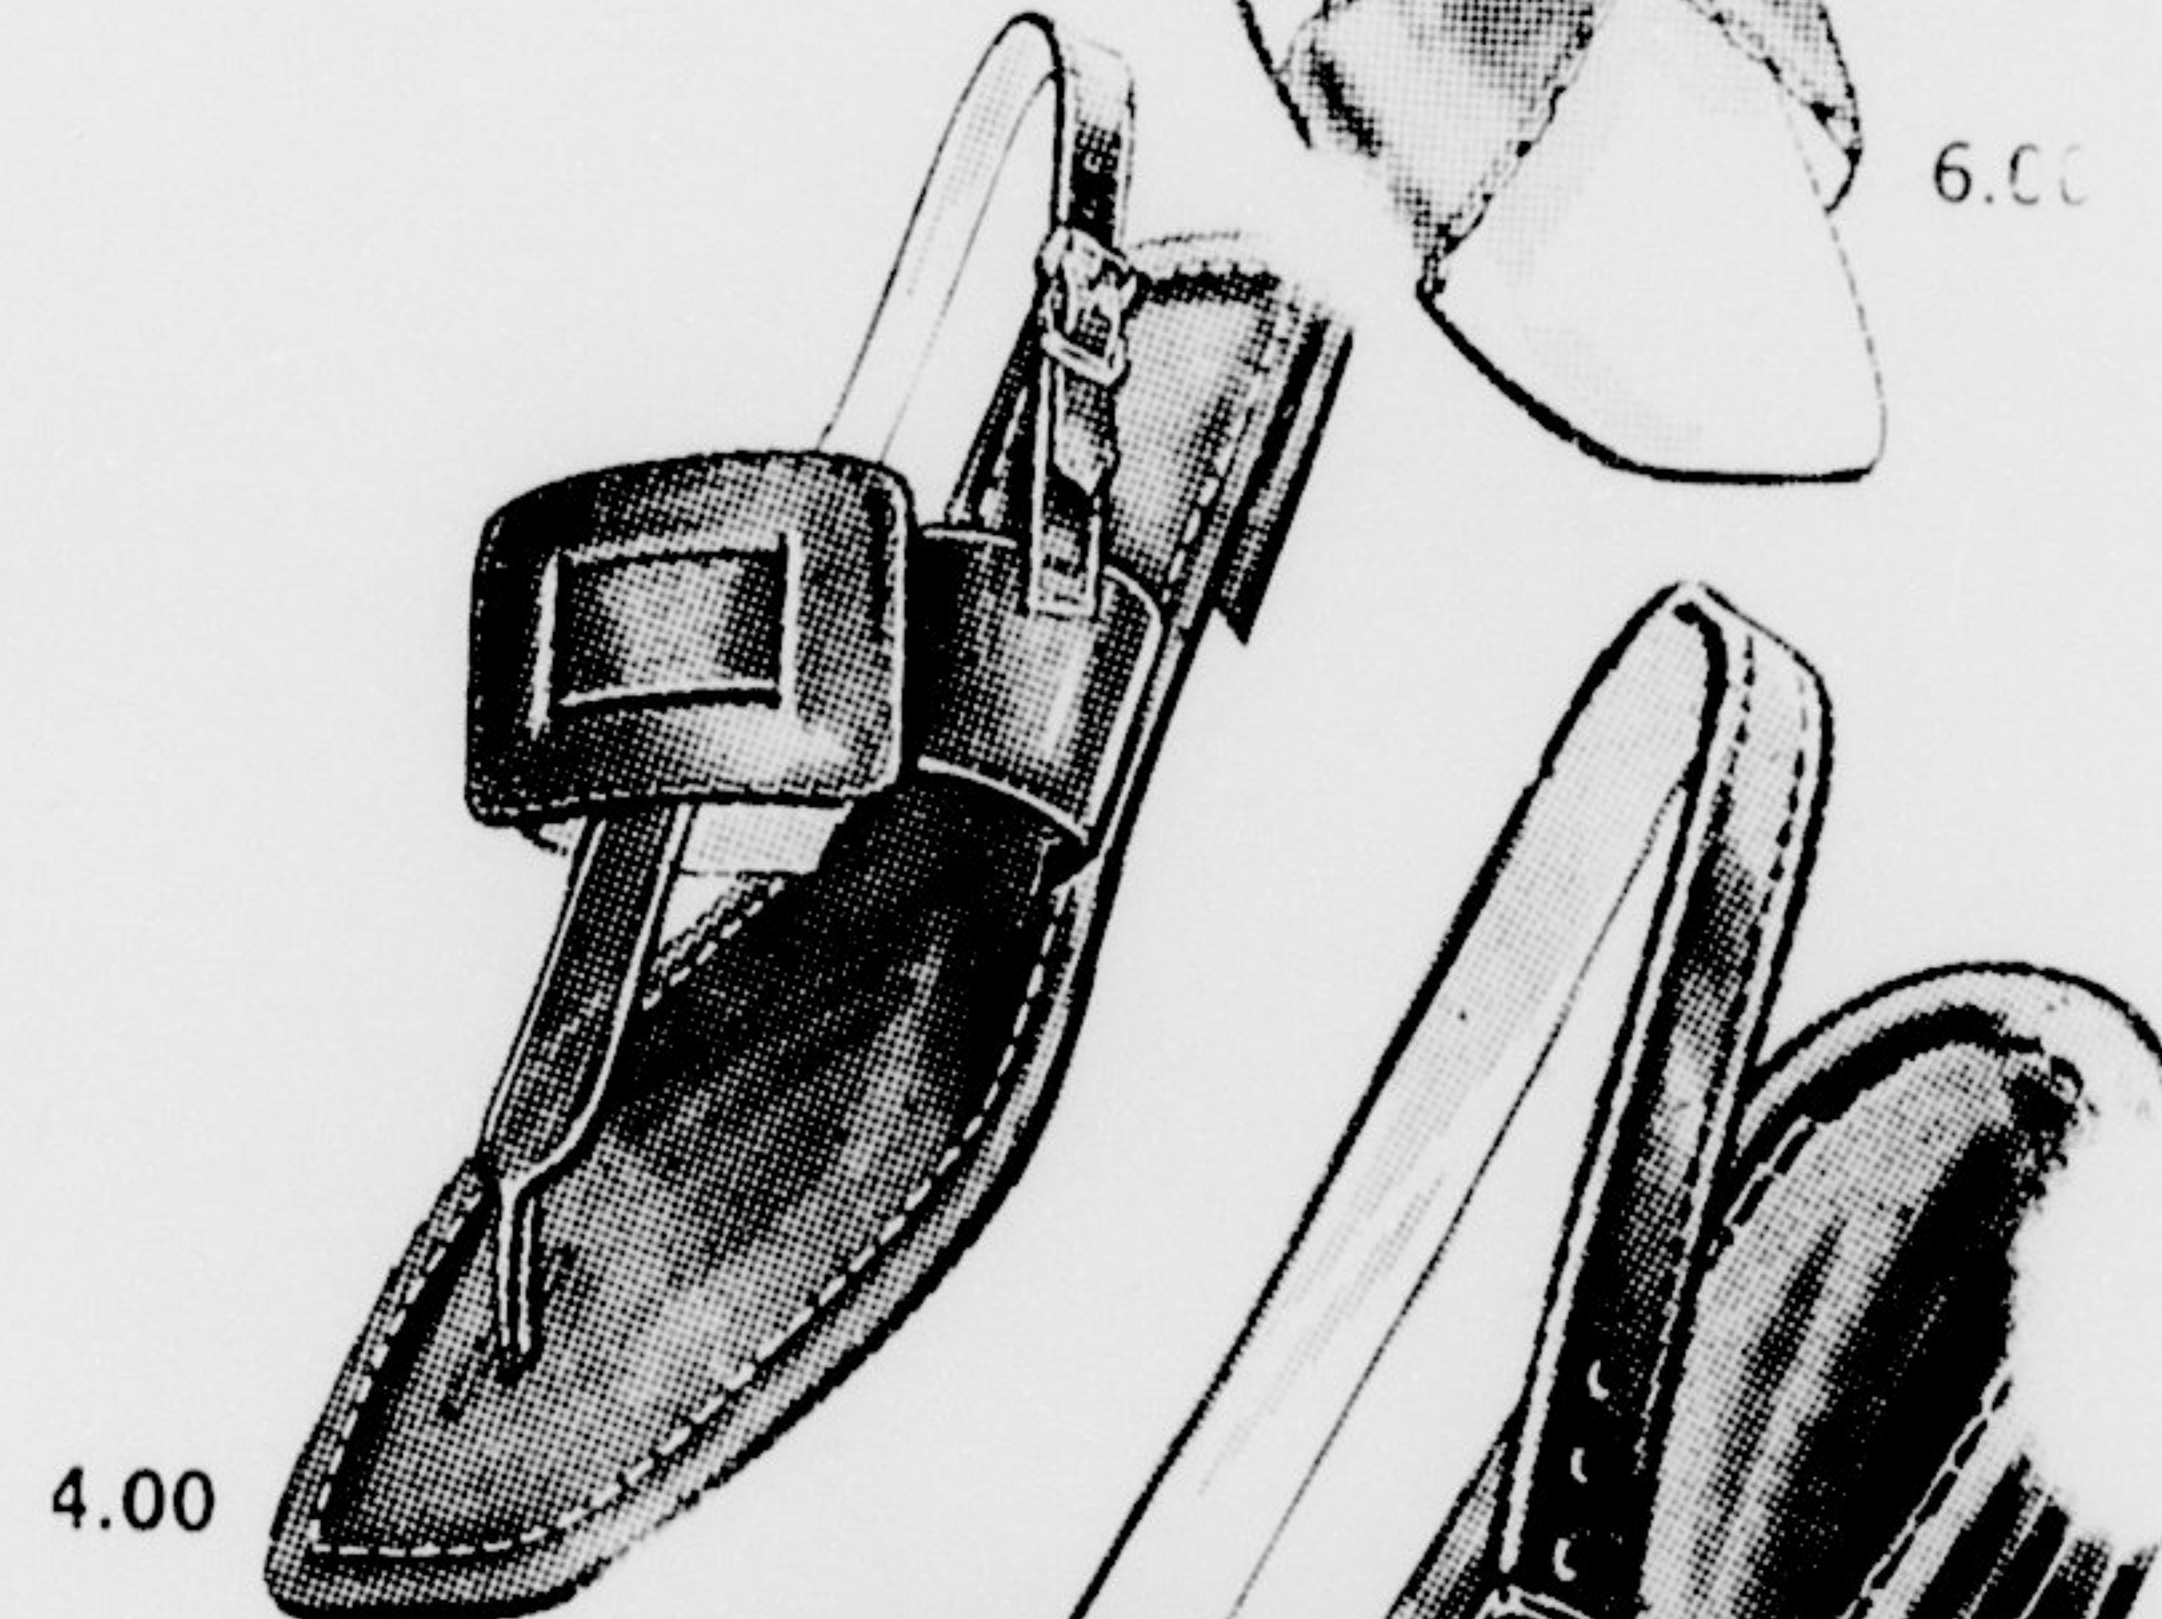

Smith has compiled a 229-87 college record in baseball, winning three loop titles since taking over the Pirate helm, and leading his 1963 team to a third place finish in the nation.

Drama, Piano Arts Per

Two special Sunday performances have been announced for the "The King and I" and "Guys and Dolls" in the East Carolina University Summer Theatre. Curtain time will be at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 21, for "The King and I" and Sunday, July 22, for "Guys and Dolls."

Summer Theatre Productions... R. Loessin said the theatrical performances are being held in anticipation of the interest in the two popular plays.

In addition to the Sunday and Tuesday matinees are scheduled for July 17 ("The King and I") and July 31 ("Guys and Dolls").

Tickets for the Sunday matinees will be $2.50 for adults, $1.00 for children and are available at the Summer Theatre box office, Ginniss Auditorium, P.O. Box 12, or telephone 752-7565.

Rodgers and Hammer's "The King and I" opens July 15, for a nine-day run July 23.

"Guys and Dolls," Frank Loessin's hit musical comedy, based on the fabled characters of F. Scott Fitzgerald and Damon Runyon, will open July 26 and continue through August 3. Good seats are still available for the performances.

William B. Moore, pianist and composer, will give a recital at the Ginniss Auditorium, Friday, July 19. Moore will play three works by Chopin, and single works of Beethoven, Schumann and Liszt. He will also perform "The Moonlight Sonata," one of his own compositions which was performed at the Metropolitan Museum in New York in 1967. The recital, sponsored by
