Election Boasts Full Slate; Voting Set For Wednesday

Candidates for class offices and the SGA legislature kicked off their campaigns last week, as they readied for the upcoming elections Wednesday.

The campaign will be one of the most extensive ever to hit the East Carolina campus, as a record number of candidates filed for the class offices and the legislative seats, based on information filed by the candidates with the EAST CAROLINIAN.

As in the past few elections, both the University Party and the Student Party have entered a full slate of candidates into the lists, but last spring's trend of independent candidates also is on the upsurge.

Most observers pick the race for the presidency of the senior class as one of the most significant, as Student Party candidate Steve Morrisette and University Party contender Dennis Chestnut square off for the top office of the class of '69.

Both Chestnut and Morrisette have been extremely active in campus activities, Chestnut working with the University Union and Morrisette with the legislature.

For senior vice president, an independent, Cecilia Gully, and University Party candidate Sue Yow will be running for the honors. The secretarial race will pit Student Party contender Evelyn Durham against University Party standard-bearer Joan Evans. An independent, Dianne Kirby, has also entered the race for the record-keeping position. The University Party's Janet Hollimon is the only candidate registered with the EAST CAROLINIAN for the treasurer's office.

Two candidates for the position of president of the junior class are running on party lines, as Walter Dudley, on the SP ticket, and UP David Guilford line up for the race.

The sophomore top office is a strongly contested one, as four candidates have tossed their hats into the ring. Running are SP David Allen, UP Gary Gasperini, and independents Bruce Bixler and Mike Bonfoey.

Running for the freshman presidency are UP candidate Jim Bowling and SP contender Forby Rhodes.

Voting will be Wednesday, with dorm students casting their ballots in their respective dorms and day students voting in the University Union lobby.

Union Elects Officers; Dan Sneed To Lead

Dan Sneed, President of the EC Union, announces that the Union is opening a membership drive for new members to join Union committees.

The East Carolina Union is an organization of volunteer students who work in planning and staging special events throughout the school year for the entire student body. The working committees include social, games, record and dance, fine arts, publicity, and special projects. These committees sponsor such special social and recreational events as open houses (freshmen, parent's day, Homecoming, etc.); game tournaments (bowling, billiards, table tennis, chess, bridge, pinocle); art exhibits; coffee houses; combo dances; and special summer events including watermelon feasts, ice-cream parties, and Fourth of July celebration.

Officers elected to serve with Sneed for the 1968-1969 school year are: Vice-President, Dennis Chestnut; recording secretary, Mary Jane Phillips; corresponding secretary, Susan Carter; historian-reporter, Conwell Worthington. The committee chairmen are: Social, Jerry Hicks; Special Projects, Jim Hurdle; Games, Chuck Brownfield; Record and dance, Dennis Chestnut; Fine arts, Anita Kleinfeld; and Publicity, Mary Jane Phillips. The officers and current committee members invite and encourage other students to stop by the Union Committee office, Room 113, and discuss Union committee membership.

MRC Announces Elections For Men's Dorm Officers

The Men's Residence Council will be holding its fall quarter elections on September 25. The officers to be elected are:

- 1 Governor of each dorm
- 1 Lt. Governor of each dorm
- 1 Hall Representative of each floor of each dorm.

All candidates were required to attend a meeting last night. This meeting offered a last opportunity to file for an office. Any candidate who did not attend this meeting was removed from the ballot.

A "C" average is not required to hold any of these offices. One must, however:

- (1) Be a resident of the old dorm in which one seeks office, and in the case of Hall Representtatives, be a resident of the floor on which one represents;

- (2) Have completed 48 hours by the end of the quarter in which one is elected.

Stephen J. Hall, Vice President of the MRC, had this to say, "This coming Wednesday, the General Council of the MRC will be elected. In the past, I have heard a lot of complaints about the poor job MRC does for 'The Hill.' If a poor job is being done, the fault lies in the lack of interest by the students, not the MRC. If there are things you want us to accomplish, then get out and elect a representative who will work for your interests. Give us someone to work with and then we can get the job done."

Minges Takes Honors As Architects' Best

Minges Coliseum has been selected as one of the fifteen steel framed structures in the United States to receive the 1968 Architectural Award of Excellence.

John K. Edmonds, executive vice president of the American Institute of Steel Construction, presented awards to architect F. Carter Williams and President Leo Jenkins at the awards ceremony last Wednesday.

Edmonds made these remarks concerning the award: "With regard to the Minges Coliseum, I made a point of personally visiting, examining and admiring this handsome structure. Before each of these presentations, I try to visit the building, not in truth that I wish to exercise any veto powers over the selections of the Jury, but simply because I want to confirm in my own mind that these professional designers have selected well. I am happy to report that their taste is excellent."

The Jurors' words of praise speak for themselves: "This is a straightforward solution for a large clear-span sports arena. The two-way truss system, utilizing light steel members, creates a feeling of spaciousness when viewed from inside."

Citations were also awarded to Kahn and Furbush, structural engineers, and Dickerson, Inc., general contractors.

A certificate of commendation was presented by the AISC to Peden Steel Co. of Raleigh, which supplied the structural steel.

A stainless steel plaque will also be mounted in the lobby of Minges Coliseum.

After the presentation ceremony, an award luncheon was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, where a model of the future stadium-coliseum complex was on display. Guests included representatives of AISC, Peden Steel, and other related firms. Members of the Minges family, University officials, press, radio, and TV personnel were also on hand.

ARCHITECTURAL AWARDS—Minges Coliseum was presented an award for architectural excellence at a special presentation service Wednesday. Here the presentation ceremony is backed up by the mass of the new facility.

Make Your Choice!

Amidst all the talk of student power for the East Carolina University campus, one fact stands dominant among all the speculation: students here possess the power that most campuses across the nation so strongly, and often violently, desire.

Despite that one fact, such student power as is controlled by the students on this campus has an excellent opportunity to become extinct unless the East Carolina student is willing to forsake the trend of the past few elections and vote in Wednesday's balloting.

Perhaps never before in the history of this university has the ballot played a more important part. The people who are elected by the voting Wednesday will control the legislative branch of the Student Government Association in a year that may well be the most significant ever for this campus. Amidst riots and demonstrations on other college campuses across the nation, it is imperative for East Carolina University to retain its solid image. The people elected Wednesday will be the ones who largely determine the continuation or failure of the retention of that prestige.

Regardless of the personal preferences of the individual voter, the question of whether or not to vote is a highly significant one, for like the famed "falling dominoes" theory, the whole system can fail because of lack of action on the first step.

In effect, a ballot is being cast by the person who fails to vote, but it is a ballot for the failure of the whole East Carolina electoral system. Each one who does not have the time or the interest to vote is doing his part for the breakdown of student-operated governmental bodies on this campus.

The days when college elections were meaningless are over. The work done by student government has become too significant. Likewise gone are the days when the campus "clown" could fill class or legislative offices. Too much importance is attached to them now. Their ramifications have become so basic to the effective operation of the government of students that only the most efficient can fulfill the obligations of those offices.

The function of the individual students does not end with the final tabulation of votes Wednesday night. It rather continues through the whole elected term. It is the duty of the student to keep his legislator or class officer informed, both of the needs of the campus and of his or her opinions, on the various issues under consideration. But the vote is still the primary requirement, the first step of the whole process. Without it the system fails. When the political system fails, so does the Student Government Association of East Carolina University, and when it fails, so do each of us.

This Editor wishes to encourage each of you to take a few minutes Wednesday to vote in the fall elections. It will be an act of immense importance to you, both now and in the future. Please take your privilege seriously.

Police Blow Their Cool

Poor taste and disgraceful behavior are never excusable, and the Greenville Police Department put themselves squarely in both categories Saturday afternoon with their actions toward alcoholic beverages among the student body at the football game.

It is true that North Carolina law forbids the "public display" of intoxicating beverages at athletic contests. It is equally true that some East Carolina students were guilty of violation of that statute. But when members of the Greenville police force began making personal searches, drink sampling, and breath smelling, they overstepped their bounds in law enforcement.

It may never have occurred to these officers that some of the people they were so readily checking may not have been guilty of any violation of the law. Those who were thus falsely scrutinized may justifiably feel persecuted, and as such might not be willing to overlook the offense.

The biggest complaint of many students who were thus checked is that such action takes on the appearance of a double standard, for few, if any, of the spectators on the opposite side of the field from the students were thus checked.

The question is not a question of the morality of the consumption of alcoholic beverages at athletic contests; it is rather a question of the legality and reasonableness of such searches by city police officers.

If such displays of wanton disregard for the rights of the individual continue, the Greenville police force will give itself an uncommendable bad name, and might well provoke antagonistic reaction on the part of some persons who were thus unreasonably searched.

Most students are willing to admit the need for some form of legal authority at such mass gatherings as football games, but when that authority takes the form it took at Saturday's game, reasonable minds agree that the time has come for a change.

Campaigners Strive To Win Student Support In Election

Dennis Chestnut

Dear Seniors,

Among the many decisions you will have to make this year, one of the first and probably one of the most important is choosing your class president. This task requires someone who will devote himself unselfishly to your needs; he will be responsible for steering you through the most significant year of your college career.

If I am elected to this office, I will work to establish a type of liaison among all seniors for the purpose of coordinating our activities, particularly Commencement and the events leading to it. To accomplish this I will utilize the experience that I have gained through participation in numerous activities at East Carolina University.

I feel I am qualified for this position and solicit your support.

Respectfully yours,

Dennis E. Chestnut

Joan Evans

Seniors,

I am a candidate for Senior Class Secretary on the University Party ticket. During my sophomore year I filled the office of Secretary, and found the job both fulfilling and rewarding. It is a thrilling experience to become involved in the affairs of our University. I want to be involved. I want to work for my class and my school. My best qualification is that I have the time, the energy, and the desire to do my best for the senior class as their secretary.

I would appreciate your vote of confidence on Wednesday, September 25. Thank you.

Joan Evans

Carolyn Breedlove

Dear Juniors,

When most of us first came to East Carolina College two years ago, we were wide-eyed and naive to the new way of life which was waiting for us. Now many things have changed. We are more mature and aware. We are assimilated. East Carolina has also changed. It is progressive and rapid-changing. It is a University. Two years ago, the University Party was young and inexperienced but, like East Carolina and ourselves, it has progressed rapidly. In these two years, we have realized privileges which many never thought possible. The University Party has been quite instrumental in this progression and change. As their candidate for Junior Class Vice President, I am anxious for the chance to serve our class and East Carolina University.

Sincerely yours,

Carolyn Breedlove

Carolyn Breedlove

Juniors

Carolyn Breedlove is a candidate for Vice-President of the Junior Class. She is without a doubt qualified to fill this position scholastically for she has been on either the Deans List or the Honor Roll every quarter since her start here at E.C.U. She is one of the most conscientious and efficient people I have ever met. But she has more than just statistical qualifications. Carolyn has a desire to help other students and to let people everywhere know that we are more than just a papier-mache University. Her goals are as high as her qualifications. I feel that by voting for Carolyn, I will be helping my fellow students and myself. I am sure that anyone who knows Carolyn feels the same as I do.

Danny Bland

Debbie Sheehan

Dear Members of the Junior Class,

In your forthcoming election of class officers, it is imperative that you choose candidates with both qualifications and experience.

As a class, you are entitled to a treasurer who can handle your financial obligation accurately and expeditiously. With these necessities in mind, I endorse Debbie Sheehan, Student Party Candidate for Jr. Class Treasurer.

Not only is Debbie a business economics major with several accounting courses to her credit but, she worked as a bookkeeper for Sen. Eugene McCarthy's National Headquarters this summer. She has served as Fleming Dorm Secretary for two quarters and still has found time to maintain a 2.4 average, participate in Greek life as a Kappa Delta and support ECU as a Varsity Cheerleader.

Elect Debbie Sheehan (SP) Jr. Class Treasurer on Sept. 25, and cast a vote for experience and ability.

Cathi Webb

F. B. Hall, Jr.

Fellow Students:

As a Junior here at East Carolina University, I have witnessed the growth of our University for the past two years. Growth not only in student number and new buildings, but a growth of prestige and a unity of achievements that make the student body what it is today. As students we should all be proud of the governmental system that has been set up on our campus and each year at election time we should exercise our voting privileges to assure that we continue to raise our standards.

As a candidate for Treasurer of the Junior Class I would appreciate your support in the coming election. I will strive to continue the progressiveness of our government and conscientiously apply myself for the betterment of this office.

Sincerely yours,

F. B. Hall, Jr.
Candidate for Junior Class Treasurer

Steve Morrisette

To All Students:

No words of praise can express the degree of high regards I feel for Steve Morrisette, candidate for Senior Class President. His years of experience in Student Government distinguishes him. He knows how to get things done and he can do the things the Senior Class needs most of all.

Most important of all, Steve will not show any favoritism to any group of students. His broadmindedness permits him to honor, respect, and work for the entire Senior Class.

I sincerely encourage you to vote for and support Steve Morrisette as our next Senior Class President. Thank you,

Bill Richardson

Sherry Presnell

To All Members of the Junior Class,

Now is the time to elect Sherry Presnell for your junior class treasurer. Sherry is a math major and possesses a keen awareness of financial matters. Her sound financial policies when she served as treasurer of her pledge class netted a substantial profit.

What qualities do you admire in a person? Honesty, sincerity, determination, vivaciousness? This is Sherry. Vote for her. She will serve you well.

Carol Julian

Jim Bowling

To All Freshmen Students:

To elect the President of your class is a challenge to each freshman on this campus. This leader should possess an outstanding personality, a willingness to get the job done, experience, and the qualities of a dynamic leader—all of which are possessed by Jim Bowling, candidate for your class President.

Jim has demonstrated to many people, such as I, that he is the one to lead you. He has the natural ability to meet people and to make friends with those whom he meets. He has a willingness to get the job done—to work for each member of his class, and to support the programs which a majority of his class supports. While at Parkland High School in Winston-Salem, Jim was President of his Senior Class—one of the largest in the state. He was elected to important positions in the Student Council, the Key Club, and various other organizations.

I, therefore, urge each of you to vote. Most of all, I urge each of you to support and elect JIM BOWLING President of Your Freshman Class at East Carolina University.

A Concerned Upperclassman,
Tony Phillips

ECU Forum

UP Slate

Dear Editor:

My wishes are that each student had a fine summer and is now ready for a very prosperous year.

I would like to ask each student to start right now and become involved in his student government by supporting the candidates for office in this Wednesday's legislative and class officer elections.

The questions of who are the candidates, what are the issues, and which party is he affiliated with, are major deciding factors in this election. It is my privilege to present to you a complete slate of candidates who are running on the University Party Ticket. These fifty two candidates are united to one purpose, and united behind a very progressive platform!

The University Party executive officer slate was elected last spring and in the 1½ months of the spring term, completed 4 of the 10 platform goals. Later hours for women students, the establishment of a secretary of Institutional Improvement, the appointment of a Secretary of Public Relations, and the formation of a committee to increase foreign students enrollment, were the four planks completed.

It is necessary for the executive officers of the SGA to have complete support from the SGA legislators and class officers in order to continue the progress and complete the high goals of the University Party for ECU. We, as students of a growing student University do not have the time to spend on the petty differences and arguments that would arise if the opposing party candidates were elected to the SGA.

If you, the students, support the progress already demonstrated by the University Party, then I urge you to support the continuation of this progress by electing the University Party slate of officers presented in this election.

Please do not fail to call on me if I may be of help to any one of you.

David R. Lloyd
President of the SGA

Experience Counts

To the Editor,

I would like to urge the students at East Carolina University to vote in the up-coming election. This is perhaps the first time in the history of East Carolina when so many are running for so much and saying so little. As potential voters, you will hear, "I support the Student Bill of Rights, vote for me." "I believe in student power, vote for me." "I stand up for law and order, vote for me." "I am against radical hippy students, vote for me."

It is the old problem. Everyone is interested in getting elected, and very few are interested in talking about concrete programs and ideas that they have, that they would like to put through. And, even more important, very few are interested in talking about their qualifications. And if they are not qualified, their ideas will get nowhere, fast.

In light of this, in the hope that the qualifications of the few will not be drowned out by the many, I would urge the students at East Carolina to look at the qualifications of the candidates.

Personally, I would like to endorse every candidate who was a member of the legislature. These people worked hard on their committees last year, and as legislators they have the best to offer of their experience.

Morrisette, Chestnut Vie For Senior Class President

Dennis Chestnut

Dear Editor:

I would like to give my support for Senior Class President to a man who has exemplified the patience, perseverance and personality seldom found in one individual. I feel assured that Dennis Chestnut possesses all the qualities necessary for the office he seeks and that he will execute his duties with proficiency. I had the privilege of serving last year with Dennis on the University Union Committee. His tireless efforts and dedication to the union won him recognition as the new Vice-President. In my opinion no other candidate will put forth as much effort to serve his class and to uphold the ideals of East Carolina University.

The University Party feels confident in its choice of Dennis because of the above reasons along with his previous experience in legislature, the judicial system, and other academic organizations.

I urge each of you to vote tomorrow and give your support to Dennis Chestnut.

E. J. Jarvis, II

Steve Morrisette

To the Seniors:

The class of 1969 has had much to do with the tremendous growth of East Carolina University in the last few years. We have taken part in or lead in almost every phase of campus life. As we now near our graduation we must think of what we can do for East Carolina when we leave. Each of us, I am sure, will at all times do his utmost as an alumni to carry the prestige of ECU.

If I am elected Senior Class President, I will strive for the best Senior Week ever and to make our gift to the school one which will be remembered for a long time. I also pledge to work actively with the alumni association to bring back the class of 69 as often as possible. I will appreciate your vote on September 25.

Competition Between Four For Soph Vice President

Bruce Bixler

Dear Sophomores,

As a candidate for the sophomore class presidency, one of my main objectives is to eliminate class apathy. I propose to do this by distributing student questionnaires which will engage the students in a closer relationship with the SGA and will allow the sophomore to actively participate in their government.

If elected, I will enact several activities for the benefit of the sophomore class and our fellow students. They include class debates, class homecoming activities, on-campus discussion groups, and a class-dating service. These programs are oriented to encourage the student to meet and to know his fellow students.

By providing me this opportunity to serve you, we shall together strive to achieve a better University, thus making your stay here more enjoyable. Cast your vote on this important election on September 25 for Bruce Bixler and progressive government.

Respectively yours,
Bruce Bixler

Gary Gasperini

Dear Sophomores,

Are you tired of "do-nothing" class presidents? Do you sometimes wish that your class could be more involved with some of its own student government activities? Many people ask just what can a class president do. At the present, the class officer can do nothing. He only has a vote on the Executive Council of the SGA, and he is a figurehead. If I am elected president of our sophomore class, I will work to gain some powers for the sophomore class which are independent from the SGA. It is time that we have been given some responsibility of our own and to distinguish our class from the others. We need a more progressive class than there has been in the past. We need to move on so that our class will be a better one, and so that our SGA will be improved.

My main concern is you, the student. As a student and an adult, you deserve certain basic rights.

JUNIOR PRESIDENT—It looks as if the struggle for the presidency of the junior class has already begun, as candidates David Guilford and Walter Dudley horse it up during the photo session.

I support an active bill of rights that will serve your interests. In the summer school legislature of the past summer, I proposed a resolution to be proposed to the N.C. General Assoc. which is to allow the use of alcoholic beverages on the East Carolina University Campus. If elected I will push for similar rights which you deserve to have.

I am serving you now as chairman of the Student Polls Committee with its main objective in learning your desires. But just learning your desires is not enough, there needs to be an action to serve and fulfill your needs. If elected I will work towards meeting your interests.

Presently I am working to obtain a transit system on campus which will run eight hours a day at both ends of the campus carrying students to and from classes and dormitories.

I have served you in other capacities such as Assistant Public Defender of the Men's Judiciary, Public Relations Committee, and serving on the North Carolina General Assembly Committee. I wish to do more for you. Help me to serve you. Mark your ballot for progress on Wednesday, September 25 from 9:00 to 5:00.

Competition Reaches Peak In Sophomore Prexy Race

David S. Allen

To the editor,
I see the office of president as a challenge and an opportunity. A challenge in the sense that it brings great responsibility upon the holder of office. An opportunity where the holder would be able to put into practice his ideals for the job.

I believe the sophomore class should be the focal point of more responsible interest and service both to and for East Carolina University.

My ideal is to make the students aware that only through their interest and support will the University serve them best.

As a voter myself, I want an active president not one who seeks only the name of the office. I feel as if I could and would be an active president.

I have qualifications, but I don't want to waste the readers time by listing them. This would be boring. If anyone would like to know them I would gladly take time to tell them.

Make your vote count!

To The Editor:

This is directed to the class of 1971—all of you who have hung in there through that first grueling year. Yes, we are Sophomores now, and presumably intelligent enough to realize that the time has come—to turn away from the partyliners to an independent candidate. My name is Mike Bonfoey, and I offer you nothing but a chance to refute all the irresponsible charges of apathy leveled at us.

To be candid, there was much to be apathetic about in the past. These are the things the students are griping about, and what I intend to do about them:

(1) Lack of student rights—We must have a student bill of rights such as GAP proposes.

(2) Drinking in the dorms—The S.G.A. should appeal to the N.C. Legislature in support of a bill which would classify dorm rooms as a home.

(3) Our great library—The S.G.A. should appeal to the N.C. Legislature for funds for a new University library.

(4) The laundry fee—The compulsory fee should be examined. Perhaps the money could be credited for use in the new Belk laundromat.

(5) Drop-add—Drop-add must be restructured to facilitate schedule adjustment. There must be no more than two subjects per line.

(6) The registration mess—The possibility of mailing schedules fall quarter to those who prepay their fees should be analyzed.

So there you have it—the issues and what Mike Bonfoey intends to do about them. No doubletalk, no evasions, no nonsense. For the times they are a 'changin', and as Sophomore Class President I intend to change them. So do yourself, and East Carolina, a favor on Sept. 25 and vote for a progressive President: Mike Bonfoey. We'll get things done.

Respectfully yours,
Mike Bonfoey

Steve Davis

Sophomores,

Many of you already know who I am and my reasons for running for Sophomore Class Vice-President, but, of course, many do not. My purpose for writing this letter is to acquaint you with these facts.

My name is Steve Davis; I'm from Raleigh and I'm a hard-core Southern Baptist. I want to be considered as your candidate for office because of my advocacy of a strong student government. It is extremely important that there be a liaison between the SGA and the students, and it is imperative that such a link exist if the students are to be represented equally and justly. I offer myself as just such a liaison based on my experience as Freshman Class Vice-President. I learned a great deal last year, and now I want to apply this knowledge for the benefit to the Sophomore Class.

The reasons for my candidacy, however, go far beyond personal desires and ambitions. I am also a staunch believer in school tradition. Last year the Freshman class officers tried vainly to renew student interest in class blazers even though we encountered some difficulty. However, I remain intensely interested in new ideas that will project our class as one of tradition and that will characterize our class as one concerned for East Carolina University.

I ask and need your support and your votes. But no matter who you choose to vote for—most important, please don't forget to cast your votes on Wednesday.

Steve Davis

FRESHMAN PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Two Candidates Speak Out For Freshman President

Charles Turisdale

To Whom It May Concern:
Fellow freshmen of East Carolina University, I would like to tell you a little about myself and my policies.

My first objective is to win the support of every student no matter which party they represent. I'm an independent and I don't have to answer to any of the Parties policies, only to the policies of the Freshman students. This puts the leadership into the hands of the officers. A more unified class would be the result.

I suggest, for our class, a Freshman Class Council. In this council representatives, chosen by the students, and the Executive Council would discuss problems and ideas to work out solutions for the betterment of the Freshman Class.

I am candidate for Fr. Class president because I feel I can institute a strong and meaningful government for the Freshmen at ECU. I served on the Student Council all four years in High School. The Student Co-Operative Association of Virginia my Junior year, and Sr. Class

Treasurer of New Bern High School. I would like to ask the support of Every Freshman of ECU at my drive to be Freshman Class President. I feel I'm a winner, and with your support, on September 25, I'm sure to be.

Charles Turisdale

Forby Rhodes

Fellow Students:

I am running for your freshman class president for various reasons. First of all I want to put the power in the students' hands; not the legislature. Most of all I would like to see the freshman class looked upon as one of the most important classes in the University "not looked down on".

I feel that I am quite capable of taking on the leadership and responsibilities required for the office. I was vice-president of my freshman class in high school. I have been on the student council all four years and have worked with the North Carolina S.C.A. convention. I have been chairman of various committees such as publicity, social, safety patrol, and future engineers of America.

Students, from these qualifications and the great desire I have, I feel I could do the best possible job of the office of freshman class president. If I am elected I will be your student leader and friend.

Forby Rhodes

Three Enter Election Race For Sophomore Class Secretary

Patricia Thompson

My Fellow Sophomores,
My only wish is that there were some way I would share with you my sincere desire to serve you as your Sophomore Class Secretary. In this hustling academic year, it seems strange to think of people as being sincere in their emotions and desires. But I could not be more truthful when I state that I want to serve you and serve you well.

In the past, I have held numerous campus capacities which will, without a doubt, augment my abilities to serve you best. For these reasons, I respectfully request that you support me in the up-coming campus elections.

Thank you.

Patricia Thompson

Sue Dashill

In the upcoming election, it is important that each voter be informed of each candidate's qualifications so that he may make his choice wisely.

Last Monday night, Sue Dashill was selected by members of the Student Party to run for the office of Sophomore Class Secretary. The Student Party is composed of people who are representative of the voting student body. Surely these people have a reason for selecting Sue Dashill as their candidate. Sue Dashill was chosen because she is qualified for the job. This qualification is illustrated by her record of leadership and participation in high school and her freshman year in college. She was editor in chief of her high school yearbook, president of Virginia Industrial Clubs of America and a member of the National Honor Society. She received numerous awards on both local and state levels for talent and capability. As a freshman at East Carolina, Sue was vice-president of Buccaneer Courts, Building 3, she headed an S.G.A. Committee to study day student grievances and the possibility of forming a Day Student Council similar to the WRC. Sue was also a member of the Spirit Committee and helped prepare for the MAR Delegation to the Model UN.

As you can see, Sue Dashill is highly qualified. I urge all sophomores, as responsible members of the student body to think before you vote. I am certain that if you think, your vote will be cast for Sue Dashill as Sophomore Class Secretary. Thank you.

Steve Morrisette

Suzanne Jenkins

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my reasons for supporting Suzanne Jenkins as a candidate for Sophomore class treasurer.

Suzanne is well qualified for this position. A Chi Omega, Suzanne served as treasurer of her pledge class and knows the responsibilities of the position. Her sorority sisters renewed their confidence in Suzanne by electing her Assistant House Manager this year. Suzanne showed her enthusiasm for E.C.U. as one of the most energetic J.V. cheerleaders last year. She is a member of the ECU Young Democrats' Club and a fine representative of East Carolina at many functions of our state and local governments. She has maintained a 2.5 average.

Suzanne and I served together as Pagettes in the North Carolina Senate in 1965. Working with her, I became aware of her interest and concern in state as well as student politics.

Having corresponded and exchanged visits with Suzanne since that time, I have come to know the value of a true friend. Our friendship means a lot to me, but it is not simply because of this friendship that I endorse her. I believe, knowing Suzanne as I do, that her sincerity, honesty and her involvement with her fellow students can and will be generated into our student government if we, the Sophomores of East Carolina University, elect and support Suzanne Jenkins as our class Treasurer.

Jeff Mann

Jeff Mann, a candidate for Freshman Class Vice President of the University Party, is qualified for that office. He attended Needham B. High School in Raleigh for three years. At Broome Junior and Sophomore his classmates as President and Treasurer (1966) and Vice-President and President of the class. As a Senior, Jeff was member of the Executive Council of the Committee for the Intercity and on the Election and Civil Defense Committee. This year at East Carolina has already begun as a member of the Student Body Committee and the S.G.A. Executive Committee. Because of his leadership ability and hearty endorsement by the Freshman Class Vice President, Chip

Jeff Mann

Jeff Mann, a candidate for Freshman Class Vice-President on the University Party ticket, is well qualified for that office. Jeff attended Needham B. Broughton High School in Raleigh, N.C. for three years. At Broughton as a Junior and Sophomore, he served his classmates as President (1967) and Treasurer (1966) of his home-room and Vice-President (1966) and President of the Hi-Y. As a Senior, Jeff was a member of the Executive Council in the position of Committee Chairman. He served in the Inter-club Council and on the Elections, Safety and Civil Defense Committees. This year at East Carolina, Jeff has already begun serving as a member of the Student Polls Committee and the S.G.A. Transit System Committee. Because of his qualifications, leadership ability and potential I heartily endorse Jeff Mann for Freshman Class Vice-President. Chipper Linville

Tommy Autry

Dear Classmates: I have decided to run for the office of Freshman Class Treasurer. It is for you, the Freshman Class of 1972, that I am running. I firmly believe in this statement, and I am willing to undertake the responsibility of upholding it.

I think I have gained some experience in High School that will help me to respond to such an obligation. This experience has come from participation in Beta Club, Student Council, Annual Staff, FBLA, Monogram Club, Glee Club, Athletics, Boys' State, and school projects. I have found that participation in groups such as these is very interesting and worthwhile. The Freshman Class is my main concern at the moment. I want to do everything I can to make it the greatest Freshman Class that was ever at East Carolina University. I am laying my assistance down before you, the Class of 1972. As Treasurer, I would be delighted to be the Class' right-hand man in connection with monetary as well as other beneficial matters.

Betsee Sanford

To Whom It May Concern: As a candidate for Secretary of the Freshman class at East Carolina University, I would like to tell you why I think I am qualified to hold this position.

I have great interest in the government of my class and the operation of East Carolina University. In high school, I held homeroom offices and was active in the Young Democrats Club, Teen-Dems, and worked extensively in various political and social organizations. I became involved this past year in Eugene McCarthy's political campaign, both in New Hampshire and North Carolina, and visited the Chicago convention, with the opportunity of seeing how government worked, in practice. I worked in McCarthy headquarters there, and learned much about organization.

If I am elected, I will be responsible to my office, to the Student Government Association, and to the Freshman class.

Betsee Sanford

Randy Longworth

I feel I can work to make the class more than just freshmen. Such work would include fostering freshmen interest in campus activities and arousing school spirit. If the class of '72 is to evolve with the potential to secure objectives, the class must begin to speak now. In order for it to be heard, the class must have its spokesmen. As a class officer I pledge to voice the desires of the freshman in behalf of the University.

If past records are sufficient evidences for future accomplishments, I can provide such a list. Not only was I involved with the students, but I was able to voice opinion to the faculty. When not serving in the student government, I was active on the schools student vestry and participated in athletics.

Randy Longworth

FRESHMAN TREASURER—Three men have indicated their desire to become treasurer of the freshman class. They are P. H. Myhrum, Gary Longworth, and Tommy Autry.

Elections Throw Newcomers Into Campus Competition

Ernestine McEachern

Dear Freshman:

I realize all too well that many votes are often cast for a certain candidate just because she is good-looking or has a good figure.

I might have braces, stringy hair, and big feet, but somewhere between those "number nines" and the "Mop" there is a great big heart. This heart covets one thing, and this is to serve you, my friends, and my class, and my school, to the best of my ability. I am proud to be a member of the student body of East Carolina University.

As Secretary of the Freshman Class, I could make an honest effort to repay you by giving as much time and hard work to this job as it might possibly require. I look not upon this position as a task, but rather an honor, and I would polish, protect, and admire it as a bar of solid gold.

Linda Tew

Linda Tew

To The Students of ECU:

I am running for secretary of the Freshman class of 1968-69. I appreciate the nomination of The University Party and will to the best of my ability try to fulfill the duties of a secretary if I am elected.

I graduated from Hoke High but attended Upchurch High my freshman and sophomore years. There I was on the Debating Team, the Choral Club, and the FHA and Beta Club.

I am certain that I qualify, and I request the support of every student with the progress of East Carolina University.

My main purpose in running for secretary is to serve the students. Will you please give me the chance to do so by voting for me on Wednesday, September 25, 1968?

Ernestine McEachern

P. H. Myhrum

Fellow Students,

I am P. H. Myhrum, the Student Party candidate for the Freshman Class Treasurer. I need your support. Why? I know of what my job will consist, and am willing and able to assume the responsibility and the business-like attitude necessary for a task of this importance.

If elected, I will attempt to utilize a system of determination by consensus. By this, I mean that for major money decisions, I will conduct a poll of freshman students, so that you may have a voice in the determination of your money's uses.

I believe in the Student Party, but I also believe in judging candidates on all tickets. Please analyze all candidates. I think you will find that the Student Party Platform has the most to offer for the student.

I hope that you will cast your vote for P. H. Myhrum for Freshman Class Treasurer. Let's put the students' money in the students' hands.

P. H. Myhrum

TYPICAL SCENE—East Carolina tailback Fella Rhodes found himself in this futile position Saturday afternoon on numerous occasions, as the Bucs bowed to a fired-up William and Mary squad in the Southern Conference opener. The Pirate backfield had a particularly miserable day, as the locals lost, 14-0.

First Quarter

The Bucs missed two golden opportunities to score, fumbling one away at the William & Mary 20 yard line, and then after recovering an Indian fumble on the William & Mary 24, ending up on the 47 where they punted on fourth down.

The Indians, on the other hand, ran over the Bucs, as they marched up and down Ficklen Stadium, but the Bucs stiffened every time in the shadow of their goal line.

The Indians closest drive came after they received the kickoff to start the game. A clipping penalty on the play put the ball on the William & Mary 14, and then they started to drive. The Indians marched down the field, but a fourth down play failed as the Bucs held at the 13.

Second Quarter

Both teams exchanged punts and with 6:55 left in the half, William & Mary got the ball on the ECU 49 yard line. Pakenham carried to the 47 and Meeter bulled his way to the 32 for a 15 yard gain. One play later, Meeter hit Morton at the 17 and Pakenham moved it down to the 1. From there, Laycock passed 14 yards to Zychowski for the score. Tim Daniels kicked the point after, and with 5:00 left in the half, it was 7-0. It remained like that until early in the fourth quarter.

Third Quarter

East Carolina's best drive of the day started at the outset of the third quarter as they drove down to the William and Mary 14. Two plays had Colson hit up the middle. Colson gained three yards to the 11. A third down pass missed and then a field goal attempt also failed.

Both teams spent the rest of the quarter exchanging punts.

Fourth Quarter

East Carolina punted on the first play of the final period and the Indians took over, first and ten on the 50. Pakenham then carried to the 41 for nine yards and Laycock carried to the 39 for the first down. Laycock then passed 13 yards to Morton and then Morton added a seven yard run to the 19. After an off-side penalty moved the ball to the 14, Morton carried to the four and Pakenham took it from there. Daniels then connected for the PAT and the final 14-0 score.

On the ensuing kick-off return, the Bucs fumbled, but the defense held and Daniels missed on a field goal attempt.

The last ten minutes saw both teams swap punts and do little else.

Party Platforms Stress Need For Student Reforms

University Party

The University Party approved the following:

I. Amend Article III, Section 3A of the constitution to include the Presidents of the WRC and MRC to the Executive Council, giving them a voice and a vote. This will bring the organizations under the control of the SGA so that there will be less friction between the students and organizations.

II. Establishment of an ombudsman to serve as a liaison between the administration, faculty, and the SGA, to be appointed by the SGA president, and approved by the SGA legislature. Matters will be presented to his attention through the Executive Council. This will be an impartial faculty member.

III. Formation of International Students Committee to encourage more foreign and student enrollment at East Carolina University. Committee is to include members of the student body now enrolled.

IV. Promotion of an increase in the activities of the External Affairs Committee to build and promote the name and image of East Carolina University throughout the state.

V. To arrange to have two dorms on an all night basis for a trial period for girls 21 years old; Junior and Senior girls with parents permission (Jarvis and Fleming recommended). This arrangement will give the girls more responsibility and freedom of movement. Those dorms were chosen because of size and location.

VI. For the SGA to investigate the possibilities of establishing a proportionate and equal tuition rate in all North Carolina State supported institutions. This is only to investigate these possibilities. East Carolina needs more out-of-state students, and so by establishing an equal tuition ratio, we can increase our chances of obtaining a broader student body.

VIII. To complete the remodeling of the Soda Shop to make it a more enjoyable place for students and to make it a place to which students will want to bring their friends. In essence, it will be a showplace of East Carolina.

VIII. To establish a review board to study the merits of house-mothers. This will curb the disenchantment of the students by giving them a place to bring their grievances.

IX. To make the East Carolinian independent as far as salaries are concerned. Advertisements will pay salaries and these salaries will be audited by the State auditors. The SGA will pay the cost of printing. By this independence, the initiative of the staff will be increased and a better newspaper will be presented to the students. The advertising staff will receive a commission on the advertising sold.

X. The University Party supports an SGA Student Bill of Rights to be put forth by the student-elected representatives, the Student Government Legislature.

XI. To complete an Old Austin Memorial.

Student Party

The Student Party platform is as follows:

1. Study day between last day of classes and first day of exams

2. Proposed that there shall be two (2) following registration for drop-add without classes

3. Congress of leading students, faculty and administration to deal with problems common to all three groups

4. Proposal to set concrete guidelines for distribution of SGA funds to campus organizations

5. Proposal to implement the Duke system on an experimental basis to promote academic freedom

6. Amend the SGA Constitution Article 3 Section 1 to include a coed vice-president

7. Establishment of another committee to study race relations that would be able to investigate claims and verify their accuracy

8. Acclamation that all members who had not already were encouraged to sign the GAP Bill of Rights.
