Campus Survey Gives Figures On Students And Changes

Enrollment, religion and construction have made some interesting statistics on the ECU campus. Surveys show a 10,000 plus enrollment, a predominance of Baptist students and millions of dollars being spent on campus development.

East Carolina announced recently a resident enrollment of 10,436 for fall quarter.

The total includes 9,272 graduates, undergraduates, auditors and visitors on the main campus and 128 students in the Undergraduate Evening College, also conducted on the main campus.

In the Graduate School there is a total enrollment of 698, including 400 men and 298 women. Seeking master's degrees are 496 (288 men, and 208 women); another 172 (82 men, 90 women) are taking nondegree programs, such as teacher certificate renewal work.

Also in the Graduate School are 30 men who are taking the sixth year program for school administrators.

The main campus enrollment includes 494 students who transferred from other campuses (107 freshmen, 266 sophomores, 115 juniors and 6 seniors).

Also included are 448 veterans of the Armed Forces. (That represents a near doubling of last year's 267).

The 1,825 other new freshmen this fall have an average score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) of 990, a gain of 23 points over last year's average. The university requires a minimum of 850.

Student Religion

A survey of religious preferences shows that Baptist - oriented students are most numerous at ECU.

Of students responding to the survey, 2,836 indicated a Baptist preference. Second in number were Methodist students, 2,249.

Presbyterian students were third in number with 970 and Catholics were next with 652 students.

Other denominations represented at ECU are Episcopal, 475 students; Christian, 338; and Lutheran, 219.

Jewish students number 53 this year. Other religions are represented by 1,150 students. No preference was expressed by 330 students.

Completed improvements

East Carolina has completed since last November a total of nine capital improvements projects costing a total of $7,442,967.

The projects, cost figures and completion dates:

Minges Coliseum and Natatorium, $2,577,056, December, 1967; 10-story dormitory for women, $1,347,000, August, 1968; School of Home Economics building, $1,085,000, October, 1968; addition to Joyner Library, $763,251, April, 1968; addition to Picklen Stadium, $598,034, September, 1968; auxiliary heating plant, $784,528, July, 1968; alterations to Whichard Hall, administration building, $235,723, August, 1968; campus drainage and development, $38,007, November, 1967; campus streets and walks, $614,368, June, 1968.

Six construction projects with budgets totaling nearly $19 million are now under way.

The projects and their budgets, as reported by ECU Vice President and Business Manager F. D. Duncan, are:

A 10-story dormitory for women, $1,360,000; a 9-story dormitory for men, $1,700,000; a 3- and 4-story science complex for biology and physics, $3,525,000; a 3- and 4-story general classroom building, $3,000,000; an addition to maintenance shops, $56,500; renovation of the campus electrical distribution system, $325,000.

Duncan said university officials will receive bids Oct. 29 on construction of an auxiliary student supply store and Nov. 19 on a building for the ECU Development Evaluation Clinic. The student store has a budget of $213,742; the clinic is expected to cost $246,900.

GOP CANDIDATE—At least one member of the political science department is putting his field of academic study into practice this year. Dr. John P. East, the noted conservative Republican who entered the Congressional races a couple of years ago, is presently running for the office of Secretary of State for North Carolina on the GOP ticket. East opposes incumbent Democrat Thad Eure in the elections Tuesday.

Strong Republican Ticket Makes East See Election Day Victory

By JAMES N. SHAVER

Dr. John East, political science professor and Republican candidate for Secretary of State for North Carolina, is looking to election day with a glint of optimism in his eye.

"Due to the strong Republican ticket both here in the state and on the national level chances have become very good for victory for all Republican candidates at any level," East stated.

Besides being first district manager for Republican gubernatorial candidate, Jim Gardner, East also served as a North Carolina delegate to the Republican Convention in Miami.

East announced his candidacy for office last February 19 and met no primary opposition. As for his Democratic opponent, Thad Eure, East had this to say, "The Democratic Party has controlled this state for 67 years and the people see the need for a two party system. North Carolina ranks far below other states in areas of per capita income, teacher salary, and highway systems. Mr. Eure has been in office for 36 years and he must bear a great deal of responsibility for areas such as these."

The East Carolina professor holds a law degree from the University of Illinois and Masters and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Florida. He feels that a background such as this will be helpful in not only the administrative area of the office he is running for but also is vital for the public leadership needed.

East based most of his victory hopes on the people who "want a change and are for the growth and development of this state."

Although no formal poll of public opinion has been conducted East is optimistic. He says, "for the first time in 40 years the Democrats will not carry this state on the national level."

East feels that present public opinion shows dissatisfaction with Democratic policies. This, in his opinion, has given all Republican candidates a decisive edge.

Roger Wagner Chorale Accents Finest In American Vocalists

The Roger Wagner Chorale, appearing here in Wright Auditorium on Wed., Nov. 6, is not only recognized as America's finest group of singers, but is also justly famed as a "springboard" for individual talents — fine young vocalists who have distinguished themselves in brilliant solo careers.

Prominent among these is soprano Marilyn Horne, who is fast becoming an international celebrity as a versatile star of the operatic and recital stage, and as a recording artist.

Theodor Uppman, Metropolitan Opera baritone, has also starred with the New York City, the San Francisco, and the Chicago Lyric Opera Companies.

Sallie Terri, mezzo-soprano, has attained distinction as a performer of and authority on folk music and has recorded extensively for Capitol Records.

Baritone Harve Presnell first caught national attention as the male star of both the Broadway and Hollywood versions of Meredith Wilson's hit "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." What promises to be a stellar motion-picture career is currently in progress.

Soprano Marni Nixon has been heard by literally millions of people as the unseen voice of many movie stars, including that of Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady." At present, Miss Nixon is preparing for her first Broadway musical, in which she will be seen as well as heard.

These and other famous alumni of the Roger Wagner Chorale are reminders of the ever-continuing, peerless quality of the group's individual singers — singers who, under the inspired guidance of Roger Wagner, have made the Chorale "unchallenged among professional choruses today."

CHORALE VISITS—The Roger Wagner Chorale, noted vocal group, is slated to appear on the campus for a concert November 6, at 8:15 in Wright Auditorium. The performance, sponsored by the Artists Series, will require a ticket for admission, which may be obtained at the Central Ticket Office for a $5.50 service charge.

Results Of Student Polls Gives Paulsen Top Rating

By MARY ALLEN

The results of the student opinion poll taken on September 25 to determine the most popular entertainers of the students on the ECU campus have been published.

In the field of male vocalists, Johnny Mathis headed the list. Ed Ames, John Davidson, and Bobby Goldsboro were rated after Johnny Mathis in second and third places respectively.

Roger Williams, the Baja Marimba Band, and Paul Mauriat were the top three choices in the instrumental category.

Top among the folk singer listed were Simon and Garfunkel. Peter, Paul, and Mary followed closely behind in second place. The third choice was Sonny and Cher, while Glen Yarbrough was rated fourth. In fifth, sixth, and seventh positions were Donovan, Bobbie Gentry, and Joan Baez, respectively.

In the popular singers category, The Association received top choice. The Young Rascals were only sixteen votes behind, while The Fifth Dimension rated third. The Jimmi Hendrix Experience, Archie Bell & The Drells, and The Vanilla Fudge followed. Also among the top choices were Paul Revere & The Raiders, Gary Lewis & The Playboys, Jay & The Americans, and The Happenings.

The voting for soul groups was very close among the top five. The Four Tops received the most votes with Smoky Robinson and The Miracles, Ray Charles, and The Tams taking second, third, and fourth positions. James Brown rated fifth in the voting.

Sergio Mendes and Brazil '66 were voted most popular in the jazz division. Ramsey Louis was second, and the Stan Getz Quartet was third.

Among the top country singers listed on the ballot were Glenn Campbell, who received a fair majority, and Johnny Cash, who received only 300 votes more than Edgy Arnold.

Pat Paulsen received a majority in the comedy group, and he was followed by Flip Wilson who was only 100 votes behind. Don Rickles was third in the voting.

Loessin Schedules Tryouts For USA

Director Edgar Loessin has announced that tryouts for "U.S.A.", the second production of the East Carolina Playhouse's current season, will be held Thursday and Friday, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, at 7:30 in McGinnis Auditorium on the E.C.U. campus.

Based on the novel by John Dos Passos, "U.S.A." is a superbly woven and exciting cavalcade of America in the first third of the twentieth century. It is a dramatic revue, and is unquestionably the best of this genre.

Set for production in mid-December, the show requires six characters and a singing quartet. As always, anyone within our commuting area is eligible and welcome to participate in Playhouse productions. Scripts are available for reading purposes in the E.C.U. library.

Independence For Paper?

Tuesday night the Publications Board began consideration of financial independence for the EAST CAROLINIAN, beginning the lengthy process of study necessary before such changes can be made.

The issue is one that has been cast about several times in the past, but it has never gone as far as it has at the present time.

The reasons that changes need to be made in the existing structure are many, but they all hinge around one basic reason. The newspaper is faced with the problem of trying to expand its scope in order to provide increased services to the students of this university. The present financial structure of the Student Government Association, despite all the good intentions in the world, makes such expansion impossible.

It is the opinion of both this Editor and several key figures in the SGA that the switch to a form of financial independence might enable the EAST CAROLINIAN to improve, both with regard to the frequency of issues and to their size. It is also the opinion of this Editor that the students of East Carolina University both need, and deserve, this expansion.

It is true that a better proposal might be put forth. If a better way of achieving these ends can be found, those persons presently supporting financial independence would be among the first to accept the change. If, however, no other plan can be formulated, it is their opinion that the change is worth the small amount of risk involved in setting forth on such a new venture.

The plan is being considered, and will continue to be evaluated until a decision can be reached. Should it be proved unfeasible, a new way of attacking the problem will be undertaken.

However, the need for revision of the existing system is needed, if this newspaper is to continue to provide a product that is compatible with the standing of this university, both with others in the state and in the rest of the country.

Nation Votes On Tuesday

The day of national reckoning occurs next Tuesday, as the candidates for national, state, and local offices present themselves to the population for consideration.

The American people will once again be able to present their views to their representatives on how their government should be run.

The election process is an integral part of American democracy... a democracy that has existed among the powers of the world for nearly 200 years. American democracy is a unique brand of government, a brand that has often been used for a model but never duplicated.

Every citizen of this country, regardless of race, economic or intellectual status, or political belief, has a stake in the preservation of that democracy.

That democracy can only be preserved by the participation of each member of the citizenry in the electoral process, for only within that framework can each citizen work for responsible change.

The polls will be open in every precinct in this country Tuesday. Every citizen will be able to choose whether or not to go to those polls, and each will be able to vote for the candidates of his choosing.

That very fact is what sets this country apart from many of the nations of the world, for the residents of many parts of the globe are unable to make those choices. The Soviet Union practices a form of required voting, and has only one name per office on the ballot. Many states have no elections at all.

The act of voting is, to the American citizen, a fundamental right and privilege — a right and privilege that will continue to exist only so long as it is exercised.

This campus houses a host of students who are eligible to vote in the Tuesday elections. Each of them has a powerful contribution to make to American life.

For each of them, participation in the elections Tuesday is both a privilege and a right. American democracy is at a crucial point this year, as evidenced by the civil disorder and war controversy. The outcome of the elections Tuesday will largely decide the route this nation will take in the years to come.

Each individual who is eligible to cast a ballot in the upcoming voting should recognize the need for his participation. Each qualified voter should be sure to cast that ballot, for the fate of this nation may well hinge on his ballot.

Candidates Speakout

Top Dogs Talk

Editors' Note: The following excerpts are from "Asia After Vietnam," an article written by Richard M. Nixon, Republican candidate for president.

Asia has been undergoing a profound, exciting, and, on balance, extraordinarily promising transformation. Today the non-communist Asian governments are looking for solutions that work, rather than solutions that fit a preconceived set of doctrines and dogmas. Most of them also recognize a common danger, and see its source as Peking. Taken together, these developments present an extraordinary set of opportunities for a U.S. policy which must begin to look beyond Vietnam.

It is beyond question that without the American commitment in Vietnam, Asia would be a far different place today. The U.S. presence has provided proof that communism is not necessarily the wave of Asia's future. This realization was a vital factor in the recent anti-communist victory in Indonesia. Moreover, Vietnam has diverted Peking from such other potential targets as India, Thailand, and Malaysia, and it has bought vitally needed time for governments that were weak or leaning toward Peking as a hedge against the future.

Winds of Change. Asia is changing more swiftly than any other part of the world. There is a rising complex of national, subregional, and regional identification and pride. There is also an acute sense of common danger — a factor which serves as catalyst to the others. A few years ago, Asians stood opposed to the West, which represented the intruding alien power. But now the West has abandoned its colonial role, and no longer threatens the independence of the Asian nations. Red China, however, does threaten.

The message has not been lost on Asia's leaders. The West, and particularly the United States, now represents not an oppressor but a protector.

One of the legacies of Vietnam almost certainly will be a deep reluctance on the part of the United States to become involved in a similar intervention on a similar basis. If another friendly country should be faced with an externally supported communist insurrection — whether in Asia or Africa or even Latin America — there is serious question whether the American public or the American Congress would now support a unilateral American intervention, even at the request of the host government.

They must develop regional defense pacts, so that they can attempt to contain aggression in their own areas.

I am not arguing that the day is past when the United States would respond militarily to communist threats in the less stable parts of the world. But if the initial response to a threatened aggression can be made by lesser powers within the path of aggression, one of two things can be achieved: either they can contain it by themselves, in which case the United States is spared involvement, and the world is spared the consequences of great-power action; or, if they cannot, the ultimate choice can be presented to the United States in clear-cut terms, by nations which would automatically become allies in whatever response might prove necessary.

To put it another way, the regional pact would become a buffer separating the distant great power from the immediate threat. Only if the buffer were to prove insufficient would the great power become involved, and then in terms that would make victory more attainable and the enterprise more palatable.

Writer Sees Poor Choice For Voter On Election Day

By WALT WHITEMORE

Next Tuesday climaxes what has been an interesting, if not frustrating, political year. From Senator McCarthy's dramatic entry into the race, to the sorrow of early June, to the frustrations of Miami and Chicago, this nation has repeatedly demonstrated its pitiful state of affairs. And, next week, the tragedy closes when the electorate must choose between a reject from eight years ago, a liberal who washed-out in the current administration, and a man who carries the banner of ignorance, fear, and hatred.

It is the view of many, Lester Maddox for example, that the nation's only hope for salvation is a conservative victory. It is also the view of many that this "salvation" can be most easily realized through a purge of the pseudo-intellectuals, the political radicals, and the degenerate social drop-outs. However, I am not convinced that it is anything but too late for anything!

For many years, the more liberal elements of our society have recognized a need for numerous changes. Unfortunately, there were too many Sam Rayburns, John Towers, and Strom Thurmonds. There were too many hatchet-wielding restaurant owners; there were too many states-righters disguising their racism and hatred. Consequently, there were nothing but token gestures and nominal gains made. And now, our cups runneth over with disgusted humanitarians, alienated youth, and impatient Afro-Americans.

I have heard many disaffected "liberals" resign themselves to Hubert Humphrey. They tell me that he is better than nothing. I have heard others espouse the virtues of Richard Nixon. Supposedly, his absence from the political scene for the past several years has produced some significant changes of character. And, of course, it has been impossible — considering the predominance of so-called "rednecks" in the region — to escape the supporters of George Wallace. Allegedly, he has some master plan for "setting 'em straight" in Washington.

In closing, I would like to voice my sympathy to those who truly believed in the great American Experiment. Those who shared the dreams of Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, and Kennedy are being forced to watch the last dying days of America, and the irony of it all is that they must choose the executioner. The American dream, as many of us viewed it, is ended.

Red Ballet

Dear Editor:

At the last meeting of the S.G.A. Legislature a motion was made that an additional $500.00 be appropriated so that the students of East Carolina University could be graced with the presence of a ballet group imported live and in the flesh from Moscow. The name of this particular group is of no real importance and I venture to say that the vast majority of the students could care less. When I expressed my attitude on this matter before the Legislature, my remarks were dismissed as being trite by one of my fellow members.

Today we hear so much about maintaining a favorable balance of payments and you can take that for whatever it is worth. However, is it really trite to say that whatever would be in the national interest might also be in the interest of East Carolina University? Is it trite to consider the fact, that when our nation is engaged in armed conflict with the Communist world, the S.G.A. of East Car-

Editors' Note: Following is "An Open Letter to the Youth of America," submitted by Hubert Humphrey, Democratic candidate for president.

Seldom has a national election been so crucial to our future. And when I say our future, I am talking to you — the young people of America. Decisions made now will affect you for years to come.

I know you care. Many of you marched with Eugene McCarthy from the snows of New Hampshire to the warm valleys of California. Others of you helped Nelson Rockefeller and his great liberal aspirations. Still others fought so hard for the beloved Robert Kennedy.

You have caused America to reassess its direction. The voice of the young has traditionally been the voice for change, but never has it been as resoundingly heard as this year.

What are your choices in November?

You could drop out, which some of you apparently think is the only means left to influence their country's — and their own — future. I disagree.

You could vote for a man who would run over dissent, stifle intelligent voices and destroy racial harmony.

You could vote for a man who talks harmony and leadership now, but who never provided it when he had a chance; a man who refuses to discuss the way to a secure and lasting peace.

Or you could vote for a man who sponsored the Peace Corps in 1961; who called for medical care for the aged as his first act as a senator 20 years ago; who wants to stop nuclear proliferation and says so; who wants a political solution in Vietnam with elections for all people, including those not popular with the present government; who thinks the present draft system is grossly inequitable and needs vast revision and a new director; and who has been and is working for a better today and tomorrow — not a better yesterday.

Do you want your influence felt positively? You can "drop in" with a president who will conduct an open presidency, where citizens will be able to directly influence the White House.

I have called for a National University Forum to allow college students and faculty to voice their opinions directly to the White House. I want it. Do you?

Do you want to help solve our domestic problems? Do you want to rebuild our cities? Do you want to seek domestic and international justice? Do you want peace?

I want these things — for you, and for all Americans. I have dedicated my life to working for them.

You know what the choices are. Are you ready to start now?

I've been ready. I'm ready now. I hope you are.

olina University is directly responsible for having tax payers money go directly or indirectly to a belligerent nation? One might counter by saying that the Congress is constantly sending foreign aid to Communist bloc nations. I think that we should be reminded here that two wrongs do not necessarily make a right.

From a purely personal standpoint, I did not particularly enjoy being shot at in that despicable jungle. I think it could be well argued that because of this "Maginot" type thinking (as was exhibited by some of the members of the Legislature in this matter) this country has gotten itself into the precarious position it is in.

As a final word, I want to make it clear that I have nothing against cultural exchanges between nations as they might eventually promote better international understanding. However, I do think the Legislature could have given the matter a bit more consideration than it did.

Respectfully,
Leonard A. Mancini

Vietnamese Balladeer Sings In Tradition Of Bob Dylan

CSP—The name of Trinh Cong Son came to the notice of the American public only at the beginning of this year when the New York Times published an article by its correspondent in Saigon, Bernard Weinraub, under the headline: "A Young Vietnamese Sings of Sadness and War."

But long before that, Trinh Cong Son, the "Bob Dylan of Vietnam," was the idol of the Vietnamese public, especially the young. His public appearances were always sold out in advance, and his records treasured by students and workers alike. In him war-torn Vietnam confided and through him expressed her agony and shed her tears.

His increasing popularity frightened the ruling Saigon generals who fear peace more than war, the source of their wealth and power. They decided that Trinh Cong Son must be silenced.

Two months ago, on a visit to Vietnam, he was arrested (without warrant and without trial of course) by the military security police in Da Nang. Officially he was among the thousands of Vietnamese who "disappear" daily, and no one except a few friends know he is now in one of South Vietnam's numerous detention camps.

I learned of his arrest only a few days ago when a friend in Washington on "official business" and as a gift brought me a tape of Trinh Cong Son songs. "You may not see him again," my friend said. "He was arrested." According to my friend, his arrest, although not made public in the Saigon press, is no longer a secret; his admirers now organize clandestine parties to sing his songs or listen to records.

Trinh Cong Son was born with the war in 1940 (when the Japanese invaded Vietnam), and since then saw nothing but destruction in his homeland. His native town, the ancient city of Hue, the last bastion of Vietnamese culture with its museums and its libraries, was destroyed during the Tet offensive this year by U.S. rockets and bombs.

As Bob Dylan once said, "Open up your eyes and ears and you are influenced; there is nothing you can do about it." Trinh Cong Son opened his eyes and saw only death and burning. He opened his ears and heard only the thunder of bombs and the clatter of machine guns. And there was nothing Trinh Cong Son could do but write and sing songs and express his sadness at the devastation of the land he loves so much.

Trinh Cong Son supported himself, his mother, two brothers and five sisters with his talents. Who is going to take care of them now? They will surely join the three million faceless "refugees" in the barbed wire camps, the product of America's "nation-building" program for South Vietnam.

CHORALE LEADER—Roger Wagner, who conducts the vocal group that bears his name, gives expression to his directions as he readies the group for their November 6 performance in Wright Auditorium.

Woman Hater Week Separates Frat Men From Campus Gals

"To Hell With Women" could be the slogan of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity beginning November 3. "Woman Hater Week" is the week before Homecoming and is designed to promote spirit for the game. During the week no brother, pledge or social affiliate can speak to a woman or come within 10 feet of a woman (with the exception of the house mother, women professors or their own mother).

Girls from all over the campus will be raiding the house. The sorority with the best participation will be awarded a trophy from the Phi Taus. Last year the Tri Sigmas won. If a girl is caught during a raid she is put in a giant cage and is heckled by the brothers.

On Thursday the giant cage is placed in the center of the mall where all the brothers caught talking three times or more to a female is imprisoned to be the object of egg and tomato baths by girls on campus. Also on Thursday, the brother with the most convictions is hoisted in a tree by a parachute harness and all activity will be centered on him.

Organizational Meeting Ponders Purposes Of New Campus Forum

On October 23, 1968 a meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a faculty - SGA - Administration forum, to set aside its procedures and purposes and to discuss the topic to be presented at the first forum. The following is a record of the minutes of this organizational meeting:

Chairman of Internal Affairs, Bob Thonen, presented his ideas on the possibilities of what could be done by the forum. His basic idea was to have the forum meet once a month, present a topic decided on previously, have people present with facts concerning the topic, followed by a general discussion with student participation. He stressed the fact that his ideas were only something with which to begin and that the manner in which the forum would be handled would be decided by the forum members.

It was brought up that the forum could not set policy for the school, and it was suggested that the purpose of the forum could possibly be to channel feasible programs in a direction so they may become policy. The question of student participation was raised. How would the forum know what interested the students?

Mr. Thonen reported that he had talked to members on the staff of the EAST CAROLINIAN. The staff had agreed to give their full support to the forum.

The meeting then moved to the topic of procedures for the forum committee itself. Two of the faculty members, Dr. Ferrell and Dr. Martin, asked why their presence was needed.

Mr. Thonen said that the forum was a cross section of different aspects of the school system. It was hoped that eventually a topic would be brought up that would concern each member of the forum in turn. An example was presented: the faculty may have no interest in the women's housing rules where they are not directly involved; however, if a topic such as the "Pass-Fail System" were presented; faculty comments and information would be greatly needed.

Dean Mallory suggested that the forum needed some procedure to keep the meetings in order. However, the forum should be informal and loosely structured at the same time.

Bob Thonen stated that the topic of women's curfews was only something to start the forum. When the subjects were chosen after the first meeting, it would be a forum decision and it was hoped that this would serve as a means to greater interest by the forum members.

Mr. Thonen stated that Dr. Jenkins hoped to use the forum as an information organization which would keep both him and the trustees up with the research on these topics and in their planning of school policy.

The forum members agreed that they should support those on the student discussion panel by being present.

It was moved and passed that the forum discussion be held on Wednesday, November 6, 1968, and that it be held in one of the smaller auditoriums since the number of students participating was not known. (New Austin Auditorium has been reserved for 7:00 p.m., November 6 — E. P. Building not available)

It was moved and carried that the topic for discussion would be: Curfew — None for Women Over 21, and Juniors and Seniors with Parental Permission. The panel for this discussion would consist of:

- Dean White - Dean of Women
- Nancy Kiddle - Women's Residence Council
- Mr. Moore - Assistant Business Manager
- Dean Mallory - Dean of Men

OFFICER QUALIFICATION TESTS—Nov. 2 will be the first opportunity for ECU men not enrolled in AFROTC to take the Air Force Officer Qualification Test. Male students enrolling as juniors in the fall of 1969, or those pursuing graduate programs are eligible to take the test. Those who pass may be eligible for the AFROTC 2 year program. Enrollees receive 50 dollars per month plus travel expenses and pay during a 6 week summer camp. Successful completion of the 2 year course may result in a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the USAF. Training as a pilot or navigator is also available. Further information is available at the Aerospace Studies Department, Room 127, New Austin Building. In the above shot, President Leo W. Jenkins congratulates a newly commission officer of the ECU program.

Exhibit Displays Chalk Drawings

An exhibition of recent chalk drawings by Dr. Richard E. Beard of Illinois University is now on exhibit at East Carolina University. The drawings, done in a style reminiscent of the early German expressionists, "are caustic comments on the contemporary American social and political scene," according to Assistant Dean of Art, M. Tran Gordley.

The 40-year-old artist is an associate professor of art at Illinois University, DeKalb, Illinois.

The exhibition, open to the public on the third floor of Rawl Building, will continue until November 1.

Pressley Ranks Tops As EC Soccer 'Shield'

By GERALD ROBERSON
Very few people on the East Carolina campus realize it, but there is a sparkling new athletic hero on the home front this fall and this time it is not a football player, or at least not a football player in the usual sense of the word. This new paladin of the athletic field is a member of East Carolina's "association football" team, better known as the soccer team. His name is Charlie Pressley.

Charlie Pressley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Pressley of Greensboro, North Carolina. His father is a self-employed consulting engineer for textile firms. Charlie is married to the former Miss Anna Overton of Rocky Mount. He plans to graduate at the end of fall quarter with a non-teaching degree in Business Administration.

After graduating from Grimsley High School in Greensboro, Charlie came to East Carolina hoping to play football with the fighting Pirates. While practicing he sustained a back injury causing him to be unable to continue play. When the injury healed he decided to look in other directions for athletic competition.

East Carolina's first soccer team under the coaching of Peter Kriz, senior kicking specialist for the fighting Pirates, was about to take the field. Charlie heard about the new addition to EC's sports showcase and gave it the old college try. He began as second string goalie. Charlie tried for the goalie spot because of past experience in that position while playing with the Greensboro Youth Ice Hockey Association. Through hard work and good breaks he was able to move into the starting goalie position before the end of his first year and has been there every since.

In order to stay in shape, Charlie lifts weights and runs quite a bit during the off season. He also tries to play a lot of handball to keep his reflexes conditioned.

Since ECU's victory over a highly favored William and Mary team, Charlie has been tagged "The Shield" and deservedly so. "The Shield" managed thirty-five saves in that game, leading his teammates to their first shut-out. That one to nothing victory lead to another "skunk" last Tuesday over a fired-up Furman team.

According to coach Jim Grimsley, Charlie is in a "position to determine and direct" the entire defensive game. His maneuverability of his backs and his experience and knowledge of the game add up to make Charlie Pressley unquestionably "the most valuable player" on East Carolina University's association football team.

SOCCKER FORM—Charles Pressley, goalie of the East Carolina soccer team, known as the "Shield."
