Tucker Nullifies Equipment Order

Dean of Student Affairs James H. Tucker acted to overrule an action of the Publications Board Wednesday when he cancelled an order for printing equipment for the EAST CAROLINIAN. A special meeting of the Publications Board was called Monday to discuss the situation, but results came in too late to make this publication.

University President Leo W. Jenkins called for the special meeting in an attempt to reconcile the issue.

Tucker's action came in the wake of a decision by the Publications Board at a December 17 meeting, which placed a tentative order for the offset composing equipment offered by the IBM company. Tucker, who serves as permanent chairman of the Board, was absent from the controversial meeting.

The motion to place the equipment on tentative order was made by Rebel co-editor John Reynolds, with special emphasis given to explaining that the order, as provided in the IBM contract, would not be the final decision of the Board until a meeting after the Christmas holidays.

Under North Carolina law, no contract in which the state or a department of the state government is a party may be final until the equipment ordered is installed.

Reynolds' motion was carefully worded to indicate the tentative nature of the order, which would allow for a final decision by the Board and for the necessary affirmative decision by the Student Legislature.

The motion was prompted by the clause of the IBM contract which states that eleven weeks are needed for delivery of the equipment. Since the proponents of the switch to the offset printing method felt that the beginning of Spring Quarter would be a good time for the changeover, the tentative order was placed to facilitate delivery, still subject to the favorable final votes by the Board and the legislature.

Tucker Nullifies

Tucker took the first steps toward nullifying the action of the December 17 meeting last Monday afternoon at the regular meeting of the legislature, when discussion followed approval of a bill introduced by legislator Bob Robinson which would place limits on the contractual power of student organizations.

Robinson, in introducing his motion to the legislature, explained that it was not to be construed as amending to the December 17 action of the Publications Board, of which he is a member.

According to Speaker of the Legislature Bill Richardson and Parliamentarian Cherry Stokes, Tucker then addressed the legislature from his position as advisor to the group, citing the December 17 action of the Publications Board as one of the causes for the adoption of the bill.

Tucker Says No Quorum

"Dr. Tucker said he did not think there was a quorum present for the meeting, since Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dr. Robert L. Holt, Mrs. Mary Sorenson Ovid Pierce, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Rudolph Alexander, and he (Tucker) were not present," Richardson said.

Stokes added that Tucker indicated that the Publications Board meeting had been held only for the taking of Buccaneer pictures, not for conducting of business.

Tucker also opposed the legislature's approval of the Publications Board's appointment of Professor Ira Baker to a position on the Board, because it might make the Board meeting appear valid. Dr. Tucker said he had a high regard for Mr. Baker, but that the legislature should not approve the appointment until the facts of the meeting were fully understood," Richardson said.

Student Government Association President David Lloyd took exception with Dr. Tucker's statements concerning the presence of a quorum and the validity of the meeting in an interview Thursday, saying, "As acting chairman of the Publications Board for the December 17 meeting, I counted eleven members present. There was also call for quorum, so the meeting continued. Dr. Tucker had asked me to act as chairman in his absence, and had explained that some business was expected to be brought up, despite the fact that the meeting was originally called for Buccaneer pictures. At that time he requested that I handle any such business."

Lloyd added that in a phone conversation with Dr. Tucker Wednesday that the Dean of Student Affairs had explained his action, saying that the move by the Publications Board had set a dangerous precedent, through the placing of such an order.

Wants No Involvement

Dr. Tucker defended his action Thursday, stating that the Publications Board has no authority to place orders without the consent of the SGA.

"No official order has been placed, only a tentative one," he added. "I don't know what happened at the Board meeting, as I wasn't there. I don't want to become involved in any controversy over this," he explained.

Loan Fund Aids Non-Residents

New legislation which makes it possible for a student to borrow money for educational expenses from his school—regardless of his state of residence—has gone into operation under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

The new type of loan is authorized by recent amendments to Congress' Higher Education Act of 1965.

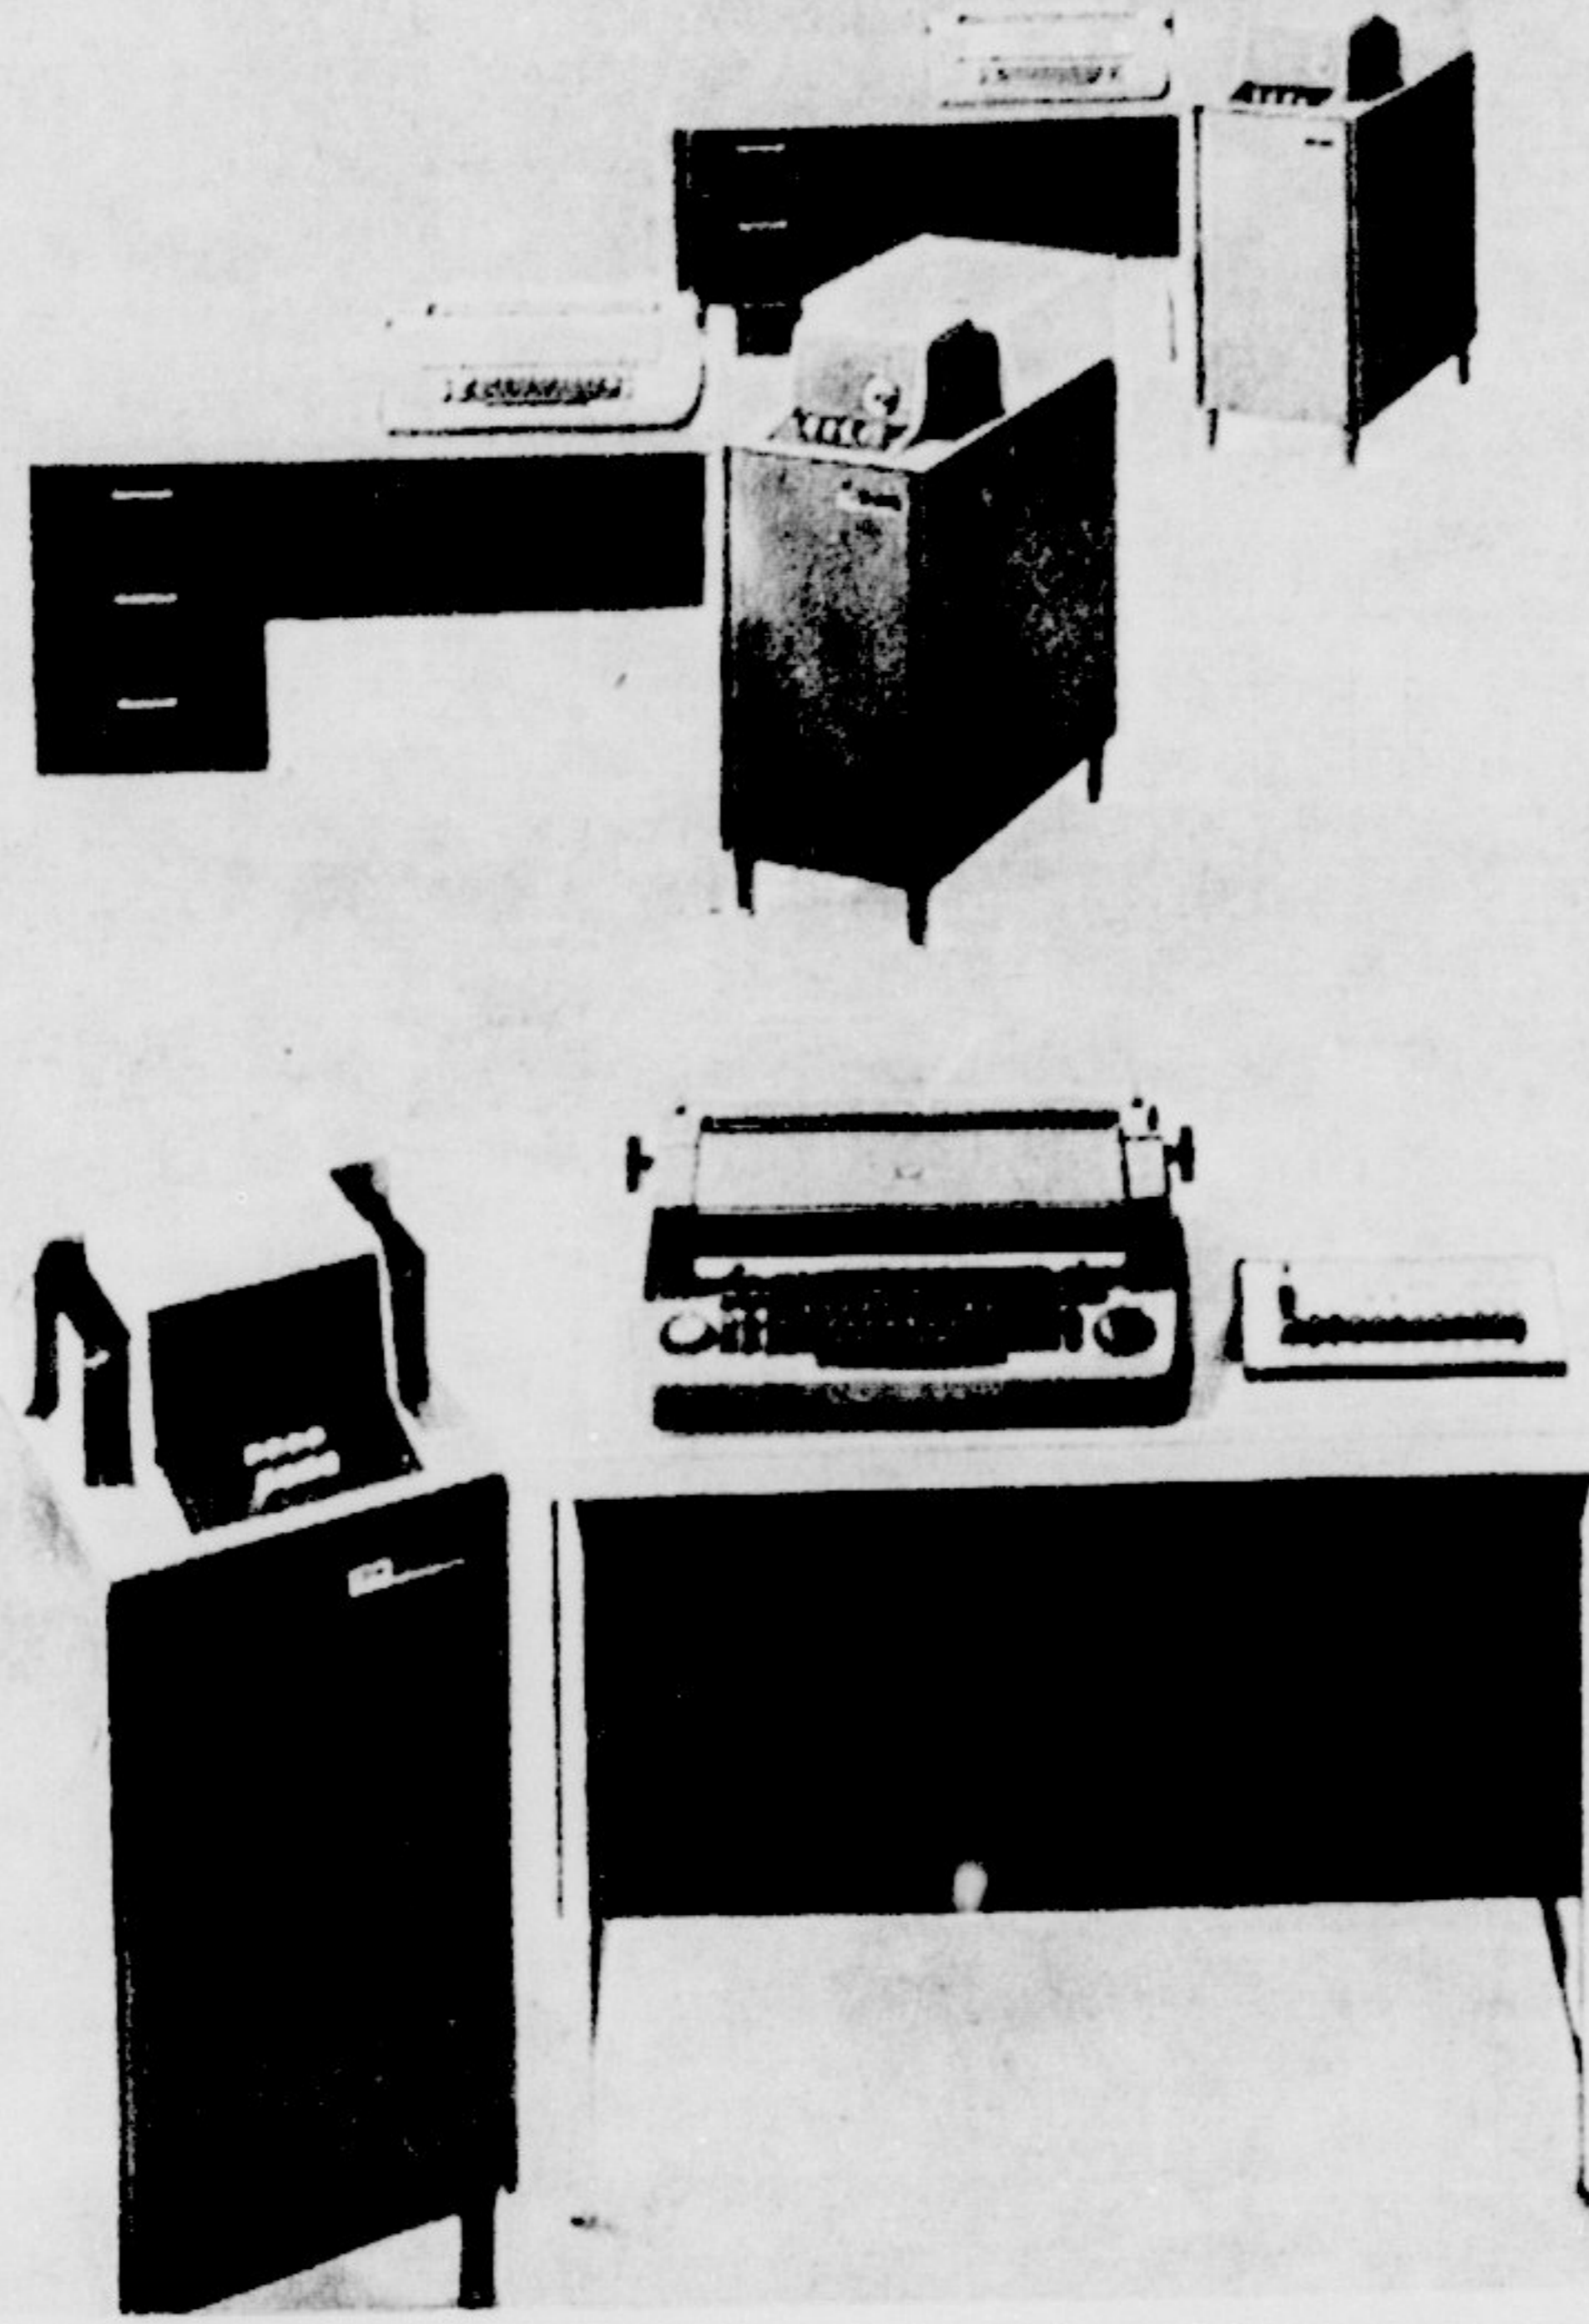

In most states, before the amendments were enacted, loans to non-resident students could not be insured. The amendments permit the Federal Government to insure loans made by a college to a student who, by reason of his residence, does not have access to a state or private loan insurance program.

The amendments also open the way for such organizations as commercial lending companies, insurance companies and pension funds to make federally insured loans to students. Many of these organizations had been willing to loan to students but had not been able to guarantee the loans.

Students may borrow up to $1,500 a year to a maximum of $7,500, including loans made for graduate study. Repayment begins after the student has left school, and may be extended over a period of from five to ten years, with deferment while serving in the military, Peace Corps or VISTA, or during periods of return to full-time study.

The federal government pays all interest charges (7 per cent a year) on behalf of a student whose adjusted family income is less than $15,000 a year, until repayment begins.

Since the inception of the student loan program, more than 1 billion has been loaned to students. The U.S. Office of Education expects that 750,000 loans totaling more than 641 million will be made during the current fiscal year, which closes in June.

PRINTING MODERNIZATION—The controversial IBM Tape Selectric Composing system is one of the avenues toward offset printing being considered by the EAST CAROLINIAN and the supervisory Publications Board.

Machine Age Catches East Carolinian

The EAST CAROLINIAN "needs offset printing . . . if it is to progress along with the many other areas at this institution". Those were the words of S.G.A. committee chairman Cherry Stokes in a recent interview concerning the offset printing for the University newspaper.

This latest of printing methods has been ordered by the ECU publications board. The EAST CAROLINIAN will purchase the machines on a monthly rental basis, pending the approval of the S.G.A. Legislature.

The machines will include two parts, a magnetic tape electric recorder input and an output magnetic tape selectric composer. The selectric composer will make copy ready for the lined layout sheets and composition by the layout staff into a camera ready copy for the final stages of printing by a private printing firm.

The printer's copy is developed from the picture of the original pasting of the layout copy rather than having to set the copy into plate as in the anachronous linotype form.

Needs Only A Typist

The intitle qualification for an operator of these I.B.M. machines is that the person be a capable typist and undergo three days of training.

The operator will type the news article into the input machine, which will in turn record into a magnetic tape. If the typist makes an error, all she must do to correct the mistake is to type over the error which erases the mistake and makes the correction in the recorder.

When the news has been recorded the tape is transferred to the magnetic tape selectric composer. This machine is programmed for column width and letter style. The copy is then made ready for the present layout staff which composes the newspaper into the same camera-ready copy.

SAVE $3,500

This new process will not only reduce the present quarterly printing cost from $9,000 to $5,500 saving $3,500 a quarter, but will allow a possible deadline to be only a few hours before the copy goes to press.

The present deadlines are 4:00 Sunday for Tuesday's paper and 4:00 Tuesday for Thursday's paper. These deadlines make Wednesday's news the following Tuesday's history. The offset process will not only improve the quality of the lettering and the pictures for an overall better appearance, BUT WILL ALSO be a first step toward a daily newspaper.

STEP TOWARD ECU PRESS

In the words of SGA president, David Lloyd, "Offset will put the EAST CAROLINIAN for the first time, printingwise, in the same class as the DAILY TARHEEL of Carolina and State's TECHNICIAN. This is a first step toward an East Carolina University press" which will benefit all ECU publications and also add to the publications.

The equipment has been ordered and can be ready for use by Spring Quarter.

"The students should let the SGA representatives and officers and administrators of the university know that they want this needed step toward our own printing press," commented Stokes during his interview.

Bids On Project To Open Soon

The efforts on the gratification project for Dr. Leo Jenkins are going "full steam," says S.G.A. President David Lloyd.

The project, which honors Dr. Jenkins, lacks only $1,000 for completion. Several hundred dollars of concrete have been donated by White Concrete Company in Greenville.

"Hopefully and very definitely, we will have a dedication on March 1st," says David Lloyd about the project.

With the support from the Panhellenic Council with their pledge rock drives, AFROTC and the IFC, many rocks have been donated. Money from alumni and outsiders interested in showing appreciation to Dr. Jenkins have been contributed.

"I would like to thank the students, faculty members, and administration who have helped," comments David Lloyd. "We have far exceeded our expectations, expected enthusiasm, and material and monetary contributions. This will be a living thank you to our president for his many years of service and success."

Plans are being finalized and approved by President Jenkins, Vice-President F. D. Duncan, and the gratification committee.

As soon as the plans are approved, the committee will open bidding for contractors. Smart Woodall and Associates of Raleigh and Greenville will be responsible for the bidding.

The gratification monument will be located at the top of College Hill Drive. The reason for this location is twofold. First, the monument will add beauty to College Hill; and secondly, the College Hill was constructed under Dr. Jenkins' administration.

The monument contains a trickling-water fountain and patio made from the students rocks and three highly polished aluminum flagpoles at staggered heights.

Served Community

The main theme of the project is Dr. Jenkins served his country, his state and his school, which will be symbolized by the three flagpoles near the fountain.

The fountain will be circular which symbolizes Dr. Jenkins as the center of the University, radiating his authority throughout the university.

GRATIFICATION PROGRESS—SGA President David Lloyd announced that a major step toward the completion of the Gratification Project was taken last week, when it became apparent that the $1,000 needed for the tribute would be achieved.

Pub Board Dispute

The following editorial, as a result of the controversial nature of the subject is consensus of opinions of the executive staff of the EAST CAROLINIAN, which includes the Editor-in-Chief, the Business Manager, the Managing Editor, and the Production Manager. Its purpose is not to inflame, but to inform the students of a situation existing on the campus, and as such the executive staff feels it must take this stand.

—LWS, DEB, NSL, LGO.

A vote by one of the Student Government Association's most significant organs was virtually overruled by an act of the Dean of Student Affairs Wednesday.

When the Dean of Student Affairs took the initiative to utilize his position of power to declare void an act of the Publications Board, he overstepped his bounds and used that power flagrantly.

Actions of this type indicate the attitude that to a large degree prevails among certain members of the Administration toward the position and actions of the Student Government Association, proving that their surface willingness to govern themselves is a mere facade, hiding a smug feeling of administrative omnipotence.

For example, the official cited above, who serves as permanent chairman of the Publications Board, first attacked the action of the meeting of the Board, called the meeting "illegal" and claimed that no quorum for business was present.

He was mistaken on both of the previously mentioned arguments, possibly due to the fact that he was not present at the meeting. First, let us consider the "illegal" statement. The meeting held by the Board on December 17 was a legal meeting for the introduction of business, for that administrative official, acting as Board chairman, had himself given consent to consideration of business. Despite his subsequent claim that the meeting was held for the sole purpose of having pictures taken, the facts indicate the fallacy of that statement.

Even if no prior consent for the handling of business had been given, the decision by the chairman to select an acting chairman to serve in his absence provides implied consent for the conducting of business, provided a quorum was present.

This presents the second phase of his attack on the acceptability of the action of the Board. According to accepted rules of order, a dispute over the existence of a quorum may occur only before the initiation of business in a meeting. Thus, any person wishing to dispute the presence of a quorum must present his argument at the opening of the session, not three weeks later, as done by this administrator. However, assuming that such a rule of order did not exist, the fact that more than 50% of the total membership of the Board voted in favor of the resolutions passed does indeed speak loudly for their acceptance.

That such a situation could occur speaks poorly for that administrator. It has been seldom that any member of the Administration has so obviously attempted to subject his will over the duly-elected members of the Student Government. The fact that the Publications Board lists faculty members as well as students among its membership merely adds to the ignobility of the action.

But the question for consideration is a far greater one—one that vastly exceeds the point of whether the order placed by the Publications Board was a valid exercise of the power of the members to, as the KEY puts it, "let contracts". Yes, the matter that cries out for attention provokes more far-reaching ramifications than such a narrow thing as a simple order, for the fact of the order is merely a catalyst to bring into view the greater issue.

The existence of order on this campus has largely been due to the important position occupied by the Student Government Association, a position that has been pointed to with pride by students, faculty members, and administrators alike.

Order can continue to exist only if no breakdown of that SGA position occurs, and actions such as this one by the Dean of Student Affairs constitute a real threat to the elected voice of the students.

The Dean of Student Affairs has made the statement that the action of the Publications Board has set a "dangerous precedent." To the contrary, it is he who has set a dangerous precedent, a precedent for a return to total rule by the Administration.

The question remains to be answered—is this to be a university that has student government, or is it to be a university ruled by an autocracy of Administration figures? There is no middle ground.

No student has asked for complete control of the university. All that has ever been requested is that the Constitution of the Student Government Association be respected, by administrators as well as students. . . "And if that be treason, then make the most of it."

ECU Forum

Athletes' Curriculum

To The Editor:

"May I suggest strongly that all athletes participating in varsity football and basketball be permitted to establish programs during the term or quarter of their participation, wherein they would not be required to attend any classes." (Dr. Leo Jenkins, as quoted by the EAST CAROLINIAN Dec. 19, 1968.)

The article from which the above quote was taken raises several important points for discussion. Dr. Jenkins stated that athletes receive an unequal educational opportunity. If this be true, which this writer personally doubts, we would respectfully remind all concerned that the primary purpose of this university is the academic education of all its students. If any extracurricular activities interfere with the academic instruction of students, and "all" athletics must of necessity be classified as extracurricular, then it would seem expedient to curtail the extracurricular activities. It would seem, therefore, that this proposal is inconsistent with accepted educational reasoning and thus totally unsound.

Dr. Jenkins stated that the athletes "would be permitted to enroll in a self-study program in which they would do assigned reading and theme writing at their own convenience." Unless students are mentally above average and very highly motivated they do not do as well in self-study programs as in supervised classroom instruction. That this is true is substantiated by the fact that self-study programs at E.C.U. are limited to honors seminars and the graduate school. It seems doubtful to this writer that all athletes are qualified for honors programs or graduate work. It would seem, therefore, that this program is impractical in light of the present attitude of the university toward self-study programs.

Finally, Dr. Jenkins stated that this proposal would cover only athletes participating in varsity football and basketball, as they are the "top sports." We would like to know what is meant by "top sports." These two are certainly not top sports in terms of practice and effort involved. Athletes participating in crew, track, swimming, baseball, etc., as well as freshmen football and basketball practice equally hard and long and are subjected to the same restrictions as those participating in varsity football and basketball. Why should not these other athletes be included in the proposal; unless it "is" aimed solely and specifically at aiding the two sports which bring the most monetary return and statewide attention to the university. The parenthetical inclusion of music majors and SGA officers seems to be a poor cover-up for this and therefore seems to add credibility to this view. Dr. Jenkins has stated on several other occasions that all sports at ECU receive equal support and emphasis from the administration. If this proposal becomes policy it will be directly inconsistent with earlier stated policy.

This writer does not often find cause to quarrel with faculty or administration policy, and has the utmost respect for Dr. Jenkins and his accomplishments. However, we strongly feel that this proposal to allow athletes participating in varsity football and basketball to skip all classes during the quarter of their participation would be detrimental and grossly unfair to both athletes and the entire student body should it be implemented.

Most Sincerely,

David S. Warren

Monument

To The Editor:

In recent weeks I have noticed articles concerning the building of a monument to Doctor Jenkins. Most notable is the fact that everyone agrees on President Jenkins's contributions to our university. However I must agree with the article which appeared some weeks ago in the EAST CAROLINIAN questioning the usefulness of such a monument. I agree with the article in that a parking lot or classroom dedicated in the memory of President Jenkins would be more useful.

Monuments are for the birds.

Jenkins Advocates Athletes' Study Plan

By NELDA S. LOWE

In response to a letter in today's forum, I feel a clarification is necessary as to the intent of President Jenkins' December speech. Having read the tota content of the speech, it is my opinion that Dr. Jenkins is, in general, advocating a more practical combination of the academic and extracurricular with athletics as his prime example. "The expansion of athletic programs on many campuses, accompanied by rapidly rising scholastic standards, places many athletes in the middle of a squeeze," says Jenkins. This squeeze is also felt by other campus leaders such as SGA officials, editors of campus publications and students whose major study requires periods of concentration such as music majors preparing for required recitals. In taking his stand, Dr. Jenkins admits "it's foolhardy to wait for an explosion without seeking its remedies."

Jenkins feels it is unrealistic to expect the athlete to compete with the student in his class on an equal basis, when he of necessity must be away from class. He states, "If an activity such as athletics is worthy of being on the campus, it is worthy of being organized so that every qualified student can participate."

However, Mr. Warren seems doubtful of the importance of athletics on campus. He states, "If any extracurricular activities interfere with the academic instruction of students, and all athletics must of necessity be classified as extracurricular, then it would seem expedient to curtail the extracurricular activities." Dr. Jenkins feels that "aggressive athletic programs are very worthwhile and very much needed and should be encouraged by all. We cannot rightfully continue to bemoan the behavior of youth and the rise of juvenile delinquency and drug addiction on our campuses if we make no efforts to provide wholesome activities through expanding and vigorous athletic programs."

Mr. Warren also feels that students must be mentally above average and highly motivated to do well in such a self study program. Although the athlete may not always be mentally above average, it would seem to this writer that he must be highly motivated in order to extend himself into the field of athletics. In this time of high educational standards, it would seem that only those who are motivated above the average would attempt to broaden their concept of higher education to include the extracurriculars.

Educators, writers, and psychologists have time and time again concluded that the extracurricular activities are often major factors in the development of the personality, maturity, outlook and many other aspects of the adult which influence his later success in life. These extracurricular experiences help the individual channel the knowledge he has gained in the classroom and view it in the proper perspective.

Mr. Warren, I suggest that you talk to a few job recruiters and see how they feel about the importance of extracurricular activities. You will find that more often than not, the student with a fairly good scholastic record who lists extracurricular activities will win the good job over the student who has a little better scholastic record obtained by four years of studying and nothing else.

In reference to Mr. Warren's third paragraph, Dr. Jenkins is not asking that the athlete enroll in the honors or graduate programs just because they are the only self-study programs in existence at the present time. He is, however, advocating the implementing of programs geared to the student's needs which would equip him with the same education as the student who attends lecture classes.

In answer to Mr. Warren's question concerning the top sports, let me again quote Dr. Jenkins. "This program is recommended only for the two major sports—football and basketball—because it is in these two activities that the greatest demands are made upon the athletes."

It is regrettable that this newspaper is unable to publish Dr. Jenkins' speech in its entirety, for surely if students could read its entire content they would better understand Dr. Jenkins' proposal and its merits. Those of us who condemn a proposal before we have studied it in as much depth as he who proposes it and before the idea is given a chance to be tried, are the ones who slow down the improvements needed in today's system of education.

Campus Viewpoint

By James Hord

What is the organization and function of the Publications Board?

According to THE KEY, the board "serves as an advisory and supervisory board responsible for counseling in fiscal matters and overseeing the four SGA publications. The publications governed are: THE EAST CAROLINIAN, BUCCANNEER, THE REBEL, and THE KEY."

The board is the supreme policy-making body which makes decisions regarding the operations of these publications. It is through this group that "contracts are let, editors are selected, salaries are set, and plans for the publication are approved."

"The board is composed of administrative officials, faculty advisors of the publications, student editors and business managers of the publications, and student members-at-large elected by the SGA Legislature," according to page 35 of THE KEY.

At the Last Publications Board meeting on Dec. 17, approval was given for the EAST CAROLINIAN to order offset printing equipment in order to facilitate production of the newspaper. By use of this equipment, more up-to-date news coverage could be given to the students; the quality of the paper would be improved; and expansion of the paper would be possible—i.e., someday the EAST CAROLINIAN may become a daily newspaper. Also and most important, the cost of production would be lowered.

But this decision by the Publication Board to order this equipment was to be overruled by the Dean of Student Affairs. Last Wednesday, for reasons known best to himself, he acted to cancel an order placed with the IBM Company for this equipment. Thus, the action taken by his administrator sought to set the EAST CAROLINIAN back to the standards of a high school newspaper.

If East Carolina is to become a major university, its newspaper must not be limited in scope by the administration, nor be subject to their dictates and notions.

Computing Center Devises New Testing Program

By SANDY HOLLAND

F. Milam Johnson, the campus computing center director, has recently devised a series of test grading programs. One part of the program is designed to grade SCAT and SAT tests. The second part of the test scoring program should be of interest to various teachers on the East Carolina campus. The computers can eliminate the time consuming process of grading multiple choice and true-false tests.

NOW AVAILABLE

This grading program is available to all teachers on campus free of charge. Mr. Johnson is not recommending this objective type of testing as the best method, but the computers, are available for the teachers that do give multiple choice and true-false quizzes.

Teachers taking advantage of this grading method should give the computing center half a day's notice before bringing the tests to be graded.

The whole process takes no more than fifteen minutes. The tests must be taken on IBM 1230 document No. 510 standard answer each student's I.D. number and name, their answers, and the number of answers they answered correctly. The incorrect answers are identified by an asterisk below them.

The information also includes a list of people that didn't take the test, the number of papers graded, the average number of correct questions, and the standard deviation in the class. All of this is sheets that are available at the central supply. The answer sheets allow for three hundred questions.

DETAILED EVALUATION

The teacher brings only three things: answer sheets, yellow class cards, and one answer sheet with the correct answers. The computer takes this much information and gives back a detailed evaluation of the quiz. The results include the number of questions the correct answers as given by the teacher, accomplished by a tabulation of questionnaire responses that enables the teacher to evaluate his own test. The information includes the number of questions that were omitted, the questions that each person missed, and the per cent of each question missed.

The computing center contains the only IBM 1231 optical mark page reader hooked up to an IBM 360 with 64K core on the east coast. A company from Boston recently flew down to use the computers to up-date their inventory.

AUTOMATION IS THE WORD—A new automatic test grading computer has been added to the ECU computer family, providing free test grading services to members of the faculty. This device, according to sources at the computer center, is a new innovation in this area.

The after-the-ballgame traffic situation could be compared to a stop light in a stampede. It takes twenty minutes to get parked and into the gym, and an hour and twenty minutes to get un-parked and away from the gym. There has been a gross lack of uniformed traffic directors at recent sports events. Administrative consideration of this problem would be in order.

Movies Of The Week

By ROY C. DICKS

Movies in the area this week are all overshadowed by the presence of what is considered by many to be the greatest American film ever made, "Gone with the Wind." What more can be said about a thirty-year old film which has, in each of its more than half a dozen re-releases through the years, played to full houses at every performance (as it already has at the Plaza Cinema.) Winner of 10 Academy awards, the film is beautifully photographed in color and contains scenes that still leave audiences breathless. The tragic story of the Old South and its downfall is superbly acted by a veritable cast of thousands, including Vivian Leigh, Clark Gable, Olivia de Havilland, and Leslie Howard. If you've never seen it, don't miss this opportunity; if you have, you'll find something new each time you see it again. This great film will be playing at the Plaza Cinema through January 21th.

Another very popular film, "The Dirty Dozen," will make its second Greenville appearance within two months at the Friday Free Flick (Wright, 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.) Winner of an Academy award and several nominations, the film stars Lee Marvin and is an above-average war drama.

"Coogan's Bluff," starring Clint Eastwood, ends tonight at the Pitt Theatre. The story concerns an Arizona deputy sheriff who has come to New York to apprehend a criminal. Through various devious methods, he finally gets his man. Starting tomorrow, the 15th, will be "Hell Fighters," starring John Wayne, Katherine Ross (of "The Graduate"), and Jim Hutton. Wayne, a co-owner of oil-fire fighting outfit, is seriously injured on the job. Hutton, his younger partner, calls Wayne's wife and daughter, whom he has not seen for many years since separation. Ross, as his daughter, falls in love with Hutton, and together they try for a reconciliation of Wayne and his wife. The film contains several exciting scenes depicting the fighting of the oil fires.

The State Theater continues in its praiseworthy function as foreign and art film theatre by presenting the Swedish film, "Hagbard and Signe," through tomorrow, the 15th. This beautiful color film is based on a Scandinavian legend and has a medieval setting. The tender story of two star-crossed young lovers in the middle ages is abetted by judicial use of nudity and violence. Another of the Japanese-made monster flicks, "King Kong Escapes," begins Thursday, the 16th. In this one King Kong is found on a tropical island, brought to New York City, and captured by an evil scientist, only to escape later and wreck havoc. On the same program will be a second feature, "The Perennauts," an outer space horror fantasy. Beginning Sunday, the 19th, will be another of the supposedly realistic looks at the youth of today, entitled "The Hooked Generation."

For those who have access to a T.V., the highly acclaimed film, "The Miracle Worker," will be shown tonight at 9 p.m. on the NBC Tuesday Night at the Movies.

Bucs Notch Two Victories In Cage Action This Week

The cage Pirates won their two contests this week as they downed East Tennessee by 89-80 and William and Mary by 87-61 to put their winning streak at three games. The victories gave the Pirates an overall mark of 7-6. In Southern Conference play, the Pirates are 4-1 as they head into action against Richmond tonight.

The first half saw a nip and tuck battle that saw the Pirates take the lead for good at 36-34 on a basket by Keir. At the half, ECU held a 43-39 lead.

Early in the second half, the Pirates built their lead to six at 48-42. ETSU fought back to 48-46, but Thompson hit twice to get the lead out to six again.

ETSU pulled back to within one at 54-53, but the Bucs pulled ahead only to see the Buccaneers bounce back to within one at 58-57 and 66-65 with 9:23 left.
