ECU Withdraws From Model United Nations

By LYNN HARRIS

East Carolina has withdrawn its delegation from the Midsouth Model United Nations which was to be held March 25th at Western Carolina. Also, Bill Hicks who had been elected to serve as its president has turned in his permanent resignation.

Several weeks earlier East Carolina had withdrawn its delegation after a series of bad incidents had occurred between Western Carolina and ECU, including one in which Bill Hicks was called a liar.

Then, East Carolina decided to attend the Model UN only after Western Carolina had agreed to meet three conditions. One of these was a letter of apology which we said would close the issue upon its arrival.

No Letter

As of this past week no letter of apology had been received by John Schofield, Secretary of External Affairs... the Student Government Association. A telephone call costing twenty dollars was made to Western Carolina demanding an explanation.

Schofield said that "Western Carolina had not followed the terms of the agreements between the two schools, that our honor had been challenged, and that we had no other choice than to withdraw our delegation." Shortly afterwards, Bill Hicks turned in his resignation.

Position Paper

As it stands right now, East Carolina plans to write a position paper telling why it will not be attending the convention. This paper will be circulated throughout those schools that will be sending delegations to the Model United Nations.

A one sentence letter was received a few days ago from Max Hopper at Western Carolina. It was not an apology, but only an acknowledgment of our withdrawal.

John Schofield states, "We will stand our ground now and there is no chance that East Carolina will attend the Midsouth Model UN."

Bulgaria And U.S.

The East Carolina delegation will represent Bulgaria in the Mid-west Model United Nations next week in St. Louis and will represent the United States in the National Model United Nations in New York City during April.

ECU was given this distinction because of last years performance as the best delegation in the National Model UN and because ECU holds it's own Model UN.

Jenkins Appointed

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, President of East Carolina University, has been appointed a member of the Committee on Allied Health Professions of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU).

As a committeeman he will work with several other college and university presidents of the nation to develop programs in the allied health areas and to project them as ways of meeting educational needs of the nation.

Timely

Dr. Jenkins said the committee assignment is particularly timely now because of ECU's current development and planning for paramedical and health-related educational programs. The university established a School of Allied Health Professions last year.

Dr. Jenkins was appointed by Dr. George F. Budd, President of Kansas State College and president of AASCU. The Washington-based association works to solve problems and cultivate opportunities for its 238 institutional members.

Legislature Passes Offset Bill In Meeting Monday

By BEV JONES

Offset machinery for the EAST CAROLINIAN will be installed next month.

After a year of planning and three weeks of debate, the SGA Legislature passed the offset bill in its meeting Monday afternoon.

The first issue of spring quarter will be in offset printing under the editorship of newly-elected Chip Callaway.

Purchase - Lease

Submitted by Legislator Bob Robinson, the motion provided for the purchase - lease of an IBM Selectric Composing machine, Vartypewriter, and waxing machine for paste-ups.

A full time machine operator and receptionist - secretary will begin work in March also.

The Publications Board will supervise use of the equipment, schedule machine time for other publications who use the equipment, and be responsible to the SGA Legislature for the machinery.

Printing

National Graphics of Greenville will print the EAST CAROLINIAN until October, when bids will be accepted from the DAILY REFLECTOR and National Graphics.

The offset motion passed unanimously but not without question. Legislator Jim Watts moved to refer the bill back to committee for further study which was defeated.

"We should not preclude the possibility of investigating every company for prices on the machinery," said Watts. "From what I see IBM is railroading in."

Watts also questioned the readiness of the paper for offset and the expense of the investment.

"Watts failed to realize that all facets of the new equipment had been studied by both the Publications Board and two Legislative committees," commented present editor Wes Sumner.

In other action, the Legislature passed the budget for the COURSE GUIDE.

Lynn Ayers from Slay Dormitory, and Caroline Raby from Ragsdale Dormitory were sworn in as new legislators.

School Announces Establishment Of Mental Health Institute

The East Carolina University School of Allied Health Professions announced Saturday the establishment of the Eastern Mental Health Training Institute to serve a 33-county area.

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, dean of the health school, said ECU is cooperating with the N. C. Department of Mental Health and the community health programs of Pitt and Halifax counties to begin the training program.

Purposes of the institute are to give in-service training and continuing education to staff members of the 12 community mental health programs serving a combined total of 33 eastern North Carolina counties and to other agencies and persons serving the mentally and emotionally disturbed.

Programs

Dr. Monroe said the institute's first programs will probably deal with alcoholism, suicide prevention and the use of group methods. He said he hopes the first course can be offered this spring.

Dr. Monroe pointed out that his school's role in the institute was made possible by cooperation of the state department and the two county programs.

Otherwise, he said, budgetary limitations would have sharply restricted the ECU involvement although the need for such a program is "very great" in the East. His school is only one year old and is operating on a small beginning budget.

Beginning

"Activities such as this," he added, "are only a small beginning of our projected effort to develop a truly comprehensive program of continuing education and in-service training for health professionals working in the East."

The institute was organized by mental health leaders who have repeatedly cited a great demand for more training among mental health workers in eastern counties and have emphasized that such training will bring economical expansion of mental health services to the people.

A board of directors will govern the institute. Board members represent community mental health programs, eastern state institutions, the Department of Mental Health, the psychiatry departments of Duke University and the University of North Carolina, and the ECU psychology department and School of Allied Health Professions.

ECU Receives Federal Funds

East Carolina University has received the state's only federal funding under the Education Professions Development Act (EPDA) for the preparation of college science teachers.

The funds will be used by the ECU Department of Biology to train 10 teachers beginning next fall.

All 10 are expected to earn a master's degree in biology.

Ready

The university said today (Wednesday) it is ready to take applications for the 10 graduate fellowships. Five fellows will complete their program in one year and receive a master's degree. The other five will continue for a second year, going beyond master's requirements in biology to prepare to teach one other science.

One-year fellows will receive stipends of $2,400 and second-year fellows will get $2,600. In addition, all fellows will have free tuition and books and will receive an allowance of $500 a year for each dependent. The program also includes funds for each student to have a five-week teaching internship at a small college.

Result

Dr. Joseph G. Boyette, director of graduate studies in the ECU Department of Biology, prepared the proposal which resulted in federal funding for the program.

Dr. Boyette will direct the program and is now accepting applications for the fellowships.

According to Dr. James L. White, coordinator of special projects at ECU, other schools in North Carolina got EPDA funding for institutes but only ECU in this state was awarded the fellowship program.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM WAKES GIRL FROM SLEEP—Firemen inspect damages caused by a Wednesday morning fire at the Alpha Delta Pi house. Two girls were asleep when the fire began. One was in a downstairs bedroom and another in her attic bedroom. The sister in the downstairs room was awakened by friends while the one in the attic was warned of the danger by the fire alarm. She was able to avoid injury by means of the fire escape. . . . the stairs were blocked by flames. If there had been no alarm she might have been overtaken by the smoke." The damage was estimated roughly at $10,000 plus. This includes damage to four rooms caused by the flames and smoke damaged to the upstairs and other rooms. It was caused by decoration on the light fixtures which had been prepared for this weeks Fun-Hellenic Rush. Firemen arrived on the scene and had it under control in a matter of minutes. The sorority will continue with rush as planned.

Advisor-Advisee Relationship

The advisor-advisee system is one of the major areas presently under the scrutiny of the student-faculty red tape committee.

It is indeed one of the most likely suspects for such scrutiny, for very few students are able to determine exactly what the relationship between the advisor and the advisee should be.

There are a host of problems that occur from year to year, largely because of this lack of understanding. In many cases, the student relies on the advisor to clarify certain points on his curriculum, not knowing that the advisor is leaving that task up to the student.

The problems arising from such a situation are manifold. Almost all can be traced to a misunderstanding of the exact function of the advisor, with a poor advisor-advisee relationship as the result.

Discussion by such a body as the red tape committee seems to be the most likely method for the solution of the problem. This group serves as a fact-finding body giving special emphasis to this area.

However, the red-tape committee, despite the hard work and cooperative attitude of its members, can not eliminate problems without help. Before any investigation or judgment can be made, students who have such problems must present them to the consideration of the board.

One of the committee members recently indicated that the group realizes some of the problems faced by students, but finds itself helpless until students are willing "to submit their specific complaints to the attention of the committee."

In the light of the number of complaints heard from students every day, there should be plenty of information available for use by the investigating body. It is, however, the duty of the student to see that his specific case is brought to the attention of the committee. Only then can the wheels of reform begin to turn.

Delegates Carry Bill To SSL

An article in today's edition explains some of the duties of the Secretary of External Affairs, and details some of the work done by that body.

One of the most significant functions handled by the External Affairs office is the East Carolina delegation to the State Student Legislature.

East Carolina has for a long time been a force to reckon with in SSL, as evidenced by the score of successful legislation pushed through by the local group. ECU students have also been predominant in the tightly contested races for positions of power in the event.

SSL has through the years been characterized by the significant legislation passed by that body. Four out of every ten bills passed in SSL later become laws in the state of North Carolina.

This year the East Carolina delegation will be carrying a well-prepared bill detailing regulations for transplants of vital organs before the body. In addition, several members of the delegation will be seeking election to positions of prestige in the organization.

Each successful operation of the local delegation results in increased prestige for this university, thus providing an honorable reflection of the abilities of every student on this campus.

Best wishes to the office of the Secretary of External Affairs and to the entire East Carolina delegation to the State Student Legislature.

ECU Forum

Explain!

Mr. Gary Gasperini:

The students at ECU deserve an explanation as to the validity of some statements which you made concerning the transit system study conducted on Wednesday, January 29.

I quote from the February 4 edition of the EAST CAROLINIAN:

"86 percent of the student body said they wished to have a transit system . . ."

Another quote: "The sample vote of 408 votes showed an intense desire of the students to have a transit system . . ."

As anyone can plainly see, your second statement contradicts the first because if 86 percent of the student body wished to have such a system, then there should have been approximately 9,000 votes cast in favor of the system. Instead, only a total of 408 votes were cast.

I think that you need to be truthful with the student body which you are supposed to represent and clarify your stand. If the 86 percent to which you alluded is 86 percent of the 408 votes cast and not 86 percent of the entire student body, then you should be responsible enough to admit that you have published erroneous facts.

In any case, it can be easily seen that 86 percent of the student body is not in favor of such a system because only 408 votes were cast! And please do not attempt to confuse the issue by comparing your poll with some of the well-known national polls because these polls take a representative sample of the nation. Your poll consisted of just anybody who came by and voted; surely you do not plan to pass this off as a representative sample.

Don't get me wrong, a transit system might fit in at ECU, but you should poll the entire student body and publish facts based on a poll of the entire student body and not facts based on a mere 408 votes.

Respectfully yours,

Randy Martin

Full Agreement

To The Editor:

I am in full agreement with the editorial written by James Hord in the Jan. 30 issue of the EAST CAROLINIAN concerning the uselessness of the foreign language requirement.

It seems a shame to waste approximately 25 quarter hours in a field that has little use, or value. Why don't they require more hours to be spent in learning the English language, rather than some foreign rot?

Most students just sit in language class hoping for a "D" or some other passable grade in order to satisfy the requirements for graduation. After they get out of college, most of the material is quickly forgotten anyway.

Also, foreign language has little relevance to my major and I would not be in the class if it were not required.

Maybe some of the "professional educators" should come out of their ivory towers and weigh the true value of learning a foreign language. Then maybe some change-es could be made.

Sincerely,

Larry Hughes

'C' Average

To The Editor:

I have been reading much about the lack of a "C" average requirement for Men's Residence Council (MRC) officials. Many people have expressed discontent with this setup, and have accused the MRC of having "sub-standard qualifications."

To this I say: so what! What does it matter if a member of the MRC has a 2.1 quality-point average, or an 1.9. Both are students at ECU and have at least taken the initiative to participate in extra-curricular activities.

Does the mere fact that a person has a 2.0 average instantly qualify him for any position on campus that he may so desire? Or if he has an 1.9 average he is immediately disqualified?

The 2.0 average is a rather arbitrary requirement which has little significance, in my opinion, especially when you only need a 1.25 average to stay in school after your freshman year, a 1.5 after your sophomore year, etc.

In general, I think the MRC has been doing a fairly good job, but as with anything on this campus there is room for improvement.

Thank you,

Ted Jones

Biology Receives Two Grants

A grant of about $40,000 has been awarded to East Carolina University to conduct a six-week institute in school librarianship here next summer.

The grant, approved by the U.S. Office of Education, will be funded under the Higher Education Act of 1965. It provides stipends and dependency allowances for 35 participating librarians.

Attending

Librarians attending the institute, scheduled from June 1 to July 18, will be selected from North and South Carolina and Virginia. Participants must have at least 12 semester hours of library science credit and hold a class "A" teacher's certificate or the equivalent.

Emily S. Boyce of the ECU library science faculty, will direct the program. She will be assisted by Dr. Gene D. Lanier, chairman of the library science department.

Upgraded

According to Miss Boyce, the institute is designed to upgrade currently employed school librarians in the areas of curriculum trends, administration techniques, resource materials and new media.

"One important part of the institute's program," she said, "will be to extend the participants' knowledge of materials especially suitable for the culturally and economically deprived child."

Special features will include small group and independent research and program-solving. Unique features, Miss Boyce said, will include team teaching, role playing, field trips, demonstrations and individual conferences.

Miss Boyce will head a three-member faculty including Dr. Lanier and Mrs. Frankie Cubbedge as full time staff members.

Campus Viewpoint

By James Hord

Much consideration has been given to the desirability of a pass-fail system at many colleges and universities around the nation.

The University of Kentucky has instituted a limited pass-fail system beginning this spring quarter; the State University of New York currently has the proposal before the Faculty Senate; and many other colleges are looking upon it in a favorable light.

The advantages of a pass-fail system on a limited basis seem to be quite numerous.

— Students would concentrate more on learning the subject matter of a given course, rather than spending time worrying about the grade.

— Students would be able to take electives outside of their major without the possibility of losing quality points. (For example, suppose a student majoring in mathematics wants to take a course in Contemporary Social Problems. Under the present system he would be competing with Sociology majors on an equal basis, and would most likely get a "C" or "D" in the course. But under the pass-fail system, he would not have to be concerned with losing quality points and would thereby be encouraged to experiment in courses of this type.)

— No correlation has been found between grades earned in college and success in later life.

25 Percent of Total

Of course, not all courses should be given on a pass-fail basis. Only certain courses outside a person's major and minor should be given on a pass-fail basis — and only if the student so desires.

The proposed system at New York

University limits the number of pass-fail courses to 25 percent of the total credit hours required for a baccalaureate degree.

Under this system, a student would have three options to choose from when signing up for a course: a) letter grade ("A" through "F") for the course, b) a written description of his performance by the professor, or c) satisfactory - unsatisfactory grading, using the grade of "S" to earn credit for the course, and the grade of "U" for no credit.

Hours Toward Graduation

The overall quality point average would be taken from courses in which the student elected to receive grades, and from courses taken in his major and minor areas of study. The hours taken under the pass-fail system would count toward graduation, but would not be computed into the final grade-point average.

At the University of Tennessee, only undergraduate students above the freshman level who are not on academic probation are eligible to take courses on a pass-fail basis.

Feasibility at ECU

Perhaps at ECU, several general college courses, such as English 1, and Math 65 could be given on a pass-fail basis if the student so desires. Also this could apply to electives, in order to encourage students to explore different areas of study. This would tend to cut down on enrollments in so-called "crip" courses, or courses taken solely for quality points.

Certainly the feasibility of a limited pass-fail system should be considered at ECU, with the advantages and disadvantages carefully weighed.

Commandant Of Cadets Leaves This Summer For Southeast Asia

By DANNY WILLIAMS
Major Kevin T. Ryan Jr. is the Commandant of Cadets and an Assistant Professor of Aerospace Studies here on campus. Major Ryan was born in Baltimore, Maryland, and has been serving in the United States Air Force for fifteen years. He graduated from the University of Maryland and became an officer through the school's AF-ROTC program. The Major is currently taking courses in Political Science at night.

In April, 1954, Major Ryan began his active duty and attended Navigator's School for 55 weeks. He was then assigned to an air refueling squadron located in Alexandria, Louisiana, and was on the crew of both the KB-29 and KB-50 aircraft. The Major's eyes seemed to improve, and he was able to receive pilot training. After the completion of this training in 1958, he was assigned to Dover Air Force Base in Dover, Delaware, where he piloted large transport aircraft to Europe, Latin America, and the Congo. In 1961, the Ryan family moved to Japan, where during the next four years, Major Ryan was stationed at the Tachikawa Air Base just outside Tokyo. His duties included being Aircraft Commander and instructor, and the pilot and operations officer in the C124, flying over Southeast Asia and the Far East. While in Japan, Major Ryan and his wife had the privilege of teaching English for three years at Nihon University.

In 1965, the Major was assigned to ECU and is currently instructing the junior cadets in Astronautics and Space Operations. He is also the Flight Instruction Program ground school instructor, and manages the program for fourteen senior cadets. In 1967, he was presented with an award from BUC-CANEER for his outstanding achievement and contributions to society. ECU will be losing Major Ryan this summer when he moves to a cockpit assignment in Southeast Asia. He currently has over 5500 hours of flying time to his credit and is maintaining flying proficiency at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

Major Ryan said that he has enjoyed working with the men and women on campus and having some small part in their growth and maturity. He sincerely believes that if all the students on all the campuses in America are like those at ECU, our nation will have no problems when today's students assume the positions of leadership in our country.

The Ryans, who reside in Greenville, have one daughter, Colleen, nine years of age.

AFROTC STAFF—Major Kevin T. Ryan, Jr., Commandant of Cadets and Assistant Professor of Aerospace Studies at ECU.

Tournament At Brook Valley

The Eight Annual Batters Up Golf tournament will be held February 24 at Brook Valley Country Club.

The golf tournament is only a part of festivities that kick off action in the Atlantic Coast Conference and Southern Conference baseball season.

On hand will be coaches and school officials from the 16 schools in the two conferences as well as baseball scouts and other baseball figures.

The affair is sponsored jointly by Reynolds May, Greenville businessman, and East Carolina University.

An added part of the program this year will honor Milton Harrington, a native of Greenville and former Duke Baseball captain who is chairman of the board of Liggett, Meyers Tobacco Co.

Harrington captained Duke under the late Jack Combs in 1931 and was active in the old Coastal Plain League when it was an amateur organization in 1934-35-36.

May is inviting a number of players from the area. Among the 35 players who played in the league and later went to the majors are Ace Parker, Billy Hitchcock, Wayne Amber, Eric Tipton and Charlie Keller.

The golf tournament which will be for members of the press and invited guests for the occasion, will be 18 holes over the par 72 Brook Valley course. A social hour and dinner will be held at the Greenville Country Club.

Workshop At ECU

The North Carolina State Ballet Company, resident ballet at East Carolina University, is offering young dancers of the state a five-week ballet workshop at ECU next summer.

Scheduled June 23 through July 25, the workshop can accommodate up to 80 students. All must be at least 11 but not over 19 years old and all must have had some previous training in ballet.

Charlotte Blume of Fayetteville, business manager and ballerina of the state ballet, is director of the summer program. She said the workshop will offer concentrated training in classical technique, pointe, variation, pirouette and adagio.

Classes will be small, she said, so that students will get individual help as needed. The faculty will include professional staffers from the state ballet and guest teachers.

"Students will have opportunity to gain valuable experience," Miss Blume said, "by taking part in choreographic workshops and by participating in a special performance to be given on the university campus."

She pointed out that students will reside in campus dormitories and will have recreational opportunities, social activities and field trips as well as instruction, rehearsal and performance in ballet.

Parties Nominate Candidates

By JAMES HORD

Next week the two campus political parties will hold their nominating conventions in order to select candidates for Student Government Association offices.

The University Party will hold its convention on Tuesday, Feb. 18, followed by the Student Party's convention on Thursday, Feb. 20. Both conventions will be held in Wright Auditorium.

According to University Party member Lee Blackwell, the "convention will be open to the public, and students are invited to attend. The purpose of this is to eliminate the 'back-room' caucuses, which were so prevalent in days past."

Each party will nominate candidates for the offices of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and historian. Also, each party will draw up a platform in order to show the students where they stand on specific issues.

The purpose of the nominating conventions and elections is to give the students a chance to participate in the process of self-government. Only a few schools in the nation have a Student Government Association as effective as ECU.

Elections for the offices will be held on March 25, and all students are encouraged to get out and support the party and candidates of their choice.

Frat Selects McLean

Scottie McLean, a junior at ECU, has been selected by the Brothers of the Delta Zeta chapter of Delta Sigma Pi to compete for the national title of "Rose of Del-tasig." A portrait of Scottie and the other candidates, chosen by each of the 141 active chapters of Delta Sigma Pi, will be sent to Hollywood, California where a panel of movie and television stars will serve as judges. The contest is held annually in the month of February and the results are published in the May issue of the DELTASIG. The Brothers will be having their "Rose Ball" Saturday, February 15th at the Candlewick Inn. The dance will be highlighted by the crowning of their Chapter's "Rose" and her court.

Playtex invents the first-day tampon

(We took the inside out to show you how different it is.)

Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboardy).
Inside: it's so extra absorbent... it even protects on your first day. Your worst day!

In every lab test against the old cardboardy kind... the Playtex tampon was always more absorbent. Actually 45% more absorbent on the average than the leading regular tampon.

Because it's different. Actually adjusts to you. It flowers out. Fluffs out. Designed to protect every inside inch of you. So the chance of a mishap is almost zero!

Rose Addresses ACS

Dr. Arthur Rose, president of Applied Science Laboratories, Inc., State College, Pa., will address the February meeting of the Eastern N. C. Section of the American Chemical Society in Greenville.

Dr. Rose, who is also professor emeritus of chemical engineering at Pennsylvania State University, will lecture on "Preparing Chemists and Chemical Engineers for Industrial Productivity."

The February meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13 at the Greenville Moose Lodge. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Results

In his address, Dr. Rose will present results of various investigations into the adequacy of the training and attitudes of young chemists and chemical engineers. Special consideration will be given to work in chemical industry versus work in long-range research.

The speaker, a native of Ohio, is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and holds BS, MA and PhD degrees in chemistry. He is a member of the American Chemical Society's national council, representing the central Pennsylvania section.

Dr. Rose is the author of six books, some in several editions, and has published over 100 scientific articles on separation processes, use of automatic computers in engineering calculations, vapor-liquid equilibrium and gas chromatography.

Century Club Plans Expansion

Century Club President E. E. Rawl, Booster Club President Maurice Allen and Coach Clarence Stasavich, met regarding the Century Club drive last week. Plans are for this year's club to expand beyond this past year's membership, of 530.

The club was established in 1963 for the purpose of increasing support for the Athletic Department. A 100 dollar contribution to the Athletic Department is required for membership.

The membership in 1963 was 60, and Coach Stasavich feels the increasing support for the club shows the interest the people have in the E. C. U. Athletic Department. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Century Club should contact Maurice Allen.

Coach Stasavich reports that football recruiting for next year's freshman team has already extended beyond any previous year. Eighteen men have been signed for next year's freshman team.

Coach Stasavich feels there is more interest in the football at East Carolina this year, than there has been in the past. February has been the best opening month for recruiting in the past.

Hester Announces Revisions In Requirements In English Dept.

By CARL TYER

A major revision of the requirements for an English Major and Minor at ECU was announced by Dr. Erwin Hester, head of the English Department, last week. The new program is a combined effort of the entire English Department, and will go into effect Fall Quarter of 1969. Deliberation of the new program began in the Spring of 1968, and was officially passed for installation last week.

"I think this is a much more liberal curriculum," Dr. Hester commented, "and will result in a more general preparation."

Dr. Hester also added that the new program will provide a better program for students trying to fulfill general college requirements in English, plus providing English majors with a deeper study into their field.

"The new program will offer a wider range of electives and more advanced work," Hester added.

Under the new program, general survey courses, Lit. 112, and 123 have been replaced with English 140, Major British Writers I and II, and English 170, Major American Writers.

The original 13 hours of language skills and 9 hours of literature will still be required.

For an A.B., 18 hours must be selected with one 3-hour course coming from each of the new groups. The six groups are as follows: Language and Linguistics, Medieval and Renaissance, Shakespeare, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, Nineteenth Century, and American Literature.

Twenty-seven hours of free English electives then remain, with no more than 12 hours coming from below the 300 level.

For an A.B. English Minor, 13 hours of language skills, nine hours of literature, and fifteen hours selected from the following groups: Medieval and Renaissance, Shakespeare, Seventeenth Century and Eighteenth Centuries, Nineteenth Century, and American Literature.

Twenty-one hours of free English electives then remain with no more than nine hours from below the 300 level.

For the B.S. Degree, 13 hours of language skills, nine hours of literature, English electives, and 21 hours of specific courses are required. Specific courses required are English 132, 120, 220b, 220a, 219a, 103 and 312.

Fifteen hours must be selected with one three-hour course coming from each of the following sections: Medieval and Renaissance, Shakespeare, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, Nineteenth Century, and American Literature.

The old program established two years ago, required English 103, 120, two of the 112 series, plus a figure course in English Literature of the area not chosen of the 112 series. Two of these three, 123a, 123b, 123c, plus a period or figure course in American Literature in the area not chosen of the 123a, b, c, sequence. Two of these three, 325a, 325b, 325c, plus 329.

Twenty-one hours of junior, senior, or graduate courses in English electives, with at least 12 hours of these taken above the junior level remains. English 313 may not be counted among these electives and no more than 3 hours in advanced writing courses may be counted as advanced English electives. This makes a total of 141 to 163 total hours.

For an A.B. English Minor, required courses in English are the same as for the Major except for electives.

For the B.S. Degree, required courses are English 103, 120, two of the 112 series plus a period or figure course in English Literature in the area not chosen in the 112 sequence; two of the 123 series plus a period or figure course in American Literature in the area not chosen in the 123 series.

Also required were 132, 219a, 220a, 220b, 312, 325a, one of these two 325b, 325c plus electives. Nine hours of electives form junior, senior, or senior graduate courses. At least six of these must be taken above the junior level, and English 313 may not be counted among these electives. No more than three hours in advanced writing courses may be counted as advanced electives.

MECHANICAL MOLE—Do you dig the East Carolina campus? Evidently someone does. Utility men are in the process of replacing all of the campus underground wires with new cables.

Digging To Install Electrical System

By DONNA DIXON

"Dig, dig, dig! What's all this digging everywhere?"

With mounds of dirt almost everywhere you turn across campus and workers are diligently digging more, students are obviously puzzled as to what it's all about.

F. D. Duncan, vice president and manager of all construction work on campus, let out the secret.

"Most of the digging is resulting in the installation of a new underground electrical distribution system," Duncan explained.

Obsolete
Duncan said the old underwiring had been in operation on campus for over 40 years and was totally obsolete.

"It's likely to give trouble," he continued, "and the University needs a new underground electrical system."

But what about the large concrete blocks scattered across campus? What do they have to do with electricity?

The University is also getting a new underground telephone communication system, according to Duncan.

Installing

The local telephone company has been installing underground telephone wires across the county since the costly ice storm in January of '68.

"The large concrete blocks you see across campus are manholes," Duncan related.

The large blocks will enable a man to slip through a small hole at the top of the ground and work in the area of the concrete block to service the underground wires in case of repairs or replacements, Duncan said.

Total cost of the electrical distribution system will be approximately $325,000.

Diocese Appoints Rev. Hadden

The Rev. W. J. Hadden assumed his duties as the Campus Episcopal Chaplain on Feb. 1 of this year. He was appointed by the Diocese of East Carolina.

Rev. Hadden will work with the Canterbury Club, the Counseling Service, and the infirmary. He stresses his interest in persons of all denominations, saying he wishes to establish a "personal relationship and rapport with faculty and students."

Faculty Fellowship

Among his plans is the establishment of a Faculty Fellowship — "a group of faculty interested in movements of religion in society today as related to their fields."

First

This is his first service in the work of the Episcopal Church. He approaches it with obvious enthusiasm, saying he wishes to be a "chaplain to all faculty and students."

The New Chaplain's academic qualifications include: A.B. from Lynchburg College, B.D. from Vanderbilt University, and M.A. from Austin Peay State College. He is presently working on his doctorate at New York University.

His office is located in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 401 E. 4th St.

External Affairs Office Busy

By REID OVERCASH
Every morning at 9:00 the office of External Affairs opens its doors and sometimes these doors never close until 10:00 at night.

For John Schofield, secretary of external affairs, long hours of hard work are more the rule than the exception. He is responsible for the operation of all conventions and travel that the SGA attends.

Two fold

"The purpose of this office is two-fold," said Schofield, "first, we act as a public relations department for ECU. There is no better way of spreading the name of the school than by having an exceptional delegation at a nationwide convention."

"Secondly, there is a tremendous educational value involved by attending such functions as a model UN convention or the State Student Legislature."

Will Done

All evidence points to the fact that John has done his job well. East Carolina this year is attending more conventions than ever before and has gained the respect of these conference representatives.

Demonstrative of this is the awarding of ECU to represent the United States at both the National Model United Nations in New York City and the Deep South Model U.N. in Miami.

David Lloyd, President of the SGA, said, "It takes hard work and determination to be successful as secretary of external affairs and I would classify John as being most successful."

Attending

John is only attending one convention this year (the State Student Legislature) which is unusual for one head of such an office, but he feels that his job is to stay in the office to administer the various conventions, and not to stay in constant travel.

Schofield noted, "There is a high tradition in this office, in that every convention ECU has attended for the past three years, we have won some elective position or brought back some type of award such as best delegation. It is my job to see that this tradition is upheld."

Colonials Defeat Pirates In Southern Conference Play

East Carolina blew a nine-point lead as George Washington rallied to take an important victory over the Bucs by 70-69 in a Southern Conference game.

Trailing by 60-51 with 9:56 to go, the Colonials raced to catch up with the Bucs, outscoring East Carolina by 19-9 down the stretch to get the triumph.

East Carolina missed a layup and then a last second shot plus several key free throws to blow the game.

For the Colonials, Bob Tallent led the way with 26 points for game scoring honors. His brother Mike and forward Bill Knorr each popped in 11 points.

Jim Modlin again led the Bucs in scoring, this time with 19 points. He was followed by Tom Miller with 15, Earl Thompson with 12, and Jim Gregory with 10.

Whitman High School Wins Interscholastic Championship

Walt Whitman High School of Bethesda, Maryland easily won the 14th Annual East Carolina University Invitational Interscholastic Swimming and Diving Championships by outpointing 22 other schools.

Whitman rolled up 103 points, 58 more than second place finisher Chapel Hill, which ended up with 45 points.

Greensboro Page came in third with 43 points while South Mecklenberg and Rose High tied for fourth with 39 points each.

Sixth place went to Greensboro Grimsley with 38, followed by defending champion North Mecklenberg with 37 points.

Three new records were set, two by James Schliestett of South Mecklenberg and the other by Robert Dickson, also a member of the South Mecklenberg team.

Schliestett, in setting his two records, in effect set four as he broke the old marks in his qualifying round and then resetting them in the finals.

In the 200-yard freestyle, Schliestett broke Randy Wade's 1965 mark of 1:51.5 with a time of 1:48.47 in the qualifying round and then reset his own record with a time of 1:47.69 in the finals.

He also won the 100-yard backstroke, breaking Ross Bradford's mark set last year of 1:08.57 with a time of 56.7. Schliestett then broke his own record in the finals with a mark of 55.55.

Several of the swimmers have already applied and been accepted here at East Carolina, and a few others will be applying for admission.

Some of the swimmers who have been accepted at East Carolina are: Mark Wilson of Langley High in Virginia, who won both the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly events; Steve Smiley of Greenville Rose High, who finished fourth behind Wilson in the 50-yard freestyle and won the 100-yard freestyle; Wayne Norris of Terry Sanford who finished fourth in the 100-yard butterfly and third in the 100-yard breaststroke; and mark Johnson, who won the only event he entered, the 100-yard breaststroke.

Several boys who Coach Scharf expects to apply for admission are: Robert Dickson of South Mecklenberg, who won both the 200-yard Individual medley and set the record for the 400-yard freestyle; Charles Marmor of Walt Whitman, who finished second in the 50-yard freestyle and fourth in the 100-yard backstroke; Richard Wallace, also of Walt Whitman, who came in fourth in the 100-yard freestyle; and Jim Steffersen of T. C. Williams High, who finished fourth in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Three of the top four divers are also expected to apply at East Carolina. They are George Byrd who won the diving event, Robert Gould, who finished third, and Tim Winslow, whose brother Neil is a diver for East Carolina, came in fourth in the event.

The meet is one of four such meets held on the east coast, and was hailed by many as one of the finest meets. Many considered this meet to be superior to the Easterns, which is the top meet on the coast.

The entire meet was run by Dr. Martinez, Swimming Coach Ray Scharf, the coaching staff, and the entire swim team. To them should go a well deserved hand for a fine effort and a fine meet.

Wrestlers Score Three Triumphs

In a four-way wrestling match at the University of Georgia, East Carolina's wrestling team scored three triumphs to raise their record to 6-1.

The Buc matmen whipped Georgia, 22-13, Louisiana State, 29-10, and Milligan College, 15-12. The only points LSU took were on forfeits and Georgia picked up 10 of its 12 points the same way.

Summary ECU-LSU meet - (ECU 29, LSU 10):

123 lbs: Tom Ellenberger (ECU) pinned Frank Barlow, 3:59.

130 lbs: Tom Ellenberger (ECU) decided Charles O'Boyle, 9-2.

Heavyweight: Cliff Bernard (ECU) decided Pat Burke, 4-1.

Spiders Invade Minges Thursday

Richmond's rugged Spiders invade Minges Coliseum Thursday night in a key Southern Conference game for East Carolina's Pirates.

The Spiders, who carried a 9-10 season record into their game with Davidson Tuesday night, are one of the toughest teams physically East Carolina has faced, said Pirate Coach Tom Quinn.

"The loss by one point to George Washington put added significance on the game with Richmond," Quinn said. "Had we won that one, we could have clinched second place in the conference. Now we have to figure that we must win two of our three remaining conference games."

Besides Richmond, the Pirates play The Citadel in Charleston and close out with VMI at home.

"Considering size, speed, depth and out-court shooting, Richmond certainly is the strongest conference team we've played," Quinn said. "Their record at this point is no indication of the kind of team they have."

As for his Pirates, Quinn said he is somewhat distressed over the free throw shooting and the inconsistency in the rebounding.

"We've played and lost three one-point ballgames this year," he said. "With those, we could be 14-7 right now and have second place wrapped up."
