Homecoming weekend provides excitement

Homecoming '69

It was quite a weekend. The crowds were big. The traffic jams were just as bad and just as frustrating. The concerts were enjoyable. The parade was really novel. There was a super-abundance of parties...and East Carolina lost the football game.

Pitt County rejects tax

Pitt County in the November 4 election rejected the additional one per cent sales tax by a margin of 615 votes according to the Daily Reflector's unofficial tabulation. Of the 26 county precincts only five voted for the tax.

State-wide, 25 of North Carolina's 100 counties voted for the tax. They include: Buncombe, Camden, Chowan, Clay, Cumberland, Currituck, Duplin, Durham, Greene, Hertford, Jackson, Jones, Lenoir, Macon, Madison, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Richmond, Swain, Tyrrell, Wayne, and Watauga.

Bruce Strickland, Chairman of the Pitt County Commissioners, and Reginald Gray, Pitt County Auditor, commented jointly on the effect the defeat of the sales tax will have on Pitt County.

They said it will probably prolong certain things that need to be done such as improving the rural and city garbage disposal system.

Utilize dollar

Strickland said that the commissioners will try to hold property taxes down and "utilize the dollar to the best advantage." Gray added that while trying to keep property taxes from rising, the county still had needs to meet.

He said the state government makes it mandatory for the individual counties to pay set salaries to certain agencies like Mental Health.

The state also governs the expenditures of Welfare programs and provides that the counties support Day Care Centers.

Strickland and Gray said they are not definitely sure what effect the defeat of the tax will have on Pitt County because these needs must be met as well as educational needs. "Education is of prime importance," they said, "and with the continued consolidation money will probably be needed. You can not get around this need."

County support

They said that many people do not realize that the county and not the city provides support for all the schools. Greenville receives $33 out of every $100 collected by the county for schools.

The county provides basic services while the city provides special services, they said. Greenville, though, received $6,280 from Pitt County in support of the Rescue Squad.

They also said they believe the people did not really express themselves in the elections for many reasons. They said one reason could be that people are tax conscious and the recent tax on cigarettes and soft drinks is still fresh in their minds. It could be, though, that the people did not realize how much the tax would have helped Pitt County financially and how it would have lessened the tax burden on property owners, they said.

Also commenting on the tax, City Councilman Percy Cox said, "I hope we can hold property taxes but if we do services will have to be cut in Greenville. I also hope we can hold salaries in line in face of the rising cost of living without raising property taxes."

Kenneth Dew, a member of the Pitt County Taxpayers Association, said, "I feel a good many people are disappointed because the tax did not pass and I believe that eventually it will pass. The one per cent sales tax might have helped curb property taxes, but now the ad valorem tax is all the County Commissioners have to fall back on for additional revenue."

Since the Pitt County Commissioners went on record as favoring the passage of the tax, under the bill of provision they can call for another vote at the end of the year.

Dr. Carpenter meets with regional chairmen of MENC

Dr. Thomas H. Carpenter of the East Carolina University School of Music met in Chicago for three days this week with the national chairman and five other regional chairmen of student member activities of the Music Educators National Conference (MENC) to coordinate pre-professional programs for the nearly 19,000 student members of that organization.

Carpenter, Chairman of the Music Education Faculty at the School of Music, was appointed last year by officers of the 60,000-member national organization of music teachers to serve as Chairman of Student Member Activities for the Southern Division of the MENC. The region includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

There were nearly 4,000 student MENC members in southern colleges and universities during the last academic school year.

The Chicago meeting, Dr. Carpenter said, was the first time the Music Educators National Conference has ever been able to bring the national chairman and the six regional chairmen of student MENC chapters together in one place to establish policy, to organize student participation in regional and national conventions, and to plan professional publications for student members.

Schofield attends conference

John Schofield, president of the Student Government Association, and three other members of the SGA will attend the sixth National Conference of the Association of Student Governments in Atlanta.

The theme of this year's conference is "The Student and His Environment."

The conference, which will be held Nov. 26 through Nov. 30, will feature speakers such as Rep. Allard Lowenstein, Dr. Nathan Hare, former head of Black Studies at San Francisco State College, and Charles Evers and James Meredith. David King, National Chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom, will also speak.

Representatives from more than 500 colleges and universities have been invited to attend the conference.

Faculty works are entered in art contest

Two East Carolina University School of Art faculty members, Tran Gordley and Mrs. Marilyn Gordley, have paintings in the 11th Annual Springs Art Contest and Show in Lancaster, S. C.

The exhibition, sponsored by Spring Mills, opened Oct. 17 in the Lancaster Armory.

Mrs. Gordley's work is an oil painting entitled "Soft Still-Life." She is assistant professor of painting.

"Tree Stencil," an acrylic, is the entry by Gordley, assistant dean and chairman of the department of painting.

Dr. Hanrahan to present seminar

Dr. R.J. Hanrahan, of the Department of Chemistry of the University of Florida, will present a seminar on "A Routine Application of Mass Spectroscopy" 3p.m. Monday, Nov. 10, in room 237 of Flanagan Building.

Refreshments will be served in Flanagan 207 at 2:30 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Music school promotes four

Promotions of four members of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty, effective immediately, were announced here today.

They are Dr. Clyde Hiss and Bea Chauncey, promoted to associate professor; and James Houlik and Richard Lucht, both promoted to assistant professor.

According to Dean of Music Dr. Thomas Miller, the four were elevated in rank for their "outstanding musicianship, academic accomplishment and service to ECU and the School of Music."

Hiss, who recently received his doctorate in music from the University of Illinois, is a native of Cleveland, Ohio. He is a 1959 graduate of Baldwin-Wallace College (BM) and holds the Master of Music degree from the University of Illinois. He joined the ECU faculty in 1965, and directs the school's Opera Theatre.

Miss Chauncey, another Ohio native from Akron, holds the BS degree from the University of Akron and the MA from Columbia. A specialist in music education, Miss Chauncey joined the faculty here in 1949.

Houlik holds BS and MS degrees from New York State University and the University of Illinois. A native New Yorker, Houlik studied for three years with one of the world's outstanding saxophonists, Sigurd Rascher. He joined the ECU faculty in 1966.

Lucht came to ECU from the College of Emporia in Kansas, where he was an assistant professor of music. He holds the BM in piano from Nebraska Wesleyan University and the MM in piano from Wichita State University. He is a native of Pine Bluff, Wyo.

Carpenter speaks at music meet

Dr. Thomas H. Carpenter, Chairman of Music Education of the East Carolina University School of Music, was speaker at last week's music section meeting of the Forty-Seventh Annual Convention of the North Carolina Education Association, Southeastern District, in Fayetteville.

The theme of the convention was "Education: An Open Door to Understanding." In his address, Dr. Carpenter urged music teachers to provide opportunities for all students to develop their musical capacities rather than just the "20 per cent who participate in performance ensembles," to identify and pursue defensible educational goals and to evaluate the total music program in the light of these goals.

Union card contest deadline is Dec. 1

The deadline for all entries in the University Union Christmas Card Contest will be Dec. 1.

The contest is an annual competition among students to design the Christmas card which the Union chooses to send to other members of the Association of College Unions International.

Any student is eligible who will agree, if he wins, to make 25 reproductions of the original design before Dec. 19.

The winner will receive $25 and payment for the time and materials spent reproducing his card.

Participants have been asked to go by the Union immediately to obtain a guide sheet for the contest.

Jenkins appoints Maynor director of public relations

Joe S. Maynor of Raleigh has been named director of news and public relations here.

Maynor, who is presently associated with the North Carolina Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, will assume his duties here Monday, Nov. 10. He succeeds Henry B. Howard, director since 1963, who is now with Burlington Industries in Greensboro.

In announcing Maynor's appointment today, ECU President Leo W. Jenkins said: "Mr. Maynor will bring to this position a wealth of experience and ability. Under his direction, we anticipate development of an expanded and vigorous public relations program at East Carolina."

"I have the highest regard for his qualifications and am confident that his presence here will improve the already fine relationship of the university and its stockholders, the citizens of North Carolina."

Maynor, 34, is a native of West Virginia. He holds an AB degree in journalism and an MA degree in sociology from Marshall University.

His experience includes six years as a television newsman in Charlotte and five years in public relations with the State of West Virginia and the N.C. TB Association.

"I accepted this position with a great deal of pleasure," Maynor said, "because I am convinced that ECU and the entire East are entering a period of dramatic and dynamic growth which will make outstanding contributions to the state as a whole."

History professor gets award

Dr. Richard C. Todd, professor of history at ECU, was honored by Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity at the national convention held in Washington, D. C., recently.

Dr. Todd was presented a gold medallion "in recognition of his outstanding professional achievements and distinguished service to the fraternity on both the National and local levels."

Dr. Todd is national vice president and a member of the Executive Council as well as sponsor of Tau chapter at ECU, a position which he has held since 1950.

Dr. Todd has previously held the national offices of councilor, historian, vice president and president and has been a member of the National Executive Council for the past 20 years.

Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity is the oldest fraternal organization on the ECU campus. Its aim is to recognize and encourage outstanding scholarship, leadership and fellowship among male students.

Membership is open to male students with a minimum of one year residence, possessing an overall academic average of B or better. Tau chapter has a membership of 62 with an overall average of 3.57 based on a 4 point system.

Dr. Todd, a native of Lancaster, Pa., joined the ECU faculty in 1950. He earned the BS degree from Millersville State College, the M. Ed. from Pennsylvania State University and the Ph.D. from Duke University. He is listed in "Who's Who In The South and Southwest," "Directory of American Scholars Vol. 1, History" and "Who's Who in American Education."

Dixon explains disqualification of candidate

"It has not been the policy in the past for the Elections Committee to check the qualifications of each candidate for Homecoming Queen," said Phil Dixon, chairman of the Elections Committee concerning the disqualification of Miss Phyllis Simpson as one of the Homecoming Queen finalists.

Miss Simpson was disqualified after the Elections Committee found that she did not meet the academic qualification stated in The Key, student rule book.

Dixon met with Miss Simpson and representatives of the Society of United Liberal Students (SOULS), Miss Simpson's sponsor, and explained the situation to them. The students from SOULS decided to take the matter before the Executive Council.

The Executive Council, after hearing the case, voted to uphold Miss Simpson's disqualification.

Miss Simpson then made a suggestion that since she could not represent SOULS in the election, that SOULS be allowed to nominate another candidate to take her place.

The Executive Council passed the suggestion unanimously.

The new candidate from SOULS was Miss Karen Bethea.

Meal tickets should be used soon

F.D. Duncan, Vice-President and Business Manager of the university, announced this week that anyone having cafeteria coupon books issued by the university should use them during the remainder of fall quarter.

Slater Food Service will issue a new type of meal ticket beginning in December. Those previously issued by the university will no longer be valid.

Jazz ensemble impresses guest

The East Carolina University Jazz Ensemble of the School of Music performed to a full house last week in the Recital Hall.

The Ensemble, under the direction of Professor Joe Hambrick, displayed a versatility and excitement which electrified the audience of high school Merit Scholars and university students and friends.

Hambrick, an experienced musician who has worked with the Andy Williams Show and the Henry Mancini Orchestra among others, says he is "pleased with the progress and ability of this year's Jazz Ensemble."

The Jazz Ensemble has been invited to perform for the music teachers of the state at the annual state convention of the Music Educator's National Conference to be held in Charlotte on Nov. 15, 16, and 17.

The Ensemble is rehearsing many new arrangements along with some of its standard repertoire which includes: "Joe's Bag," "Passaglia" by Robert Curnow of Michigan State, and "The Queen Bee" from Count Basie's new "Straight Ahead" Album.

Senate Democrats freeze lottery bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Threats to open up President Nixon's draft lottery bill have caused Senate Democratic leaders to put the measure in cold storage, probably until next year.

The House passed the lottery measure 382-13 last Thursday after voting 265 to 129 against to throw the measure open as a vehicle to overhaul the entire Selective Service Act.

Now some senators, not bound by House procedures, which can bar amendments, want to make a similar run at revamping the draft law.

This threat blocked efforts of leaders to reach agreements that would permit the simple reform measure to come up for action.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told the Senate:

"It is my belief that the President's proposal will not be taken up in the Senate this year because it was impossible to achieve a consensus to handle only the President's suggestion by itself, and because some members of the Senate want to go far beyond the President's proposal in the consideration of the draft law."

Congress delays decision on student unrest bills

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Of at least 15 bills on the subject of student unrest submitted to the U.S. Congress this session, not one has yet come out of committee.

Four bills have been referred to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee where action is pending. Eleven other bills were referred to the House Special Subcommittee on Education where hearings were held in May. No further action has been taken.

The Senate bills include:

S. 2055, introduced by Norris Cotton of New Hampshire to provide that institutions of higher education that have failed to take necessary steps to maintain a reasonable degree of discipline upon their campuses shall be unable to get federal contracts.

S. Joint Resolution 109, introduced by Walter Mondale of Minnesota to provide for a study of student unrest on campuses.

S. 280, introduced by Robert Byrd of West Virginia to encourage institutions of higher education to adopt rules to govern the conduct of students and faculty, to assure the right of free expression and to assist such institutions in their efforts to prevent and control campus disturbances.

S. 2520, introduced by Thomas Eagleton of Missouri to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to provide a means of preventing civil disturbances from disrupting federal assistance programs and activities at institutions of higher learning.

House bills include:

H.R. 10074, introduced by William Harsha of Ohio to require the suspension of federal financial assistance to colleges and universities which are experiencing campus disorders and fail to take appropriate corrective measures within a reasonable time and to require the termination of federal financial assistance to teachers, instructors and lecturers guilty of violation of any law in connection with such disorders.

H.R. 10136, introduced by Dan Kuykendall of Tennessee to require the suspension of federal financial assistance to colleges and universities which are experiencing campus disorders and fail to take appropriate corrective measures forthwith and to require the suspension of federal financial assistance to teachers participating in such disorders.

Fire, illness

Bad luck...in abundance

By SAM BEASLEY
Staff Reporter

Everyday Simon Dixon comes to work. He cleans up the first floor of the nursing building, from 4 p.m. to midnight.

Someone else is cleaning up now. Simon has been out of work for two weeks.

Two weeks ago Simon lost his home. A fire destroyed his home and all its contents. The insurance would not be much. Fire insurance is hard to get out in the country.

The only fortunate thing about it was that Simon's three oldest children were in college. At least they did not lose their clothing.

Simon returned to work

two days after the fire. He picked up his routine and hoped that things would get better. Perhaps the insurance money would be enough to get some clothing for his three children at home and his wife. It might be enough to get some furniture for his brother's house that they were staying in.

Simon did not get to find out. He became ill and had to stay home. He will probably have to go to the hospital in two weeks.

Perhaps the ECU community cares enough to give a little. Next week a table will be in the CU lobby for those who care.

Pi Kaps win race

Pi Kappa Phi clinched first place in the Intramural Fraternity Football race by crushing Phi Kappa Tau 37 to 0 and Theta Chi 22-0. These wins make Pi Kappa Phi 10-0-1 for the regular season.

Lambda Chi Alpha finished in second place with a 10-1 record. Phi Kappa Tau finished third with a 9-3 record followed by Alpha Phi Omega in fourth place with an 8-3 mark.

These top four teams will engage in a single elimination tournament Tuesday, November 11 and Wednesday, November 12 to determine which team will represent the Fraternity League against the Independent League in the Campus-Wide Championship.

Tuckerstein's Raiders rolled over Way House 32 to 7 to take the Intramural Independent League Football Race with an 8-0 record for the regular season.

The Raiders will compete in the Intramural Independent League playoffs Tuesday, November 11 and Wednesday, November 12, with the next three teams in the standings. Who these teams are depends on the outcome of the game between the Jets and the NADS Monday, November 10, 1969. This will be the last game of the regular season.

State students roll logs; Cow, freshman lose out

RALEIGH (AP) —

Three dozen students fought a day-long battle at North Carolina State University Saturday which senior faculty members labeled as "class warfare". The class that won was the sophomores, who beat out the seniors 33-32.

It was the annual Forestry Club loggers roll.

The only casualties reported were a disturbed Holstein cow and a freshman who raised a blister using an axe.

Winners of the 12 main events were awarded goldplated plaques mounted on poplar wood.

The top winner of a special prize of a cord of firewood was undetermined late Saturday. That prize carries with it the stipulation that the winner chop down the cord during the harvesting season in the university's Schenck Forest on the outskirts of Raleigh.

Why do we still have "housemothers?" Probably the answer to this question from official sources would be that we no longer have "housemothers." We now have "house counselors" or "older women in residence in the dormitory charged with the enforcement of rules" or whatever the present nomenclature is for the women who used to be known officially as housemothers.

The reason is not that there is anything personally offensive about these ladies, it is just that their "raison d'être" no longer exist. They were hired to be pillars of morality to protect the women students from the evil and licentious men in an age that didn't believe that it "took two to tango."

In their place we would like to suggest that a system be instituted by the Dean of Women's office similar to the one used in the Men's dormitories whereby, a female graduate student (preferably married) would be responsible for the operation of the dormitory.

These graduate students would be old enough to command the respect and obedience of the residents, yet not too old as to have forgotten what being a student was all about.

Being married would also give them a grasp of problems that we suspect the "misses" currently running the dorms never faced.

One last point in favor of graduate students is that if they were paid on the same scale as the "resident advisors" on "the Hill" are, it would be a lot cheaper for the University.

Hand + I EVER catch you in there again."

especially Mr. Jim Watts and his appropriations committee. We are indeed grateful for their support.

Thomas W. Miller
Dean, School of Music

I hope everyone had a good time during homecoming. My question is, when was the ECU homecoming?

It was rumored that last weekend was our homecoming. Evidently many students believed that it was, judging by the number of students who requested tickets for the two concerts at Minges. I even saw signs in the dorms requesting tickets after the Central Ticket Office ran out.

Now I ask you, would the public and guests be put before the student if it were our homecoming? You're d*mn right they would and it's about time the SGA remedied the situation. If we are going to be forced to pay for a Student Activity Card, is it too much to expect first option on tickets to any function that we made possible? No, it isn't, and if you agree, let's let the SGA know about it.

John Mahoney

Once again a student has chosen to commit to print his ignorance of the means of SGA finance.

In your last issue a Mr. Adams makes the mistake of saying that a fixed percentage of student fees goes toward the financing of entertainment.

Mr. Adams hints broadly at a misappropriation of funds in the fourth paragraph of his letter, charging that the Department of Entertainment is getting $9,000 less than it should. Mr. Adams does not consider the Central Ticket Office, or the ID cards part of the entertainment expenses — but they are.

As for the $70,000 that is returned to the General Fund, Mr. Adams doesn't realize that this amount is taken into account when entertainment budgets are voted on. The only "other SGA projects" that this money is being spent on this year is new stage equipment for Mingos.

Mr. Adams, before you write the paper, please check your facts so that you can comment intelligently.

M. Bijus

Editor's Note: Due to the production rush of the Homecoming issue, the content of Mr. Sabrosky's article was distorted in the cutting and pasting. The following is a synopsis of his conclusion.

The conservative philosophy includes three major tenets, without which the position of the conservative cannot accurately be interpreted

A conservative recognizes that reasonable social progress is essential in a free society; however, the conservative rejects violence as the means by which this change may be accomplished, believing that constructive, evolutionary progress by means of the legitimate political process is more equitable, more durable, and more effective than destructive, nihilistic revolution.

The conservative rejects the concept of rule by a self-proclaimed "morally superior" minority, believing that the whole people are capable of directing and controlling the present and future conduct of our nation.

The essence of conservatism is an inherent faith in the people and in our system of government. This faith is not simply dogma; it is based on the demonstrated success of both the nation and the American people when compared with other countries.

Those who concern themselves with fault-finding often overlook the acknowledged achievements of the United States. No other political or economic order, past or present, has so strikingly achieved the goal of "the greatest good for the greatest number" while enabling its citizens to enjoy the greatest possible freedom.

WHEREAS, Fountainhead's fulltime secretary typed all of page 6, section A of the Homecoming issue except for the portion under question, which was typed by a staff member who did not realize the style followed in the rest of the article,

BE IT ALSO
RESOLVED that Fountainhead realizes these sort of mistakes ought to be freely and easily admitted so that more pressing problems like respect of the black man in general may have our attention and so that we may all join hands in the struggle for power, peace and harmony in the brotherhood of man.
