Schofield term ends

To the Students:

I submit to you my formal resignation as President of your Student Government Association. I must resign because I have graduated. According to our constitution, the Presidency succeeds to Bob Whitley, the vice president.

It has been an honor for me to serve you, and it has been the supreme challenge which I have had to face in my life. However, it was not a burdensome challenge. Few can understand the feeling that comes to you when the realization that you are there to serve 10,000 students and to watch one-third of a million dollars become evident.

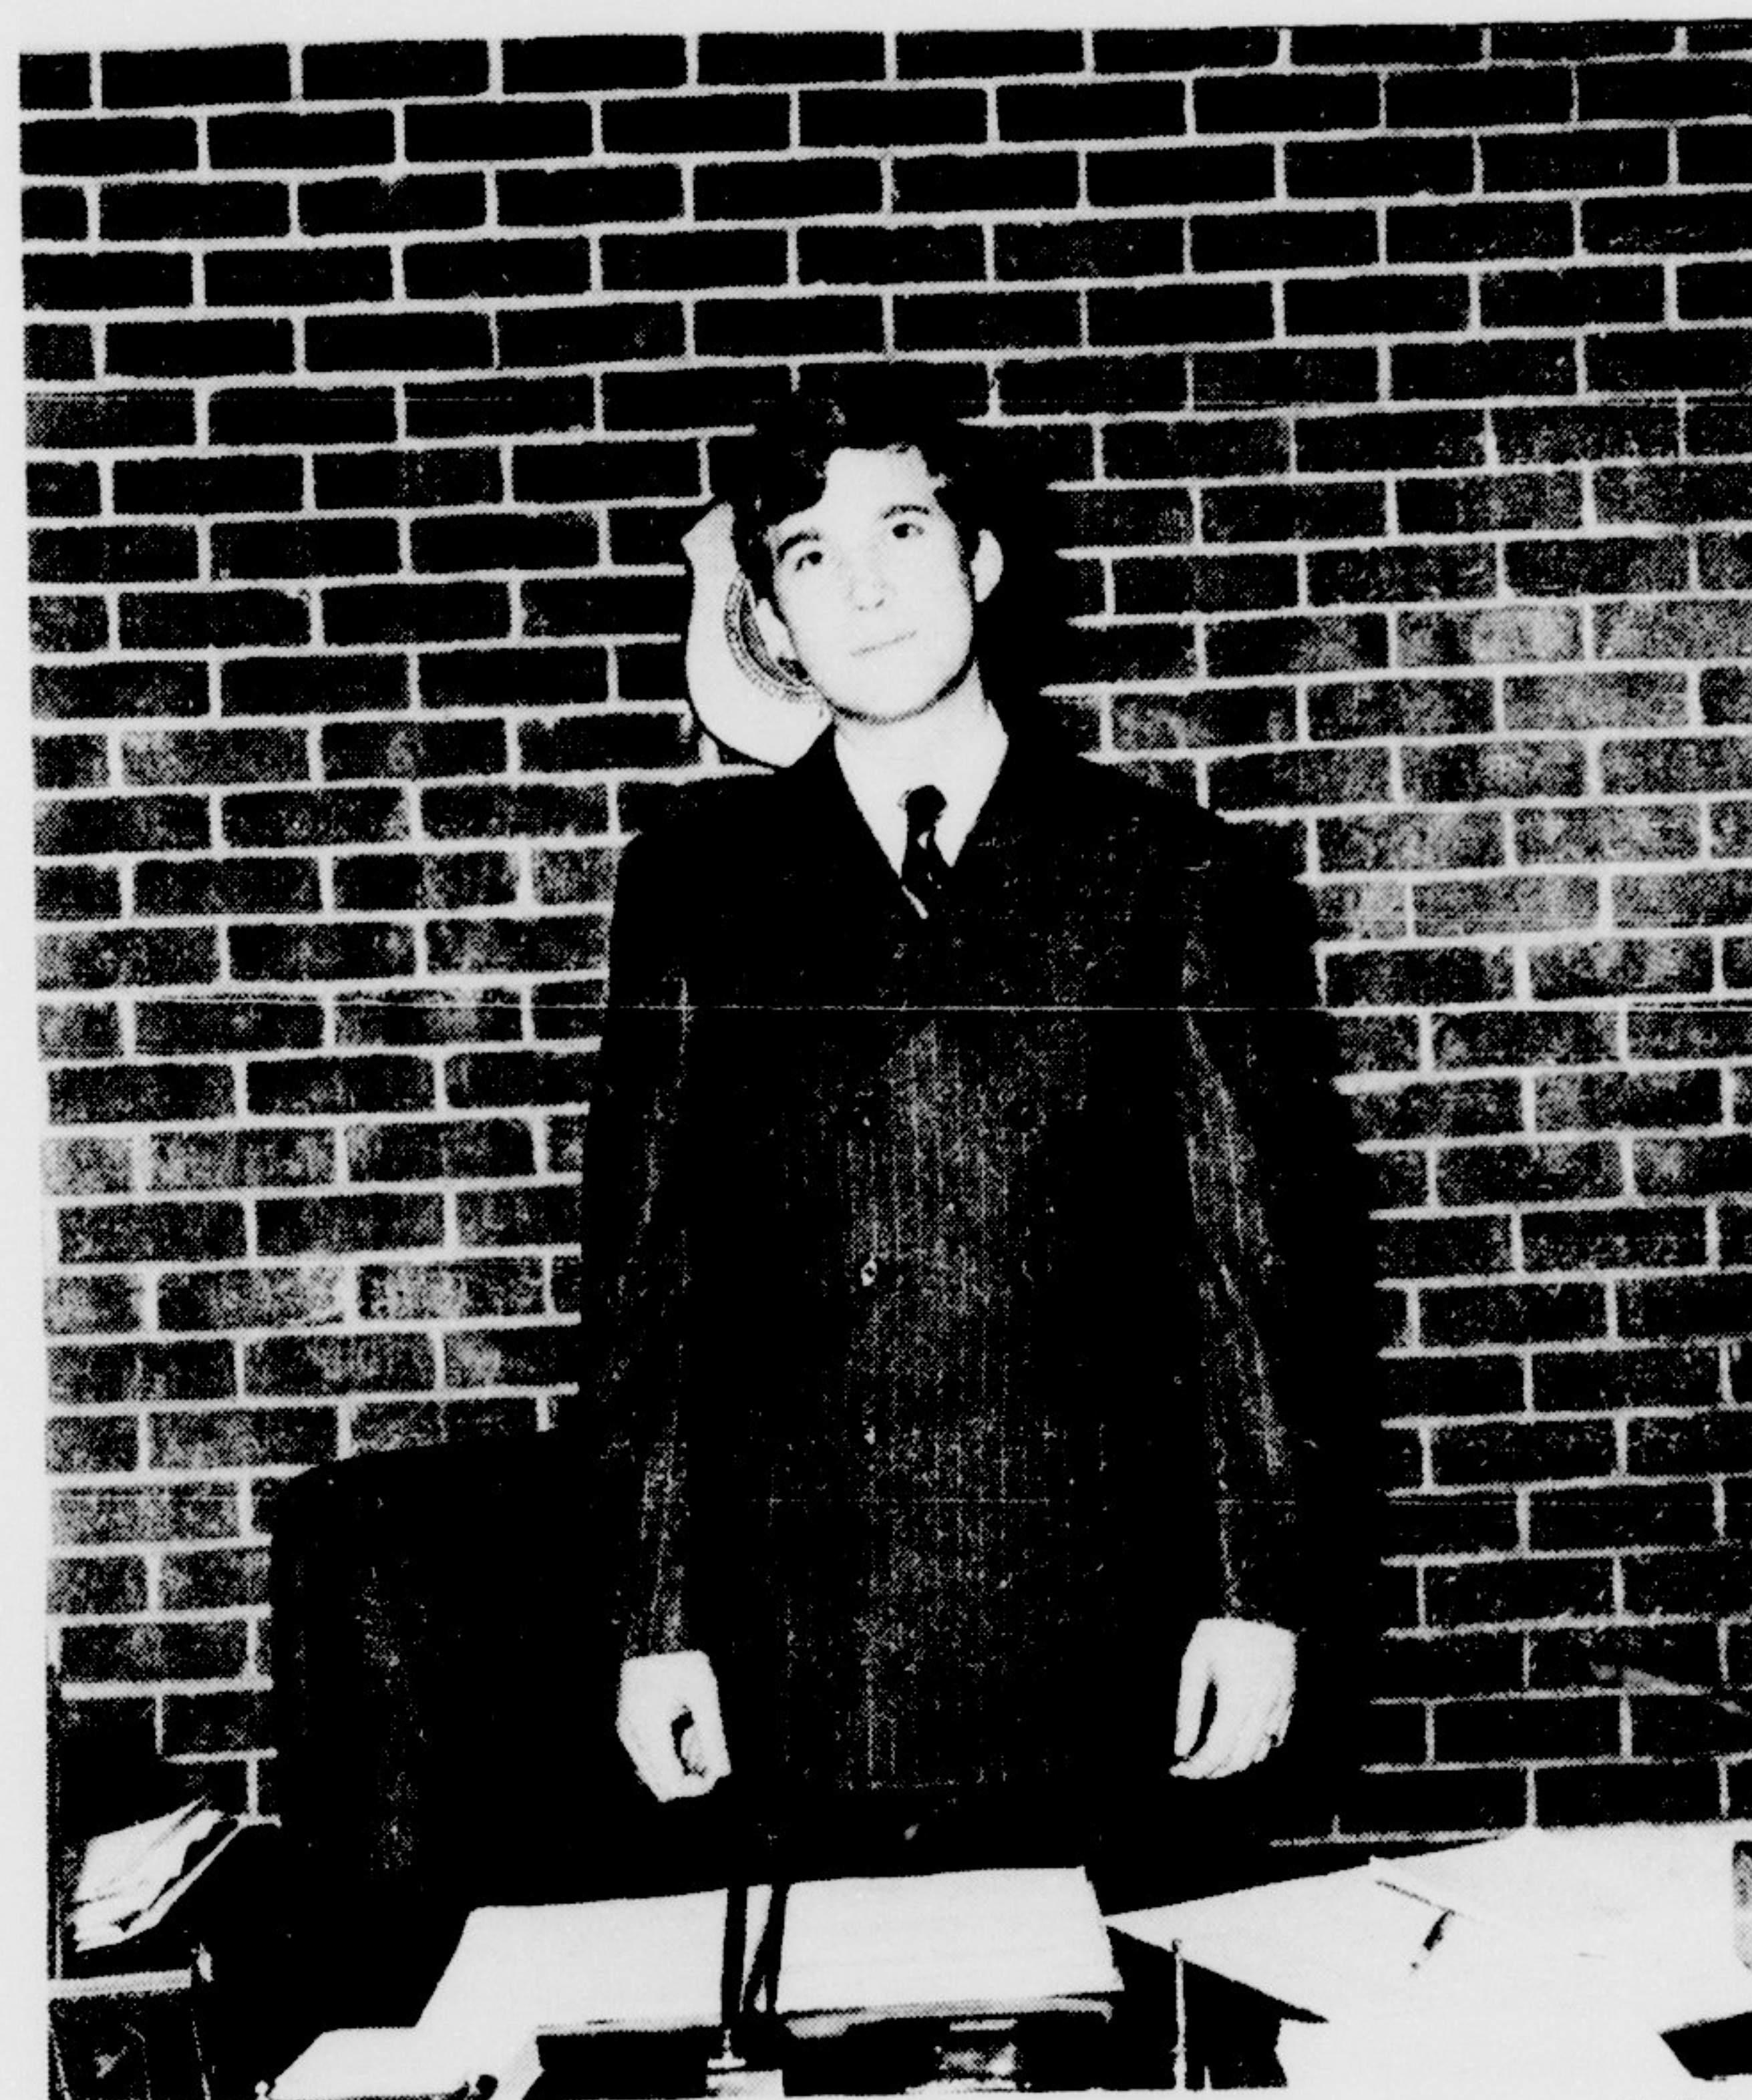

It is my hope and the hope of my cabinet that what we have been able to do in the past year will not end with the coming election. We hope the SGA's of the future will continue to strive toward one goal, that being the goal of the student participation in government and in his academic community. The administration has adopted a policy that shows their faith in the students of East Carolina. A meaningful start toward student involvement has been made. We have been fortunate that the administration has adopted this policy of faith.

The Student Government has become a potent force at East Carolina. However, if its effectiveness is to continue, we must have student leaders who will be responsible enough to fortify the faith that the administration has shown in the SGA.

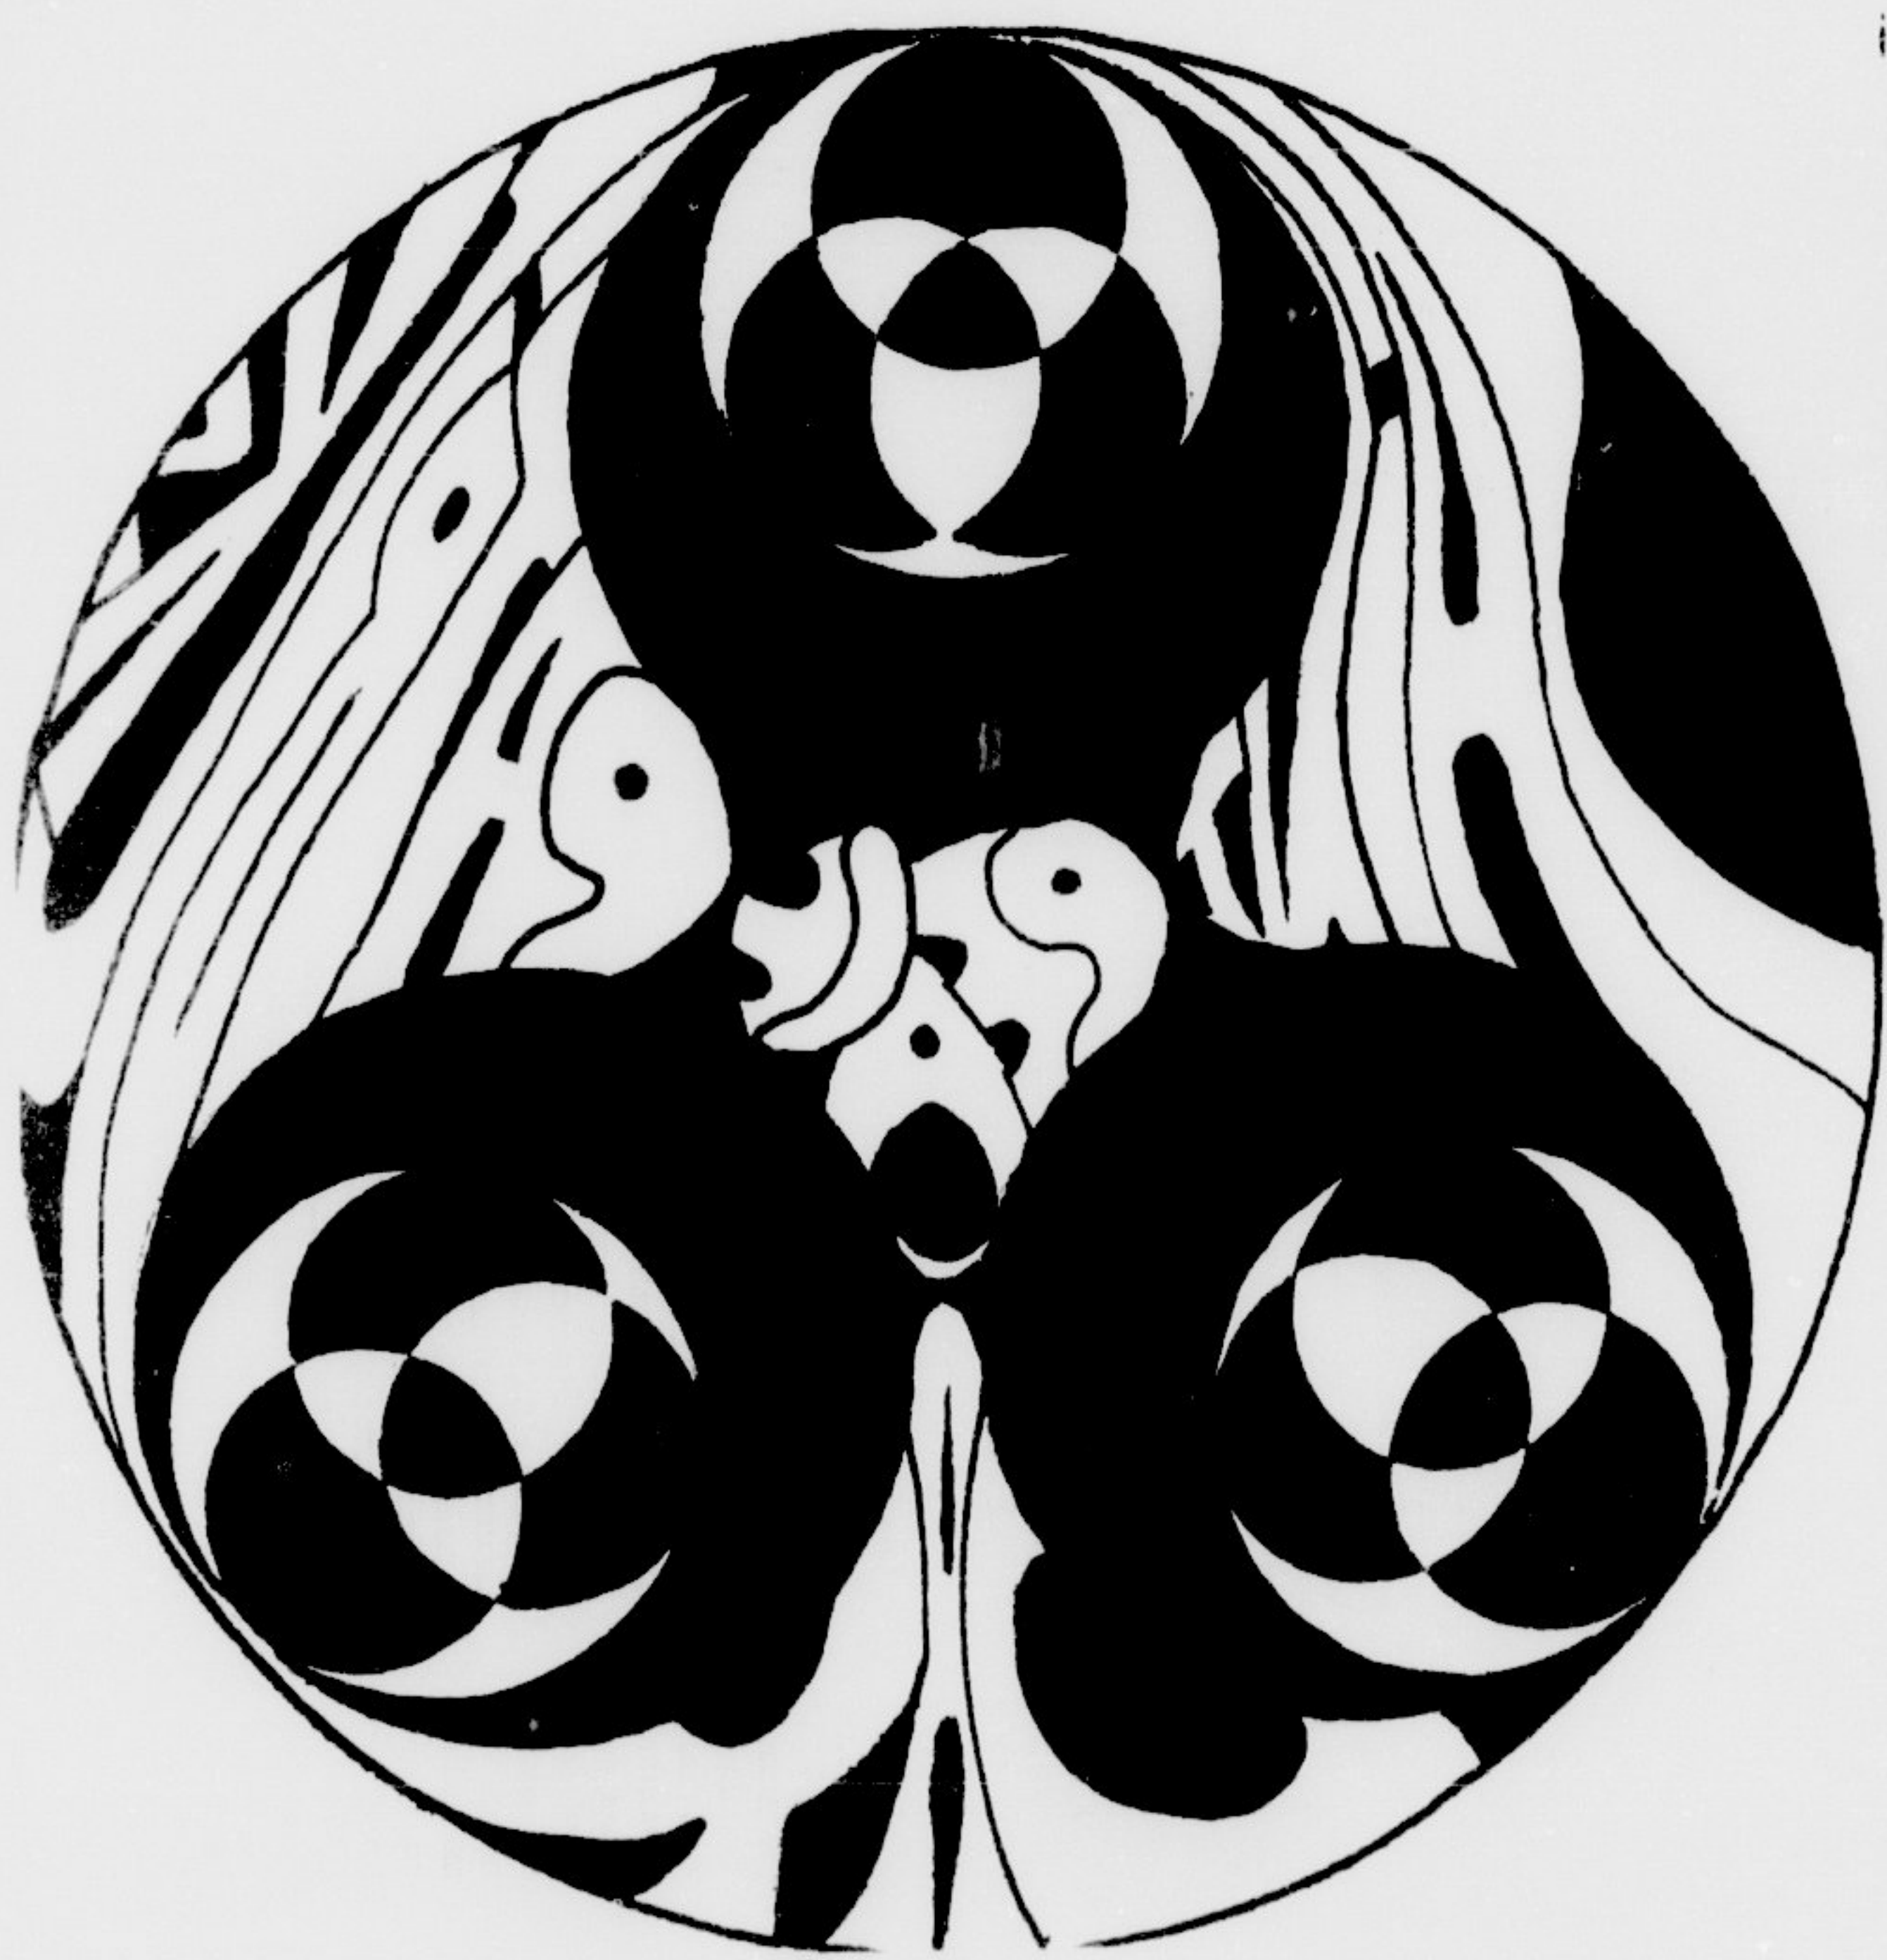

The time has drawn near for you to elect the SGA that will guide you next year. It is my hope that you will vote and vote wisely. Please do not think that these elections are just a game. They are not. The type of student life that you want depends on the type of SGA you have. Weigh the alternatives and then vote wisely.

It has been an honor for me to serve you this past year. It is an honor that I will not long forget. I thank you for the opportunity. I hope that what we have been able to do has in some measure brought you a measure of happiness and convenience.

Sincerely,
John Schofield
President, SGA

Irish honor Saint Patrick

By BARBARA FUSSELL
Staff Writer

Green clothing and four-leaf clover pins will be worn Tuesday as Irish people all over the world honor their national saint, Patrick.

In the United States, the first layman's celebration of this day was given by the Charitable Irish Society of Boston about the middle of the 18th century. Later the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick was organized in Philadelphia and New York City to celebrate the anniversary.

New York also observes St. Patrick Day with a special mass and a parade on Fifth Avenue, reviewed by the Cardinal and staff of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Individuals celebrate St. Patrick's Day in ways such as "the wearin' o' the green," and kissing the Blarney Stone. A Greenville high school student once dyed her hair green in honor of the occasion.

Patrick is honored because of his efforts to bring Christianity to Ireland.

Patrick was born a Roman citizen but there are doubts about his exact place of birth. It is thought to be west of Britain.

At the age of 16, he was

'Earth Day' plans include rally, panel

Plans are being made for a campus observation of "Earth Day."

"Earth Day," April 22, is the brainchild of a national organization called Environmental Teach-In, Inc.

The newly formed campus organization, Concerned Biologists for Environmental Action (CBEA) will sponsor the activities here.

The CBEA is composed of graduate students in biology.

Eldon Nelson, CBEA chairman, said several faculty members and officials, including Dr. Clifford Knight and Dr. Prem Sehgal, will be working directly with the committee and will give their full support. GAP will also help, Nelson said.

The committee has scheduled workshops on such environmental issues as the federal, state and local contributions to a better environment and the population problem.

A rally on the mall is also planned. Guest speakers will meet in a moderated panel discussion.

The original idea for the Teach-In came from Senator Gaylord Nelson, who had mentioned it in several addresses. He received a volume of mail in response to them. Gaylord then appeared on the Today Show and afterwards received nearly a thousand letters. A group of interested people formed a sort of policy committee which turned into the national steering committee. The committee is comprised of three students, three professors, two politicians and a conservationist. Denis Hayes heads the committee, which opened its first offices in January.

The committee has received over $50,000 in donations from the Conservation Foundation, the Damroth Foundation, the American Conservation Association, the Irwin-Sweeney-Miller Foundation, the National Audubon Society, and the Deerfield Foundation.

"We're fighting for a total reevaluation of what we call progress, the American way of life. We think we're simply heading in the wrong direction," Hayes said.

Concerning what will be done April 22, Hayes said, "there are some concrete plans to stop traffic in some major metropolitan areas. There will be gatherings up of garbage for deposit on state capitols and in front of major polluting industries. There will be pickets. There will be informational leaflet distribution. There will be community canvassing, and in some areas of the country, where there simply hasn't been much political movement in the past, I suspect there will simply be meetings of students with various people who have some knowledge of the environmental crisis for an exchange of information, hopefully with a great many critical questions arising in the audience."

A meeting will be held Tuesday in the Biology Building, room 201 at 7:30 p.m.

Scott emphasizes need for student motivation

Gov. Robert Scott called education "the key to better living" in an address to the 12th Annual Industrial Arts Conference for School Administrators here Friday.

"It is up to the teacher to motivate youngsters to excel in their work, and up to the administration to motivate the teachers," Scott said.

About 130 high school administrators from eastern North Carolina met for the one-day conference. It was designed to acquaint the administrators with industrial and technical education.

"We are recognizing that we have to do more than just keep the potential dropout in schools. We must motivate and stimulate him while he is in school. This is why we have this new program of occupational exploration in the middle grades in 21 school districts," Scott said.

"Basically this is an opportunity for children in as early as the sixth grade to begin to explore the world of work. This leads to selective exploration and eventually to secondary courses in vocational education in specialized areas," Scott said.

The governor traced the upward swing in public school and higher enrollment as well as in the vocational and industrial facilities across the state. He said enrollment in colleges and universities is now three times what it was 20 years ago. Likewise, the dropout rate in public schools is steadily declining.

He emphasized that the public school system must be protected because there is "an awful lot of good coming out of it."

"I urge you as school administrators to tell the people about things going on today in education in North Carolina. I urge you during

ECU delegation attends SSL

Arriving with one of the largest delegations, students from ECU recently participated in the 33rd annual session of the State Student Legislature (SSL) held March 4-7 at the Holiday Inn in Raleigh.

The delegates from 25 Jr. and Sr. colleges in N.C. reviewed legislation as if they were in fact the State General Assembly.

The bills passed by both the House and the Senate in the form of laws are submitted to the General Assembly as resolutions.

In its 33 year history 43 per cent of the bills passed by the SSL have become N.C. law.

John Farrel, president pro tem of the senate from Belmont Abbey said, "We're one of the few student groups that has a record of being listened to."

"This is the most effective way in North Carolina to express the opinion of the young."

Bills which were passed included: a bill lowering the voting age to 18, a bill repealing the soft drink tax, an act prohibiting the down grading of water resources by industry, a bill repealing Blue laws, and an act repealing the death sentence for convictions of rape.

The bill introduced by the ECU delegation, which would have provided for a developmental Campus Planning Commission to be used as a communications link among the state supported schools, was defeated.

Although passing easily in the House, it received much negative debate in the senate from the large state supported and private schools which could not be included in the program.

Those who debated negatively against the bill said that those who would serve on the Board already served in an advisory capacity and that communications were good enough now.

Affirmative debate argued that effective communications between state supported schools did not exist.

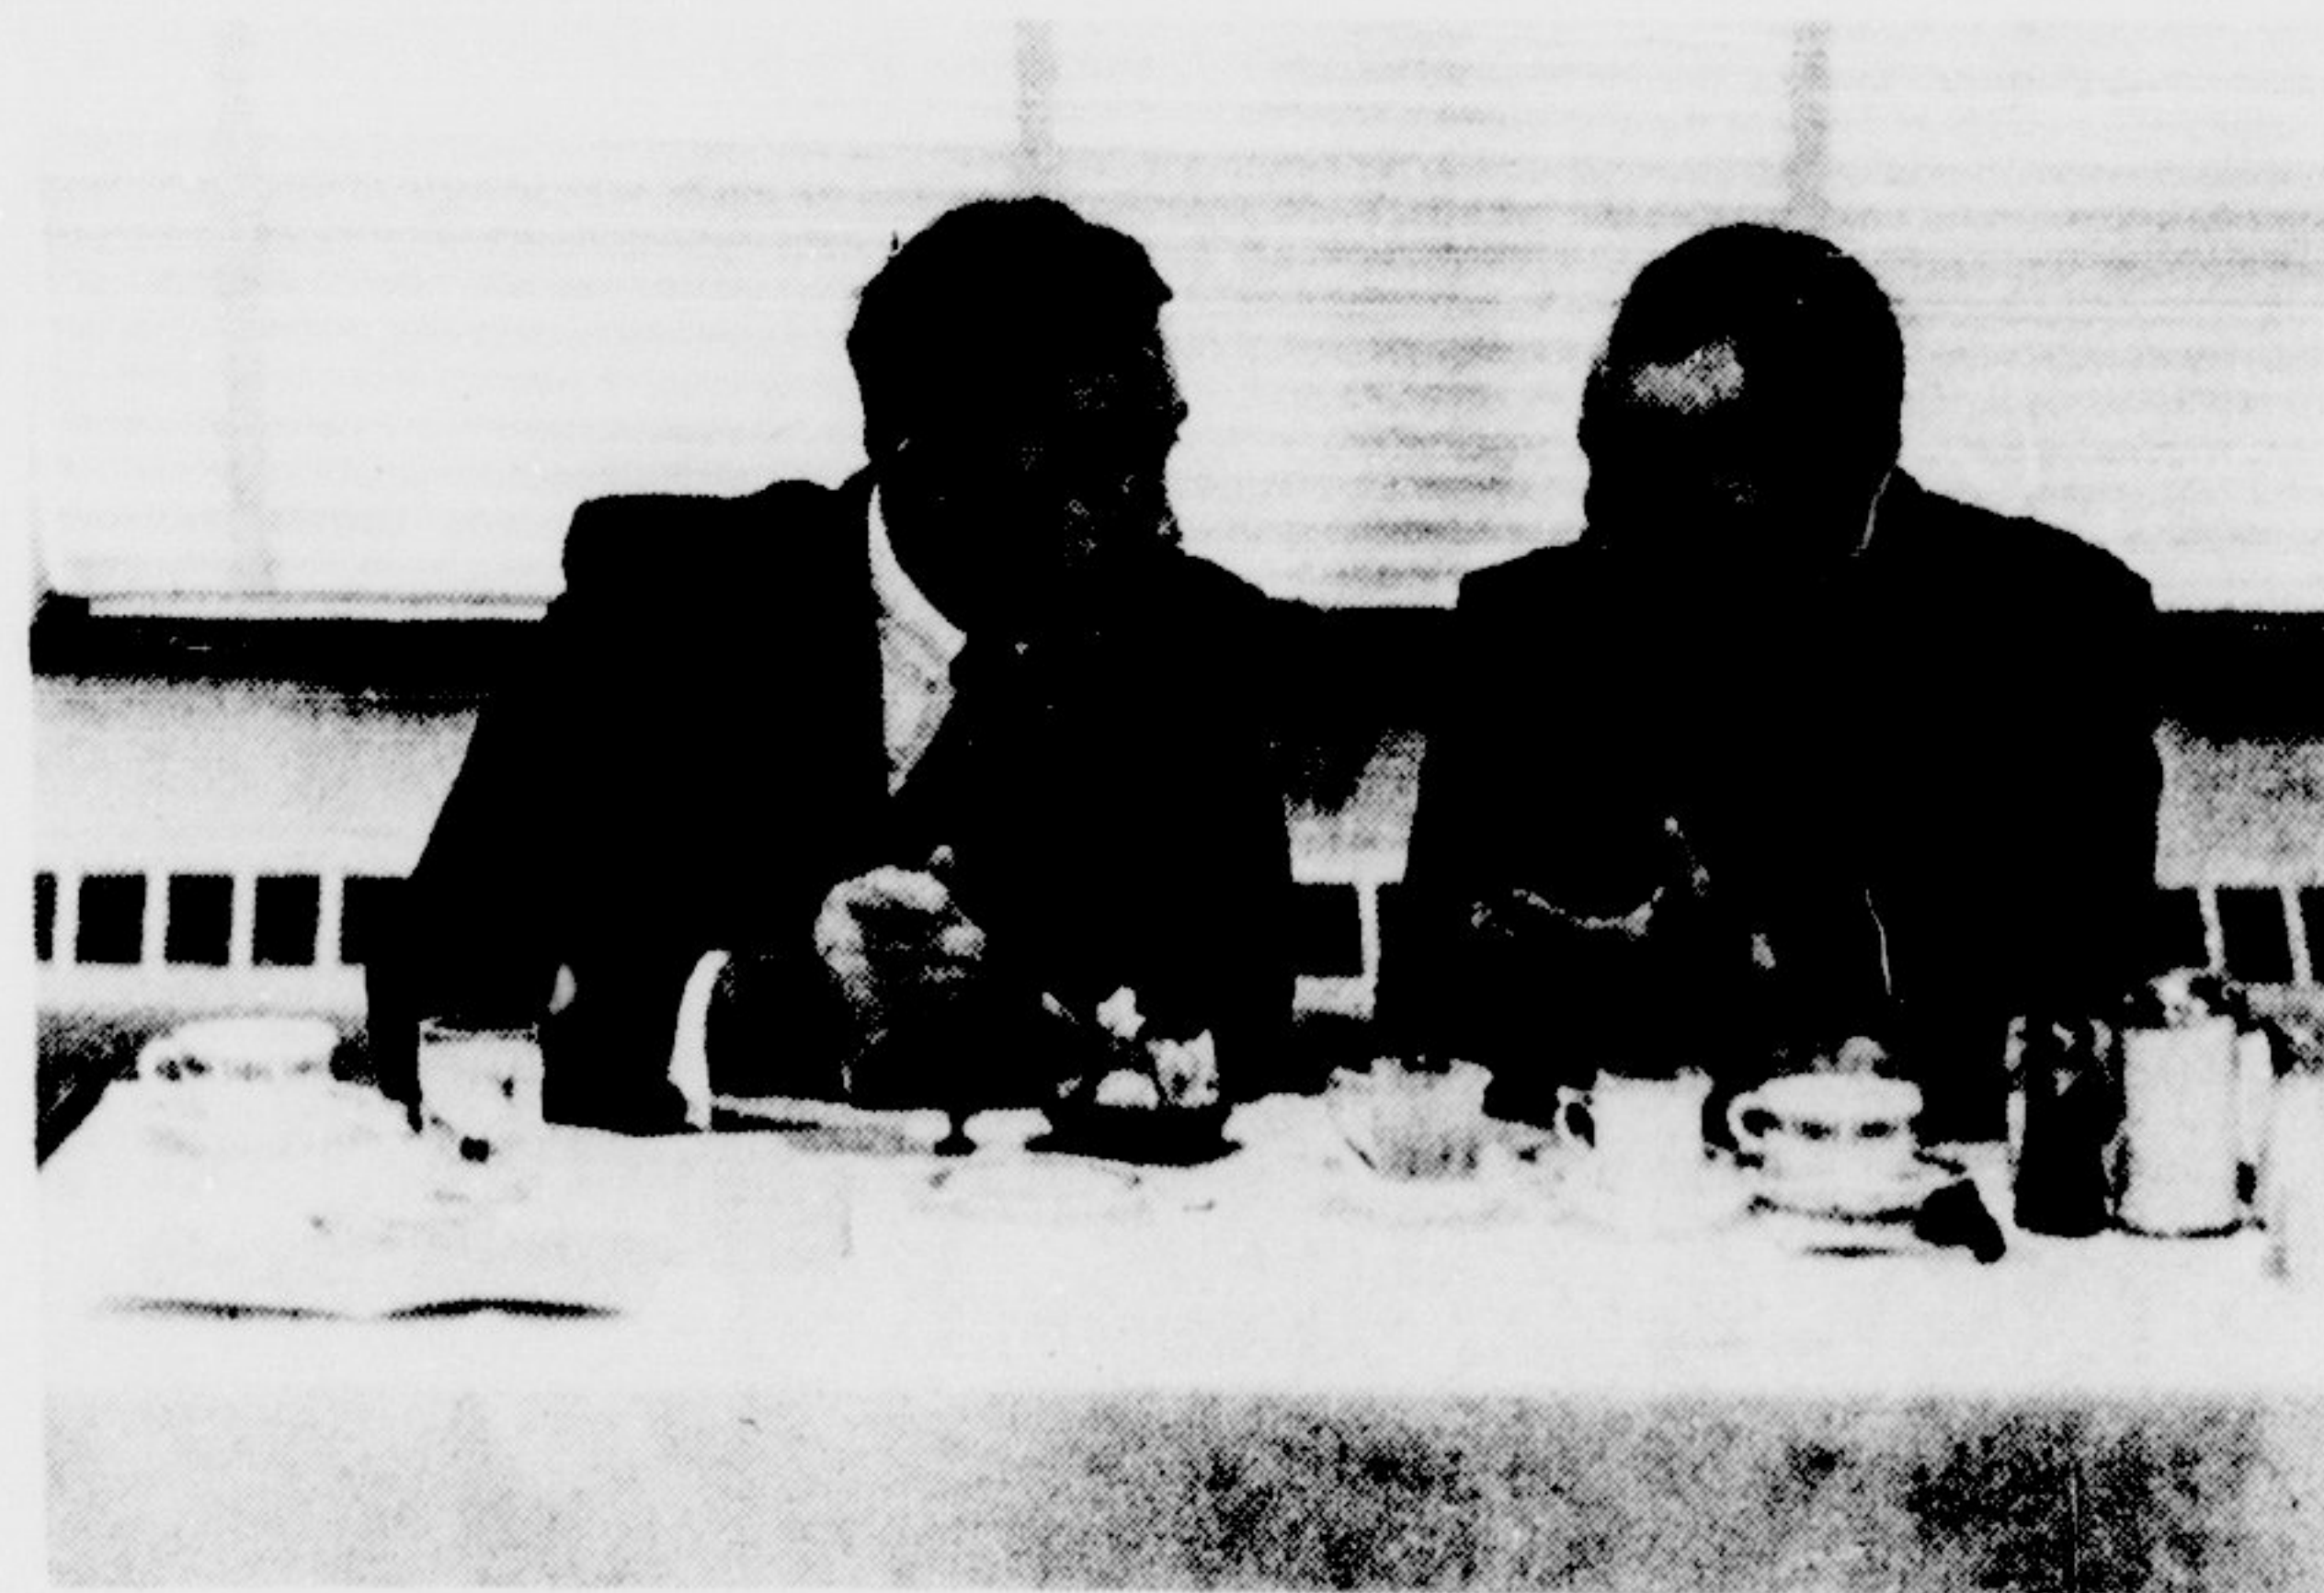

The schools compete with each other voting on awards for the best delegation, which ECU won last year, best speaker of the House, best speaker of the Senate and best bill.

ECU Senator Bob Thonen, debating on nearly every issue, received the award for best Speaker of the Senate.

Several prominent guests spoke to the two bodies of the student legislature. Charles Taylor, minority leader of the N.C. General Assembly said, "We (General Assembly) pay close attention to the bills passed by the SSL."

The joint session also took time to hear a dispute over the firing of two Negro waitresses from the Drummer Boy All American Coffee Shop operated by the Holiday Inn. The waitresses claimed they had been discriminated against.

Equal time was given to the waitresses and to the management to address the body. The legislature chose not to debate the issue, but only to hear the two parties from a standpoint of concerned citizens over the civil rights problem.

GOVERNOR ROBERT SCOTT and President Leo Jenkins discuss the 12th annual Industrial Arts Conference.

these troubled times to do all you can to enlist the support of all people for our schools and for education in North Carolina," Scott told the group.

At the conclusion of his talk, Scott was presented a plaque by President Leo Jenkins. The wooden plaque, made by the Department of Industrial and Technical Education, is to remind Scott of the campus and its needs.

Special guests for the conference also included Dr. Robert Holt, F.D. Duncan, and Dr. Kenneth Bing.

Business 'playing'

East Carolina was one of the universities in the U.S. States and Canada. It matched skills in the 5th Annual Intercollegiate Business Game competition at ECU University in Atlanta.

The Graduate Business Association conducts the game conference each year with support of 21 Atlanta businesses.

This was the fourth ECU's School of Business entered a team in the competition.

The 40 teams are divided into five industries, so each team is competing against seven others, and in the stages against every team.

The ECU team's two faculty advisors were Leland Gustafson and William Kehoe. The students were Canning, a senior; Fred S. junior; Ray Troutman, senior; and Johnny W. senior.

The final part of the game was the company's annual report to the stockholders to a group of participating businessmen.

In this report they were required to explain how their business and what financial credits and debts for the past year.

This year's speakers for the competition included Walter Beran, a partner in Ernst and Ernst; R. Callaway, Jr. president of Callington Industries, Inc.,

Business students 'playing games'

East Carolina was one of 40 universities in the United States and Canada who matched skills in the 5th annual Intercollegiate Business Game competition at Emory University in Atlanta.

The Graduate Business Association conducts the game and conference each year with the support of 21 Atlanta businesses.

This was the fourth year ECU's School of Business has entered a team in the competition.

The 40 teams are divided into five industries, so that each team is competing against seven others, and in the final stages against every team.

The ECU team's two faculty advisors were Leland V. Gustafson and William J. Kehoe. The students were Tim Canning, a senior; Fred Smith, a junior; Ray Troutman, a senior; and Johnny Wages, a senior.

The final part of the game was the company's annual report to the stockholders, given to a group of participating businessmen.

In this report they were required to explain how they ran their business and what their financial credits and debts were for the past year.

This year's speakers during the competition included Walter Beran, a partner with Ernst and Ernst; Ely R. Callaway, Jr. president of Burlington Industries, Inc., and Dr.

Clark E. Myers, dean of Emory's School of Business Administration.

The students met representatives from such firms as IBM, RCA, American Oil, Mead Packaging, Sears, Southern Bell, and Ernst and Ernst in a job interview situation.

Kehoe said that the team made "a very favorable showing" although they didn't place.

Notre Dame placed first this year with Harding College, last year's winner, right behind.

ECU does remember one year they took the first place trophy—1968.

Study in Germany aids student learning

Three programs for studying in Germany are available to qualified students, according to Dr. Henry Wanderman, chairman of the German department.

Wanderman said that his department acts as liaison between interested ECU students and sponsors of the programs.

Credit for these programs is given by the sponsoring schools and transferred to ECU. Effort is made to provide financial assistance if needed.

The third program is a summer session. Credit varies and is given by ECU directly. The cost is $650 all-inclusive, and no financial aid is offered.

The value of such programs, said Wanderman, is the opportunity they provide for first-hand understanding of the German people, their customs and culture.

Wanderman emphasized that programs for studying abroad are not vacations, and are to be approached seriously. However, he said, "Learning and having fun need not conflict." And learning experience is enriched by enjoyment, he added.

$100,000 received for planetarium

East Carolina has received a $100,000 grant from the American Credit Corporation Foundation for the construction of a planetarium.

The announcement was made at a breakfast at the Greenville Golf and Country Club the morning of the eclipse by Sen. Herman Moore of Mecklenburg County.

The donation is subject to at least $200,000 in matching funds.

Jenkins said that the grant is the "largest gift ever received in the history of this great institution."

The plans for the planetarium now call for a planetarium chamber, exhibition room, and observatory.

Catacombs to present play

"Reach For Glory," the story of a sadistic group of boys, will be presented at the Catacombs Coffee House Saturday, March 21, at 9 p.m.

During World War II, thousands of British children were evacuated from London and sent to small towns on the east coast of England. This film is the story of one gang of youngsters misplaced by the war.

The sadism latent in the boys is waiting to be triggered by some disorder.

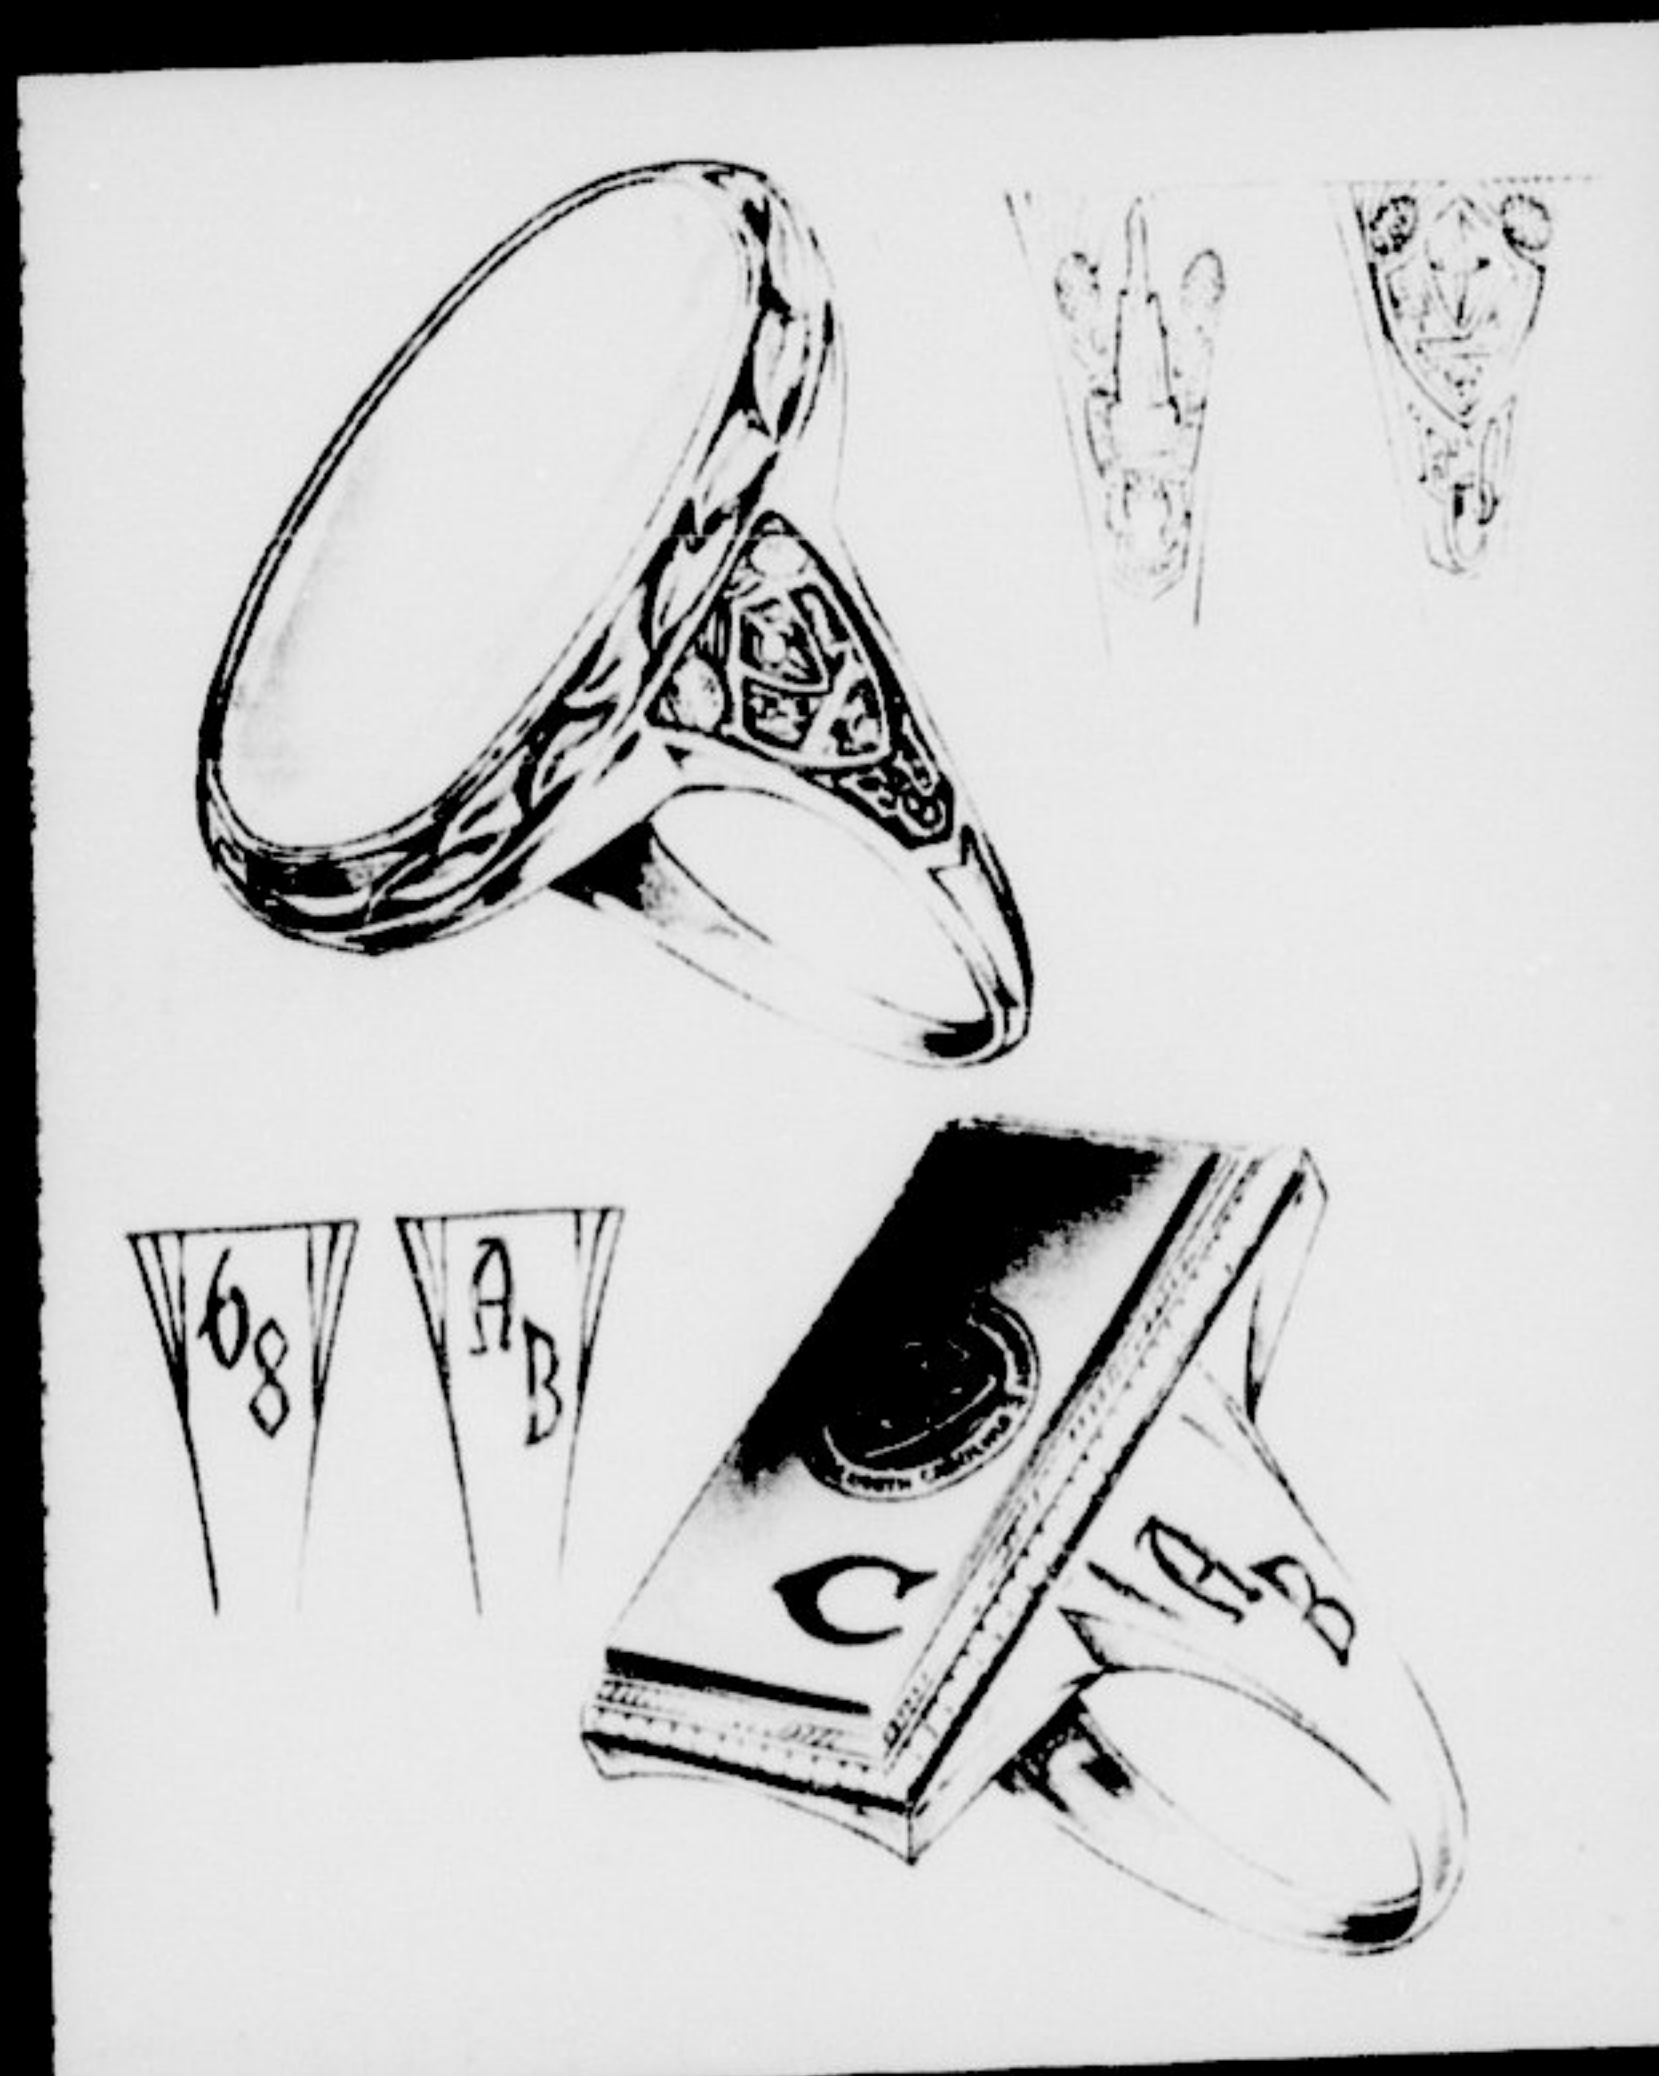

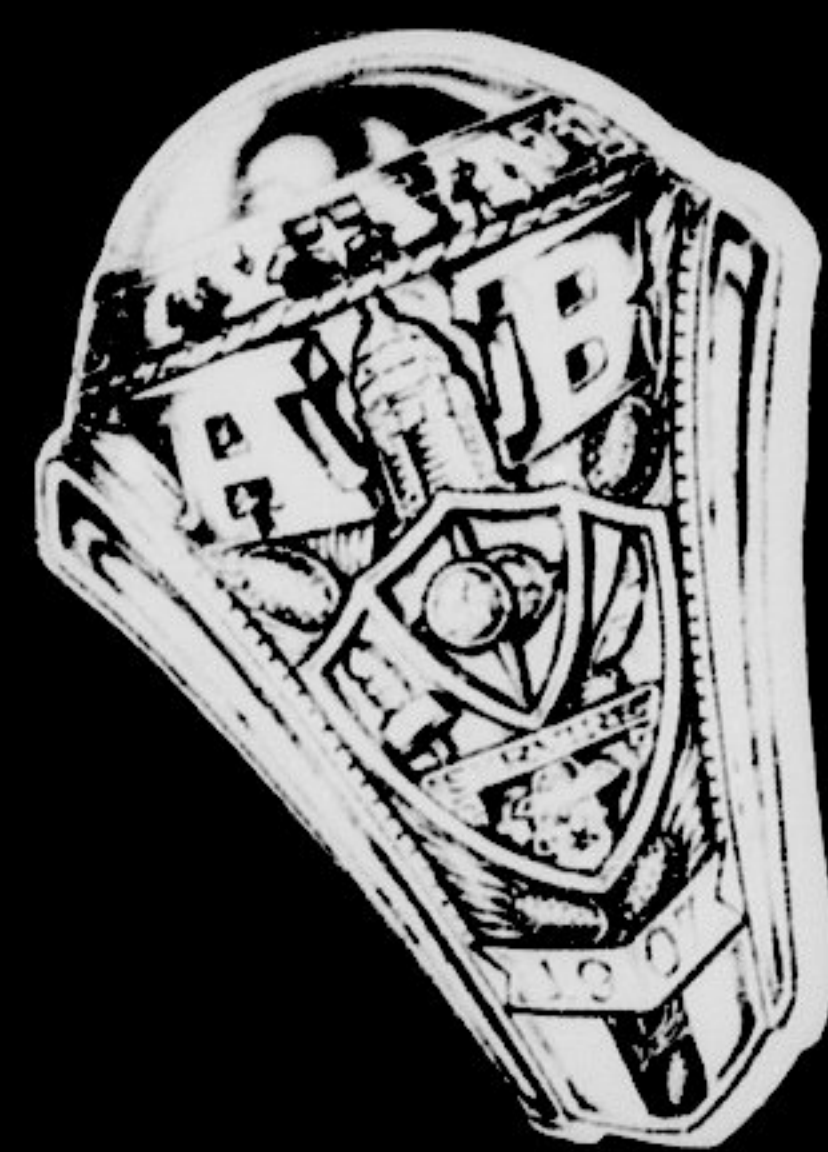

Upset because they are not old enough to join the army, the boys find an outlet in making their own war against the local children and organizing sadistic raids against stray animals.

The Coffee House is at 501 E. Fifth St. It opens at 8 p.m.

A special open hearing of the sub-committee on reorganization of the Publication Board will be held Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m.

The meeting was scheduled to give students an opportunity to express their opinions on campus publications.

Mermen cop conference crown; Griffin 'outstanding swimmer'

By DON TRAUSNECK
Sports Editor

The Pirates have won it again.

For the fifth straight year, East Carolina has captured the Southern Conference Swimming and Diving Championship. The Pirates took the title in a meet held here during the vacation.

The victory was won in spite of the strongest showing ever by runner-up William and Mary. When it was all over, the Pirates had collected 603 points to 536 for the Indians, 289 for VMI, and 162 for Davidson.

East Carolina had taken an overwhelming lead after the first two days of the three day event, but a strong showing by William and Mary in the 200-yard backstroke, in which Ken Hungate was the only Pirate to finish among the top six (he placed third), cut the gap to within 18 points.

The Bucs dominated the last four events, however, to clinch the triumph—perhaps the sweetest win ever for the Pirate mermen.

As usual, Jim Griffin was an outstanding performer for the Pirates. He captured individual championships in the 100, 200, and 500-yard freestyle and eclipsed his won conference record in each event.

In addition, Griffin anchored the winning 400 and 800-yard relay teams, giving the Pirates needed points in each event and enabling the 400-yard relay team to break the previous conference record.

For his fine performance, the Norfolk, Va., sophomore was named the Outstanding Swimmer of the Meet for the second straight year.

NORRIS TRIPLE WINNER

The Pirates could not do it with only one swimmer, though, and Griffin had a capable supporting cast. Wayne Norris was also a triple winner, setting two conference records. Bob Baird captured both diving events. Steve Weissman and Garry Frederick were the only other individual winners for the Pirates, who won 12 of the 18 events contested.

Norris captured the 200-yard butterfly and the 400-yard individual medley, smashing the existing record in each. He also took the 200-yard individual medley, missing the mark by less than four-tenths of a second.

After capturing the three-meter dive, which didn't count for team points, but counted for the individual championship, Baird turned in a fine performance on the one-meter board, taking it with 411.35 points. Doug Emerson was second and Sonny Culbreth fourth in each event.

FREDERICK SETS RECORD

Weissman won the 100-yard breast stroke, missing the record by half a second, and Frederick captured the longest event, the 1650 freestyle, setting another conference mark. In all, there were eight records shattered in the meet, seven by the Pirates.

The final score was closer than expected, much too close for comfort when the Indians staged their apparent comeback. Part of the reason for William and Mary's fine showing was the tremendous depth the Indians have in all events except diving.

William and Mary had completed the season undefeated in dual meet competition as compared to the Pirates 7-6, although it should be mentioned that the Bucs competed against much stronger schools.

During this past weekend, the swimmers that qualified traveled to Hanover, N.H., for the Eastern Seaboard Championships.

Club begins drive; expects increase

The Pirates Club will launch its fund raising drive April 6 in an attempt to raise $50,000 to support the East Carolina athletic fund. The Drive is expected to net an increase of $12,000 over last years contributions.

"The Club will support all 13 sports at ECU. We're not just supporting football...we're supporting basketball and swimming and track and all the other teams of the university," said Ed Rawl, president of the clubs.

He said that the money the Pirate Club hopes to raise will go mostly for grant-in-aid scholarships—something for which state funds cannot be used.

"We've got some great new coaches here at ECU," said Rawl, "and they are going to get some great players to wear Pirate uniforms. But to get the great players you have to give scholarships...and you have to raise money to pay for these scholarships."

The money will be collected on a person-to-person drive.

Shul, Pinnell gain laurels ; ECU ranked sixth nationally

Brian Shul placed first in the "A" division and Doug Pinnell second in the "B" division of the Southern Intercollegiate Handball Tournament Feb. 20-22 at the University of Tennessee.

This was one of four regional tournaments. The winners and runners up went to Chicago for the National Collegiate Tournament. Because of a money shortage, East Carolina was not able to enter a doubles team.

The finals pitted Shul against his Louisville opponent in the "A" division and Pinnell against South Florida in the "B" division. Losing by a mere four points in what was perhaps the most exciting match of the tournament, Pinnell placed second. Shul then took his championship, shutting out his opponent, two games to none.

As a result of the individual accomplishments of these men, who posted a 13-2 won-lost record, East Carolina had outscored all other schools for the team championship.

Back from their triumph in Knoxville, Shul and Pinnell began preparing for the nationals in Chicago. Again, because of insufficient funds, the boys were forced to solicit funds from around the campus.

Accompanied only by their trainer, Dave Pence, the boys made the trip to the Windy City, paying their own way.

In the "B" division, Pinnell finished seventh in a tough field. Mike Dau, tournament director, commended both boys for their excellent performance against the finest college players in the country.

In Chicago, Shul and Pinnell played with the same determination against much keener competition. In the "A" division, Shul was placed against the top 18 players in the nation and finished sixth, placing East Carolina sixth nationally.

KLH Offers Something New, Just For The Record.

FOR all those people who think of the phonograph record as the source for music at home, KLH offers something new — a great-sounding all-out kind of phonograph that's just a phonograph.

The new KLH Model Twenty-Six has no built-in radio (AM or FM) or tape recorder or home intercom. What it does have is a level of performance that isn't supposed to come in something as simple as a stereo phonograph. Inside it are the solid-state electronics usually reserved for an ambitious sound system, and the sort of speakers that aren't provided by many more expensive systems and radio-phonograph combinations.

The specifics of the Model Twenty-Six include a Garrard automatic turntable made for KLH, a Pickering magnetic cartridge with diamond stylus, a 20-watt (40 watts ELA) solid-state stereo amplifier, and a pair of two-way acoustic-suspension speaker systems identical except for appearance to those of the best-selling Model Twenty-Four stereo system.

If you should decide later to add a tape deck or an AM-FM tuner, the Model Twenty-Six has all the controls and jacks you will need for them. But it doesn't force you, now or later, to pay for anything you may not want.

All you have, then, is a simple and unobtrusive three-piece stereo phonograph. Maybe the best you've ever heard. Come in and see.

Carlester 'prize catch'

Coach Mike McGee was fortunate last week to land a prize catch for East Carolina's ever-improving football program.

In a press conference held in Wilson, McGee announced the signing of Carlester Crumpler for a full four-year grant-in-aid to play football for the pirates.

This was perhaps the best news in the history of East Carolina sports. Carlester, or "C. C. Ryder," as he is known by his friends, has led his high school, Ralph L. Fike of Wilson, to the state 4-A football championship for the past three years.

Carlester's accomplishments on the football field for Fike were numerous. In three years, he carried the ball 580 times, gained 4,283 yards rushing, and scored 42 touchdowns.

The totals for his senior year are even more fantastic. While the Cyclones breezed through 12 opponents for an undefeated season, Carlester gained 2,275 yards, nearly 200 a game, and scored an amazing 28 times.

However, statistics never really tell the true story. Being a resident of Wilson, one of the truly great football towns in America, I have had the good fortune to see Carlester and the Cyclones in action many times.

One has to see this man to really appreciate his tremendous athletic ability. On the field, he is a real fighter. Even when the outcome of the game has already been determined (few of the Cyclones' games were ever really close), he never gives up. He keeps fighting for those extra yards.

One of his better games last fall came against Greenville Rose. The key play of the game was Carlester's 88-yard touchdown jaunt. It had appeared that he was stopped by about five tacklers, but he just cut back, stopped in his tracks for a few seconds, and then showed his tremendous broken field running as he continued on his way.

Carlester can score from just about anywhere on the field and in any manner possible. In four successive ball games last fall, he came up with scores of 80 yards or better.

Not only is Carlester an exceptional running back but his ability as a punt and kickoff return specialist has never been doubted. Against arch-rival Rocky Mount, he returned a punt 98 yards for a score. On one other occasion, he raced 101 yards to pay dirt with a kickoff only to have it called back for a clipping penalty.

During his junior year at Fike, Carlester led the team in pass receptions with 20. This may not sound like much, but for a team that runs the ball as much as Fike does, this is quite an accomplishment.

In addition to being a triple threat offensively, "C.C." can kill a team on defense. In a late-season game, when people were talking about the possibilities of a perfect season, he intercepted a pass on the last play of the first half and took it 31 yards for the score. The play broke open what had been a 6-0 ballgame.

Carlester's ability has not only been seen on the football field but in his other sports as well. As captain of the basketball team the last two years, The 6'4" center was Fike's leading scorer and rebounder. He was also the state champion in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of 14.6 seconds.

Carlester received many post-season honors last fall. He was named to four high school All-America teams, including the one selected by Scholastic Coach Magazine. In addition, he played in the Shrine Bowl game and scored the winning touchdown, for which he won the most valuable player award.

This summer, Carlester will be playing in the East-West All-Star game in Greensboro. In the fall, he will be playing freshman ball for Henry Trevathan, who was his coach at Fike the last three years.

Baseball season opens; Pirates bow, 1-0, to Duke

By DON TRAUSNECK
Sports Editor

The Pirate baseball team went into its opener with Duke Saturday with hopes of having another fine season based on an improved hitting attack.

When it was all over, however, the Pirates had fallen victim to a one-hitter, 1-0. Only Stan Sneed, who drilled a two-out single in the second, hit safely for the Pirates, and only five other batters reached base, all on walks.

Fortunately for the Pirates this was a non-conference game. They have until April 4 to get ready for their first conference opponent.

A fine young crop of pitchers led by Ron Hastings, who started Saturday and worked six strong innings, is expected to give the Bucs added strength this year. In addition, coach Earl Smith noted that the fielding has improved over previous seasons.

Hastings, who allowed only one hit, a lead-off single in the third, was removed in favor of Hal Beard to start the seventh. Beard immediately got into control trouble as he allowed the Blue Devils to score the game's only run without a base-hit. A walk, a hit batter, and two sacrifices brought about the score.

In addition to the single allowed by Hastings, only one other Duke batter hit safely in the sluggish contest, played before 200 fans who braved a chilly wind. The Devils were able to come up with harmless single in the top of the eighth.

This being an even year, superstitious Pirate fans are hoping for history to repeat itself. For the last six years, the Pirates have been particularly strong in even-numbered years.

In 1964, the Pirates received an at-large bid to the NCAA playoffs. In 1966 and again in 1968, they won the Southern Conference championship. With that in mind, if everything shapes up as well as anticipated, this should be the 36th straight winning season for the Pirates.

PIRATE HOPES FOR the 1970 baseball season rest on a better balanced hitting attack, led by Dick Corrada (above), Stu Garret, and Roy Taylor.

Trackmen strong

Led by one of the finest freshmen teams in the South, the 1970 edition of the East Carolina track and field squad anticipates an exciting season.

Coach Bill Carson called the upcoming season promising, but he pointed out that spring football, injuries, and inexperience will hinder the Bucs in the early going.

The running events, which were the strong point of last years squad, will feature man, young Buc cindersmen. Leading the way in the sprints will be Mark Hamilton, Bill Mitchell, and Les Strayhorn. All three will be splitting their time in the early going between track and football.

Pirates conclude 16-10 campaign; Miller, Modlin, All-Conference

By DON TRAUSNECK
Sports Editor

The season ended too soon. What was perhaps the best Pirate basketball team ever lost its chance to prove it when Richmond pulled a 75-73 upset in the first round of the Southern Conference tournament.

For seniors Tom Miller and Jim Modlin, ending brilliant careers for East Carolina, it marked the end of any hopes they had of seeing the Pirates knock Davidson off the Southern Conference throne.

The team finished 16-10. This was not the winningest team for East Carolina as last year's squad finished 17-11. However, this year's record was achieved against as rugged a schedule as any in the area. When a team plays such schools as South Carolina, Jacksonville, North Carolina State, and Old Dominion, it can't expect to finish much better than the Pirates did.

Modlin wound up as the team's leading scorer with an average of 18.5 points a game. Miller, who was the first Pirate ever to be honored by making the All-Conference first team, was second in scoring with 17.8. Modlin was named to the second team All-Conference.

Jim Fairley, a sophomore, led the team in field goal shooting, hitting 51.7 per cent of his shots, and in rebounding, collecting 12.1 a game. Jim Gregory, a junior, hit 69.2 per cent of his free throw attempts to lead the Bucs in that department.

Grapplers second; lose to Indians

By CARL CHESTNUTT

The East Carolina wrestling squad finished its last bout of the 69-70 season placing second in the Southern Conference Tournament.

William and Mary, though previously beaten by the Pirates in the regular season, was able to squeeze by them in a close match and retain its crown as conference champions.

The campaign presented for the grapplers the toughest schedule ever, but through hard work and determination to win, they posted a 9-1-1 record for the season, the best ever compiled by a Pirate wrestling team.

The Pirates have proven themselves worthy of recognition. This has certainly been a team effort.

Winter intramurals conclude

By ALEC FRENCH

Tuckerstein's Raiders won their second intramural championship of the year, edging the Bike's, 75-73, in the basketball tournament final. The Raiders had won the football championship in the fall with an 11-0 record.

Kappa Sigma outclassed 14 other teams to win the volleyball championship. The Sigs had a 10-0 record while runner-up Theta Chi went 8-1.

The wrestling title went to Phi Epsilon Kappa, which nipped Lambda Chi Alpha, 14-13. AFOTC wound up in third place with 11 points.

Pi Kappa Phi trounced eight other teams to capture the swimming championship with 74 points. Lambda Chi Alpha was the runner-up with 37 points. The winners claimed individual champions in the diving event, 50-yard breaststroke, and 200-yard freestyle relay.

In bowling, Phi Kappa Tau finished first in the final team standings. Phi Kappa Tau had a final record of 22-6 and claimed the high team game for the season with 921. Dave Van Hoy rolled a 232 for high individual game.

Golf rosters are due March 26, tennis and horseshoe rosters are due April 3 and track rosters are due April 6.

A copy machine that reduces theft? Apparently so, Periodicals Librarian, Mrs. Anne S. Briley believes.

Used to be a time when students with lengthy assignments or term papers would measure the length of all articles to be read, scan the periodicals room of Joyner for suspicious-looking eyes, quickly stuff the magazine issue into their notebooks, and make paths for home.

Exceptionally brave culprits tore entire pages of certain issues before trodding back to the dorms.

East India film scheduled tonight

By SEAN McEVAN

"The World of Apu" is the third, and, critics agree, the best, in a trilogy of films on East Indian life.

It was produced, directed, and adapted for the screen by Satyajit Ray. Music is composed and played by Ravi Shankar. The dialog is Bengali with English subtitles.

Although "Apu" develops the theme of the earlier films ("Pather Panchali" and "Aparajito"), it can be appreciated independently. Taken from a novel by Bibhutibhusan Bannerji, "Apu" is the moving story of an Indian writer—his love, marriage, career, and his relationships with his wife and son.

Arthur Knight in Saturday Review says, "Ray establishes relationships with a tact and tenderness that are ineffably moving...and Ravi Shankar has once more contributed an excitingly exotic score." The New York Post said, "Anyone who has loved, lost a loved one, or loved a child will want to see 'The World of Apu'...one of the loveliest intimations of the whole world of love and marriage that the movies have ever shown."

The movie has won the President of India's Gold Medal for Best Film of the Year, the Sutherland Award for the Most Imaginative and Most Original Film at the London Film Festival and the Special Commendation at the Ontario Film Festival in 1960.

The film will be shown tonight in Wright Auditorium at 8:00. Admission for students and faculty will be by ID cards, and film passes for staff.

lacebacking as she has only person to handle all of the incomplete volumes.

The Underwood copy machine, she thinks, has reduced the amount of "missing" magazine issues. "Students now pay a few cents to have articles copied rather than running the risk of being caught by the desk attendant," she said.

Even with the copy machine, problems of incomplete volumes persist.

Students steal magazines ranging from "Ramparts," to the "Saturday Review" and "The Journal of Philosophy."

To reduce the outflow of magazines, 80 magazines have been placed behind the periodicals large desk.

Mrs. Briley says, "We've asked faculty members to warn us if they are requiring current reading so we can place them on reserve."

"A class may be told to read something at 9 a.m. and by noon, it would be gone."

She added that methods of security have been discussed, but they were too expensive.

And thus far, no one has been caught...

"Yet," added a student assistant.

THE COPY MACHINE in the periodicals department of the library will hopefully discourage students from stealing magazines.

Our Far East policy brings people together.

The Jade East manifesto. Its aim: to bring men and women all over the world closer together.

Our policy would allow for all sorts of skirmishes, territorial gains and conquests. And still keep the peace.

Just put some Jade East on your face and neck. And anywhere else. If you've got a girlfriend, take her out as planned. If you're seeing a few girls, do whatever it is you're doing.

Now comes the best part. Since all girls are different, all reactions will be different. Some will be aggressive. Others, submissive. But whether our policy leads to final agreement or not, one thing's for sure.

The negotiations alone will be worth the price.

The legends of Ireland,

By KAREN BLANSFIELD

Atop an isolated limestone rock, at the junction of the Blarney and Coomaun Rivers in County Cork, Ireland, stands an old castle, called Blarney Castle.

The castle, the third one on the site, was built by Cormac Laidhr McCarthy, the lord of Muskerry, on the foundations of the second castle, which had been constructed in 1200.

At one time it was the strongest in Munster—one of the five early traditional divisions of Ireland—but it later became the object of several sieges.

During the 17th century, it was captured by Henry Ireton, the commander of Oliver Cromwell's Irish campaign. Then, in the latter part of the century, the army of King William III wrecked a large portion of the castle. The walls are 18 feet thick in some places.

BLARNEY STONE

High up in the castle is a massive square tower with a battlement and machicolations. On the sill of one of the machicolations on the south side of the tower sits the famous Blarney Stone. It bears the Latin inscription, Cormac McCarthy fortis mi fieri fecit A.D. 1446 (Cormac McCarthy caused me to be built strong in 1446.)

According to legend, anyone who kisses the stone is endowed with powers of fluency and eloquence, commonly called "blarney." Where the legend originated, no one knows. No mention of it has been found before the 18th century.

But it is thought that the association of the name Blarney with the "gift of gab" dates from the beginning of the 17th century, during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I.

NEGOTIATIONS

The Queen was negotiating unsuccessfully with Dermot McCarthy, the Lord of Blarney and owner of the castle. One day, after she received a particularly evasive letter from McCarthy, she supposedly exclaimed, "This is more Blarney!"

Kissing the Blarney Stone requires some physical dexterity, a definite immunity to acrophobia, and a lot of courage. To perform this feat, a person must lie on his back and hang head down from the battlements.

LEGENDS ABOUND

The legend of the Blarney Stone is but one of the many legends which abound in Ireland.

(Art by Lee Armstrong)

It is here that the shamrock grows—the three-leaf clover which symbolizes the Holy Trinity, thus supposedly giving it magical powers of good luck.

The Irish countryside is where the Banshee women dwell. These are spirits which appear to warn of approaching death by wailing unseen beneath a window of the house where the death is about to occur.

LEPRACHAUNS

And this is the land of leprachauns, the fairies which appear in the form of little old men wearing cocked hats and leather aprons.

These wrinkled little men were rich and very cranky. They lived alone in remote places, spending their time making shoes and brogues for the shees, other fairies of Ireland. In most of the stories about them, it was the noise of their hammering that betrayed their whereabouts.

According to one legend, if a person is lucky enough to catch a leprachaun, the leprachaun must grant him three wishes. If the person asks for only two of the wishes, the leprachaun will fulfill them.

However, if the person is greedy, and asks for all three at once, the fairy will not grant any of them, and the person will lose all control over him.

HIDDEN GOLD

Every leprachaun was believed to possess a hidden pot of gold. If captured and threatened with violence, he could be made to reveal the gold's hiding place—but only if the captor kept his eyes on him all the time.

If (as usually happened) he was tricked into glancing away, the fairy instantly vanished, leaving his secret untold.

One of the stories connected with the legend of the leprachaun tells of a young Irish boy named Sean.

One sunny afternoon, as Sean was walking down a country road in Killarney, he heard the sound of hammering. He stopped and listened, and then stole quietly toward the sound.

He saw a large rock, peered around it, and sure enough, behind it sat a leprachaun, whistling merrily as he hammered away at his shoes.

With a quick move, Sean reached down and grabbed the little man in his fist. "Ah-ha!" he cried, gazing intently at the leprachaun. "I've got you now. Tell me where your gold is hidden."

"Ay, that I will," the little fellow replied with a gleam in his eye. "Do ye see that twisted tree over there by the pond?"

"Oh, no," Sean replied. "You're not going to trick me into looking away. You must take me to your treasure."

The leprachaun reluctantly agreed, and told Sean where to go. Sean followed his directions, never once removing his gaze from him.

Soon they came to a big field, which had once been a forest, but was now filled with tree stumps. The leprachaun pointed to one of the tree stumps and said, "Under that stump is hidden my pot of gold."

Sean was very excited, but he realized that he was going to need a shovel to dig up the treasure.

Still keeping his eyes on the leprachaun, he removed a red scarf from his neck and tied it around the stump.

"Now," he said, "I will give you your freedom only if you swear that you will not remove that scarf while I am gone."

Seeing that he had no choice, the leprachaun reluctantly agreed. Sean released him, and hurried home to get a shovel, all the while thinking of the treasure that was soon to be his.

When he returned, he could hardly believe his eyes. His red scarf was still there, but there was a red scarf exactly like his around every tree stump as far as he could see.

The leprachaun won again.

Patrick joined the ship after a three-day journey and the rest of the crew in Brittany. They were hungry, they traveled through desolate lands for weeks. In answer to their prayers, a herd of sheep appeared in the sky and saved them from starvation.

At length, Patrick himself once more returned to his parents, who urged him to leave them again. In a dream Patrick came toward him a letter, the contents of which were "the Irish."

As he read the letter, he heard the voices of the people who were near his place, crying out: "Welcome, holy youth to come once more among us."

Patrick stayed in Ireland, spent the next years preparing to begin his mission, pursuing his work with sincerity and vigor.

RETURN TO

Patrick returned to Ireland in 432 A.D., which marks the beginning of his "golden age" of Irish history.

He began his Gospel in County Down, where he made progress among the common people with no difficulty. The Irish people, who had no religion, began to flock to him.

There are no records of his protests or his struggles against his mission.

Patrick knew that he must also be a man of power. Therefore, he became King of the Irish.

After six years of bondage, he had a dream which told him there was a ship waiting to take him home. He escaped from the pagans and after walking 200 Roman miles he came to a port where a ship lay ready to sail. The captain at first refused him passage, but finally relented.

As he read he seemed to hear the voices of those who were near his place of slavery crying out: "We beseech thee holy youth to come and walk once more amongst us."

Patrick stayed at home, and spent the next 14 years preparing to be a missionary, pursuing his studies with sincerity and vigor.

RETURN TO IRELAND

Patrick returned to Ireland in 432 A.D., a year which marks the beginning of a new and "golden era" in Irish history.

He began teaching the Gospel in County Down, where he made progress with the common people. Patrick had no difficulty converting the Irish people since the old religion lacked discipline.

There are no records of "public protests" or "religious riots" against his mission.

Patrick knew, though, that he must also reach the Irish who held powerful positions. Therefore, he sought the High King of the old religion, the Patrick and his band of teachers swept the country from north to south, and he established his Archbishop at Armagh.

"CONFESSION"

Before he died, Patrick wrote his "Confession," which is an account of his conduct. From the document, one learns that he was accused of lack of higher education, coming to Ireland for money purposes only, and spending money too freely.

Before he came to Ireland, he was recommended as a candidate for the episcopacy. At that time, a certain friend, who had previously favored his elevation, revealed a crime that Patrick had committed in his youth.

Nothing is known of the nature of this sin, but its disclosure brought about his rejection and deeply hurt Patrick.

Despite the accusations, the Irish people honored him for his efforts in the development of Christianity and made him the patron saint of Ireland.

Patrick died at Saul, County Down, March 17, 493 A.D., Downpatrick, the spot where he founded his first church.

Ellington performance 'swings'

By STEPHEN NEAL

One of the greatest jazz orchestra leaders, Duke Ellington, performed here Thursday night.

For more than two hours the 70-year-old conductor kept the audience swinging with his contemporary jazz and blues, with such pieces as La Plus Belle African, April In Paris, the 4:30 Blues and others.

Before Ellington appeared, the band played an excellent version of C-Jam Blues, which set a tempo for the concert that did not drop until after the thirty-minute encore was completed.

Cat Anderson, Wild Bill Davis, Trummy Young and Russell Procope led the band on various numbers with solos on the saxophone, trumpet, bass, flute and other instruments. Lou Bellson on the drums performed a solo near the end of the first act which set the audience rocking to a fever pitch.

After intermission, Ellington presented the vocal pieces, which, like the rest of the concert, were excellent.

Duke Ellington and his concert provided a terrific way to start off spring quarter.

Seminole rock festival will happen on Easter weekend

The first REAL people's music festival is about to happen: the Seminole rock revival.

"Come Together" will happen Easter weekend, in Florida, on Seminole Indian land, to celebrate year one of the New Age.

Everybody in the music world who digs people will be there among the people, including Jefferson Airplane, the Byrds, Canned Heat and the Chambers Brothers.

Maybe you're into Lennon's New Year's message, "come together July 4th or before." Easter is before.

This people's festival is different from Atlanta, Woodstock or other festivals. All of the money from those festivals was channeled into the American hip pocket. The profits from "Come Together" will stay among the Indians, and will also benefit a Yoga institute.

The admission is $5 per head (same for straights), and Indians get in for free.

And the Feds can't get you.

Presidential candidates' views

Editor's note: The following are individual interviews of the candidates for President and Treasurer held by the Fountainhead staff.

What is on your list of priorities for what you plan to accomplish while in office?

Bob Whitley

I think first that the student government needs to make more of an effort to inform the students on what the student government is doing, how the students can become involved and what the student government can do for each student. We in the SGA must realize that there are so many things, though some very small, that the student government can do to benefit the students. For instance, the men on the hill need a lighted pedestrian walkway to Minges, the women in the dorms need support in their effort to abolish or revise many of their regulations, we all need to be guaranteed entertainment tickets at Homecoming, we need to insure the objectivity of our publications, we need to see where our student government money is going, we should be guaranteed that our reading days, scheduled for each quarter next year, be enforced. I think the student government needs to make an effort to increase school spirit in support of our athletics. Probably more important than these, and my last point, is that the student government should make each student feel that his student government is working for his benefit. This can only be done by an active student government—not just a representative student government.

Len Mancini

The very first priority is to see that at least $5,000 gets rechanneled into the emergency loan fund. It is ridiculous when five out of six people who apply for an emergency loan from the SGA get turned away because of lack of money in the fund.

An SGA that could not secure one day per quarter as a reading day does not "cut the mustard." The lame brain excuse that it isn't on the calendar is just that, a lame brain excuse.

Another important priority is to redistribute the funds (that are already available to the SGA) in a more meaningful and efficient manner so that all students would receive the maximum utility from their activity fee. This would then lead to such things as more campus buses.

In specific regards to the dorm students, to initiate a program whereby refrigerators could be put into every room of every dorm at a price less than the current one. Presently the SGA is making $2 per refrigerator rented. The SGA should serve the students, not exploit them.

The SGA should insure that the autonomy of the MRC and WRC is respected. The larger more central government should never take it upon itself to "push around" the smaller more local government.

Finally, but not necessarily least in importance, is to see to it that the school newspaper "play it straight," that is, report the news and not distort it. If they want to call me names on the editorial page, that is their privilege, but it should be confined to the editorial page. I am just asking them to reevaluate themselves not government imposed censorship.

What is your view of the role of the office you seek in regards to the legislature?

Len Mancini

In any government, whether it be the government in Washington, Raleigh or the student government here at ECU, the executive must be the one to set the goals of that government and put it on the road which would ultimately realize these objectives. As speaker of the Legislature, I have already gotten a good working rapport with that body. Therefore, there would be less friction in the student government if I were advanced to the office of president, since I have already worked with the legislature. Simply, it would be easier for me to implement my goals through the legal processes of legislative action.

Bob Whitley

Well, of course, the executive branch is a separate branch from the legislature and throughout our American history the autonomy of each has been protected, but we have got to realize that we can't overlook the sole purpose of our student government—that of protecting the best interests of the students. Many times this year I feel like controversy between the legislative and the executive branches has caused this purpose of the student government to be overlooked. We've got to resort to the fastest and the most efficient way of helping the students, whether it be through executive or legislative channels. The president of the student government, when he feels that the legislative is not doing its job properly, should initiate action to do so. For he should be responsible, first, to the students and not to the legislature.

What have been the major contributions you have made to your present office?

Bob Whitley

I was chairman of the Homecoming parade and I think that this year's parade was the most elaborate that we have ever had. Of course, I don't want to take all of the credit for this because the work of the various organizations, fraternities and sororities made Homecoming the success that it was. As ring chairman, I tried to have more ring sales throughout the year. I tried to make myself available to students who wanted to order rings. I've tried to create more school spirit with the victory bells at Homecoming and various pins to support our athletic teams. I also risked my own personal money to see that we had a pep band at the North Carolina State Basketball game. Probably the thing that I am most proud of is that I have kept my door open to any students who sought advice or who had a gripe. I tried to make the office less bureaucratic and more interested in students.

Len Mancini

As speaker of the Legislature this year, I have initiated a system whereby a set of statute books of all legislation passed would be kept in permanent form. It must be remembered though, unless the executive branch sets the goals of the government, the legislative branch is virtually impotent to act. They must be given something to act upon. This past year, I am sorry to say, no vision was provided by the executive branch and to a certain degree I am fed up with "milk-toast" executives. The speaker is in a unique position because he is high enough within the hierarchy of the SGA to see the inconsistencies, but not high enough to do anything about them.

What are the duties of the office you seek and how do you plan to execute them?

Len Mancini

The duties of the president are to set the goals at the beginning of his administration and see to it that they get carried out. I mentioned what my goals or priorities in the first question of this interview. Since I am a bit older than most of the students on this campus (I spent four years in the service before coming to ECU) I have great contempt for the type of childish bickering the SGA is notorious for engaging in. I feel quite confident about implementing my plans as quickly and smoothly as possible. Also, I think the people in the administration would be more receptive to a person with my particular background. I dislike being shoved aside even by Ph.D's.

Bob Whitley

Of course, the president is responsible for the appointment of the various student government committees and the cabinet. I'd like to see people appointed to these positions who are interested in working and I don't want to make these appointments political or personal. Our president also represents all the students in all of the formal functions of the University. Perhaps the most important duty, and it's probably not in the constitution, is that the president must be familiar with the students and their needs. In my platform, I've suggested regular press conferences which would give both the student and the press a chance to question the president and to find out what is going on. Also, a weekly article in the Fountainhead by the head of the student government would help bridge the communications gap that now exists.

One of the largest disputes in the SGA this year has been over the power of the Publications Board. What is your view of this dispute and your opinions on solving it?

Bob Whitley

Well, during the campaign I've discovered that many students have gripes concerning our publications and I definitely think we need to change the structure of our publications board. The board should consist of interested students who could look at our publications objectively. It should not include as regular voting members the editors of the publications. We've got to remember that East Carolina's reputation outside of campus is determined a great deal by our publications. We need to protect our various All-American ratings but we should, at the same time, guarantee students worthwhile publications.

Len Mancini

The problem that arose over the publications Board concerned the interpretation of its By-Laws. The speaker develops a rather intricate knowledge of such aspects of the legislative process. I know exactly what needs to be clarified so that all concerned will be satisfied. It should be remembered, according to the Constitution, that the Review Board has original jurisdiction in ultimately interpreting the laws. However, I think the needed clarification concerning the Publications Board By-Laws need not reach that "last-ditch" point.

Candidates for President and

What is your view of the administration in correlation with the student government?

Len Mancini

I have said many times in the past that the words SGA should mean Student Government Association but rather Students Governing with the Administration. They say students should act like adults. Perhaps if they were treated as such there would be less hostility. As stated earlier, I sincerely believe the people in the Administration would be more receptive to a person with my background. If I didn't think they would, then I wouldn't even entertain any ideas of running for office.

Bob Whitley

In carrying out its purpose of serving the student, the student government will often times run into direct conflict with the Administration. As president, and if assured that I had the best interest of the student in mind, I would not hesitate to confront any member of the Administration or faculty. We have a strong student government on paper, but in actuality it is only as strong as we want to make it.

Concerning the student apathy, what do you feel should be done to interest the students in participating in voting, etc.?

Bob Whitley

I think often times we are too hasty to label students as being apathetic. I'm sure that there are many who can be called apathetic, but there are many more who are interested and only need a chance to be exposed and informed about our student government. Throughout the campaign I have tried to contact, personally, as many students as possible to tell them what I'd like to see our student government do. I only hope that they will examine the issues and objectively cast their vote.

Len Mancini

I think sometimes the word apathy is a bit overdone. Simply because a student is apathetic to the SGA doesn't necessarily mean he is apathetic. His interests might be in intramurals or some club or fraternal organization. To each his own. This is a University, if people can't do their own thing then what can they do?

Are there any changes you would propose in the SGA and what are they?

Len Mancini

Very simply, a government is only as good as the people in it. I suggest that a substantial number of the people in the SGA, especially in the executive branch either grow up or learn to control their tendencies toward meaningless bickering.

Bob Whitley

Of course, I've mentioned it before, the biggest change would be to establish a student government that does things and not just talks about things. If students ask themselves what their student government was doing for them, I'm afraid the answer would be "too little." This needs to be changed and it can only be changed with progressive leadership, with innovation and with a strong desire to stand up for the rights of the students.

Treasurer Candidates

What is on your list of priorities for what you plan to accomplish while in office?

Steve Sharpe

-A-I feel a financial statement of the SGA budget should appear in the Fountainhead at least one a week and that copies of the budget should be distributed to all dorms and the strategic locations for day students.

-B-I feel that there should be a substantial increase in the emergency loan fund to benefit the total student body.

-C-I feel that a third bus that can alternate between the women's dorms and the hill during the school day should be added with the possibility of one of the three running on Saturdays. I would like to see the buses run a more complete route of the University than at present. This would not mean an increase in the activity fee for students. The additional bill could be paid for by the excess revenue coming in from the refrigerator rentals.

-D-I feel that some type of "Mixers" sponsored by the boys' and girls' dorms would serve to decrease apathy and the impression of a "suitcase University." Since the SGA would be in charge of only the coordination of such a program, no additional expense would be necessary.

Jim Watts

I don't think that any one candidate can come up with a list of priorities. It takes the executive council to do so and that cannot be adhered to strictly because the executive council must be able to respond to the needs of the students as they arise.

Areas that I think should receive special consideration are the transportation systems, publications and the expanded role of the student government.

John Cooper

1. Aid in reducing the prices of concert tickets 50 per cent. This, at the same time, would give the students priority on tickets. This will be done by having two shows on the same evening—doubling the capacity of Minges Coliseum.

2. Publish monthly budgets to show the students where their money will be going the following month and where it went during the past month.

3. To get students to communicate with the SGA officers.

4. To acquire a third transit bus to alleviate the crowded conditions.

5. Any suggestions or ideas that a student may have will be presented to the officers. For example, the basketball nets on "the hill" are in unplayable condition, but no one in the SGA was aware of this until a few students informed me of this during my campaign. Matters of this nature can be handled quickly if only you inform the student government of the situations.

What is your view of the role of the office you seek in regards to the legislature?

Steve Sharpe

Having served in the legislature for three years, on budget committees, as well as being speaker pro-tem, and also being vice-chairman of the executive budget committee, I feel I have the experience essential to the office of treasurer in his work with the legislature. The treasurer should be able to maintain the respect of the legislature at all times.

Jim Watts

The treasurer must be able to work efficiently with the legislature. He must be able to present the views of the executive council in connection with all budgetary considerations. The treasurer must also maintain a very close working relationship with the Appropriations Committee for the purposes of expediting budgetary bills.

John Cooper

To be able to work together in order to get proper bills passed. Furthermore, not to go beyond my power, staying within the limits of the legislature.

What have been the major contributions you have made to your present office?

Steve Sharpe

During the year, while working as a day student representative, I have endeavored to present myself and the SGA legislature through the representative desires of the students. I have taken stands on very controversial issues, but the decisions that I reached have always been in the best interest of the students.

Jim Watts

As Chairman of the Appropriations Committee in the legislature this year, I feel that my major contribution has been a keen interest in insuring that the students receive direct benefits from their activity fee. I feel that having served in this capacity, it has given me considerable preparation in seeking the office of treasurer. Furthermore, I have always been and will continue to be conservative when I help to appropriate other people's money.

John Cooper

Presently I am junior class president. I have one duty to perform. And that is to serve on the SGA executive council. I have missed only one meeting and that was because I was not informed of the meeting. (2) Bob Whitley and myself went to the Director of Music, Mr. Knight,

What are the duties of the office you seek and how do you plan to execute them?

Steve Sharpe

The duties of the treasurer, being one of the most powerful offices in the SGA, are expressed in our constitution as well as through statutory law. The duties are down in black and white, but the treasurer must be able to go through correct channels in fulfilling his obligations to all the agencies of the SGA.

Jim Watts

The main duty of the treasurer is the responsibility to the legislature for handling budgets for the various student organizations. If elected I hope to establish a relationship with the various organizations so that each organization can be evaluated in regard to its needs for budgeting. Only by a pleasant association with these organizations can the treasurer fulfill his duties to the maximum.

John Cooper

My duty will be to balance the budgets and to spend only the amount that is passed by the legislature. Also, not to write checks without the approval of the legislature.

One of the largest disputes in the SGA this year has been over the power of the Publications Board. What is your view of this dispute and your opinions on solving it?

Steve Sharpe

There is a "fine line of distinction" that lies between the powers of the legislature and Publications Board. The Publications Board is composed of experts in the field of journalism and the Board, with their expertise in journalism, should be able to make recommendations and the recommendations should stand.

I feel the Publications Board should be given more power than it presently has and this power should not be revoked by other bodies.

Jim Watts

This dispute should be given adequate consideration by both the students and the administrative officials concerned. With the present structure of the Publications Board I think it is too large in number to operate efficiently. The duties of the Publication Board are to let contracts, approve positions and to set salaries. Because of the nature of its duties, the Publications Board should not have voting members who serve on any of the various publications. Instead, the board should be comprised of students who are not serving in any capacity in the SGA or on the publications. In this way I feel that fairer and more balanced decisions could be made in regards to salaries and contracts.

John Cooper

I feel that the "Rebel," being published once a quarter should be budgeted around three to four hundred dollars. Their budget should have not been cut in the middle of a quarter when its members are depending on the sum that was promised to them in the past. A noted statesman once said, "There is always room for improvement." This is true of the Fountainhead. People criticize it, but never offer help. The paper is vital to this university. And with the student body and the SGA working as one we can accomplish much improvement.

What is your view of the administration in correlation with the student government?

Steve Sharpe

The SGA offers a means for students to voice their dissatisfaction with the administration. The main objective of the SGA should be to serve as a liaison between students and the administration. Having worked three years with the administration, I feel that I could continue to work with the administration to help improve the conditions for the students. It is imperative that the SGA continue to maintain the respect that the administration now has for it.

Jim Watts

I have nothing but praise for the administration in the way they have worked with all facets of the SGA. They have repeatedly demonstrated an open mind and an attentive ear to our problems and our suggestions. East Carolina students are indeed fortunate that we have an administration who is sensitive to the suggestions of the student body.

John Cooper

I definitely feel that we need their help from time to time. We must work together to carry on our activities. Nothing can be accomplished if we work against each other.

Concerning the student apathy, what do you feel should be done to interest the students in participating in voting, etc.?

Steve Sharpe

There is no easy way to decrease apathy. One person, such as the treasurer, cannot decrease apathy even at ECU. Only the students themselves can do this by taking an interest in the SGA.

The SGA's lecture series, entertainment, and even political activity have all pointed toward the high ideals of the ECU student. Only the high ideals of the students working together can alleviate this problem.

Jim Watts

I don't know...unless we could have go-go dancers at the polls and free beer for everyone.

John Cooper

Concerning voting I feel there should be public speeches given by all candidates to the entire student body. Also, a question and answer period should be set by the SGA. These two ideas would familiarize the students with the candidates. Concerning spirit, we need changes such as ECU has done in acquiring Jerry McGee as head football coach and winning teams. Also, various players that ECU has signed for the upcoming year. More scholarship money should be given for sports. The only way you climb to the top quickly is by winning. That is the way other universities did it.

Are there any changes you would propose in the SGA and what are they?

Steve Sharpe

I have very concrete convictions about our SGA. These convictions go back as far as my freshman year. When I entered EC as a freshman, I pledged to myself that I would work for the students of EC and I have worked for the students for three years. We have a strong student government—one of the strongest and best in the nation and I feel that I would become a hypocrite to not only myself, but to the students who have placed me in positions of responsibility if I ever, for one second, changed my convictions because of political influence. ECU's strength is in its students and to their betterment I am dedicated.

Jim Watts

I have two changes in mind. First, the student legislature should set the penalties for any violation of the Honor Code or any of the laws that it enacts. The various judicial bodies and the administration should serve only in an advisory capacity in helping the legislature to set these penalties. This is the method employed by the state government and the Federal government. Second, the treasurer should publish in the Fountainhead a monthly financial report of the SGA. This financial report should include all disbursements to the various student organizations as well as the exact amount of money received from student activity fees. This report should also give details of how and for what the student money is used.

John Cooper

Number one, to have a minority affairs committee.

Number two, to allow upper-class women the privilege of unlimited hours.

Number three, more outdoor facilities, such as tennis courts and basketball courts. And to add more indoor machines such as Foosball.

Number four, to force the administration to cut the price of the vending machine merchandise.

Number five, I was given the information on how an out-of-state university's SGA acquired operation of the food service. This resulted in better quality of food and lower prices.

Number six, to appropriate more money to athletics.

PRESIDENT

LEN MANCINI

Fellow students:

It is not my intention to present myself to the student body as a candidate for SGA President amid fancy, but meaningless rhetoric. As Speaker of the Legislature I was in the unique position of being high enough within the hierarchy of the SGA to see all the inconsistencies, but not quite high enough to do a thing about them.

I am fed-up with a "milk-toast" SGA and its leadership.

To put it all in a nutshell, in the past our SGA Presidents have all suffered from acute cases of the "governor's syndrome." They all entertained visions of grandeur of occupying the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh. They all were under the mistaken impression that the SGA Presidency is the big stepping stone to that high office and conducted themselves as such. To put it very simply, the only way the SGA will be meaningful to the students is when the students elect officers who don't suffer from this disease, but rather have meaningful from the administration. I think my background best suits me for this.

Thank You,
Len Mancini

Fellow Students:

As a candidate for Student Government President, I have tried to ask as many students as possible exactly what they would like to see their SGA do and in what ways it could better serve the students. This is the ultimate purpose of any student government—and in many cases, our student government has lost sight of this fact. Every student should feel that his student government is helping him and making life easier for him at college.

BOB WHITLEY

There are so many things that our student government can do to help the students.

As impressive as our statistics are, we cannot allege that our student government is adequate unless the students feel their SGA is doing things for them.

I humbly and very sincerely ask for your vote tomorrow.

Thank you,
Bob Whitley

VICE PRESIDENT

Fellow Students:

I am Roger Tripp and I am seeking the office of vice president of the Student Government Association. As a candidate for vice president, I could make elaborate promises for shiny class rings.

As a legislator in the SGA and having just returned from the State Student Legislature where I was vice-chairman of the East Carolina delegation, I feel qualified to hold this office in the student government. I wish to work more closely with the president, the legislators, and you, the students, to ascertain improvements that can be made in spirit and with ring sales.

Any support will be deeply appreciated.

On Tuesday, March 17, you will be asked to select your Student Government officers for the ensuing year.

PHIL DIXON

Not being familiar with some of the candidates places you at a definite disadvantage. As a candidate for the office of vice president I will attempt to meet as many of you as possible and discuss my personal platform. This letter will serve as a basis for the presentation of my proposals.

Since my freshman year I have gained the experience vital to the vice presidency. I have worked as a member of both the Special Events Committee and the Elections Committee on homecoming. For the past three years I have worked with the organization of the parade as a parade marshal and this past year served as a member of the Ring Committee. Please let me put this experience to work for you in the future.

Thank you,
Phil Dixon

Fellow Students:

After serving as Junior Class President, I have seen that leadership and the ability to get legislation passed must be used together in order to benefit our SGA. My previous experience in the SGA has enabled me to gain a working knowledge of the proper channels and proceeding to go through in order to get things done. I am willing and, I feel, able to give the kind of leadership which your SGA treasurer should give.

I feel that the greatest qualification any campus leader can possess is the ability to communicate with his fellow students, to understand their problems and to be able to find workable solutions to them. If you will lend me your support and your vote on March 17, I will strive to be such a leader, as your next SGA Treasurer.

Thank you for your help and consideration.

Very sincerely yours,

INFLATION!!!! MONEY!!!! TAXES!!!! These are headline issues in everyone's mind. And unless there is wiser budgeting of SGA money, ECU students will be faced with an increased student activity fee. If you will elect me as treasurer of the Student Government Association, I promise to help budget the treasury so that you, as students, will benefit more directly from your money.

MORE POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT? A LARGER STUDENT LOAN FUND? BETTER PUBLICATIONS ON CAMPUS? These are the issues. Your vote for Jim Watts as treasurer will insure that your wishes will be represented in the wise spending of your money.

Yours for better student government,

STEVE SHARPE

Fellow Students:

Once again it gives me a great deal of pleasure to campaign for the office of treasurer of our Student Government Association. The treasurer of our SGA must endeavor to maintain the respect and the dependability of all the students of the University. In attempting to co-ordinate the finances of the student body, the treasurer must be able to work with the SGA Legislature through appropriations. Having served as Vice-Chairman of the Executive Budget Committee and having three years experience in the Legislature, I feel that I have the experience

Thank you for your time and support.

SECRETARY

Fellow Students:

As a candidate for secretary of the SGA, I fully realize that the executive officers must work long and hard to secure these needed changes. The secretary must continually be aware of her responsibility for the records and correspondence so that she may provide a smooth network of exchange between the executive and legislative branches.

I pledge to work with the honesty and candor that our Student Government requires. Please give me your support.

Thank you,

MARTHA DEWITT

Fellow Students:

I feel that I am best qualified for the position of secretary of the Student Government Association. The office of secretary is one which requires both efficiency and responsibility. I have served the student body through the Legislature and the Women's Residence Council. I am presently serving as President of Greene Dormitory, a position where efficiency and responsibility are demanded if a dormitory is to be operated to achieve the best cooperation between the women students and the administration.

If elected I will continue to serve the student body to the best of my ability.

Fellow Students:

Pam Myers is a sophomore at ECU and during her two years on campus, she has worked closely with the SGA.

In everything Pam has ever attempted, she has completed with great success. She is a born worker and leader with the merits of responsibility and determination that will help her serve the students in her fullest capacity.

Thank you,
Cameron Payne

Fellow Students:

During the past two years I have participated in both the legislative and judicial branches of the Student Government. My experience as a Day Student Representative included both chairman of the committee to get a transit system at ECU and a member of the committee to study the East Carolinian. During this time I also acted as temporary Secretary of the SGA when she was unable to attend meetings, and I assisted her in her office work when she was especially busy. As vice chairman of Women's Honor Council, I have also become acquainted with the Secretary's position of the Executive Council.

After much consideration I realized that although the job is quite time consuming and demanding, I will be able to handle the job efficiently and I am eagerly awaiting the chance to become a member of the executive branch of the SGA.

Dear Students:

I have been interested in a better SGA for the Students of ECU since my freshman year. I served as secretary of my freshman dorm where I was also a member of the House Council. This year I am a day student representative to the Legislature and publicity chairman of the Screening Committee. These positions have given me the experience in working with the SGA that a member of the Executive Council would need.

I would sincerely appreciate your support for Mary Edwards for Historian of the SGA.

Thank you,
Mary Edwards

Fellow Students:

While I have been at East Carolina I have become very interested in trying to serve the school in some way. By running for historian of the Student Government I feel that I will be able to do this.

I am greatly looking forward to serving you and will appreciate your vote in the upcoming elections.

Sincerely,
Lynn Harris

Fellow Students:

I ask for your support of my campaign for the office of historian of the SGA. Traditionally, the duties of this office have included the keeping of a scrapbook and a vote on the executive council. Unknown to many students, the historian is also involved with close work in connection with the publicity. I would like to see this aspect expanded: to see a close liaison established between the students and the officers of the SGA. I think that as historian I could accomplish this. I personally am tired and frustrated with the antics of some individuals whose attempts to use the SGA as their own personal toy are motivated by a childish desire to "play politics" and amuse themselves. The SGA is not a toy. It is supposed (and notice I say suppose) to be the voice of the student body. In order for it to be so, the students must be aware of its activities and voice their opinions through the use of their voting power. I urge you, vote on Tuesday. I would like to help ECU and you, but in order to do so I need your support.

Thank you,

taken by the administration point toward this conclusion.

First of all there was the encouragement by Dr. Jenkins for ECU and other colleges to make it easier for students at community colleges and technical schools to transfer to four-year institutions. Dr. Jenkins is forgetting the reason that these schools were initiated.

Everyone is not equally talented and not equally suitable to study at the same level of education. The technical schools were designed for students to work with their hands and to develop skills that do not require intensive thought.

In my opinion, the setting up of the possibility that students in these types of schools can easily transfer to institutions like ECU is cruel. A great majority of these students will "flunk out" because they are not suited for college level work.

If they were suited, they surely would not have started out in a technical school. Also the community colleges were created to take some of the stress off the large, state-supported institutions. In encouraging these students to transfer to ECU or other colleges, this stress is being replaced instead of removed.

The second recent step taken by the administration which points to this "factory system" was the lowering of the General Education requirements. No doubt this move was made because of Carolina's recent move to lower its General College requirements. However, there is one large difference here. Carolina has already made a name for itself—a good name, so she can afford to ease her requirements. East Carolina has also made a name for itself: one would think that it would be trying to improve its reputation instead of offering material to support it.

Perhaps this is just the beginning of the lowering of standards at ECU so that all those students attending technical schools who transfer to ECU will find this university no more difficult than their previously attended institution.

It would seem that ECU's administrators have lost their sense of direction. Why did they fight so vigorously for university status if they want to slide back into the "old familiar groove" of turning out degrees by assembly-line production? This current situation brings to mind the old cliché: "What you are thunders so loud above your head that I cannot hear a word you say."

Dear Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to give response to the recent Forum article by Yona Creech.

Mrs. Creech ascertains the question, can I at twenty years of age, a college student, denounce my generation for their imbecilic reactions to life? I reply with an explicit, no!

No one, much less a twenty year old, college student has the right to denounce a generation. Perhaps Mrs. Creech would consider retracting the obvious introductory appeal to emotions. Even disregarding the initial emotionalism of the letter, the remainder is lacking in critical thought.

Mrs. Creech appears to be in despair when she states that reality must be fought with reality. By this does she mean that bullets must be fought with bullets? Or Mrs. Creech, do you consider men to have reached the state where rational appeal no longer has any practical effect upon his warring brethren?

Mrs. Creech appears to be harshly critical of this generation's emotionalism and idealism. But perhaps she forgets that this country had its philosophic beginnings in the dreams of a few idealistic thinkers. Mrs. Creech, I hope to convey to you that idealism has a degree of reality in itself. It is the dream or vision that exists in the minds of men before the goal comes into being. Perhaps I can better clarify my point by example. The artist has a very real image in his mind as to what he would like to portray on canvas. This image then takes the form of empirical reality in his final product.

In conclusion, Mrs. Creech appears to be severely critical of this nation's draft-aged men, and their seemingly indifferent attitudes towards giving militaristic support for "the system." Well I ask Mrs. Creech, just what is sacred; the system or men's lives? A system is an inorganic, inanimate abstraction of thought; while the men, their ideals, emotions, and beliefs are very much alive and to this writer, quite sacred.

Dear Editor:

Like a few hundred other students I was enticed by the misleading title: "Witchcraft, 'Voodoo,' and Cannibalism in Africa," to a substandard lecture. What a disappointment. I felt like the music lover who goes to hear a famous opera performance and gets soap-opera instead.

The lecturer had three or four simple ideas, but he buried them under an avalanche of words which confused rather than clarified his vague subject. It took him forty minutes of rumbling to put across those elementary statements, which could have been adequately expressed in ten. His foreign accent and poor vocabulary could have been easily overlooked by a sympathetic college audience, had he had something substantial to say. Except for one remark about his broadminded approach to the color problem, he had not.

The intellectual level was geared to the average junior highschool student, who still enjoys storytelling hours. His humor, save a few tiny sparkles was anemic. He elaborated at great length on a hunt in which he boldly faced and killed a lion with a single spear. Do you believe it? I certainly do! If he has the courage to stand up before a university audience and to deliver such a talk he probably could scare a lion away with witchcraft or incantation, provided he had at least a hazy idea of how to go about performing it.

By the way, this seems to me a fairly easy way to make money. Following his example I am planning a lecture tour of colleges. The title of my first discourse will be: "The Giant Dwarfs, or New Evidence for The Existence of Lapidoptera Beyond the Universe."

My only problem is with which Institute to start. Do you suggest ECU, or because of the highly scientific nature of my dissertation should it be Duke or Chapel Hill?

Sincerely,
Maxim Tahory

SGA candidates viewed

Tomorrow's SGA elections feature a wide selection of candidates and a small selection of competence.

One of the candidates for President claims that because he is a veteran and older than the other candidate he is obviously better qualified for the position.

This editor is a combat veteran of Vietnam, serving with the 5th Special Forces Group, and I can recall nothing in my training or experience which would obviously qualify me for the position of SGA President.

If this experience did in itself qualify me, then it would also qualify the several hundred other veterans on this campus.

The age factor may have more significance; however, it would be on a level of greater maturity—something I find sadly lacking in this candidate.

The other candidate for President has presented a much more sensible, rational approach to the many-faceted problems of this office, and, in addition, seems to be more concerned with the interests of the students than in petty personality conflicts.

For these reasons, Fountainhead supports Bob Whitley for the position of SGA President.

The second most important position in question, that of SGA Treasurer, has three candidates seeking election.

Sharpe has been concerned with the financial aspects of student government for three years, and has evidenced capable handling of these matters.

By contrast, the present chairman of the appropriations committee, by virtue of the power of his office, took it upon himself to make judgements which greatly added to the general erosion of student faith in their student government.

The other candidate may have sound ideas, but he lacks the necessary financial experience for this obviously financial position.

Sharpe, therefore, receives the endorsement of Fountainhead for the position of SGA Treasurer.

Post Office opens mail

The U.S. Post Office Department has quietly issued new regulations authorizing the opening of mail from overseas. Only mail addressed to ambassadors and high government officials is exempt from the new policy.

This new regulation was published in the federal register several weeks ago and has gone relatively unnoticed. It has been reported that other rules requiring the opening of mail are being drafted.

Martin Wolf, a spokesman for the Post Office Department, says the regulations were necessitated by the flow of hard core pornography from overseas.

Regulations of this nature may or may not be necessary, but something is definitely wrong if they can be quietly instigated without benefit of any type of specific congressional action.

Now it seems that not only does the President of the United States have the power to engage this nation in a war without a specific Congressional declaration of war, but, without specific Congressional approval, the Post Office has the power to regulate what a U.S. citizen may receive.

Dear Editor:

East Carolina now has nickel copy machines: Victory!

Cheaper, faster, self-operated nickel copy machines: Victory!

Four, five-cent, cheaper, faster, self-operated copy machines: Victory!

(5:15 p.m.—Student desperately needs six copies of something-or-other by 10 p.m. Defeat?)

No! A cheap, fast, self-operating copy machine to the rescue: Victory!

Now the frantic search for a nickel copy machine not bearing the title, "Out of Order" Defeat?

No! I've found the only one: Victory!

(Clink) In goes nickel. (Clink) Out comes nickel. (Clink) In goes another nickel. (Clink) Out comes another nickel: Defeat?

No! The little darling is only out of paper: Victory!

"Miss Librarian, could you put some more paper in the cheaper, faster, self-operating nickel copy machine?"

"Sorry — not after 5 p.m."

Another Victory for East Carolina High School.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert John Karl

Dear Editor,

I thought you might be interested to learn that the ECU admissions committee makes decisions on the basis of technicalities they cannot explain.

Specifically, I was refused admission to ECU because the last college I attended on a full time basis was not a resident college; hence my application was turned down.

This explanation of their action would be acceptable, I suppose, if the admissions committee could explain why the previous college had to have a resident campus.

On the contrary, it was explained to me by John Ayers Jr. that he could think of no reason for the rule, and ventured the probable state of affairs: that I would find no reason why a transfer student must come from a resident campus.

Is dormitory life supposed to effectively eradicate any individuality the student might have expressed beforehand?

I appeal to you to find someone on the East Carolina University campus who can explain to me how the quality of education is affected by the lack of dormitory living.

If it is of importance, the school in question was the University of Maryland night school extension in Wiesbaden, Germany; and my draft board thought enough of the school to give me a 2-S deferment.

Dear Editor:

Some recent actions by the administrators of East Carolina University answer the persistent question "what is a regional university?" It seems that the new trends at ECU point to a future plan to convert (or is it reconvert) the school into a "degree factory" whereby anyone and everyone who has the money can "go through the process of education." Two recent steps
