SGA President Rob Luisana and Treasurer Mark Browne have issued statements saying they feel the Student Supply Store is "ripping-off" the students of ECU by operating at a high profit margin.

In making his statement Browne called for a yearly evaluation of the Supply Store's profits and a budgetary report submitted to the SGA so they "can try to inform the students where their money is going."

In the academic year 1968-69 Student Supply Store profits were reported to be $154,238.82. A pamphlet issued by the Supply Store states that a minimum of 75 per cent of this is supposed to go to scholarships, with the remaining 25 per cent going into a general fund for the students.

Browne feels that the students are being mislead by the pamphlet.

According to Clifton Moore, ECU Vice-President for Business Affairs, the pamphlet is supposed to read "75 per cent of the 'divided profits."

Moore was questioned as to where the bulk of the 1969 profits, a sum of $84,238.82 was being used. He replied that the Croatan had come from accumulated profits of the Supply Store, and that the cost of renovation of the Student Union had to be absorbed from the profit savings of the Supply Store.

"Any auxiliary enterprise-those not strictly academic-must be completely self-sustaining," said Moore. They must stand on their own resources. Besides, it's good business to hold back the reserve in case the profits drop from the Supply Store."

"They don't take into account just how much money they're making," Browne stated. "Some of the things the Supply Store is allocating money for look a little inflated to me. Also, I don't think the Supply Store has shown the students as many improvements as their profit margin justifies."

'Any auxiliary enterprise-those not strictly academic-must be completely self-sustaining'

Joe Clark, manager of the Student Supply Store, was also questioned about the store's budget. According to Clark part of the Supply Store's profits are placed in a savings account (approximately $152,000 to date) in order to draw interest. Clark also stated that his office had nothing to do with the distribution of the store's profits, and that the determination of the allocation of the profits was performed in Moore's office.

Moore was asked to explain how the allocations of the Supply Store's profits are administered. "Historically," said Moore, "Mr. Boudreaux of the financial aid office sends us a memorandum saying what amount was spent the previous year for scholarships from the profits, and suggests what sum he feels should be made available the following year."

From this amount, which is supposed to be 75 per cent of the divided profits, the 25 per cent for general expenses is computed. The remaining amount is then reserved for improvements.

"Of the 25 per cent figure the ECU Board of Trustees allocates an expenditure of up to $6500 a year for the President's entertainment expense, Moore stated. "I personally make the allocation on the Merit Scholarship Weekend. The remaining money, which is used for academic activities such as the symposiums and conferences, is allocated on the basis of past percentages, with the final approval coming from the Provost."

you will in all probability visit the Students Supply Stores on many occasions to purchase textbooks, school supplies, or some of the other many items that you may need in obtaining your education. For this reason, we would like to present to you the following information so that you may gain a few insights into our operation and be able to better understand our goals and objectives.

The Students Supply Stores is owned and operated by East Carolina University for the purpose of rendering service to the University community. We are charged with the responsibility of providing books, school supplies, and other tools of the educational process to the students on campus as well as those attending classes taught throughout eastern North Carolina by the Division of Continuing Education, which includes the three centers at Cherry Point, Camp Lejeune, and Goldsboro, North Carolina.

We also carry the imprinted lines of merchandise which are normally carried by college bookstores; and in addition, your Students Supply Stores operates snackshops and vending machines at various locations on the campus.

Like any business enterprise, we must make a profit if we are to grow and to continue to provide service to succeeding generations. One case, is that the new snack shop recently built near the Music Building was paid for out of the Students Supply Stores' profits.

However, any profits derived from the Stores' operations are used for the benefit of the students with a minimum of 75% of such profits going into scholarships, which are awarded by the Faculty Scholarship Committee. Over the years, the Stores' earnings

Bob Hallahan, president of the Music Forum, noted that approximately 50 per cent of the School of Music has contemplated leaving. "Act to Amend the Code of Conduct" changed, in effect, the previous Code that would allow suspension of a student on his second offense, regardless of the seriousness of the violation.

SGA President Rob Luisana reporting on the Monday Board of Trustees meeting in Raleigh related that two long awaited bills had been passed. Men's visitation has been extended to 1 p.m. to 12 p.m. seven days a

In addition, the Students Supply Stores is the number two employer of students on campus: the Library being number one. We have on our payroll, at all times, many students who must work to help defray the cost of their education.

Film festival entry deadline May 15

"The Last Film Festival" may very well be the last one unless someone develops enough interest to revive it again next year. Out of the defunct Fine Arts Committee only a handful of senior art majors have kept it alive, and they will graduate this spring.

Two screenings

This year's festival promises to be better than the '70 and '71 festivals. Several of the old 8mm filmmakers have followed in the footsteps of last year's festival winner, Bruce McKeowen, by converting to 16mm. The entries this year will range in content from documentaries to experimental to feature-type subjects like science-fiction, westerns, modern day drama, etc.

Also this year will be judging by three men of excellent backgrounds and credentials: Dr William Stephenson of the English department, who has studied film in England and teaches a film course here; Dr. Edward Leahy of the geography department, who has worked on movies in Spain with director John Houston and Duffy Toler, art director of WCTI-TV in New Bern. Entries will be judged on excellence of cinematography, editing soundtracking, writing and overall success of the producer's intent-how the theme relates to the form of the film.

The rules are the same as those of last year. the film must not exceed 30 minutes in length, sound must be put on tape (71/2 ips, if possible), or, if there is a different sound system, such as Super 8 sound stripping, the filmmaker must provide the projector. Also, all tapes must be erased on the other unused side.

Filmmakers MUST bring their films and soundtracks and one dollar to room 130 of Rawl at 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 15 for judging. Filmmakers may stay for the judging, but all others will be towed away at the owner's expense.

Only students and faculty (special category) may enter. The prizes are: 1st place, $125, 2nd place, $100: 3rd place, $75: 4th place, $50.

The festival will run on two nights-Friday. May 19 and Saturday. May 20 at 8 o'clock in McGinnis Auditorium: admission is free. The same show will run on both nights: the winners will be announced both nights.

By BECKY NOBLE

Considerable changes are in the making for next year's Fountainhead, if everything goes as planned for Phillip Williams. Williams, present editor-in-chief of Fountainhead will keep the position during simmer school and the 1972-73 school year.

PLANS RECRUITMENT

To interest freshmen in the newspaper, Williams plans an extensive recruitment and training program during the summer and fall. This training program will also include regular upperclass staff members so that all staffers will be familiar with every aspect of the newspaper and will be able to do any job. Williams hopes this training program will help make smoother tranistions from year to year, and when filling vacancies.

Recruitment of high school seniors planning to attend ECU has already begun. said Williams. And Ira L. Baker, advisor to the newspaper, has contacted many ECU freshmen who worked on high school newspapers but have not worked for Fountainhead Recruitment will also be conducted this summer during freshmen Orientation, and copies of the Orientation Issue of Fountainhead will be included in freshmen folders.

In addition to his massive recruitment and training plans, Williams plans revolving "beats" for reporters, so that student courts, legislature, and committee meetings will be assured more complete coverage.

DISCONTINUE AP

He is also considering discontinuing the use of the Associated Press Service, and replacing it with telephone calls whenever needed.

In order to produce a more professional image for the business office, Williams hopes to hire a full-time business manager and move the business office downtown. At and the second of the second second present, he is still researching a profitable means of carrying out the plan.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Another new image for Fountainhead may evolve if the University will buy or rent a new headerliner and body-type composer for the newspaper. Williams said he is looking at different fonts, or type styles, for Fountainhead but has not settled on anything yet.

He is also looking at new typesetters and headliners.

SUMMER GROUNDWORK

Williams said the groundwork for his proposed changes will take place during the summer. The summer school paper will work on a skeleton crew, but Williams hopes to produce a high quality paper.

Fountainhead earlier this spring, requested from the SGA a budget of $40,000 for next year's paper.

'Private voice' entertains campus

By PAT CRAWFORD Staff Writer

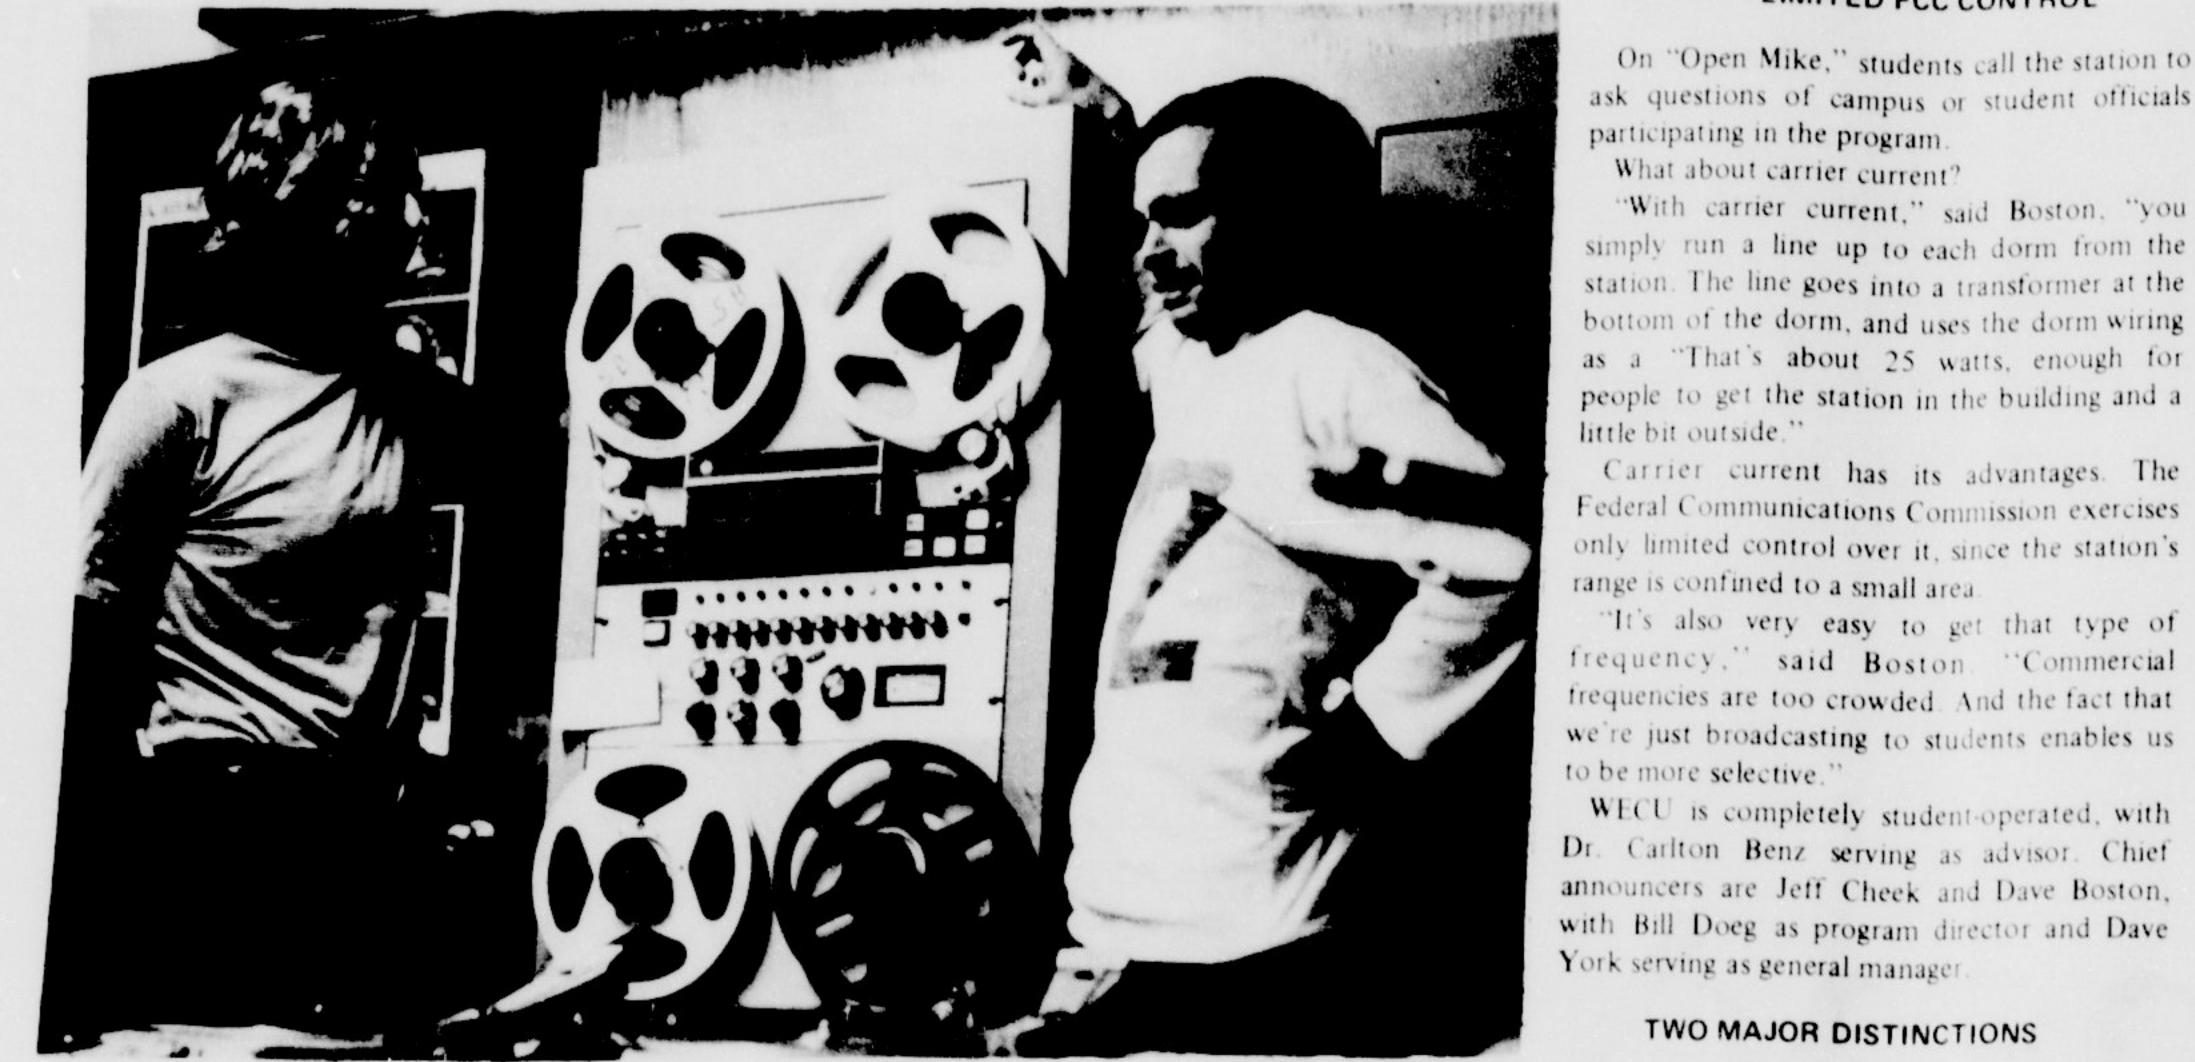

"Mr. Neil Young for you now at 18 minutes before the hour on WECU; the song 'Old Man'..."

WECU, ECU's private voice, operates from the second floor of Joyner Library. A mobilhangs from the office ceiling, shouting "FCU 57" in large blue letters; the remainder of the office is taken up by desks and station employees.

If the desk-filled office is for paperwork and socializing, the control room is where the public relations work goes on. Surrounded by stacks of tapes and records, the WECU jock staff spends 24 hours each day entertaining the campus.

According to chief announcer Dave Boston, the station has been around for quite a while. "It started back in 1957 as WWWS, AM-FM."

he said, and "continued until the FM tower blew down in a storm."

"It stayed an AM carrier current and changed its name with the college to WECC, then WECU in 1968. Back in 1968 we started really getting into it," said Boston.

"We got new jingles, new personnel and generally a better quality station. We started to broadcast 24 hours a day, and "Open Mike" came about.

LIMITED FCC CONTROL

On "Open Mike," students call the station to ask questions of campus or student officials participating in the program.

What about carrier current? "With carrier current," said Boston, "you simply run a line up to each dorm from the station. The line goes into a transformer at the bottom of the dorm, and uses the dorm wiring as a "That's about 25 watts, enough for people to get the station in the building and a little bit outside."

Roughly 25 students are working regularly at the station now, with a high drop-out rate at the end of the quarter.

WECU has two major distinctions, as announcer Janet Bond brought out.

'Last Show' is subtly great

JOHN R. WALLACE

Reviews Editor

'The Last Picture Show' is the last motion picture. Despite its episodic structure and total lack of plot, other than perhaps the death of the North Texas town, the film, in many respects, is without equal.

The pathos of nothing to do and all the time in the world in which to do it pervades this film, the way the scent of roses fills a closed room.

Every actor is superb, which must stem from Peter Bogdonavitch's sensitive direction. Timothy Bottoms moves from naivety to naive sophistication, loving but without ever philosophizing about it.

Cloris Leachman deserves her Academy Award and then some. Her frustrated, adulterous wife evokes more than any other role the debasing restrictions of emotional poverty. Ben Johnson's Sam the Lion is humane, almost beyond the point of humanity.

The movie shows every weakness, all the limitations of its many characters. The nostalgia does not emerge through rose-colored glasses. The lips are not so red. nor the dresses so long because the effect is one of cuteness, but because that is the way those people lived. The horrifying aspect of the movie is that people still live that way.

"The Last Picture Show" is a film of repression; the repression of feeling and the expression of that feeling. And yet, for all the sadness, all the complications of motives, the movie is not sad.

The movie is a study in heroism, the heroism of endurance against the unseen forces that bulldoze and demand capitulation, the forces of necessity and neglect.

This film should be around for a long while because there is much within it. This film is great, quietly yet subtlely great. See "Now it's just known as Bill Trull's show." Bill Trull luckily wandered in to discuss the program.

"I put a lot of time into the selection of music for my show." he said. "I try to represent all tastes jazz, rock, folk, blues, boogie and classical.

"I'm receptive to suggestions," he added. "I can't promise that I'll play a song if someone asks, but I like new ideas."

NOT HAPHAZARD

Trull's program is much like the progressive FM shows which have been gaining in popularity.

"I've heard of plans to revive WECU-FM. said Trull. "It might take two years if they strated it today.

"FM's the current thing in radio; we could program more progressive music and jazz. It would come under greater FCC control, but the money could be funded by the state, not the SGA. I think more people would like that sort of thing."

Trull considers WECU the best campus opportunity to get into the broadcasting media. Students interested in working as disc jockeys spend roughly two weeks in training, watching experienced people at the control board, and eventually working their own shifts.

Staff members have set hours to work

Promos, or promotional advertisements for the station, are produced by the WECU staff. are many public service announcements (PSA's). Jingles and occasional ads represent non-station work. All promos, ads and PSA's are recorded on tape carts to be inserted in one of three tape decks.

WECU is no haphazard operation, but has a specific slots in the hour.

The new jock, confronted with the control borad, tapes and the program log, often finds himself making incredible mistakes. Knocking the arm off a record or becoming tongue-tied are only some of the complications.

Even those who have been working for quite a while experience occasional bad luck. Bill Trull cited an example.

"Two Sundays ago," he said, "I did a long introduction to a song and then played the wrong record. Sometimes you'll start the wrong record, or play one you've just finished." The mistakes are part of the job, and jocks soon learn the art of fast thinking.

ANOTHER DAY

At noon Sunday, Jay Cooke was beginning the midday shift.

"It's 12:03 with the Spirit of '57, WECU radio, Greenville ... "

At the hour when domestic Greenville was just waking up or returning from church, WECU was sending out Edgar Winter, Laura Nyro and Stephen Stills. In three hours Janet Bond would take over, followed by Dave Boston. At 10, Bill Trull would be starting off his show, looking forward to progressive sounds until 2 a.m.

Throughout the day, jocks and friends would wander through to sit, work or listen. The blue letters of the WECU mobile twirl slowly form the ceiling.

"It's 12:10 here on WECU with Jay Cooke on a Sunday morning ... We've got the sound of Fanny for you now from their album, 'Fanny Hill'-'Ain't that Peculiar' ... " Another day with the Big 57 was under way.

Parachuting blossoms here

By CLAUDIA RUMFELT

Sport parachuting is the coming thing-at least on the ECU campus it is. In April the SGA approved the proposed constitution submitted by David Swink, and the ECU Sport Parachute Club came into being.

It all started last summer when ECU student Eric Orders started jumping at the Carolina Para Center in Roanoke Rapids. His interest was contagious. As the group became larger, Orders began organizing a club.

When Orders was hurt in a parachuting accident, David Swink, now president of the club, took over.

The club now has 15 active members, two of them females.

"Since our display in the Union lobby, we've had two more people to go up to the Center with us," Swink said. He anticipates a growing interest as the club begins to participate in school activities and makes a few demonstration jumps.

The training of beginning jumpers is done by three instructors at the Para Center-Claude Paramore, Pete Leuter and Jerry Warren. Twenty dollars will cover costs of training and the first static line jump. Training plus the five required static line jumps costs $40. According to Swink, equipment can be rented at the Center. To join the ECU club an initial fee of $2 is required. Membership in the United States Parachuting Club (USPA) is also mandatory. This membership costs $15 and includes liability insurance for any damage the parachutist may do to property or persons, and a year's subscription to Parachutist Magazine. There is also a one dollar per month fee for all members.

Refrigerators will be picked up on Thursday, May 18, from 12-5 p.m., and on Friday, May 19 from 9-5. Anyone not turning in their refigerator at this time will be fined $5. Anyone interested in picking up refigerators ($1.60/hr.) should apply in the SGA office by Wednesday, May 17.

Student voter registration

What has ensued from the North Carolina State Supreme Court cases and pressure from various organizations on the subject of student registration in the towns where they attend

Nothing, as far as the Pitt County Board of Elections is concerned. They still refuse to register students, except in extreme cases, such as those woh are married, serving time in the military, or those whose parents live or have lived in Greenville. Some students who meet these irrelevant requirements have been denied.

But the N C. State Board of Elections has revised their opinion on registration of college students in the towns where they attend school. Alex K. Brock, executive secretary of the Board, sent out a memo to the County Board of Elections, presenting a set of standard questions to be used in determining a student's eligibility to register to vote.

The Public Relations Office of the SGA would like for students to attempt to register in Greenville. This is the only way that the new practice of the Elections Board can be exposed and dealt with. No red tape or legal aspects involved; only a little time. If you are interested, come by room 310 of Wright Annex between 2 and 4 p.m. any day of the week except Thursday

The newly formed club hopes to become affiliated with USPA, thus enabling them to participate in team competition in collegiate parachute meets.

The ECU Sport Parachute Club has big plans for the future,

"We hope to eventually have our own airplane and some drop zone facilities like the clubs at Carolina, Duke and State," Swink stated. But right now the club does not have the financial resources to follow this plan of action. The main area of concentration is building up membership and getting some parachuting equipment for club use.

Any students interested in finding out more about sport parachuting and the club should contact David Swink at the Theta Chi house. "Some of us go up to the Center every weekend, and there is always room for someone who is interested and wants to find out more about the sport," Swink said.

Nixon to face hard bargaining at Soviet talks

AP Special Correspondent - The tip of Moscow's foreign policy iceberg is labeled "peaceful co-existence." Beneath the surface is a ponderous and potentially dangerous mass.

At the Moscow summit next week President Nixon will deal with a group of aging Soviet leaders who are both Russian and Leninist. Their concepts of world competition have been frozen by 50 years of Leninist ideology.

LENIN: 1917

In 1917, V.I. Lenin, founder of Bolshevism and the Soviet state, said: "Theorectically, it would be absolutely mistaken to forget that every war is merely a continuation of politics by other means."

Inferentially, politics then would be a continuation of war by other means.

LENIN: 1918

In 1918, Lenin said: "It is ridiculous... not to know that a treaty is a means of gaining strength." The Soviet record on treaties has been one of pledges made to be broken when breaking them served the national interest.

Since Lenin, Soviet policy has aimed at two basic goals: security of the Soviet state and expansion of Soviet authority. That policy was swaddled in a tight blanket of tradition. Today it has a look of the era of a century ago, a sort of Victorian diplomacy relying on deception and armed power.

MOSCOW WORRIED UNDER STALIN

Under Stalin, when Moscow was worried it feigned indifference, as witness the attitude toward the first U.S. bomb. When the Kremlin was seriously concerned about one area, it sought to divert attention by focusing on another. When Moscow sought to be subtle it often proved clumsy, resorting to naked force to achieve its ends.

What Stalin could safely take, he took: half of Poland, all three Baltic nations, a piece of Germany, a slice of Romania.

The Stalin strategy was resisted in Iran in 1946, after trying to bite off that country's Azerbaijan Province, he pulled back. When the West resisted his attempt to seize isolated West Berlin, he gave up the gamble. Warned off Greece and Turkey by President Harry S. Truman, he backed away.

SOVIET POLICY COULDN'T BE WRONG

the so-called motherland of socialism. Soviet claims are always "just."

Basically, this has proved a perilous sort of policy, often risking war situations. Stalin ran the risk in Iran and Berlin. Nikita S. Krushchev ran the risk of trying to install offensive missiles in Cuba. There is a chronic risk in the powerful Soviet military presence in the Middle East.

Where the policy could safely be made to stick, the Kremlin made it stick. Thus in Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1968. Soviet military forces strangled reform movements and the West did nothing, because to cchallenge what was happening could have risked major war.

SUSPICION ADDED BULLWARK

Suspicion is another bullmark of the sort of policy Nixon must confront. For 54 years, deep suspicion has dominated relations between Moscow and Washington. Soviet-american relations were never really good except, perhaps, for a brief period of alliance during World War II. Stalin called himself Leninist. Krushchev called himself Leninist. Today's leaders profess to be ardent and faithful followers of all Lenin's doctrines. Toward the United States and "imperialism" they have text-book attitudes. In the U.S., experience, "anti-imperialism" in a Soviet statement invariably has meant anti-United States.

"Peace and freedom of peoples" has meant the security of the Soviet system and the inviolability of Communist party rule wherever it has been installed.

Ever since the Soviet system began, its leaders have expressed a conviction that the United States wanted to destroy it. Even before World War II ended, Stalin resumed the struggle agaisnt what he called imperialism.

SUSPICION HASN'T LESSENED

Suspicion on the Soviet side is not much less now than it was in the Stalin era and certainly no less than in Krushchev's time.

The Kremlin has never been hesitant about pushing its own propaganda for revolutionary overthrow of existing regimes around the world, but it violently resents and sternly denounces anything from the other side that it chooses to read as propaganda against Communist rule.

Nixon will find Lenoid I Brezhnev and his colleagues

In terms of dogma, Soviet policy couldn't be wrong in Kremlin eyes because it advanced "progressive" interests of tough bargainers, as were Stalin and Krushchev before them. This is hardly surprising. All of them were brought up in an atmosphere of rigid adherence to a doctrine which allows almost any means for accomplishing the end.

Student funds to be used to pay political debts

Monday's session of the SGA Legislature witnessed one of the most incredible outrages yet inflicted upon the students of this University, the "Fine Arts Scholarships Bill."

The bill, an appropriation of $30,000 of student government money, provides scholarships for out-of-state students majoring in the "fine arts", drama, music, and art.

This latest bit of pork-barrel pay-offs was railroaded through the legislature in a being consulted.

Would it be forward of us to mention that the two prime backers of the bill, Luisana and Atkinson, are out-of-staters themselves? Should we mention that these two were elected with strong support of the fine arts?

Perhaps the reason the legislature did not demand a rational justification of the expenditure, is that the solons realized that this bill was just another political debt that had to be paid.

single meeting by newly elected SGA President Rob Luisana and Rick Atkinson, SGA Vice - President.

We quite frankly feel that it is an outrage to tax all the students to raise money for scholarships that only certain students can apply for and receive. By restricting the scholarships to out-of-state fine arts majors, the bill has effectively made the judgement that fine arts is more important than, say business or psychology. We cannot agree with such arbitrary decisions.

Just a shocking as the content of the bill itself was the way the legislature meekly approved the expenditure. The legislators demanded no firm statistics, no factual justification, no reasoned principle behind the bill- it was passed without any of the standard committees However, we are genuinely disgusted with the abdication of responsibility and a leadership that senior members of the legislature were guilty of in allowing this bill to passed unchallenged. Have they been bought and paid for, also?

Luisana's next major project is to axe the Buccaneer yearbook, by whatever method convenient. Luisana claims to have a majority of the students behind his give-away, and he states that students don't want the "Buc". But may we ask why he objected to a referendum of the students to see if they agree, when it was proposed in a Publications Board meeting

If Luisana firmly believes that the students will back up his bits of pork-barrel legislation and polical pay-offs, he should be quite willing to hold a referendum on these matters.

Protestors disrupt ROTC program

A National Student Alliance local co-ordinator was charged with disorderly conduct following a scuffle with a UVA Vice President at the Annual ROTC Military Review last weekend. The incident occurred when portestors sitting in the front row of the bleachers were asked to lower their placards so that those seated behind them could see the ceremonies. Demonstrators staged protests later that day at the Military Ball.

Support workers

To Fountainhead.

This is directed to the manager and food service director who observed but could not have experienced their services.

We were wondering what happened to the friendly, smiling faces that formerly served us so adequately at the Pamlico Grill. After reading their letter to the Fountainhead, we thought it was our loyal duty to set the employers straight.

We ate frequently at the Pamlico Grill and enjoyed immensely the friendly informal atmosphere. Vending machines lack personality and it was much more pleasurable to be served by the former employees. As regular, evening customers, we saw that these former employees did their jobs and more than satisfactorily! One of the biggest attributes to a working team is their ability to cooperate and get along with each other. They should not be condemned for this. What more did you want? professors who use uninformative, out of date, and just plain boring visual aid materials as a substitute for class.

I'd like to voice a complaint against

Can't see why

To Fountainhead

Within the past couple of weeks I've seen so many movies, I literally can't see straight. One class is particularly bad. For the past three days visual aid material is all we've had. After the first movie the teacher asked for a show of hands-how many thought that movie was a piece of bullshit? Numerous hands were raised, instructor's included. What was the sense in showing it? From the discussion that ensued the majority of the class got nothing from it. Another day three charts were flashed on the board for our benefit. The first one the teacher never got in focus so he ended up reading it to us. The second two tables were in focus but the numbers were so small you couldn't read them. Now I'm not downing visual aids on the whole. In that same class today we saw a very good movie, but one day out of three is not a very good average.

Another complaint. How many times have you been sitting in class watching a movie in total darkness when the professor says, "Be sure to take notes. You'll be tested on this?" Right! I can take notes in the dark, but that doesn't mean I'll be able to read them in the light.

This has to be the best one yet-sitting in your 8:00 class listening to a tape recording because your regular professor couldn't make it that morning.

Visual aid materials can be very helpful and stimulating, even informative when they're on college level. Have you seen the dancing wieners in your required Library Science 1 class yet? expense canno

I realize that East Carolina University is predominately white Anglo-Saxon, but the press is supposed to represent all races equally.

Presidential hopeful Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm spoke to students in the Nursing Auditorium on Thursday night, May 4th. This is campus news, Fountainhead but it seems your reporters overlooked it.

On Friday afternoon, May 5, George Wallace also a presidential hopeful, came to Pitt-Greenville airport, but he didn't come to ECU. Did our beloved campus newspaper overlook him? Certainly not. Why overlook someone who is white, a good southerner, and above all, prejudiced even though he has Super Satisfied Customers!
