All four wings of the biology building were closed Wednesday due to potentially toxic gases which filtered into the building's air-conditioning system.

Dr. D. W. Barnes, of the Pharmocology department, was synthesizing an ethyl carbilamide compound. Gases escaped into the air-conditioning because of a defect in the hood of the ventilator which normally blows the unwanted fumes out of the building.

Dean Wallace Wooles, Dean of the ECU School of Medicine, ordered the building closed to all faculty, staff and students at 12:40 p.m. One student was taken to the infirmary as a precaution, but no injuries resulted.

Ethyl carbilamide when synthesized can produce a gas which is harmful only in concentration. It acts on the respiratory enzymes in the human body. The biology building will be closed to everyone until Thursday at 7:00 a.m.

Lack of occupants

Ragsdale, Slay dorms to close

By WILLIAM N. ROBINSON

Staff Writer

Due to the high number of vacancies, Slay and Ragsdale dorms will be closing next fall.

Clifton Moore, Vice Chancellor of Business Affairs, in a recent phone interview, commented that the closing notices had been "put on official bulletin boards."

The primary reason for closing the dorms are a lack of occupants and the increasing cost of dormitory maintenance, Moore said. He also cited that the dorms were being closed, "So the students would not have to pay increased rent every year. What we are trying to do is save the students money."

Some students presently occupying Slay and Ragsdale are reluctant to move. When asked about the chance of keeping the two residences operating, Moore explained that "if everyone payed ten dollars more room rent on campus" the possibilities of continued operation were Relocation plans for the occupants lie among the high rise women's complexes, "the Hill" and the proposed co-ed dorm, Garrett Hall.

A co-ed presently living in Ragsdale was asked about the closure. After noting a long list of shortcomings, she termed the women's dorm "unlivable" and commented, "I'm glad it's going to be closed."

Slay occupants are presently circulating a petition hoping to attain three-hundred names to try and fill up their residence.

When asked about the possiblity of Slay being used for the convenience of the crippled students, Moore replied negatively and based his statement on the goals of the Campus Barrier Removal

Commenting on the future use of the buildings and the length of idleness, Moore stated that the residences were "just going to sit there." This would negate the daily maintenance expenses of the buildings.

As far as the immediate plans of other dormitories, Moore indicated that he hoped no further closing would occur.

Pub Board seeks applicants

Due to lack of response in application for editorships, the Publications Board is requesting all qualified persons to make their interest known as soon as possible.

"We have no applications for Buccaneer editor," said Pub Board Chairman Kathy Holloman, "and only two for Fountainhead." Sandy Penfield is expected to stay on as Rebel editor into next year.

"Phil Arrington (previous editor) quit in order to student teach," said Holloman. "We asked Sandy to take over, and she did. She hasn't been officially approved yet, but I expect her to be unless someone more qualified turns up - and that doesn't seem likely."

BUC STAFF GRADUATING

Most of the Buccaneer staff is graduating, according to Holloman. "A lot of the people are leaving," she said. "The basic problem is that no one now on the staff is interested in becoming editor.

"Whoever becomes Buc editor for next year won't have to deal with some of the problems they've had in the past," she said. "In the future, the Buc won't be so large and ostentatious - and Linda (Gardner) has gotten things pretty well organized over there."

Fountainhead has only two applicants for the editorship at present.

"The thing we'd like to get across," said Holloman, "is that we're inviting everyone to apply - even if they haven't worked as staff members. "If they worked with their high school paper, or have an interest - anything we're asking people to apply."

SCREENINGS

Marvin Hunt, a voting member of the Publications Board said each candidate will be screened separately by the Board. At these screenings the candidates submit a resume of their past experience with ECU publications and a portfolio of their work (if any).

After their initial presentation, Hunt explained, the candidates give an introductory speech. In the speech they point out their objectives as editor of their prospective publication and any new ideas or additions they would like to see incorporated.

An interrogation by the Publications Board members attempts to reveal what each candidate knows about the production of his prospective publication. "We try to pin them down specifically on certain issues," said Hunt.

"We hope they have a knowledge of operating within a budget, how their publication is run over-all and how their relations should be with their staff. We also like to know what type of relationship they intend to maintain with the Publications Board, their political emphasis, and editorial policies," Hunt went on.

"Rebel is a different sort of publication compared to Fountainhead," said Hunt. "Rebel isn't as structured, whereas Fountainhead would require a knowledge of journalism. So you can see we have to look for different qualities with each candidate for the variouspublications."

"We would like to see many students apply for editor positions," said Hunt.

EFFECTIVE BOARD

"This would give us better qualified editors in the long run."

Hunt feels this has been "the most effective Publications Board yet. We've been working together for a long time and our knowledge of the various publications on campus has been gained through this long experience. A few of us are juniors and have been on the Board since our freshman year."

"The secret of this Board's success," said Hunt, "has been cooperation and a lot of good, hard, open discussion."

Applications for all of the editorships are available in the Student Affairs Office, 201 Whichard. Applications must be completed and returned to the office by Monday, April 9.

Summer jobs available with local commission

By JOE MOOSHA

Plenty of jobs will be available this summer for ECU students who are willing to work, according to the manager of the local Employment Security Commission.

The manager, James Hannan, attributed this situation to an expanding economy and to the fact that employers almost always need summer help.

"The types of jobs that will be available vary from clerical work to construction work to farm labor." Hannan noted

He also stated that in order to assure placement, a person should apply at least four to six weeks ahead of time, stating what type of work he or she prefers. "We can't promise everyone a job, but most people will get placed," he added.

'NO EXPERIENCE'

Hannan also said most of the jobs require little or no experience, because most employers will train the applicant. The manager noted, however, "The pay to start is only $1.60 per hour.

"The reason most employers give for this figure is training. That is, while a person is in training, he is not making money for the company. Hence, the relatively low salary.

'MUST BE AVAILABLE'

"In addition, hours will vary," he added. "It is usually six hours per week. But in most cases, if a person is willing to work nights, he can get 40 hours per week.

"However, students are not eligible for unemployment insurance," he said. "In order for a person to be eligible, he must be able to work, and above all, he must be available. Thus students are not eligible because they are generally not available."

VETS' PREFERENCE

Hannan also stated that veterans get preference over "everything and everybody."

"If a non-veteran doesn't qualify for a particular job that he wants, his case is dropped.

"This is not the case with veterans. If a veteran does not qualify for a particular job, we'll go out of our way to see that he does get work or training for a job." Hannan stipulated that "The key to finding summer employement is willingness to work -- a willingness to take any job.

"The attitude of the individual has a lot to do with it; particularly here in Greenville. Employers here want people who will work hard and have pride in what they do," he added.

Explosion damages dormitory room

By BOB MARSKE Staff Writer

A refrigerator, rented from Leasing, Inc. through the SGA, exploded in Slay Hall Saturday night, causing smoke, heat and fire damage.

The residents of the room, William Rankin and Clifton Mobley, were out for the evening when the refrigerator exploded at about 10:00 p.m. The explosion and ensuing fire were reported by Victor Jeffreys, "We were sitting in Lonnie's room when we smelled smoke. We went out to investigate, and the refrigerator exploded." Carey kicked the door in to see if anyone was trapped in the room, and Jeffreys called the Greenville Fire Department.

The Fire Department arrived at 10:05 p.m. Since the fire was confined to one room, it was easily controlled. Said Tom Miller, resident advisor for Slay Hall, "They were there for only an hour or so." According to a campus police officer, "The fire was relatively small. Most of the damage was caused by smoke, heat and water damage."

The cause of the explosion, according to Miller, is not yet known. "Several university authorities have looked around, but they have made no judgement yet."

A stereo, a television and several personal articles were among those things damaged.

Students obtain local vote

Off-campus students can now register to vote in Greenville as residents.

In the past students were not allowed to register unless they were in Greenville because of an Armed Forces commitment, owned property, or had their parents living in Greenville.

Rob Luisana, SGA President at ECU, anid the reason for this change in student voter registration seems to be because of the new city Registrar. "Trying to register with the former Registrar turned out to be largely a personality conflict," he said. "Everything was dependant on her interpretation of the guidelines of her position."

Luisana and Robert Twilley had attempted to register with the former Registrar and were refused. They appealed their cases but got no positive results.

Student arrested in hit and run

By BOB MARSKE

Staff Writer

An East Carolina student was involved in a hit-and-run accident Friday night between Fletcher and Garrett dormitories.

According to the campus police report, a white Thunderbird driven by James K. Aldridge III from La Grange, N.C., struck a parked green Capri at about 10 p.m. Aldridge was backing out of a one-way street between the dormitories.

"Aldridge then left the scene of the accident, and was apprehended by Greenville Police at 264 by-pass and 14th street. He volunteered all information when apprehended," said Joseph H. Calder, Director of Campus Security.

The Greenville Police placed Aldridge in Pitt County Jail on $100 bond. The identity of the owner of the Capri is not known at this time. The Greenville City Police are conducting further investigation.

by Roger Taylor Jr.

-WAR COMEDY-Is there anyone around anywhere by this time who hasn't heard of M*A*S*H? It's the alternately hilarious and moving story of how some Army doctors and nurses used fun and games to keep their sanity in the carnage of the Korean War. Donald Sutherland and Elliott Gould are starred in this favorite of a couple of years ago. If you haven't seen it, here's your chance-it's entertaining as ever. If you have, here's your chance to compare the original to what's been done with it in the TV series running this season. Screenings at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. on Friday, April 6, in Wright Auditorium.

- BLACK WEEK EVENTS -The week of April 2 - 9 has been designated Black Week at ECU. The Society of United Liberal Students (SOULS) is sponsoring the event. A semi-formal party is scheduled for Saturday at Eastbrook Apartments Clubhouse. Black Week will end Saturday with a choir concert in the afternoon.

-BUCCANEER AVAILABLE TO NON-RETURNING STUDENTS-Any student, who will not be returning to East Carolina and who want a 72-73 yearbook mailed to them please come by the office between 11-12 a.m. There will be a $1.00 mailing charge. This excludes the May graduates because their yearbooks will be mailed to them free of charge.

REFERENDUM-There -SENIOR will be a Senior Class Referendum on April 4 and 5 in the Lobby of the Student Union. The purpose is to determine if caps and gowns will be used this year for graduation. The referendum will be conducted from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily.

-THEATRE COMMITTEE-The Student Union is establishing a new Theatre Committee to bring professional plays such as "Sleuth" to the campus.

Applications are being accepted through April 6th. Those applying should specify as to whether they desire chairmanship or membership on the Committee.

ECU/Bonn program has enriched lives

To Fountainhead:

After hearing the announcement of the closing of ECU/Bonn after Spring, 1973, and reading the letter from John Palmer (FOUNTAINHEAD, March 27), we, as former students of ECU/Bonn, would like to express some feelings concerning our stay in Europe.

Students who have only been exposed to an "arm-chair education" can never realize the value of experiencing the subjects they are studying. Dr. Hans H. Indorf, in establishing ECU/Bonn, provided the opportunity for students to get off the safe, secure Greenville campus and out into the mainstream of an entirely different culture. When studying government systems, what could be more valuable than interviewing NATO representatives at NATO headquarters in Brussels or talking both formally and informally with communist party members in Moscow?

To seek to understand from afar is to confuse the understanding. We have experienced a different understanding and are all the better for it. We have met the peoples of many different environs...have tasted their ideologies and sampled their material attempts at that ideology. As we experienced these peoples, we scraped at the surface of their understanding. In the end we found that it is not where you have been, but what you have experienced. And we are all the better for it. We can only hope that in the future, other ECU students will be able to experience what we have experienced, and students such as John Palmer will someday realize how Dr. Indorf and the ECU/Bonn program have enriched their lives.

'Liberal Education' weak editorial

To Fountainhead: The editorial, "'Liberal education' no longer requires foreign language," in the March 27, Fountainhead, struck me as a prime example of weak editorial thinking. Starting with a criticism of the idea of a foreign language requirement, deeming it "hogwash," that "one needs a foreign language to receive the benefits of a liberal education," the editorial then supports this contention with criticism of the METHOD by which foreign languages are allegedly taught here at ECU, stating that, "Given the opportunity to visit a foreign country which uses one of these foreign languages, most students could never even ask the time of day; much less carry on a converstion or read a newspaper..." How can one support crtiticism of an IDEA by citing an example of poor method in the execution of that idea?

I feel the necessity to take issue with the editorial, technically as a weak piece of editorial journalism on the basis of the poor construction cited above, as well as with the idea that foreign laguage educational requirements should be dropped here at ECU. Another one of the points raised in the editorial in regard to dropping the requirement, is that, if students do not elect the foreign language sequence, "...unless he takes a math sequence (God forbid)..." he is obviously saddled with twenty hours of foreign language. This attitude, I, as a teaching fellow here, have found to be the typical ECU student attitude of taking the line of least resistance towards a liberal education. If there is a difficult course, by all means circumvent it, and if all else fails, switch selections to the "easy" teacher.

Further, the attitude reflected in the idea that foreign languages are not necessary is indicative of a somewhat narrow "American" viewpoint of the world which has earned us the title of a "foreign" work, or because people in Europe and the Soviet Union have taken the trouble to learn American English does not mean that they always want to do it, or that the BEST way to appreciate a work of foreign literature is in the translation. I will state here that in my opinion, poetry can not be effectively translated. The images are just too different in different languages. An example of the "ugly American story" came to me just recently from a member of the ECU faculty who was in the Bonn program last year, in which he relates how a group of American tourists shopping in a Spanish department store in Madrid became irate when the clerk refused to consider speaking English with them. Woudl an American clerk, in a Greenville store, who refused to speak Spanish with a Spanish tourist be criticised in the same manner? I think not!

Perhaps the criticism of the methods of teaching foreign language here at ECU is a justifiable one. I can not comment on this having fulfilled my foreign language requirements while working on an undergraduate degree at Boston University. However, having recently completed the M.M. degree here at ECU, can state unequivocally, that the foreign language sequence forced upon me as an undergraduate has proven useful to me, in reading certian technical publications not available in English, e.g., DER REIHE, MUSIK IM GESCHICHTE UND GEGENWART, and in obtaining the true ambience and imagery of German poetry when working with singers, something which in my opinion, is absolutely impossible to do from a translation. The language of a people is the thought of a people is distilled form. In this international age, how can we Americans remain isolated. content to reason only in English, American English at that?

Open letter opposes sex symbolism

To Fountainhead:

In this era of emphasis on sex and nudity under the guise of freedom of expression, a simple letter written about the image of womanhood is creating wide interest.

Some raido personalities such as Los Angeles' famous Dick Wittinghill have read it repeatedly on their radio programs. Newspapers and magazines, both religious and secular, are reprinting it, and private citizens are copying it for distribution to their friends.

This "Open Letter to Man" follows:

"I am a Woman. "I am your wife, your sweetheart, your mother, your daughter, your sister...your friend.

I NEED YOUR HELP.

"I was created to give the world GENTLENESS, UNDERSTANDING, SERENITY, BEAUTY AND LOVE. I am finding it increasingly difficult to fulfill my purpose.

"Many people in advertising, motion pictures, television and radio have ignored my inner qualities and have repeatedly used me ONLY as a symbol of sex.

"This humiliates me; it destroys my dignity; it prevents me from being what YOU want me to be--an example of--

"Beauty, Inspiration and Love--"Love for my children, love for my husband, love of my God and country. "I need your help to restore me to my true position...to ALLOW me to fulfill the PURPOSE FOR WHICH I WAS CREATED.

"I know you will find a way."

This letter was written about 10 years ago by songwriter Sy Miller and his wife, the former actress, Jill Jackson. But it wasn't until "Open Letter to Man" was discovered shortly over a year ago by the Rev. Francis J. Caggrey of the Maryknoll Fathers, that it received widespread circulation.

"Open Letter to Man" is a simple, powerful message challenging today's animalistic, sex-oriented image of

To Fountainhead:

I am writing concerning the humorous political material which has been circulating among some students. Nothing in this material can loosen the firm foundation upon which Bill Bodenhamer's platform is based, with a basic theme of the betterment of all ECU students. All I can say to this sort of political chicanery is that we consider the source.

Natural beauty preserved at ECU

To Fountainhead:

In light of current criticism that students are constantly cutting down ECU, we feel it necessary to commend one facet of our campus community for their splendid efforts.

On so many of our campuses, so called "modern facilities" and "miles of concrete" have replaced the simple beauty of nature.

NOT SO AT ECU!

The landscaping directors and crews have done a fnatastic job of preserving the natural beauty of our campus.

We as students and staff can show our appreciation by traveling on sidewalks instead of cutting paths across our lawns. Next time you are walking to class, take time to notice one more good thing about ECU.

Delegation slighter

To Fountainhead

I have just returned from Raleigl where I served as an alternate delegat on ECU's delegation to the North Carolina Student Legislature. While ther I observed the most astute political forc in action that I ever wish to encounter That force was the ECU delegation.

The delegates from ECU studied man weeks on the bills that were submitte to the NCSL. Our delegates often knev more about the bills from other schoo than those schools themselves knew When ECU stood up to debate on th floor of the senate and on the floor c the very noisy house, we would b listened to.

In the course of the five-da conference, ECU offered mor amendments to more bills, and more these were accepted than any other school. ECU delegates complete rewrote two bills from other schools, order that they would be passed. I addition to this, all of ECU's bills which were considered by the two governir houses were accepted. Our primary b was passed overwhelmingly without single change - not even a stylistic on This is a major accomplishment.

From the beginning, the delegates NCSL knew that ECU, and not ECT was there. All of the delegates in the House honored ECU and Ken Hammor by naming him the "Best Debator in th House."

However, despite thes accomplishments, the Conferen Committee which is responsible f naming the recipients of a number awards including "Best Delegation" ar "Best Legislation" did not see fit bestow any award on ECU. This soun really bad until you realize that ECU w not represented on that committe Carolina was. Duke was. State was. T "Best Legislation from a Large Schoo award went to Carolina; Duke w runner-up. ### Page 1, Fountainhead, Thursday, April, 5, 1973 Greek coeds lend ear to beat of different drums

By SUSAN DAWSON Special to Fountainhead

A college coed seeks a campus-oriented life. A freshman girl wants to find a group to relate to academically and socially. These girls are likely candidates for sorority membership.

Susan Quinn, an ECU freshman and sorority pledge from Charlotte, found herself in a large and seemingly uncaring school when she came to ECU. "I needed to be a part of something. The soroity gives me a group to identify with." she says.

Through the years, emphasis on sorority membership has undergone a change and so have individual members. Gone are the days of the collective identity many sorority women assumed. Today, sororities encourage individuality and self expression.

ENCOURAGE INDIVIDUALITY

Carolyn Fulghum, dean of women at ECU, explained that dress-style is a visible example of sorority change. "Several years ago, you could tell the sorority women apart from the other coeds. Their dress was more elaborate and was considered an important part of their social appearance. Girls are less worried today about clothes and more concerned with themselves as individuals.'

The change in sororities seems to be a growing, yet sometimes slow process. Not only dress code, but academics have undergone a revamping of priorities.

AID SURVIVAL

One ECU coed needed help in a course she was taking. "I thought I was hopelessly lost in my class. I asked a couple of my sorority sisters for help and they tutored me. They built up my morale and helped me pull through the course. I survived because they cared enough to help me."

Many "Greeks," a nickname for fraternal organizations, feel that their organization encourages academic excellence. Dean Fulghum further emphasized this fact by explaining the grade-point requirement each "Greek" woman must meet. Anyone having a grade-point average below 2.0 is ineligible for sorority initiation.

Some girls, however, are unable to meet the financial requirements of sorority life. Money is an integral part of sorority membership.

Cathy Manson, an ECU freshman from Greensboro, remembered the time she needed money for a sorority function. "I needed money to pay for an upcoming dance. "My sorority is so concerned with what fraternity some guy is in. Why should they suggest to me which fraternity to date in?" one coed said. The need to remain a closely knit social unit can cut off possible friendships and even romances in some cases.

Many ECU students commented on the lack of sorority service projects. Some feel that the "Greeks" are more concerned in social life than in community and campus service. One girl defended her sorority by stating "Sure,

Though sororities have expanded into a more diverse organization, the question remains as to whether sufficient expansion has occured to keep the Greek way of life alive. One non-Greek student commented on sorority alienation, "there are enough sub-societies without sororities."

Sororities encounter workshop weekend

A caravan of 18 East Carolina Greek sisters travel this weekend to Lexington, Ky. for participation in the Southeastern Panhellenic Conference. The conference will host approximately 800.

The coeds, representing all campus sororities, leave Friday, 4 a.m., to engage in workshops aimed at boosting and improving memberhip drives, alumni relations and overall sorority life. The various workshops include exploration into public and inter-sorority relations and rush and chapter programming. Several guest speakers will round out the program.

"We've never been to a convention like this before," remarked Sandy Penfield, ECU Panhellenic Council president. She further commented that the experience gained there will be invaluable in producing a more functional and attractive sorority system.

Four other North Carolina schools will be participating. They are: UNC-Ch, UNC-C, High Point College and Lenoir Ryne College. The East Carolina delegation is the largest.

The sorority dilemma is nationwide. Pros and cons of sorority life are being re-evaluated on many of today's campuses. "The South is holding on to its membership more than the North. Sororities are undergoing a period of re-evaluation everywhere however. The decision to join rests on the individual. Sororities are the product of its members," Dean Fulghum explained.

"This is the first quartet in musical history made up of about ten people," remarked Gershon Kingsley, director and producer of The First Moog Quartet which performed in Wright on Tuesday night.

The "Quartet" featured four Moog electronic music synthesizers, a guitar, bass guitar, a vocalist and percussion section, including a xylophone and congas.

group's repetoire included anything from a Renaissance piece by Gabrielli to their own popular hit "Popcorn", which sold 12 million records internationally.

"This is an age of electronic music when music is measured in decibels," Kingsley added. "The basic sound source of the Moog synthesizer is an oscillator." An oscillator, in electronics, is a circuit producing alternating audio-frequency voltage. The sounds it produces can be modified by the turn of a knob.

"The synthesizer," Kingsley went on, "is an instrument that can be built up like an erector set. It is a modular system that can increase in capabilities as it is added upon.

"A synthesizer is a monophonic instrument. This means it is capable of producing only one note at a time,"

On Monday afternoon the East Carolina baseball team was given a dose of their own shutout medicine as they were blanked by defending Southern Conference champion Richmond 1-0.

The Spiders were led by ace hurler Roger Hatcher, who stopped the Pirates on six hits. In so doing Hatcher extended his personal scoreless streak to 16 innings.

Tommy Toms hurled another brilliant game for the Bucs, also giving up only six hits. He struck out eleven while walking only two. Yet it was a crucial balk by Toms in the sixth with a runner on third that allowed the only run of the game to score.

The Pirates had many opportunities throughout the game to score, but never seemed able to push a run across. Their will to win on this day seemed to leave a little to be desired.

In the third inning Toms lead off with a hit and his courtesy pinchrunner was advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt. That was as far as he got as Richmond retired the next two batters to end the inning.

In the fifth the Pirates got Jeff Beaston as far as second base, but he was stranded there at the end of the inning. Richmond scored the only run of the game when they had runners on second and third with just one out in their half of the sixth. The balk by Toms let the lone run score, and that was all the Spiders needed.

It is the mark of a good team to come back fighting when they get behind which East Carolina did in the bottom half of the sixth inning. However, there is no room for sloppy baserunning on a winning team. This unecessary carelessness killed Pirate chances twice.

Jimmy Paige was on third and Ron Staggs was on first in the last half of the sixth when Troy Eason trickled a slow roller to the Richmond second baseman. A double play was converted on Staggs and Eason, yet for some reason the end of that play found Paige still standing on third when he should have been in the dugout being congratulated for scoring the tying run.

In the Pirate half of the seventh Mike Hogan was on second and Ronnie Legget on first with no outs. High hopes for a gamewinning rally were promptly snuffed out as Hogan managed to get himself picked off second base.

It seemed appropriate that in the eighth ECU should have Mike Bradshaw on third with only one out and not be able to score him. This typified the luck of Coach Jim Mallory's ballclub on this day—a day upon which the Pirates were just not meant to win.

One loss does not make a season, however. This is only the first conference loss on the season for the Bucs, leaving them in third place with a record of 2-1. This loss broke the Pirate's winning streak, as their overall record fell to 7-2.

Appalachian State leads the Southern Conference with a 2-0 mark, followed by Richmond with a 1-0 record. The Pirates hold down third place followed by Furman(2-2), William and Mary (1-1), Davidson (1-1), VMI (0-2), and The Citadel (0-2)

The Pirates have a great chance to get back in the thick of things this weekend as they travel to Appalachian for a double header on Sunday.

20-6 loss

Tar Heels splash by Pirates

Did you ever have one of those days when it appeared that you never should have gotten out of bed? Well maybe that thought was running through the minds of Coach John Lovstedt and his Lacrosse team after Sunday afternoon's battle with UNC-CH.

The Tarheels did not treat the Pirates very well at all as the boys in baby blue pumped in 20 goals while limiting the Bucs to a mere six. The game was played in Ficklen Stadium and after several cloudbursts started to resemble a swimming meet.

ECU grabbed an early lead, scoring in the first two and one-half minutes of play. That moment of glory was short-lived, however, as UNC scored two minutes later and then the Tarheels exploded for seven more goals to amass an 8-1 cushion at the end of the first period.

Both teams battled on even terms in the second quarter as they each scored #### three times.

The third quarter put the game out of reach as far as ECU was concerned as the Tarheels blasted five more goals past goalie Bruce Strange to virtually put the game on ice, 16-4.

All the fourth period did was prolong the Buc's agony as UNC tallied four times and ECU scored twice.

Jeff Hansen turned in another outstanding performance as he scored twice and turned in several fine defensive plays.

Danny Mannix added two goals and Will Mealy and Bill Harrington each added a single tally to round out ECU's scoring.

Coach Lovstedt feels that the toughest games of the year are history and he and his stickmen look forward to traveling to Duke on Wednesday and then ECU returns on Saturday to the confines of Ficklen Stadium to take on Guilford at 3

Novak joins grid staff

Sonny Randle, head football coach at ECU, recently named Frank Novak to his football staff.

Novak will be the offensive coordinator on the Randle staff, succeeding Vito Ragazzo, who resigned recently to accept a coaching position at the University of North Carolina.

A native of Worchester, Mass., Novak comes to East Carolina from Northern Michigan University where he served as offensive coordinator since 1966.

Novak played collegiately at Northern Michigan and was named honorable mention All-American as a quarterback. He later played professionally with the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Novak graduated from Northern Michigan with degrees in both History and English in 1962 and later received his MA degree from Northern Michigan in 1967. He has done extensive study in remedial reading and has attended institutes at Hartford and the University of Connecticutt.

Crew faces UNC next

The ECU Pirate's lightweight varsity eight added another crew victory to their perfect string as they defeated George Washington University in one of three races held in Washington on Saturday

The Pirate crew won one of the other two, as the varsity four shell won their race by G.W.'s being disqualified. The G.W. shell had beaten the Pirates, but ECU was awarded first with a time of 9:31.4. The lightweight eight won their race in 7:32.0.

The heavyweight eight did not fare as well, however, as they lost to the G.W. team who finished the 2000 meter race in 6:59.0 while the Bucs finished with a time of 7:10.4.

Overall the Pirates are 3-4. They will host UNC this Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The starting line will be down river and the finish line will be the Greene Street Bridge.

There is a new item out now for bald-headed men. It is a comb with false teeth.

Bucs remain undefeated Helmer led all scorers, pacing the ECU's golf team continued their erfect season last week with victories cover Duke University and a three-way in over UNC-W and East Stroudsberg Pennsylvania. The Bucs now have an 8-0 record.

Last Wednesday in Durham the Blue Devils became victim number six, losing to the Pirates 141/2-61/2.

Eddie Pinnix led the way for ECU as he was the match's medalist, firing a 71. Other Pirate winners were Jim Brown, Harry Helmer, Bebo Batts, and Jim Ward.

Victims number seven and eight, UNC-W and East Stroudsberg, fell to the Bucs last Thursday afternoon in Wilmington.

The Pirates' top five golfers fired a score of 361 combined strokes to beat Wilmington by 18 strokes. East Stroudsberg was third with 416 strokes.

Pirate cause with a three-under par 69. Other ECU scores were Pinnix, 71; Batts, 73; Ward, 73; and Brown, 75.

The Buc's next outing will be this weekend in the Furman Invitational Golf Tournament in Greenville, S.C.

Summary ECU vs. Duke: Pinnix (EC) d Keesler (D) 3-0. Caprera (D) d Ward (EC) 21/2-1/2. Brown (EC) d Barrett (D) 21/2-11/2. Womack (D) d Bell (EC) 21/2-1/2. Helmer (EC) d Dutwiller (D) 2-1. Batts (EC) d Wikel (D) 3-0. Wall (EC) d Hall (D) 3-0.

Netters record first win

Sunday afternoon saw the ECU tennis team record its initial victory of the 1973 season, an 8-1 win in a Southern Conference match against VMI. Monday, however, the Davidson Wildcats stopped the Pirate's streak at one straight as they shut-out the Bucs 9-0.

The Pirates dropped the first singles match Sunday, but came back to sweep the next eight, including the three doubles matches.

Davidson won every set in rolling to their eleventh win of the year at Davidson. The loss established ECU's record at 1-7 overall and 1-4 in Southern Conference action.

Bad luck and bad weather fell heavily upon the Buc netters in play last week. ECU lost a rain shortened match to N.C.

State on Thursday afternoon, were defeated by the Citadel on Friday, and they were rained out against Pembroke on Saturday.

The Wolfpack rolled to a 7-0 whitewash in Raleigh, marking the second time this season that State has set down the Bucs without losing a match. The first and second doubles matches were cancelled due to unformed snow. The Citadel managed to take five out of the six singles matches before the rains came to defeat ECU, 5-1. All three doubles matches were rained out.

The only ECU win came as Howard Rambeau defeated the Bulldog's Jon Foshee, 6-3 and 6-1.

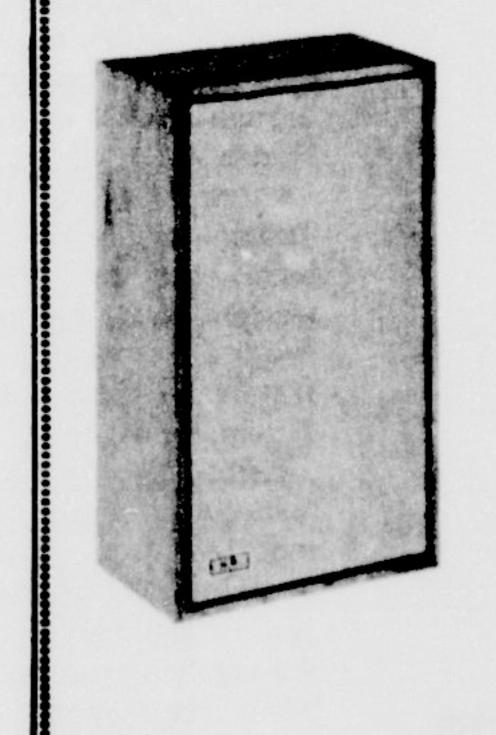

The netters return home to face N.C. Wesleyan on Thursday afternoon at 2

Coach leads thrilling life

Have you ever wondered how difficult it would be to coach three varsity sports at a major university? Well this task has been placed squarely upon the shoulders of Head Diving Coach, Head Soccer Coach and Head Lacrosse Coach John Loystedt. When coach Lovstedt came to ECU four years ago from Columbia University, his only coaching experience was in diving. He was quite surprised when two more sports were dropped into his lap. So he set out to study dilligently and learn all he possibly could about soccer and lacrosse.

In four years at the helm of the soccer team, he has amassed a record of 4-26-5. This mark is much better than the records of the three previous coaches. Lovstedt adds praise for Ed Wolcott, who has served in the capacity as assistant coach for the past two seasons. Lovstedt said, "Ed has been a remendous motivator in our soccer program and I am quite thankful for having him around." His biggest thrill in soccer was when his 1971 squad traveled to Laurinburg, N.C. and upset St. Andrews College.

Lacrosse has only been an ECU varsity sport for three years and Lovstedt teams have compiled a 9-18 record.

Lovstedt could probably have an undefeated season if he filled the chedule with local teams. Instead he ravels outside of the conference as his eams play such powers as Dartmouth, Duke, VPI, UNC and N.C. State.

His biggest lacrosse victory was a thrilling thriumph over a very tough William and Mary club, at Williamsburg,

When talking about diving a big grin comes to Lovstedt's face, for this sport is his first love. He was a "Big Ten" Champion diver for Indiana University's Hobie Billingsly, probably the most successful diving coach in the world.

Lovstedt's patience and super knowledge of machanics put him into the ranks of the best diving coaches in America. This reporter feels that ECU does not realize how lucky they are to have a man of John's capabilities.

He has coached four straight Southern Conference Champions and in 1970 his divers finished first, second, third and fourth at the Southern Conference Championships at William and Mary. An ECU diver has never lost a Southern Conference title.

The past two years his coaching has helped send an ECU diver to the NCAA championships.

Coach Lovstedt is a very congenial and tremendously funny individual. When he is on the field or by the pool, however, the fun turns to work.

In addition to his coaching duties, Lovstedt must serve as the chief recruiter for his three sports. Then to cap it off he must teach several health and physical education classes.

It is amazing how one man can handle so many jobs, however Lovstedt has put his mind to it and has done a job that all of ECU can be proud of.

Serious problems still haunt SGA presidential office

Although the candidates have seemed more than willing to try every move to get themselves into the plush, powerful office on the 3rd floor of Wright Building, one can but help wondering if the office is worth all of the hassles envolved.

The pay is more than adequate, and it looks awfully good on one's record to be SGA president, but in the final analysis the rewards of the office appear to be more negative than positive.

Besides the all encompassing and final veto power wielded by the chancellor of the university, there are many other obstacles to be overcome to make the job as successful in reality as it is in

One major obstacle is the SGA Handbook. This archaic manual, apparently written as a panacea for the ills of the former constitution, is in fact an albatross hanging around the neck of not only the president, but the entire SGA. For example, the amendment procedure outlined in Article IX of the Constitution makes the amendment process an almost impossible task.

An amendment can only be proposed by one of two methods. One, by a two-thirds vote of the membership of the Legislature; or two, by a student petition carrying 15 per cent of the signatures of the student body. After this, and other specifications, the amendment must be voted on and approved by a two-thirds student vote-and at least 20 per cent of the student body must vote on the amendment. Right now the SGA has trouble stirring up much over 20 per cent of the student body to vote for the offices, much less an amendment.

Also, because of its size, the SGA requires that a number of very important positions be filled by appointment by the president. It is generally no trouble getting the Legislature to approve of appointees, providing one can find sufficiently qualified persons to fill the positions.

Usually the patronage, or "spoils" system is used to determine who will run the SGA administration. This system can, and often does backfire in the face of the SGA president, when he finds that these "friends" interests do not match their abilities.

This problem is almost directly related to a third one facing any new president, and that is communication. Currently, there is no good means to determine the desires and needs of the student body. Consequently, the only way a president can determine what the student body wants is by their original vote of confidence. Some may argue that this representation is accomplished through the SGA Legislature, but Mr. Luisana has already proven (Fountainhead, February 8, 1973) that is is possible to sneak anything by this astute body.

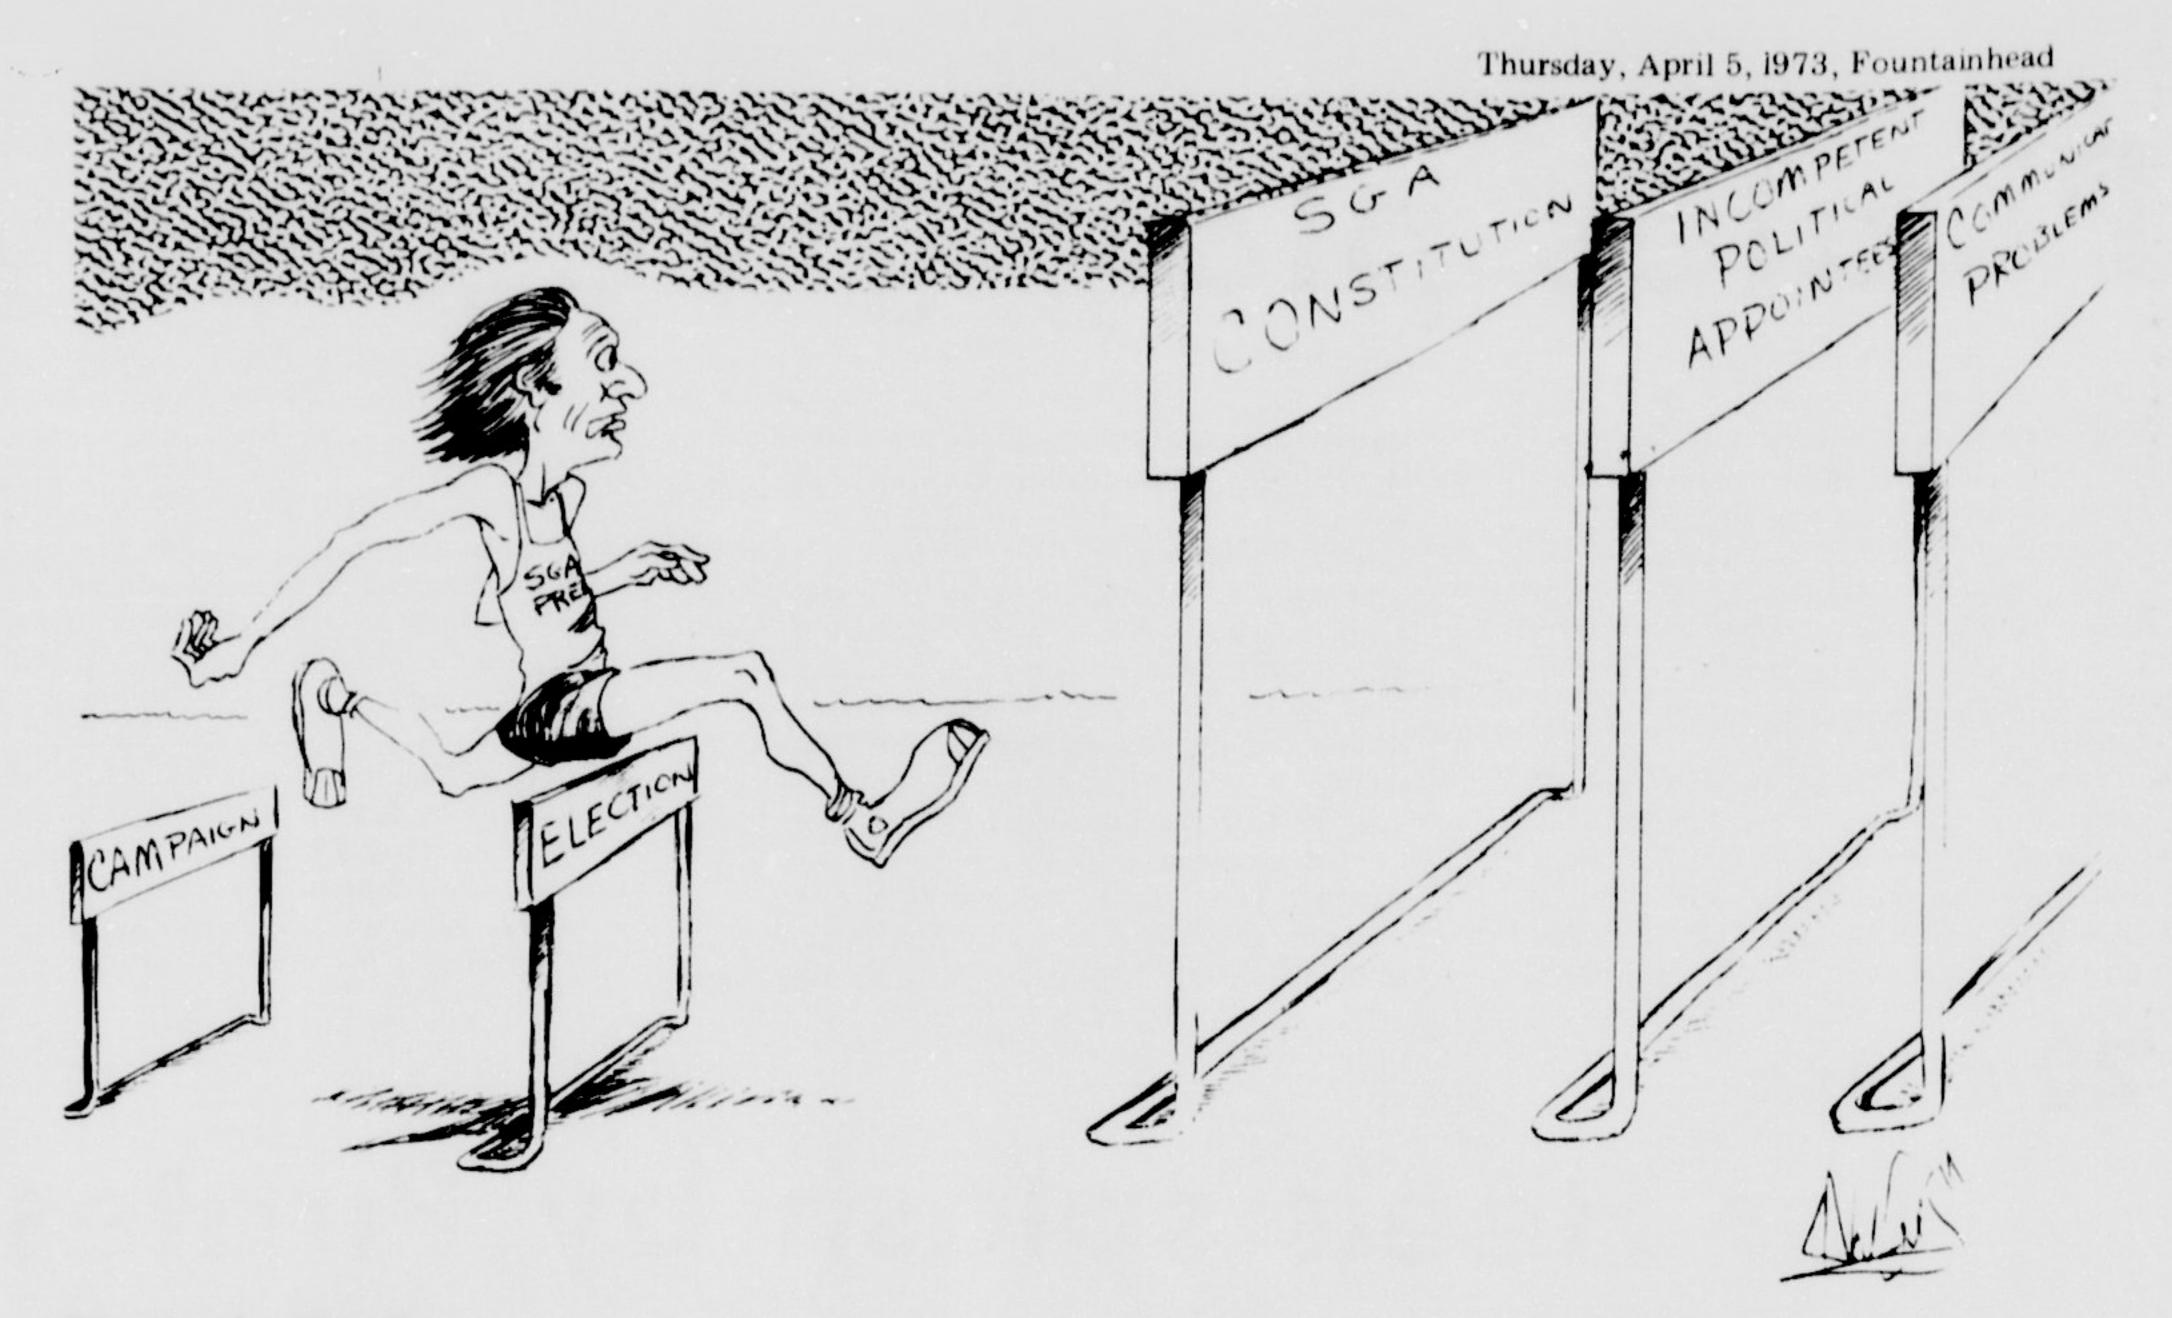

This problem could possibly be solved by a well-coordinated full-time polling service (absent from any of the current candidate's platforms) that would reach a majority of the students on a regular basis. Behaviorial science is not a new field by any means, and it is well-represented by several qualified faculty members, who could assist in setting up such a service. Any "Hotline" is totally unreliable, and the response to one would be almost negligible.

These are just a few of the major problems facing the new SGA president. We hope he recognizes them, and will take steps quickly in his administration to deal with them.

Old REBEL made every issue an Issue

Once upon a time a few talented students gathered together and put out a literary magazine. They call it the Rebel. I dont know the reason why, nor do I care. It was their baby and they named it. The Associated Collegiate Press gave it good ratings a couple of times and with the passage of time its fortunes either rise or fall.

In 1967, the magazine had almost collapsed from a lack of strong guiding hands. The office of the Rebel was located on the third floor of old Austin at the time and it was a very spooky place to two upperclass student newspaper editors who had agreed to take over the operation that September. When they arrived at the office they found a coffee pot and half full cups placed around the office as if someone had just left. While the two, Nellie Jo Lee and John Reynolds, were dusting up a little, I walked in with a book of poetry in my hand. We had lunch together and I read some of my work to them and they asked me to be poetry editor. They asked a very free thinking former reporter for the newspaper, Duncan Stout, to be managing editor--actually, he was more of an idea man than a manager and they put him on the mast as Co-ordinating Editor And the SGA photographer at the time, Walt Quade, provided a technical ability that gave the Rebel a lot of photographic class. Also, mentioned last because he was nobodies favorite person, Sid Morris the Art Editor. He actually was the design creator and in his was a contrary genius.

There were more, 23 people to be listed in various positions. Each of them did their part in putting it all together, but the five I mentioned and myself were the people who brought the Rebel to three consecutive All American Honor Ratings by the Associated Collegiate Press. That is not a third, second, or first class, that was the top award we won. And each year we built on the previous year to be better than before.

From here it sounds like I am blowing my horn. Well, hell--I am. No one else is left to remind you of what a glory the Rebel was. We ran the first nudes, the first inside color, the only satire supplement that made fun of everything about the campus, the administration Dr. Jenkins: gubernatorial ambitions. We used the magazine as a jumping off point for commentary on the slums of Greenville. On conditions in the state prisons. On war and protest. On the developing drug culture. We made every issue an Issue. To be a collection of poetry and fiction and art was not enough. We sought the storm and we found it.

We were not content to be just a literary magazine, a little ivory tower of intellectual snobbery. In that sense we were rebels. We thought of changing the name, but decided to keep it because we were doing just what the name really implies-running against the current, sticking our noses out, running an open magazine. We communicated to our audience and they responded by scooping the issues up and treasuring them.

Our message was blasted out, held up obscure was to be dead. The only way we could keep going and keep being funded was to win awards. As long as we were on top the powers that be couldn't say stop. It has been a while since those halcyon days and the present finds the Rebel in a sad state.

The last Editor of the Rebel wants to change its name. For what reason? He told the Publications Board it was because the name was out-dated, that it did not reflect its true nature, that there were connotations of racism and identification with student unrest in recent years. I wonder if it could be Phil Arrington's dissatisfaction. I consider all the reasons I have heard to pretty poor. Arrington did quite well to revive the Rebel after the depredations of Woody (Supah Rebel) Thurmond. Some points of the last few issues have been excellent in my opinion. That many did not like them is no reflection on Arrington. A name change would be.

A student with identity problems changed the name of the East Carolinian to Fountainhead and dropped out before he finished his term as Editor. Very few would know his name now, he did not gain undying fame. As a matter of fact, there is a new group of freshmen each year who could care less who edited what. I ask those who read this column to consider very carefully their vote in the referendum on the question of changing the name of the Rebel. A past editor has had his chance, now let him pass on to a new student generation the legacy of a great magazine, intact. The Rebel needs no ghost editor, it needs to be what it is best--The Rebel.

Watergate crew silent for $1,000 a month

By JACK ANDERSON

Watergate conspirator James McCord has alleged that pressure was brought on the Watergate defendants to plead guilty and, thereby, to keep the details of the scandal out of the court record. He also named higher-ups whom he claimed had advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in and bugging. His charges have brought howls of denial from the White House.

happened to be at the Arlington Towers, where the Watergate defendants were holding their secret strategy sessions just before Christmas. I was waiting in a nearby room for one of the Watergate figures to report the latest developments to me.

After the session broke up, my informant slipped into my room and reported that powerful pressure had been brought on the defendants to plead guilty. He said E. Howard Hunt, the Watergate ringleader, had made the pitch. Hunt promised that their families would receive $1,000 a month while they were in prison and implied an early pardon would be arranged. My informant said Hunt had a charismatic influence over the other defendants. Most had worked under him during the Bay of Pigs plotting.

We wrote a story, which was published on December 26th, about the pressure and the $1,000-a-month offer. But we held back the other details to protect my source. We are now free to tell more about the incident, although we still cannot reveal the source. But the incident strongly suggests that McCord is telling the truth.

White House sources also told us months ago that presidential aides John Dean and Jeb Magruder were far more deeply implicated in the Atergate affair than they were admitting. These are the same higher-ups whom McCord has now named.

We don't pretend to know the whole Watergate story and have been able to put together only some of the jigsaw pieces. But the way to get the truth is for President Nixon to cooperate with the Senate, not to abstruct its investigation. DEEP CONCERN

We reported on June 12, 1969, that the Kremlin was seriously considering a preventive attack on China. The story was confirmed two months later by CIA Director Richard Helms, who told newsmen about the danger during a deep background session. Since we didn't attend the background session, we are free to reveal that Helms was the man who confirmed the story.

The Kremlin wanted to knock out China's nuclear missles that could menace Russia. The Central Intelligence Agency now believes it's too late for Russia to consider a preventive attack. China now has an estimated four dozen nuclear-tipped missiles deployed against Soviet cities, including Moscow itself.

The CIA has no doubt that Russia would win a nuclear war with China. But the CIA believes the price would be too high. It almost surely would cost Russia most of her great cities. Most intelligence experts agree with the CIA.

But some of President Nixon's key intelligence advisors inside the National Security Agency still regard a Soviet attack on China as a real possiblity. The Soviets now have at least 41 divisions massed along the China border. They are backed by an arsenal of nuclear weapons.

White House sources tell us the President is deeply concerned that the Soviets might strike. He warned Soviet Chairman Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow last year against such an attack. The President is worried that a war between Russia and China would erupt into a world war, with horrible nuclear exchange between Russia and China, alone, would endanger the United States. For the United States is downwind from Asia. The wind currents would carry the nuclear fall-out directly over this country.

Thus, President Nixon, once the implacable foe of both Communist giants, is now in the curious role of trying to keep peace between them.

STILL THERE The withdrawal of American military forces from South Vietnam definitely does not mean the United States is abandoning the Saigon regime or pulling out of Southeast Asia. The military command has simply been transferred from Saigon to Nakhon Phanom in Thailand, just across the border from Laos.

The command will continue to operate, keeping air and naval on the alert, until the peace is stabilized in Indochina.

Meanwhile, the United States will continue to bolster South Vietnam with economic aid. Counting both direct and indirect aid, the American taxpayers will pay between 70 to 90 per cent of the actual cost of running the South Vietnamese government.

The United States will also supply friendly governments in Southeast Asia with all the arms they need to stay in power. Military shipments will be increased to Australia, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Thailand and the Philippines. The strategy will be to furnish arms, but no longer men, to support our allies in Southeast Asia.

President Nixon also intends to maintain American military power in Asia. The 7th Fleet will continue to patrol Asian waters, although it has already been cut back from six to four carriers. A Marine division will also be kept in Okinawa, if pernission can be arranged with Japan. The 7th Air Force will make its headquarters in Thailand as long as Indochina is threatened by Communist forces. The President hopes to reduce this threat by offering economic aid to Hanoi and persuading the North Vietnamese they would be better off developing friendly, peaceful relations with the United States. Thereafter, the 7th Air Force would be pulled back to the ilippines.

A couple of years ago, this powerful American presence in Asia would have upset Peking. But now the Chinese Communists secretly welcome the 7th Fleet and 7th Air Force as a deterrent to the Soviet forces massed on the Chinese
