

We Couldn't Smoke What He Smoked.

If the original consumer of tobacco offered you a smoke, it'd be hard to take.

Back then, the taste was bitter. And so hot, it was said to burn the mouth like pepper.

Before tobacco became the rage of Europe, it had to become milder and sweeter, through blending.

Four centuries later, taste preferences still determine what people smoke throughout the world.

And finding the right tobaccos to provide the taste your customers want is no small task.

Yet, the buyers at Monk are experts at it. And, with a direct order, you can count on getting the tobacco you need to keep your blends constant.

We're major suppliers of choice U.S. leaf. As well as preferred flue-cured and burley tobaccos from places like Korea, Canada, Nepal, Italy, Brazil, Guatemala and other countries.

And our own people carefully process them to meet your specifications precisely.

So, regardless of what your customers might like to smoke, Monk will make certain your supply of tobacco is always in the best of taste.

A.C.Monk & Company, Farmville, North Carolina, U.S.A.