

ENGINEERS PLACE FOUR MEN ON FIRST HALF DIVISIONAL ALL STAR AGGREGATION.

Strictly on the merits exhibited during the first half of the Ship's Divisional play, this publication has gone out on a limb and selected an All-Star team. Not claiming any title toward infallibility, we can already hear some dissenting voices in the background, but nevertheless, we'd be more than willing to risk a few pesos on the men selected against any other ten men who might have been chosen. Here it is.....arguments to the contrary will be heard from 1000 to 1100 during the coming week:

- c. - Chuchalk, "E" DIVISION
- p. - Stefaniak, "C" DIVISION
- p. - Mahl, "E" DIVISION
- 1b. - Peters, 2nd DIVISION
- 2b. - Lefebvre, 1st DIVISION
- 3b. - Hill, "E" DIVISION
- scf. - Tyree, "O" or Gilman, "C"
- lf. - Ford, 2nd DIVISION
- cf. - Lynch, 2nd DIVISION
- rf. - KELLER, "X" DIVISION
- ss. - Allmindinger, "E" DIVISION

PLAYOFF TO BE DECIDED AT MEETING ON MONDAY 23 APRIL AT 1600.

"Babyface" Keller, on his triple in today's contest against "E" Div., looked like Jesse Owens as he tore around 2nd base on his way to third. Chub's arms and legs were pumping up and down like the pistons of the "Burlington Zephyr," shortstop Al Allmindinger claims that the speed of Keller's rush tore four buttons from his shirt. Even Dagwood, on his early morning dashes, would have been hard pressed to keep up with galloping Elmer on this one.

Mother Earth came up awful fast on baserunner Leavitt as he vainly tried to avoid being hit by Price's batted ball against the "E" Division. Long Luke denies the statement that it took ten minutes of diligent preening to rid that hirsute adornment of the dusty Philippine soil collected in the fall.

Young Bussey caught a nice game in Bob Knapp's absence for the C's, though he has the rather painful and embarrassing (to the plate ump) habit of letting the tick fouls go by.

Al Allmindinger's hits have been of the cleanest variety, the kind that whistle as they bullet past the infielders.

Marty Hill's rifle shot single through the pitcher's box was discreetly avoided by pitcher Price.

Red Kessner took some hard bumps catching today, but shook them off like a college fullback.
