Remodeling planned for Student Supply Store

By DENNIS C. LEONARD
Advertising Manager

The ECU Student Supply Store will soon undergo a $500,000 remodeling program.

According to Joseph O. Clark, manager of the Student Supply Store, the sales floor space will be doubled and the snack shop will be relocated in the old student union side of Wright Annex.

"The sales floor area will be extended to include the snack shop area and the offices to the side of the sales area, increasing it from 5,600 square feet to 10,200 square feet," said Clark.

"The cost of the expansion project will be paid for entirely by the Student Supply Store operating budget without the aid of University funds."

The Student Supply Store had to petition the expansion to the N.C. Legislature and the Legislature approved the $500,000 remodeling costs.

"When the bids came in August 31st, the costs ran over $100,000 more than was originally expected, so the snack shop will not be completed until later on," Clark said.

"The shell of the snack shop will be completed the same time the other project is totally completed after that."

The project is to take approximately nine months to complete and will be divided into three phases.

The first phase will be to renovate the areas where the old Student Union used to be in Wright Annex, plus an addition to the north side of the building that will house an expanded warehouse. [See REMODELING, page 6.]

Legislature appoints committees

By DAVID NASH

SGA Correspondent

The Student Government Association (SGA) Legislature held its second meeting of the year last evening with the focus of business on committee appointments and introduction of bills.

Appointments for the Appropriations, Rules and Judiciary, Screenings and Appointments, and Student Welfare committees were announced by SGA Speaker of the Legislature Ricky Price. Committees will begin scheduled meetings later this week.

Appropriation bills were introduced for the North Carolina Student Legislature, the BUC-CANEER, the East Carolina "Playhouse", and WECU radio.

Monika Sutherland, editor of the BUC-CANEER, spoke to the legislature concerning the proposed yearbook budget.

According to Sutherland, the yearbook is now involved in a $5,000 lawsuit with Multi-Pics Studios for breach of contract concerning yearbook portraits for the '76-'77 school year.

Due to a six percent increase in printing costs, the BUC-CANEER is requesting a budget of $66,010 for the period November, 1976-June, 1977.

A bill giving the ECU Vocational Rehabilitation Club funds to attend the state convention later this month in Charlotte passed after suspension of the rules and minimal debate.

The bill appropriates $100 for transportation costs to the club.

stick by the law. We have consulted the state Attorney General, the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, and the court attorney and they have all agreed to the legality."

According to W.R. Smith, Pitt County Tax Collector, "There is no reason why any college student should be taxed in two counties. They should go to their tax supervisor to determine their status."

"I would treat a student as any other delinquent taxpayer, using proper channels," said Smith.

Michaels, who took full responsibility for tax discovery, claimed these taxpayers have benefits, "the same as any other property owner, they are taxpayers."

Miss Margaret Register, registrar of Pitt County Board of Elections, interprets student residence by "where your parents live."

Register clarified her point, "Your place of permanent domicile is where you'll vote."

Students may owe local taxes

By JIMMY WILLIAMS
Production Manager

East Carolina University (ECU) students who own property may be liable for Pitt County as well as Greenville City taxes, according to Phillip Michaels, Pitt County Tax Supervisor.

"To establish residence there are different rules for different purposes but for tax purposes a student must meet three requirements: they must pay in-state tuition, they must live here the better part of the year, and their auto must be registered in their name," said Michaels.

"The city also has the authority to tax these students should they reside within the city limits," said Michaels.

Out of 8,000 registered autos on campus, 300 to 500 will be taxable, said Michaels.

"All of these students will eventually be taxed here," cited Michaels.

Property taxes, which make up about 41 percent of the total county appropriations, are the category under which these taxes on autos come.

Out of about $8,060,000, around $10,000 will come from ECU students.

Michaels received his information on the taxable students through administrative channels.

"I asked the chief of campus security, Joseph H. Calder, and he directed me to his superior, Cliff Moore (vice-chancellor of Business Affairs)," said Michaels.

"Mr. Moore said it was public record, it could not be withheld and he okayed my getting it from Calder," Michaels stated.

As to the legality of the tax Michaels said, "We intend to Survey disproves chauvinistic notion

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a four part series which examines the SGA sponsored Student Opinion Survey. This article looks at Chapter III of the survey, "Educational Attitudes of Students at ECU."

By JIM ELLIOTT
Senior Editor

Sometimes used chauvinistically, the notion that most young women come to college primarily to find a marriage partner is false.

More than 80 percent of the females responding to questionnaires rated matrimony as "not an important reason for coming to college," according to the Student Opinion Survey.

Of those males responding to the question on marriage, 20.8 percent indicated that finding a spouse was an important reason for attending college.

Most respondents, 72.2 percent believe that "to learn a subject or skill for a job is very important."

Students who attend a university "to obtain a degree of prestige are on the average male, in-state residents and from a rural background.

The survey also shows a "desire to enter a specific program or department" a very important reason for choosing ECU for 49.2 percent of those questioned.

Those who come to East Carolina for its athletic reputation, according to the survey, tend to have lower grade averages than those who do not; more than half are male and nearly three-fourths are less than 20 years old.

The fourth part of Chapter III, Evaluation of Educational Components at East Carolina, reveals that 91 percent of the respondents are satisfied with their professors.

"Responsiveness of administration is rated as the most unsatisfactory element in contributing to one's education," the survey said; 52.4 percent said they were satisfied while 47.6 percent said they were dissatisfied. Younger students, ages 19 and under who are freshmen and sophomores, appear to be more satisfied than others.

Job interviews to begin Oct. 13

Job interviews for Seniors graduating before August, 1977, will begin Oct. 13, according to Furney K. James, Director of ECU's Career Planning and Placement Service.

This service is free to Seniors and available to alumni at a cost of five dollars per year.

James said interviewers for October include the U.S. Navy Officer Programs, Branch Banking and Trust Co. and Roses Stores, Inc.

"Last year we registered

1,018 Seniors and 600 alumni," said James.

According to James, Career Planning and Placement Service assists students in finding jobs in their majors by notifying those registered of job opportunities, arranging interviews and providing resume forms. A wide variety of other services are also offered.

Any student interested in any of the services or who has questions can stop by the Career Planning and Placement Service in the Jenkins Alumni Building.

Tax ≠ Vote!

In August the Pitt County Tax Supervisor's office began sending out bills to county "residents" for tangible properties that they own and maintain in the county. As defined by the N.C. Attorney General's office: "When legal title to personal property is held by a North Carolina resident who maintains a 'home' residence in one county but who lives for more than six months in another county for the purpose of attending school, teaching school, or working for the State government, the tax situs of the property is in the county in which the individual lives for the greater part of the year." Nearly seven percent of ECU students fall into this category and are taxable in Pitt County, according to Phillip Michaels, county tax supervisor. To reside in Pitt County for the greater part of the year is not, however, adequate criteria to make a student eligible to vote in county elections. Students who have left home to attend school, pay no taxes in their home county, but have not decided to become "permanent" residents of Pitt County are not eligible to vote here. A great incentive to vote at home no longer exists when taxes are no longer paid and the student is ineligible to vote where he does pay taxes.

Although the Attorney General's office first ruled back in 1955 that tax situs was established in the county where a citizen spent most of the year, it was not until this year that Pitt County decided to tax students falling into this category. In January the Tax Supervisor's office posted notices in dorms advising students to voluntarily list all property owned and maintained in Pitt County.

Even though Michaels denies any connection, it seems more than coincidental that students are assessed this year when Pitt County is due to lose nearly $400,000 in revenue sharing funds. County commissioners, anticipating a revenue shortfall, have indicated they will attempt to keep the tax rate as low as possible, and what better way than to find new tax bases. Michaels claims students are being taxed this year because his staff was adequate enough to make these discoveries. The county is obligated to collect taxes from students whether or not they are able to vote here, according to Michaels.

Since the voting age for national, then state and local elections was lowered to eighteen, we have heard many reports of voting apathy on the part of the newly enfranchised. Voting is a right and an obligation for citizens of a democratic society, but it can also be a hassle for some. Voting laws and requisite requirements should be made as simple and hassle-free as possible. Then we may truly realize enthusiastic voter participation, from all age groups.

Well he's the tax man

To Fountainhead:

The main reason behind the Revolutionary War was "taxation without representation." Well, what happened 200 years ago apparently did not cure the situation.

Pitt County's tax collector, Phillip Michaels, is now King George and ECU his sovereignty and we, the independent students (?) of ECU are the colonists.

If His Royalty Michaels thinks we students are going to pay his and all other country salaries without having a chance to vote their cans out of office, he's full of (expletive deleted)

This country was founded on the principle of one man, one vote with no taxation without representation and even the all-mighty Mr. Michaels cannot change that premise.

Michaels, at this point, has the law on his side but the reasoning behind it is to rip off the students of this great university; students that generate 15 percent of Greenville's sales and probably five percent of Michaels' Kingdom.

Trying to be naive, Michaels says as taxpayers we have rights, but it seems he and Margaret Register of the Board of Elections have not been using inter-office communications too well, for Register says students vote in the county of their parents.

A good boycott of Pitt County businesses might bring a substantial loss of sales tax revenue and turn 'King Phillip I' about-face, unclogging his brain.

But, then with students using co-ops to bring food in from surrounding counties, 'King Phillip' would probably put tariffs on the goods.

Let's just hope the tyranny of 200 years ago doesn't boil up today, but don't count on it.

So the 'King' can see it,

Indiscriminate towing rapped

To Fountainhead:

Did you know that on the night of September 27th, forty (40) cars were towed off of ECU's campus? From what a tow truck driver told me, he along with two other towing service stations made a killing off of ECU. Unfortunately, my car was one of those forty (40) that were towed away. I realize that signs are posted all across campus stating: "University Registered Vehicles Only-Towing Enforced." But what does a "Registered Student of ECU" do when they acquire the use of a car for the week? Easy, they get a sticker in order to park on campus. But what does a "Registered Student of ECU" do when they arrive on a Sunday finding the Campus Traffic Station closed? That was the problem I encountered on the night of September 26th.

After my classes on the 27th, I went to purchase a sticker but came to find that the office closed at 4:00. (I arrived a few minutes after 4:00). So I had no sticker and it resulted in the towing of my car that night which cost me $20.00!

On September 30th, I got my car back and went to talk to a Mr. Calder about the unfairness I had received concerning my car. I was told that there existed, someplace down 5th Street, a parking lot where one could park one's car without a campus sticker. That was news to me because I have never read nor even seen any information telling one about that parking lot. By the time I arrive on campus, nightfall is already late in its hours. Personally, I do not have the desire to walk from 5th Street to my dorm at night, especially with all of the crazy things that have happened here in the past.

You would think this university could do something in order to help its Registered Students out on this towing problem. A suggestion might be a ticket box that takes in a dollar bill and puts out a dated temporary sticker. Any ideas would be appreciated because I, like so many Registered ECU Students can not afford to put out $20.00 each time we get to drive a car back to school.

Thank you,
Pamela J. Carter

Veep Pingston praises Sullivan

To the Fountainhead:

Now that the elections are concluded, there are a few issues that need to be brought out for consideration by this student body.

The major issue that arose concerned the new SGA Constitution. This Constitution had many faults and was defeated on sound grounds. Indeed there was a great deal of centralization of power. This is why I fought to reinstate the office of Vice-President. I think the students who voted did consider the Constitution's good and bad points and voted accordingly. But that is history. What arose from this issue was a general smearing of office of President of SGA, and the name of Tim Sullivan. He was accused of being a power monger, of manipulating the elections and of being the sole sponsor of the proposed Constitution. He was also accused of down-grading the free flicks and of wanting to control the Student Union and thus control entertainment. The accusations are not only unfounded, they are flat out lies at best. The people behind these accusations neither knew the facts nor did they know what was going on in the SGA nor Student Union for that matter.

The Constitution was formulated and adopted by a committee in the SGA last winter and spring. There were three public hearings!

Where were the opponents of the Constitution then? The purpose of these hearings was to work out the problems and issues students might have. Most students agree the present Constitution is weak and needs change. I ask again, where was the Student Union, the SGA Treasurer, and other students who voted no? By waiting until now and merely voting no, these people have done a great injustice to the student body of the University. Instead of creating a strong student serving Constitution, these people have caused the student body to depend on a weak and unstructured frame of government.

Mr. Sullivan opposed many aspects of this Constitution that was proposed last week. This Constitution was, however, the Constitution passed by the Legislature last spring. The Legislature this year was being voted in at the same time the Constitution was being voted out. So, who should be the supporter of the SGA Constitution when there is no legislature in session? The answer quite simply is the Executive officers of the SGA. I felt the Constitution was too centralized, as did many students, but being the Vice-President, I felt it my duty to represent the Legislators that worked so hard to draft a strong Constitution.

The Student Union is very worried that the SGA is trying to take over entertainment on campus. Even though this couldn't be further from the truth, I can understand why they should worry. The Student Union has done such a poor job of providing good entertainment that the student body considers entertainment more of an exception than a rule. The student body showed their disfavor with the Student Union by voting overwhelmingly to have the Student Union President elected in a campus-wide election.

Finally, Mr. Sullivan was accused of manipulating the elections. Anyone who worked on the elections this year knows that great care was taken to provide the students with a fair and objective election. The chairmen, weren't from SGA or from Tim's fraternity. They were completely independent, and if anyone knows Lynn Yow and Clay Burnett, they know the integrity and independence these chairpersons exhibit. The Marching Band was also hired to work the elections and count the results. I have never seen a more fair election and Mr. Sullivan did a great job organizing the basics of the election--and that's it! The chairpersons handled the election and the results, and the SGA merely posted the results.

Having worked with Tim Sullivan for the past eight months, I know there is not a student on campus who works harder for the students of East Carolina. While many disagree with his philosophy or tactics, his dedication to the student body is never ceasing.

Fellow students, I know there is a need for involvement. A need for work, and a need for dedication. Tim Sullivan is working for the students of East Carolina. I feel Tim and I are getting a great deal done for the students and we can achieve more with your help. Don't donate just ten minutes a day of your time, as one SGA officer does, because there is too much to do to make this University better. Get involved and know what you are talking about when you criticize. Know because you are there--don't know because someone told you so!

Model U.N. to pose in March

To Fountainhead:

The Model UN club consists of students interested in foreign affairs, international affairs and the United Nations. Model UN activities are centered on attending and hosting conferences with other Model UN clubs. During a conference the college or university sponsored delegation represents a country designed beforehand by the hosting club. Collectively the clubs simulate the United Nations (either the Security Council or the General Assembly) in structure and general procedure. The clubs pursue solutions for world-wide problem by drafting resolutions, motions and recommendations passed by the assembled body at the conference.

Many conferences are held throughout the year across the nation. This year East Carolina's Model UN will be hosting a conference on campus for the first time in many years. This conference will enable the students of ECU and the citizens of the surrounding communities to have such an experience without traveling to New York City. Schools from throughout the East will be attending our conference in March.

Preparation for a conference consists of long hours of studying material and information on the country the delegation will be representing. After studying the country, the club bones up on the issues and topics to be discussed and debated. Now a reasoned position is developed that is aligned with that country's basic views and can be logically defended.

The industrialized countries have been described as "just rich little islands surrounded by seas of poverty." The third world nations have been called the invisible nations. They are invisible only to those of us who close our eyes and turn our backs refusing to consciously recognize their implications on our lives and our future; as people, as a nation, as a world. Is awareness enough?

Will we patronize and sympathize or will we recognize and try to alleviate. After all you are but one person, we are but one country. Are these the excuses we will use to relieve our consciences, explain away our ignorance of these problems justify our unconcern and inaction.

The Model UN's mission is to educate and suggest tangible solutions. Get involved, we need your ideas to create an ideal.

Secretary-General
Model UN

ECU selected for scholarship

ECU has been selected by The American Arthritis Association, Inc. for the establishment of the Bessie Ruck Mangum Scholarship, named in honor of the late Mrs. Charles V. Mangum of Rocky Mount, N.C.

In announcing for scholarship establishment, Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, stated it will be awarded annually to a worthy student enrolled in the ECU School of Medicine when the school begins admitting students. In the interim it is available to a student in the ECU School of Nursing.

Clifton P. Jones of Chapel Hill, President of The American Arthritis Association stated: "The Association is privileged to honor a great lady and humanitarian with the establishment of the Bessie Ruck Mangum Scholarship at ECU. In this way we can perpetuate her memory and her work."

Mrs. Mangum and her late husband owned and operated the Rocky Mount Book Store for many years. Mrs. Mangum was also a certified tax consultant and operated her own business after the death of her husband. She held many positions in the Order of the Eastern Star including Grand Matron and Grand Secretary of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina. In 1966, due to severe arthritis, Mrs. Mangum resigned as Grand Secretary and was immediately elected Grant Secretary Emeritus of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina.

BILL HIATT

Hiatt speaks to ECU Republicans

By BECKY BRADSHAW
Staff Writer

Bill Hiatt, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, was on the ECU campus Thursday to meet students, and to speak to the ECU College Republicans.

In his speech, Hiatt outlined various problems he sees in the state government.

"I believe that the number one problem today as far as state government is concerned is the loss of respect and confidence in governmental officials," said Hiatt.

"I invite you to look carefully into the background of myself and my opponent and see if either one is guilty of selfish or special interest legislation."

Hiatt feels education should be the top priority in state government.

"Children are our most important resource," he said.

Hiatt feels swifter trials are important in crime control.

"Justice, to be effective, must be uniformly applied without regard to race, sex, or national origin," Hiatt said.

He also sees the need for parole reforms.

house and a shipping and receiving dock.

The actual expansion will be begun in the old Union section and the patio area outside of the building.

The second phase will be to close the snack shop down at either the end of a quarter or at the beginning of Christmas holidays so that renovation can begin in that section of the building.

According to Clark the student

Supply Store is looking into the possibility of setting up a temporary vending machine area so that students would have a place to grab a snack in the center of campus.

Phase Three of the project will occur in mid-March when the area of the snack shop should be completed. At that time the book store will temporarily relocate in the snack shop area of Wright Annex so that expansion of the actual book store can begin.

"During this period of time there will be a lot of problems, but this was the best plan that everyone could come up with. We are getting the project done and at the same time we will keep the book store open," added Clark.

According to Clark the expansion is coming at a crucial time because more space is needed for textbooks, a trade section, and the art supplies section.

"We will do as much as possible within the limit we have to work in," said Clark.

Young Democrats back absentee ballot campaign

The ECU Young Democrats are sponsoring a drive on campus to get students who are registered to vote in other counties to vote through the use of absentee ballots. The ECU-YDC will be canvassing the dorms handing out request cards for absentee ballots.

The process of voting via absentee ballots is a simple one. The request cards that are being handed out now are to be filled out and mailed by October 20. The Young Democrats will mail the cards for anyone who so desires. The only cost to the individual is ten cents for a stamp.

The Board of Elections in an individual's county will then send back a formal application for an absentee ballot. The individual must fill out that application and mail it back to the Board of Elections of the county in which the individual is registered. The Elections Board will then send the individual a ballot.

The individual must then mark their ballot and have it notarized and mail it back to the Elections Board. The ballot must be postmarked by 6 p.m. on November 1.

Starting on October 12, the East Carolina Young Democrats will have a table in the lobby of the old CU handing out the request cards. On Monday through Thursday October 25-28, the ECU-YDC will have Notary Publics in the lobby of the old CU to notarize the ballots for anyone voting by absentee ballot.

The Pitt County Democratic Headquarters opened on October 4. The Headquarters are located in the old Bill Haddock Chrysler building on Memorial Drive. Everyone is invited to visit the headquarters and give some of their time to the Democratic Party should they feel so inclined.

The ECU-YDC will meet October 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 244 Mendenhall. Joel McCleary, Jimmy Carter's North Carolina Campaign Director will be here to speak to the group. All interested persons are invited and encouraged to attend.

COTANCHE ST. ACROSS FROM CLEMENT DORM

ECU delegation attends NCSL

ECU sent its North Carolina Student Legislature delegation to the first Interim Council of the 1976-77 school year Saturday, Sept. 25th. The meeting was held at UNC-Greensboro.

During the meeting several candidates or their representatives for statewide office gave campaign speeches. Asa Spalding (Rep. for Sec. of State), Evelyn Tyler (Rep. for Sup. of Public Instruct.), Harlan Boyles (Dem. for Treas.), Jim Graham (Dem. for Comm. of Agriculture), and John Ingram (Dem. for Insurance Comm.) were among those represented.

The meeting itself was gavelled to order at 9 a.m. The morning was devoted to standard organizational matters such as the approval of the new budget and approving new membership charters. At 11 a.m. the candidates' forum was held.

After lunch the standing committees of statewide study gathered and discussed their plans for the coming year. These standing committees include Education, Voter Registration, Coastal Land Management, Migrant and Seasonal Farm Workers, Juvenile Justice, and Membership.

At 3 p.m. the committees adjourned and the main body resumed its business. This consisted of the presentation of new resolutions to be voted on at the next Interim-council meeting, the announcing of new statewide appointments, and the final vote for the location of the next Interim-council meeting. The body voted UNC-CH as the site for the next meeting Sunday, Oct. 24.

By 4:30 p.m. all business had been finished and the meeting was gavelled to adjournment.

The NCSL is a statewide non-partisan organization. It has been a leading force in joining students and their ideas together for the past 40 years. It has also provided an example and a model for other state student organizations.

The NCSL is a concerned and active organization. Its activities are primarily focused on problems within North Carolina. This organization has become a very important part of student participation in state government. The NCSL is only one voice of the student population, but it is indeed a loud one.

The way the NCSL is heard is by not only finding the problems in the state, but coming up with workable solutions. As mentioned earlier standing committees of statewide study are a major part of the organization. The purpose of these committees is to study a particular problem which is pertinent to the times in the state and find a way to resolve it.

Every year in the spring the NCSL holds a five-day convention in Raleigh. This is when all the delegations come together to introduce the bills and resolutions each delegation has written at their respective colleges and universities. At this convention all the legislation is seen and studied in a committee system very similar to that in the General Assembly of North Carolina. This is so all delegations will have an influence as to how the legislation appears in final form. If the legislation passes the chambers of the NCSL a copy of each bill and resolution is sent to every Council of State and Legislator in North Carolina. So far well over 40 percent of all bills passed by the NCSL have eventually become state law.

The ECU delegation has been one of the leading delegations in NCSL for many years. Bills written by ECU last year provided for a system of voter registration by mail and dealt with the controversial issue of Euthanasia (death with dignity). ECU was awarded honorable mention for best delegation again last year, and many ECU delegates were nominated for the Douglas Carlyle Award, the highest award an individual can receive from NCSL.

The ECU delegation of NCSL will open its doors to all interested ECU undergraduate students during its membership drive this week.

You can have a voice in North Carolina. Get involved and do something about the problems of North Carolina. Join NCSL and be heard.

Priest referees nuclear debate

By BECKY SWART
Staff Writer

Father Charles Mulholland, American Civil Liberties president, mediated at the Methodist Student Center Tuesday night debate over nuclear power.

ECU physicist Dr. Carl Adler confronted anti-nuclear power speaker Ted Taylor over the feasibility of future nuclear energy use.

The topics discussed at the debate were the practicality of other energy sources versus nuclear energy and their effect on civil liberties.

According to Ted Taylor the meeting concerns "nuclear energy and civil liberties, that is, physical power and social power."

Mr. Taylor mentioned seven hazards of nuclear power and suggested the phase out of nuclear power.

Dr. Adler suggested breeder reactors and/or converter reactors should replace conventional nuclear power.

Real estate symposium scheduled for Oct. 20

By JOHNEVANS
Staff Writer

Rho Epsilon, ECU's professional real estate fraternity, and the North Carolina Association of Realtors (NCAR) will co-sponsor a real estate symposium on Oct. 20 on the ECU campus.

The symposium will take place in Room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Topics of discussion will include various subjects in the real estate field. Subjects to be covered will be appraisal, brokerage, development, real property law, banking, dynamic women in real estate and real estate as a profession.

Some of the better known professionals in the Greenville and Raleigh area will serve as guest speakers on these areas. Included on the agenda will be Bud Wheelers, a local Greenville broker; Les Turnage and Sid Bailey, of Turnage Realty; Bill Clark, of Lanco Realty; David Duffus, of Howard, Vincent and McDuffus law firm in Greenville and Claude Pope, president of Cameron Brown Loan Co. of Raleigh.

Speaking on women in real estate will be Jeannette Cox of Jeannette Cox Realty and president of the Pitt County Board of Realtors; Ruth Oliver, chairperson for the NCAR, and Sue Hobgood of David Godwin Realty. Jim Bichsel, the president of NCAR will speak on "Real Estate as a Profession."

The symposium will be the first of its kind ever held at ECU and is also the first symposium ever held at a North Carolina university which has been co-sponsored by the NCAR.

"The symposium is supposed to serve a two-fold purpose," said Rho Epsilon President Teresa Whisenant. "First, it is supposed to serve the real estate students by giving them a view of the profession from the vantage point of people in the field. Secondly, it is to give those not studying real estate a chance to see the profession as it really is.

The North Carolina Association of REALTORS annually gives the Rho Epsilon fraternity $5,000 as a trust fund for students studying the real estate profession at ECU.

Rho Epsilon expects over 125 persons to attend the symposium, which is free to the general public as well as members of the fraternity.

A banquet will be held following the symposium in the evening at the Candlewick Inn for the members of Rho Epsilon and the guest speakers.

Dr. Leo Jenkins will honor Dean James Beardin of the Business Department at the keynote address of the symposium.

Playboy cites rise in co-eds' sex life

(CPS)--Women college students are more sexually active than they were six years ago and there is an increase in the number of male virgins, according to a study reported in the October issue of Playboy magazine.

The study found that 49 percent of the college women polled in 1970 said they graduated with their virginity unviolated.

That figure decreased to 26 percent this year.

Male virgins increased from 18 percent in 1970 to 26 percent in 1976.

"This magical equality of percentages means that students have arrived at that promised land—a sexual utopia where the women are just as active sexually as the men," Playboy said.

Fourth Costa Rica trip scheduled

By KIM JOHNSON
Assistant News Editor

ECU is making plans for its fourth Costa Rica foreign studies program under the direction of Dr. Robert R. Cramer, professor of geography.

The program is designed to give up to 18 ECU students an opportunity to study in a foreign environment and to gain better understanding of people in a different culture, according to Cramer.

ECU operates in conjunction with the Universidad Nacional in Heredes, the capital of Costa Rica, in providing students a chance to earn 18-28 quarter hours credit or 15-18 semester hours credit in many various courses but in a foreign country.

The courses to be offered in English at the Costa Rican university will be selected in social studies, humanities, natural sciences and field study.

Additional courses in Spanish are available through Costa Rican professors, according to Cramer.

TAXES

According to Register, tax status has nothing to do with residency.

"We have people paying taxes on personal property and they can't register because their place of permanent residence is in another county," said Register.

Register went on to say that voting status is determined on an individual basis and that she did not have the final say.

The ECU Student Government Association (SGA) is in the process of finding funds, other than state funds, to finance individual suits which would challenge the voter registration ruling.

"We are going to pursue it," said Tim Sullivan, SGA president.

"SGA funds are state funds and, therefore, cannot be used to for outside legal firms to finance," said Sullivan.

"You can't bring a class action suit in cases of representation," according to Sullivan.

The basis for the individual suits will be "no taxation without representation," Sullivan commented.

"If you're a resident for taxation, then you're a resident for representation," said Sullivan.

"We have had several students come in and attempt to register," according to Register.

These students are usually turned down due to their inability to prove permanent residence, said Register.

"What is permanent residence and what is temporary residence is a debatable question," according to Sullivan.

"I don't expect these suits to change the tax status, but do expect them to clearly define the students' rights," commented Sullivan.

Credits, grades and quality points earned in this program are directly transferred back to ECU.

ECU students in the program will take classes during the week and go on field trips every other weekend within Costa Rica.

Cramer, who will accompany the students, plans to also conduct field trips to other Central American countries.

Students who participate in the program are required to pay the equivalent of one ECU semester's tuition and fees plus a $450 program fee which includes expenses for the ECU director, Costa Rican professors, field trips, guest lectures, etc., totaling $591 for North Carolina residents and $1,415 for non-residents.

Students live with Costa Rican families and pay less than $90 total per month for room and board, meals and laundry service provided by the families.

This foreign study program is available to all students regardless of major, minor or classification and is not directed towards studying geography, according to Cramer.

"The geography dept. got it started in 1973, but it is open to any interested students," he said.

The program begins July 25, 1977 and runs through Nov. 7, 1977 which is one month before the regular ECU semester begins and ends.

"We are pushing it now so that students who wish to go can plan ahead and discuss what courses they wish to take. Also, it takes time to secure passports, etc. and planning ahead works much better than trying to rush everything at the last minute," he said.

ECU has offered other such programs in the past in Germany, Rome and Japan.

Costa Rica was chosen, however, because the other countries were so expensive and their governments were unstable, according to Cramer.

Registration deadline for the program is Feb. 15, 1977.

Students are required to pay a refundable $50 deposit by March, 1977.

For further information, Cramer may be reached in Brewster Building, Room A-222 or called at his office, 752-6230, or at home, 756-1767.

Scheduled to play Oct. 31

Murphy, Cheech & Chong booked

The Major Attractions Committee of the ECU Student Union combines the talents of two outstanding acts to climax the homecoming concert weekend. MICHAEL MURPHEY, along with the comedy team of CHEECH AND CHONG will appear in concert on Sunday, October 31 at 8:00 p.m.

Today, having three gold albums and a fourth one which shipped gold, CHEECH AND CHONG have attained the top rung of superstar status. Not only do they perform before sold-out concerts around the country, but they also resurrect the medium of the comedy album and brought it to a popularity and a power never before attained—even in its heyday in the early-to-mid sixties before the medium fell on hard times.

Additionally, in this age of the music mystique and power, CHEECH AND CHONG's comedy albums outsell all but a handful of the rock superstars. Mere statistics cannot properly emphasize their special effect and niche on the current scene. However, both their first two albums were multiple Grammy nominees; "CHEECH AND CHONG" sold more than one million copies; "BIG BAMBU" sold more than 1½ million; 1973 Grammy Award Winning "LOS COCHINOS" has sold more than 1½ million and is still at the top of the charts. "BIG BAMBU" was also the number one comedy album of 1972; "CHEECH AND CHONG" was number two.

MICHAEL MURPHEY is an artist, humanist, and an outstanding songwriter. After studying classical Greek at North Texas State University, Michael moved to Los Angeles where he lived for six years. In that period, he composed over 400 songs for Screen Gems and played bass for various groups. By the time 1970 rolled around, Murphey had earned himself a reputation as one of the most gifted young lyricists in the country, with his songs being recorded by such artists as BOBBY GENTRY, FLATT AND SCRUGGS, ROGER MILLER, THE MONKEES, and THE FIRST EDITION.

This increasing notoriety led to a recording contract with A & M Records in 1971. Bob Johnston, the celebrated producer of records by such artists as BOB DYLAN, LEONARD COHEN, JOHNNY CASH and other, had long been an admirer and an associate of Murphey's and it was logical that he was the one to produce Michael's debut album "GERONIMO's CADILLAC," and its successor, "COSMIC COWBOY SOUVENIR."

In the middle of 1973, Murphey left A & M and, several months later, was signed to an exclusive recording contract with Epic Records. With Bob Johnston still at his side, Michael immediately re-entered the studio with the end result being his first Epic album, simply entitled "MICHAEL MURPHEY." The album was received exceptionally well by critics all across the country.

After a year of extensive touring around the United States, Murphey once again turned to the studio, and his fourth album, "BLUE SKY NIGHT THUNDER" released in March 1976. Another Johnston production job, the album contains Murphey's hottest single to date, "WILDFIRE" a song whose popularity indicated that Murphey is finally beginning to break through to audiences in areas outside the Southwest, where he is well established.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $2.00 for ECU Students and $4.00 for the Public. All tickets sold at the door will be priced at $4.00. Tickets are available from the ECU Central Ticket Office, and public tickets are available from the Record Bar at Pitt Plaza.

Hoffman and Dern, two sides of stardom

By BARBARA LEWIS

Bruce Dern is still waiting for stardom, that eerie position where he will be able to pick and choose the roles he wants to play. He's almost made it, with meaty roles in "The Great Gatsby," and most recently, in Hitchcock's "Family Plot." Now he's hoping that his leading role in Paramount's "Black Sunday" will put him over the summit.

"Being a good actor is not enough," says the lanky, long-faced actor. "Like Shakespeare said, 'the play's the thing,' but in this instance, it's a commercial film that counts. Producers and studios are only interested in films that make money. If an actor is in money-making film, he gets his choice of roles. Right now, I have plenty of offers, I've been working constantly, but I haven't reached that plateau yet where I can afford to turn down roles, like Redford and Newman can."

Dern has immersed himself in the role of a returned POW who was tortured by the Vietnamese. He has had nightmares thinking about the captured pilot cramped up in a wired tiger cage.

"When I think about him, I get claustrophobia," Dern contends. "I'm a guy who likes to run. I get out and jog every morning before I report to the set. When I'm not working—and that hasn't been often lately—I run up the character as if he existed. It is his own acting style, which he refers to as "immersion" rather than "method."

"I tried to think about what it was like to be isolated from people, no one to talk to, completely detached. I suddenly took on all of his personality traits and I became a miserable and unhappy person."

Dern chose an inopportune time to throw himself into the character, he says. "I took my wife to Paris and I ended up hating the place. I looked at everyone suspiciously and argued constantly with my wife, with waiters, with drivers—with everyone. It wasn't me; I was acting out the role."

In "Black Sunday," based on the best-selling novel by Thomas Harris, Dern plays an emotionally disturbed veteran who pilots the television blimp covering the Superbowl. Mike Lander, the character portrayed by Dern, is unable to find a job piloting a commercial plane when he is released from the POW camp and seeks vengeance by volunteering to participate in an Arab terrorist plot to bomb the football stadium.

Swiss-born Marthe Keller, who made her American film debut in "Marathon Man," which has not yet been released, plays a leader of the Black September organization that engineers the attack on the Orange Bowl.

Marthe Keller found her role in "Black Sunday" more challenging than the part she played in "Marathon Man."

"Now I have to think terrible things to make me appear upset. Everyone is pleasant and easy to work with. But when I was working with Dustin, it was different. He was always losing his temper and making me cry, so it was easy to play that part on screen."

Hoffman and Academy Award-winning director John Schlesinger had constant differences while shooting "Marathon Man," after Laurence Olivier had completed

Handsome Gemini Man fades

By DEBBIE JACKSON
News Editor

"The Gemini Man" will be lucky if it doesn't fade out before the Fall television season is over. Slotted against "Welcome Back Kotter," "The Waltons," and "Barney Miller," the show seems to be standing on shaky ground. In fact, surviving through this season may be Sam Casey's toughest assignment.

Not being a TV addict, I asked myself why this was the only show that I had watched so far this fall. It wasn't for the inspiring redeeming social value. I finally hit on the answer when I discovered myself panting in front of the set.

It was the episode where Casey goes to a tennis camp and is seduced and abducted by a Mata Hari type, who is his instructor. There I was, trying to do my homework, and only halfway paying attention to the tube, when out walked Ben Murphy in tennis shorts, looking like a pro (tennis or no tennis).

After I pried myself off of the screen and had somewhat regained my composure, I sat back to enjoy 60 minutes of the corniest plot and script that any producer ever dared to put on TV. But it was great. There was no effort involved in keeping track of what was going on, just a lot of action shots of Murphy doing what he does best—looking fantastic.

I don't know how the rest of the American public will react to "Gemini Man," but the set in my dorm room will be turned on to it every Thursday night. I know it's not a good show, but who cares? It's television, after all. Who says that a show has to be worthwhile to be fun?

The dialogue is so stilted that it's funny. There was one really enthralling line in the episode about the tennis camp. After "Mata Hari" had seduced our dashing hero, and stabbed him in the neck with a poison hat pin, she and some thug rushed Casey off to the middle of the desert to do away with him. They placed him in an abandoned cave, and lit the fuse to the dynamite, which would bury him under 500 tons of rock.

As the villainess was making her retreat, she turned slowly and said in a would-be melodramatic tone, "Sam Casey, I hate to see you go. You were a fantastic kisser." I laughed for ten minutes.

So, the most that can be said for "Gemini Man" is that it's a good break from studying, and the ordinary humdrum routine. The worst you can say about it is that, realistically, it is probably the worst show on TV. Next season, there will more than likely be another police story in its Thursday night slot. And they call that progress!

Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope

By DAVID R. BOSNICK
Staff Writer

The Tom Mallow production of Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope, presented at Wright Auditorium on October 7, was marvelous, not because of what it says, but what it does. It leaps at you from the start and catches you in a vortex of music and pulsing rhythm. At the close, one is left entertained, amused, desirous, sensitized and embarrassed, but not intimidated by this symbol of the black experience.

There is no doubt that the musical is dated. The ideas behind most of the songs have long been made clear. The essence of a musical is not its meaning, but in the energy and effervescence it creates. This musical is ethnic by nature, not by intent. It is not a pointed accusation, but rather an innervating and sometimes mournful statement of the generally poor human condition.

Presented were the most talented group of players that ECU has entertained in this reviewer's memory. The talents ranged from the eloquence of Elijah Gill's physical symmetry to the vocal immensity of Elaine Holloman. These two alone would ensure a good performance, yet the addition of the strong and playful Bill Dorsey sets the work reeling from side to side as the energy moves through the production numbers.

There was excellent juxtaposition of songs as when Ms. Worthington intoned the soft "It Takes a Whole Lot of Human Feeling", then switched to a frenetic "My Love's So Good". The troupe had 27 songs to perform, and while music occasionally lapsed into the mediocre (Motown, Marvin Gaye), the energy did not diminish.

A major facet of this production that must be singled out is the work of the choreographer, Edmond Kresly. He has a true sense of erotic motion, fluid motion, and the pure job of rhythmic movement. His ability to crystallize these differences and blend them into the series of vignettes that is "Cope" is his genius. The dance often moves the show when the vitality of the cast cannot overcome the lethargy of the lyrics and melody.

There is symbolism in this work that was to epitomize aspects of black existence. It is to the credit of the director Vinette Carroll that she doesn't allow the show to bog itself down to needless rhetoric or militancy.

It is a shame that ECU, which has protested the lack of quality entertainment, could only half fill ancient Wright Auditorium. This show was of Broadway caliber and stellar energy. The production number, "Good Vibrations" is the single most dynamic medley of song and dance presented at ECU in four years. It is your sorrow if you missed it.

the role. Out of deference to Olivier, Hoffman apparently controlled his temper until the distinguished actor's departure. But the following day, Hoffman stormed off the set after a volatile exchange with Schlesinger, who had directed him in "Midnight Cowboy."

Schlesinger asked Hoffman to walk through a scene with Marthe. The actor started and then stopped short. "It's not right," he said to the director.

"Don't worry about it, Dusty. I know what I'm doing. I'll take care of it in the editing."

"Man, it's not right. It's not organic," the actor repeated several times.

"Believe me, Dusty, it'll work," Schlesinger insisted.

Hoffman shouted a number of expletives, kicked the floor and stormed out, pausing briefly to air his complaints to Robert Evans, the producer. Evans, who had been president of Paramount before becoming an independent producer, found himself with a new role as a moderator.

If the movie becomes a financial success, it may have been worth it. At any rate, it was an auspicious beginning for Marthe Keller, and contributed to her knowledge of English.

"I learned many new words from Dustin that I didn't learn in English class," the European star observed.

Salukis fall to running Pirates

By STEVE WHEELER
Sports Editor

Even with experience of former professional football player Gayle Savers in their camp, Southern Illinois could not cope with East Carolina's strong running game as the Pirates rolled to a 49-14 win over the Salukis Saturday night in front of 16,200 Ficklen Stadium fans.

The former Chicago Bear running back is in his first year at SIU as is head football coach Rey Dempsey and the two newcomers have seen the Salukis win three games (the same as the last two years put together), but the Pirates turned out to be too formidable an opponent for the Salukis.

ECU rushed for 491 yards against the Salukis while passing for 40. The Pirate defense held Southern Illinois to 49 yards rushing and 181 yards total.

"I was having a difficult time keeping up with everything that was going on out there tonight," head coach Pat Dye said following the game. "I thought we did a good job overall but we made an awful lot of mistakes. Our coaching staff did the job this week. The kids were approaching this game as if we were playing State or Carolina."

"Coach Dempsey did a good job also," Dye added. "Their kids could have laid down and quit, but they kept coming back."

Three ECU players topped the century mark in rushing in the game with Eddie Hicks leading the way with 172 yards on 21 carries. Willie Hawkins picked up 112 on 18 rushes while reserve quarterback, Pete Conaty, carried ten times for 103 yards.

Conaty saw an unusual amount of time playing as the Pirate field general.

"We've always known Pete was a fine quarterback," Dye stated. "He's a fine all-round football player and an excellent kicker. But we've not been using him enough at quarterback."

Mike's (Weaver) a great quarterback, but we've not been giving him enough rest. I don't know why because Pete is a great as a signal-caller."

PERFECTION ENDS

Although Conaty had a near-perfect game at quarterback, he lost a couple of streaks as a place-kicker. The senior from Annandale, Va. went into the game with 11 extra points without missing and ten straight field goals.

On the Pirates' second possession, Mike Weaver flipped a 25-yard touchdown pass to tight end Clay Burnett. On the try for the extra point attempt, Conaty missed the kick.

In the middle of the second period, with the Pirates facing a fourth-and-twelve at the Salukis' 25-yard line, Dye elected to try for the three-pointer. Kicking against a strong cross-wind, Conaty had the distance but the wind pulled the ball wide right of the uprights.

Dye said he was "disappointed Pete missed getting the record

Athletes weather storm

Many of the world's great athletes have managed to get themselves into jams by falling short of their own or the fans' expectations sportswise or by doing something to vent the fans' ire. But the truly great ones also manage to weather the storms. Dwight Stones has proven to be one of the truly great ones.

In 1973 the teen-age high-jumper leaped to a world record of 7 feet, 6½ inches. Then at the NCAA track and field championships in June of this year, Stones jumped to 7'7" and a new world record, making him a favorite for the upcoming Olympics. Stones was expected to come home from Montreal a gold medal winner, but things didn't work out for Stones as expected. First of all, he complained to Canadian reporters about such matters as the unfinished stadium and the lengthy check-in process before events and how they could affect athletes' performances. The Canadians who predominated the crowd of 50,000 at the Olympic Stadium reacted to Stones' remarks by booing during his qualifying leaps.

He had already apologized and given clarifying statements to the press and the Canadian spectators still reacted negatively, so not to be outdone by the crowd, the flamboyant Stones blew kisses to the fans after easily clearing qualifying heights and later said of their reaction, "It's not gonna bother me. In fact, I allow it to stimulate me. This whole thing will make victory that much sweeter."

But victory in the form of a gold medal did not Stones taste, and settling for bronze wasn't the worst part of the trip. Someone called the police and threatened to shoot him. Stones remarked: "I was scared to death when I went out on the victory stand."

Undoubtedly, the true fans of the twenty-two year old Californian suffered with him the agony of defeat. But they didn't desert him. They didn't have time to. Only four days after the finals of the high jump at Montreal, their hero broke his own world record by clearing the bar at 7 feet, 7¼ inches at Philadelphia's Bicentennial Meet of Champions.

Then many American track and field enthusiasts stuck out their chests and continued to wear their Mickey Mouse T-shirts with pride. Stones had weathered the storm and again proven to be the greatest high-jumper in the world. Dwight Stones was, as ever, resplendent.

CONATY WEATHERS STORM, TOO

East Carolina placekicker Pete Conaty is another athlete who had a short storm to weather. He went into Saturday night's contest with Southern Illinois having kicked 11 of 11 PAT's and a perfect string of 10 field goals, with a chance of rewriting the record book.

But it didn't work out that way for the senior from Annandale, Virginia. After Mike Weaver's TD pass to Clay Burnett, Conaty came in to add the point after which ECU fans had begun to consider automatic. But the blond wonder missed. The score was 6-0 rather than 7-0.

Later in the first half, Conaty failed to put the ball through the uprights, and the winds blew a little more stiffly at Ficklen Stadium especially in Pete Conaty's face.

Everyone wondered why Conaty had lost his magic, but he put on a performance that is equalled by none others on this team or otherwise in the Southern Conference. Conaty rushed for 103 yards in ten carries and scored 13 points on one TD run of 62 yards, two two-point conversions, and three PAT kicks. He left the field a hero. Though it was only a short one, Pete Conaty had weathered the storm.

'Six Screaming Bullets' open holes for ECU

By JON VERNER
Special to Fountainhead

East Carolina University has "Six Screaming Bullets" on the loose.

The term "six screaming bullets" might not be what one would ordinarily think. It is not the nickname of the Pirate running backs, or the pass receivers. In fact, the term has very little to do with speed of foot.

"Six screaming bullets" is Coach Pat Dye's description of the offensive line. Senior offensive tackle Ricky Bennett authority.

"We feel we can play with anybody," says Parrish. "Every time we get out there we know we're going to move the ball."

Bennett agreed, adding, "the whole team is on an upward trend right now, playing with unity and confidence. We're all supportive of each other."

Matt Mulholland sees the confidence spreading to other units of the team.

"Everybody's one, together, when we mess up and give the ball away or something, we know the defense will get the ball back stats indicate."

They all seem to agree on the fact that they get very little attention from what they do.

"Being on the offensive line doesn't get you much publicity," said Bennett. "We do our job but get very little credit outside of the team."

"We know it's nothing personal against us," added Bolt, "it's the curse of every offensive lineman. You learn to live with it."

Randy Parrish concurred, but commented, "we can't let that get to us. The backs are the ones what we do for anything. It is a good feeling to see that they realize it's tough in there."

"Mike and the running backs are the first to thank us after a play works," added Mulholland. "That gives us a feeling of community."

So much of a community, that as Clay Burnett sees it, "they all know that the wishbone is ten blockers and a quarterback."

Being an offensive lineman is not easy anywhere. However, at East Carolina, there seems to be an advantage.

"After every game, six cakes or pies are delivered to the offensive linemen," said Mulholland. "A lady in town makes them, and the offensive line is the only people that get them. With Bolt, Skull, Rick, Clay, Timmy Hightower and myself being experienced at putting those away, it's nice to know somebody cares about just us."

"Six screaming bullets" is the name given offensive linemen Tim Hightower, Matt Mulholland, Wayne Bolt, Randy Parrish, Ricky Bennett, and Clay Burnett.

CLAY BURNETTE

MATT MULHOLLAND

WAYNE BOLT

TIM HIGHTOWER

RANDY PARRISH

describes how they got the name.

"The secret of success for any offensive lineman is how quick you get off the ball," he said. "Coach Dye wants us to come off the ball on the snap like screaming bullets, so he started calling us the screaming bullets."

Wayne Bolt, the starting right guard, says that the name has brought about a unity within the line.

"It (the name) has really brought us together," he said. "We always do things together, and we are proud of the nickname, so the rest of the guys on the team could see us as a unit."

The "screaming bullet" unit has performed admirably through the first five games this season. They have opened up holes for the backs to run through for an average of 323.6 yards per game. That figure ranks in the top ten nationally. Their blocking has allowed four backs to rush for over 200 yards on the season.

Bolt pointed out that, although the offensive line lost two members from last year, Randy Parrish and Matt Mulholland have stepped in and done well.

"We did lose two guys from the line," he said "but Skull (Parrish) and Matt have done well. We haven't been hurt at all."

Parrish, who starts at the other guard spot, echoed the sentiment that unity was a key factor in the play of the line.

"The whole offensive line has been playing together as a unit," he explained, "and we've become real close. If I let down, I feel like I've let the other guys down, and they feel the same."

They all agree that they have gained tremendous confidence in themselves this year, which enables them to play with more for us. Then we are anxious to show that we're not that bad, by getting out there and knocking some heads."

Clay Burnett is in a unique position on the team. He is the tight end, which he claims is "90 percent blocking and 10 percent pass catching." He says he gets kidded about his position.

"You mean they gave you permission to talk to me," he joshed. "The interior linemen kid me a lot about not being part of the gang, so I'm flattered they included me. Really, though, in order to be a success, we've got to play as a unit, which we are doing now. We're doing better than the who put the points on the board, but we help 'em get there. They know it too, and are quick to congratulate us on a good block."

There is, according to all of the "screaming bullets", something that makes it worthwhile.

"It's a tremendous feeling of pleasure and satisfaction you get inside," said Parrish. "You know when you've done the job well."

"A great personal satisfaction" is the way Bennett sees it.

Each one knows, however, that his teammates appreciate what they do.

"Mike Weaver came to me the other day," Bolt said, "and told me he wouldn't want to do

Following Wednesday's matches against Atlantic Christian and Chowan, ECU's volleyball team moved their record up to 2-5.

The Lady Pirates posted their first victory over Chowan by downing the Brances 16-14 and 15-0. The Pirates followed with another win against the Bull Dogs from Atlantic Christian, 15-8 and 15-11.

In last Monday's meet the Pirates "played the best volleyball all year" according to Coach

ECU Hall of Fame inducts late Clarence Stasavich

The man most associated with athletics at ECU and Lenoir Rhyne College will be inducted posthumously into the East Carolina Sports Hall of Fame October 30. That man, of course, is Clarence Stasavich, the mastermind of the single wing offense for 24 years between the two institutions.

COACH STAS

Stasavich came to East Carolina in 1962 as head football coach. He held that position for eight years and compiled a 50-27-1 record, tying Jack Boone as the winningest coach in ECU history. That followed a 16 year stay at Lenoir Rhyne where he had a record of 120-37-7.

With a combined career record in coaching of 170-64-8, Stasavich retired in 1969 as the third winningest active coach in the country, ranked behind Bear Bryant of Alabama and Johnny Vaught of Ole Miss.

During his eighteen years as a head coach, Stasavich won nine conference championships for Lenoir Rhyne, seven straight from 1955 through 1961, the NAIA National Championship in 1960 for Lenoir Rhyne, had three consecutive bowl teams at East Carolina in 1963, 1964, and 1965 with records of 9-1 each year and tied for the Southern Conference title the first year East Carolina was in the league.

His devotion to the Southern Conference resulted in the annual football championship trophy being named the Clarence Stasavich Memorial Trophy, that to be effective this year for the first time.

In 1963, Stas assumed the role of athletic director for East Carolina and became the main driving force for the development of a Division I, major university athletic program. Under his guidance, East Carolina was classed a Division I school in football in 1966, following the induction of the Pirate program in 1964 into the Southern Conference.

Facilities development changed the total complexion of the ECU campus. Minges Coliseum was built, along with Ficklen Stadium, Scales Field House, Harrington Field and the Bunting Track during the Stasavich era.

In 1969, Stasavich relinquished his duties as head football coach to devote all his time to the athletic directorship. He served in that capacity until his death on October 24, 1975, the day before his longtime dream came true. That was a victory over the University of North Carolina in football, which the Pirates got on October 25 in Chapel Hill, 38-17.

His accomplishments as a coach resulted in his induction into the Helms Hall of Fame and the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.

He was twice honored as national Coach of the Year in 1959 at Lenoir Rhyne and in 1964 at East Carolina. Five times he was named District Coach of the Year.

Stasavich was born February 9, 1913, in Georgetown, Ill. He graduated from Georgetown Township High School in 1931 and earned an AB Degree in science from Lenoir Rhyne College in 1935. He received his MA Degree from the University of North Carolina in 1946.

Stasavich is survived by his wife, the former Helen Warwick of Hickory, two daughters, Rebecca and Mary, and one son, Walter.

The ECU Sports Hall of Fame originated in 1974, with ten initial inductees. Four were inducted in 1975.

Stasavich's induction will occur during halftime activities of this year's Homecoming game against Western Carolina University.

The event will be modeled after the television show of the same name and will feature seven events. Winning teams will be determined by total points and prizes will be awarded to the winners of the overall competition and the other members of the top five teams.

So come on out and watch the action. You might see someone you know making a perfect fool of themselves.

TOUCH FOOTBALL ENTERS LAST WEEK

The playoffs will be upon us in only one more week and only seven undefeated teams remain in men's play. Only three women's teams remain undefeated.

The top four teams from each of the men's eight divisions and the women's two divisions will make the grade for the playoffs with the rest having to wait until next year.

So even though most of the divisional titles have been settled there remains several key battles to determine what also-rans qualify for the playoffs. All games will be completed by Thursday, with most of the competition coming on Monday and Tuesday.

In the dormitory leagues the Scott Time-Outs remained unbeaten by defeating Charlie division foe Umstead TD's 28-12. The TD's had previously been unbeaten.

Meanwhile, the Yellow Jackets held on to a slim one game lead over the Scott Players and the Lost Gonzo Band. The Yellow Jackets topped the Widow Makers 42-0 for their sixth win without a loss in the Alpha division.

In the Bravo division no team is unbeaten, but the Mausers took a slim lead over the Schlitz Blitz, who fell from the unbeaten ranks. Scott's Wombats are way out in front in the Delta division.

Fraternity league play found two teams dropping from the ranks of the unbeaten when Tau Kappa Epsilon shut out Pi Kappa Phi 22-0 and Phi Kappa Tau trimmed Sigma Nu 8-6 on a come-from-behind fourth quarter rally. Kappa Alpha and the Tekes remained unbeaten with 5-0 marks, while Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Nu and Phi Kappa Tau all stood at 4-1.

The Independent division found the Pack at 6-0 and ahead of Last Chance, which won by a pair of shutouts to finish at 5-1 for the regular season. The Club division found the Rugby Ruggers topping the P.E. Majors 28-0 to finish second behind Phi Epsilon Kappa. The Ruggers lost to the Phi E K's earlier in the year, 7-6, for their only loss.

In women's play Tyler dorm continued to have three unbeaten teams for a total of 13-0 but Delta Zeta took two wins.

The Delta Zetas forfeited their first game of the year but have won three in a row and stand 3-1 going into the final week of play.

Fleming's Floozies also showed improvement with a 30-0 win over

Conaty attains another honor

By STEVE WHEELER
Sports Editor

Pete Conaty has attained yet another honor as the football season reaches its mid-point.

The senior from Annandale, Va. came off the bench to lead the Pirate offense to a 48-14 victory over Southern Illinois and was named Southern Conference offensive player of the week for his efforts.

Conaty rushed for 103 yards in ten carries including a 62 yard scramble for a touchdown. He also ran for a couple of two-point conversions kicked three more for 13 points in the game.

Going into the game, Conaty led the nation in field goals and was seventh in scoring. He led both categories in the SC.

Conaty was named Athlete-of-the-Month last week by FOUNTAINHEAD.

the Salukis picked up just one first down, that being on a penalty.

Late in the first quarter, facing a third-and-11 situation, SIU quarterback Bob Collins passed over the middle. Pirate linebacker Harold Fort picked off the pass at the Saluki 27 yard line and waltzed into the end zone. Weaver's run attempt for two failed and ECU led 12-0.

The second quarter was Conaty's quarter all the way. The lithe signal-caller came on the second series and led the Pirates to paydirt. Facing a third-and-17 at the ECU 38, Conaty went back to pass. Finding no one to throw to, Conaty broke a tackle in the backfield and headed towards the left sideline. A good fake left a SIU defender grasping a handful of air at mid-field and another fake at the Saluki 15 left two defenders on the ground as Conaty darted into the end zone. Conaty then ran for the two-point conversion and put the Pirates up 20-0.

TWO-MINUTE OFFENSE

The Pirates got the ball back at their 13 with just 1:42 left in the half. Conaty then worked at quarterback with precision and engineered the two-minute offense for the Bucs.

Conaty picked up 14 yards on the first play then pitched out to Hicks and Hawkins for runs 14 and 19 yards, respectively, putting the Pirates on the SIU 40. After Hicks gained seven more on a pitchout, Conaty hit split end Terry Gallaher for 15 yards. Hawkins then gained nine more on a pitchout, and Conaty picked six more on a keeper, giving the Pirates a first down on the three. Hicks was picked to try for the touchdown and dove the final three yards over leftguard with just 0:14 left in the half. Conaty again ran for two to give the Bucs a 28-0 lead in the locker room at half time.

Southern Illinois got on the scoreboard early in the second half following a Conaty fumble. Andre Herrera, the nation's seventh leading runner, held to just 74 yards in 19 carries, darted over from seven yards out to give points to the Salukis. Ken Seaman converted to cut the Pirate lead to 28-7.

HICKS RUNS WILD

After taking the kickoff and picking a first down, Conaty and the rest of the Pirates faced a third-and-ten at the 36. Conaty then ran left on the option and pitched to Hicks just as he was being hit. Hicks had nothing but clear field in front of him and ran 64 yards to paydirt. Conaty then hit his first extra point of the game to give the Pirates a 35-7 lead.

The Bucs received another touchdown near the end of the third stanza as Harold Randolph picked off another Collins pass and returned it 39 yards to the Saluki 17.

Sam Harrell, a second-string halfback, took a pitch from Conaty and gained 15 yards on first down. Willie Hawkins then hit off tackle twice, scoring the second time from a yard out. Conaty's conversion made it 42-7.

Jimmy Southerland came on to quarterback the Bucs in the fourth period, but in his second series, fumbled on the Pirate nine yard line, giving the Salukis a good scoring opportunity.

Gary Linton scored from the one on second down and after Seaman's conversion, the ECU lead was 42-14.

FROSH KEYS DRIVE

On the Pirates last possession of the evening, Dye inserted fourth-string freshman quarterback Leander Green. Green directed a 75 yard drive in 14 plays to give the Pirates the final touchdown of the game, which came on a three-yard burst by Sam Harrell.

The Pirates again had a good night on punt and interception returns, gaining 185 yards to just seven for the Salukis. The Bucs' 126 yards on interceptions was a new school record.

The win for the Pirates was their fifth of the season against no losses and the 11th straight since last year, second longest winning streak in the nation to Rutgers' 12 game streak. Southern Illinois is 3-2 on the season.

Tennis play is winding down with the last week of men's team tennis approaching. Women's singles play is in its third week and eight teams remain in the mixed doubles competition.

In team tennis the Belk Bouncers hold a big lead in Dorm League One and the Aycock Deuces hold a 15-13 edge over the Belk No Sweats. Meanwhile in Club-Ind.-Frat play the Nasty's hold a five-point lead over the CEEBOS and Tau Kappa Epsilon holds a 15-9 lead over Pi Kappa Phi. The two fraternity leaders meet this week in a crucial "must win" match for the Pi Kapps if they are to stay in contention for the tennis title.

In women's singles play only eight players remain going into the third week.

Advancing by forfeit were Christy Williams, Mary Sawyer and Debra Skut. Delores Ryan and Mary Leisy advanced by byes, but three of the quarterfinalists had to win matches outright to advance.

The closest match was Claire Lingenfelter's three-set win over Cathy Deal. Lingenfelter beat Deal 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the closest match so far this year.

Lingenfelter's quarterfinal opponent will be Janet Hoeppel. Hoeppel defeated Debra Williams in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. Janice McVeigh will meet Christy Williams after beating Cathy Cox 6-4, 6-3.

In mixed doubles play favorites Keith Gray and Cynthia Averett had little trouble advancing to the quarterfinals, where they will meet Toni Davenport and Tom Burgens.

The ECU ladies golf team took last position with a score of 391 at the Hillendell Golf Tournament at Durham, Friday. Duke grabbed first place with a score of 340 while Appalachian took second with a total of 359.

In the individual placements, Debbie Steward of Duke placed first. Appalachian took second and third and Heather Jones of ECU placed fourth.

Three of the young ladies from the Lady Pirates have qualified for the state tournament. Heather Jones, Marsha Pierson and Jill Carney will be able to compete for individual placement. To qualify for team competition in the state tournament, ECU needed four girls to qualify. Since only three did qualify, the Pirate Ladies will not be able to compete as a team.

The next tournament is Friday the 14th when the ECU ladies golf team will travel to UNC-CH to compete.
