Duke professor comes to ECU

By ROBERT SWAIM
Assistant News Editor

Dr. Robert Brame of the Duke University School of Medicine has been appointed to head the ECU Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, according to Dr. William E. Laupus, Dean of the School of Medicine.

"Dr. Brame is an outstanding medical educator, who is well known nationally for his skill in student and resident training," said Dr. Laupus.

Dr. Laupus stated that Dr. Brame will assume his duties here at ECU in the early summer.

Dr. Laupus said that he expects 28 students to be enrolled this Fall in the medical school.

According to Dr. Laupus, student interviews will begin in the near future. All applicants from N.C. will be personally interviewed by members of the Admissions Committee.

Dr. Laupus said that the search committee for a chairman for the Department of Surgery has been making steady progress and is expected to make its recommendations in the near future.

"When this appointment is made, all the chairmanships in the basic science and clinical departments will have been filled," said Dr. Laupus.

According to Dr. Laupus, provisional accreditation will probably be granted to the medical school in early April.

McGinnis theatre renovation possible

By LAUREN BREHM
Staff Writer

ECU may receive $2.7 million for renovation of the old Wahl-Coates building and McGinnis Auditorium if a bill now before the State House becomes law.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Al Adams of Raleigh, would create a speed-up of state corporate tax collection, resulting in a $90 million windfall.

The $90 million would include $53 million for 15 University of North Carolina campuses, $18 million for prison construction, and $11 million for renovation and construction of facilities for the mentally-retarded.

According to Edgar Loessin, Chairman of the Drama Department, the McGinnis renovations had been the first priority six years ago. At that time, the department was given $80,000 on paper. Through no one's fault, the funds were never received. The $2.7 million, if received, will go mainly to renovations of McGinnis.

The backstage area will be enlarged three times its present size. A new floor will be laid to improve sight lines and acoustics.

Also, a scenery shop will be built in the courtyard which will enable scenery to be rolled directly onstage.

Among the renovations for the old Wahl-Coates building are plans to redo the dance studios. A new heating and air-conditioning system is planned for both buildings.

A decision is expected to be made on the bill in May.

Although Mr. Loessin feels confident that the bill will have no trouble passing, all interested persons are urged to write to their representatives in support of this action.

ECU junior Frank Saubers elected governor of NCSL

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Co-News Editor

Frank Saubers, an ECU junior business administration major, was recently elected governor of the North Carolina Student Legislature (NCSL) in its annual session.

The five-day session which was held at the Holiday Inn in Raleigh ended Sunday.

Twenty-three colleges and universities from across the state were represented at the meeting.

Richard Coles, also of ECU, was appointed treasurer by Saubers and approved by consent.

Saubers said that he was pleased to be selected governor, but at the same time disappointed in the Awards Committee's decision on the Best Delegation Large School Award.

"This year the committee had several freshmen who had neither been to the Interim Council in Greenville or other such mounds, or they really didn't have much of an idea of what's going on," Saubers explained. Saubers is chairperson of the ECU delegation this year.

"That was our goal for the whole year to get Best Delegation Large School."

He said that they had worked hard all year, selecting bill topics, doing research on those topics, selecting alternatives for action, and basically trying to decide on a piece of legislation that would benefit the people of North Carolina.

The two bills that ECU's delegation presented at last week's session were a Uniform Child Custody Act and a bill providing for the prohibition of PHBs (carcinogenic chemical compounds).

"The Uniform Child Custody Act provides for channels of communication between courts of different states to decide which court should have jurisdiction over the case in the best interest of the child."

According to Saubers, problems often arise when one parent will "steal" his child from the spouse who was given custody by the local state court and then take the child to another state. The problem lies in deciding which state should claim jurisdiction.

Concerning the second bill, Saubers said that this class of compounds is extremely dangerous. The effects of the compound have been widely publicized in Michigan but not locally.

"We felt that it was time to save the people of North Carolina," he said.

Saubers added that both bills left committee virtually untouched.

"Both of our bills passed the House and the Senate by acclamation which is the best that we could've done."

Major legislation passed at the NCSL meeting included a mock bill approving succession and veto powers for the state's governor, establishing minimal standards in housing, and sanitation and working conditions for migrant workers.

Culture

Ever had the urge to travel abroad and discover a new and exciting culture? But then, after day dreaming, decide that you just couldn't afford such an adventure. If you have experienced these feelings, or if you are majoring in a foreign language, geography, or taking courses in some other field which gives you a taste of non-American cultures, then you might want to consider the advantages of living in the "International Area" of Aycock Residence Hall next Fall.

In this area you would share a room with a student from another country and be encouraged to participate in activities sponsored by the International Students Association, as well as having the opportunity to form close associations with other non-American students.

We are particularly interested in having American graduate students and upperclassmen who have an interest in foreign cultures to share in this living experience. Living in such an environment can bring about greater understanding of other cultures and who knows - maybe your roommate will invite you to visit his home country in the future.

Interested male students may inquire further by visiting the International Student Affairs Coordinator whose office is located in the front lobby of Aycock Hall. While there has been no such living arrangement for women students during the past year, interested women may stop by the Housing Office for Women located on the second floor of Whichard Building.

SGA disagrees over banquet invitations

By JACK LAIL
Staff Writer

Two SGA executive officers criticized the SGA Legislature concerning invitations to the upcoming annual SGA banquet, during the regular Monday night meeting, this week.

Several persons were left off the guest list for political reasons, according to Tommy Thomason, SGA treasurer.

Dean Rudolph Alexander, Dean James Tucker and the FOUNTAINHEAD Editor were omitted from the guest list, according to Greg Pingston, SGA vice president.

"I think we should go by etiquette and fairness and not politics," Pingston said. "I think all members of the Communications Board should be invited."

All other publication editors except the FOUNTAINHEAD Editor were invited, according to Denise Violette, SGA banquet committee chairperson.

"If he (the FOUNTAINHEAD Editor) still wants to, he can," said Tim Sullivan, SGA president.

The legislature passed a resolution to invite Dean Alexander, Dean Tucker, their escorts, and the FOUNTAINHEAD Editor.

In other business, the Visual Fine Arts Forum was appropriated $1,150 by the legislature for a week-long series of events.

This is the students' dedication of the new Leo Jenkins Art Building, according to Cliff Page, an art student who addressed the legislature concerning the bill.

The "dedication" will be the week after Easter break, according to Page.

Speakers, films, and demonstrations will take place daily, he added.

The legislature also appropriated $546 to the Music School, so the ECU Orchestra can perform at the Southern Regional Music Educators National Conference in Atlanta, Ga.

The trip will cost $3,546, according to Dean Pittman.

SGA Vice President Greg Pingston told the legislature that the EBONY HERALD, which has been produced in a dorm room, will hopefully move into the Communications building, with BUC editor Sue Rogerson's cooperation.

The Pigs vs. Freaks basketball game raised $1,300 for Easter Seals, according to Pingston.

He added that last year's game raised only $900.

Three new representatives were approved by the legislature. They were Lisa Walkup: Fleming dorm; Kevin McCourt: Scott dorm, and Cheatham: day student.

The SGA had, as of March 28, $18,039.99 in unappropriated funds, according to Tommy Thomason.

ECU receives science ed. grant

By JOHN DAYBERRY
Staff Writer

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $16,800 grant to ECU to conduct a six-week student science training program in physics for high-ability secondary school students, according to Dr. Paul G. Varlashkin of the ECU physics department.

"Thirty-four students will attend the program which will begin June 22 and end August 2," said Varlashkin.

High school students graduating in the Spring of 1978 or later are eligible for the program, which is in its second year at

"In the mornings, the students will attend classes in math, computer programming and physics," said Varlashkin.

"The students will work on various research projects in the lab in the afternoons."

Applicants are considered on the basis of their transcripts, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, class standing, and intelligence quotients, according to Varlashkin.

"The idea is to try to find potential scientific leaders, and to give them exposure not readily found in high school," he said.

U.N. votes equal no action

One of the major stumbling blocks in the United Nations, its agencies and other international organizations is too great of a reliance on the voting system. Trusting political decision making to any other system is anathema to the American democratic tradition, but, as explained to the Model United Nations by Dr. Harlan Cleveland Friday, the newly independent nations involved in international organizations are not accustomed to voting. The more primitive the society the more likely it is that decisions traditionally have been reached by consensus rather than by majority vote.

Dr. Cleveland, who was foreign policy advisor to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, said that for the Security Council to mimic parliamentary procedure means more talk and less action. In the Security Council, as in other agencies of the U.N., which can be stalled by a single veto, it seems that debate brings more disagreement over why something is to be done than what is actually to be done. More voting means less action.

Hard-core ideologies are at the center of the situation.

Most delegations to the U.N. accept such universal rights as freedom from starvation, disease and the political domination of foreign powers. But, there is wide disagreement over how to eliminate the recognized problem, disagreement which translates into split votes and inaction.

Dr. Cleveland's remedy to the problem was for the U.N. to seek a consensus of ideologies as opposed to the present system of determining whose is the favorite political theory through voting.

The problem with consensus building is that the final result is oftentimes displeasing to all parties concerned. But in the long run, present and especially future delegates to the United Nations must ask themselves and the nations they represent if it is better to win a propaganda battle in the U.N. by gaining a majority of votes on the issue of, for instance human rights, while losing the war to assure freedom from political imprisonment throughout the world. Or, is the propaganda more important?

Editorial on faculty survey off the mark

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

I strongly object to your editorial of 17 March 1977 criticizing the survey conducted by the Instructional Survey Committee which asked undergraduates to vote for the outstanding teachers they had had during 1975-76.

Your headline "Popularity Contest" certainly attracted attention—at the expense of logic and accuracy. Each student voting card stressed that the student should vote on the basis of teaching excellence, not teacher popularity. If you believe that students disregarded these instructions, then logically any student survey—including the "comprehensive survey" you favor—would be subject to the same charge.

If, however, you believe that the survey was a popularity contest because students voted for the teachers who gave the highest grades, let me reassure you. By means of that "overweight calculator" you malign so easily, the Committee was able to discover that overall there are no more than 2.25% of grade bias in the student vote.

I make no apologies for the Committee's use of the computer. It made, without exaggeration, millions of computations which would have taken hundreds of man-hours to complete. However, to infer that the computer "judged" the outstanding teachers is totally incorrect. The Committee weighed the data—including the average class size of each teacher, the number of different students he taught, the number of classes he taught, and his average grade—to determine which teachers were statistically comparable with the majority of those teachers of undergraduates on this campus.

Your desire for a "comprehensive survey" of teaching is understandable. Our Committee has, in fact, sought an acceptable method for such a survey for years. But we have regretfully concluded that we cannot find such a method because we cannot define exactly what constitutes excellence in teaching. Thus we have been forced to rely on that vague but real concept of excellence which resides in the mind of each of us. The Committee hopes that that is the standard by which each student voted.

Yours sincerely
Marie T. Farr
Chairperson, Instructional Survey Committee of the Faculty Senate

Mexican jail article appreciated

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

I am writing this letter as a formal thank you to FOUNTAINHEAD and to those staff members who gave me their support in the publication of the story concerning Mexican prisons last spring. Without your support, and faith in my testimony, I believe I would have given up my quest to allow the world to know of the injustices occurring in Mexico, which would have left other prisoners even more abandoned. As a direct result of the article in your paper, concerned persons wrote Robert Allen Smith and gave him some hope, and the knowledge that people care for him. It possibly kept him alive.

I have finally completed a book, which has been highly accepted and lauded by most skeptical critics at the publication level. I won't mention the name. This is not an advertisement.

Many people in Greenville do not want to believe, and I have often been confronted by interested persons who say "You're so full of bullshit it makes me ill," and I think of my past. I think of names and persons who will mean nothing to your readers. I think of Alejandro Teran, a good friend killed on Christmas Day, of David Johnston, who was taken down to the office of the Oregon prison to be interrogated and never returned, or Barrita who died February 24, 1977 of gunshot wounds, or Richard Kohout who was released after three years without a trial, and Brad Speare who has tuberculosis, or Dan Munoz who remains in prison two months after his sentence is completed, and most of all I think of a quote from Robert Allen Smith's last letter—"My time is up and I still sit here. I am slowly(?) going stark raving mad." The skeptics no longer count. They're not worth the words. It's those that have helped make the truth public that keep the faith in humanity alive. Thank you, FOUNTAINHEAD, and a very special thanks to Kent Johnson, who believed in me, and fought to have the story printed, and also very special appreciation to the "Roxy-family" for their support, and love.

Sincerely,
Steve Wilson

ECU senior back from NASA job

By HELENA WOODAED

Bill Hammond, ECU senior and foreign language major, recently returned from NASA headquarters where he worked as a Cooperative Education student in the Office of International Affairs.

As a Co-op student, Hammond alternated one quarter of work with NASA and one quarter of studies toward his degree here at ECU.

At NASA, Hammond, who speaks fluent German and some French, worked with one of 24 divisions as a technical foreign language person.

"I worked at the Office of International Affairs. We deal and negotiate with countries the world over — especially Europe," Hammond said.

"ESA (European Space Administration) is the European equivalent to NASA. There is a conglomeration of both ESA and NASA," he added.

Hammond said the main duties of the Office of International Affairs were to iron out contract difficulties and to make monetary decisions.

"I was an aid to a professional (Mr. John Sakks). I would assist him by representing him in meetings at state departments or at ESA staff meetings when he wasn't available," Hammond said.

"NASA is very diverse in activities. Lots of things done are unrelated to putting a man on the moon or to the space program," he continued. "They make meals for the handicapped the way they do for astronauts and they make fire-proof equipment."

One of Hammond's most rewarding work experiences was his involvement with the state department in aiding flood-damaged Bangladesh.

"I went to the state department for the first time through AID, a program which was working on aiding Bangladesh due to its recent flood damage. We aided them with supplies and finances. By satellite, we were able to snap photos which showed how many people were hurt and what the extent of damage was to the area," he said.

Two ECU students make Republican committee

By JACK LAIL
 Staff Writer

Two ECU students were chosen Executive Committee officers of the North Carolina Federation of Young Republicans (NCFYR) Convention held in Chapel Hill, N.C., March 25 and 26.

Vivian Hilmer, a rising junior premedical technology major from Hickory, N.C., was elected NCFYR General Secretary.

ed Sergeant-at-Arms of the Executive Committee. Bennett is a senior history major from Rocky Mount, N.C.

Doug Markham, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC) student, was elected General Chairman of the NCFYR.

Three other ECU students attended the convention, including Deborah Epps, Young Republican Club president and past vice chairman of NCFYR region one. Region one includes Duke University, Atlantic Christian College (ACC), and ECU.

This was the first NCFYR convention ECU has attended in the past few years, according to Bennett.

"We made quite an impression with two ECU students chosen as Executive Committee officers," Bennett said.

ECU was selected at the convention, as the site for the next Executive Committee meeting on April 23.

Hamilton Horton, an aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, addressed the convention at the Chapel Hill Holiday Inn.

Horton said Republicans had a good chance to win in the 1978 elections, according to Bennett.

Congressman Jim Martin, from Charlotte, N.C., spoke at a banquet for the convention delegates.

"My main interest was that the East, east of Raleigh, was represented," said Bennett. "We had two clubs represented, ECU and ACC.

"We hope our participation will interest other ECU student Republicans in our club because we are beginning to do things on a statewide level.

"We are making our presence known."

The next ECU Young Republican Club meeting is April 6 in Brewster B-104 at 7:30 p.m. Dr. John East of the Political Science department will speak. All interested students are urged to attend.

Disney gives happy Easter

LAKE BUENA VISTA, FLA.—An exciting Easter season featuring fireworks, an old-fashioned Easter parade, special entertainment and extended Magic Kingdom operating hours is awaiting visitors to Walt Disney World April 2-16.

Popular rock group, Bo Donaldson and the Heywoods will present three shows nightly in Tomorrowland from April 2-9, and blues singer Dion will perform each night from April 10-16.

Led by Mr. and Mrs. Easter Bunny, this year's April 10 Easter Parade will begin at 3 p.m. on Main Street, U.S.A. the old-fashioned promenade will feature antique cars, colorful floats, bands and Mickey and Minnie in their Easter finery.

'Fantasy in the Sky' fireworks will be presented at 10 p.m. through the holiday period.

The Magic Kingdom is now open daily from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. and every Saturday until midnight.

From April 2 to 16, the theme park will be open daily from 9 a.m. until midnight for thousands of college students and family vacationers who traditionally visit Florida at this time.

Other special entertainment at Easter includes Walt Disney World's Kids of the Kingdom, Michael and His Iceberg Machine, Class of '27, Nick Russo and Gabriel's Brass and the Banjo Kings.

Among Walt Disney World's newest adventures is River Country, a unique water-oriented attraction with curving slides and waterfalls. Located in Ft. Wilderness, River Country will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and noon to 5 p.m. weekdays March 19 through June 3. Beginning June 4, the attraction will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

BO DONALDSON AND THE HEYWOODS will join the Spring Break fun at Walt Disney World in Florida.

Movie Orgy rides again

ECU will be included as one of the stops on a cross country tour of college campuses by a zany, nostalgic film extravaganza called "The Mind-Boggling, Never-To-Be-Forgotten-Or-Believed Escape To Movie Orgy." The three big hours of fun and campy memories are sponsored by the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Company, and will be shown on Thursday, April 21 at 8:00 p.m. at University Mall (alternate site: Wright Auditorium). Student Union Films Committee is presenting the frolic, and with Schlitz paying the bills admission is free.

"Escape To Movie Orgy" comes here complete with segments of many of your favorite childhood TV characters, movie classics (and duds), cartoons, crazy commercials, and bombshell bloopers. It is a veritable bonanza for trivia freaks, nostalgia bugs, and lovers of just a plain old good time. Loaded with clips that pop on and off the screen with a certain comic madness, the Movie Orgy could aptly be called "A 2001 Splice Odyssey."

The Schlitz-sponsored Movie Orgy is currently in its seventh successful year, having played to over 350,000 on college campuses and military installations around the country. Campuses continue to ask for the film year after year. It retains its popularity and appeal because of an annual facelift which adds new elements but keeps in some of the favorites of the year before. Added to that, people simply seem to enjoy taking another look at the things that captured their fancies and fantasies as kids.

So hop aboard the time machine, grab your pillows, blankets, and popcorn, cheer for the good guys, heckle the bad, but above all, don't miss this exciting "Escape To Movie Orgy."

BEGINNING IN TUESDAY'S (April 5th's) edition of FOUNTAINHEAD will be an exclusive interview with Stevie Nicks, singer-songwriter with Fleetwood Mac. [Photo by Jimmy Williams]

Sweet problems

If you've walked down the low-cal aisle of the local grocery store lately, you may have noticed a strange phenomenon; people of all sizes madly filling their carts with all types of artificial sweeteners.

In all likelihood, these wild-eyed folks are, like me, dieters, who depend on saccharin as a means to achieve a better physique.

For more years than I can count, I've consumed diet soft drinks. Morning after morning, I sweeten my coffee with Sweet-n-Low. Now, thanks to some Canadian tests, the FDA (Foil Dieting Attempts?) has deemed this glorious alternative to sugar dangerous.

Don't get me wrong. I am glad we have an agency that protects us from harmful substances. But I have yet to meet someone who consumes 800 soft drinks a day, which is the proportionate amount of saccharin given the test rats.

I have no doubt that 800 Diet Dr. Peppers would harm the bladder. 8000 oz. of liquid would make my bladder explode!

SWEET PILL PUSHERS

The ultimate problem the government faces with the upcoming saccharin ban will be overloading of the court dockets, when hustlers discover that dieters can be just as desperately addicted as any heroin junkie.

I can see it now; walking down a dark alley late at night to meet some sleazy character who promises me 100 per cent pure saccharin pills for ten dollars a bottle.

What's worse, I can also picture myself reduced to crawling in the gutter, begging people for just one packet of Sweet-n-Low. Who would think that you could get addicted to a white powder that can't be snorted?

FREEDOM?

The FDA seems to think its moral obligation to protect us from ourselves in this matter; that we're incapable of deciding whether to use artificial sweeteners and of regulating the amount we use.

Strange that they don't feel the same way about tobacco, isn't it? Admittedly, I am a rather heavy smoker, much to my mother's dismay, (not to mention my non-smoking friends). But even a smoker can't help but laugh when they hear that the government doesn't ban cigarettes for fear of denying us our personal freedom. Something's gotta give.

THE SOLUTION

The contrast between the government's stands on tobacco and saccharin might seem illogical until you look on the bottom of that 40-cent cigarette pack and note that 20 cents of it goes to taxes. Whose freedom?

Maybe the solution would be to heavily tax sweeteners. I know plenty of dieters and diabetics who would gladly pay the tax for a little sweetener in their day.

Capsule reviews of recent record splurge

By BILL MILTON

A torrent of recent releases has been loosed during the past several months, and a plethora of material now dots the musical landscape.

As the Biblical proverb and the latter-day song put it, "For everything there is a season." This is true in fiscal matters, farming and record buying. The season now is for buying. But let's not forget the Roman maxim (while we're into quoting)—"Let the buyer beware."

QUEEN "A Day at the Races" (Elektra 6E-101). This British glitter group should claim its share of a resurgent rock market with a primo release, which should pick up a lot of new followers for them. It may mark the big commercial breakthrough on the heels of their strong first album.

Not only is Queen able to fuse that dry British satirical wit into their work, but they also know when to take themselves seriously and when not to. Humor and parody are ingredients in a collection of songs that run far afield of the old standby love-song formula. "You Take My Breath Away" is a good try at campy, barbershop love-song parody.

Another tricky hit is to include a number of introductions which almost stand alone and have little to do with the song itself. This is not pushed to the point of distraction but is used most effectively. Lyrics are intelligent and quotable.

"Somebody to Love" is already surging up the charts and features good gospel choir harmonizing. "Drowse" is an offbeat piece about the trauma of middle age and the feeling that life has passed one by. I found "White Man," suggestive of the innocent noble savage image in looking at the plight of the American Indian, to be a little strained. But in total this album is a fine effort. If you are into this type of rock, Queen would be a good way to start off this year's record buying.

THE BLACKBYRDS "Unfinished Business" (Fantasy F-9518)—If, like most of the civilized world, you're into disco you might as well go with some of the better practitioners of the sound. Formed by Donald Byrd (he is not with the group), founder of the School of Jazz Studies at Howard University, the Blackbyrds are the outgrowth of his efforts to give his students practical experience. From this nightclub circuit OJT, the group went on to become one of the premiere aggregations of the past few years.

It is obvious at the outset that disco is in the hands of highly-trained, well-schooled performers versed in R&B, jazz and other pop mediums. A lot of disco is studio packaged, over-engineered tripe, but the Blackbyrds give it variety and style. Despite that locked-in disco beat, the group interlaces some interesting instrumentation and effects around it. The cuts have more of an improvisational tone than most disco. The band is instrument oriented; singing and lyrics are not their strong suit. Occasionally the vocalizing borders on the inane, the words on some tunes coming perilously close to high school advanced-composition levels. But let's face it, nobody writing disco music today is a frontrunner for a Pulitzer Prize for poetry. Motion is the medium here.

JOAN BAEZ "Gulf Winds" (A&M SP-4603)—Sorry to relate that songwriting cannot be added to Joan's considerable talents as a pure singer, folk balladeer, interpreter of songs and highly competent guitarist.

This new offering, with all of the songs on it authored by her, gives ample proof of her shortcomings. "Diamonds and Ruse" (her last album) held promise of some good compositions to come, but that promise seems to have been a musical piecrust—made to be broken. Her pitfall was in tackling one of the most difficult forms for any writer or poet or songwriter, the highly personalized autobiographical mode. The failure is that the songs are solely about her, they fail to touch that universality which might make us relate to them. I can't see much of it will be relevant to anybody else's situation.

Melodically, most of the tunes are as even as Kansas and as exciting as daytime television. When the words fail to capture and hold you, then the melodies become more and more dronelike. She did pen some noteworthy lines, especially in the title tune, but then she copped out and threw some unpolished bit of doggerel in to ruin it. I'm also getting a tad tired of her Dylan torch songs (the last album had several songs about him and numerous references to him). In Joan's case, the voice is mightier than the pen.

VARIOUS ARTISTS "All This and World War II" (20th Century 2T522)—True Beatles believers will flip out over this double album featuring an ample serving of Lennon and McCartney evergreens. The album is the original sound track for the movie of the same title. Backing actual newsreel footage of the war, some 28 songs span a long and fertile creative period of the Liverpool lads. It demonstrates the versatility and adaptability of the Beatles music. Interpretations and renditions of their songs are done by such diverse performers as Elton John, Rod Stewart, Frankie Lane, Henry Gross, Tina Turner and Leo Sayer. Sayer does an inspired job on "Let It Be," and Stewart and ELO's Jeff Lynne are exceptional on "Get Back" and "With a Little Help from My Friends," respectively.

Purists will argue that the Beatles are the best interpreters of their own music, but I think their memorable songs gain new vibrance and vitality through such cinematic and recording marriages.

NCAA Championships

Pirates fail to place

East Carolina's swim team traveled to the NCAA Championships in Cleveland, Ohio last weekend, but failed to score in any event. John McCauley had the best finish for the Pirate swimmers when he took 27th place in the 50 yard freestyle. His time of 20.85 was just two-hundredths of a second off his varsity record.

The Pirates' Ted Nieman finished 46th in the 200 free with a time of 1:41.18, while the Pirates' 400 free relay team of McCauley, Nieman, John Tudor and Billy Thorne finished 27th in 3:06.8. The 800 free relay team of Tudor, Nieman, Thorne and Stewart Mann finished 31st in 6:52.

Scharf wins Master Coach award

Ray Scharf, head swimming coach at East Carolina University for the last ten years, was named this weekend as a Master Coach by the College Swimming Coaches Association.

The Master Coach Award is one of the highest honors presented by the College Swimming Coaches Association. In order to receive the award, a coach must satisfy four of seven criteria and have coached at least ten years.

The seven criteria are: 1) win 50% of dual meets, 2) win a conference championship, 3) produce a national swimming champion, 4) produce an olympic team member, 5) been actively involved in C.S.C.A. committees, 6) conducted coaching institutes or schools or have participated in institutes or schools as a member of the faculty, 7) earned a masters degree.

Scharf met five of the seven criteria, having won 57% of his dual meets in the last ten years; having won a conference championship each of the last ten years; having served as Chairman of the NCAA International Competition

Subcommittee in 1969-70 and on the University Games Committee in 1970-71; having worked with schools and institutes in 1967-76 as assistant professor and aquatic director at East Carolina, instructor at University of Arizona in 1961-62 and a member of AAHPER and CSCAA in Mexico in 1973 and 1975; having earned a masters degree from Arizona in 1962.

"It's nice to be recognized," noted Scharf. "The College Swimming Coaches Association does everything possible to recognize its members for outstanding accomplishments. This was a good year to be honored as I was among some fine company with all the olympic people being honored. It was nice to be in such fine company."

During his ten years at East Carolina, Scharf has been most successful. The Pirates have dominated the Southern Conference by winning the championship each year under Scharf. Also, he has produced some big wins over ACC competition, including one this year over Maryland.

Never has East Carolina lost a dual meet to Southern Conference competition under Scharf's leadership.

Scharf, a native of Newark, N.J., first came to East Carolina as assistant coach in 1967.

RAY SCHARF(right) won the prestigious honor awarded by the College Swimming Coaches Association this past weekend. He is the 2nd ECU swimming coach to win.

Pirates currently 9-6 overall, 2-0 in SC

By JEFF BROOKS
Assistant Sports Editor

Coach Monte Little's Pirates are a third of the way through the current season and currently sport a 9-6 overall record, including a 2-0 in the Southern Conference. After fifteen games, the Pirates are making an assault on several team records. If current averages hold up, new records could be set for most stolen bases, and most RBI's.

The Pirates have stolen 38 bases in only 15 games, which leave them only 19 shy of the all-time team record of 57. With 26 games remaining on the schedule, this record can be easily shattered.

Jerry Carraway and Pete Paradossi currently lead the hitting onslaught with .385 and .333 averages respectively, while Sonny Wooten is spotlighted as leading the team in runs batted in with 12. On the basepaths, speedster Eddie Gates has stolen 9 bases out of 10 attempts, with Paradossi not far behind at 6 of 7.

Mickey Britt headlines an excellent mound corps which boasts a collective E.R.A. of 2.09. Britt is 3-0 on the year with a 1.00 E.R.A., while Pete Conaty and Larry Dantridge, though saddled with 2-2 records, feature respective E.R.A.'s of 0.78 and 0.33.

The Pirates are slated to host the Richmond Spiders in a Southern Conference twinbill on Thursday, followed by an afternoon game on Friday with Pembroke State.

Varsity-Alumni game played this Saturday

Stars of the past for ECU on the gridiron will return to campus Saturday night to face the current Pirate varsity squad. This year's Varsity-Alumni game, being played in lieu of the annual Purple-Gold game, will be played in Ficklen Stadium at 7:00 p.m. The Purple-Gold game slated for Friday night, April 8, has been canceled.

"This game will give us an opportunity to work against some new folks," said coach Pat Dye. "I think our team will enjoy the chance to hit someone other than themselves.

"Also, this gives us an opportunity to play together as a unit against some representative competition."

Thus far, Dye feels the spring drills have produced some good results, but overall the team is not as far along as expected.

"We are not as close now at this time as we were last year," said Dye. "We just do not have as many experienced people this spring. We have a long way to go.

The Varsity-Alumni game will be the last public scrimmage of the spring for East Carolina. The team will have roughly three practice sessions remaining following Saturday's game.

Admission for the Varsity-Alumni game will be $2.00 for adults, $1.00 for children and free to students with ID and activity card.

Rankins always dreamed of being a hurdler

When East Carolina University's Marvin Rankins was in high school, there was a hurdler at North Carolina Central University named Charles Foster. Foster was one of the top three hurdlers in the world, and after Rankins saw him one time, he knew what he wanted to do.

"When I saw how easily he went over the hurdles," Rankins said. "I knew I wanted to be a hurdler."

In the past two weeks, Rankins has turned in times of 13.7 in the 120 yard highs at the ECU Invitational and 13.7 in the 110 meter highs at the Atlantic Coast Relays in Raleigh. These are the fastest times run by North Carolina collegians since Foster graduated from Central in 1974.

Rankins beat two nationally ranked hurdlers from Seton Hall in the ECU event, but lost a close decision to Maryland's Greg Robertson at the Atlantic Coast Relays after coming out of the starting blocks late.

"At the Invitational, I really felt the pressure," Rankins said. "I was on my home track and I had beaten (Larry) Bunting last year."

Rankins won, as he, Bunting and Reggie Blackshear (Seton Hall's hurdlers) all smashed the previous Bunting Field record of 13.9. Bunting and Blackshear were timed in 13.8.

Rankins said his high school, Shelton Bond, tried to get him to run the hurdlers early in his sophomore year, but he was not so willing, until "I saw Foster in action."

Rankins said that his high school conference (Northeastern 3-A) and Bertie track coach Bond were the main factors in his quick development as a hurdler. "There were a lot of good hurdlers in our league and Coach Bond taught me the technique," he noted.

Rankins went to the state championships as a sophomore, but finished fourth to conference rival Jack Freeman of Northern Nash, who won the race. Rankins was favored to win the state title his junior year, but Charlotte's Tony Bouler edged him out. Rankins came back his senior year to run away with the state title before signing with East Carolina.

Rankins, just a sophomore at ECU, has already won three conference championships in the Southern Conference. He won the indoor 60 yard highs title both years and captured the 120 yard high hurdles last spring outdoors.

Rankins had a best of 13.9 last year, but has already gone 13.7 twice this year.

Marvin Rankins wants to be the hurdler Charles Foster was.

He wants to be world-class. That is his goal and with the improvement he has made over the past year, he may just make it.

Pirates at ACC relays

East Carolina traveled to Raleigh Saturday and Sunday for the Atlantic Coast Conference Relays and several Pirates emerged as meet standouts.

Marvin Rankins turned in a 13.7 time in the meet Saturday in the 120 high hurdles, but was beaten at the tape by Maryland's Greg Robertson. Rankin's time is the fastest by a North Carolina collegiate hurdler in three years.

George Jackson upped his state-leading long jump distance to 24' 3 1/4" Saturday at the meet when he finished third. He was beaten by two nationally ranked jumpers from Maryland, but defeated a third Maryland jumper who has placed in the NCAA championships.

Finally, East Carolina's 440 yard relay team qualified for the NCAA championships Saturday, when they ran a time of 40.8. The quartet of Calvin Alston, Otis Melvin, Larry Austin and Carter Suggs overcame several bad breaks with the baton exchanges to turn in the time.

Herman McIntyre, North Carolina's top collegiate triple jumper, has been beaten just once in the past three months in his speciality. McIntyre jumped a distance of 50' 11 3/4" Saturday to take first place in the event.
