Trustees vote to increase dorm rent, activity fees

By CINDY BROOME
Assistant News Editor

The ECU Board of Trustees voted Saturday to increase dorm room rent by $42 due to increasing utilities costs.

Cliff Moore, Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs, said ECU is presently paying $1 million each year to the Greenville Utilities Commission which furnishes electricity to the campus.

Currently, dorm students are paying $390 yearly; on the semester system, they will be paying $432 yearly.

Dr. James H. Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs, mentioned that several years ago, there was a problem of filling the dorms.

Due to increased enrollment as one factor, Dr. Tucker said, housing is getting scarce.

"Many students will live in the dorms because it's cheaper," said Dr. Tucker.

The Board also voted to increase student activity fees by $9.

According to Moore, the $81 activity fee is about average with other North Carolina state-supported schools.

The Board discussed the possibility of part-time students paying student activity fees.

Moore said N.C. State and UNC-Chapel Hill students pay activity fees, regardless of how many semester hours they are taking.

Moore also said soccer has been dropped, at least temporarily, from the men's sports for the 1977-78 season because of Title IX. There will be eight sports each for men's and women's athletics.

Moore also said ECU has signed a five-year contract with Wake Forest University for a football series to begin in 1979.

A one-year contract has been signed with Florida State to begin in 1980, according to Moore.

There are also plans to sign on a seven-foot center for the ECU basketball team.

Dr. Ed Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, said applications are still being taken for entrance to the medical school.

Twenty-eight students will be accepted out of about 250 or 300 applications.

Monroe said North Carolina applicants will be given first priority.

Thirty-two students will be admitted the following year, Monroe said.

Thirty-six to forty students will hopefully be admitted to succeeding classes, Monroe said.

Another report stated that Ficklen Stadium will not assume the horseshoe shape as was previously thought.

Chancellor Leo Jenkins said seats will be added to all four sides, increasing the number of seats by 20,000.

Additional stadium construction will include more concession stands, a $500,000 press box, a 150-seat chancellor's guest box, and an elevator to the press and guest box sections.

Trustees' Chairman Troy W. Pate, Jr. said he will announce the members of the selection committee for the chancellor around May 15.

In other, business, Moore commented that the ECU Student Government Association has one of the largest student government budgets in the nation.

CORRECTION

An article which appeared in FOUNTAINHEAD earlier this month stated that Kent Johnson, former SGA Secretary of International Programs, gave no reason for his resignation from the SGA. Johnson later contacted FOUNTAINHEAD, stating that he had given SGA President Neil Sessoms reason for his resignation. "I felt that my remaining on his (Sessoms) administration would not have been very helpful to him. "I can feel the tension between us, and I don't want to hurt him or his administration in any way," said Johnson.

Hot debate sees present and past executives at the Speaker's podium

By DENNIS LEONARD

The SGA Monday night passed a bill calling for a recall election to be held May 13.

According to the SGA Constitution, a recall may be held after a petition with 15 per cent of the signatures from the entire student body is obtained.

Former Attorney General Karen Harloe addressed the Legislature to state that the petition contains 1,278 signatures. Harloe also noted that the petition had been examined by Deans Carolyn Fulghum, Laura Ward, and Caroline Smith.

According to SGA President Neil Sessoms, the recall petition is not valid because Harloe is no longer acting Attorney General.

"The recall petition is unconstitutional because it takes an acting Attorney General to validate it," said Sessoms. "I fired Harloe and she is not the Attorney General, which is based on Sullivan's precedent in the firing of John Jones last Fall."

"The SGA Legislature has deteriorated into a political quagmire and has ceased to serve the students," added Sessoms.

Former SGA Vice President Greg Pingston also addressed the Legislature with a resolution asking for the resignation of Speaker Ricky Price, the ending of Sullivan's hazing political tactics, and the resumption of the Legislature's law-making duties.

Pingston's resolution was supported by MRC president and president-elect, WRC president, Student Union president and president-elect, FOUNTAINHEAD, BUCCANEER, and REBEL editors, the Law Society and Rho Epsilon president, former SGA Vice President and Treasurer and the Panhellenic Council's woman of the year.

"I think by the support shown by the organizational leaders on this campus, with no political aspirations, students should realize the political farce that Tim Sullivan and his followers have infested in the SGA," said Reed Warren, SGA vice-president.

According to Warren, people who have worked with Sullivan have become alienated.

"Campus leaders who have crossed paths with Sullivan recognize his slimy tactics and selfish political motivations," said Warren.

Price could not be reached for comment.

No BUCCANEER; editor blames SGA

By DOUG WHITE
Staff Writer

The 1976-77 BUCCANEER has been canceled due to insurmountable delays caused by the recent robbery of the SGA photography lab.

According to BUC Editor Susan Rogerson, several organization photos had to be canceled and others were never taken even though assigned.

"By the time the shots could be rescheduled, school would be out and only two people are working this summer," said Rogerson.

Rogerson places the blame on the SGA legislature and the Appropriations Committee for severely slicing the Buccaneer budget.

"The SGA tried to be journalists, which they definitely are not. Their budget cuts did not allow for a quality Buc."

"The originally appropriated $60,000 was spent elsewhere after the BUC staff walkout, even though a task force had been assigned to restructure the BUC."

"We were left with one month's operating expenses plus ten salaried positions. All other expenses, such as postage and printing, had to be financed through subscriptions and ad revenues."

A section will be reserved in next year's edition covering this year's highlights. Whether or not pictures of the class of '77 will be printed next year, depends on the new budget.

"Part of the blame lies in Tim Sullivan's negative opinion and mistrust of publications and also, in the SGA's ignorance of the funds and staff necessary to print quality," said Rogerson.

"The legislature was influenced by Craig Hales' bias and Karen Harloe's inability to understand the answers to the questions she asked during the debate over budget cuts."

Students who purchased subscriptions may pick up their refund checks in the BUC office beginning May 16.

Ricky's Rules of Order

Democracy in student government was dealt another blow Monday night by the words of Speaker Ricky Price. His interpretation of Roberts' Rules of Order, the parliamentary guide by which the legislature is supposed to operate, and the legislators' complacency in their reaction to the petition for recall against SGA President Neil Sessoms and Vice-President Reed Warren, further compromise the SGA Legislature's credibility as the representative authority of ECU students.

The legislature's appropriation of $750 to fund another election for the SGA presidency this spring was based on the assumption Karen Harloe had the authority to validate recall petitions against Sessoms and Warren even though the newly-elected SGA President fired Harloe from the attorney general's position shortly after taking office in March. (Harloe, however, refused to vacate her office.) The legislature was hesitant to take action on the petition until Speaker Price assured them Harloe was still attorney general. Normally a constitutional question such as this would be heard by the Review Board, but apparently Price regards that procedure as too time consuming.

Along with the $750 bill, the legislature voted during "new business" to hold another election for the presidency and vice-presidency on May 5. When it was discovered near the end of the meeting, during "announcements," that this date was too soon considering the president's right to let a bill become law without signing it in ten days, Price again assured the legislature that there was no problem, that the bill could be adjusted a little. The new date is May 13, a Friday.

Liberal interpretations and frequent adjustments of the operating procedure of Price's legislature this year have made a mockery of that branch of student government. The blame, however, does not belong solely to Price for his blundering manipulation of parliamentary procedure. Also sharing the responsibility is a passive, go-along legislature that begs not to be too closely scrutinized.

U.S. Senate reassesses Philippine bases

By TED CHANDLER

(LNS)—The Carter Administration is stepping up pressure on Philippine dictator Ferdinand Marcos to accept Washington's terms for the retention of U.S. bases in the former U.S. colony.

On Sunday, April 10, both the New York Times and the Washington Post carried articles about a new U.S. Senate Foreign Assistance Sub-Committee report that questions the strategic value of Clark Air Force Base—but not other Pentagon installations in the Philippines.

Negotiations with Manila over the future of the bases stalled last December. At that time, former Secretary of State Kissinger claimed he had secured an agreement but that Marcos had reneged on it.

Marcos was then said to be seeking $1 billion in rent over five years for the bases. (The U.S. currently pays the Philippine government one dollar a year for its use of Clark, the largest Pentagon base outside the U.S.)

Washington now claims that Marcos is demanding $1 billion in military aid and credits alone, along with additional economic aid.

Following the December negotiations collapse, Marcos announced that he was re-evaluating the usefulness of the bases to the Philippines. In March Francis Underhill, now U.S. Ambassador to Malaysia and former political counsellor in the U.S. Embassy in Manila, urged the closing of all U.S. bases in the Philippines in a so-called "secret report" that found its way to the Wall Street Journal. Public comment of this sort outside an official's area is highly irregular in the tradition-bound State Department.

Thus both sides are asserting publicly their disinterest in what is well known that they are secretly negotiating about.

U.S. NEGOTIATING POSITION

In this context, the significance of the recent Senate report should not be exaggerated. It clearly has more to do with the U.S. negotiating position—and driving down the price for the bases—than with a genuine U.S. withdrawal from the Philippines. In all likelihood, the strained U.S.

economy will force the closing of some Philippine installations in any event.

However, with more than $4 billion dollars invested in the islands, with more square miles of Pentagon-controlled facilities there than in the rest of the world combined (excluding the U.S.), and with the CIA's Asian headquarters but lately removed from Bangkok to the Philippine capital, the U.S. is unlikely to be on the verge of walking away from the Philippines.

Moreover, the Administration has steadfastly refused to act against Marcos for his widely-recognized violations of human rights—indicating that Carter still hopes to gain from, rather than liquidate the relationship.

Neither the Underhill nor the Senate reports address the real stakes at issue in the Philippines—the right of the Filipino people to exercise genuine independence and sovereignty within their own country.

Clark Air Force Base and Subic Bay Naval Base together occupy an area that would accommodate half a dozen of the smallest European countries. Clark's 130,000 acres pre-empt some of the best plains land in the Central Luzon rice-bowl of Pampanga Province. The bulk of this land is either unused, or used solely for bombing practice—in a country where peasants have to carve rice land from the mountainsides through tier after tier of ascending terraces.

Subic Naval Base has appropriated excellent fishing grounds. Dozens of nearby fishing people are killed each year as undetonated explosives become caught in nets and explode on contact with the small craft.

It is significant that the Senate report, which strongly questions the value of Clark unless the U.S. is mediating another Asian land war, staunchly supports the retention of Subic, the only extra-U.S. base with repair facilities for the U.S. atomic submarine fleet.

Nevertheless, the fact that elements in high levels of the U.S. Government are publicly proposing the liquidation of U.S. military bases in other countries is highly significant.

Court ruling stabs nuclear power industry

(LNS)--A North Carolina federal district court ruling has sent violent shudders throughout the nuclear power industry.

On March 31, Judge James B. McMillan declared unconstitutional the Price-Anderson Act, which has allowed power companies to avoid shouldering the full financial responsibility for potential nuclear accidents.

The Carolina Environmental Study Group, together with some 40 individuals, first brought suit against Duke Power Company and the Atomic Energy Commission (now the Nuclear Regulatory Commission) in 1973. Duke Power, which is currently building two nuclear plants near Charlotte, N.C., announced that it plans to appeal the court decision directly to the Supreme Court.

If Duke loses its appeal and the decision stands, nuclear power companies would be open to unlimited liability claims, and the future development of the industry would be seriously undermined.

GOV'T SUBSIDIZES NUCLEAR INDUSTRY

The Price-Anderson Act was first passed in 1957, just as the nuclear power industry was getting off the ground.

"The industry couldn't buy insurance for their plants and they weren't going to build them unless they could get insurance," explained Jeff Knight of Friends of the Earth in Washington, D.C., a group that has opposed nuclear power for many years.

"The reason they couldn't get insurance, they said, was because insurance companies had no actual data on which to base rates."

At that time, a study called "WASH 740" investigated the possible consequences of a nuclear accident and came up with 3,400 deaths, 40,000 injuries and $7 billion in damages.

"But when the Price-Anderson Act passed, it limited nuclear accident liability to $560 million.

"And in what amounted to a government subsidy, Congress said that $456 million of that liability would come out of taxpayers' pockets. The company actually involved, in other words, would be liable for no more than $95 million.

"The theory -- or at least the expressed theory -- at the time was that this law would only be temporary," continued Knight. "They said that at some point, after enough operating history for power plants had gone by, they would get rid of the act, and the insurance industry would step in."

But in 1965, Congress began to consider Price-Anderson again, and decided to extend it for another 10 years. At that time, at Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) also began an update of the original WASH 740 study, since larger reactors had begun to be built. That report was never completed or released.

"It wasn't until 1973 that, under threat of Freedom of Information Act lawsuits, they released all the working papers from that study," explained Knight. "It indicated that in 1965, the worst consequences of a nuclear accident were in the order of 45,000 deaths, 72,000 injuries and at least $17 billion in damages."

"They had hoped that the numbers would be more reassuring than the original WASH numbers, but they were worse," concluded Knight, who indicated that was one of the major reasons why the study was never released.

Along came 1974, and the congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy decided to extend the Act another ten years. Many environmental and anti-nuclear groups testified against it in hearings, and although the legislation passed, the opposition was able to convince Congress to add an amendment -- that the Act would not go into effect until another AEC report, commissioned in 1973, was completed and Congress was able to study it.

The law passed just after Gerald Ford took office, but because of the amendment, he vetoed it. Back in Congress in 1975, Price-Anderson again passed -- this time without any amendments -- to extend until

A number of groups have attempted over the years to gain a court hearing to contest the constitutionality of the Act, but have failed. Finally, the Carolina Environmental Study Group succeeded in the fall of 1976. Judge McMillan's March 31 ruling was the outcome -- the first legal challenge to the Act since its advent in 1957.

ECU history prof joins team studying Civil War 'Monitor'

William N. Still Jr., professor of history at ECU, is among a team of experts at work on an intensive study of the wrecked Civil War Union ironclad Monitor.

The wrecked ship lies topside down under more than 200 feet of water about 16 miles south of here.

Dr. Still and other researchers from the University of Delaware and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology were aboard the University of Delaware's research vessel, Cape Henlopen.

The team took a series of underwater photographs of the wreck using a horizontal video camera, which makes possible detailed study of the Monitor's deck. The Cape Henlopen positioned itself as close as eight feet from the wreck, guided by Del Norte radar.

Famed for its Hampton Roads battle with the Confederate Merrimack, the Monitor sank in a storm while being towed to Beaufort in 1862. The precise location of the wreck was charted in studies done four years ago.

Recent on-site studies of the Monitor and the surrounding ocean floor are part of scientists' preparation for underwater dives this summer and eventual salvage of the wreck.

Dr. Still is a trustee and historical research director for the Monitor Research and Recovery Foundation, which is coordinating study of the wrecked ship.

The Pink Penguin is coming soon.

UNC system awaits HEW civil rights orders

By DOUG WHITE
Staff Writer

According to William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system, the state should receive specific directions from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) as to what must be done in order to bring the 16 UNC institutions in compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"In short, North Carolina should not place itself any longer in the position of attempting to formulate and implement specific commitments in response to vague, confused and unexplained directives from HEW," Friday told the UNC Board of Governors.

Friday was referring to the April 1 decision of Judge John Pratt in a District of Columbia federal district court.

The judge ordered HEW to invalidate higher education desegregation plans of North Carolina and five other states and to require these states to prepare desegregation plans that will conform to guidelines to be prepared by HEW this summer.

Friday noted that a revised North Carolina plan had been approved by HEW and said that HEW's Office of Civil Rights had pointed the state out as "a model which other affected states might appropriately emulate."

Friday said that North Carolina had "carried out faithfully the many commitments made by the university in its 1974 plan. He said the university had received $527,000 from the 1975 General Assembly to implement the plan and that the university had asked the 1977 General Assembly for additional sums.

Under the plan, he said, the state's 11 predominantly white institutions now have 5.6 per cent blacks in their enrollments and that the five predominantly black institutions now enroll 8.8 per cent nonblacks.

According to Friday, the seven years of litigation has been "characterized by a failure of the parties and the court to come to grips with the central issue."

He said that was what the Civil Rights Act required the state to do "with respect to its predominantly black institutions of higher education. Must the state truly accomplish the goal of eliminating the vestiges of (racial) duality?"

To do so, he said, would require the state to bring enrollment in the 16 institutions "into conformity with a single standard."

Or, he said, "must the state preserve these predominantly black institutions as predominantly black institutions for the indefinite future and enhance them?"

Friday said that both goals cannot be attained.

Impact of recent oil spill lecture scheduled for Friday

Dr. Peter Fricke, maritime sociologist, will lecture on the social and environmental impact of the "Argo Merchant" oil spill at ECU Friday, April 29 at 7 p.m.

Dr. Fricke's presentation, sponsored by the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology and the Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources, is scheduled for Brewster Building, C-103.

"We are extending a cordial invitation to all interested persons to attend this timely lecture," said John Maiolo, chairperson of sociology and anthropology.

"There are too many oil spills in American waters, which are having detrimental effects upon our coastal environment and economy.

The American public should be aware that there are available legal means to prevent the frequent occurrence of oil spills."

Dr. Maiolo noted that the Fricke presentation would focus on the 1976 spill by the Liberian freighter "Argo Merchant," and also examine the role international laws can play in the curtailment of oil spills in the oceans.

"A good deal of our economy depends upon our coastal communities and products of the ocean. If the current rate of oil spills continues, the results will be disastrous," he said.

A native of Great Britain, Dr. Fricke is currently a research associate at the Woods Hole Mass. Oceanographic Institute.

Jenkins Fine Arts Center dedication held Sunday

By CINDY BROOME
Assistant News Editor

The Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center was dedicated to Dr. Leo W. Jenkins Sunday at the dedication program. Approximately 300 people attended.

Tran Gordley, Associate Dean of the School of Art, presided at the dedication program.

Gordley introduced Dr. Wellington B. Gray, Dean of the School of Art, who presented the Jenkins family. Two Jenkins children were unable to attend.

The bronze portrait of Dr. Jenkins was unveiled by Mrs. Suzanne Jenkins Lodge and Mrs. Patricia A. Jenkins Hogan, daughters of Dr. and Mrs.

Jenkins.

Professor Robert Edmiston sculpted the portrait.

Troy W. Pate, Jr., Chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, said he was honored to accept the bronze portrait of Dr. Jenkins.

"The portrait and this magnificent facility will serve as a symbol of Leo Jenkins' forceful leadership toward realization of this university as a center for the arts," said Pate.

Francis A. Ruzicka, Chairman of the Art Department at the University of Georgia, gave the dedicatory address.

"The new arts center speaks for itself with authority, eloquence and dignity," said Ruzicka.

"It represents the vision and tireless efforts of the man whose name it bears."

Ruzicka said the first time he saw the arts center, studios were occupied and students were busy.

"This building already proves to be alive," said Ruzicka.

The ECU Chamber Singers gave two numbers under the direction of Brett Watson, associate professor of the music department.

Rev. R. Roderick Randolph gave the prayer of dedication.

A reception, a visual presentation and a tour of the Fine Arts Center were held following the program.

ECU sponsors town gatherings

NC local life project planned

Town gatherings in Edenton, New Bern and Bath-Belhaven are now being planned in conjunction with ECU's Project on Local Life in Eastern North Carolina.

The project, funded by a grant from the N.C. Humanities Committee, is designed to promote an understanding of the nature and impact of local life in eastern North Carolina, to facilitate effective future policy-making.

Town gatherings will focus on the nature of eastern North Carolina's way of life and the relationship of public policy-making at all levels of government to the future of the region.

Several political leaders have been invited to participate, said project director Karl Rodabaugh, a member of the ECU history faculty.

The Project on Local Life earlier sponsored a conference on the ECU campus which drew local citizens, public officials and scholars.

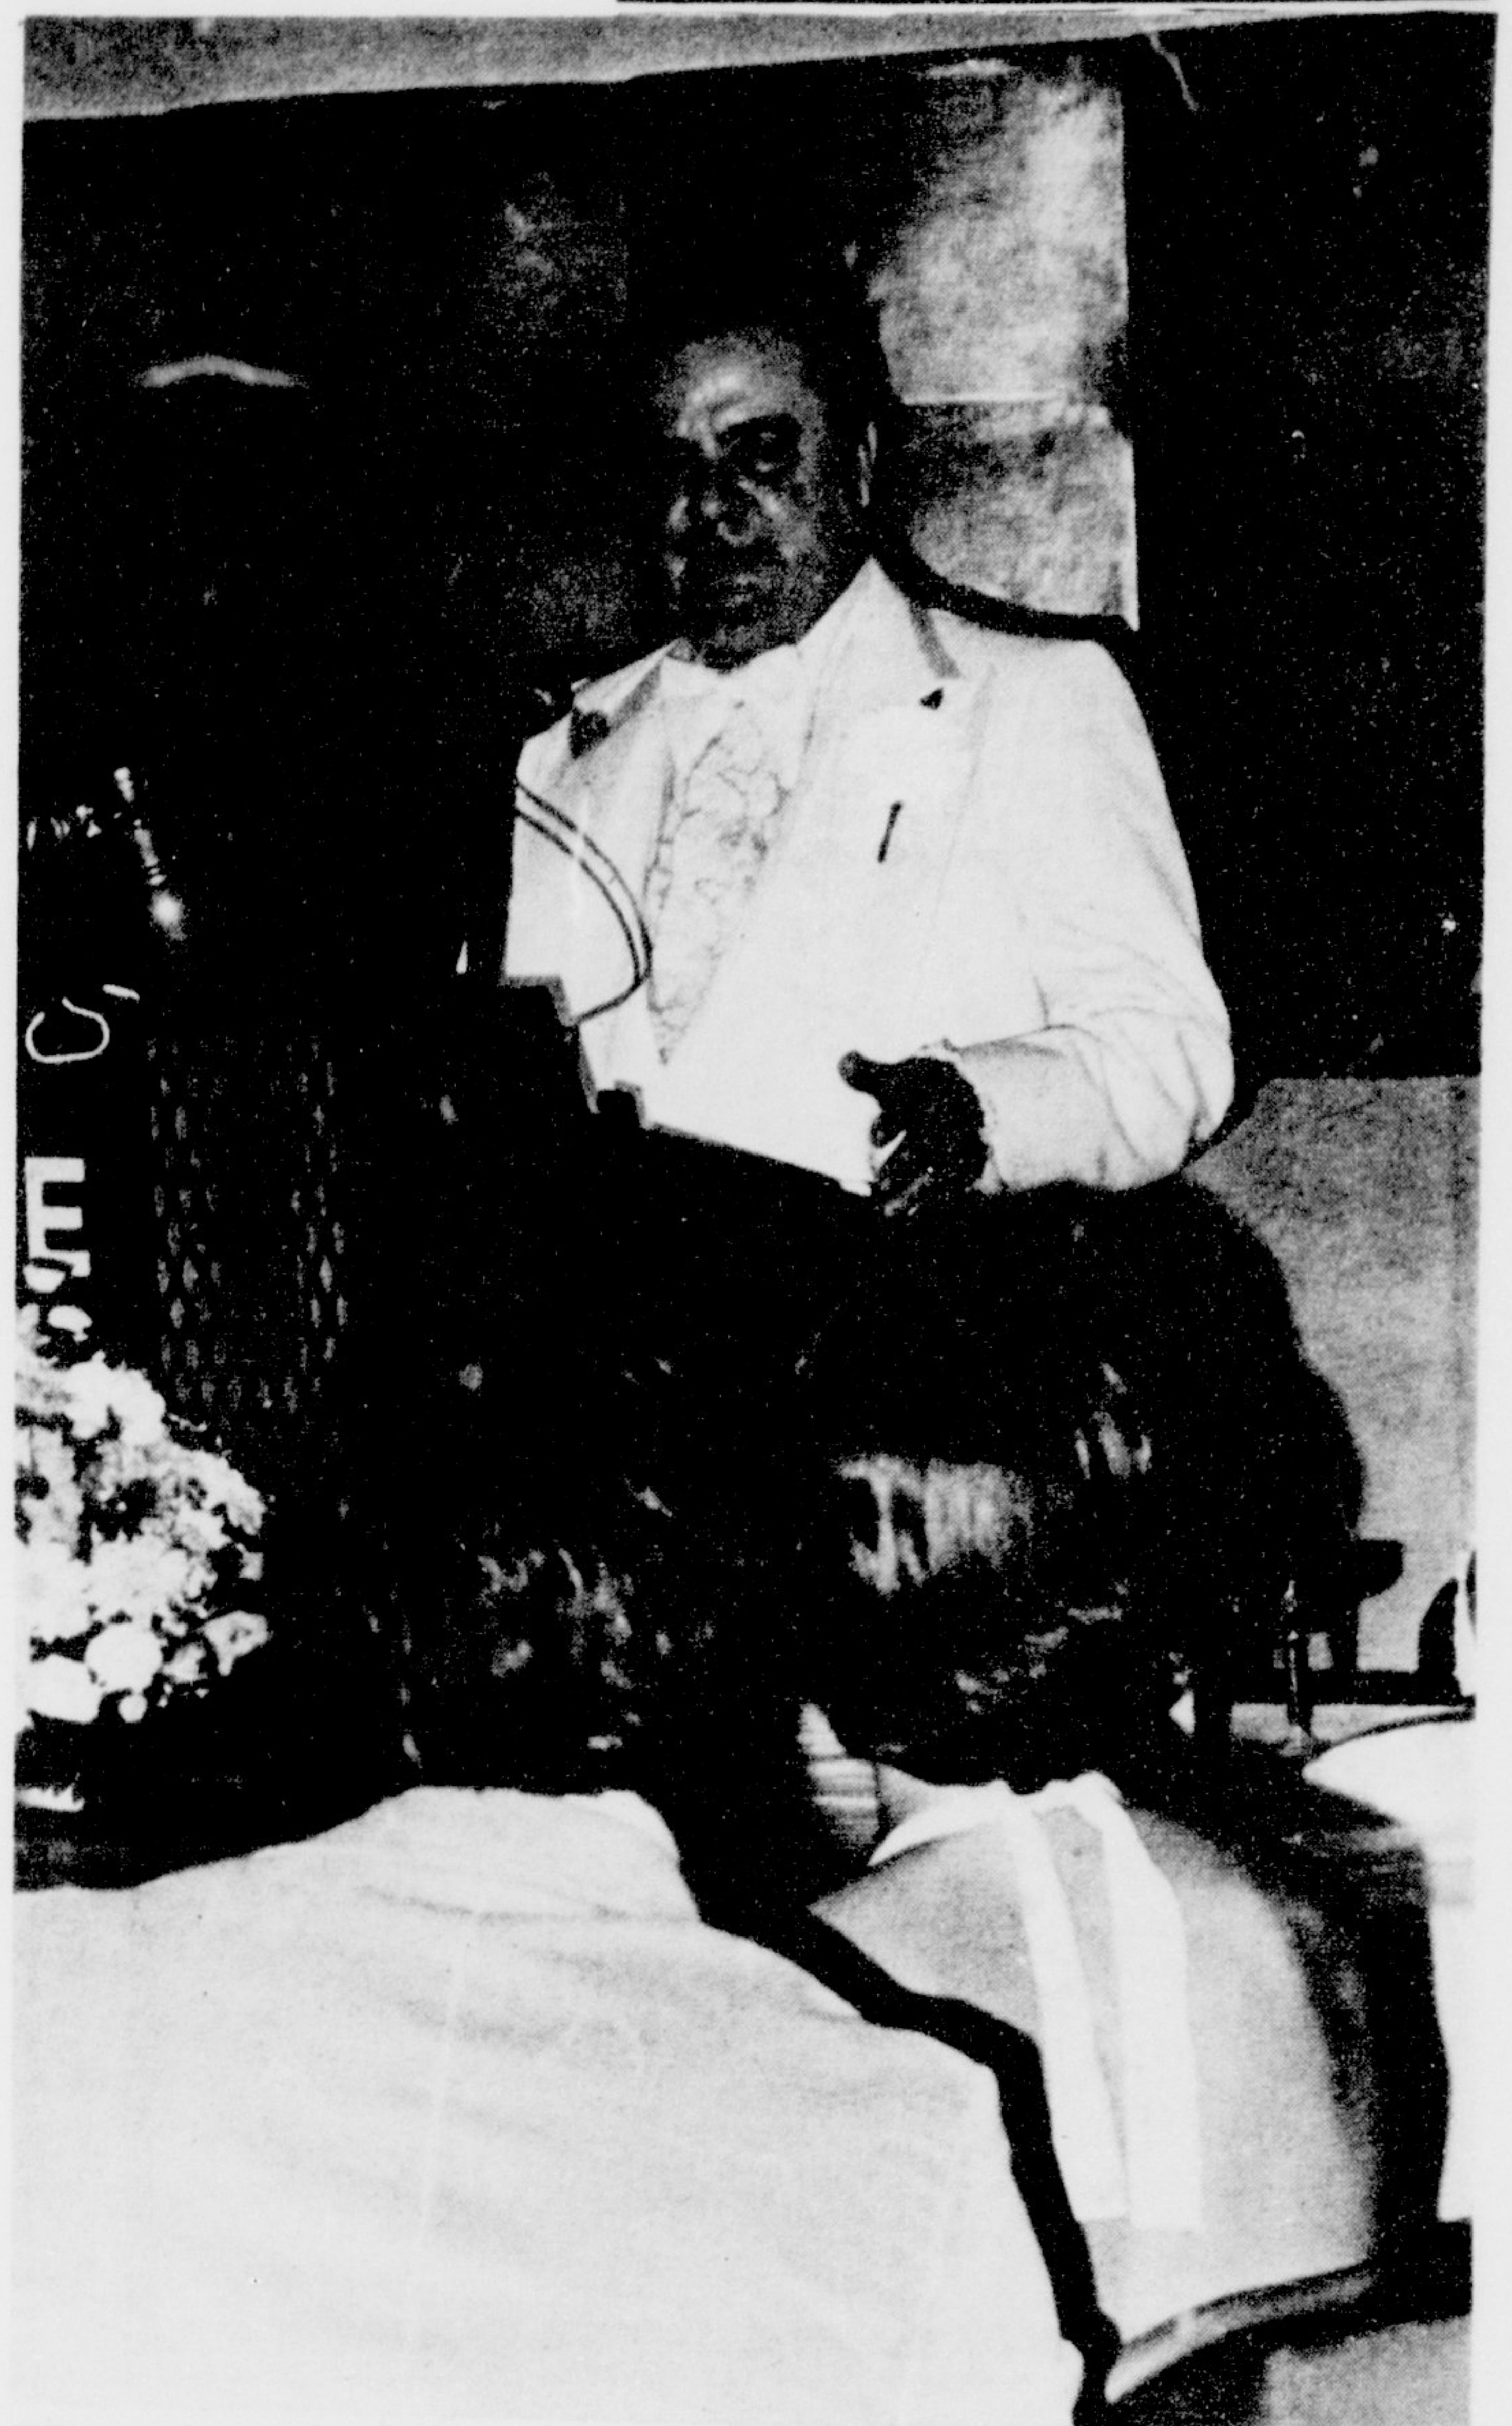

Among the chief topics of discussion at the conference were several visible manifestations of localism: a strong attachment to the home community, a tendency for important influences to originate from one's friends, relatives and neighbors, a habit of centering life around local institutions, and a strong desire to exercise a significant amount of local power in decision-making which affects one's local area.

Local planning committees are being formed to organize the three town gatherings. Tentative dates for the town meetings are

May 7 (Edenton), May 21 (New Bern) and June 11 (Bath-Belhaven).

Persons interested in serving on the local planning committees are encouraged to telephone Rodabaugh at the ECU Division of Continuing Education, 757-6148.

ECU honored 100 outstanding women students in its annual Woman's Awareness Week awards ceremony this week.

Receiving recognition at the ceremony were women nominated by ECU's academic departments and professional schools, student organizations, and athletic teams.

Also receiving awards were the women students cited in the current edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" and the 18 campus marshals.

Student award recipients included residents of 34 North Carolina counties and nine other states.

A special award was given Lillian Jacobsen Jenkins, wife of ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

Mrs. Jenkins is originally from Lavallette, N.J. and a graduate of Trenton State College. She taught nine years in the New Jersey schools.

During her years in Greenville, Mrs. Jenkins has been active in book and gardening clubs, Girl Scout work and church activities in addition to supervising frequent receptions, luncheons, and dinners given in the Jenkins' home for ECU students and faculty members.

The awards ceremony was followed by a reception for honorees and guests in the Mendenhall Student Center. This and other Women's Awareness Week activities are sponsored by the ECU Women's Residence Council.

Names of student award recipients, and their areas of achievement follow:

Faculty appraisal continues

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Co-News Editor

ECU students are presently being encouraged to vote in the second annual Faculty Evaluation.

The voting which will conclude on Wednesday April 27, will provide students with an opportunity to vote for the outstanding undergraduate professors during Fall, Winter, or Spring Quarters of the 1976-77 academic year.

According to Dr. Carl Adler of the ECU Physics Department, all faculty are eligible, but the student must have received a grade from the professor which he chooses.

"This is the students' chance to find out whom they consider their best teachers," said Adler.

A list of the ECU faculty may be found in the Thursday April 21 edition of FOUNTAINHEAD. A list is also available at the ballot box in the lobby of the old C.U. building.

Students may vote either today or tomorrow between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The students should vote for one to three undergraduate teachers and should assign either a 10, 8, or 6 to his nomination, depending on the professor's proficiency.

Students are asked to use the three digit code number assigned to the teacher when voting and not the name.

Adler said that this year's evaluation runs along the same lines as last year's study.

The student vote will be analyzed by the Faculty Senate Instructional Survey Committee to minimize any bias in the vote which might occur.

"The Faculty Senate originated the survey and the SGA supported it," said Adler.

Announcement of the results of the survey will be in the early Fall of 1977.

ECU grad studies relaxation for tension headache help

An ECU clinical psychology graduate student is researching the use of relaxation techniques to treat tension headaches.

Angela Robertson is using local subjects for her thesis research probing comparisons of relaxation techniques in treatment of tension headaches.

Robertson began the nine-week project early spring quarter and is using volunteers gained through ads in FOUNTAINHEAD and the Daily Reflector.

She said most of the 28 volunteers are students and all are female.

"The few men who responded mainly had migraine headaches," she said.

"This study is concerned with muscle tension headaches, specifically the muscles of the scalp, neck and shoulders."

Tension headaches are caused primarily by contractions of these muscles, according to Robertson, and the study is designed to teach and compare methods of relaxing these muscles to cure the headache.

"The nine weeks are broken into three parts," she said.

"The first three weeks we establish records of the rate of headaches. Then follow four weeks of treatment, in two thirty-minute sessions per week. The last two weeks are a follow-up period to record the effects of treatment."

Robertson said the volunteers were divided into four groups, one of which only keeps records of its headaches but undergoes no treatment sessions. This is the control group, she said.

A second group learns to relax through muscle exercises, while a third group learns a type of self-hypnosis. The fourth group just discusses relaxation.

"The study isn't finished yet, so I can't offer any results," she said.

"I can say I've had reports of improvements, but no definite findings."

Robertson said she may have to conduct the study again because she feels she doesn't have enough volunteers, especially men. Her goal is 40 persons.

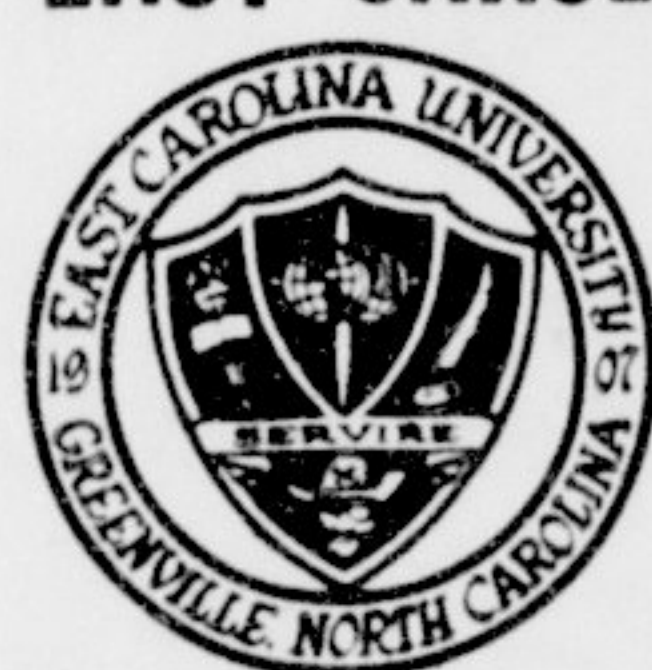

Anyone interested in participating in the study should contact Robertson through the ECU psychology department. Robertson particularly needs volunteers this summer and fall.

'Horse' doesn't make it

There are very few films whose premise is strong enough to support a sequel. As a rule the sequels are versions that incorporate the same characters and actions, involving a new set of circumstances and antagonists. The flaw in these sequels lies in their inability to sustain the symbolism of the original. The production falls to a mere vehicle for the reappearance of the characters the actors have created. "The Return of A Man Called Horse" is such a film.

"T.R.O.A.M.C.H.", centers its action around the return of Lord John Morgan (Richard Harris) who returns to find his adopted tribe the victim of treachery. To restore his faith in life and gain the good graces of various spirits, he submits himself to the "Sun Dance" torture of the earlier film. In this era of bigger and better, however, he is joined, not merely by other braves, but also by children. This symbolic piercing and shredding of the breasts was symbolic and affecting in the first movie, but seemed almost passe in this film. The actions of the work rushed towards the actual sacrifice. The Dance is a purging focal point in the original, while in "The Return" it seemed little more than an aggravating (to say the least) ritual.

The action of the film itself is trite, as Lord John teaches the tricks he learned in England to his foster tribe and leads a war party of women and children to regain their sacred land. The battle scenes are clumsy and poorly choreographed as is the premise that three women on foot, with tomahawks, could subdue an armed rider.

The movie climaxes almost casually as subterfuge and courage (and horrible shooting on the part of the enemy) almost win the day.

The best facet in this film is one that generally, when at its finest is an aspect that should go unnoticed. This facet is the photography. The graphics in this film are astonishingly good. There is a particular scene where the Lord Morgan has been fasting for four days in a steamed tent eating peyote. Upon leaving the tent there is a subtle shifting of light that incorporates the actuality of vision restored. This switching lasts only a moment but is indicative of quality of the visual effects.

The remainder of the film is less striking. The dialogue is unaffected and pretentious and Harris's acting requires little more than a gritting of the teeth and an occasional scream. One sees none of the effort of the earlier film; there is no movement to his performance. There is one dreadfully directorial blunder where he stoops to wash his hands after the climactic battle. When he rises, the village is rebuilt, and everyone is happy. It is poorly conceived and timed.

This film is sheer entertainment. There is neither the depth nor the innocence of the earlier film. It is an action film involving an established character. It contains some of the best photography of 1976. That, combined with an interesting score, merits it two and one-half stars.

OTHER FLICKS

Pitt Theatre-Joe Panther--Not available for review at this time.

Plaza Cinema One-Winnie the Pooh--In an animated version of the A. A. Milne stories for children one sees the arduous process of animation at its near finest. The voices are exactly right as Edward Everett Horton and Phil Harris combine in the audible aspect of this fantasy. This film is not "Bambi," or "Snow White," but it is very close. In this reviewer's recognized prejudice for animation, I give it three and one-half stars.

The Littlest Horse Thieves--Another in the new version of Disney films involving foolish chases and slapstick comedy. The studios have done little of quality since the death of Disney himself. One star because it is fairly short.

Plaza Cinema Two-The Love Truck--Not available for review at this time.

MSC 1977-78 season to include Montoya and Preservation Hall

ECU's Mendenhall Student Center announces the MSC Programming Series for 1977-78. Spanning a wide range of styles and artists, this Mendenhall Student Center sponsored series is designed to provide Eastern North Carolina audiences and ECU students, faculty and staff with some of the finest national musical talent available.

On Sunday, November 20 THE REGIMENTAL BAND OF HER MAJESTY'S GRENADIER GUARDS and the PIPES, DRUMS and DANCERS OF HER MAJESTY'S SCOTS GUARDS will perform. These two groups will offer an exceptional presentation honoring the 25th Anniversary of Queen Elizabeth's accession to the throne, including the ceremony of the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

The THAD JONES/MEL LEWIS ORCHESTRA will be in concert on Thursday, December

1. Trumpeter Thad Jones and drummer Mel Lewis have assembled one of the most highly acclaimed jazz orchestras around today.

On Monday, January 30, the world renowned flamenco guitarist, CARLOS MONTOYA, will perform. Montoya is the first flamenco guitarist to display his artistry in a solo concert. He has been hailed as one of the truly great masters of our time.

HEAVY ORGAN with VIRGIL FOX will be featured on Monday, February 6. Virgil Fox has been a kind of one-man organ renaissance, performing Bach's music with artistry and a theatrical flair. His engagement at ECU several years ago caused such excitement that nearly 2,000 tickets were sold in a single day. Fox travels with REVELATION LIGHTS, the world's first classical music light show.

After playing to a sold-out house last January, PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND is returning on February 14. This group of New Orleans Dixieland jazz artists had audience members marching in the aisles. Response to the group was so great that Mendenhall is bringing them back for 1977-1978.

These five MSC productions are sold on an individual ticket basis only. Tickets go on sale across the counter three weeks prior to each engagement or may be ordered by mail. For additional information call the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall at 757-6611.

The 1977-78 Season Brochure for ECU Student Union and Mendenhall Student Center activities will be available early this summer. If you would like to receive a copy, call Mendenhall Student Center Program Office at 757-6611, Ext. 213.

THAD JONES/MEL LEWIS orchestra, in concert Mendenhall next year. December 1, will be one of the features at

O'sville Rainbow band featured at Roxy's 'Greenville Evening'

"An Evening in Greenville" will be a program of completely original music featuring the O'sville Rainbow Band, McKeef, and Carole Semione. It will take place on Saturday evening, April 30th at 8:30 P.M. at the Roxy Music Arts and Crafts Center, 629 Albemarle Ave. in Greenville.

The O'sville Rainbow Band has played often at the Tree House Restaurant in Greenville and played first set for the Bat McGrath concert in March. McKeef has recently played at the Bottomline and the Attic in Greenville as well as several clubs in the Raleigh-Chapel Hill area. Carole Semione will be a special guest singing several of her original songs.

Tickets will be on sale at Rock and Soul on Fifth Street, The Record Bar at Pitt Plaza, and at the door. Admission will be one dollar for non-members and fifty cents for Roxy members. This is the first of a series of concerts featuring local musicians with an emphasis on original music. It promises to be a very stimulating and exciting evening at the Roxy - an evening not to be missed.

FAMED POET Samuel Hazo will deliver a reading Friday at 8 p.m. at Carol Belk Auditorium as part of the Spring Poetry Festival.

Writer recounts unusual Easter vacation

By JEFFREY BLUMBERG
Staff Writer

Ah, yes, spring vacation. For some of us, it's finally over. For most of us it will still be with us until the reality of summer is upon us. My vacation was spent at beautiful, peaceful Wrightsville Beach where everybody can go and lie around all day, where guys gaze at one and two-piece-clad figures bouncing merrily up and down the beach, and where girls try to "out-tan" the other girls who are in fact trying to out-tan them (it should be noted that "out-burn" is probably a better choice of words).

My week consisted of lying in the sun from sunrise to sunset, girl watching of course, wasting a fair amount of quarters on pinball machines, never once winning a free game, getting stood up by a beautiful buxom blonde, standing up that same blonde myself two days later, and finally getting myself assaulted by some dude who was twice the size of my beautiful but frail body.

Yes, until last Thursday night my vacation had been a very enjoyable occasion with only two episodes of real despair. That day was spent just like the other days, with even the additional surprise of finding myself browsing through the chapter in my geology book on shorelines and beaches (what else?).

Late on Thursday afternoon, having nothing to do, I decided to walk to the drugstore and buy the latest copy of my favorite magazine, Penthouse. I then hopped into one of the bars, purchased a Coke, which brought a strange look to the well-inebriated bartender, and sat myself amongst some chairs surrounding a fairly large table with a burnt out lightbulb hanging desperately from a cracked ceiling. I then began to read my magazine. I did this for about a half-hour with soft music and distant voices in the background mumbling to each other until two rather loud couples paraded up to the table and perched themselves on the unoccupied chairs. I tried to continue my reading, making it a point not to disturb their drinking and rather earsplitting conversation. I could not help but hear one of the girls blurt out that she hated drinking and smoking while she puffed and slurped her way through one cigarette and beer after another. This was beginning to get rather humorous. I stifled my laughter many times by forcing myself to cough. As the quartet began to get louder and louder with no crescendo in sight I began to lose my patience with them but did not speak up or lose my cool.

Finally, we were all interrupted by another couple who knew the two couples sitting at the table. This guy who does not even know me turns to me and yells, "who's that curly headed S.O.B. in the corner?" After I turned around to see if there was anybody behind me, I realized this rather obese character was inquiring about me. After regaining my composure, I retaliated with a verbal assault of my own which was something like, "You make me wish I had a lower I.Q. so I could enjoy your company" and started to walk out the door.

However, I could see by the look in his eyes that I was not to get through the door (under my own power anyway). I knew that I was in trouble then. He proceeded to yank me out of the bar by my nose and drag me behind the place. I began to wonder if he was really going to change my face or hit me with a barrage of jokes about my mother. I was desperately hoping for the latter.

The latter, however, was not the case. He pulled me by my collar and slapped me until either his hand got tired or he just ran out of face to slap. When I opened my eyes to see if the creature had gone, who should I see trying to comfort me but my beautiful buxom blonde. I must admit I did feel much better within a few seconds.

If there is a moral to this little anecdote it slips my mind presently. However, if you should ever be physically assaulted during vacation time, it pays off to meet a blonde or any one or two-piece figure who bounces merrily up and down the beach.

Make deals at the Flea Market Wednesday, Apr. 27 on Mall

Mendenhall Student Center is sponsoring the second FLEA MARKET of the year on April 27. The event will be on the Mall from 9:00 a.m. until 7:00 p.m. Last December, Wright Auditorium was the site of the FLEA MARKET and featured some beautiful pottery, hand-made jewelry, small plants and much more.

Among the biggest FLEA MARKET attractions last December was the sale of unclaimed articles held by the University's Lost and Found Department, located at the Information Desk in Mendenhall. This year there are books, gloves, scarves, toboggans, coats, sweaters and many more items.

Those who have lost any items are urged to come by the Information Desk and see if it is there. Any unclaimed articles will be sold at bargain prices in the FLEA MARKET.

The Spring FLEA MARKET will be all day, Wednesday, April 27, on the Mall. Plan to sell or stop by and browse. You may find just what you've been looking for at a price you can't refuse.

'Negrophobia' expert tells it all

By THOMAS SMITH
Staff Writer

In my college career, things have run fairly smoothly for the most part. People have been relatively friendly on the whole.

But still, once in a while, I run into someone who casts a shadow on my life.

Primetime for such intrusions is during room reservations. During this period, I sometimes run into a strange phenomena known as "negrophobia."

This is a strange human trait that primarily consists of powerful fear and convulsions when certain people come in contact with blacks. They have an irresistible urge to escape any such contact.

As an example, let's say we have a particular male student by the name of George. George wishes to reserve a room in a certain men's dorm, and of course, he wishes to get a first floor suite. Unthinkingly, he signs up for a room without checking to see who he will be sharing it with.

George blissfully rushes to see "his" new room. But when he knocks on the door and walks in, he receives a shock. There before him stands one of the most dreaded creatures in the world; a black man who will still be in that room in the fall.

Suddenly, the symptoms of negrophobia appear. Sweat beads form on his forehead. George has strange thoughts of what will happen to him if he rooms with a black person. He may catch sickle cell anemia. He may develop rhythm. He might have a powerful craving for collard greens, fried chicken, and watermelon. And horror of horrors, he may learn to love "chittlins."

George immediately tries to escape from the room with as little possible human contact as possible. He flashes the bigot's grin that looks like he has just eaten a fifty pound bag of ten year old bull manure. He quickly exits, declaring everything is "cool" as he leaves. He then makes an angry rush to change his room assignment, stopping in a nearby bathroom to wash off any black "germs" he might have picked up.

Quite obviously, negrophobia is a powerful disease. Its cause lies in the existence of ignorance and outright stupidity. There is no quick cure. Only time and enlightenment will rid society of it. But for those who are now its victims, they should know one thing. There's no place to run to and no place to hide. We have arrived, and we ain't goin' nowhere!

MSC Dinner Theatre

Musical nostalgia coming

Mendenhall Student Center announces the final Dinner Theatre production of this season, A SPRINGTIME FESTIVAL OF MUSICAL COMEDY NOSTALGIA. The Dinner Theatre runs from Thursday, May 5, through Sunday, May 8. Dinner for the first three performances is at 7:00 p.m. with curtain time at 8:00 p.m. The Sunday dinner begins at 5:00 p.m. with the performance at 6:00 p.m.

The Dinner Theatre is directed by Stuart Aronson and spotlights singers Claire Hurley, Treva Tankard and David Faber plus Paul Tardif on the piano and James L. Rees as the narrator.

This intimate, cabaret-style production will include some of the most memorable songs from musicals of the past 20 years which have become classics in American musical theatre.

The buffet served prior to the performance will include stuffed whole trout, shish kebabs, stuffed tomatoes, wild rice, Chinese vegetables, squash casserole, macedoine of fruits, and fresh baked bread plus tea and coffee.

Seating for the Dinner Theatre is limited to 100 places each performance. Tickets are available from the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center and must be purchased at least 24 hours in advance of the performance. Tickets for Saturday or Sunday must be purchased on or before Friday, May 6, by 4:00 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $5.00 for ECU students and $7.50 for the public. For tickets or additional information, contact the Central Ticket Office at 757-6611, Ext. 266.

Sideline Chat...

with STEVE WHEELER

Buc track teams tops

By STEVE WHEELER
Staff Writer

Basketball recruiting is hitting its big stages around the nation right now and there are more rumors going around about who is going where and who is not.

It was supposed to be that N.C. State had Wayne McKoy in the bag, but the 6-9 Long Island (N.Y.) Lutheran graduate opted for St. Johns. Albert King was supposed to be putting on the pale blue of Carolina, but he has not signed yet. He was rumored last week to have signed with UCLA, but he has not.

There's only one thing for sure, Gene Banks is going to Duke. He HAS signed.

On the home front, new coach Larry Gillman has had some impressive recruits here in Greenville. Recruits that can (or are supposed to) turn around a losing program.

There has been a two-time junior college all-America guard on campus; a juco all-America center; two all-Metro (D.C.) players, one 5-11 and one 6-5; and a high school all-America from Milwaukee.

Gillman does not consider his late start in the recruiting race a disadvantage.

"All those schools signing people on the first day or so after the signing date (April 13) are not being selective," he said. "We are being as selective as possible."

"Anybody we sign will be capable of playing a lot of basketball next year. We are making sure of that."

Gillman said he plans to have everybody signed by May 1. He said he would take the best three or four players he can get, regardless of size.

"I'm looking for strength and quickness in recruits," he added. "That's what wins basketball games. There was a deficiency of quickness on last year's team."

Just who the Pirates sign is rumor right now, but in another week everyone should know.

TRACK STRONG

Coach Bill Carson of the ECU men's track team and Coach Laurie Arrants of the Lady Pirates have built quite strong teams at East Carolina this season.

Carson's troops ran away (excuse the pun) with the Mountaineer Relays in Morgantown, W. Va. last weekend, winning eight of 17 events. The Pirates' Marvin Rankins and Robert Bailey took MVP honors, Rankins in the running events and Bailey in the field events.

Rankins turned an electronically timed 13.81 in the 120 yard high hurdles, which is one of the top times in the nation this year. Bailey won the discus with a throw of 159-10, his second best effort of the year.

Arrants' squad defeated North Carolina 115-113 in the South Carolina Lady Invitational. That marks the second time the Lady Pirates have beaten the Tar Heels in a big meet.

Kathy Smith took the only victory for the Lady Pirates in the 800 meter run, but it was the depth that won the meet. East Carolina had as many as three women to place in some events.

CHAMPIONSHIPS SLATED

The Pirates' men's team will compete in the Southern Conference Track Championships this weekend, looking for their second straight win. The ladies are idle this week.

The Southern Conference Golf Tournament started yesterday at Florence, S.C. and will run until tomorrow, while the Southern Conference Tennis Tournament will be held Thursday through Saturday at Davidson College.

Coach Monte Little's baseball team is 13-1, leading the league, with only a double-header at The Citadel on Saturday left. The Pirates could win the title outright by taking both games and could clinch a tie with a split with the Bulldogs. Western Carolina (11-2) is in second while The Citadel (10-2) is third. Coach Little is to be congratulated for a fine season, as are all the Pirates' spring sports teams.

ECU thinclads win Mountaineer Relay

By STEVE WHEELER
Staff Writer

East Carolina's track team literally ran away with the Mountaineer Relays in Morgantown, W. Va. Saturday, winning eight of the 17 events and picking up both most valuable performer awards.

Marvin Rankins and freshman Robert Bailey led the way by picking up MVP awards for running and field events, respectively.

Rankins won the 120 yard high hurdles in 13.81. That is one of the fastest electronic times in the nation this season for the event.

Bailey threw the discus 159-10 to win and placed third in the shot put with a heave of 47-4 to capture the field events honor.

Larry Austin showed the best form he has had in two years in capturing the 100 yard dash in 9.5. James Rankins finished third in the race in 9.7.

Herman McIntyre won the triple jump, getting back on the winning trail after losing in the Dogwood Relays last week. His jump of 50-2 was the second best effort ever on the West Virginia University track.

Lafan Forbes, who has been in a slump since the first outdoor meet of the year, came back Saturday to win the javelin with a toss of 192-6.

The Pirates won three relays in the meet: the 440 relay, 880 relay and mile relay.

In the 440 yard race, Calvin Alston, Otis Melvin, Larry Austin and Carter Suggs teamed up to set a new relays and track record of 40.55.

The same four runners ran to a new relays mark in the 880 with a time of 1:26.32.

In the mile relay, the Pirates fielded two teams and they finished one-two. Alston, Melvin, Charlie Moss and Jay Purdie made up the winning team as they went the distance in 3:12.86. The team of Ben Duckenfield, James Freeman, Terry Perry and Suggs took second with a 3:14.46 clocking. West Virginia, which was in second until Suggs got the baton, finished third in 3:14.83.

Duckenfield and Tony McKoy finished second and third, respectively, in the 440 yard intermediate hurdles. Duckenfield was timed in 54.34 while McKoy had a 54.52 to his credit.

The Pirates finished third in both the sprint medley and two mile relays with times of 3:31.27 and 7:54.11, respectively.

The Pirates will be competing in the Southern Conference Championships Friday and Saturday at Furman University in Greenville, N.C. They will be looking for their second consecutive title.

PIRATE SPRINTER JAMES FREEMAN was on one of two ECU teams competing in the mile relay Saturday.

Coach Stasavich honored recently

Former East Carolina University Athletic Director, the late Clarence Stasavich, has received two more honors, being inducted into the Sports Hall of Fame at Lenoir-Rhyne College and into the Helms Hall of Fame for Athletic Directors.

The induction into the Lenoir-Rhyne College Sports Hall of Fame was Friday night, April 15, the first induction of members to the newly created Hall of Fame. Three others were inducted with Stasavich as the initial members.

Stasavich coached at Lenoir-Rhyne for 16 years, winning nine Carolina Conference titles, with his 1960 team winning the NAIA national title. His overall record was 120-37-7 at Lenoir-Rhyne.

The Helms Hall of Fame induction will be Monday, June 20, at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev. Stasavich will be one of 15 athletic directors inducted this year.

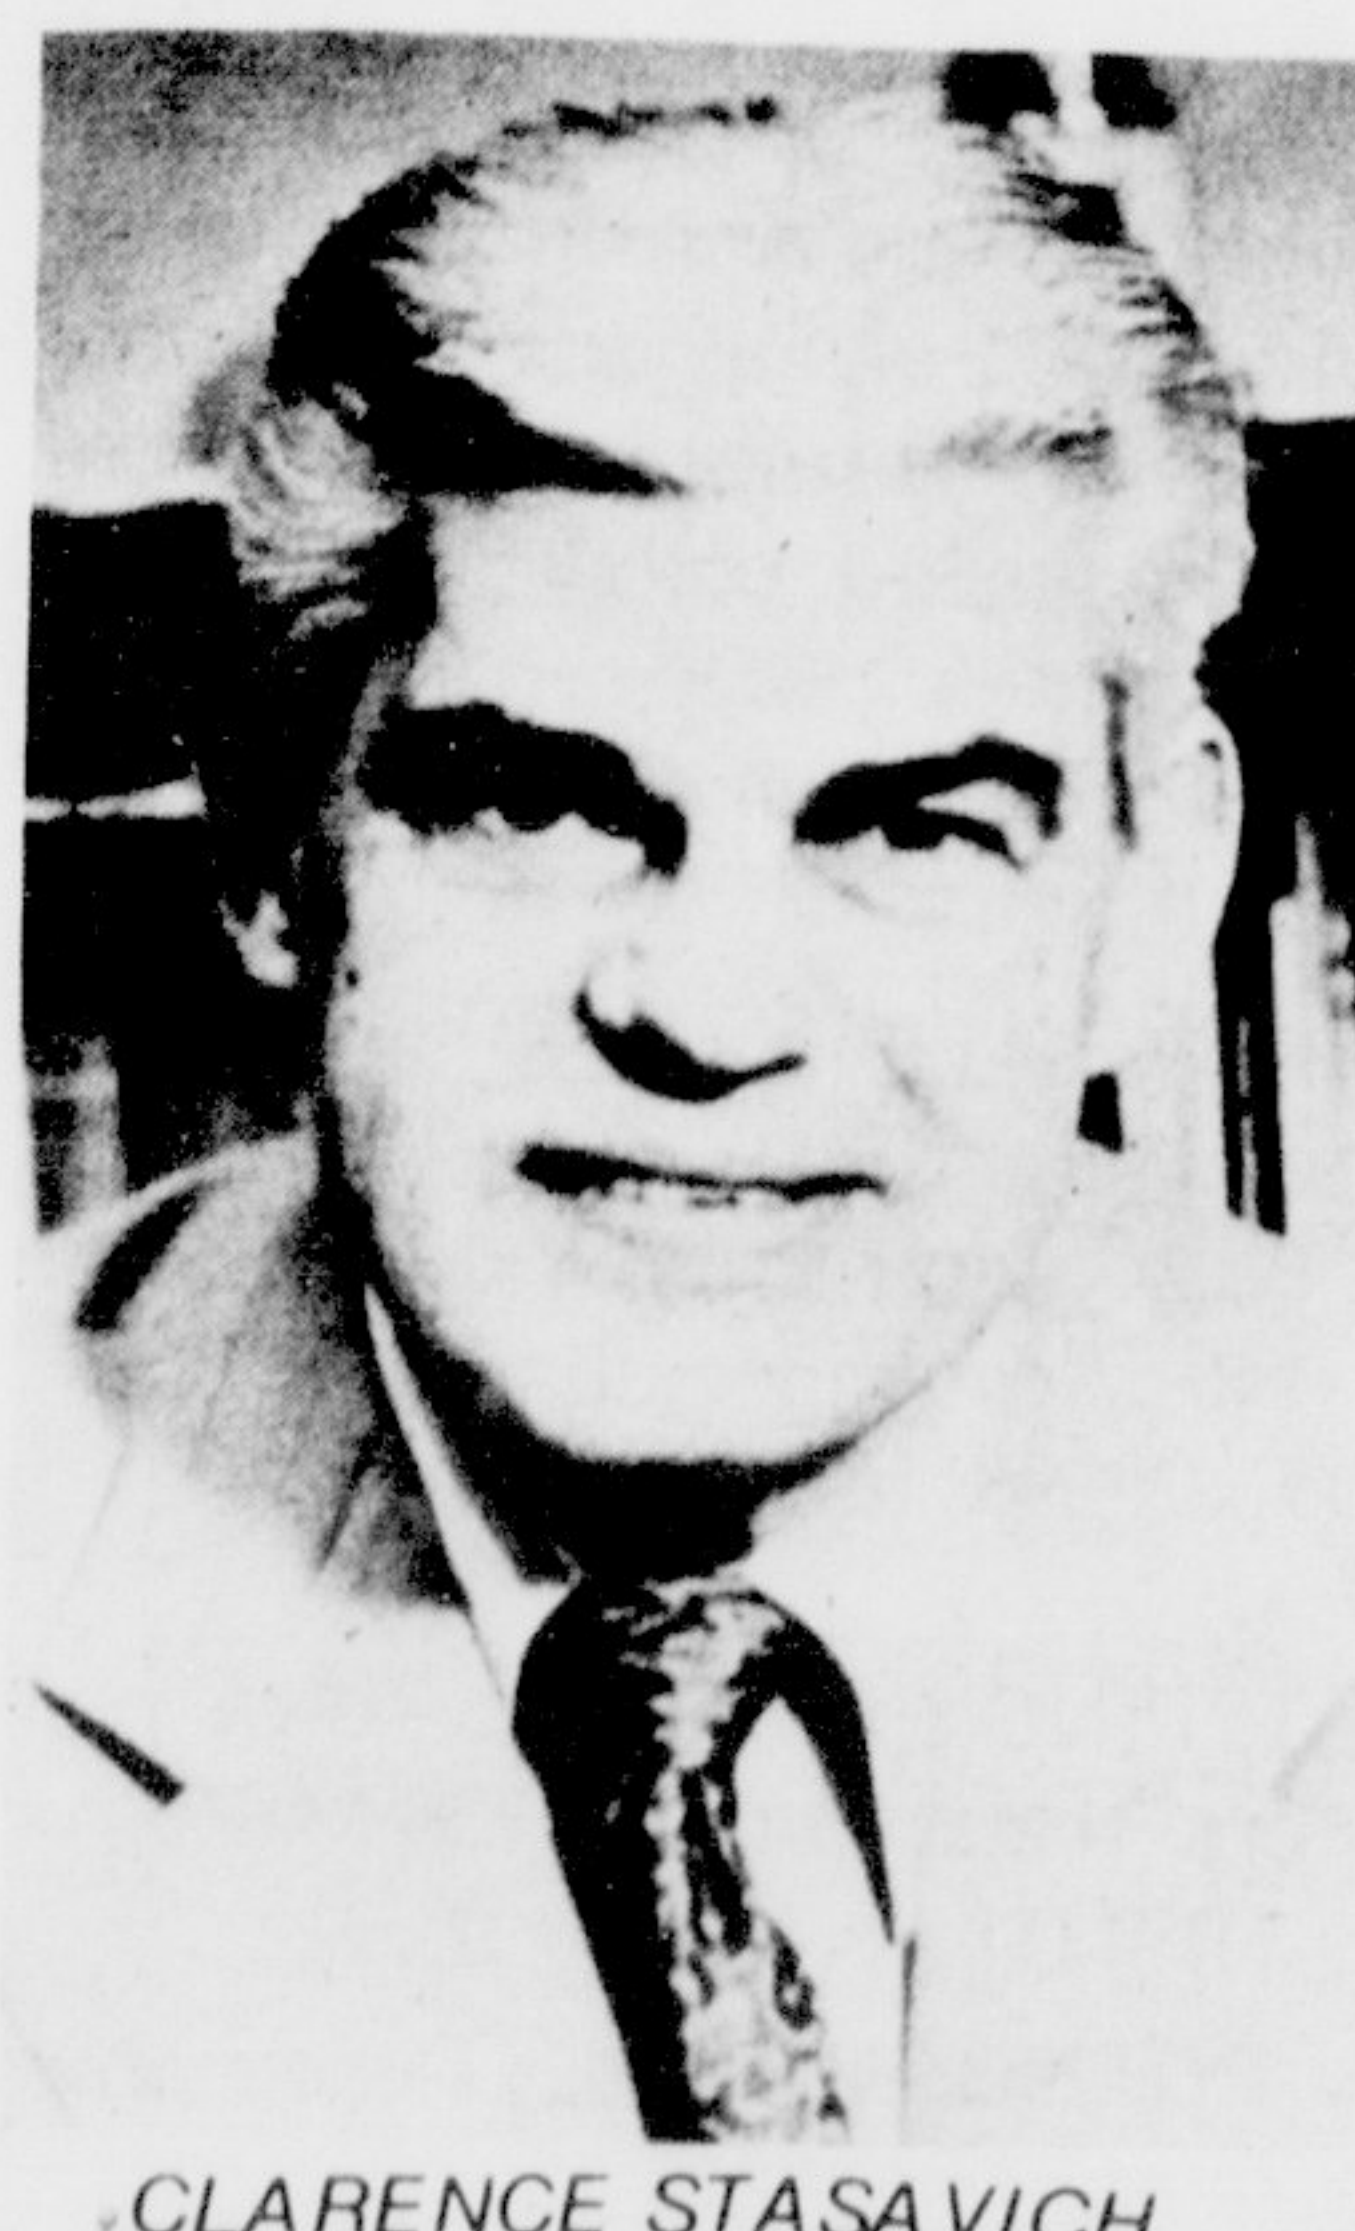

Stasavich is already a member of the Helms Hall of Fame for football coaches and the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.

While serving for 13 years as East Carolina's Athletic Director, Stasavich engineered the greatest growth period to date in Pirate athletics. He was instrumental in ECU's entrance into the Southern Conference and into the NCAA Division I major college status. He assisted in the development of Ficklen Stadium, Mingos Coliseum, Scales Field House and the Bunting Track and Field.

Stasavich was inducted into the East Carolina Sports Hall of Fame last fall, the only member to be inducted for 1976, the third year of induction.

Stasavich served East Carolina from 1962 until his death in the fall of 1975.

Men's soccer dropped to comply with Title IX

By THOMAS LIPE
Staff Writer

In a surprise move, East Carolina University dropped its men's soccer program and instituted a women's softball program instead. This action was taken to comply with a federal directive known as Title IX, which is intended to prevent sexual discrimination in intercollegiate athletics.

In response to the actions influenced by the Title IX directive, ECU Athletic Director, Bill Cain, stated that "we have to provide equal and effective intercollegiate programs for both men and women. It's the job of each institution to provide coaching facilities, meals, and travel expenses for each program. We have until the fall semester of 1978 to meet these guidelines."

To comply with this directive, an ad hoc committee on athletics has been meeting for several months with the Board of Trustees to provide student athletes at East Carolina the provisions directed for by Title IX for both men and women.

To meet these needs, an equal number of sports for both men and women were recommended to the Board of Trustees. This recommendation spelled out that these sports should be provided with equal travel expenses, scheduling, housing, scholarship funds, adequate coaching and equipment; everything to make them competitive on an intercollegiate athletic basis.

The committee felt that, with the equal number of sports, that adequate funds could better be provided for both sports.

It was suggested that there be eight sports for both men and women. To do this, men's soccer has been deleted and replaced with women's softball. Also dropped were women's golf (lack of interest), the rifle team, and women's junior varsity basketball.

With these changes, the following intercollegiate sports will now be offered: Men: Football, basketball, baseball, swimming, track (indoor and outdoor), wrestling, tennis, golf.

Women: Field hockey, volleyball, gymnastics, swimming, track (indoor and outdoor), tennis, softball, basketball.

Tennis team defeats Seahawks, 6-3

East Carolina's men's tennis team went on the road to Wilmington Friday to face the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington.

Once again, led by the play of Mitch Pergerson, the Pirates came away with a 6-3 victory.

Pergerson, the 1976 team MVP, won both singles and doubles to pace the Pirates.

Singles:
House (W) d. Durfee (E) 2-6, 7-5, 7-6.
Hostetler (E) d. Currie (W) 6-1, 6-2.
Love (E) d. Carroll (W) 7-5, 6-4.
Gemborys (W) d. Ratliffe (E) 6-2, 6-3.

Getsinger (E) d. Shackleford (W) 6-1, 7-5.

Pergerson (E) d. Gaulding (W) 6-2, 6-7, 6-3.

Doubles:
Durfee-Getsinger (E) d. House-Gemborys (W) 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.
Gaulding-Shackleford (W) d. Hostetler-Love 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.
Ratliffe-Pergerson (E) d. Currie-Carroll (W) 6-2, 6-1.

Lady Pirates recruit new talent

By JOHN EVANS
Staff Writer

This year's women's basketball team was riddled with injuries and had one of those seasons that coaches would just as soon forget.

And forget is what Miss Catherine Bolton seems to be set on doing as she goes out and recruits new talent for the Lady Pirates.

Bolton's recruiting has already reaped its benefits as she has signed one player who could be the best basketball player ever to play for the Lady Pirates.

Her name is Lydia Rountree and the 5'-6" high schooler has won virtually every award that could be given to a North Carolina high school paper. Miss Rountree, while playing for Elm City High School in Elm City, helped lead her team to the State Basketball championship, and in the process was named to the All-State team by the Raleigh News and Observer and the Greensboro Daily News.

She was also the Most Valuable Player in her league, as well as one of the selections on the State All-Tournament team.

Her selection to the All-State team marked the second time in her career she has received that honor. Her appearance on the all-Conference team was the third time she's been so honored.

In Rountree, Bolton will have a player who can help round out an already strong Pirate lineup, barring injuries. At ECU Rountree could play a guard or small forward position with ease and help take some of the burden off of ECU's all-time leading scorer, Debbie Freeman. And if Rosie Thompson returns and Gale Kerbaugh remains healthy, then Rountree will be in the privileged company of three All-State performers who have averaged 20 points a game during their college careers.

And Bolton feels that Rountree can fit right in as a starter for the Pirates in her very first season.

"Lydia has a chance to start right away," said Bolton, "and she surely should be ready to be a starter by the middle of the year if she doesn't start right away. It is pretty hard to come in as a freshman and start, but she is one of the most complete high school athletes I have ever seen. She is also a very fine sprinter and we will use her on the track team, also."

The fact that ECU has a women's track team was one of the factors that led to Rountree choosing East Carolina over several other schools who tried to woo her services. She was state champion in the 100 yard dash during her freshman year and the last two years she was second in the state behind Olympic Silver Medal winner Kathy McMillan. She also finished second in the 220 two years in a row and she is expected to take both events in the State Track Meet this year. In 1975, she made it to the national finals of the Junior Olympics.

"Lydia is a super athlete," added Bolton. "She is an outstanding sprinter, a super softball player and a good basketball player. She is quick and she has outstanding hands. I am very happy that she has chosen to come to East Carolina."

Rountree isn't the only top-notch high school recruit that Bolton has signed to a Grant-In-Aid. Also in the fold is Marcia Girvan, a 6-1 center from Woodbridge, Virginia.

While Rountree brings a strong ballhandler and outside shooter to the ECU club, Girvan will bring the elusive six-footer that Bolton has long been looking for. Her addition will make the Pirates stronger inside, where they already have the 5-10 Thompson and 5-11 Linda McClellan, who was the ECU center this past season.

Girvan played on the state runners-up in high school and led her team in scoring and rebounding. In her junior year her school, Garfield, won the state championship and also captured State and Regional titles. Girvan was honored with all-district and all-tournament honors in her state during her senior year.

In addition to her abilities on the basketball court, Girvan should also be an asset to the Lady Pirate track program as a high jumper.

"Both girls are good enough to play a lot their very first year," said Bolton, "and they will also help us in track. This gives us two very fine athletes with which to work with in future years. They should be an asset to our program."

Golfers look good in final match

The East Carolina University golf team will be making its final appearance in the Southern Conference golf championships April 25-27, at the Country Club of South Carolina in Florence. The Pirates have not won a golf title since 1972, that being one of three league titles for East Carolina. With ECU leaving the Southern this year, this is the last chance to regain the title. "Our play has been so inconsistent this year that our finish in the championship is really a big question mark," said coach Mac McLendon. "If we play near our potential we certainly will be in the thick of things."

Defending champion Furman University and newcomer Marshall University are tabbed by McLendon as the favorites.

Seven Pirates will represent East Carolina over the 7,000 yard, par 72 course. They are: Keith Hiller, Mike Buckmaster, David Brogan, Donnie Owens, Phil Bell, Frank Acker, and John Abraham.

Brogan leads the team in stroke average with a 76.3 mark. He's followed by Hiller at 77.3, Acker at 78.8 and Buckmaster at 79.1. As a team, the Pirates average 79.2 per round.

As of Monday, the Pirates placed third in the overall team standings with a 383. Marshall had the lead with 372, followed by Furman with 373. Following ECU are Appalachian, WCU, Citadel, VMI, Davidson, and W & M.

Bobby Bumgardner of Furman was the Monday's individual leader with a 70. There was a four-way tie for second at 72.

Pirate Mike Buckmaster scored a 73 for the day, while fellow Buc Frank Acker held down a 75.

With seven Pirates breaking 80, coach Mac McLendon feels his team played "their best round of golf all year."

Women win Invitational

East Carolina's women got back on the winning track Saturday by defeating UNC in the South Carolina Women's Track Invitational.

The Lady Pirates won only one event but managed to scrape together 115 points to win the meet.

ECU's sole victory came in the 800 meter event. Kathy Smith took the honor, winning with a time of 2:22.5. Two other Pirates placed in the competition, with Barbara Brantley taking second and Joy Forbes placing fourth.

Debbie Freeman was second in the javelin toss with a throw of 103 1/2. Debbie Knight took third with a 98.0 throw.

In the discus event, Linda McLellan was second with 116.2. Freeman was third at 115 1/2.

Kathy Addison took second in the 1500 meter event with a time of 5:10.07. Linda Christian was third with a time of 5:30.0.

Other Pirates placing in the invitational were: Freeman, who was third in the shot; Cassy Jones, third in the 400 meter; Janette Woodfield, third in the 200 meter; and Carolyn Moss, sixth in the 100 meter.

Pirate coach Laurie Arrants felt her team performed extremely well in the meet, especially despite adverse weather conditions.

Pirates take two from Indians

By JEFF BROOKS
Assistant Sports Editor

East Carolina's high-flying baseball team got back into the win column over the weekend with a doubleheader sweep over William and Mary. Earlier the Pirates had lost to Pembroke State Wednesday, and dropped a heartbreaker Thursday to UNC-Wilmington.

Pembroke State put together nine runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Pirates 12-8 at Pembroke on Wednesday. Coming back home, the Pirates hosted the Seahawks of UNC-W in a Thursday afternoon game at Harrington field.

Bobby Supple homered in the ninth inning to tie the game for the courageous Pirates, before UNC-W managed to push across a run in the tenth to take the game from ECU 4-3.

The Bucs got back on track Saturday when they hosted the Indians of William and Mary in a two-night doubleheader. Mickey Britt pitched brilliantly in the opener as the Pirates won 6-1. Eddie Gates and Raymie Styons led the hitting attack for the Pirates in helping Britt to his eighth victory of the year against no losses. Gates went two for three including a first inning homer, while Styons went two for two.

Pete Conaty ran his record to 7-2 as the Pirates took the nightcap 5-3. The game was interrupted by a power failure in the third inning, but when the lights came back on, the Pirates took command. Sonny Wooten had two hits for the Bucs, driving in two runs while Scott Seydon went two for three and drove in the winning run.
