Lester Nail Officially Wins SGA Election

By PAUL COLLINS
News Editor

The SGA Review Board decided Monday to turn down Russell Overman's request for a run-off in the presidential race, making Lester Nail the official winner.

"The Review Board decided that the election committee carried out the election in the manner described in the rules," said Attorney General Clint Barnes.

The seven-member board decided that although some rules were technically violated, there was not sufficient reason to overturn the result.

Barnes indicated that the nature of the charges would have forced the board to overturn the entire election rather than any single race.

In a related development, both candidates for treasurer, Kirk Little and Angela Pepe, dropped their charges concerning the election.

Overman, who lost to Nail by slightly more than four percent of the vote, cited six violations of election rules.

Among other things, Overman charged that several polls opened late, that several dorms had to share a single poll and that the poll at Tyler Dorm ran out of ballots.

According to Barnes, "Nothing was really the fault of the elections committee."

Overman indicated that he accepted the decision and would not appeal it. "The Review Board's decision was that the elections were run fairly and that there were no irregularities. I am satisfied with their decision. I will support Lester in his endeavors next year."

Barnes felt that overturning the election would have set a dangerous precedent. I don't think the reasons were sufficient.

The SGA Legislature voted Monday to appropriate $3,500 to the ECU Playhouse and $2,000 to a program entitled "A Day For Juniors." President Charlie Sherrod has indicated his opposition to both the bills.

Geology Group Locates Phosphate Deposit

By PAUL WHITE
Staff Writer

A select group of East Carolina geology and oceanography students, led by Dr. Stanley Riggs, have discovered large phosphate deposits off the North Carolina coast.

The group has also achieved the first successful off-shore drilling for phosphate in the state.

The largest phosphate deposits were discovered in Onslow Bay approximately 40 to 60 miles off Cape Fear, but findings indicate the possibility of large deposits extending down the continental shelf from North Carolina to Florida.

Riggs and his team cruised twice last year and plan to shove off again this May. The cruises are sponsored by a grant from the National Science Foundation for a two-fold purpose: to study how phosphate deposits are formed and to test Dr. Riggs's model for phosphate-ogenesis.

The model is furnished with the conditions necessary for the formation of phosphate, and it has proven to be a tremendous asset in locating deposits.

Though there are many theories, there is no decisive evidence determining how phosphate deposits are formed. There has been no easy way to locate deposits either. Phosphate is a major ingredient in fertilizer, and without it nothing can live or grow, according to Riggs.

The model is significant in that it may help to detect phosphate in countries where it is sorely needed. Off-shore phosphate mining is currently illegal in the United States.

Riggs says, "It's a model to help people find phosphate resources and to help people help to feed themselves."

Riggs has done much to help under-developed countries tap this essential resource. He has worked with the United Nations for governments in Africa, South America, Central America, and more recently in Australia, Angola, and Mexico. Previously, he worked for International Minerals and Chemicals, Inc., which is the largest phosphate company in the world.

Along with Dr. Orrin Pilkey of Duke, he discovered phosphate in surface sands off the Carolina coast in the mid '60's. They attempted drillings but were unsuccessful.

Riggs and his team first set out last May aboard Duke's 112 feet "R.V. (Research Vessel) Eastward." They made the second voyage on the 170 feet "R.V. Endeavor," which was contracted through the University of Rhode Island. They cruised five to sixty-five miles off-shore in Onslow Bay, between Morehead City and Wilmington, in depths of 55-120 feet.

To test for phosphate samples, the team uses a vibracoring apparatus that protrudes 30 feet into the ocean's floor. They also use a seismic system, consisting of a uniboom (a device that sends out varying sound beams through layers of sedimentary rock), a hydrophone (an underwater microphone that receives sound waves), and a seismic recorder which records information on a graph.

Riggs says of the excursion, "It is a neat opportunity for ECU students to have played a major role in the research. They have received invaluable job experience and are an integral part of the success."

The project has helped ECU gain more federal research grants. A consortium between the UNC school system and Duke University is presently creating an oceanographic program, of which E.C.U. will be a major participant. A research vessel with modern scientific equipment is now being constructed.

Doug Ellington, an ECU graduate student of the Department of Geology participated on the first two trips at sea. He reflects on his experiences:

"It's not easy. There's a lot of work to be done night and day. You encounter bad weather and bad seas with waves up to 10 feet out there. You feel pretty good when you see port coming up on the last day. But on the whole it was fun and provided much useful experience."

Other ECU students who have participated on excursions are Pat Mallette, Don Lewis, David Reid, Doug Roberts, Bonnie Crowson, Ernie Holzworth, and Kelly Scarborough. A future cruise is set for May of this year on the "R.V. Columbus Islen," which belongs to the University of Miami.

Jaycees Indicted For Role In 'Jamscam'

ASHEBORO (UPI) J. Harold Herring, Maurice Wilson and Johnny Lee Fletcher were indicted Monday in connection with a SBI investigation of the "Jamscam" scandal, the alleged misuse of charity funds raised through jelly sales for paying office expenses and national dues for non-existent members.

Arrest warrants were drawn Monday for Fletcher and Herring.

New Pact To Avert Long Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) The United Mine Workers union and soft coal industry reached a tentative contract settlement today to avert a lengthy strike, but miners still plan a walkout for three to five days until the pact is ratified.

Miners in the coal fields adopted a "wait and see" attitude about terms of the accord, but most said they were pleased a tentative settlement had been reached.

Agreement on the three-year contract came at about 7 a.m. EST after five hours of early-morning bargaining.

The current contract expires at 12:01 a.m. EST Friday and UMW President Sam Church, Jr. said his 160,000 miners will adhere to the "no contract, no work" tradition until rank-and-file ratification. That process is expected to take nine days.

Bargaining occurred in the same hotel suite where talks broke off last week, dashing hopes of settling without a strike for the first time since 1964.

"We worked all night and we worked very hard," Church told reporters in announcing the breakthrough with B.R. "Bobby" Brown, chief industry negotiator, at his side.

He predicted ratification of the settlement.

The union scheduled a meeting of its bargaining council for 10 a.m. Tuesday to consider it. The bargaining council must approve the terms before they are submitted to the rank and file.

Wilson already is free on bond stemming from the earlier charges.

Wilson is charged in all eight indictments of conspiring to misapply and actually misapplying the dollars, while four of the indictments name Herring and the remaining four list Fletcher.

With Monday's indictments, authorities now claim various Jaycees officers misapplied a total of $239,500.

The new indictments come in addition to the nine from Oct. 20 that Wilson already faces. Besides Wilson, Herring and Fletcher, the state also has accused former U.S. Jaycees President Robert "Archie" Ruston of Gray, Ga., and former Charlotte Jaycees President Thomas Anthony Alsop in the scandal.

Monday's four indictments against Wilson state that he conspired with Herring between September 1978 and April 1979 to misapply $69,158. An estimated $42,379 of that amount was taken from the charity fund to pay operating expenses, while the rest was sent to national headquarters to pay fees and dues for bogus Jaycees chapters, the indictments said.

The four indictments against Wilson and Fletcher claim that, between December 1977 and May 1978, they diverted $11,470 from the Jaycees operating fund to pay for bogus chapters and misused $5,100 from the charity to pay Jaycees operating expenses.

Half the indictments cited dates in 1977-78, when Fletcher was president of the North Carolina Jaycees and Wilson was executive vice president.

The other alleged crimes occurred in 1978-79, while Wilson was executive vice president of the state Jaycees and Herring was president and a director of the North Carolina Jaycees Foundation Inc. Wilson followed Herring as president.

Herring was a strong candidate for national Jaycees president when the scandal broke. He then withdrew from the race for national president.

According to the new indictments, Wilson testified before the Randolph grand jury Monday.

In indictments Oct. 20, Wilson was accused on nine counts of embezzling and misapplying $66,449 while state Jaycees president. Other indictments returned March 2 charged that Ruston and Wilson used $25,500 in Jaycees funds during an 18-day span in 1978 to pay entertainment, travel and lodging expenses of about 60 people on a trip from Charlotte to Las Vegas.

Student Union Coffeehouse Chairperson Cammie Harris is shown above accepting certificates of merit for her committee at this year's Installation Banquet held Friday night in Mendenhall Student Center. "Best Committee" honors went to the Films Committee; Major Attractions Chairperson Charles Sune won the Best Chairperson Award, while former Student Union President Karen McLawhorn took the annual Gary Massie Award. New president Ronald Maxwell and Student Center Director Rudolph Alexander look on.

Legal Action Halted By Angry Students

By PAUL COLLINS
News Editor

A group of work study students attempting to take legal action against the university has ended its efforts.

"You can chalk it up to good old ECU student apathy," said Nancy League, a senior who was coordinating the group's efforts.

On March 1 the work study program was terminated for the remainder of the school year at ECU because funds for the program had been exhausted.

League said the group met March 18 to decide on a course of action but that only 10 students showed up.

"We felt we needed the support of at least 50 students to continue our efforts," she added.

The group had planned to ask work study students to contribute $5 toward retaining a lawyer, but only $50 of the necessary $200 was raised.

"We're not considering anything further at this time," League said. "We had to have that student support."

"We felt it was a clear breach of contract," League also commented that she thought the administration may have been counting on student apathy.

If the group had raised the necessary funds, it planned to retain the services of Howard, Vincent and Duffus, a Greenville law firm.

According to one of the firm's attorneys, Richard Poole, the students could have pursued the case either through a class-action suit or by way of an injunction preventing the university from stopping the program.

"It looked like a classic case for a class-action suit," Poole said. "We had an identifiable group against which action was taken." Poole said that at least 25 people would have been needed to initiate such a case and that 100 would have been a more ideal number.

"But we never entered the case," he continued. "We were not retained by anyone."

He added, "In a cursory glance over the contract it seemed that some contract rights may have been breached."

Work study students are given a letter of introduction to their prospective employers in addition to their financial aid packages. According to Financial Aid Director Robert Boudreaux this does not constitute a contract.

"We enter into a good faith agreement with students," he said.

Boudreaux said of the group and its intended law suit, "I'm disappointed that they felt they had to take that route instead of talking to me."

He continued by saying that his office had placed 260 of 651 work study students in new jobs through the Self Help program. He said that loans were available to other work study students.

Financial aid packages for the upcoming year can be arranged so that students will not be penalized at all by accepting such loans, Boudreaux said.

He added that between 20 and 25 students were seeking loans each day.

Lobbyist Seeks Perfection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the spring of 1979, Paula Clifton sported a gold necklace that bore the legend "perfect."

"I'm not perfect yet," the blond, beautiful woman told guests at a party. "But I soon hope to be. I'm having silicone implants...."

Since then, a more robust Paula married lobbyist Hank Parkinson, became a registered lobbyist herself and posed in the buff for a Playboy magazine spread on Washington's working women.

Lately, she's been sending shudders through Congress by attempting to sell stories about her special lobbying efforts.

"There has been a lot of talk," said a congressional aide. "Everyone is waiting anxiously."

The gossip and rumors began this month when it was disclosed Mrs. Parkinson, 30, shared a vacation house in Florida last year with eight men, including Reps. Thomas Evans, R-Del., Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., and Dan Quayle, R-Ind.

Railsback and Quayle, now a senator, have denied any misdeed with her.

"I deeply regret having any association with her," Evans said in a statement. "It is clear to me that Mrs.

Parkinson is a troubled person and I resent and regret that this woman is using my name in an effort to gain publicity for a possible book."

Spokesmen for Playboy and Penthouse magazines say Mrs. Parkinson offered her stories of Washington intrigue, but they rejected them.

An insider says Playboy questioned her credibility and was turned off by talk that she secretly videotaped some encounters.

Mrs. Parkinson, who separated from her husband in January, has been unavailable for comment. Friends said she has been staying with her parents in Dallas, but has made frequent trips back to Washington.

Hank Parkinson, 49, married Paula Clifton on March 19, 1980. It was his second marriage and her third. The daughter of an Air Force officer, she earlier married her high school sweetheart and later a Kansas doctor.

Parkinson, who had been a lobbyist for more than 10 years, got out of the business because of publicity about his estranged wife.

"I don't know whether the stories I've heard about her are true, but the mountain of rumors was too much for me to take," said Parkinson. "I had no idea. I guess the husband is always the last to find out."

Parkinson said she assisted him as a lobbyist by "primarily being a hostess at the nearly weekly parties we held."

On Capitol Hill, the Justice Department has begun examining whether votes have been swapped for sexual or other favors.

The action was prompted by her week in Florida with Evans and the two other congressmen. All voted against legislation she opposed a bill designed to increase government's role in insuring farmer's crops.

It passed on a vote of 235-150 and the three congressmen said their votes were not prompted by Mrs. Parkinson.

Blacks Protest Vigilante Arrests

ATLANTA (UPI) — Chanting blacks protested the arrests of four armed vigilantes patrolling a city housing project, but other project residents say they fear publicity about the patrols will attract rather than frighten the city's child slayer.

The vigilante patrol was started last Friday at the city's largest public housing project over strong objections of officials who insist the investigation into the deaths of 20 black children and the disappearance of two others be left to law enforcement officials.

Three of the four vigilantes arrested during the weekend — Chumirenga Jenga, Gene Ferguson and Jerome Gibbs — were to appear in court today for arraignment on weapons violations.

The fourth, Modido Kadalie, was being held in city jail on $2,900 bond after being picked up Sunday on charges of obstructing justice, disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon.

About 50 residents of the Techwood Homes housing project went to the police headquarters Sunday night to protest the arrests.

They chanted "Free Modido" and crowded into the lobby of the building, but dispersed and returned to the project at the urging of some members of the group.

Marion Green, one of the organizers of the patrol, said Sunday the group, which carries baseball bats, had grown from 25 to 44 people since it began Friday. "We're gaining support," she added.

But some residents of Techwood Homes complained the tenants association, which is sponsoring the patrol, does not represent the feelings of most residents at the complex. They said they feared publicity surrounding the patrols may draw the killer to the complex.

No child from Techwood Homes has been involved in the string of slayings and disappearances that began 19 months ago.

"I don't think they're going to do anything but cause problems in the community," said Loretta Harris, a mother at Techwood Homes. "They're just drawing attention."

"They don't need those bats," said another mother, Cynthia Howell. "They're just gonna get somebody hurt. They're gonna get a child killed."

Jenga, an organizer, and Ferguson were arrested by police seconds after walking out of a community center to begin their patrols Friday. They were charged with carrying a firearm at a public gathering and later released.

Gibbs was arrested Saturday, moments after beginning his patrol. He was wearing a pistol strapped in a holster.

"We'll carry one gun a day," Jenga said. "If they arrest people every day, then we'll all go to jail. The police have put themselves on the side of the child killer at this point. While they are here arresting us, the child killer is roaming the city."

"We told them what would happen before they started," said Deputy Police Chief Eldrin Bell, adding that Jenga and Kadalie do not live in Techwood Homes. "We can't allow that type of thing to happen in the community."

"I think the police are perfectly capable of patrolling the neighborhood and giving it the kind of security it needs."

Paving Execs Convicted

RALEIGH (UPI) — Six paving-company executives will go to federal prison for their roles in rigging bids on state highway projects.

Federal Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. sentenced the men Monday after reviewing plea-bargaining arrangements between them and U.S. attorney James Blackburn.

The executives pleaded guilty March 9 submitting rigged bids to win highway contracts from the state.

The bid-rigging occurred when paving-company officials met the day before bids were to be let on paving projects and decided which company would make the lowest bid. The scheme insured that each company would receive its share of state highway contracts and caused the costs of those contracts to be artificially inflated.

SGA Election Results Upheld

"I don't think that kind of thing needs to be going on, though."

As a result, Barnes said, the board would recommend to the SGA Legislature that it make changes in the elections rules.

Barnes said the charges in the treasurer's race had been dropped after he and Dean Jim Mallory had a discussion with both candidates.

"I talked to them both (Pepe and Little), and they both decided to drop their charges."

Both candidates declined to reveal their charges publicly.

"In reference to the charges, I'm glad they've been cleared up," Pepe said. "I'm looking forward to a clean race."

Little indicated that he too was glad to see the charges dropped.

As things stand now, a run-off election will be held on April 1 for the offices of treasurer and vice president.

Hunger Walk

ECU Support Essential To Success

In Greenville, North Carolina, surrounded by rich farmland, the problems of starvation seem far away and a little unreal. However, famine is a way of life, not only for millions of people in this country, but even more so for many nations around the world.

In view of the seriousness of the problems of hunger and its profound impact on many underdeveloped countries, Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, Chancellor of East Carolina University, is encouraging the entire campus community to participate in the tenth annual "Walk for Humanity," which is scheduled to be held on April 11, 1981. The program is sponsored by the East Carolina University Hunger Coalition, and the campus ministry.

According to Sister Happy of the campus ministry, "We're hoping to have three to five hundred people walk." About three hundred individuals have already signed up to participate in the 20 kilometer, or 12½ mile program. Sister Happy said that the participants will be sponsored by the kilometer.

The funds raised by the walk will be divided in half, with one part being allocated to the campus minister's emergency fund, or Kitchen Fund, which goes to help Pitt County residents who suffer from some sort of emergency, such as a house fire, and also supports the underprivileged. The second portion of the funds will be contributed to an international cause, Oxfam-America. This organization was the first to get into Cambodia and help its people be self-sufficient after their devastating war. This year, the allocation will go to the Horn of Africa project.

In a news release for Monday, March 16, Dr. Brewer said, "I urge all members of East Carolina University, and the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County, to support the 'Walk for Humanity' as an expression of the social consciousness for which this community is so well known." Mrs. Brewer, the Chancellor's wife, is honorary co-chairperson for the walk, and will be participating. Maybe even Dr. Brewer will put on his tennis shoes and participate in what he calls "this outstanding humanitarian program."

Everyone interested in participating in the "Walk for Humanity" can obtain all the necessary information, and also sign-up, at the ECU campus ministry, or telephone at 752-4216.

We are fortunate to live in a country where the problems of hunger do not directly touch the lives of the majority of individuals. The "Walk for Humanity" is an opportunity for us to help millions of people throughout the world to whom life is a devastating reality of starvation and famine. Perhaps we can help in a modest yet significant way those in desperate straits move towards a positive hope for a better future. Our support can make a difference.

Presidential Election Final

Well, congratulations are finally in order to our new Student Government Association President: Lester Nail. But at the same time, congratulations should also be extended to the other presidential aspirants; Russell Overman, Ben Singleton and Guy Dixon.

The final decision came Monday from the seven-member Review Board of the SGA. The Review Board usually hears matters of appeal from the University Honor Board, but in matters of elections has original jurisdiction of appeals. The Review Board had investigated charges by Overman that certain polls had not opened at the designated time and that another poll had run out of ballots before closing.

Had the Board decided in favor of Overman, all election results would have been void and a new election mandated.

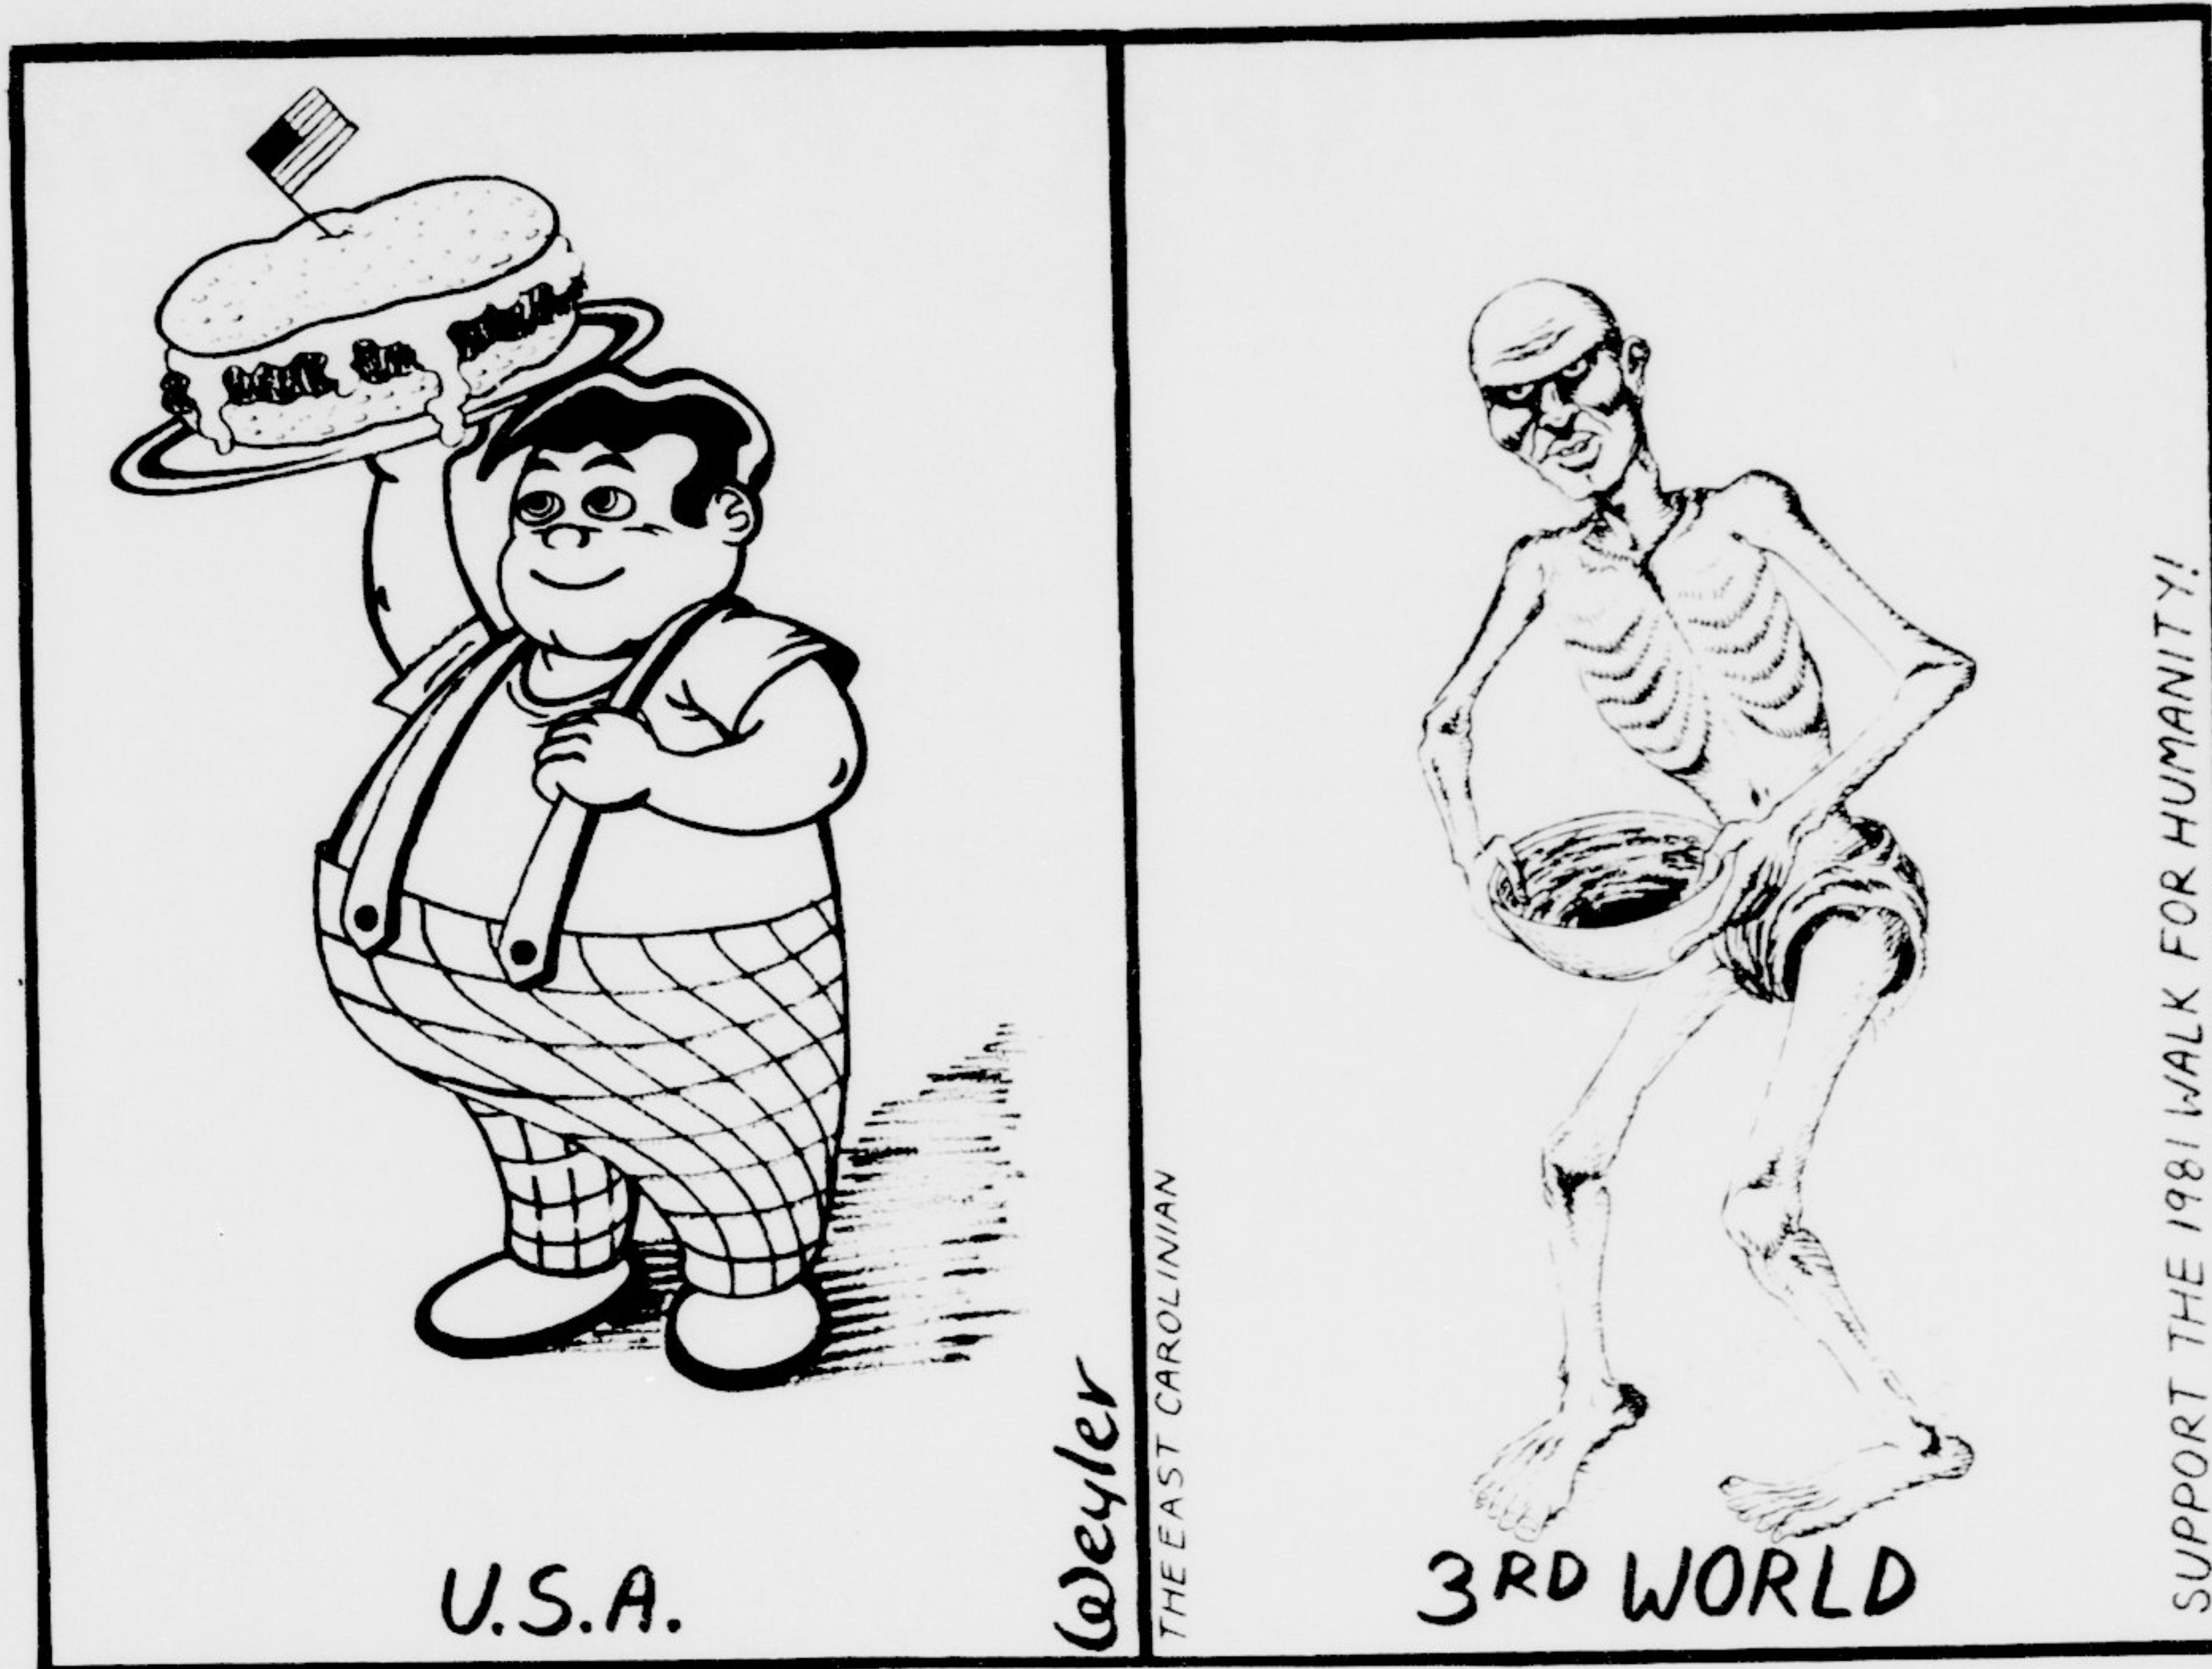

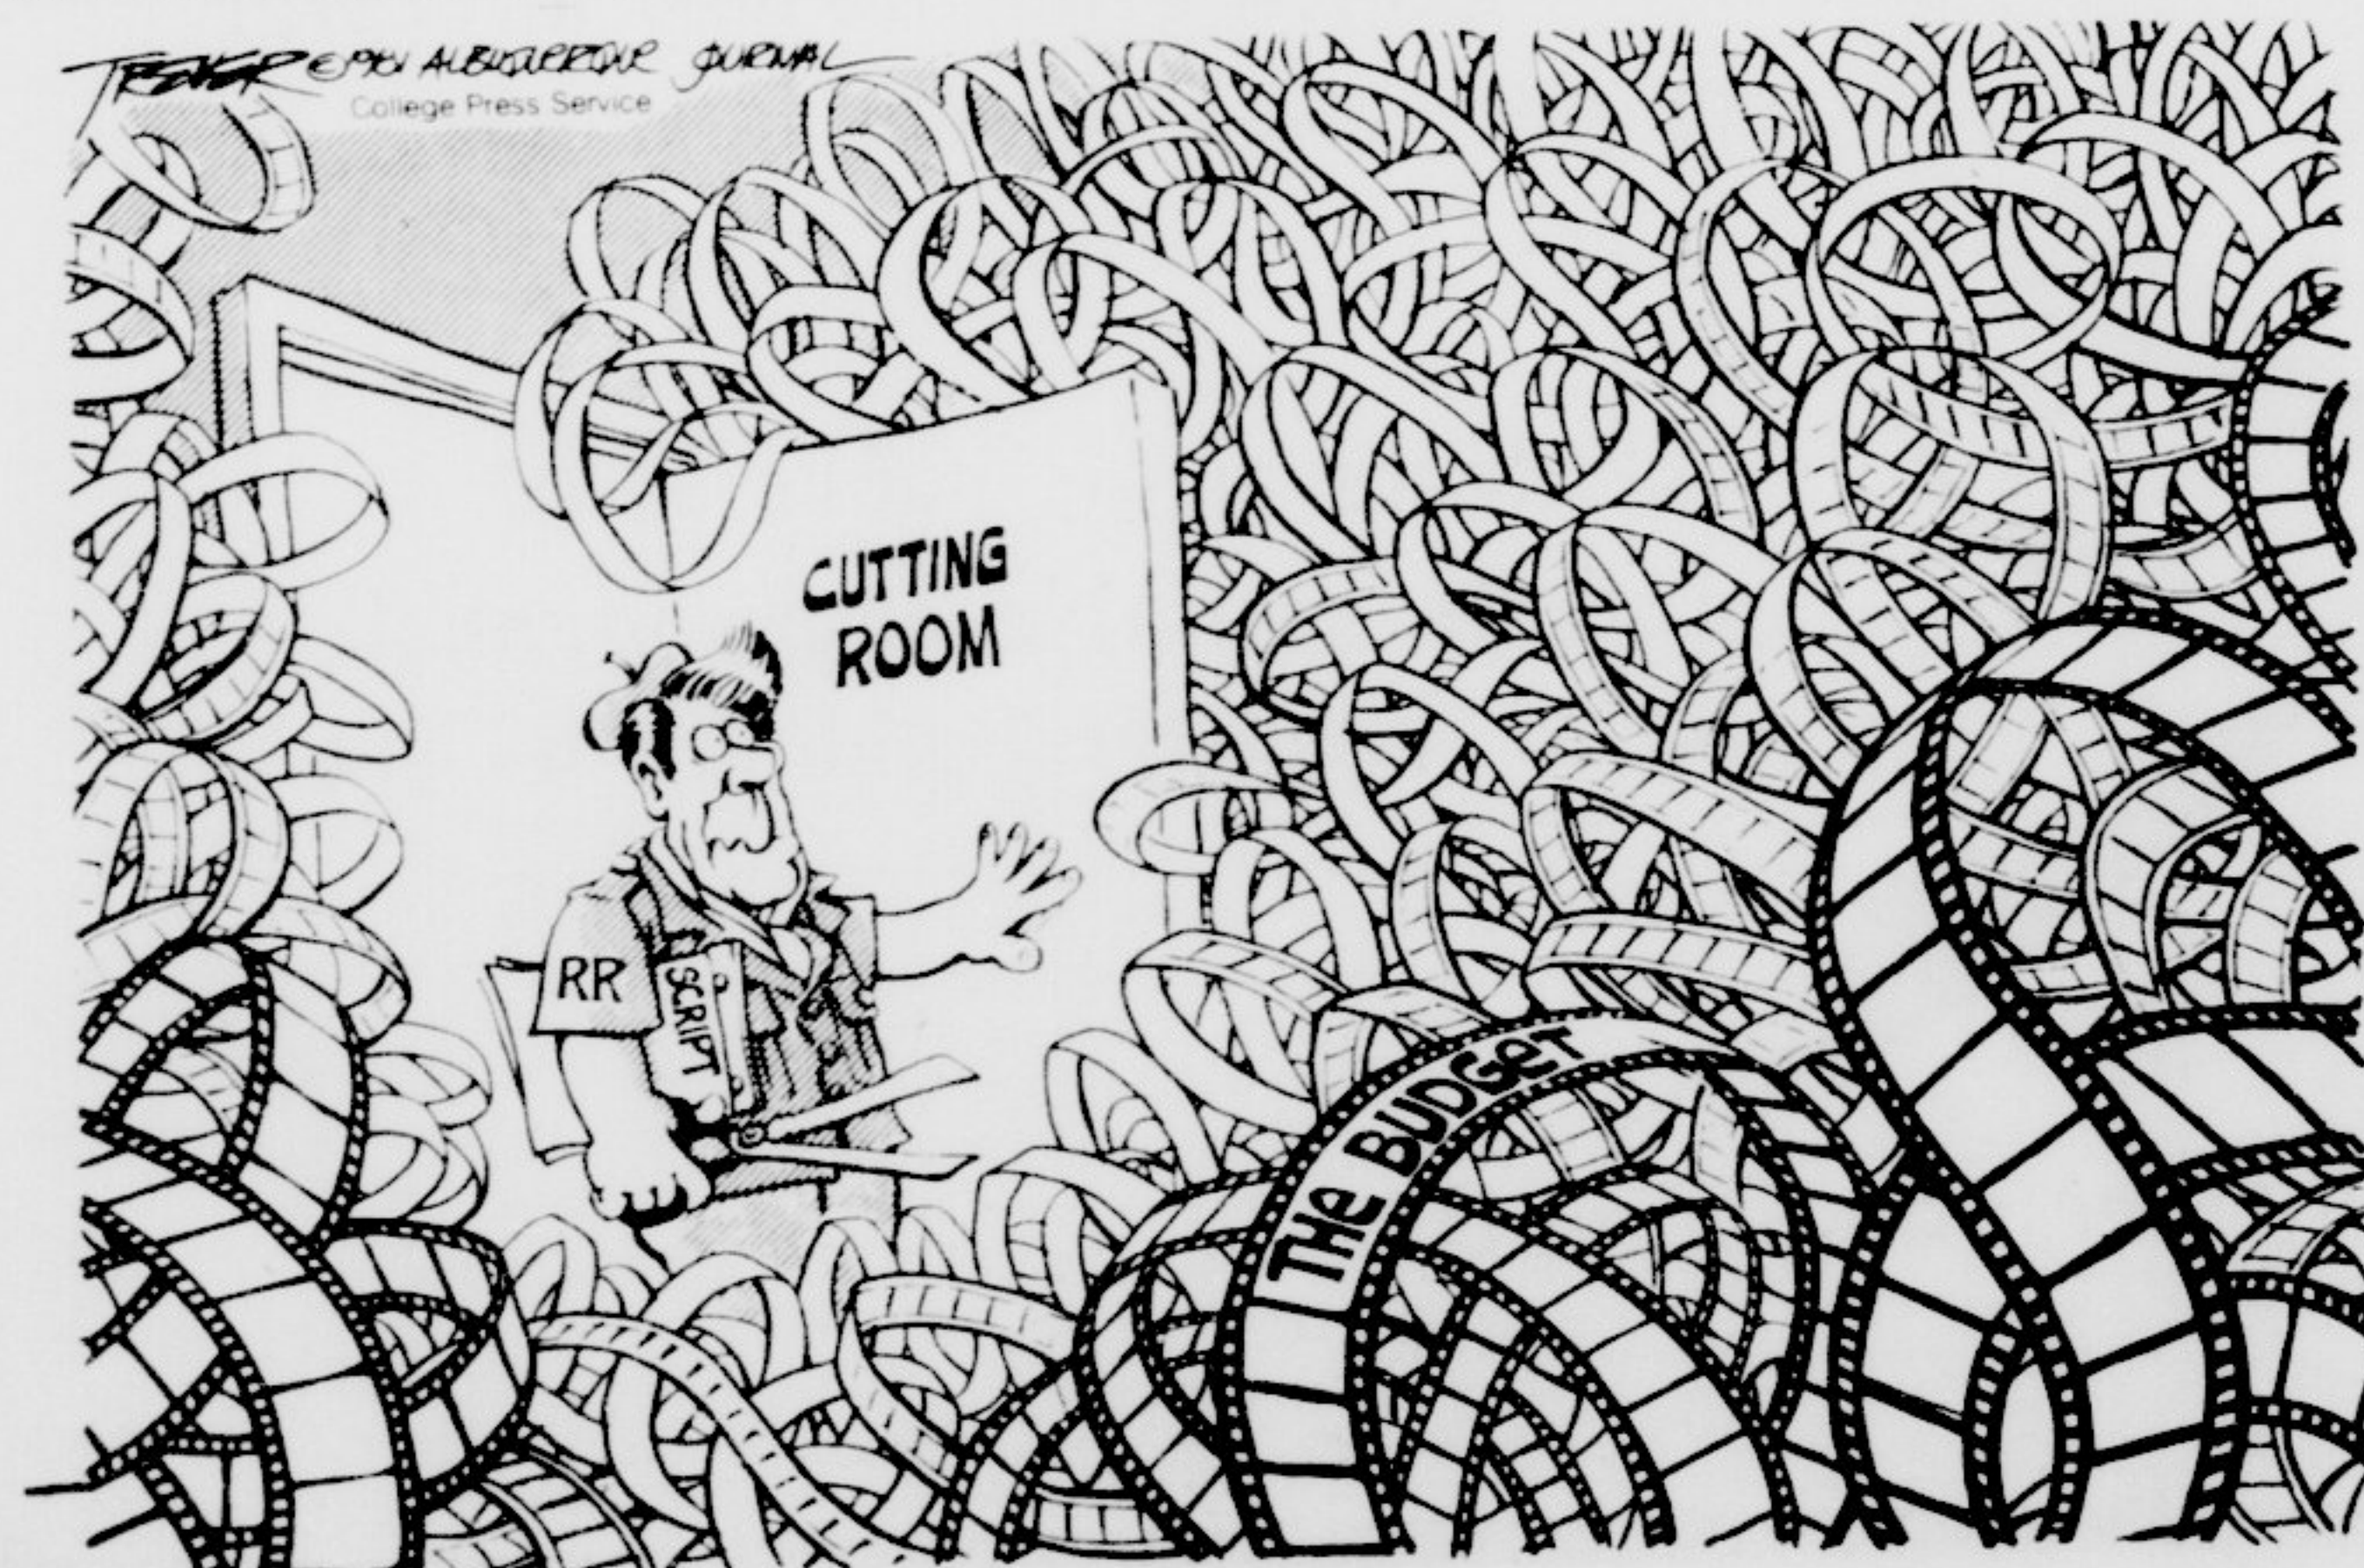

In what many veteran University administration staff members call

"one of the cleanest campaigns in the history of SGA at East Carolina," Nail nudged Overman by only 4.2 percent of the final tally.

Certainly both of these candidates have shown an ability to rally support from their fellow students here at ECU, and the SGA would not have suffered with either of these young men at the helm.

As it now stands, there will be a runoff election Tuesday April 1 for the offices of vice-president and treasurer. Marvin Braxton and Peggy Davison will again vie for the vice-president slot, while Angela Pepe and incumbent Kirk Little run for treasurer.

Regardless of the outcome of the April 1 elections, our SGA will have a period of struggle as it always does when the reigns of command are exchanged. We can only hope that coming year will be one of improvement and unification for this student body.

Campus Forum

ECU Student Faces Harassment

I am a concerned E.C.U. student and I felt it an obligation to others to share a recent experience I was involved in. This concerns an encounter with a campus policeman, Stan Kittrell, on the night of February 27th, at approximately 11:20 p.m.

I was carrying two friends home to Jones Dorm. Upon leaving I ran the stop sign in front of Aycock Dorm and was stopped at the bottom of College Hill Drive, by Officer Kittrell. I pulled in the day parking lot, my first mistake. This is where I feel the injustice came into play. I was not upset at the fact of being pulled for a stop sign violation, but I am very upset for the inhumane and brutal way I was treated.

After looking in my car, he spotted a beer and asked me to take the sobriety test, but I refused. Officer Kittrell stated, "You're under arrest, get out of the car."

After assuming the position with my hands on the car, he came up behind me and stated, "I said put your hands on the car" at which time he shoved me on the car further. I looked at him with my hands still in place and he said again, "I said put your hands on the car," while he shoved me again.

I couldn't believe it. He didn't frisk me, but put the handcuffs on me. Simultaneously, as he secured the handcuffs Officer Kittrell stated, "Now I'm going to kick your ass."

At that moment I turned around and thankfully there was another campus officer approaching the scene. I was so petrified that this cop was going beat me up that I told the other officer the situation and asked him to ride downtown with us.

He refused saying, "Officer Kittrell is a good old guy, he wouldn't do anything like that, etc." Officer Kittrell said he had arrested me for D.U.I., but when I blew the breathalyzer I blew under .10. I was then charged with careless and reckless after consuming.

The case appeared on March 9th and Officer Kittrell couldn't provide sufficient evidence to find me guilty of the charge. I was found guilty of exceeding a safe speed. This is only a two point violation against my license, instead of the three point violation I was really guilty of, running the stop sign.

Justice was finally done after a cost of:

1. Lawyer — $250.00, 2. Court Costs — $2.00, 3. Bond — 30.00, 4. Estimated rise in insurance over three years — 150.00, Total Cost — $482.00.

I feel that I went through a whole ordeal that was very unnecessary. It cost me money, a degree of my dignity, and my time. I feel the campus police should be there to protect and serve us, not to harass us.

this would help not only their English and emotional life, but also expand their knowledge of foreign lands. This would also promote world-wide friendship and mutual relationship as well as serving as a true foundation of world peace.

I feel it is necessary to publish this simple wish among the students of the world. Therefore, I courteously request you to run this letter in a corner of your valuable paper.

The only information I need of a student is his or her name, address, sex, age, hobbies and picture if possible. I expect to receive many letters from your readers wishing to correspond with our students.

I will appreciate it very much if you let me have the chance to do this for my students. This would be a warm and thoughtful favor. Awaiting good news, I remain.

I am a student of English in a noted university in Seoul, Korea. My English class has about 57 students of both sexes. I am eagerly seeking foreign students who would care to correspond with our students. There are also many Korean students who want to exchange letters and friendship with American peoples, and they frequently request me to let them have foreign pen friends since I have been to U.S.A. in the year of 1979.

Women's Lib Group Pickets

By Sen. JESSE HELMS

WASHINGTON — Last week I mentioned my visit in early February with former U.S. Ambassador Earl Smith, who now lives in Florida. I flew to Palm Beach and back to Washington on a day when the Senate was not in session. Earl was our Ambassador to Cuba at the time Fidel Castro seized power in Havana.

The purpose of the Florida trip was to deliver a foreign policy address before a prestigious group headed by Ambassador Smith. Several hundred people were present, and it was a very interesting and pleasant experience for me.

I didn't realize, until the meeting was over, that I was being picketed outside by one of the so-called "women's liberation" groups. There were seven or eight women carrying placards as I emerged, and some began to shout epithets.

AMUSING — Frankly, I found it amusing. I was fascinated by one enormous woman who rushed forward to declare that I was "un-American, anti-women" and two or three other things I can't remember. I smiled at her and mentioned that I have a wife, two daughters and two granddaughters, all of whom I love dearly — and that I didn't think any of them would agree with her.

It turned out, of course, that the pickets all strongly favor abortion on demand. They are among those who insist that the taxpayers should be forced to finance the killing of what they call "unwanted babies." I told the women with the placards that I didn't agree with them, and moved a few steps toward the car that was waiting to return me to the airport.

It was then that the woman who had earlier been so loud in her criticism of me stepped forward again. "Why," she demanded, "are you so obsessed with controlling my body?"

My answer to her was: "My dear lady, there may be someone in this broad land who is less interested with your body than I — but I have never met him." Then I proceeded to the airport, and flew back to Washington.

DISTORTIONS — Incidentally, some of the pro-abortion propagandists are engaging in outright distortions in their opposition to legislation which I have introduced relating to abortions. I don't mind criticism — I am accustomed to it. And certainly I don't object to disagreement. That's a part of the democratic process.

But some of the propaganda I've seen is astonishing. For example, I noted a recent column written by a young woman who stated flatly that I would prohibit an abortion even when the mother's life is at stake. That is simply not true. I have repeatedly stated that the doctrine of self defense becomes applicable in such rare cases — and that no one has ever suggested that a mother's life should not be saved.

The same woman columnist stated as a fact that I would forbid the saving of a mother's life even if she had been injured in an automobile accident and surgery was mandatory for her survival. That, of course, is an utter falsehood.

The propagandists are also falsely claiming that my legislation would prohibit birth control devices. My legislation has nothing to do with any prohibition against contraceptives. It would simply restore the legal situation that existed before the Supreme Court's unfortunate abortion decision of 1973.

VIEW — My view is that innocent human life is sacred, and that one of the Ten Commandments clearly spells out the awesome implications of destroying innocent human life.

If we should ever reach the point that it is acceptable national policy to kill innocent unborn children, then one day we may very well agree to the destruction of elderly people, or sick people, simply because it may be inconvenient to have them around. I cannot and will not condone the deliberate termination of innocent human life, whether it be an unborn child or an elderly person, or anyone in between.

If we ever reach that point, then the nation's survival will be in peril. I'm not sure we would even deserve to survive under such circumstances.

Comedy Double Feature Showing Wednesday

By JOHN WEYLER
Staff Writer

This Wednesday at Mendenhall Student Center's Hendrix Theatre the Student Union Film's Committee will present a Classic American Double Feature. Two of the best movie comedies ever made will be shown, "It Happened One Night" at 7 p.m. and "Some Like It Hot" at 9 p.m. Admission is, as usual, by ECU student ID and Activity-Card or by Mendenhall Student Center Membership Card for faculty and staff members on campus.

"Some Like It Hot" is a wildly funny, sophisticated, satiric, and also slapstick romp directed by six-time Academy Award winner Billy Wilder. It stars Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon as two musicians who, fleeing from gangsters, disguise themselves as women and join an all-girl band where they meet up with a kooky ukulele player portrayed by Marilyn Monroe.

"It Happened One Night" is a screwball social comedy that won every major Academy Award in

Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert in "It Happened One Night."

1934. (The only other film to collect all the major awards was 1975's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.") "It Happened One Night" won Best Picture, Best Director — Frank Capra, Best Actor — Clark Gable, Best Actress — Claudette Colbert, Best Writer — Robert Riskin. This much-honored film was created almost by accident. It was made mainly because prestigious and imperious MGM wanted to punish Gable (he had asked for a raise) by loaning him out to low-budget Columbia studios.

Gable, at first, naturally hated the whole thing. Columbia wanted to make the picture solely because of the rare presence of a star on their lot. Caught in the middle of a game of studio politics was director Frank Capra. As he himself said in his autobiography "The Name Above the Title," "...the news about 'It Happened One Night' was not that it made the 'classic' ranks, but that it ever got made at all. A film about the making of 'It Happened One Night' would have been much funnier than the picture itself."

As an example, Capra recalled that when he went to personally persuade Claudette Colbert to appear in the film, her French pooodle bit him in the rear. She agreed to do the film only because she knew they were desperate for a leading lady and would double her usual salary. When the film was finished she was quoted as saying, "I just finished the worst picture in the world."

Acclaimed Authors Slated For Campus Workshops

Authors Jay Neugeboren and Janet Burroway (pictured above) will appear together for a dramatic reading tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Jenkins Auditorium. On the following day, March 26, at 10:30 a.m., the two will conduct a workshop in room 221 of Mendenhall Student Center. Neugeboren has four novels to his credit, a memoir, and a collection of prize-winning stories. Burroway has also published four novels, including The Dancer from the Dance, Eyes, and The Buzzards which was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize.

Dinner Theatre Production Of 'Miss Reardon' Begins Monday

Dinner theatre on campus will again come alive as the Broadway production, "And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little," takes the stage. The production will open on March 30 and run through April 4.

Julie Harris and Estelle Parsons starred in this brilliant Broadway success written by Paul Zindel. This biting, touching, and often wildly funny play probes deeply into the relationship of three sisters whose lives have reached a point of crisis. Having two sisters, the first with a drinking problem and the second who is going crazy, can lead to great embarrassment as the third sister discovers, thus leading to many funny and fierce moments. NEWSWEEK stated that "in Paul Zindel we seem to have that variety — a playwright who can write intelligent, sensitive, entertaining plays for a wide public.

The production is being directed by Stephen B. Finnan. Finnan holds a Master of Fine Arts degree in Directing from Brooklyn College in New York. He has been a faculty member in the Drama and Speech Department at East Carolina University. Finnan has had professional acting and directing credits and has studied with Lee Strasberg, Gene Frankel, George Morrison, and was recently associated with the New York's Circle In The Square Professional Workshop.

The cast for the production include Marie Farr, Karen Baldwin, Dianne Pickett, Julie Haskett, Dwight Eastwood, Lotte Darwin, and Rene Meyer.

The first three performances, March 30-April 1, will be dessert shows. Seating for dessert performances will begin at 7:15 P.M. with curtain time at 8:00 P.M. The final three performances, April 2-4, will be dinner shows. Seating for the dinner shows will begin at 6:30 P.M. with curtain time at 8:00 P.M. The School of Home Economics will cater all events.

Tickets are on sale in the Central Ticket Office and are priced at $3.00 for E.C.U. students and $4.50 for faculty and staff for dessert performances and $7.00 for E.C.U. students and $9.00 for faculty, staff, and public for the dinner performances. For additional information call 757-6611, ext. 266.

Cooking Romantic Dinners In The Home

By KATHY WEYLER
Staff Writer

Sometimes you want to share a quiet dinner at home with someone special since restaurants, with their noise and well-meaning but interrupting waiters, aren't really very romantic when you think about it. (Fainting when you see the bill tends to put a damper on romance, too.) So you invite your someone special over to your place of residence and plan to stun him or her with your extraordinary culinary skills. But what do you serve?

If you ever saw the movie "Tom Jones," you probably know that anything eaten with the fingers can be very sexy. Keep this in mind when you plan your menu. There's something about a lot of dishes and serving pieces and clutter that can turn a romantic dinner for two into Sunday dinner at Grandma's. You want, then, to serve something elegant and sensuous, but simple. In fact, you might want to think of the meal more as a big snack that could easily be left on the table or refrigerated if necessary.

As an entree, you might consider something like SHRIMP COCKAIGNE. You'll need one-half pound of ready-to-cook shrimp (any size, but the larger the better). In a pan, combine 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt, 1/4 cup olive oil, two tablespoons dry white wine, one good squirt of lemon juice, one tablespoon of parsley and basil (mixed together), and a pinch of pepper. Cover the shrimp with this marinade and refrigerate at least two hours. Then, broil the shrimp for approximately ten minutes, being careful not to scorch them. Meanwhile, melt a little less than one-half stick of butter or margarine and continue cooking until lightly brown. Add one scant tablespoon of finely chopped parsley, one teaspoon lemon juice and one good dash of garlic salt. Serve in a dish for dipping with the broiled shrimp.

Raw vegetables are also appropriate for a romantic dinner. Consider fresh mushrooms, carrots, broccoli and cauliflower, carefully washed and sliced or broken into bite-sized pieces. Serve on a tray with a ready-made dip, or make the dip yourself from one of the many mixes available. A good mix to try is Hidden Valley Ranch original recipe salad dressing mix. Use any leftovers later for salad dressing.

Pasta can also be a very romantic food, conjuring up images of soft candlelight and Chinati, but don't think only of the usual meat sauce type of spaghetti. Fettuccini noodles can serve as a bed for any number of interesting sauces, or you can be more economical and serve them with regular spaghetti noodles if you like.

Anchovy lovers might like pasta with MARINARA SAUCE. Heat two tablespoons olive oil and the oil drained from the anchovies. Add about one-half teaspoon garlic salt and slowly add one sixteen-ounce can pressed and drained whole tomatoes. Stir in six finely chopped anchovies, one-half teaspoon oregano, one tablespoon chopped parsley and bring to a boil. Then reduce heat and simmer for fifteen to twenty minutes. Serve over noodles and top with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese.

Traditionally, the crowning glory of a meal is dessert, but you don't want anything heavy that's going to fill your companion up and bring on drowsiness. Fruit and cheese, perhaps nuts as well, make an excellent light dessert. Prepare a tray with pieces of your favorite fruits (cut in wedges or bite-sized pieces) and bite-sized pieces of cheese.

Strawberries, washed and capped and served with a dish of sugar for dipping, or a bunch of grapes can make dessert fun.

Complement your meal with a beverage you and your companion will both enjoy. Wine is certainly the traditional romantic drink, and the delicate May wines should be available soon. But your drinks needn't necessarily be alcoholic. Spiced hot tea can be warmly relaxing. Simply prepare your regular type of hot tea and add a pinch of nutmeg, cinnamon allspice, or all three.

With the right atmosphere — candlelight, soft scent sprayed on cool light bulbs (let it dry before you turn them on), your favorite music — your romantic dinner with your special dinner partner could very well be the start of many delicious things to come.

Works On Paper Exhibit Open Now

"Works on Paper," a national juried art exhibition sponsored by East Carolina University, is being shown in ECU's Gray Gallery through April 12.

Juror for the show is Edward Henning, chief curator of modern art at the Cleveland, Ohio, Museum of Art. Works submitted represent entries from numerous artists throughout the nation, with approximately one third of the entries from southeastern artists.

The show, co-sponsored by the ECU School of Medicine and the ECU School of Art, was conceived as a means of building the permanent collection of the ECU Museum of Art. Works purchased (with funds provided from the medical school) will be displayed in the new Brody medical sciences building of the ECU School of Medicine.

The "Works on Paper" show is scheduled to coincide with the first Eastern Carolina Arts Festival. A 1-4 p.m. reception has been set for April 5.

Gray Gallery is open to the public each weekday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and from 1-4 p.m. on Sundays. It is located in the east end of the Leo Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the main campus.

LEARNING ABOUT COLLEGE... THE HARD WAY

Actor Jose Ferrer was presented with the SETC's highest award.

Double Feature Showing Wednesday

picture gave a damn about it, all decided they might as well have some fun while making it. So they shot it fast and loose, clowning around on the set between takes. Much of it was improvised. All were stunned when the movie became a hit.

The story concerns a run-away heiress (Claudette Colbert) and a down-on-his-luck reporter (Clark Gable) who meet on a long bus trip. At first they hate each other, she considering him a bum, he sensing in her a scoop for his paper. Both being broke and in trouble, they band together to survive their hazardous cross-country journey, their relationship gradually turning to love. Sprinkled through the story are subtle social comments concerning the signs of the times; its theme of the rich versus the poor reflected the then-current Depression.

Many classic comedy bits from the film are fondly remembered, including: the "Wall of Jericho," a blanket over a line strung through the middle of a motel room to separate the two would-be lovers; the hitch-hiking scene where, Gable being unable to thumb a ride, Colbert flashes a gam and immediately succeeds, proving that the leg is mightier than the thumb (the originator of this oft-used gag); the famous undressing scene where Gable strips almost to his skivvies in front of Colbert, all the while wittily delivering a lecture on how men undress (and supposedly sending the undershirt industry into a plunge when audiences noted that Gable didn't wear one).

"It Happened One Night" stands at the forefront of its genre, that uniquely 1930's creation called screwball comedy. It was a turning point in the career of Frank Capra who, up until that time, had been a respected but struggling director, not yet having found his niche in film-making. It opened his eyes to the type of films he wanted to make, and at which he excelled — warm, human comedy with a smattering of social comment. "It Happened One Night" blazed a trail that led to such Capra classics as "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" (both of which were presented earlier this semester by the Student Union Films Committee), "It's a Wonderful Life," and "A State of the Union."

Double Trouble

Pirates 1 Clemson, Then Go 2-1

Following a big win over powerful Clemson on Thursday, the East Carolina baseball team took a doubleheader from Yale on Saturday before biting the dust Sunday. The Pirates saw their record fall to 8-4 Sunday following a 7-6 loss to Fairfield. The loss was literally a "big blow" to the team following three consecutive wins. With ECU ahead 5-3 in the seventh inning of Sunday's affair, Fairfield catcher Pete Ciardello hit a grand slam home run to put his team ahead to stay. The Bucs came back with a run in the eighth but could not recover from the "big blow." The Pirates began a three-game winning streak, averaging an empty net to right which, coupled with error by Tiger outfielder Glenn Gallagher, allowed Evans to score. The Bucs scored single runs in the third and the sixth innings to go up 4-0. The sixth inning run came via a solo homer by Pirate rightfielder John Hallow. The Tigers scored their only run in the eighth. The win moved Ramey's record to 3-0 while Bob Patterson was credited with a save. The Bucs came right back on Saturday to sweep a doubleheader from Yale by scores of 4-3 and 3-2.

In the first game, the Pirates scored two runs in both the second and fifth innings and held on as Yale tallied three runs in the sixth. Bill Wilder was the winning pitcher for ECU, improving his record to 2-2 on a six-hit, ten-strikeout performance. The Pirates rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh and final inning after being down 2-0 to complete the sweep by winning the second game, 3-2. Reliever Kirk Parsons got the win for the Bucs after stepping in for starter Bob Patterson to start the ECU half of the sixth inning. ECU coach Hal Baird said he was both disappointed and pleased with his team's weekend play, and also their current 8-4 standing. "Yes, I'm pleased," he said. "But our record is not as good as we would like it to be. On the other hand, we could be 6-5 right now. We had to make a strong comeback to win earlier this year against Connecticut and had to do the same Sunday in a game against Yale. "The thing that pleases me most about the team," Baird continued, "is the character the guys have shown. We just need to elevate the level of our play." One of the main question areas for the team has been centerfield. Charlie Waynick, Mark Shank and Robert Wells have all seen some starting duty there. "It's really been strange," Baird said. "Until this weekend we'd been playing Charlie there and thought he was the best hitter at the position. We came back with Robert Wells this weekend, though, and he hit the ball extremely well for us (2 of 5 in two games)." Baird added, though, that the situation at centerfield was far from being settled, citing inconsistent defensive performances there as the main area of his concern. The team's next action comes today (Tuesday) with a doubleheader against Princeton set to begin at Harrington Field at 2 p.m.

Position Changes Made

'Fundamental' Drills Underway

By CHARLES CHANDLER

Fundamentals and position changes highlighted the first two days of East Carolina's spring football drills last week. More of the same can be expected before the April 25 Purple-Gold game.

"We're working very hard on fundamentals," Pirate head coach Ed Emory said Monday. "We're a very young team and it's very important that we become sounder fundamentally."

The second-year coach pointed to the fact that the club had few experienced members.

"We're coming off lots of red-shirting and injury hardships," he noted. "It'll be tough but I think we'll be ready when we need to be."

Emory said he and his staff had taken measures to prevent another year of injuries as was experienced this past season, when over 50 players took to the sidelines for one reason or another.

"We're going to work the guys hard during the first 12 practices," he said. "But, at the same time, we'll definitely be trying to avoid the injuries we had by not scrimmaging as much as we have in the past."

Thus far, only one Pirate has sustained an injury, that being guard Maury Banks. He should return soon from a pulled muscle.

Most prevalent among five players who are not participating in the spring drills is last season's number one quarterback, Carlton Nelson. The Portsmouth native is home recovering from neck surgery and will hopefully return in the fall.

Among the position changes that have occurred involves two members of the 1980 starting offensive line. Fee Griffin, a starting guard last season, has been switched to nose guard. The other move switches Mark Ervin from offensive tackle to defensive tackle.

"We feel that both Fee and Mark have defensive personalities," Emory said. "We also think that they can easily move back to offense if necessary."

Emory said the moves were made possible by the number of 1980 offensive line redshirts that are now eligible. He cited Tom Carns, Johnny Robertson, Norman Quick and Jeff Autry as former redshirts with "enormous potential."

Another addition to the offensive line is former nose guard Terry Long. The 6-0, 230-pounder is the strongest member of the team.

"We feel that Terry's switch to offense offsets Fee's move to defense," Emory said. "We hope that both moves will pay dividends."

The all-important quarterback position is up in the air, as was the case during last spring's drills.

Nelson's status will not be known until fall practice begins. Greg Stewart, a sophomore who started in Nelson's stead after the latter went down with the injury last year, is the current front-runner.

Challenging Stewart is freshman Larry Brobst, Chuck Bishop and Chuck Barnette. Bishop started several games in the secondary last year but has been moved to the offensive backfield. Also receiving a shot at the QB job is John Felton, who came to the Bucs highly-touted several seasons ago but has been slowed by injuries.

The team will continue with drills on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays until the Purple-Gold game.

ECU sophomore Chuck Bishop (8), shown here chasing N.C. State halfback Wayne McLean, has been moved at least temporarily from secondary to quarterback.

Record Now 11-2

Lady Bucs Sweep Four

By WILLIAM YELVERTON

East Carolina's well-balanced offensive attack led by Mary Powell, Shirley Brown and Mitzi Davis proved too much for four teams to handle in N. C. State's Round Robin softball tournament in Raleigh last Saturday.

The Lady Pirates won four straight in the tournament, defeating Western Carolina 6-2, Appalachian State 7-1, Campbell 11-0 and UNC-Greensboro 14-0.

The wins boosted the Lady Bucs' record to 11-2, the only losses going to powerful Florida and Florida State in the season openers.

Excellent defensive play and timely hitting spelled success for the Lady Bucs. The team made only four errors all afternoon and came through with three key homeruns.

"Our defense looked better than it has in previous games," said an obviously pleased Coach Alita Dillon. "Our pitchers are also doing a fine job. That part of our game is becoming stable."

Freshman Jeanette Roth hurled two wins and upped her season's record to 7-1. Sophomore Angie Humphrey picked up the other two as she boosted her record to 4-1.

In the first game against Western, the Lady Bucs were led by Powell, who was 3-4 and Davis who was 2-3. First baseman Shirley Brown chipped in a fine performance by going 3-3 and driving in two runs. Roth picked up her first win of the day as the Lady Pirates prevailed, 6-2.

Dillon was admittedly worried before the game with Western Carolina. "If we hadn't hit the ball well, we would have been in bad shape."

"I thought that would be the toughest game because they always come up with a good pitcher."

In the second game against Appalachian, Kathy Riley belted her first homer of the season, a three-run shot to head the win. Cynthia Shepard was also impressive, as was Davis and third baseman Maureen Bucs, each going 2-3.

Shepard ripped a triple and a double in the 7-1 win. Humphrey was the winning pitcher.

The afternoon's third game was against Campbell and shortfielder Flea Williams provided the spark by blasting a three-run homer. Dillon says Williams is an important key to the team. "If we have good offense from her, we're okay. She's been getting on base more, and her hitting is coming along."

"She seems to spark us and has been steady defensively."

Center fielder Davis belted two doubles in the 11-0 shutout. Dillon said she was pleased with Davis' defense. "She has had a few spectacular catches this season."

ECU coach Dave Odom is still traveling the recruiting road.

"We have good speed in the outfield, so we encourage our players to go after the long drives by diving or whatever it takes."

Roth picked up her seventh win in the game.

The last game was against UNC-Greensboro as the Lady Bucs won 14-0, a game in which most of the regulars gave way to the other players so they could gain more experience. Dillon was pleased with the victory because it would improve the team's depth.

The game was highlighted by a Leslie Bunn grand slam in the seventh. Williams and first baseman Tammy Parham each slammed doubles. Parham went 4-5 and outfielder Lydia Rountree chipped in with a 3-4 effort. Humphrey picked up the win.

The Lady Bucs now look forward to meeting the Tar Heels of North Carolina this afternoon in Greenville. UNC was defeated by Western Carolina at the Florida tourney, but that is no concern to Dillon. "We expect a close game," Dillon said. "They have an impressive record."

Martin Is Still Loose

Pirate Notes:

It was noted in this column some two weeks ago that a talented young basketball player from Danville, Va. had included ECU on his list of seven schools he is considering attending.

That player, 7-foot Warren Martin, has set aside April 1 as a tentative date for the announcement of the lucky school.

Martin has progressed this year and could become a "franchise" of sorts should the Pirates ink him to a national letter.

The big guy is also considering Richmond, James Madison, Virginia Tech, Jacksonville, Virginia and North Carolina.

Three of ECU's four coaches traveled across the N.C.-Virginia border yesterday (Monday) to meet with Martin. The three — head coach Dave Odom and assistants George Felton and Eddie Payne — have a keen interest in the young man. No wonder, he could turn the entire Pirate cage program around. Sources close to Martin still have no idea as to which school or schools he may be leaning towards. The best guess is that he has not eliminated anyone yet.

It seemed for some time that UNC and Virginia were the only two that he was really concerned with. That theory seems to have been negated, though, because of Martin's insistence that he had no idea where he might end up.

On the football side of the recruiting world, it appears that ECU put an Atlantic Coast Conference member on its knees during coach Monte Kiffin.

The word around here is that the "wild-and-crazy" Kiffin actually fell to his knees while pleading with Walden not to sign with ECU.

No doubt, Kiffin felt Walden was something special, special enough to try to sway the youngster from joining one of the Wolfpack's future opponents.

Bad news struck two members of the ECU football team this week. Offensive lineman Jay LaCock, brother of starting guard Bud LaCock, and former secondary starter Wayne Perry have been advised to give up the game.

Both have injuries that continue to flare up and that apparently will never recover fully enough to allow the two to play again, say the ECU doctors.

Golfers Finish 22nd In Furman Invitational

The East Carolina golf team finished 22nd in the 27-team Furman Invitational this past weekend with a dismal 54-hole total of 918.

Tennessee won the tournament with an 865 total. Wake Forest was runnerup at 868 while Alabama and Clemson tied for third at 869.

Georgia Southern All-American Jodie Mudd took individual honors with a 12-under total of 204. Mudd strung together six straight birdies over the tourney's final nine holes and finished with an eight-under par 64 for Saturday's finishing round. Steve Jones and Don Gafner led the ECU contingent, each firing three-day totals of 228. Don Sweeting finished at 232 while Carl Beaman fired a 234 and Mike Moye a 238.

"We're coming up against the same old problems," said ECU coach Bob Helmick. "We're not getting it together at the same time. In the second round we lost eight shots on the (14th hole) and in the third we lost seven on the (18th hole)."

The Pirates continue their spring schedule in the Camp LeJune Invitational this weekend.

Pirate Relay Team Wins

By WILLIAM VELVERTON
Assistant Sports Editor

East Carolina's outdoor track team opened the season with a bang last weekend by winning the 4 X 200 meter relay at the Domino's Pizza Sunshine Relays in Tallahassee.

The Pirates were led by Tim Cephus, who ran an opening leg of 20.4 as the team won with a time of 1:25.53, just ahead of Indiana's 1:25.59.

Carlton Frazier ran a second leg of 21.3 and Keith Clarke turned in a 22.6. Footballer Clint Harris ran 21 flat.

The Bucs also finished third in the 4 X 100 meter relay with a time of 41.06 that was behind Florida State's 39.98. Florida A & M finished second.

The Pirates captured fourth place in the relay, its first outdoor season, time of 3:11.53 won with a time followed by 1 and Florida A & M of whom qualify the Nationals. Total qualifying 3:08.8.

The Bucs without the ser Cephus, whose knee went out, event was high by Clarke's 47. Craig Rainey's Bill Miller turn 48.9 in what first time running event.

The Pirates participate in the Relays this week

I was relatively pleased with the team's performances."

The Lady thineclads travel to Charlottesville Friday to compete in the University of Virginia Invationals.

Women's Track Places Two

East Carolina's women's track team claimed two places Saturday in the Lady Gator Relays held in Gainesville, Fla.

sophomore transfer, took sixth in the shot, putting it 43.7 feet. This throw was her personal best and a new ECU varsity track record.

ECU's relay team, consisting of Dawn Henderson, Catherine Suggs, Ros Major, and Gwen Dancy also placed into the finals. In the preliminary race they recorded a time of 51.2 seconds. In the finals, however, the baton was dropped, and the Lady tracksters did not finish well.

Lady Netters Win

East Carolina's women's tennis team registered a 9-0 win over UNC-W Friday. Every member of the team won their match with scores of 6-0, 6-1, or 6-2.

"Wilmington's skill level was lower than we had anticipated," said coach Caroline Brown. "Because of this, I was very pleased with the team's ability to concentrate throughout the meet."

The tennis team takes on Guilford College tomorrow, one of the top Division II teams. "After beating UNC-W, I feel we are in a good position to be a challenge for Guilford," said Brown. The Lady netters first home meet is this Thursday against Atlantic Christian.

"51.2 is really not that good a time," said coach Laurie Arrants. "It did get us pumped up for the finals, though. It's too bad that we drooped."

"We saw some good things this week end," said Arrants. "We were up against some stiff competition. All in all,
