Braxton, Little Win; Second Run-Off Looms

By PAUL COLLINS
News Editor

Wednesday's SGA run-off election has yielded a clear winner in the vice-presidential contest and the possibility of yet another run-off in the treasurer's race.

Marvin Braxton will be installed as the new SGA vice president after defeating Peggy Davison. Braxton finished with 600 votes to Davison's 417.

Incumbent Kirk Little defeated challenger Angela Pepe by seven votes in the treasurer's race, 515 votes to 508.

The close nature of the result has raised the possibility of another run-off.

SGA election rules provide for a run-off if a candidate's winning margin is less than two percent. It is not specified, however, if this rule applies in a run-off itself.

"It doesn't make a lot of sense to have an additional run-off," said Al Patrick, SGA election committee chairman. "That's the way we (the committee) look at it."

"The rules are not clear, though," he continued. "It doesn't exclude her right to a run-off."

Patrick said there was no precedent for an additional run-off. "Elections have been won by less than this," he said.

However, SGA President Charlie Sherrod felt that Pepe was entitled to another run-off. "If you add up the results of the two races Angela still came out ahead," he said.

Pepe has 48 hours to appeal the result. If she does, the SGA Review Board will decide whether or not another run-off is permissible.

When asked if she will seek another run-off, Pepe said: "I'm not sure. The campaigns have taken too much time. I have school to think about. It's a possibility, though."

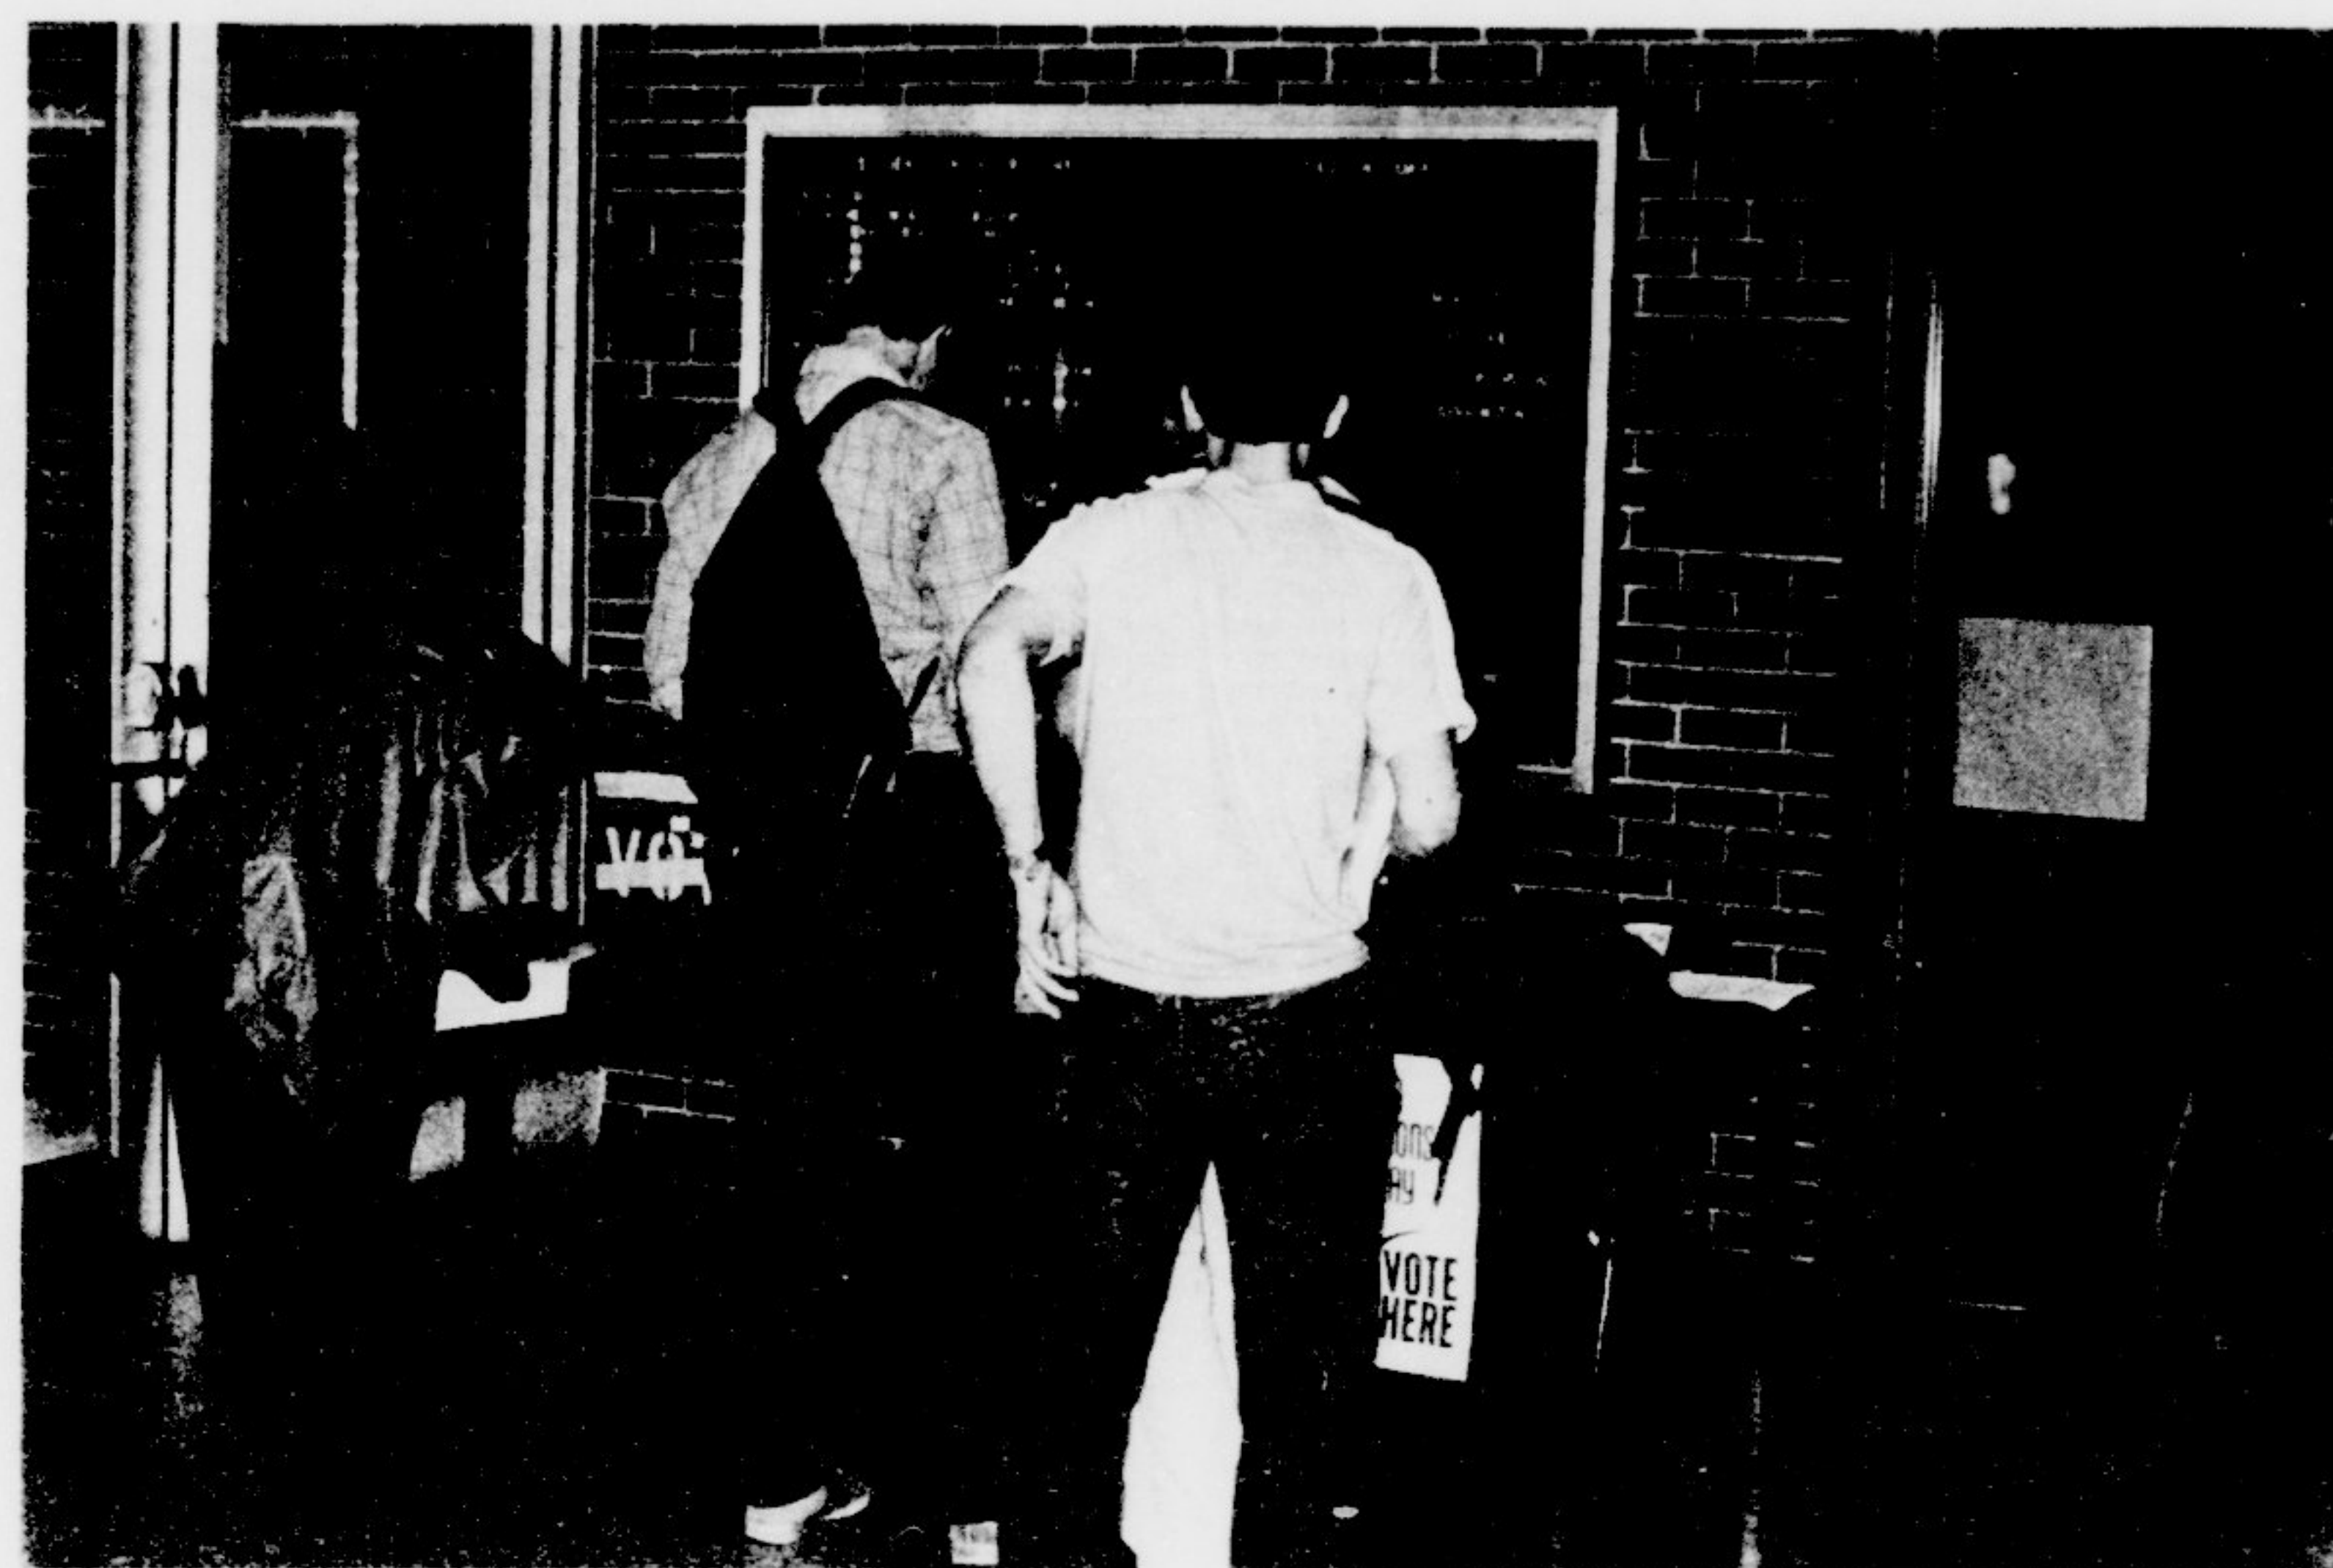

"I really don't know what to say," Little responded when asked how he felt about the prospect of a second run-off. "I really don't know."

"Angela ran a good campaign," he added. "She definitely had some good ideas."

"It was very tight," Pepe commented. "I feel like both Kirk and I ran good races."

Both candidates spent more than $300 in the two races combined.

Selective Service Seeking Records

(CPS) — The days of private student records may be numbered, according to a variety of privacy law experts.

A number of the experts say that the immense political pressure now building to get around laws protecting the privacy of student records may succeed despite the opposition of administrators who keep the records, and students themselves.

Most of the pressure comes from the Selective Service System, which has expressed interest in getting lists of men who have (and have not) complied with military registration laws.

The SSS, swears government lawyer Henry Williams, has no intentions of requesting information from schools to help locate draft registration dodgers. But the SSS has long made it known it might ask schools to cooperate with it later on. The SSS' ambiguity has pushed many administrators to research the legality of such a request, if it's ever made.

Most contend student records are protected by the Buckley Amendment to the Privacy Act of 1974.

"The Privacy Act doesn't apply to colleges," Williams flatly asserts. "And if a college refused us information, it couldn't stand on the Buckley Amendment."

"Unfortunately, the Buckley Amendment wouldn't be very helpful in this situation," agrees privacy expert Trudy Haydn, formerly of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU). "If the Selective Service were to be refused by colleges, all Congress needs to do is pass a congressional statute overriding Buckley, and the information will have to be given out."

The amendment makes directory information on a student — name, address, birth date and place, phone number, and major field of study — public knowledge. The law, however, gives a student the chance to object to having his or her records made public. Upon objection, the school is prohibited from distributing the information.

State laws protecting student records are already under frontal assault in California and Maryland.

The California General Assembly is now considering a bill mandating school's permission to make student records available to military recruiters.

Marie Gerich, aide to state Sen. John Schmitz, who wrote the bill, says the measure was designed to alleviate problems recruiters have in getting information to students about military careers.

"This could set a dangerous precedent of cooperation," warns Beth Meador, an ACLU lobbyist in Sacramento. She forswears "a cooperation among government agencies to exchange information about individuals."

Across the country, a Maryland couple has gotten a bill introduced in their state legislature that would allow parents to see their children's confidential records as well as directory information.

Currently, Maryland law and the Buckley Amendment bar disclosure of student transcripts to anyone but school authorities, but Beverly and Jerome Kamchi contend the laws violate their rights as parents of a dependent child.

"Without access to my son's grades, I do not have the option of counseling him and encouraging him," Jerome Kamchi says. His son, Mark, has refused to tell his parents his grades since he entered the University of Maryland two years ago.

The ACLU's John Roemer doesn't see the Kamchi case as very important, however. He observes the state already allows scholarship sponsors to see grades.

"I would suspect they could require release of transcripts to parents under that same idea," Roemer says. "But I wouldn't call this an invasion of (students') rights offhand."

Neither Roemer or John Shaddock of the ACLU's national office know of other legal challenges to privacy laws, but they say that the looming presence of the Selective Service has spread the issue around the country.

Student governments in Illinois and Nevada, for example, have passed resolutions asking administrators not to allow the Selective Service access to student records. Administrators at places as diverse as Stanford and the College of Wooster in Ohio have already announced they would not cooperate with the SSS unless directed by law.

Over 300 students at the University of California-Santa Barbara recently marched to their administration building, demanding security of directory information. At California-Riverside, a student government official met with campus officials asking for similar assurances of privacy.

Nevertheless, privacy expert Haydn warns students have "little redress" if personal information were released, even over their objections.

The Buckley Amendment, she explains, applies only to schools receiving federal funds, and threatens a school with a cutoff of funds if it violates the privacy law.

Suspect Wanted To Impress Actress

Reagan Improves, Walks Hospital Halls

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Reagan got out of his hospital bed for a walk today and aides said he might return to the White House by next week. Police probed evidence the young drifter charged with shooting him was seeking the love of a teen-age movie star.

White House Chief of Staff James Baker described Reagan as "cheerful," said he was up and about in his hospital room and still wants to go to Mexico in late April to meet with President Lopez Portillo.

A mid-morning medical bulletin issued by Reagan's personal physician at the White House said the president "continues to improve as well as can be expected." Dr. Daniel Ruge added that his diet has been changed from liquid to solid food.

Presidential press secretary James Brady, critically wounded when he was shot in the head in the assassination attempt, was reported by the White House to be making "astounding" progress and was even said to have played "catch" with his wife Sarah from his hospital bed.

Brady also was able to speak for the first time, but there was still no indication whether he suffered any mental impairment from the bullet removed from his brain after a five-hour operation.

Mental tests were planned today for John W. Hinckley Jr., 25, the man police tackled after he allegedly fired six shots at Reagan, also wounding Brady, a Secret Service officer and a Washington policeman outside a downtown hotel Monday.

Hinckley's father, a wealthy Colorado oilman hired Washington's best known criminal law firm, Williams and Connolly, to defend the suspect. Law enforcement officials, meanwhile, said there was evidence Hinckley wanted to impress Jody Foster who played the role of a pre-teen prostitute in the movie "Taxi Driver."

"I will prove my love for you ... through a historic act," the Washington Post said Hinckley wrote the actress in a letter recovered from the hotel room he was staying in the capital.

As the president's condition improved steadily, presidential counselor Edwin Meese reported it "was business as usual" at the White House and at the hospital where some of the Oval Office functions were transferred so Reagan could resume his functions as chief executive.

Vice President George Bush took over the president's schedule at the White House, but the president would be making the major decisions from his hospital bed, aides said.

"He's got a few more papers that he does have to sign and we will give him a national security briefing during the course of the day," Baker said on CBS.

The White House has not released any pictures of Reagan in the hospital, but Baker said Reagan "will shortly be able to communicate through the medium of television."

"We would sure be hopeful that sometime next week he could be back in the White House," Baker said.

Reagan and his wife Nancy stayed up until 11 p.m. EST Tuesday to watch part of the Academy Awards show, which included a message the president taped two weeks ago, aides reported.

"The president is in good condition but is experiencing some pain and fatigue in response to his injury," Ruge said in the medical bulletin. "The president slept well during the night and is up and walking this morning."

Baker added that Reagan "experienced some discomfort overnight" due to soreness from the operation.

Baker said the president was "extremely pleased this morning" to hear about the Senate's vote Tuesday.

These motorists evidently had their eye on something other than the road as they passed by ECU's west campus.

Petitioners Set For Mendenhall Boycott

A boycott of Mendenhall Student Center to protest the recent alleged political manipulation of the East Carolina University Media Board has been called for by a group which last semester organized a petition to show support for former WZMB general manager and advisor John Jeter.

According to Van Brown, petition organizer, administration officials are manipulating the actions of Media Board members, thus taking away student control. Brown and other petition organizers are saying Media Board Chairman David Creech is working hand-in-hand with Dean Rudolph Alexander and Vice-Chancellor Elmer Meyer to dominate the board as well as all of the student media.

"That is completely, totally absurd," says Creech. "Of course I work closely with them, as do all campus leaders, but there is no truth to those charges."

"We have worked very hard to maximize the freedom of the campus media; we have bent over backwards to guarantee this freedom."

WZMB petition organizers say the boycott will take place on the grounds of Mendenhall Student Center Monday April 6 at noon. Brown and other petition supporters say they hope the boycott will make everyone aware of the fact that the Media Board, its chairman and administration officials are overstepping their constitutional power in keeping the student media from operating at "free will," thus not allowing the students to be totally informed.

Bloodmobile Set For Spring Visit

The annual Red Cross Spring Blood Drive will be held April 7 and 8, according to representatives of the sponsoring Inter-Fraternity Council of East Carolina University. The Bloodmobile will be located at Wright Auditorium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday. The fraternity with the largest percentage of their membership donating blood will receive a plaque for their efforts. All East Carolina University students are urged to participate in what is considered "giving the gift of life."

Hinckley Sought Foster's Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) John W. Hinckley Jr., the 25-year-old loner accused of shooting President Reagan, left a letter in his hotel room addressed to actress Jodie Foster that said, "I would abandon this idea of getting Reagan in a second if I could only win your heart."

The text of the letter, obtained from unidentified "sources," was published in today's editions of The Washington Post, and reinforced the theory Hinckley acted in a bizarre bid for the attention of the teen-age actress.

Hinckley, who was quickly subdued by Secret Service agents and police after the shooting, was examined for three hours Wednesday by a court-appointed psychiatrist at the Marine Corps base at Quantico, Va., where he has been kept isolated under 24-hour guard.

Today, he was to appear before U.S. Magistrate Lawrence Margolis for a preliminary hearing.

The psychiatrist's report was sealed and will be turned over to the court to help determine whether Hinckley, the son of a wealthy Denver oilman, is competent to stand trial and assist his lawyers in his defense.

Hinckley is charged with attempting to assassinate Reagan and assaulting a Secret Service agent. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Authorities ordered tight security at the courthouse to prevent a replay of Jack Ruby's fatal shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, the man accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy in Dallas in 1963.

"We are going to watch that," said U.S. Marshal Larry Bullock.

The letter found by investigators in Hinckley's room at Washington's Park Central Hotel began, "Dear Jodie: There is a definite possibility that I will be killed in my attempt to get Reagan. It is for this reason that I am writing you now."

The neat, handwritten letter reviewed Hinckley's attempts to reach the actress through "dozens of poems, letters and messages."

"Jody, I would abandon this idea of getting Reagan in a second if I could only win your heart and live the rest of my life with you, whether it be in total obscurity or whatever," it said.

"This letter is being written an hour before I leave for the Hilton Hotel (where Reagan will be staying)."

Run-Off Results Still Murky

It concluded: "Jodie, I'm asking you to please look into your heart and at least give me the chance with this historical deed to gain your respect and love. I love you forever. (Signed) John Hinckley."

A total of 1,023 students voted in Wednesday's election, a turnout of 9.7 percent.

The turnout in the March 4 election was 26.8 percent when 2,816 students cast votes.

In that election, Pepe won by 49 votes and Braxton outpaced Davison by 21.

"I look forward to working with (SGA President-Elect) Lester Nail and making it one of the better years in the school's history," Braxton said. "I would like to congratulate Peggy on a very clean campaign."

Lynn Calder, current SGA vice president, said, "Although both candidates were thoroughly qualified, I'm thrilled to pass the key to the vice-presidential office on to Marvin Braxton."

"It went great except the weather," Patrick said of the election. "The rain hurt the turnout."

Switch To Oil May Be Mistake

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The Carter Administration may have underestimated natural gas reserves and mistakenly ordered the nation's power plants to convert from oil to coal, a University of Florida energy expert said Tuesday.

"The federal government came out hardened by saying coal or else, and then someone reported lots of supplies of gas," Dr. Alex Green, a physicist and graduate research professor, said. "There could be 10 times the natural gas in the country than the amount that underlies their policy to switch to coal."

Green was referring to the 1978 Administration-backed energy legislation ordering power plants to draw up plans to switch from oil to coal.

The government experts at that time pessimistically estimated the country's known natural gas reserves at about 10 years supply.

But Green said recent discoveries of major reserves of gas in the West and in Oklahoma and Louisiana, enough to last up to 100 years at the current national rate of consumption, have drastically changed the energy picture.

Green, co-editor with Ray Jones of "Coal Burning Issues," a book that recommends conversion to coal as a way of "buying time" until other energy sources can be developed, also cited the deep gas theory of some Russian and American scientists.

That theory holds that there may be incalculable amounts of natural gas deep in the earth, enough to provide the entire world with energy for a millenia if it can be tapped.

"But even without deep gas, there are estimated new reports of gas to call for a re-evaluation of the government's policy," he said.

Referring to his book, Green said, "I am concerned that we might have narrowed down our options in our book. Our new idea is to consider a broader range of energy options because even if the year 2,000, we can come up with options that allow us to go in many directions."

Green said he is not advocating a total re-jection of dirty-burning coal, but does support the development of technology that would enable power plants to mix gas and coal into blends that burn like oil.

He said billions of dollars could be saved if existing oil-burning plants could be converted to burn the gas-coal blend.

"Gas-coal produces a more benign flame than coal," he said.

But Harris later admitted to reporters he has no proof the man arrested by police is a drug user and was basing his opinion on news pictures he had seen.

The bill Harris challenged would create a new misdemeanor penalty for possession of between one and four ounces of marijuana. Current state law now carries only a $50 fine for possession of an ounce or less, but possession of over an ounce is a felony with a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Legislation was introduced last month to create a maximum misdemeanor penalty of two years in prison and a $2,000 fine for people caught with amounts between one and four ounces.

In a related development, a state senator said Tuesday the incident was a reason the Legislature should not consider loosening the state's marijuana laws.

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, told the Senate Tuesday that Reagan's alleged assault was apparently a drug user.

"In all probability the man started with marijuana, got on heavy drugs and is now a mental case," Harris said, and voiced his opposition to a pending oil that would reduce marijuana penalties for possession of up to four ounces.

Insurance Rates May Change, Legislators Say

RALEIGH (UPI) — Four senators have proposed a bill that would require insurance companies to change the system they use to set insurance rates for drivers.

The measure introduced Tuesday in the Senate would abolish the industry's special point system. It was sponsored by Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland; Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Mecklenburg, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee; Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe; and Sen. William Redman, R-Iredell.

Insurance companies would be required to adopt the traffic violation points system used by the state Department of Motor Vehicles as the basis for determining insurance rates.

The DMV assigns points for moving violations and drivers with an excessive number within a specified time period risk having their licenses suspended.

Insurance companies use a separate point system for violations that are used to determine surcharges to basic auto insurance rates.

The bill also says insurance points may not be assessed unless a driver has been found guilty of a moving violation or is found liable for damages to another person.

The Legislature was hit with a flood of bills

SGA Meetings

Legislators Disrupt Proceedings

The Speaker's gavel had a workout at the Student Government Association meeting Tuesday, March 31. In fact, more was heard from it than from many of the representatives present at the meeting.

Private conversations were continuing in progress around the meeting room, in and out of context with the topic of discussion during the meeting. Individuals were in and out of their seats, walking around to confer with their fellow legislators. These actions were called down regularly by the Speaker, but continued throughout the proceedings.

Debate over the bills presented at the meeting varied from short and uncomplicated to lengthy and volatile. With little discussion or questioning, a proposal was introduced and approved to appropriate over $500 for a sports club on campus to purchase equipment. Later in the meeting, a long and involved debate broke out over the opening of two new polls for yesterday's election, and the possible closing of two that seemingly were not in well-traveled locations.

It seems questionable that an organization representing the students would spend more time arguing over polls for a run-off election than questioning the effective use of over $500 of the students' money.

This is not to say that there are no interested students involved in the SGA. Many of the representatives are hard-working, enthusiastic individuals who want to see legislation passed that will be of benefit to the students they represent. However, it is extremely unprofessional behavior when their dull roar of enthusiasm makes it impossible to hear the comments of the person recognized by the Speaker to address the assembly.

The loquaciousness of those representatives was contrasted, however, by the seemingly uninterested attitude of some of the others. Many of the student representatives did not participate in any of the discussions at all.

The Student Government Association can only be as effective as the students who support it. As demonstrated by the small percentage of students who participated in the last election, there is a definite epidemic of apathy throughout this campus. Some of this apathy has spread into the SGA as well.

As students at East Carolina, we are the foundation of the university. If we are not actively involved in our own student government and its activities, we can never hope to attain our potential excellence as a university.

Election Results Remain Uncertain

One more try for old times' sake? Well, maybe not.

We've just completed 'Round 2' of the continuing saga of the Student Government Association elections. Marvin Braxton came through with a convincing win (60-417) over Peggy Davison for vice-president, but incumbent Treasurer Kirk Little managed only a seven vote win over contender Angela Pepe.

Lame-duck President Charlie Sherrod hopes for another run-off, but the students of ECU may be spared this anguish by Pepe who feels the campaign has been a drain of her resources.

There is no doubt that Pepe could handle the duties of the office, and we applaud the dignified manner in which she ran her campaign.

Media 'Mislead' American People

WASHINGTON — Some of the nation's most powerful news media — including all three of the major television networks — are engaged in what amounts to an effort to mislead the American people concerning President Reagan's efforts to reduce the federal government's deficit spending.

There are two possible explanations: Either this is being done deliberately — or it is an act of ignorance on the part of the media. One thing is for sure: Their reports are not based on an actual examination of the Reagan budgetary proposals.

Meanwhile, seldom a night goes by without one or more "protest movements" being given nationwide television publicity. And I have not seen one instance in which President Reagan's side of the controversy has been given anything like objective coverage.

FOOD STAMPS — A great deal of caustic criticism has been directed at me, as well. Following public hearings on the food stamp program — hearings providing an equal balance of contrasting views — the major media, in large measure, virtually ignored testimony by several local and state administrators of the food stamp program — testimony which made clear that countless millions of dollars are wasted each year due to fraud, waste and inefficiency.

These hearings were conducted by the Senate Agriculture Committee, of which I am chairman. I presided over the hearings for nearly five straight hours one day, carefully listening to testimony by witnesses who came to Washington from various parts of the country.

They spelled out the ways in which the taxpayers are being ripped off. Their testimony confirmed precisely what we had been hearing from local and state administrators of the food stamp program over a long period of time.

EDITORIALS — Then came the usual spate of editorials. The morning paper in my hometown implied that I didn't really have much, if any, evidence of fraud and waste in the food stamp program. If I had such evidence, the paper sarcastically suggested, why did I not make it public?

I was astonished. For five straight hours, two days earlier, I had done precisely that — using food stamp administrators who are perfectly willing to testify under oath.

The staff of the Agriculture Committee called the Washington correspondent for The News and Observer, and left word that the detailed information his editor had demanding that morning was available for inspection. As I write this column, the paper has not published the evidence.

WHAT? — What are we supposed to do? How can such journalism be offset? Perhaps the minds of some editors are made up, and they don't want to be bothered by the facts.

Just the same, unless the food stamp program is tightened up considerably, it will cost the American taxpayers $11 billion this year, and far more than that in years to come.

The program has become so large and so costly that it is absolutely imperative to reduce its costs by eliminating duplication of benefits, by taking careful steps to remove those persons whose incomes are above the poverty level, and perhaps even foregoing a portion of automatic benefit increases in the future.

WORKFARE — A final note: Do you think it fair to require able-bodied people to do a little work in exchange for their food stamps?

A year or so ago, some of us in Congress included a requirement that a few random tests be conducted to determine what would happen if such a "workfare" requirement were made a part of the law.

A few areas were chosen in different states for this test. Guess what it showed: When able-bodied people were told that they would have to work for their food stamps, they decided they didn't want them. The test results show that 88 percent of the able-bodied food stamp applicants didn't report for work.

Campus Forum

East Carolina Pair Still Shows Support For Jeter

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an account of a conversation between supporters of the WZMB petition which was circulated on campus during Fall Semester, 1980. This account was submitted to The East Carolinian by Van Brown and Tom Zielinski and is reprinted as submitted.

Question: (Zielinski) It's seven months since the petition to reinstate John Jeter and save WZMB radio. What has or is happening concerning the station?

Answer: (Brown) First, I would like to apologize to all those 2,500 who faithfully signed the petition for not coming forward before now, but unfortunately I was taken seriously ill during the petition and have spent the last months recovering.

Q: Just what did you learn from petitioning the Media Board?

A: Well, it only reinforced everything John Jeter originally complained to me about in the summer of 1980. The Media Board minutes show that Ms. Killingsworth was originally accepted as a figurehead with Jeter remaining to do the technical work. She asked that he be removed from the staff when he ordered a piece of equipment while she was away on vacation. This equipment design was later accepted, I'll come to this later.

Q: There was talk that the Media Board or the chairman forced Jeter's resignation. What were the circumstances under which Jeter resigned?

A: John had been carrying the burden for some years. On the Friday before Labor Day 1980 Chairman (David) Creech told him he was not going to be able to finish the station and not to bother to sign up for school. At that point he cracked. This hurt John so bad after all the time he had put into it that we were unable to persuade him not to resign.

Q: What was the problem with the original equipment order?

A: Well in case you didn't know the original design was to be "state of the art" but because of budget problems the only way Jeter could do it was if he did all the hook up work himself supervised by the contractor. Mel (the contractor) balked on the contract because John resigned. He had already given us a sizeable price cut and if he had to pay to install the equipment himself he would have taken a big loss. Mel gave us a final delivery date anyway of the first week of December. Manager Killingsworth gave him an ultimatum that they had to have it by Nov. 15. She cancelled the order because she said it was taking too long. By the way, what month is it now?

Q: What is the status of the broadcast equipment now?

A: Since then, a state engineer who has helped with other university stations has redesigned our equipment order. It's no longer what you call state of the art. Chairman Creech allowed the original equipment order to be changed because he thought the state of the art transmitter design was illegal. The truth of the matter is that Mr. Jeter intended to use a more powerful high quality transmitter which is a type accepted by the F.C.C. to provide a clearer signal with less failure.

This is perfectly legal as long as the effective radiating power output does not exceed what is authorized by the F.C.C. Because Chairman Creech has no knowledge of broadcast electronics he was unable to conceive of the engineering design or the reasons behind it. The new equipment design approved by the WZMB Faculty Advisory Board is second rate at best. That's the good news!

The bad news is that (the present manager) that everyone wanted to give a chance) has not even ordered any new equipment. They have sent out for state bids. That took six months last time, and by the way the student body has lost another three or four thousand dollars due to inflation, taking into consideration the cancelling of the first order and paying a station staff that has only taken us backwards in time.

Q: Why is it taking so long to accomplish such a small feat?

A: I thought you'd never ask. During the debate over whether or not to accept the microwave unit which will save the students' money in the long run, Dean of Student Affairs Rudy Alexander buffaloed the student members of the board by accusing John Jeter of violating state law by ordering the equipment without a requisition or going through normal channels. Chairman Creech asserted the same thing. This is how they got the rest of the board to support Killingsworth. This was a total lie. The administration refused us access to the paperwork which would move otherwise, violation of the Federal Truth and Information Act. As if that isn't bad enough, try reading Media Board minutes concerning Jeter's resignation. There aren't any nor are there any minutes concerning the petition.

Discussion: Further, in order to keep us from going to the Board of Trustees with the complaint they refused to take up the petition because they had more important work on their calendar. What they considered more important than WZMB's $43,000 budget was trying to make all media have a 2.5 average to work, and changing their own constitution to add a new seat for next year. In this way the board stalled until after the Board of Trustees had already met for the semester.

Q: Why would the board purposefully do this?

A: At first I thought the board was responsible, but it really wasn't; at least some of its student members weren't. The problem is that Dean Alexander and Dean Meyer run the entire Board with the help of student collaborator David Creech. Meyer said at the first of the year he didn't want his children to listen to rock music. Alexander, meanwhile, has done everything possible to help this project fall on its face. This includes intimidating the newspaper to print its December editorial refuting that anything was wrong at WZMB. Intimidating the newspaper is nothing short of blackmail. Censorship is illegal. Furthermore, the News and Observer first reported problems with the ECU administration over WZMB in a December 1979 article.

Q: Where does WZMB go from here.

A: A new student needs to be found who understands radio station operations. There are quite a few who are qualified. What disturbs me is that although Killingsworth's term officially ends April 14, Chairman Creech says that he will be keeping Ms. Killingsworth in the office until June. What is to be gained from keeping her on since the board now admits it wants someone with electronic broadcasting credentials. Therefore, there really can be no solution to the problem until the administration quits manipulating the Media Board. There will never be a constitutionally democratic Media Board as long as Dean Alexander transgresses his advisory position. His advisory membership on the board is in no way in the student interest but merely an implement of political bargaining. With the aid of Dean Meyer, Chairman Creech plays petty politics as petty people who have nothing better to do. Furthermore, Mr. Alexander's conduct of slandering a former student I find nothing less than a disgrace for a state official.

Therefore along with the rest of the WZMB petitioning committee, I personally urge each of you, as the ripped off student body, to boycott the Mendenhall Student Center until you can decide what you want to do with your money instead of being told what you can spend it on.

Humanity Walk

I think that the Walk for Humanity, to be held on April 11th, is a SUPER activity to become involved in! The funds that are to be raised will be given to the hungry and the walking is very healthy. I hope that all ECU students will become involved in this beneficial project. Come on, put a little heart in your soul!

Student Copes With Rare Handicap

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story is about a student at East Carolina who has a severe handicap. As the student wishes to preserve his anonymity, he will henceforth be called Don for this article.

By KATHARINE KIMBERLY
Staff Writer

Don is one of thousands of Americans with a kidney dysfunction. Although he does have one kidney left in his body, it does not function properly, and he is on a Drake-Wilcox negative pressure dialysis machine. This machine serves the function of a kidney through a process of vacuuming the poisons from Don's body into an artificial kidney made of a selectively permeable cellophane-like material. The artificial kidney is surrounded by a dialysate fluid which contains a limited amount of necessary body components. The walls of the artificial kidney allow excess amounts of such minerals as potassium, sodium, nitrogen, and phosphates to diffuse through them until osmosis (a balance of the chemicals within and without) occurs.

This complicated process means that every two days, Don must go to the dialysis center in Doctor's Circle and spend about four hours on the machine for four and a half years. The most time he can spend away from the machine is two days; if he wants to make an extended trip, he must plan it a month in advance. He must choose a destination that has a dialysis center nearby, and make reservations to use the machines there. If any complications come up, such as minor injury or illness, the trip must be cancelled. He is also on a restricted diet and must limit his fluid intake. Because of the strain that the machine places on him, and the amount of time it consumes, Don is forced to take less hours in school, thus extending his graduation date. Another approaching problem is that the Greenville dialysis center, which has been operating on three shifts — seven to twelve, twelve to five, five to ten, approximately — is being forced to cut out the third shift for economic reasons. This cut will impose even greater restrictions on Don and the other patients who work or go to school.

There are alternatives to the dialysis machine. The CAPD (Continual Ambulatory Peritoneal Dialysis) is one. It works on the same basic principle as the dialysis machine, except that it is attached to the person's body. A tube is inserted into the peritoneum; on the tube is a bag into which is poured two liters of dialysate. The dialysate is forced into the peritoneum, which acts as the artificial kidney. The poisons drained back into the bag are emptied out, and another two liters of dialysate are poured back. This process is also lengthy, taking four to six hours, and is also very restrictive.

The best alternative for a dialysis patient is a kidney transplant. A transplant would free the patient from almost all restrictions except diet. The operation itself is not dangerous; the only danger lies in the possibility of the body rejecting the transplant. The first source contacted for transplantation is relatives; however if the patient has no relatives who are willing or able to donate a kidney, the patient is carefully typed and coded, and the information is fed into a computer. If a kidney is donated, its type is also fed into the computer. The computer then matches the organ to a patient with a similar typing.

Depending upon the rareness of the patients type and the abundance of donated organs, the match up could take from six months to ten years. The more organs there are to choose from, the greater the chance of a candidate finding one quickly.

The purpose of the organ donor program is to increase the amount of organs that can be used for transplantation.

The kidney is not the only organ needed for transplantation; medical advances in recent years have made possible the transplantation of over 25 different tissues and organs, including the heart, lungs, liver, bone marrow, and skin. As with kidney transplants, the success rate is high, and, in some cases, can save a life.

The Uniform Anatomical Gift Act has made it possible for anyone in the U.S. over the age of 18 to donate organs at death by completing the Uniform Donor Card. The Card enables one to donate all organs, specific organs, or his entire body for medical purposes. The condition of the donor's body or organs is irrelevant; the suitability of the donated organs can be made by the transplant team at the time of donation.

The Greenville Lion's Club, the E.C.U. Pre-Med Club, and the Episcopal Fellowship are sponsoring an Organ Donor Drive on April 8, 1981. The locations of the Donor tables will be Mendenhall Student Center, the Allied Health Building, Wright Auditorium, Evans Street Mall, Pitt Plaza, and the Carolina East Mall. The times of the Drive will be from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 4. So please, join Operation Survival and help to lengthen, strengthen, or save a life.

For Black History Month

Essay Wins SOULS Contest

EDITOR'S NOTE: This essay, written by Sylvia Jones, won first place in the essay contest sponsored by S.O.U.L.S. in observance of Black History Month, which was held in February.

By SYLVIA JONES

As I began this essay, I remember quite vividly a recurring dream I had as a child. This dream occurred every Sunday for approximately four or five weeks. In this dream I would be standing at the top of a mountain cliff, looking over the side. I would, somehow or another, fall over the edge. As I fell, my body revolved around and around but before I would reach the bottom, I would awaken. Finally, after a couple of weeks, I decided to go to my mother and I told her about the dream. I asked her what would happen if I ever hit the bottom. Her response was that I would probably die in my sleep. This frightened me very much and therefore, it became an overwhelming relief to awaken each Sunday morning thereafter. I remember the mornings being so beautiful, the sun shining brightly, and the very joy I felt at just being alive.

Later the dreams ended and I never experienced them again. However, in a very realistic sense, I am now living that dream. We are all living that dream. At this very moment, we are falling from a mountain cliff whose top we have yet to see. We have reached a point in history where we feel safe and free. As a result, we have taken our shoes off, relaxed, and fell asleep. It is Sunday morning again and if we continue to sleep we will collide with death. Wake up Black America! The struggles have been much too long and much too painful to end in a rapid, devastating fall. Our forefathers of slavery, post-slavery, and the civil rights battles have cried, ached, fought, and died that we might reach and remain on top of the mountain. Will all of that be made unimportant because of our neglect and disconcertment?

We must awaken and realize that the struggle and climb is not over. We are slowly slipping down and unless we unite as a group we will fall and the pain of a lifetime will be ours alone.

Not doubt many blacks are tired of this story and they do not appreciate the past. We have all been spoiled by being fortunate enough to be born during a lifetime where racial prejudice and violence is not as apparent as in the past. For this reason, the past must be remembered and its relationship to the present must be accepted. Through past works, toil, and education, the advancements and achievements of blacks are practically endless. This in itself is a blessing, an upward step, yet so many blacks, because of ignorance or selfish reasons, have turned all the achievements to a curse. They have been blessed, they have made it to the "top of the ladder", and they have forgotten as best they could where they came from and what so many others have done for them. For some reason they actually believe they made it on their own. Their attitudes have become threats to the future and destroy our previously established groundwork. The knowledge of the past instilled in black minds should be used in collective work and unity, not for personal gains alone. We must be as one, not as individuals who strive alone for self. Wake up Black America! It is not done this way. No one can survive alone, nor was anyone meant to do so.

We have not made it yet, and no matter how wonderful things look, the struggle must continue. We must be made to realize that no matter what advancements we make, no matter how high we climb as individuals, be it up a mountain or the socioeconomic ladder, we will still be black. We will still need each other to survive, and most important, we are still (or must be) a cohesive group. No height in the world will change skin color.

All of this is not to say that achievements are meaningless but let us not forget our sense of being. Let us not forget how we got where we are. It was not by our own works alone, it was not through the financial assistance of our parents nor was it the twenty-five dollars a month allowance. Instead, it was the struggles that began long ago during the days of slavery, up to the activities of the civil rights battles that paved the way for us all. It was

Bad Habits

Suppressed, But Never Eliminated

By DAVID NORRIS
Features Editor

Bad habits are those little flaws that can never be fully exercised from people, no matter how hard we or society may try.

The ceaseless war against what are deemed "bad habits" begins in our early childhoods. Parents violently suppress such activities as painting with toothpaste on the bathroom mirror or shaking up Cokes and spraying the ceiling with them, calling them bad habits.

Indeed, some things like nailing the back door shut never even get to be bad habits, since children seldom try them more than once after their parents find out about it.

Chewing gum was regarded as a horrendously bad habit in elementary school — it was much worse than talking in class (but not quite as bad as blowing up school buildings.)

Despite the disadvantages of chewing gum, such as having to write "I will not chew gum in class" hundreds of times or getting sticky gum all over everything or getting sore jaws from too much chewing, it was still a popular vice among kids back in my time. (Proof of this exists in the millions of pieces of gum stuck under desks and tables in every school in the country.)

Teachers were not immune to having bad habits. One of their worst habits was that of assigning sentences as punishment for almost any offense. I had one teacher who was making me write sentences every time I turned around. (Did you ever have to write "I will not turn around" fifty times?)

Bad posture is another vice that many of us indulged in. I never believed that the human body was meant to sit up straight with both feet flat on the floor, when slouching was so comfortable. (Until you develop permanent curvature of the spine, you never believe things like that.)

Another bad habit that can really rack you up is not eating properly. It's an understandable vice, since everything that tastes good ruins your stomach, teeth, liver or something and the stuff that's good for you tastes like axle grease.

Tobacco is the cause of some of the yuckiest habits in existence. (I don't smoke, as you can tell.) Actually, smoking is okay in anything but a closed environment, but chewing tobacco is pretty revolting, even in a well-ventilated area. There are, to be fair, a couple of good things about chewing tobacco — chewers can't accidentally burn anyone with their plug, and people don't stick their leftover tobacco under desk tops.

Cracking knuckles is one bad habit I never succumb to, since I can't get my knuckles to crack. I guess that's good, since if I ever start wearing rings, I won't have to worry about having fat fingers.

Bad table manners are an unsightly habit, but they are a lot more fun than eating politely. Utensils are really a nuisance most of the time, unless you're eating spaghetti or

Bad Habits Still Persist

 soup or something else that requires special tools to consume.
 Lots of rules of table etiquette are silly, anyway. When I was a kid, I had to eat peas and corn with a fork, because it was "polite". Today, I eat them with a spoon, because peas and corn always fall off the fork.
 Putting elbows on the table doesn't really hurt anything (as long as they're clean), but it has been branded as a bad habit. Actually, I've found that putting your elbows on the table during the meal reduces the chances of falling onto your plate by 50%.
 Procrastination is a bad habit that most people have, to some degree. (Isn't it nice that so many people can have things in common?) Since I started this article six weeks ago, it makes me somewhat of an expert on the subject.

 There's something profoundly human in the way we have of putting off unpleasant or merely dull tasks, even though we know the logical thing to do is to go ahead and get it over with. Look at it this way, though — if nobody ever put things off, everything would have been finished by now, and we wouldn't have anything to do.
 The total number and variety of bad habits available to people staggers the imagination. Playing

Hallow-Led Bucs Win 2 From ACC

A three-hit pitching performance by Bob Patterson and some heavy hitting by outfielder John Hallow helped ECU defeat Atlantic Christian 12-1 Tuesday and earn a sweep of the day's doubleheader.

The Bucs won the first game 5-2 as Bill Wilder hurled a seven-hitter, earning a complete game and improving his record to 3-2.

The somewhat quiet ECU bats of the first game turned into bombs in the nightcap. Hallow was the big gun, going five-for-five with three singles, a triple and a home run. He also was credited with five RBI's and three runs scored.

Patterson improved his record to 2-0 and the team's to 14-5, striking out nine while allowing only one run on three hits.

The Pirates scored their 12 runs on 13 hits.

The Bucs got things going in the opening inning. Hallow singled and scored the game's first run on a single by catcher Fran Fitzgerald.

ECU added four runs in the third.

Again Hallow was the main cog in the attack, his two-run triple the inning's highlight.

The Pirates came right back with three more runs in the fourth and two in both the sixth and seventh innings.

Hallow's two-run homer accounted for the sixth-inning scoring. ACC scored their lone run in the sixth in taking their 14th loss of the season against seven wins.

In the day's first game, the Pirates opened up their scoring in the third inning. Buc second baseman Mike Sorrell tripled and later scored on a fielder's choice hit by none other than Hallow.

In the fourth, the Bucs added two more runs. Todd Hendley doubled and scored on a Charlie Smith single. Centerfielder Robert Wells also crossed the plate in the inning.

ACC scored for the first time in the bottom of the fourth. Mike Hardison doubled and scored on a two-bagger by second baseman Chuck Downs.

The Christians marked again in the fifth. Tim Hardison's solo homer narrowing the ECU lead to 3-2.

The Bucs closed the door on any ACC hopes, though, in the seventh with two runs. Both Mike Sage and Hendley walked and later scored on Charlie Smith's triple.

Smith finished the game as the team's leading hitter, going two-for-four with two RBI's.

Following the day's action ECU coach Hal Baird said he was pleased with the team's play and hoped that it would carry over into the upcoming road stand.

"We played very well in two straight games," he said. "Both games we got good pitching and our bats came alive in the second game."

The second-game explosion was just what the doctor ordered, Baird hinted.

"I was very happy with that game," he said. "We needed one like that because all of them seem to have gone to the last innings lately. So we needed a laugher and I think maybe that is going to get us going a little bit down the road."

"Down the road" is just where the Pirates are heading. Today (Thursday) the team takes on N.C. State in Raleigh. The Wolfpack no doubt has revenge in mind, the Pirates having defeated them three times consecutively.

Next comes a game Friday at UNC-Charlotte and a doubleheader Saturday at Campbell.

"We've definitely got a tough week coming up," he said. "I certainly hope we can continue to play with the intensity we showed tonight."

Did NCAA Make Right Decision?

Much controversy has arisen in the past two days over the decision by the NCAA in deciding to go ahead with Monday's national championship basketball game between Indiana and North Carolina in the wake of the shooting of President Ronald Reagan.

Most of the complaints on the decision have come from papers from the metropolitan Northeast. Reading those papers would lead one to believe that the NCAA was cruel and non-patriotic. Such is simply not the case.

"The whole business should have been called off," claimed Mark Purdy of the Cincinnati Enquirer. "There are a few things more important than a national championship basketball game, and the United States President lying wounded in an emergency ward would seem to qualify as one of them."

No doubt the shooting of the president was more newsworthy and important than the title game, but should the game have been cancelled?

There are those that argue that the Academy Awards cancellation on Monday night and its rescheduling for Tuesday showed have been followed by the NCAA.

"In phony, grease-painted Hollywood, Oscar bowed his shiny head," said Hubert Mizell of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times. "The people who invented the motto, 'the show must go on', quickly voted to postpone the Academy Awards show."

"People who pray prayed," he continued. "My eyes became wet, as much for my wounded country as for my wounded President. It seemed no time to dribble, to shoot, to dunk, to cheer."

Though the nation was definitely stunned by the day's assassination attempt, there was no wrong done in going on with the game. Not under the circumstances.

Approximately one hour before gametime the word came from hospital Dr. Dennis O'Leary that the president was in good condition following surgery to remove the bullet that lodged in his left lung and that chances for his complete recovery were "excellent."

Dr. O'Leary went on to say to a national television audience and the press assembled at George Washington Hospital that he fully expected Mr. Reagan to be able to make any decisions required by his job on the following day.

Had O'Leary had worse news the NCAA would have, no doubt, cancelled the playing of the game. A final decision was not made until after the consolation game, not until the word came from O'Leary. The correct steps were taken in making the decision.

Under the conditions, the cancellation of the game would have certainly put the crowd of nearly 20,000 already in Philadelphia's Spectrum in a state of havoc. What would they do? What about reservations?

When would the game be rescheduled? All these questions and more would definitely take a backseat to a critically ill president.

But with the chief executive in good condition, the show had to go on. Reagan himself commented later in the night when asked how he felt, "All in all, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

Sure, the title game was played under adverse conditions. Everyone on the court certainly was affected by the terrible events of the afternoon.

The NCAA and NBC-TV simply made the best of a bad situation. They could not be asked to do any more than that.

Record Improves To 21-2

Lady Bucs Sweep Doubleheader

By WILLIAM YELVERTON
Assistant Sports Editor

On a perfect day for softball Tuesday, the Lady Pirates of East Carolina hosted the Spartans of UNC-Greensboro. When the invaders had left, the Bucs stood unscathed as they registered their 20th and 21st wins of the season against just two losses.

With temperatures in the 80s and a good crowd on hand, the Lady Bucs swept a double-header from the undermanned Spartans by scores of 8-0 and 12-0.

Even though the Lady Bucs put their best effort forward, they were merciful toward their visitors. "I don't want to say anything bad about their program," said head Coach Alita Dillon, "but they will probably drop to Division III after this season, even though they are in Division I right now."

The Pirates had the opportunity to play most of their younger players so they could help the club more as the season winds down. They played nearly perfect ball, which was nearly like the warm spring afternoon.

The Bucs jumped ahead in the bottom of the first when a Mitzi Davis sacrifice fly drove in a run thanks to a couple of walks.

Another run was added in the second when Lydia Rountree reached on an infield hit, and Fran Hooks walked. Melody Ham reached base on another Spartan miscue, scoring Rountree, placing the Pirates up 2-0.

Mary Powell led off the Pirate fourth with a single to center. Rountree singled, but Powell was thrown out advancing. Rountree took second, and scored the third run when Hooks singled.

In the Pirate fifth, Jo Clayton singled to center, and Mitzi Davis reached first on an error. Kathy Riley drove in Clayton with a single to right, and the Pirates built their lead to 4-0. Powell then singled to center, driving in Riley and Davis to put the Pirates ahead 6-0.

The Pirates loaded the bases in the bottom of the sixth due to a Angie Humphrey walk, a Melody Ham single to center and a walk to Clayton. Davis stepped up and drove in Humphrey and Ham with a double to right.

Humphrey was the winning pitcher and upped her record to 9-1.

"Overall, the first game wasn't too good because we should have gotten more offense," Dillon remarked. "However, UNC-G's pitching was very inconsistent."

The Pirates provided plenty of offensive fireworks for their coach in the second game. They exploded for eight runs in the first inning and cruised to the win. The game was stopped at the Spartan half of the fifth because the Pirates were more than 10 runs ahead.

Melody Ham walked to lead the barrage, and Clayton singled. Rountree reached first on an error, loading the bases. Cynthia Shepard singled to left, driving in Ham and Clayton, as the Bucs went up 2-0.

Hooks then singled, but Shepard was forced out at second, putting runners on the corners. Powell singled to center, and Rountree scored to make the score 3-0. Leslie Bunn reached first on an error, and Hooks scored. Shirley Brown then singled up the middle, scoring Powell, and the Bucs were leading 5-0.

Bunn scored on an error, and pitcher Jeanette Roth singled to left, scoring Brown. Ham walked, loading the bases. That brought Rountree up, and she reached first on an error that scored Barnes, and the Pirates were up 8-0.

In the Pirate second, Powell walked, and Brown's single to right put runners on first and second. Barnes singled, driving in Powell and Brown, and advanced to third on the center fielder's error. Roth doubled to score Barnes.

Bunn singled to left in the Buc fourth and took second on a bad throw from the outfield. Brown's sacrifice fly scored Bunn, and the Pirates had a 12-0 victory.

The Pirates were supposed to host N.C. State Wednesday afternoon, but the game was postponed to a later date due to inclement weather. The game has been rescheduled for April 17th.

Martin Inks With Tar Heels

Pirates Lose Out

From Staff and Wire Reports

DRY FORK, Va. — Less than 24 hours after losing to Indiana for the NCAA championship, North Carolina added another recruit to its growing list of all-stars that might lead the Tar Heels back to the Final Four.

Warren Martin, Tunstall High School's 7-foot center and one of the state's most highly recruited players, said Tuesday he would accept UNC's offer of a basketball scholarship and wear Carolina Blue for the next four years.

Martin said he chose among Carolina, Virginia, Virginia Tech, East Carolina, Jacksonville, James Madison and Richmond. One of he reasons he wanted to become a Tar Heel was because of UNC Coach Dean Smith, he said.

"I feel like he can teach me some more stuff about basketball. He can take up where Coach (Howard) West left off," Martin said at an afternoon news conference at Tunstall. "I like the campus, I like the players and their style of play."

Martin, who has only played two years of organized basketball, said he informed Tunstall Coach Howard West of his decision Sunday night. The other schools in the running were called Monday afternoon prior to the news conference, West said.

Martin joined a number of all-stars already committed to the Chapel Hill, N.C., school — 6-5 Mike Jordan of Wilmington, N.C.; 6-11 John Brownlee of Ft. Worth, Texas; 6-4 Buzz Peterson of Asheville, N.C.; and 6-1 Lynnwood Robinson of Dudley, N.C.

Jordan made Parade Magazine's first-team All-America list. Brownlee the third team and Peterson the fourth.

The high school senior, who celebrates his 18th birthday today, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Linsey Martin of Axton, Va., who were both at the news conference. Martin's father works at the Goodyear plant in Danville.

Martin said he didn't see competing for a starting spot against either 6-9 freshman Sam Perkins, the Atlantic Coast Conference's Rookie of the Year, and 6-8 sophomore James Worthy, as negative.

"Wherever I go, there will be competition. I know I was going to have to earn a spot no matter where I went," he said.

College coaches and recruiters have said Martin has made tremendous improvement during the past two years. Thanks mostly to Martin, Tunstall finished second to Group AA champion Martinsville in the Region III tournament.

In 45 games during two years, Martin scored 801 points, including a school-record 546 this season, for a 23.7 points per game average. He shot 72 percent from the floor and blocked 111 shots this year.

His career rebound total was 485, including 241 this season. He shot 69.7 percent from the foul line.

"I think he made a solid decision," said Tunstall Coach West. "It's a good program and a good coach, definitely big-time. I think Warren has made a commitment to be the best player he can be. He'll get a good education and basketball will take care of itself."

There had been speculation that Martin would attend Jacksonville next season. The word was that Jacksonville head coach Bates Locke had offered West a job as an assistant as part of a package deal to obtain Martin's services.

East Carolina coaches made no secret of the fact that they wanted Martin very badly.

"He could be the franchise for us," assistant George Felton said before the announcement.

In addition to Perkins and Worthy, Martin will have to compete for playing time against senior Chris Brust and freshman Brownlee.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Next year's finals of the National Basketball Championships are not Philadelphia, but doesn't mean it won't be heavily involved in the chase for another national title.

The Hoosiers won their fourth National crown Monday night in a 63-50 victory over North Carolina in their first title game since 1976, when they captured the big one on the same court.

"My first thought would be, really, does the touring committee want to come back to Philadelphia?" Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said. "It's a place for us to go to."

Monday night's test nearly was postponed because the association's temptations were Reagen, but NCAA officials, after much consultation, decided to hold the contest. Reagen's condition proved to be minor.

The 1982 Finals will meet at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans, expected to be in the thick of it.

The Hoosiers' four starters from their 26-9 championship team. That includes All-American Isiah Thomas, MVP of the tournament after scoring 30 points in the game, although NBA scouts would like to see a 6-foot-1 sophomore.

"Right now I'm sure I'll be at Indiana University."

Bennett Still Hurting

ATLANTA (UPI) — Leeman Bennett has done his best to ease the pain of the Atlanta Falcons' blowout Super Bowl loss.

Cowboys to see touchdowns in key moments of the playoff game.

"It still stings," the coach said, watching his 1980 highlights on the back room popular Pea Street bistro.

"No matter how great the film is, playing (while) being Atlanta's 12-4 record in a division championship," said Bennett, "you always want a little bit farther."

The Falcons, Jan. 4 game, 10-point, 27-10 with less than minutes to play their fans had gone into a dance.

But Danny Bennett lofted two touchdowns to Drew Pearson — the first a 14-yard pass with 3:40 left, second a 23-yard, 42 seconds left. It was Dallas, not Atlanta, headed for the championship game.

Bennett said he wanted to put that 30 out of his mind, keeps coming just when you've gotten a pain of something like (film) brings again.

"It's an up and down thing," said Bennett. "I guess it really goes away until you all some day."

Bennett believed day may not be away.

Indiana Should Be Strong Again

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Next year's finals of the NCAA Basketball Championships are not in Philadelphia, but that doesn't mean Indiana won't be heavily involved in the chase for another national title.

The Hoosiers won their fourth NCAA crown Monday night at the Spectrum with a 63-50 victory over North Carolina. It was their first title since 1976, when they also captured the big prize on the same court.

"My first thought would be, really, when does the tournament committee want to come back to Philadelphia?" asked Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "It's a good place for us to play."

Monday night's contest nearly was postponed because of the assassination attempt on President Reagan, but NCAA officials, after much consultation, decided to hold the contest when Reagan's condition improved.

The 1982 Final Four will meet at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans, and expect Indiana to be right in the thick of things.

The Hoosiers return four starters from the 26-9 championship team. That includes All-America guard Isiah Thomas, named MVP of the tournament after scoring 23 points in the finals, although NBA scouts would like to see the 6-foot-1 sophomore turn pro.

"Right now I'm pretty sure I'll be back at Indiana University,"

Thomas said Monday night of his current plans.

The other returning starters are 6-6 guard Randy Wittman, who bombed away from the outside against North Carolina for 16 points, 6-10 center-forward Landon Turner and 6-8 forward Ted Kitchel. Another player to figure prominently in Indiana's plans is 6-3 reserve guard Jim Thomas, who made the All-Tournament team with his hustling all-around play.

What may send shudders throughout the Big Ten is Knight's opinion that the best days of the current Hoosier team might be ahead.

"We've undergone a maturation process through the course of the year and through that have developed more experience," said Knight, whose team was 7-5 in December before turning its season around. "This team has grown and developed. But I think they haven't finished maturing yet. That should come some time next year."

The only starter the Hoosiers will lose is 6-9 center Ray Tolbert, who is Knight's choice for the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player. Tolbert scored just five points but pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds against the Tar Heels.

Indiana's five-game march through the NCAA tournament was devastating. Its smallest margin of victory was 13 points, and the aggregate point spread over five contests was a whopping 113 points, or nearly 23 a game.

As for North Carolina, which finished 29-8, coach Dean Smith says farewell to two starters — Al Wood, the silky 6-7 forward who scored 57 points in the two games, and guard Mike Pepper.

North Carolina Soccer League

The Stoh's Aliens took a tough come-from-behind victory Sunday over NC Wesleyan by a 2-1 margin. The first half was scoreless although the Aliens had two wide open shots right in front of the goal. They also missed a penalty kick.

In the second half, Wesleyan was awarded a penalty kick after a trip in the Aliens' penalty area. Tony Ferrell converted the kick to give Wesleyan a 1-0 lead with only 22 minutes left in the match. At this point, the Aliens buckled down and tied the score on a well-placed shot from a narrow angle by Mike Hitchcock. Then, with only five minutes remaining in the game

Steve Young hit an excellent pass that found Jeff Karpovitch wide open in front of the goal. He fired the ball into the back of the net to give the Aliens the victory.

As for the American Defender Soccer Club, defeat was tasted for the first time this season as they lost to NC Wesleyan Thursday in Rocky Mount, 1-0. After having numerous opportunities to score throughout the game, the Defender's defense made a mistake that cost them the match. A fullback was trying to pass the ball back to the goalie but instead pushed the ball into the net to give Wesleyan the victory.

On Sunday, though, the Defender's got back in the win column with a 3-1 win over the Kick Soccer Club in Wilson. All the goals were scored in the second half with Shawn Berry leading the way with two. Bill Merwin also hit the nets while Keith Johnston and Steve Brody each gave an assist to Berry.

Team Handball Club

The ECU Team Handball Club participated last weekend in the Sixth Annual West Point Team Handball Invitational Tournament in New York. Even though they played some very high-class competition, they made a respectable showing. As for the men, the event was double-elimination against 11 other teams from the United States and Canada. In their first game they lost 11-10 to Citadelles de Quebec who ended up in third place, and then were defeated by an excellent Toronto All-Stars team, 13-7. In a consolation game, the men's team, soundly defeated the New York City Team Handball Club, 22-3.

As for the women, they won the first game they played, defeating West Point Club 10-6. The girls, most of whom were playing in their first tournament, lost their next four games to some extremely talented teams from Canada.

Every one who made the trip got equal playing time, and much valuable experience was gained.

Men's Rugby

The Men's Rugby team had a split decision with the Fort Bragg Rugby Club last Saturday. In the "A" game, Ft. Bragg was the winner by a 39-14 score. Scott Taylor scored two tries for ECU while Lee Essner added another.

Women's Rugby

The Women's Rugby Club is entered this weekend in the 1981 Michelob Rugby Classic at the University of South Carolina. The field also includes UNC-Charlotte and Clemson. ECU plays USC Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Soccer Clinic Set

Hubert Vogelsinger, former Australian professional soccer player and North American Soccer League coach, will direct the Puma Soccer Clinic at ECU April 3-5.

Emphasis will be placed on skill development and tactics. Separate sessions for coaches, beginners (boys and girls) and advanced players will be held. The clinic will be conducted at the ECU Soccer Field at Minges Coliseum.

Vogelsinger was one of the most successful pro coaches in the history of the NASL. He won four division titles, two with the Boston Minutemen and two with the San Diego Sockers. His teams reached the playoffs every year and finished in the semi-finals--Conference Championships--three times.

As a collegiate coach, he brought Yale University into national prominence when Yale participated for the first time in the Elis' soccer history in the NCAA playoffs and reached the New England finals.

per skills in the young players just starting the game. The Puma Soccer Clinics have been created to provide help in both cases.

At ECU, the April 3rd session will be from 7-9 p.m. This session is only for coaches and parents.

The April 4th session will be from 10 in the morning until noon. This session is for ages 7-13. The 2-4 p.m. session will be for the 14 and up age group.

On April 5th, by invitation only, there will be another session from 1 to 1 p.m.

Vogelsinger is a member of the promotional board of Puma USA, the American marketing company for the internationally famous German sport shoe company.

"Soccer is the coming sport in America," said Vogelsinger, who repeatedly pressed for "Americanization" of the game while an NASL coach. "I believe the United States has the greatest soccer potential of any nation in the world, but we need more experienced coaches and we need to develop proper skills in the young players just starting the game. The Puma Soccer Clinics have been created to provide help in both cases."

At ECU, the April 3rd session will be from 7-9 p.m. This session is only for coaches and parents.

The April 4th session will be from 10 in the morning until noon. This session is for ages 7-13. The 2-4 p.m. session will be for the 14 and up age group.

On April 5th, by invitation only, there will be another session from 1 to 1 p.m.

Yanks Get Mumphrey In Trade With Padres

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Switch-hitting outfielder Jerry Mumphrey of the San Diego Padres was traded to the New York Yankees Tuesday night for outfielders Ruppert Jones and Joe Lefebvre and pitcher Tim Lollar and Chris Welsh.

Mumphrey, 28, stole 52 bases last year, helping make the Padres the only team in baseball history to have three players with 50 or more stolen bases. He hit .298 and knocked in 59 runs.

In the deal, the Yankees also acquired John Pacella, a 24-year-old right-hander who was landed by San Diego from the New York Mets in a previous deal for left-hander Randy Jones.

Pacella, 3-4 with a 5.14 ERA last year, was immediately sent to the Yankees' AAA farm club in Columbus.

One year ago, Jones, 26, was considered the Yankees' center fielder of the future, but he suffered two major injuries and played in only 83 games, batting .223. The key to the deal as far as the Padres are concerned could very well be Lefebvre, 25, who bats left and has a strong throwing arm. Lefebvre batted .227 for the Yankees last year but showed some power, hitting eight home runs and driving in 21 runs in only 150 at-bats.

Both Welsh, who will be 26 later this month, and Lollar, 25, pitched for Columbus, which won the International League championship last season.

Lollar was 2-1 with a 2.57 ERA for Columbus and went 1-0 with a 3.43 ERA in 14 appearances for New York, saving two games. Welsh was 9-12 with a 2.73 ERA for Columbus.

The acquisition of Mumphrey further complicates the Yankees' outfield situation. The only sure starter is free agent Dave Winfield, who could open in right because of an injury to slugger Reggie Jackson. The Yankees have already sent center fielder Bobby Brown to Columbus and veteran center fielder Elliot Maddox has been working in New York's camp on a tryout basis.

New York Manager Gene Michael said Mumphrey will probably be in the starting lineup as the Yankees' No. 2 hitter.

"I haven't seen Jerry Mumphrey play but the scouts say he's a good player," said Michael. "Right now, I'm thinking of him being the No. 2 hitter."

Michael, who managed Columbus last year, said he was impressed with Pacella, claiming, "He had the best arm in our league."
