Vice Chancellor Maier Resigns; Volpe Fills In

Dr. Robert Maier
...Steps Down From Post

By GREG RIDEOUT
News Editor

Dr. Robert H. Maier, vice chancellor for academic affairs, resigned Monday to accept a research position with the Department of Surgery in the ECU School of Medicine. Dr. Angelo Volpe, currently dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will fill the post until an acting vice chancellor is named. Under Maier's leadership, the office of academic affairs' accomplishments include the hiring of various new deans, the approval of a graduate program in nursing and a more equitable method of determining salaries.

Maier is especially proud of the academic lecture series he initiated on campus last year when Dean Rusk gave a series of talks over a three day period. This year's guest speaker will be Ralph Nader.

Chancellor John M. Howell said he wished Maier well in his new position and pointed to the importance of his new work.

Volpe said his stay in the chief academic post will only be until an acting vice chancellor is named. He said the decision will be made by Howell and will be approved by the UNC Board of Governors. After the acting vice chancellor is named, a search committee will be appointed to find a permanent replacement for Maier.

Maier replaced Howell in 1979 as the chief academic officer of the University. He had previously been a professor of science and environmental change and of public and environmental administration at the University of Wisconsin at Green Bay.

Maier, whose new title will be professor of experimental surgery, has an extensive background in soil chemistry. He graduated from the University of Miami with a double major in botany and chemistry in 1951, and received his masters and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois in plant and soil chemistry in 1952 and 1954.

The former administrator's work at the medical school will include the researching of the influence of trace elements on the human body.

Maier explained that after 15 years as an administrator at ECU and the University of Wisconsin, it was time for a change in duty. He said overseeing the functions of an academic department from day to day was tough and welcomed the opportunity to do research again.

The research and publications by Maier in the scientific and academic planning fields are extensive.

After Maier received his doctorate, he served as technical adviser to the Army Chemical Corps in classified biological research.

In 1965-66, he was one of 23 fellows in academic administration chosen by the American Council on Education and was assigned to UNC-Chapel Hill to work in the office of the president of the UNC System.

Anheuser-Busch Accused Students Protest Discrimination

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Staff Writer

Several members of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity were soliciting student support yesterday for a nation wide boycott of Anheuser-Busch, the makers of Budweiser and Michelob beer.

The protesters, who gathered at the Student Supply Store, contend that Anheuser-Busch is practicing discriminatory policies in the hiring of blacks and in the sale of distributorships to blacks.

According to Alpha Phi Alpha treasurer Gregory Chalmers, an ECU senior in business, the four-month old boycott was initiated by the Chicago-based group, People United to Serve Humanity.

"PUSH is a national human rights organization that is concerned about educational, economic and political equity disparity," said PUSH's press spokesman the Rev. Frank E. Watkins. He added they support research, education, negotiation and direct action as viable tactics for their justice work.

PUSH claims that the entire beverage industry, not just Anheuser-Busch, is practicing discriminatory policies against blacks by continuing a policy of "restraint of private trade."

Statistics released by PUSH claim that the beverage industry (beer, wine, spirits and soft drinks) controls 12,600 franchises, of which only eleven are black-owned.

PUSH claimed they focused their boycott campaign on Anheuser-Busch because blacks account for approximately 10 percent of the Anheuser-Busch's beer market, or about $400 million in annual revenues for the company. "Before we are finished, everyone in the beverage industry will be asked to negotiate a trade agreement," said the chairman and national president of PUSH Jesse Jackson.

Jackson said Anheuser-Busch is remaining firm in its refusal to adopt many aspects of the PUSH "fair share" proposal. The fair share proposal, states that companies should have the same percentage of blacks employed that do business with the company.

PUSH would like to see blacks account for 10 percent of all Anheuser-Busch employees at managerial and administrative levels, as well as in the area of distributorships. "We wanted to make people aware of the problem," Chalmers said. "They're discriminating against blacks."

The Alpha Phi set up a table at the Student Supply Store and asked students to sign the petition supporting the boycott.

"Help PUSH take on Busch — support the PUSH boycott of Anheuser-Busch products," stated a sign the group was displaying. Chalmers pointed out that of the 950 distributorships that are controlled by Anheuser-Busch in the United States only three are operated by blacks; two of those have been acquired since the beginning of the boycott.

Chalmers said that black officials across the country have supported the boycott by introducing and passing legislation that states their agreement with the PUSH action.

"There's been a lack of knowledge about the boycott," said Alpha Phi Alpha member Shawn Lane, an industrial technology student. "We're informing the people about what is going on. They (Anheuser-Busch) have been pretty slack as far as advancing blacks in their organization and giving blacks distributorships of their products."

Roger Via, general manager of Jellies Beer and Wine Company, the official distributor of Anheuser-Busch products in Greenville, disagreed strongly with the PUSH position, claiming that the purchase of distributorships was strictly based on ability to buy. Via denied that any discrimination against blacks was taking place.

"We're employing blacks," Via told The East Carolinian. "I don't see any discriminatory actions at Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity members join with a PUSH movement in opposing the hiring practices of the Anheuser-Busch company, which they claim are discriminatory.

ECU Trustees Approve Plan To Award Honorary Degrees

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Staff Writer

The ECU Board of Trustees has approved suggested procedures for granting honorary degrees to "recognize people who have made important contributions to East Carolina University or to education in general." The measure has also been approved by the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system.

"The university has not considered offering honorary doctorates in the past," Howell told The East Carolinian, "and now is the appropriate time to do it."

Howell noted that since ECU is at present offering academic doctoral degrees, it is appropriate to offer the honorary doctorates.

"We're aware that we are now an institution of sufficient status and it (an ECU honorary degree) amounts to something important," Howell said.

Action by the Board of Trustees came by approval of the executive committee to a Nov. 23 letter that outlined procedures from Howell.

Trustee C. Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte headed an ad hoc committee which studied the matter. Kinsey reported for the executive committee to the full board Dec. 4.

According to Howell, a seven-member panel to be chaired by the dean of ECU's graduate school will be given the authority to receive recommendations and to make nominations to the chancellor of possible recipients of the new degree.

The six other members of the Honorary Degree Committee will include one faculty member selected by the ECU Graduate Council, two faculty members selected by the Faculty Senate and three trustees selected by the Chairperson of the Board of Trustees.

"They (the Honorary Degree Committee) will simply receive nominations and make recommendations to me," Howell said. "Then I'll submit that to the Board of Trustees for their final approval."

There will be two types of honorary degrees awarded by ECU. One will be a Doctor of Letters (Litt. D.) and the other a Doctor of Science (D.Sci.) In the case of

"exceptional circumstances" a more specialized degree could be awarded or a different honorary or memorial distinction can be designated by the Board of Trustees.

The final guidelines for the honorary degree proposal notes that "eminent achievement in scholarship, public affairs, service to the university, service to the state or nation or in activities recognized as significant in the educational world," will constitute the primary basis for an honorary degree.

The awarding of honorary degrees will be limited to three per year, except as otherwise recommended by the Board of Trustees.

Recipients of the degree exclude any members of the Board of Trustees, the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina or any of its constituent institutions. Members of the faculty, staff or administration of the University of North Carolina are also excluded.

Foreign Students

Mid-Year Enrollment Hits Record High

By DARRYL BROWN
Assistant News Editor

Thirty new foreign students enrolled at ECU this semester, the largest mid-year enrollment ever, according to Lucy Wright, advisor to foreign students at ECU.

"We usually have a drop in foreign students at spring semester," Wright said, noting that the university's overall enrollment normally declines in January. This term, however, foreign student enrollment increased from 93 last semester, even though some foreign students did leave in December.

A delegation of 14 students from Malaysia make up the largest group from any one country at one time. Other new arrivals come from widely varying nations including Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Malawi, Kenya, England, Thailand, Norway and Ghana. ECU has foreign students from over 35 different nations around the world.

"We get most foreign students by word of mouth," Wright said, noting that ECU has no special programs to recruit students from outside the United States.

According to Wright, the academic offerings of the campus attract many overseas students. "Most came because of a particular academic program." The Malaysian delegation, she said, came to study in the city planning curriculum of the geography department.

"Most study in an area of technology, especially students supported by their government," Wright said. About half the students attending ECU from other countries are supported by their governments. The ECU departments of computer science and business make ECU attractive to many developing nations. "I think the needs in particular countries and the programs we have to offer bring students here," she said.

Wright cited ECU's low foreign student population as an advantage for the visitors. "It is a good situation for them," she said, noting many have never been to the United States before. ECU has a foreign student enrollment of less than one percent, below the average of 2.6 percent for American universities.

While ECU has no special language program that teaches English to foreign students, Wright says "A lot come with very good English. They would surprise you." Many have studied English since elementary school in their native countries.

ECU owns an International House at 306 E. 9th St. which, in addition to housing 10 students, holds activities for all ECU pupils and gives American students a chance to meet people from various backgrounds. Wright encouraged all students to take advantage of the opportunity.

Youth Contraceptive Rules Suggested For Federal Family Planning Clinics

By MIKE HAMER
Staff Writer

In his last act before resigning as Secretary of Health and Human Services Richard Schweiker Monday recommended a rule requiring family planning clinics supported by federal funds to notify parents of minors who receive prescription contraceptive drugs or devices.

Dr. Nash Love, ECU professor in the Department of Child Development and Family Relations expressed his opposition to the rule.

"Technically, I feel that kids should be able to talk to their parents," Love said. "But it will keep kids from getting appropriate information. I really feel it will have bad consequences.

"I would like to think that kids and parents would discuss all crucial matters, including sexual matters. This rule will create more sexual problems and unwanted pregnancies — it will not stop teen-age sexual behavior. That has been proven by studies."

In his statement Monday, Schweiker said, "This department has a deep responsibility to protect the health and safety of minor adolescents who are given prescription birth control drugs and devices paid for with taxpayer dollars."

Schweiker cited the 1981 budget act in which Congress encouraged parental participation in a teenager's use of family-planning services that receive federal funds.

"While this rule does not mandate family participation, its great benefit is that it will provide an opportunity for family involvement where parents were previously kept in the dark," he said.

Mr. Johann Bleicher, principal of Agnes Fullilore Community School in Greenville, said, "I think that obviously the intent is to insure parental involvement in the sexual choices

Raise Your GPA In Seven Weeks Or Less?

By STEVE DEAR
Staff Writer

A program which is said to help raise students grade point averages by one quality point is once again being offered. The program, "Increasing Learning Efficiency", is being offered free of charge to all interested students by the Counseling Center.

The program will aid students who wish to learn the most efficient ways of organizing time schedules, better reading skills, how to take and prepare for tests and how to take better notes. "Essentially the program teaches students how to be good students," said Dr. Phyllis McAllister of the Counseling Center. According to McAllister, the program has existed since 1962 when it was started by Dr. George Weigand.

Last year 202 students participated in the program.

A study conducted by the Counseling Center several years ago revealed that regular students who participated in the program raised their GPA's by about one grade point.

The program will consist of two classes per week for a period of about seven weeks. It will be offered again in the middle of the semester.

Two different classes will be held for the program. Dr. Weigand will teach the classes on Mondays and Wednesdays at 1 p.m. beginning next Monday. Dr. Ione Ryan will teach the classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

Both groups will meet in Wright Annex room 305.

Students who cannot attend the regular classes may be helped on an individual basis. Also, small groups wishing to have their own classes conducted at different times may do so, according to McAllister.

The Counseling Center is also offering several other programs for students. A two part mini-series entitled "How to Succeed in College and Still Have Fun" and "How to Avoid Test Anxiety" will be held on Monday and Tuesday respectively next week. Both sessions will be conducted from 3 to 4 p.m. in 305 Wright Annex.

Also, a two part mini-series entitled "Career by Choice not Chance" will be offered from 3 to 5 p.m. The first session will hold classes on Jan. 24 and Feb. 7 and the second session will hold classes on Jan. 25 and Feb. 8. The Strong-Cambell Vocational Interest Inventory will be administered in the first meeting of both sessions.

No advanced registration is necessary for any of the programs.

Car Towing Rules To Be Enforced

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Staff Writer

Joe Calder, director of the ECU Department of Public Safety, has issued an early semester warning to ECU student, faculty and staff to abide by the university's policies regarding vehicle registration and parking on university property.

"The towing policy regarding unregistered vehicles is strictly enforced in the vicinity of the residence halls," read a memo from the director's office, "all unregistered vehicles will be towed."

"I hate to give these towing companies any money," Calder said. "All we do is give them the business, we don't make any money when a vehicle is towed and impounded."

Calder said he wanted to remind the students what the policy is now, just as the semester is beginning.

"During the first couple of weeks of school some students tend to forget the regulations," Calder said. Many students, the director added, are not even aware of the vehicle policies.

When the vehicle is towed or impounded, it will cost the driver $20 during the day and $25 at night. Additional fees ranging from $2 to $10 will also be assessed.

Calder noted that the College Hill area was frequently congested and was the source of many complaints from students concerning illegally parked cars. "A ticket on a vehicle doesn't give people a parking place," Calder said. "Students up there really resent illegally parked cars."

The memo from Calder's office said visitors are not authorized to park in the vicinity of the residence halls overnight. Visitors desiring overnight parking permits must request a special pass from the traffic office.

of their children. I support the notion. We would wish that parents would be involved.

However, where parents are not already communicating with the adolescents by the age of 13 or 14, the fact that they couldn't receive birth control prescriptions would not force communication.

"The key issue is the fantasy that you can legislate communication. Our fear is that if an adolescent makes a choice to have sex, then it is highly unlikely that if an adolescent girl cannot get prescription birth control devices, this will stop her. This rule will actually increase the chances of unwanted pregnancies."

The parental notification requirement would not apply to the giving of birth control information, counseling or non-prescription contraceptives to minors, nor would it apply to the dispensing of drugs to treat sexually transmitted disease.

Under the proposed rules, family planning agencies receiving federal funds under Title Ten of the Public Health Service Act would be required to notify a parent or guardian within ten days after a minor received a prescription contraceptive or device.

Notification would have to be made through certified mail or in some other form that could be documented.

Dr. Norma Lewis, a registered nurse and a private counselor with Family and Psychological Services in Greenville, said about the rule, "I think it's counterproductive for those adolescents who confidentiality won't be able to be respected."

Dr. M.L. King

A Legacy Of Spirit

If one takes the time to look closely at history, he will notice that despite our multitudinous volumes of "great men and women," only a select few have affected changes that can be deemed truly meaningful, truly historic.

In spite of our misguided 20th-century conception of greatness, in which we errantly equivocate the term with the oval office, few, if any, of our nation's leaders have changed the course of events with the same zeal and lasting implications as the late, great Martin Luther King Jr.

Throughout the Sixties, King championed the cause of racial equality. Both his work and his legacy of justice remain unparalleled.

Unlike so many of today's "leaders," for whom world renown seems, at times, the ultimate goal, King did not aspire to greatness. His civil concerns and battles transcended such selfish desires.

Perhaps it is all too easy for us to forget the days of "whites only" bathrooms, restaurants and water fountains. Perhaps the days of forced low-income jobs are among those we would all like to forget. But if in forgetting about those days of flagrant civil rights violations we should forget the men and women who affected these tremendous changes, then surely we have forgotten too much.

We do not maintain, as our purpose, to bestow idealistic praise on a "dreamer." Nor do we call for a national holiday commemorating King's birthday. Despite the obvious validity of both of these, we find our purpose more in calling to mind the tremendous strides achieved during King's "reign."

Although he devoted his life to speeding the cause of racial equality, much of King's work was not realized until after his tragic death in 1968. His was, indeed, an incredible legacy... a legacy of followers and a legacy of spirit.

King fought with unmatched strength, yet he never once raised a hand in battle. His was a non-violent fight, a peaceful war, waged on the unseeing eyes, unhearing ears and unfeeling hearts of a nation deeply engrained in segregation and bigotry.

Jan. 16 marks the 54th anniversary of the birth of this great man. Unfortunately, he is not remembered in the same fashion as many of this nation's finest leaders. Nevertheless, through the tremendous strides he inspired during his lifetime, the spirit of his anniversary remains a commemorative day in the hearts of those he worked so hard to free.

Reagan Sounds 'Death Knell'

By PAT O'NEILL

Last Friday's decision by the Reagan administration to lift a five-year embargo on arms sales to strife-torn Guatemala was an insult to the American people and a death knell to the Guatemalan people.

The administration claims that the Guatemalan government has "taken steps" to end the human rights abuses that prompted President Carter to cut off military aid in 1978.

Unfortunately, among human rights groups and many United States leaders, there is little or no agreement with these official administration claims.

In a November report issued by the National Council of Churches, the Guatemalan government was accused of "gross and consistent violations of human rights." It also claimed that the Guatemalan army carries out "extrajudicial killings of men it identifies as supporters of the guerrillas, using hooded informers frequently in the presence of families and neighbors of the victims."

The internationally respected human rights organization and recipient of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, Amnesty International, claims similar horrors. AI says that the Guatemalan army under the new government of Gen. Efraim Rios Montt has killed more than 2,500 Indians and guerrillas since it came into power last March.

Rios Montt is a born-again Christian who claims his rise to power was through divine appointment. "We have no scorched-earth policy," he said recently. "We have a policy of scorched communists."

"More accurately," reports the News and Observer, "it is a policy of killing Indian peasants."

Gail Phares, coordinator of the Carolina Interfaith Task Force on Central America (CITCA), said in this paper's Jan. 7 issue: "Certainly the findings of the National Council of Churches, Amnesty International, America's Watch and the Organization of American States Human Rights Commission all indicate that the Guatemalan government is carrying out a systematic mass murder of Indian people that makes the Beirut massacre in Lebanon pale."

Reagan, on the other hand, claims that Rios Montt has gotten a "bum rap" and is convinced that the Guatemalan leader is dedicated to progressing toward democracy.

Either Reagan is a liar, or he doesn't read — the American and Guatemalan people are the ones getting the bum rap. He's turning U.S. tax dollars into blood money and supporting the slaughter of the Indian people.

What it comes down to is that the U.S. will militarily support any nation which claims to be working against communism regardless of how its government treats its own people.

Perhaps the News and Observer said it best in its editorial of Jan. 11: "For the Reagan administration to believe that conditions in Guatemala have been transformed overnight is preposterous. Under Rios Montt's boot, the peasants have been reduced to struggling for survival. It is their plight, not the general's anti-communism, that should bring aid from America."

Arms Embargo Lift A Blessing

By KEITH BRITTAIN

The current goal of the Reagan administration is to preserve democracy in Central America. Democracy in this region is threatened by an ever-growing menace to freedom: the Soviet Union.

Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras are literally fighting for their survival against the Marxist countries of Nicaragua and Cuba, the training grounds for communist guerrillas.

The Soviet Union's latest vie for Central America is a classic example of their motus operendi for subjugation. Cuban radio belts forth great tales of human rights violations in these countries. No one can deny that there have been human rights violations to a certain extent. Presidents Montt of Guatemala and Magana of El Salvador have taken steps to end these actions. The greatest and most flagrant examples of human rights violations, though, are perpetrated by the communist guerrillas.

Recently in El Salvador, four communist rebels dressed, of course, like Salvadoran National Guardsmen, killed four civilians and wounded three others. Last November, 200 civilians were kidnapped to be "re-educated."

The current Soviet imperialism in Central America is accompanied by well-planned propaganda. The pro-Soviet groups are taught to invent great accounts of human rights violations by the anti-communist governments. These democracies are also unjustly assaulted by peace groups and other anti-American organizations.

The Carolina Interfaith Task Force on Central America follows Cuba and Nicaragua in condemning the anti-Soviet countries. One should notice that "human rights" groups, such as CITCA, only criticize pro-U.S. countries such as El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras. They are never appalled by Marxist countries like Nicaragua.

Communist rebels took over the country in 1979. They were promised reforms and free elections. The elections have now been "put off" until 1986. In 1986, the elections will be "put off" again. Soviet tyranny has no room for free elections.

Central America is being slowly engulfed by the Soviet menace. The Reagan administration is supplying weapons to democracies to fend off the fetid cancer that is trying to strangle the people. Communists have even infiltrated the Catholic Church in Guatemala. Hundreds have left Catholicism to join the Evangelist Church.

Sister Helen Shondell is the local spokesperson against U.S. military involvement in Central America. Do these leftists realize this would result in Soviet domination of Central America? Maybe so.

The national security of the United States can only be maintained by a free Central America. This huge land mass would serve as a launching pad for a Soviet invasion of the U.S.

President Cordova of Honduras is assisting Washington in preventing the flow of arms from Nicaragua to El Salvadoran rebels. Cordova recently stated, "through a mutual effort, Honduras and the United States will thwart and eventually stop the torturing and killings by the communist guerrillas."

The White House is concerned about the people of the war-torn region. In El Salvador, for example, farmers' crops are regularly burned by the rebels. Leftist and communist sympathizers in the American news media would have us believe that the people welcome the guerrillas. This is, to say the least, an untruth. The rebels do not bring reform; they bring only death and destruction. It is simply not safe to wander the streets at night for fear of rebel attacks.

Thank God we have a president who is determined to halt and destroy the Soviet "liberation" of Central America. These countries need American military arms to fight for their freedom. Peace can be achieved with Russia by only one means — a superior U.S. military. The Soviets understand force only, and force is what it will take to drive the Godless, communist hordes from our southern neighbor. Let us never allow Central America to be subjugated in the grandiose tradition of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

NCAA Academic Revisions Necessary To Put 'College' Back Into Collegiate Sports

By MIKE HUGHES

Nearly 100 presidents of NCAA Division I schools are meeting this week in San Diego to discuss academic requirements and achievement among today's collegiate athletes. Thus far, two academic resolutions, or proposals, have been passed, despite opposition from the leaders of a few predominantly black institutions.

Under one adopted measure, prospective college athletes must graduate high school with a 2.0 grade-point average on a four-point scale in a core curriculum of 11 basic academic courses (including English, mathematics and science). In addition, this "Proposal 48" sets forth a minimum SAT combined score of 700 for incoming freshman athletes. Also adopted was Motion 56, which basically calls for student/athletes to show "satisfactory progress" in academics while attending college.

As simple as these resolutions may seem, Proposal 48 has already created a tremendous uproar in an otherwise sedate conference. Apparently, the leaders of several schools feel their sports programs somehow rise above academia and are somewhat threatened by an upgrade in academic standards. Also apparent is that they have forgotten the primary role of an institution of higher learning.

Personally, I'm glad the presidents voted in the changes. The NCAA's priorities have long been in need of major revisions (actually reversions). And if Division-I sports action suffers as a result, then perhaps it was never meant to reach the level of professionalism we've all grown accustomed to.

Granted, playing sports while attending college is, to say the least, difficult, especially today, when scholarship competition is so fierce. But the lax regulations that have governed the NCAA's admission and retention standards in recent years are, at best, a mere sham.

Unlike the unfounded fears of the select few at the conference, the NCAA's new regulations governing college athlete recruitment are a necessary first step in the realization of academic superiority in the nation's institutions of higher learning. It's high time they put the "college" back into intercollegiate sports.

ECU Students And Newspaper Receive Awards

By EMILY CASEY
Staff Writer

The East Carolinian received an outstanding service award, and five ECU students were awarded scholarships at a meeting of the Mental Health Association of Pitt County Tuesday.

"Throughout the year The East Carolinian has written articles which have promoted mental health awareness in the community," said Executive Director Brenda Gray. The newspaper, by its reporting, has helped to "break down the stigma that is attached to mental health."

ECU Clinical Psychology student Laurel Hill, a nurse and mother of three children, was the recipient of the $500-David exceeded in the program.

W. Hardee Scholarship Award. She is described by Dr. Rosina C. Lao, the chairperson in the psychology department, as an outstanding student who has been interested in mental health for many years.

Emilie Henning, dean of the school of nursing, presented graduate students Elizabeth Sauter and Yvonne Smith with $250 Hardee scholarships. Both women have shown "great promise" in the community mental health nursing graduate program, said Dr. Dixie Koljeski, director of the program. "Both are interested in community mental health and will surely make positive contributions in the region."

Gray specifically noted four stories that appeared in The East Carolinian in 1982, as being helpful and informative on the mental health issue.

Gray mentioned that the most recent coverage gave the Mental Health Association was on their Operation Santa Claus program in December. The outstanding service award was presented to The East Carolinian "in recognition of its outstanding volunteer leadership in the behalf of the mentally ill."

"We were honored and delighted to receive the Mental Health Association's achievement award," said The East Carolinian general manager Fielding Miller. "Our editors, writers and other employees work very hard to both report the news and provide a service to ECU and the Greenville community."

Gun Guru From Durham Arrested

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — A 64-year-old self-proclaimed faith healer and exorcist who asked his flock to bring him guns as an offering has been indicted on federal firearms charges.

Gus Mickens Jr., a retired tobacco worker from Durham, N.C., printed handbills calling himself "Chief Bishop of the House of Bethlehem." Wearing headbands, beads and robes, he held prayer services in his house — casting out demons, lifting spells and healing the sick.

"That's why the people come to me, because I heal them," Mickens told United Press International in a telephone interview. "If some people believe they have evil demons in them, you can pray with them and that's something that a doctor cannot do."

Mickens said people wanted to pay him for his services, and he invited them to bring him gifts.

"I'm a preacher, but I love guns," he said. "I did ask them to bring me guns."

A U.S. District Court grand jury in Roanoke indicted

Mickens Wednesday on 26 counts of procuring and transporting weapons across state lines without a license. Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Bondurant said that between 1977 and 1979 Mickens asked six members of his flock from the Danville, Va., area to buy and bring him handguns, specifying the brand and caliber, for payment of many of these exorcisms.

Mickens would fire the weapons across a running stream to frighten away evil spirits, Bondurant said, then throw the weapon into the water to conclude the ceremony.

At least one of the guns resurfaced in New York state, where it was used in a crime.

"That's a long way upstream," Bondurant noted.

Mickens said he didn't know how the gun reached New York, though he said he had given away some weapons and others had been stolen. He denied that he used guns in his rituals.

Although he is only charged with firearms violations, Bondurant said members of Mickens' church have acknowledged paying him for his services in cash, jewelry and even cattle. Some gave him thousands of dollars, Bondurant said.

Mickens poured ointments on his followers as "a special bath" to heal them and chanted incantations to remove evil spells, Bondurant said.

One of Mickens' former followers, who asked not to be identified, said, "At first I thought it was helping, then I stopped going ... he would ask us to give him our rings."

To all interested men:

January 13, 1983

You have probably been at East Carolina long enough to notice that the fraternities here are very diverse in their organization and membership. Although we won't argue the fact that fraternities aren't for everybody, the ones at ECU do offer something for a variety of seriously interested students. With rush starting next week, all the fraternities will be making a concentrated effort to induce you to pledge at their house rather than any other. This letter is to offer a little guidance and to tell you what to look out for.

The most important thing is to visit every house. Don't make the mistake of deciding to pledge at the first house you go to. Be sure to meet as many of the members of the fraternity as possible. Too often, a guy pledges a fraternity after meeting only a few people. Be sure to see if you like ALL of them because ALL of them will be your fraternity brothers. Another consideration is the fraternity house itself. Is it reasonably clean and in good repair? Is there room for you to park? Is the house close enough to campus? Would you be ashamed to take your parents there? These things are important because there's a strong chance that you'll live there one day.

Even though these above considerations are important, many rushees simply join the fraternity which they think is best. It is up to you to decide which is best for you. Kappa Alpha offers the interested college man membership in one of the country's oldest most prestigious fraternities. Since 1865, KA has been among the leaders on campuses throughout the United States.

Kappa Alpha Order is the oldest fraternity at ECU and has consistently enjoyed the popularity of being one of the school's finest organizations. Since September 26, 1958, KA has maintained the highest or been among the highest standards in scholarship, service to the community and charitable organizations, intramural sports competition, and social stature with the other fraternities and the sororities. Our records speak for themselves.

Every fraternity will tell you that theirs is best. If you're planning on joining a good fraternity, be sure of what you're getting. We at Kappa Alpha are sure that you will make a careful evaluation of the various aspects of fraternity life before making a decision. Come by during rush and let us tell and show you why we think KA stands out from the rest and is worth your consideration.

Green Alters Senate Set Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — With the General Assembly's opening day, Lt. Gov. James C. Green made revisions in the Senate committee structure.

Green reduced the size of some committees Wednesday and placed them under "umbrella committees."

"It's very much like what they do in Congress," Green said. As an example, he said the Constitutional Amendments panel should not be considered a subcommittee.

Green announced all of his committee appointments during the opening session of the Senate, while House Speaker Liston they can be sent to the full Senate, Green said, so the Constitutional Amendments panel should not be considered a subcommittee.

Green announced all of his committee appointments during the opening session of the Senate, while House Speaker Liston

Ramsey, D-Madison, named six House committees, including the major money committees.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, was appointed chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, while Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, and Sen. Elton Edwards, D-Guilford, were named co-chairman of the Base Budget Committee.

Jordan was Base Budget Committee chairman in the 1981 session; Edwards, a close political ally of Green's, returned to the Legislature this year after an absence of about 10 years.

Ramsey reappointed his Appropriations and Base Budget chairmen from the 1981 session.

Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, and Rep. Allen Adams, D-Wake.

The Base Budget committees are responsible for screening requests for existing state programs, while the Appropriations committees consider money requests for new or expanded programs.

Green also named co-chairman for the five committees expected to face heavy workloads this session. In addition to the Base Budget Committee, they are the Finance, Local Government, State Government and Ways and Means committees.

The major committee chairmanships announced by Green were:

Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir; Banking: James Edwards, D-Caldwell; Base Budget: Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, and Elton Edwards, D-Guilford; Education: James Speed, D-Franklin; Finance: Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham; Higher Education: Lura Tally, D-Cumberland; Insurance: Cecil Jenkins, D-Cabarrus; Judiciary I: Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax; Judiciary II: R.C. Soles, D-Columbus; Constitutional Amendments: Helen Marvin, D-Gaston; Judiciary III, Henson Barnes, D-Wayne; Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice: Anthony Rand.

all." He also pointed out Anheuser-Busch is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and at the national level, Anheuser-Busch gives money to black communities. Via did admit that blacks do in fact own only three out of the 960 distributorships in the United States, but he repeated, "that's based on ability to buy, not because of race."

Via said an Anheuser-Busch distributorship usually costs between one million and two million dollars. PUSH claims that out of 250 top positions in ten of the company's breweries, PUSH was unable to identify even three blacks.

PUSH claims blacks constitute more than twice the company's margin of profit. They are at present ready to release a list which would identify 100 blacks who were interested and financially capable of owning an Anheuser-Busch distributorship.

Chalmers claims that black people are "always getting the short end of the stick," and that all the Alphas want is for companies like Anheuser-Busch to be fair to blacks. The Alphas are encouraging students to not use the products of any companies who have been unwilling to work with the PUSH fair share efforts. They plan to continue their efforts throughout the week at the Student Supply Store.

Heated Debate Reveals Ideological Extremism

By ERNEST L. CONNER
Staff Writer

"The liberal cause on campus isn't really liberal. It's more ultra-liberal."

"I think conservatives are a dying, fading cause. Thank God."

These are basically two sides of the political spectrum on campus that express their beliefs through the media — the conservative orientation and the liberal orientation. The majority of ECU students probably find themselves somewhere between these two points, but they often see the two sides presented in The East Carolinian and other media on campus.

Patrick O'Neill, a staff writer for The East Carolinian, normally espouses the liberal view through his articles and opinion columns. O'Neill finds a frequent critic of his articles in Dennis Kilcoyne, president of the College Republican Club on campus and author of frequent letters to the editor of The East Carolinian.

The two have differing opinions on practically every topic, including the cause represented by each other. Kilcoyne doesn't feel either cause is to active on campus because of the tremendous amount of student apathy. But he states, the liberal cause isn't really liberal, it is more ultra-liberal. "This is obvious," Kilcoyne explains, "from the liberal opinion makers and the issues they are always talking about — nuclear freeze and American imperialism."

O'Neill claims the conservative cause on campus is a dying cause. "I also feel it's generally a non-cause, because, basically it has so little visible or vocal representation here at ECU," said O'Neill. "It appears to me," he added, "that, save a few individuals, the conservatives are generally an apathetic lot."

"For a campus where a person with a political views of John East came out of, it appears surprising to me, that the conservative voice is so silent," O'Neill said. "It's almost to the point where there isn't one."

Their differing opinions only start with the causes. On the Reagan administration's cutting of social problems, while building up the defense, Kilcoyne sees this as having positive effects on the country.

"The real problem for the last 40 years has been the liberal economics Democrats practiced. It was good because it brought immediate short-term results. People would be happy and say 'I'll vote for the guy because he helped me.' But the long-term problem turned out to hurt the nation."

"Supply side economics were not always politically attractive because the short-term effects were so bad. Supply side economics are troubling us now, but in the long run, I honestly believe, it will help the country."

O'Neill says there are many inefficiencies in the operation of some United States social programs, but adds, "this is absolutely nothing compared to the multi-billion dollar waste that is in the present defense budget."

O'Neill can't talk about the economic problems of the United States without expanding in to the danger and cost of nuclear weapons and the U.S. war machine. "Reagan is trying to convince us that if we build up our nuclear capabilities, which are already at insane levels, we will actually be more secure. This kind of mentality is like saying more death is needed for life. The Reagan Administration is willing to sacrifice the lives of millions of people, here at home, and throughout the world, so the U.S. can build more bombs."

Kilcoyne defends the defense build up saying that "in the past, the actual percent of the budget taken up by defense was higher. Under Kennedy it was 49 percent. It will peak with Reagan at 23 percent."

Kilcoyne also feels strongly that the buildup is something that had to be done for a long time. "We unilaterally froze our nuclear weapons, back during the Johnson administration. Our's declined while the Soviet's built up. This is a major threat to world peace and stability because of Soviet imperialism."

O'Neill and Kilcoyne, who are both Catholic, but with differing philosophies toward their religion, would also take different approaches in solving America's current economic and social problems. Kilcoyne, a native of Greenville thinks the economical problem is difficult, but that we need to stick to supply side economics for a long time and let the market place handle the problem. "It's been proven to be the best in the past. I believe it will do it again," explains Kilcoyne.

The 26-year-old O'Neill would ideally like to see the Pentagon abolished to lower the national debt. But

Fighting For A Cause Mayer's Monumental Threat Not Mad

This is the first of two parts.

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Staff Writer

"Everyone agrees that it is wrong to make threats with a ton of TNT — yet as we stand here today there is 3 tons of TNT pointed at the heads of every child, woman and man on the earth."

The same week that (Norman) Mayer made his insane threat just across this little patch of ground the public servants in Congress authorized a Pentagon budget of $233 billion. Do we really need to ask ourselves which is the greater — that is, the more profound insanity.

(A quote read at the Washington Monument on December 29 by a group of peace activists who were holding a memorial service for Norman Mayer.)

"He gave me a purpose to live," said William Thomas speaking about his personal friend Norman Mayer who was shot to death last month by federal police on the grounds of the Washington monument after he had told police and the news media that the truck he had parked near the base of the structure was filled with explosives.

Mayer had told the news media that he was going to blow-up the monument as a protest against the nuclear arms race. Instead Mayer was shot to death while presumably attempting to flee the scene. No dynamite was ever found.

Most of the press coverage of the Washington Monument incident depicted Mayer as a sick man who just went too far. But to Thomas, Mayer was not insane at all, but rather a quite sane friend whom Thomas had a great admiration and respect for.

Shortly after his death, Thomas wrote a letter to the Washington Post responding to a story they ran about Mayer on their front page. Thomas wrote "Which is greater: Man or Masonary?" on the top of the letter. "While many consider Norman to have been, at best, eccentric, at this late date it is interesting to note how few clearly see the absurdity of society mirrored in Norman's 'irrational' action," Thomas commented in his letter.

Thomas, like Mayer, sees the effort to end the current nuclear arms race as the "Number one priority" of the world. Mayer had similar words printed on a sign which was attached to the truck he drove to the monument.

Thomas presently lives in well constructed wooden box located right smack in front of the White House. Each day he displays a series of signs decrying the nuclear arms race while dozens of tourists stop to take pictures and ask him questions. He has been doing this for the last 18 months except for the several occasions he has been arrested and charged with camping without a permit.

Norman Mayer spent many hours and many days with Thomas outside the White House before he was killed. "He used to come here everyday and spend several hours talking to me," Thomas told the East Carolinian. "I understood Norman. Nobody else would pay any attention to him."

Thomas, who keeps multiple copies of Mayer's writings, claims Mayer as a man who saw an evil and tried his best to respond to it.

In his writings Mayer wrote "stop looking for governments to resolve our nuclear weapons problems... Universal survival is not the chief goal of any government. Yet universal survival is the chief problem of the nuclear age."

Mayer went on to write that "only the individual can create a climate in which probable nuclear holocaust can be resolved." He (perhaps an indication of what prompted Mayer to his final action) also spoke of the need for each individual to "speak to the problem from his/her own point of view."

Mayer also authored a paper titled "Norman's ten laws of reality" which Thomas now quotes from often.

Thomas recalled the day when Mayer told him that he had an idea which he would tell him about shortly. A few days passed in which Mayer made no other remarks about his "idea." But finally, Mayer decided he was ready to share his plan with Thomas. "He told me he was going to get a ton of dynamite and take out one of the sacred icons," Thomas said quoting the conservation that followed. "I told him that Nuclear Weapons were a product of violence."

Thomas also warned Mayer that innocent people could be killed by such an act, but at first Mayer believed that some sacrifice of human life would be acceptable.

Going off to training camp, Rocky (Sylvester Stallone) and Adrian (Talia Shire) bid a tender farewell to their son, Rocky II (Ian Fried), as Paulie (Burt Young) and Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers) look on in Rocky III. The film will be shown in the Hendrix Theatre this Thursday at 7 p.m. only, and this Friday and Saturday at 5, 7 and 9 p.m. Admission is by student ID and activity card or MSC membership for faculty and staff. The movie is sponsored by the Student Union Films Committee.

Newman Gives Strong Performance In Drama

Paul Newman recently won a major stock car race, driving a 280ZX for the Datsun factory team. A top-ranked world class amateur race driver, the victory was unusual only in one respect: several days earlier, Newman had broken his leg while jogging and was competing in the race with a cast on his foot — which had to be taped to the gas pedal. Hobbling to the winner's circle, he quipped, "I've gotta give up those dangerous sports like jogging."

Five-time Academy Award nominee, skilled athlete, longtime crusader for human rights and nuclear disarmament, actor-director-producer Paul Newman has no intention of giving up jogging or anything else. Commitment and determination have marked the rise of this son of a Cleveland sporting goods merchant from his modest midwest origins to his status as one of the world's best known and most respected actors. And the opportunity to convey the heart and soul of a man similarly driven and determined was what drew him to the role of Frank Galvin in 20th Century Fox's The Verdict (now in its fourth week at Greenville's Plaza Cinema).

A Zanuck/Brown Production, directed by Sidney Lumet and co-starring Charlotte Rampling, Jack Warden and James Mason, The Verdict is a story of one man's redemption and its impact on the lives of those who, willingly or not, become a part of that process.

Frank Galvin is an embittered, ambulance-chasing Boston attorney whose once-promising career is now scrapping the bottom of the barrel and whose once idealistic view of the world is now only a blur from the bottom of a bottle.

"It's a very interesting character for me," Newman explains, "because unlike Cool Hand Luke, Butch Cassidy or some of the others who were the cool collected types, he's frightened. He's living on the edge and he's panicked. There are people who really do find their lives in a shambles and decide they don't like it. Some just continue to degenerate and some, like Galvin, can pick themselves up."

"I rather hope that the audience will come away from this having seen or partially experienced the emotional progression that the character goes through," the actor comments.

Sidney Lumet directing veteran actor Paul Newman to possibly his best performance in new film The Verdict.

'Clog Night' Slated To Aid Palsy Center

By MIKE HAMMER
Staff Writer

ECU's Occupational Therapy Student Association is holding a "Learn To Clog Nite" benefit for Greenville's United Cerebral Palsy Center on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18, at the Carolina Opry House.

The "Hometown Boys" will be providing the music for the evening. The Hometown Boys play bluegrass, old-time, and western swing music and have played many concerts and dances in the area in the past four years. They recently backed up bluegrass recording artist, Mac Wiseman.

Theresa Dulski, a student in occupational therapy student association said that the group decided to have this benefit at the Carolina Opry House not only to raise money for a worthy cause but to have a fun night doing it also. "As a student Occupational Therapist, I have worked here in Greenville with the United Cerebral Palsy Center and have seen the amazing work that can be done for the children," said Dulski. "You can see the expressions of appreciation on the faces of the children."

The doors will open at the Opry House at 7:30 p.m.; tickets are $2.

Ice-Cold Pirates Scalped By Indians

By CINDY PLEASANT
Sports Editor

"Whatever can go wrong... will," Murphy's law, unfortunately, was proven accurate Wednesday night in Minges Coliseum.

The ECU men's basketball team suffered their second big loss of the season against conference foe William & Mary, 72-51.

"I told'em there'll be good times and bad times," said head coach Charlie Harrison, "and it doesn't take a genius to figure out that this is one of the bad times."

The Pirates seemed doomed from the very beginning — well, almost the very beginning. In the first six minutes of the game, the Bucs held their own against the Indians. Trailing, 10-7, with 14:06 remaining, center Charles Green went up for a lay-up, collided with an Indian player and separated his shoulder. Sophomore forward Barry Wright, however, popped in two, and Bruce Peartree made a jumper to keep the Pirates alive but still behind, 16-15.

Trouble, though, soon struck again. ECU freshman Johnny Edwards, who has been twice named as the ECAC's "Rookie Of The Week" collected his third foul with 6:36 left in the first half.

And without both of their leading rebounders on the court, the Pirates lacked the strength needed under the basket. W&M took advantage and pulled ahead, 24-19, with 4:24 on the clock.

Sophomore Bruce Peartree and Wright then joined forces, scoring the next eight points by two jumpshots each.

But W&M's Tony Traver, a 6-3 guard, made three baskets to keep the Indians up, 26-23. Wright followed by picking up two fouls to put W&M on the foul line, and Bruce Peartree swished a jumpshot to make the halftime score, 30-25, in favor of the Indians.

The Pirates shot 47.8 percent in the first period, while the Indians were 12-for-24 from the floor to give them a 50-percent shooting average. In rebounding, W&M dominated, grabbing 17 rebounds to ECU's eight.

With 4,700 spectators cheering them on, the Pirates came out playing a zone defense and using a full-court press as two of their strategies to slow down and stop the Indians' shooting abilities.

But by this time, 6-5 forward Kevin Richardson was just getting warmed up. Richardson sank two baskets and along with Traver, the twosome pushed the Indians' lead to 37-29 with 16:03 remaining.

Edwards then picked up his fourth foul, and freshman David Harris came off the bench to take his place.

The Indians continued to build their lead, with Richardson hitting two straight jumpshots to give the Indians a 48-33 advantage. Harrison called a time-out. And Peartree, who hasn't been playing well during the past two weeks, came back out on the court and knocked in two 20-foot jumpshots to revive the Pirates. But Peartree's efforts were in vain.

W&M coach Bruce Parkhill called a timeout with 10:31 left, and the Indians continued to improve their lead, much to Harrison's disappointment.

"They had two possessions and two shots and then they go down and say 'oh hell, its not gonna happen,'" Harrison said.

The Indians wound up on the freethrow line three times in the next two minutes, sinking five baskets to gain a 64-41 lead. ECU was seven for 24 from the floor at this point, and had not scored a single point in the last three minutes of play.

Harrison almost cleared his bench entirely in the final minutes of the ballgame. The Indians, however, relied on their starters and scored consistently to maintain a distant lead.

The Pirates shot 27.8 percent from the floor to give them an overall average of 35.6 percent. The Indians made 16 of 29 shots for a 55.2 percent average in the second half, shooting 52.8 percent for the game. W&M out-rebounded the Pirates, 39 to 26.

Wright led the Bucs with 18 points, while Peartree pumped in 10 points and Thom Brown had eight.

For the Indians, Traver popped in 13 points, Richardson and Brant Weiner each had 12, Keith Cleplicki knocked in 11 and Mike Strayhorn scored 10 points.

Harrison named several factors which contributed to the Pirates' conference loss. "We weren't ready to play," he said. "We knew they were a very good shooting team, but we should have been able to stop them on defense. We weren't positioned and we didn't stay down."

Losing Green and the limited playing time of Edwards were also two major factors. According to Harrison, Green will be out for a minimum of three weeks and will be x-rayed today to make sure he doesn't have any fractures. "It's really a shame," Harrison said. "He was playing the best basketball of his life right now."

Harrison said he knew W&M was going to be extremely tough and said his team was ready to play against the Indians' effective zone defense. "We've practiced against that defense for a long time now," he said. "I knew they were prepared. I don't know what was wrong with them tonight, both offensively and defensively. We were terrible and the score showed it."

The Pirates will again meet another conference opponent this Saturday — the University of Richmond.

And Harrison knows the Pirates will have to do a 360-degree turnaround in order to capture the next conference win. "There aren't any bad teams in this league," he said. "All of them are good teams."

Gametime is 1:00 p.m.

Lady Pirates To Battle Nationally-Ranked ODU

By KEN BOLTON
Assistant Sports Editor

The ECU Lady Pirates, who are currently in the middle of a month-long road trip, make a stop in Norfolk, Va. this Friday night.

The Lady Pirates will be taking on nationally ranked Old Dominion, who have lost only 19 games in the last five years. The Lady Monarchs are 8-3 while ECU is 5-5.

The current road trip, which began Dec. 30 at Notre Dame, has been very competitive for the Lady Pirates.

"Overall, the trip was certainly a great learning experience for our girls in a sense that even though we came out 1-3, it was especially good for our six underclassmen," head coach Cathy Andruzzi said.

"But we're not overly surprised," she added. "We were aware of the level of competition we would face."

The Lady Pirates proved last year that they are capable of coming back from a bad start.

After a dismal 4-7 beginning, ECU rallied to win 13 of their final 15 regular season games and turn disaster into success.

It was a year of milestones for the team and the coach. The team made the elite field of 32 invited to the first NCAA Women's Basketball National Championship tournament while Andruzzi racked up her 100th win in a six-year coaching career.

This year's team has shown improvement since the first game of the year.

"Our team performance is continually improving; we're still very positive about that," Andruzzi stated. "However, I feel that in order for us to hold our own against the tough competition, we have to work harder in every game."

So far this season, the Lady Pirates have been riding on the shoulders of senior center Mary Denkler.

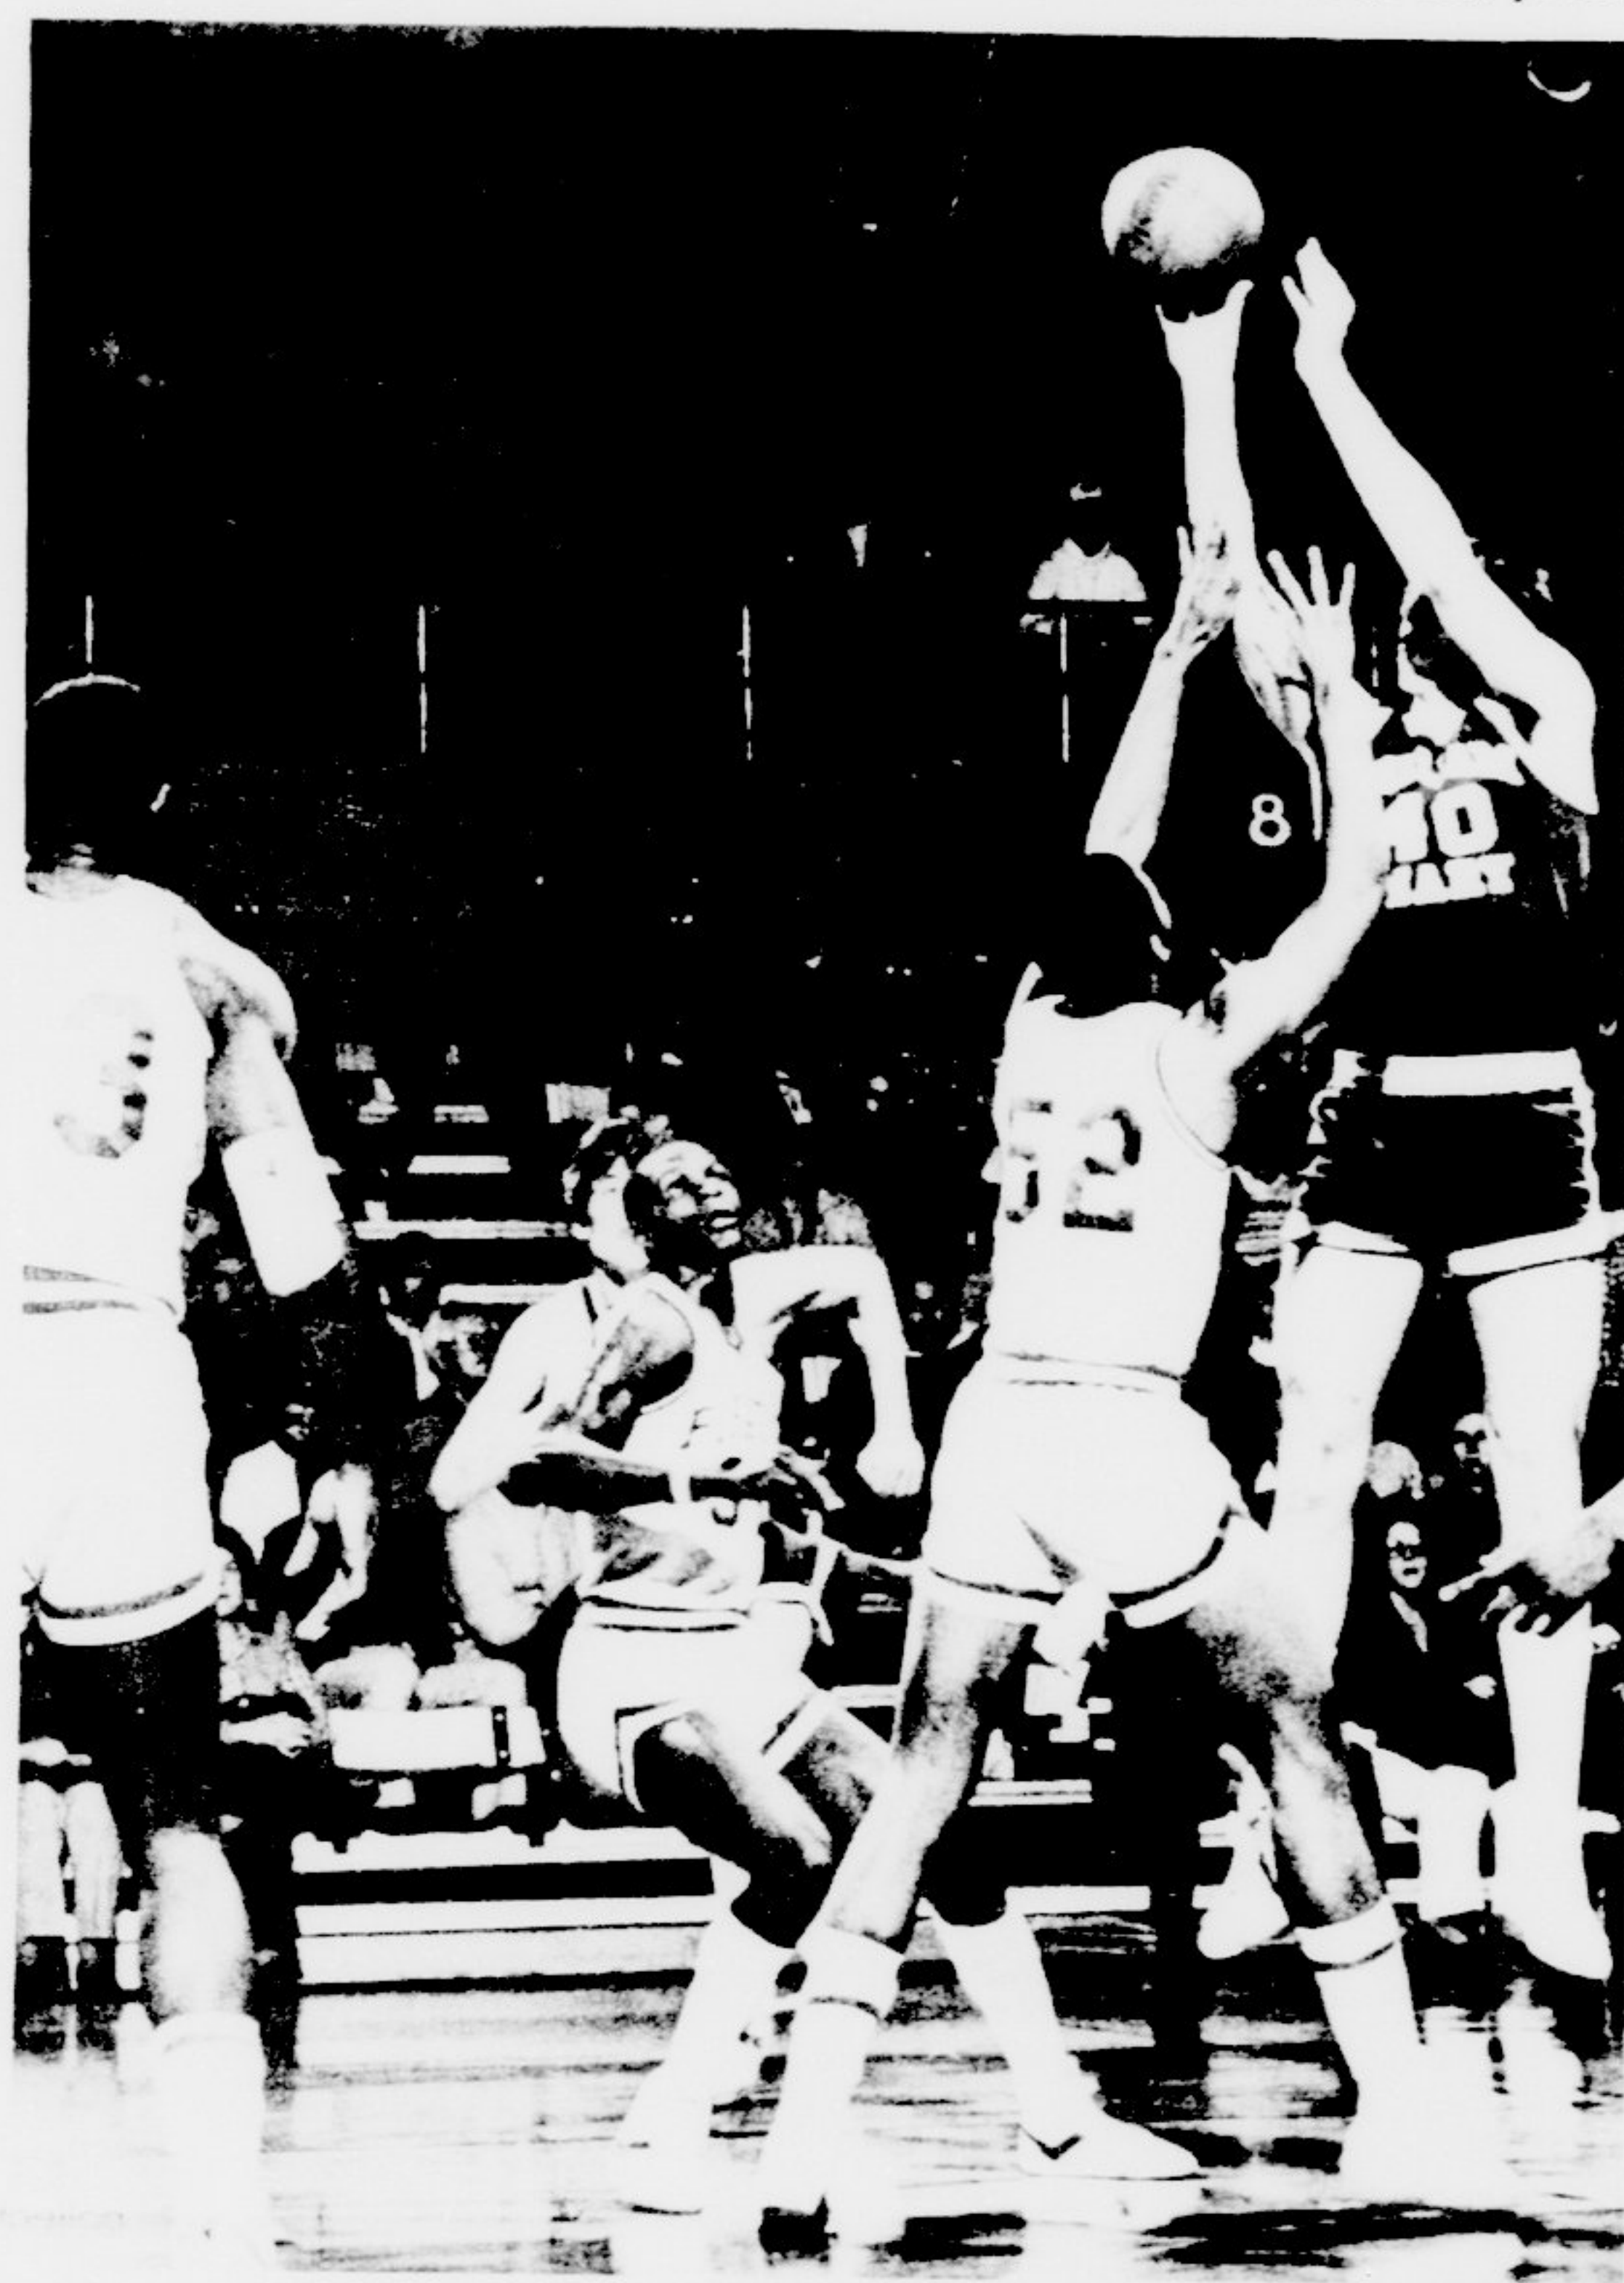

Denkler, who is averaging 24.6 points and 7.8 rebounds per game, is third on the all-time ECU scoring list behind Debbie Freeman and Rosie Thompson.

Her 24.6 scoring average currently leaves her fourth in the nation in scoring.

Sophomore point-guard Loraine Foster is averaging 15.5 points and 4.8 assists per outing. Only in her second year, Foster is currently 11th on the all-time ECU assists and steals charts.

5-4 guard Delphine Mabry, the "Rocky Mount Rocket," is third on the team in scoring and rebounding even though she is the shortest member of the squad.

Mabry, who is a 1984 Olympic hopeful in track, is considered one of the fastest players in the country. Baseline to baseline, she is the fastest that Lady Pirate coaches have ever seen.

The Lady Pirates will have to be at top form this weekend against the Lady Monarchs. The main reason is Anne Donovan, ODU's 6-8 All-American.

Donovan is averaging 16.4 points and 15.7 rebounds per game. She is currently bothered by a mild muscle tear in her left calf and it has not been determined whether or not she will play on Friday.

With or without Donovan, the Lady Monarchs will have a large height advantage.

"The height problem will be a challenge, but it has been the same challenge all year," responded Andruzzi. "We go there realizing that we have to execute to the best of our ability and stop them from doing the things that they do best."

After leaving Norfolk, the Lady Pirates will travel to Charlotte to face UNC-Charlotte.

Andruzzi's goal for the team is to improve every day for the rest of the season.

"We won't settle for mediocrity," Andruzzi commented. "We won't use that as an excuse for not performing better and better every game."

Cagers Face Spiders

The ECU men's basketball team, now 6-6, will play their third conference game of the year Saturday afternoon when the Pirates travel north to face the Richmond Spiders.

The Spiders are led by 6-4 guard Tom Bethea with a 11.6 per game scoring average. Bethea, who is originally from Durham, toured Europe this summer with the NIT All-Stars.

"Bethea is definitely the catalyst of our basketball team," stated Dick Tarrant, who is in his second year as the Spiders' head coach. "We need consistent performance from Tom in order to be successful."

Richmond is currently 5-7 but has faced a high level of competition all year. Their losses have been to teams including Wake Forest and Virginia Tech.

"We are no longer a young and inexperienced team," Tarrant said. "We are now a mature team with confidence and experience. Our players now realize that they can win and that confidence factor aids a team greatly."

After the Richmond game, ECU will return home on Monday, Jan. 17 to face Baptist at 7:30 p.m.

Pirate Sluggers To Seek Playoff Spot

By ED NICKLAS
Staff Writer

Every team wants a shot at winning that championship title. And having made it to last year's NCAA playoffs, the ECU men's baseball team wants it more than ever this season. But ECU head coach Hal Baird doesn't expect that task to be an easy one.

"It's always more difficult to repeat than it is to win the first year," Baird said. "Everyone will be shooting for us. I do, though, feel that we have a chance to repeat, although we will be the target for most clubs."

To have a chance to repeat, Baird said that several positions which were vacated by departing seniors need to be adequately filled, including the pitching staff.

"Our pitching is untested," said Baird, whose two top pitchers last year, Bill Wilder (Kansas City) and Scott Patterson (San Diego), were drafted by professional teams. Also drafted were second baseman Mike Sorell (Kansas City) and catcher Fran Fitzgerald (Baltimore), and Baird needs to fill those positions also.

"Our strength this year is not in the pitching staff," Baird continued. "Our success will be predicated on how well the newcomers can pick up the slack. We have improved offensively, so the critical factor will be how well we can keep teams from scoring."

Competition for the starting position at second base will be a two man battle between Tony Salmond and David Horn, who was a starter at the end of the fall season. In addition, Jack Kurlings and Jimbo Fulghum will be pushing for the open position at catcher.

The team began practicing last week in preparation for its March 2 opener against Virginia Commonwealth, focusing mainly on "comprehensive stretching, long distance running, and different types of sprinting exercises," Baird said. Techniques and fundamentals will be worked on later.

Baird also mentioned that the method by which the collegiate academic system is set up, tremendous emphasis is placed on pre-season practices. "Because of the semester system," he said, "there are many games during the season with no days off in between. We don't have much time to practice during the season."

Track Team Vies

By RANDY MEWES
Staff Writer

With one meet already behind them, the 1982-83 ECU men's track team is pointing toward an extremely successful season. The men's team will travel to Johnson City, Tenn. this weekend to compete in the Eastman Kodak Invitational.

In December, the Pirates had a fine showing in Fairfax, Va. at the Patriot Invitational with four first place finishes. Freshman Christopher Brooks jumped 24'9" to break the school record in the long jump, and also placed first in the triple jump. Another freshman, Craig White, tied ECU's record and placed 1:10 off national qualifying time in the hurdles with a 7.2.

Head coach Bill Carson and his assistant Wayne Miller were able to recruit one of the top freshman classes in the country for this season.

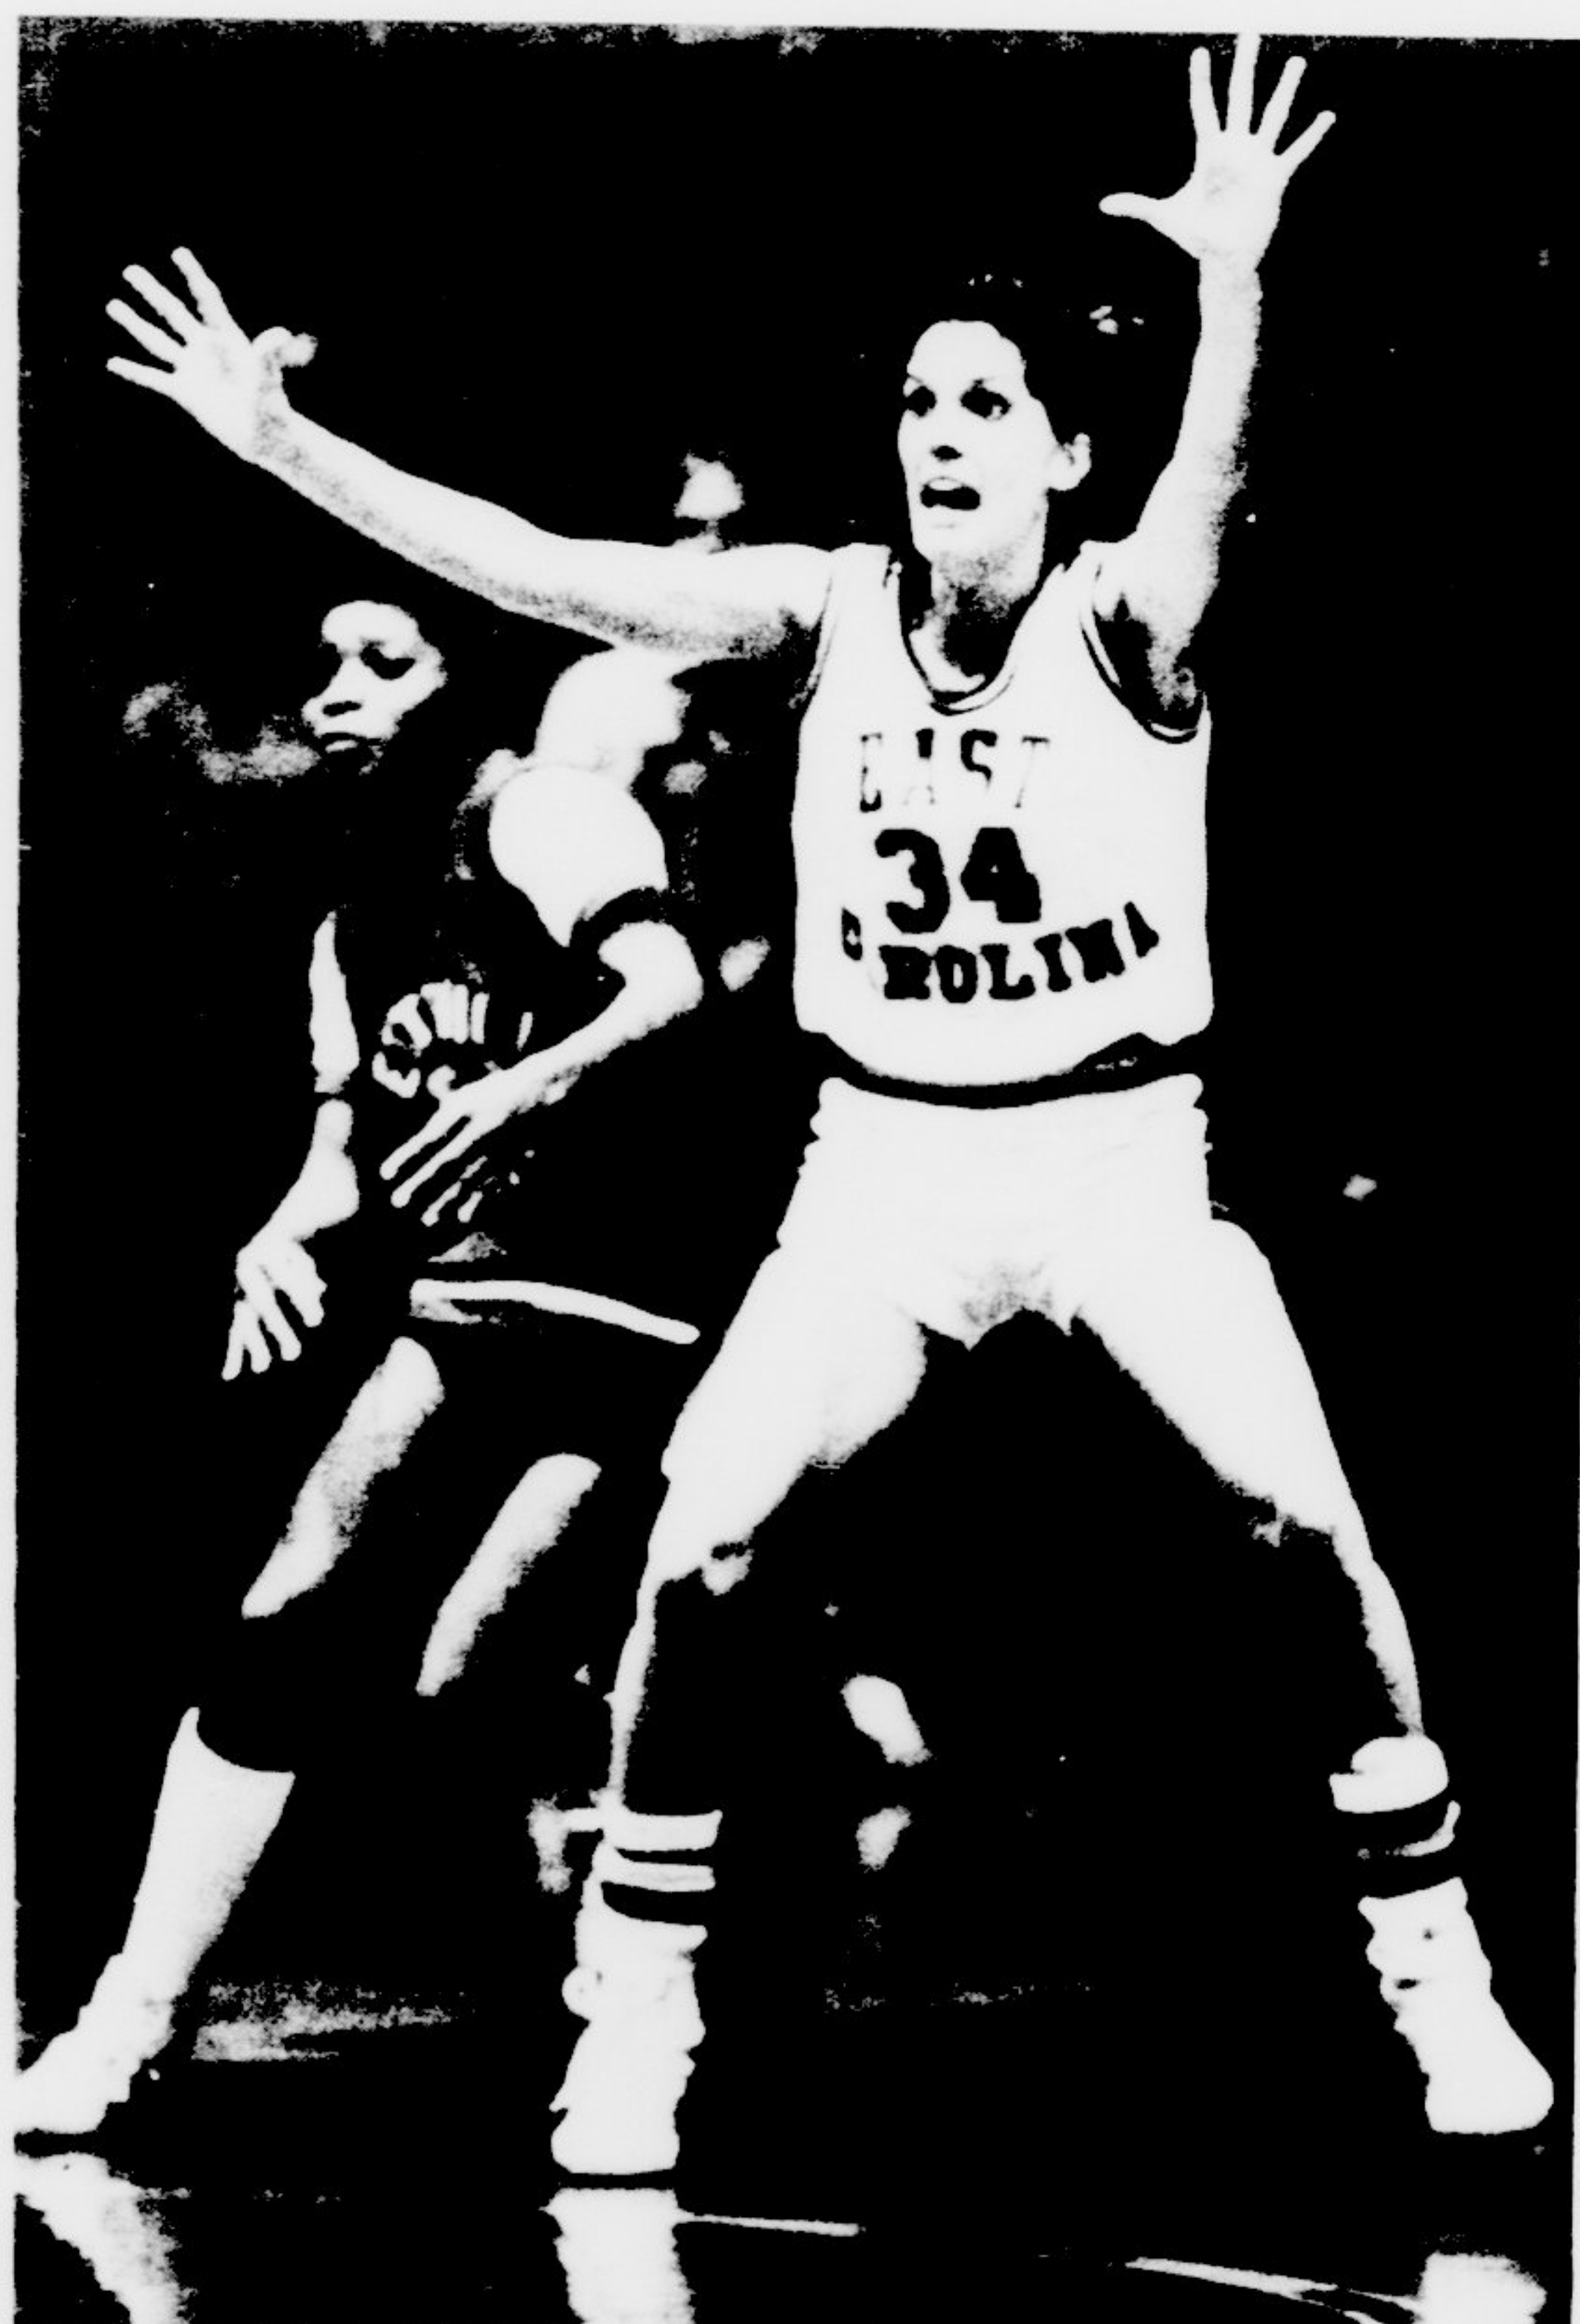

Last year, North Carolina produced its finest array of athletes ever, and ECU landed 17 of the best talents in the state. "These are the greatest track athletes ever to be assembled at ECU," Carson stated.

Because of the abundance of talent within the state, Carson has decided to expand his team into field events. Former high school competitors that will long and triple jump for the Pirates include Brooks, Arthur Burkes, Donnel Sheppard and Clifton King. Carson signed four of the state's premier hurdlers also in Anthony White, Walter Southerland, Ruben Pierce and Tony Jones. The new Pirate sprinters include Erskine Evans,

Rodney Blacknall, Jerry Brown and Joseph Dingle.

The Pirates return two veterans in juniors Keith Clarke and Ray Dickerson. Clarke is expected to add valuable experience to the mile-relay team while Dickerson will be his best at the 800-meters.

Carson believes the Pirates have a very bright future ahead and is optimistic about the upcoming meets. "I don't want to push the freshmen too hard at first," Carson said, "but we can expect great things from them as the season progresses."

Mary Denkler is now tied for fourth place among women's scorers in the country.

Edwards then picked up his fourth foul, and freshman David Harris came off the bench to take his place.

The Indians continued to build their lead, with Richardson hitting two straight jumpshots to give the Indians a 48-33 advantage. Harrison called a time-out. And Peartree, who hasn't been playing well during the past two weeks, came back out on the court and knocked in two 20-foot jumpshots to revive the Pirates. But Peartree's efforts were in vain.

W&M coach Bruce Parkhill called a timeout with 10:31 left, and the Indians continued to improve their lead, much to Harrison's disappointment.

"They had two possessions and two shots and then they go down and say 'oh hell, its not gonna happen,'" Harrison said.

The Indians wound up on the freethrow line three times in the next two minutes, sinking five baskets to gain a 64-41 lead. ECU was seven for 24 from the floor at this point, and had not scored a single point in the last three minutes of play.

Harrison almost cleared his bench entirely in the final minutes of the ballgame. The Indians, however, relied on their starters and scored consistently to maintain a distant lead.

The Pirates shot 27.8 percent from the floor to give them an overall average of 35.6 percent. The Indians made 16 of 29 shots for a 55.2 percent average in the second half, shooting 52.8 percent for the game. W&M out-rebounded the Pirates, 39 to 26.

Wright led the Bucs with 18 points, while Peartree pumped in 10 points and Thom Brown had eight.

For the Indians, Traver popped in 13 points, Richardson and Brant Weiner each had 12, Keith Cieplicki knocked in 11 and Mike Strayhorn scored 10 points.

them on defense. We weren't positioned and we didn't stay down."

Losing Green and the limited playing time of Edwards were also two major factors. According to Harrison, Green will be out for a minimum of three weeks and will be x-rayed today to make sure he doesn't have any fractures. "It's really a shame," Harrison said. "He was playing the best basketball of his life right now."

Harrison said he knew W&M was going to be extremely tough and said his team was ready to play against the Indians' effective zone defense. "We've practiced against that defense for a long time now," he said. "I knew they were prepared. I don't know what was wrong with them tonight, both offensively and defensively. We were terrible and the score showed it."

The Pirates will again meet another conference opponent this Saturday — the University of Richmond.

And Harrison knows the Pirates will have to do a 360-degree turnaround in order to capture the next conference win. "There aren't any bad teams in this league," he said. "All of them are good teams." Gametime is 1:00 p.m.

Lady Pirates To Battle Nationally-Ranked ODU

By KEN BOLTON
Assistant Sports Editor

The ECU Lady Pirates, who are currently in the middle of a month-long road trip, make a stop in Norfolk, Va. this Friday night.

The Lady Pirates will be taking on nationally ranked Old Dominion, who have lost only 19 games in the last five years. The Lady Monarchs are 8-3 while ECU is 5-5.

The current road trip, which began Dec. 30 at Notre Dame, has been very competitive for the Lady Pirates.

"Overall, the trip was certainly a great learning experience for our girls in a sense that even though we came out 1-3, it was especially good for our six underclassmen," head coach Cathy Andruzzi said.

"But we're not overly surprised," she added. "We were aware of the level of competition we would face."

The Lady Pirates proved last year that they are capable of coming back from a bad start.

After a dismal 4-7 beginning, ECU rallied to win 13 of their final 15 regular season games and turn disaster into success.

It was a year of milestones for the team and the coach. The team made the elite field of 32 invited to the first NCAA Women's Basketball National Championship tournament.

ment while Andruzzi racked up her 100th win in a six-year coaching career.

This year's team has shown improvement since the first game of the year.

"Our team performance is continually improving; we're still very positive about that," Andruzzi stated. "However, I feel that in order for us to hold our own against the tough competition, we have to work harder in every game."

So far this season, the Lady Pirates have been riding on the shoulders of senior center Mary Denkler.

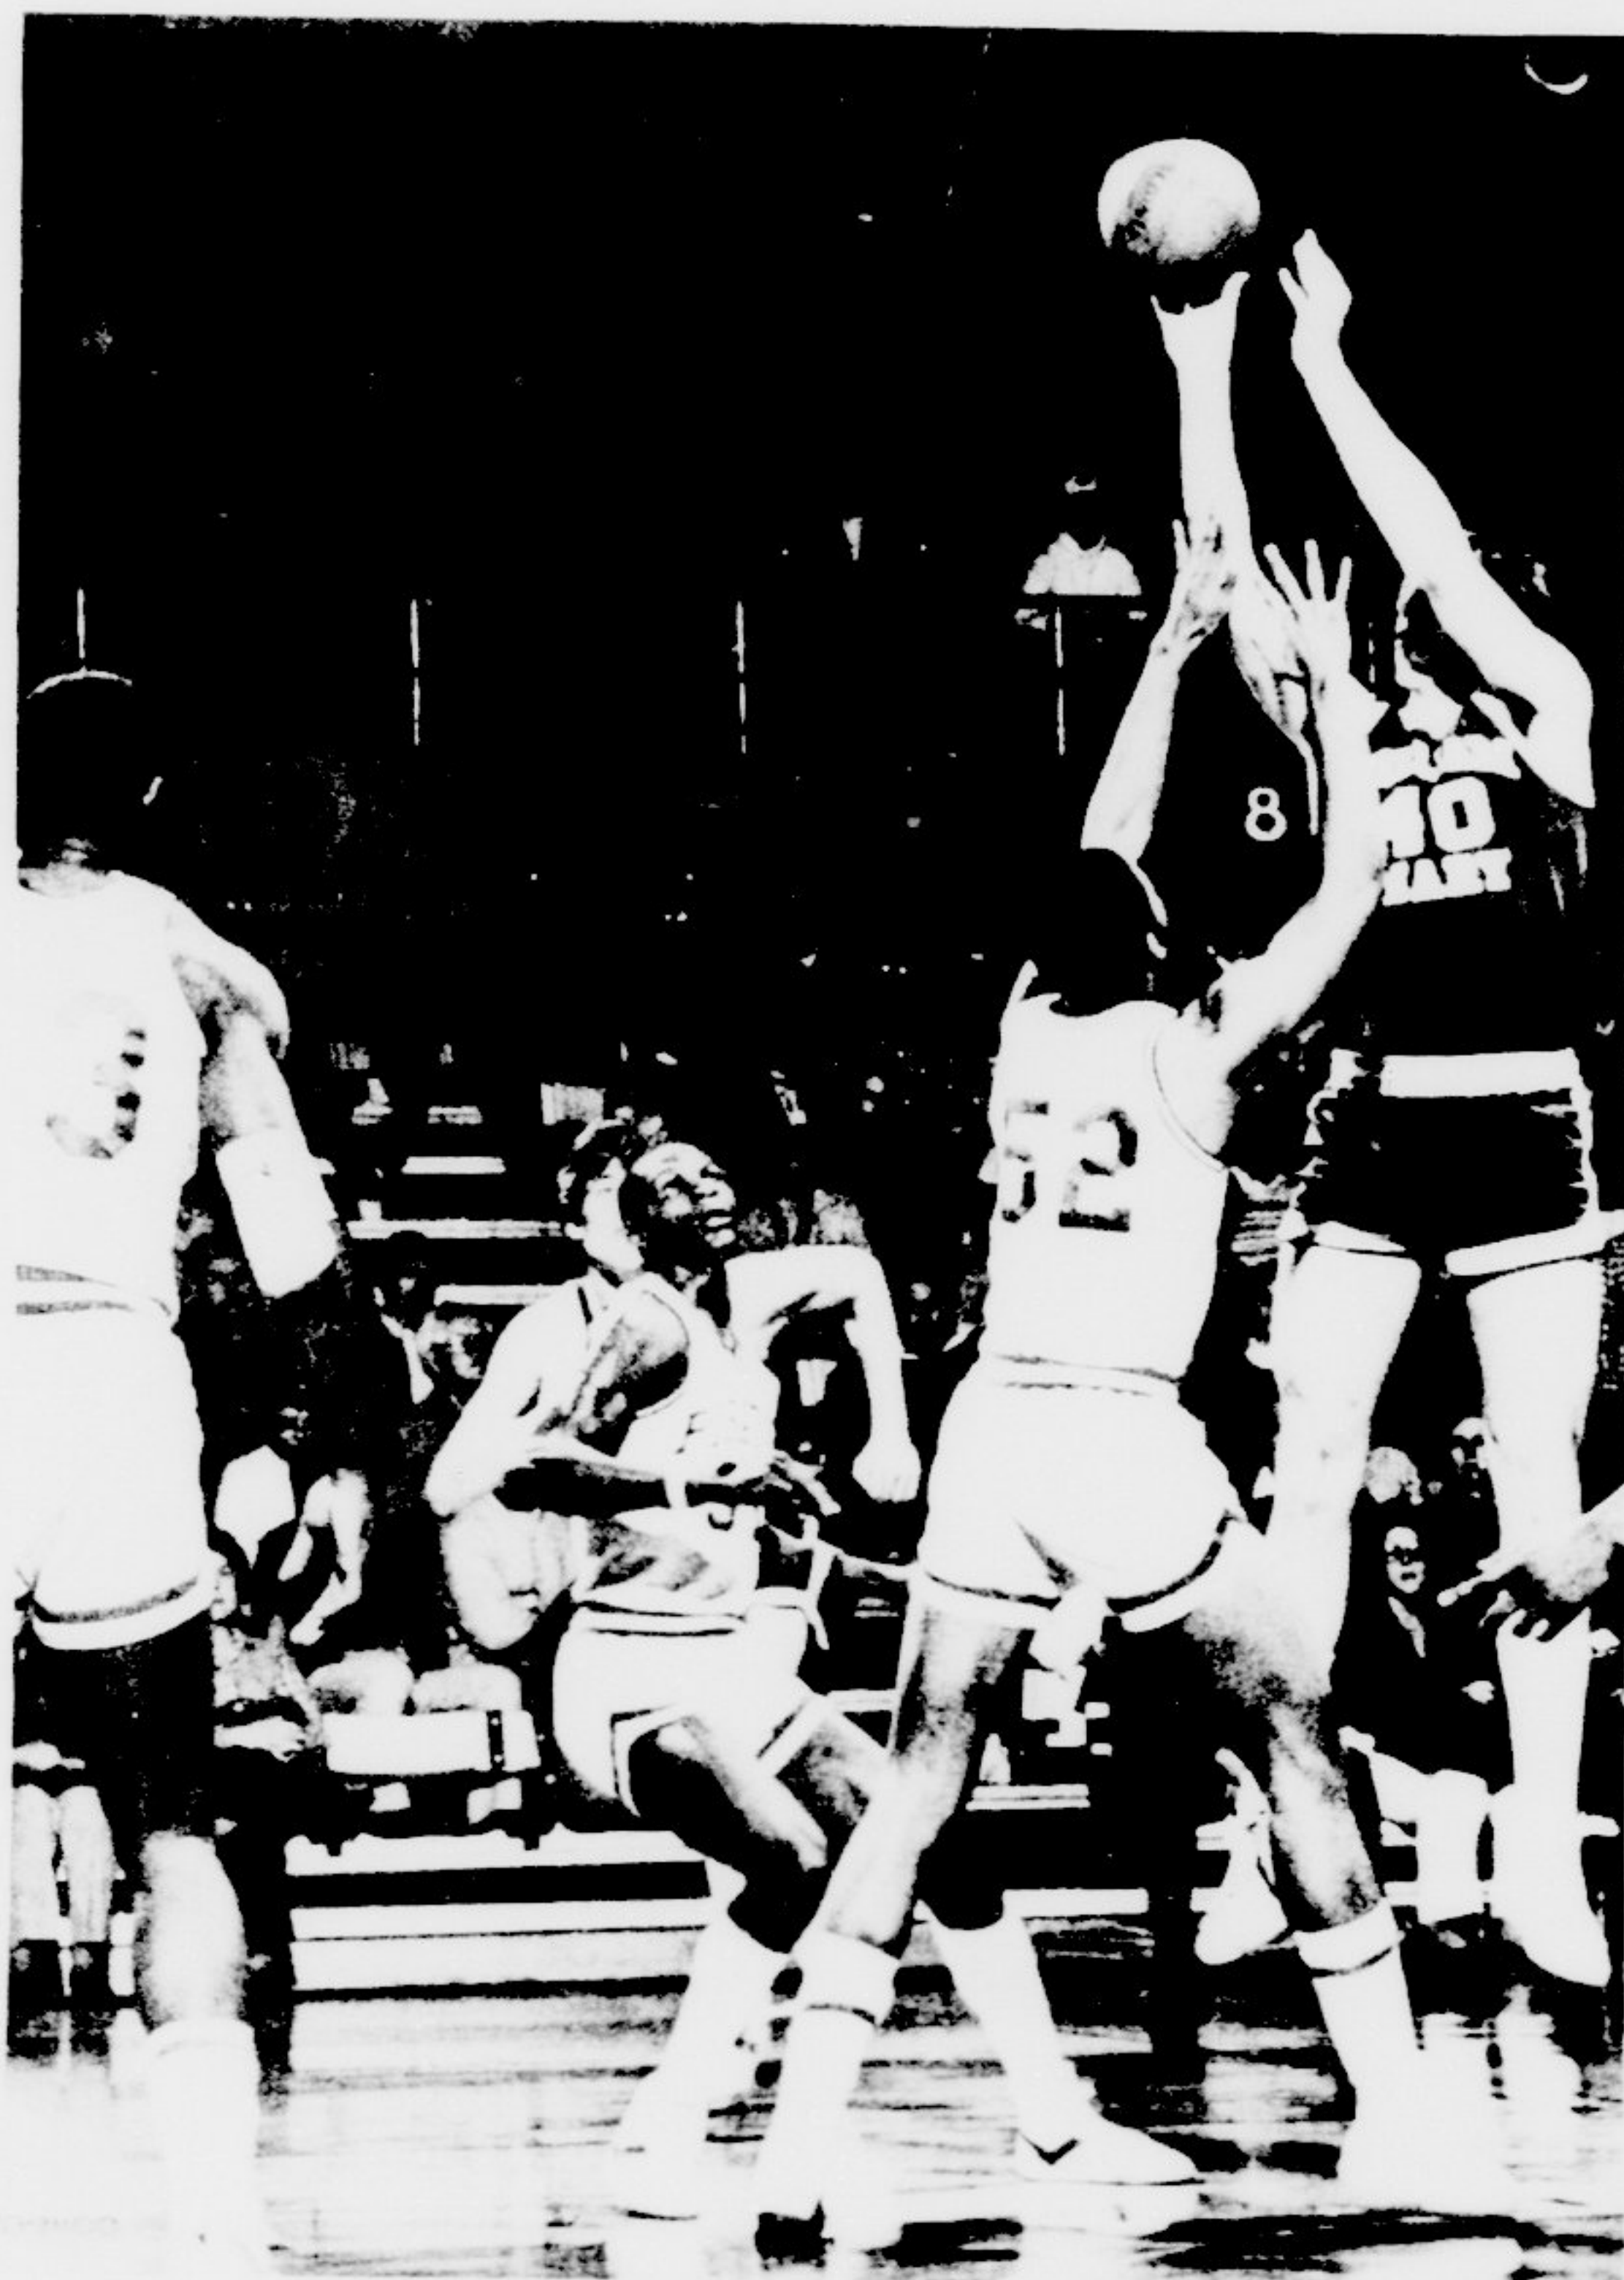

Denkler, who is averaging 24.6 points and 7.8 rebounds per game, is third on the all-time ECU scoring list behind Debbie Freeman and Rosie Thompson.

Her 24.6 scoring average currently leaves her fourth in the nation in scoring.

Sophomore point-guard Loraine Foster is averaging 15.5 points and 4.8 assists per outing. Only in her second year, Foster is currently 11th on the all-time ECU assists and steals charts.

5-4 guard Delphine Mabry, the "Rocky Mount Rocket," is third on the team in scoring and rebounding even though she is the shortest member of the squad.

Mabry, who is a 1984 Olympic hopeful in track, is considered one of the fastest players in the country. Baseline to baseline, she is the fastest that Lady Pirate coaches have ever seen.

The Lady Pirates will have to be at top form this weekend against the Lady Monarchs. The main reason is Anne Donovan, ODU's 6-8 All-American.

Donovan is averaging 16.4 points and 15.7 rebounds per game. She is currently bothered by a mild muscle tear in her left calf and it has not been determined whether or not she will play on Friday.

With or without Donovan, the Lady Monarchs will have a large height advantage.

"The height problem will be a challenge, but it has been the same challenge all year," responded Andruzzi. "We go there realizing that we have to execute to the best of our ability and stop them from doing the things that they do best."

After leaving Norfolk, the Lady Pirates will travel to Charlotte to face UNC-Charlotte.

Andruzzi's goal for the team is to improve every day for the rest of the season.

Track Team Vies

By RANDY MEWES
Staff Writer

With one meet already behind them, the 1982-83 ECU men's track team is pointing toward an extremely successful season. The men's team will travel to Johnson City, Tenn. this weekend to compete in the Eastman Kodak Invitational.

In December, the Pirates had a fine showing in Fairfax, Va. at the Patriot Invitational with four first place finishes. Freshman Christopher Brooks jumped 24'9" to break the school record in the long jump, and also placed first in the triple jump. Another freshman, Craig White, tied ECU's record and placed 1:10 off national qualifying time in the hurdles with a 7.2.

Head coach Bill Carson and his assistant Wayne Miller were able to recruit one of the top freshman classes in the country for this season.

Last year, North Carolina produced its finest array of athletes ever, and ECU landed 17 of the best talents in the state. "These are the greatest track athletes ever to be assembled at ECU," Carson stated.

Because of the abundance of talent within the state, Carson has decided to expand his team into field events. Former high school competitors that will long and triple jump for the Pirates include Brooks, Arthur Burkes, Donnel Sheppard and Clifton King. Carson signed four of the state's premier hurdlers also in Anthony White, Walter Southerland, Ruben Pierce and Tony Jones. The new Pirate sprinters include Erskine Evans,

Rodney Blacknall, Jerry Brown and Joseph Dingle.

The Pirates return two veterans in juniors Keith Clarke and Ray Dickerson. Clarke is expected to add valuable experience to the mile-relay team while Dickerson will be his best at the 800-meters.

Carson believes the Pirates have a very bright future ahead and is optimistic about the upcoming meets. "I don't want to push the freshmen too hard at first," Carson said, "but we can expect great things from them as the season progresses."

Cagers Face Spiders

The ECU men's basketball team, now 6-6, will play their third conference game of the year Saturday afternoon when the Pirates travel north to face the Richmond Spiders.

The Spiders are led by 6-4 guard Tom Bethea with a 11.6 per game scoring average. Bethea, who is originally from Durham, toured Europe this summer with the NIT All-Stars.

"Bethea is definitely the catalyst of our basketball team," stated Dick Tarrant, who is in his second year as the Spiders' head coach. "We need consistent performance from Tom in order to be successful."

Richmond is currently 5-7 but has faced a high level of competition all year. Their losses have been to teams including Wake Forest and Virginia Tech.

"We are no longer a young and inexperienced team," Tarrant said. "We are now a mature team with confidence and experience. Our players now realize that they can win and that confidence factor aids a team greatly."

After the Richmond game, ECU will return home on Monday, Jan. 17 to face Baptist at 7:30 p.m.

Every team wants a shot at winning that championship title. And having made it to last year's NCAA playoffs, the ECU men's baseball team wants it more than ever this season. But ECU head coach Hal Baird doesn't expect that task to be an easy one.

"It's always more difficult to repeat than it is to win the first year," Baird said. "Everyone will be shooting for us. I do, though, feel that we have a chance to repeat, although we will be the target for most clubs."

To have a chance to repeat, Baird said that several positions which were vacated by departing seniors need to be adequately filled, including the pitching staff.

"Out pitching is untested," said Baird, whose two top pitchers last year, Bill Wilder (Kansas City) and Scott Patterson (San Diego), were drafted by professional teams. Also drafted were second baseman Mike Sorrell (Kansas City) and catcher Fran Fitzgerald (Baltimore), and Baird needs to fill those positions also.

"Out strength this year is not in the pitching staff," Baird continued. "Out success will be predicated on how well the

Competition for the starting position at second base will be a two man battle between Tony Salmund and David Horn, who was a starter at the end of the fall season. In addition, Jack Kurlings and Jimbo Fulghum will be pushing for the open position at catcher.

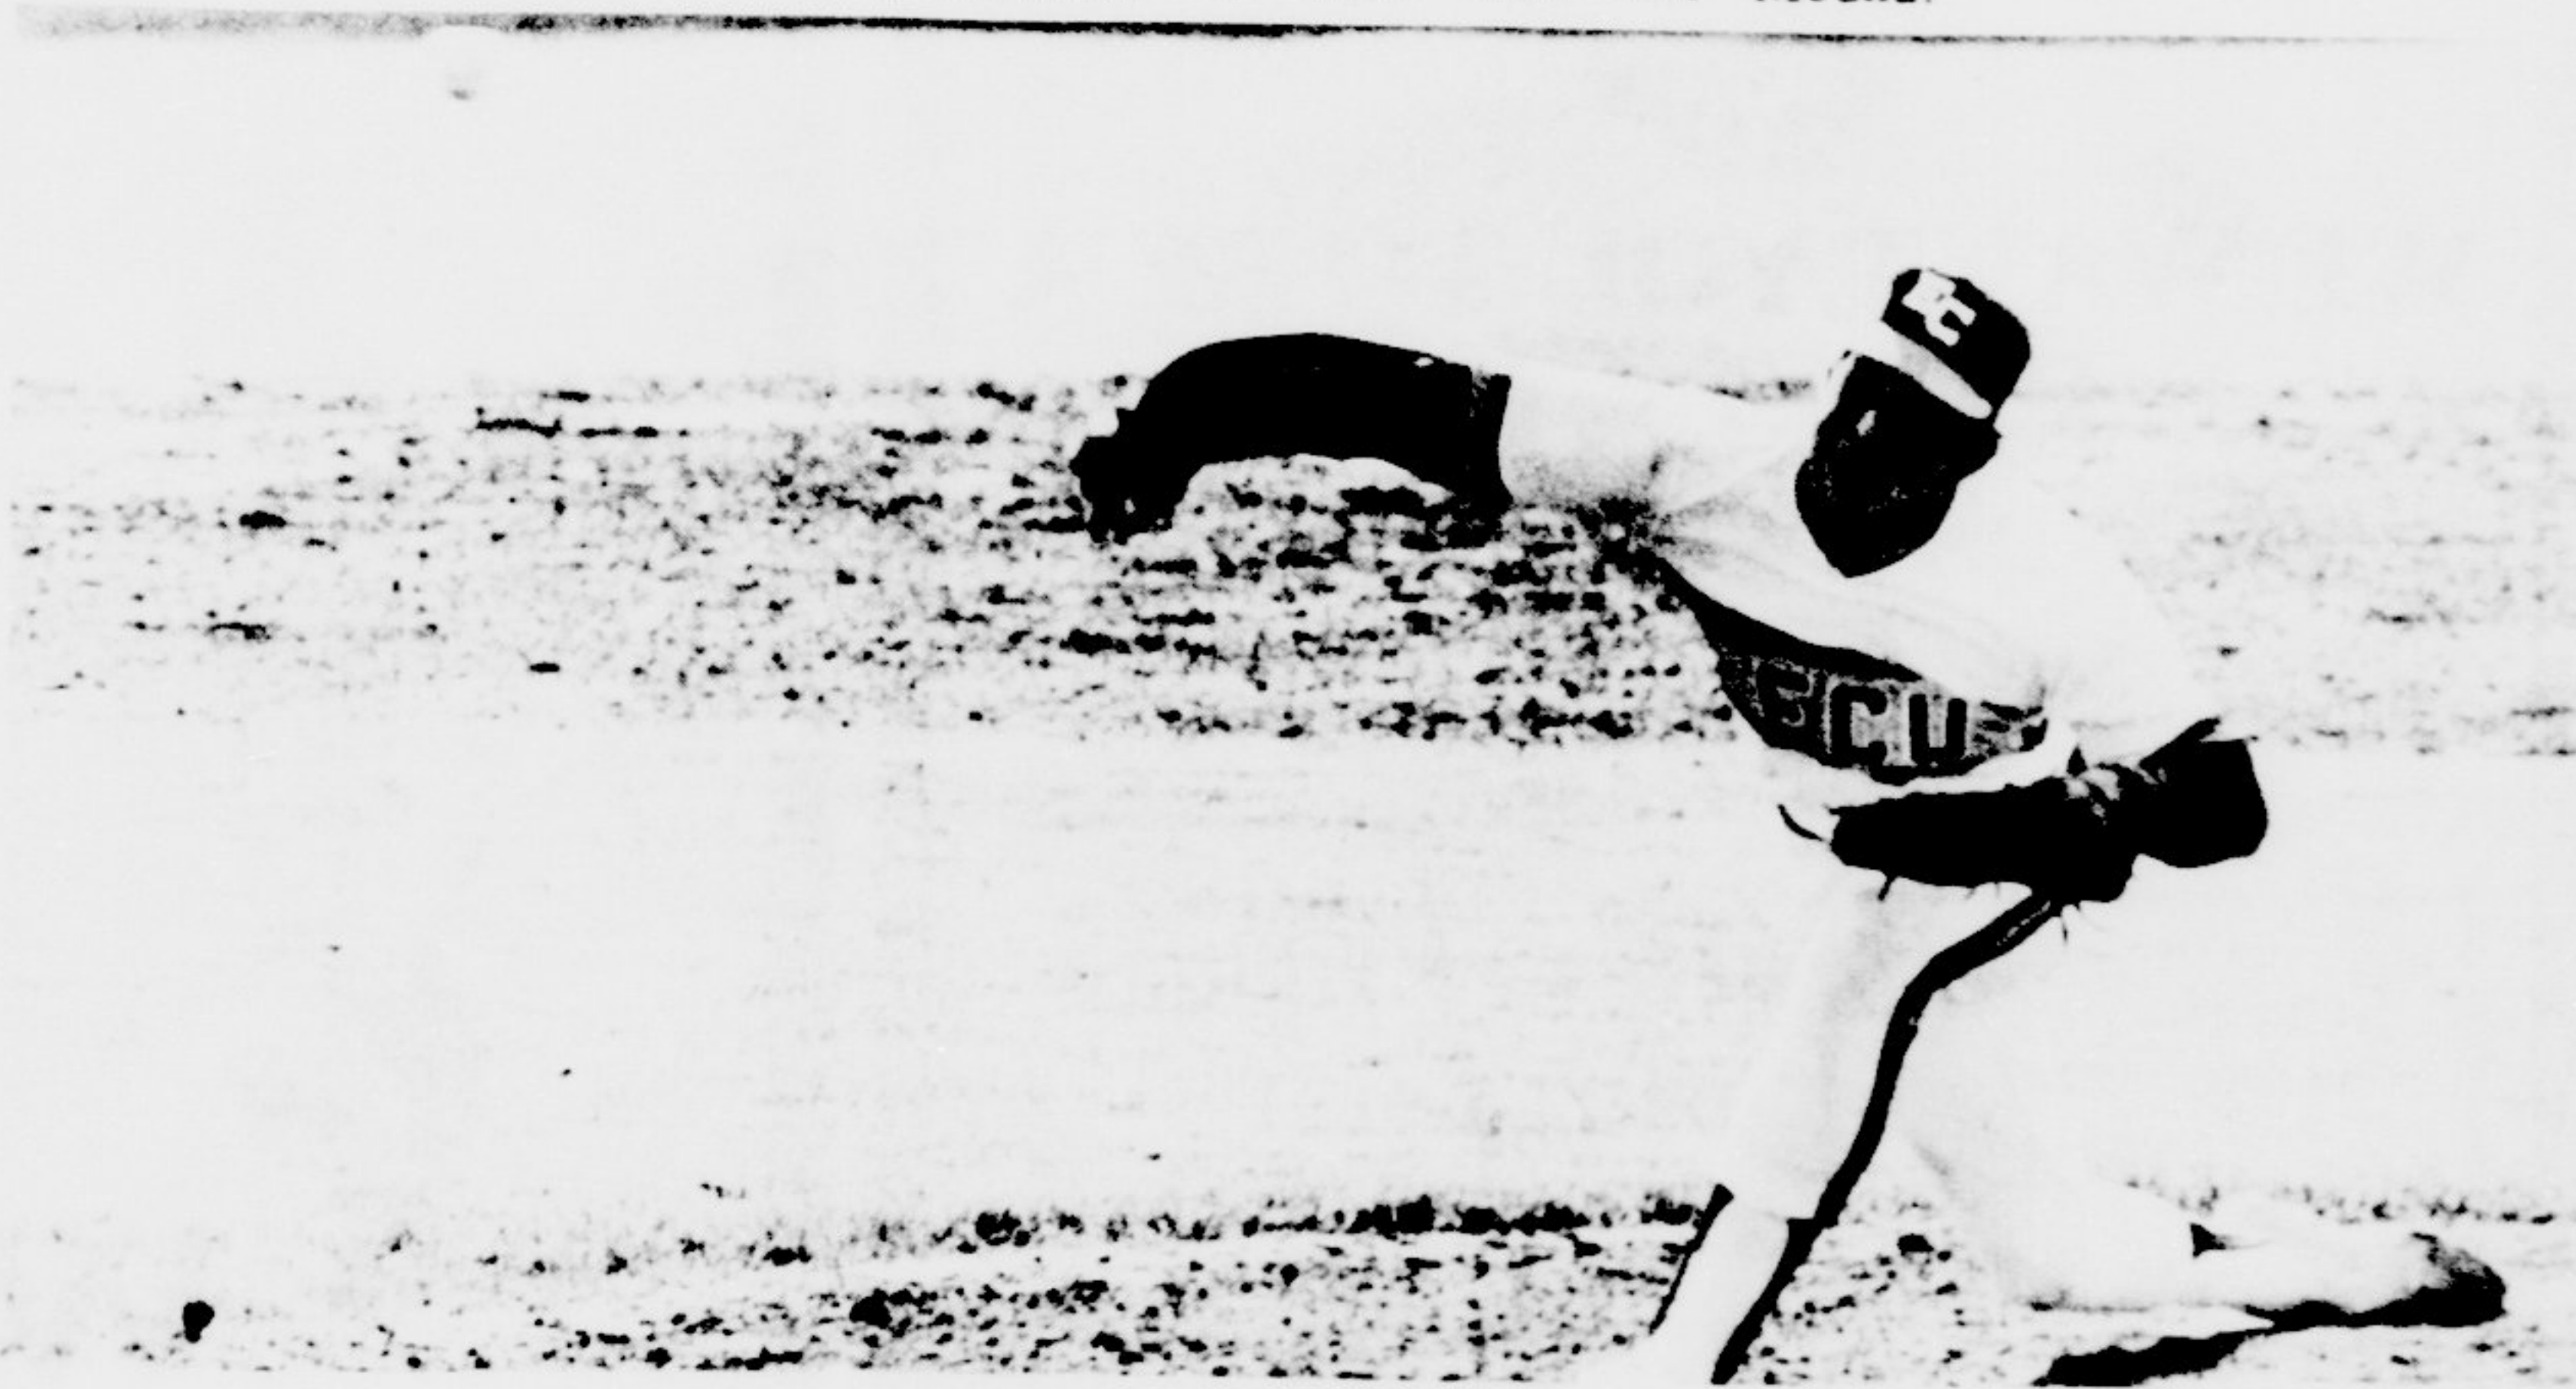

The team began practicing last week in preparation for its March 2 opener against Virginia Commonwealth, focusing mainly on "comprehensive stretching, long distance running, and different types of sprinting exercises," Baird said. Techniques and fundamentals will be worked on later.

Baird also mentioned that the method by which the collegiate academic system is set up, tremendous emphasis is placed on pre-season practices. "Because of the semester system," he said, "there are many games during the season with no days off in between. We don't have much time to practice during the season."

Mary Denkler is now tied for fourth place among women's scorers in the country.

Basketball Rolls Into Action... Intramural basketball leads the list of activities for spring semester. It is one of the most popular activities offered as more than 140 teams participated last year. The high-scoring Joint Eight captured the men's division last season, while the Dribblers topped the women's teams. Both teams will be back to defend their titles. Entry dates are January 17-19 with the team captains' meeting scheduled for January 20 at 7:00 p.m. in the Biology building, Room 103.

Defending champs, The Night Cruisers, 151-175, 176-199, 200 lbs.-over. Women: 135-under, 136-over. Organizations are welcome to enter or have a person(s) represent them in the tournament. Budweiser will be providing T-shirts to all participants and trophies to first and second place winners. So start lifting those weights and doing those curls for your chance to be an ECU-Budweiser strong-arm champ.

Attention Strong Arms...

Welcome back all you strong arms. It's time once again for the Intramural-Recreational Services and Budweiser Arm Wrestling Tournament. This annual event will begin Tuesday, February 1, with the finals being held at halftime of the Converse Lady Pirate Classic on February 12.

Sign up for this powerhouse event will be January 24-27 at Memorial Gym 204. Participants will arm wrestle within their respective weight classes.

Hockey On Wheels...

Intramural Co-Rec Roller Hockey will be rolling into action on January 24 at Sportsworld. Entries will be taken January 17-19, classes:

Men: 150-under, 151-175, 176-199, 200 lbs.-over. Women: 135-under, 136-over.

Both of these sports, the basketball clinics will begin Thursday, January 13 at 6:00 p.m., and the roller hockey clinics will begin Monday, January 17 at 8:00 p.m.

Both clinics will be held in Memorial Gym, Room 102. Bring your class schedules and Social Security numbers.

Sport Club Council Meeting...

The first meeting of the second semester for Sport Club Council will be held Wednesday, January 19 at 4:00 p.m. in Memorial Gym, room 102. Active sports clubs the second semester are: Frisbee, Lacrosse, Karate, Rugby-men and women, Racquetball, Soccer-women, Surfing, Team Handball-men and women.

Representatives from these clubs should be prepared to submit spring schedules, membership listings and the Sport Club Manual.

Kappa Alpha

To all interested men:
You have probably been at East Carolina long enough to notice that the fraternities here are very diverse in their organization and membership. Although we won't argue the fact that fraternities aren't the best thing at ECU, we do offer something for a variety of serious interested students. At our rush starting next week, all the fraternities will be making a concerted effort to introduce you to people at their house rather than any other. This is a chance for you to get to know us and to tell us what you think about it.

The most important thing is to visit every house. Don't make the mistake of being too picky at the first house you go to. Be sure to meet as many of the members of the fraternity as possible. They aren't just a bunch of guys, they're people. Be sure to ask them about their organization, its history, and how it fits into the college life. Another consideration is the fraternity's house. It is a house used enough to be a house. Would you be able to have your parents there? These things are important because there's a strong chance that you'll live there someday.

Even though these above considerations are important, many colleges simply don't have the fraternities which they think best. If you're serious about joining a fraternity, Kappa Alpha offers the interested college man membership in one of the country's oldest and most prestigious fraternities. Since we've been around for over 100 years, we've built a reputation for ourselves as a fraternity that's been around for a long time.

Kappa Alpha Order is the oldest fraternity at ECU and has the most chapters in the country. It is one of the oldest and most prestigious fraternities in the world. It has a long and proud history of service to the community and to the college. It is a fraternity that has been around for a long time and is still going strong.
