The old Pirate struts his stuff at the State game. Students Wednesday voted to oust the name of Pee Dee for the new mascot.

Students Don't Want Pee Dee

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK

In addition to selecting class officers and day and dorm legislators in yesterday's SGA elections, ECU students had a chance to voice opinions on state and national elections and on one campus issue, the name for the Pirate mascot.

Students were overwhelmingly opposed to the name Pee Dee for the mascot, with 82 percent of those voting saying they did not like it. ECU Chancellor John Howell said he was unsure of the effect this would have on any decision he would make to recommend a name change.

"I think I'll sleep on it," Howell said. "I'm not in as big of a hurry to make a decision as everyone else is. I've found that the less important a decision is, the more of a hurry people are in to have it made."

Howell added that he felt the matter would require some "deliberation," saying that he did not want to recommend a name change only to have the issue come up again in the near future.

"I think this vote shows interest among the student body on the issue," said SGA President John Rainey. "It is something which we should take as evidence that the student body is interested in changing the name."

Rainey said the question was included on the ballot so the SGA could have "something on paper to show how students felt about the ECU mascot."

The issue of changing the name has received a great deal of publicity, with stories on several local television stations. In addition, the Raleigh News and Observer carried a story about the name change on its front page, as did the Daily Reflector. The story was also picked up by United Press International.

The name of the mascot was chosen in a contest sponsored by the ECU Department of Athletics to provide publicity for its programs.

Safe Seat Belt Use Promoted By Groups

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK

A petition aimed at persuading the television and motion picture industries to demonstrate proper seat belt usage for the benefit of young children will be initiated at ECU within two weeks.

According to Sherrie Peterson, student coordinator for the program, the petition will appeal especially to television programs portraying hazardous driving. "We want to advocate that they (the industries) demonstrate appropriate seat belt usage thus serving as a proper role model for children."

The project has already been initiated in approximately 1,000 communities nationally, Peterson said. It is being supervised nationally by Scott Geller of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and locally by John Cope of the Department of Psychology and the ECU Chapter of Psi Chi, the national honor society in psychology.

Peterson said an effort was made by both the U.S. government and the auto industry to initiate a change but the response was that this "would weaken the macho image of male TV stars, jeopardizing the ratings."

"This is irresponsible public broadcasting and we want to stop it," Peterson said, adding that car accidents are the number one killer of children under the age of 5.

Peterson said she feels that television is important in promoting child safety because "children spend more time watching TV than reading books and listening to music." In addition, she said "TV is a major socializing factor for children, many of whom begin watching when they are 2 or 3."

Having a television or movie character don a seat belt prior to participation in a chase scene would help teach children the importance of this habit, Peterson said. "After this, parents can reinforce the seat belt habit by letting children imitate their proper behavior."

Petitions will be distributed on the ECU campus through student organizations and will also be distributed to the Chamber of Commerce, the state Highway Patrol and other community groups.

De Borchgrave To Speak

Acclaimed journalist Arnaud de Borchgrave, once described as "one of America's great foreign correspondents," will be visiting ECU on Tuesday, Oct. 9. His address, open to the public, will be at 3:30 p.m. in Room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center.

De Borchgrave will appear as a guest of the College Republicans and Students for Helms. He will discuss the upcoming elections, his experiences in journalism and Soviet media disinformation, his field of expertise.

As Newsweek's Chief Foreign Correspondent, de Borchgrave covered most of the world's major events after joining the magazine staff in 1950. In a recent article, Esquire magazine said that in 33 years, de Borchgrave covered 17 wars and more than 90 countries and "traded gossip with Anwar Sadat, sipped tea with Pham Van Dong in Hanoi and was a houseguest of King Hussein. In a job that requires bluff and bravado, he had outrun the best of them."

De Borchgrave resigned from Newsweek in 1980 after co-authoring The Spike with Robert Moss. The book, which dealt with Soviet KGB operations in the Western media, was an international bestseller. His most recent book, Monimbo, is a novel about Cuban-sponsored terrorism, the Cuban drug connection in the U.S., and the DGI, the Cuban secret service which operates the Spanish language branch of the KGB.

Raised Drinking Age Hurts Area Clubs

By HAROLD JOYNER

One year after the Safe Roads Act went into effect in North Carolina, many Greenville nightclubs are experiencing some economic problems.

Tom Haines, owner of the Attic and the vice-president of the Greenville Nightclub Association, said the biggest effect of the law was the loss of 18-year-old college students as customers. "We lost those people as well as the out-of-towners. So the law is not affecting the nightclubs only," he said. He said the people coming to Greenville nightclubs from out of town are not going to risk driving being stopped for drinking.

The Elbo Room, which admits 18-year-old college students, has not experienced a decline in attendance since the law went in effect last October according to Kirby Bryson, owner of the Elbo who said business has been better than usual, "but I still feel the law has not helped the problem of drunk drivers. People are more careful about their drinking and they are choosing alternative methods of transportation."

Bryson said many students are calling cabs and utilizing SGA buses to take them home safely. "I think it is good the SGA offers this service," he said, "and I am glad other public transportation is available to students."

Haines said people are not going to give up their social life because of the law, and therefore have become more responsible drinkers. "When the law first went into effect," he said, "we saw a definite decline in the amount of alcohol consumed, but it is leveling off now."

Many clubs are having to cut corners to compensate for the lack of business, Haines said. "A lot of places have had to lay off bartenders simply because there was no business for them. We cut our insurance to compensate for the loss and of course that caused a lot of problems," he said.

Haines said he felt a lot of the drinking law has been political.

"A lot of politicians were obligated to their constituents and therefore had to vote for the law. If the younger people had voiced their opposition of the bill from the beginning, politicians would have had no other choice but to vote against it."

In an informal poll conducted by Haines, 100 18-year-old students were asked if they had stopped drinking since the law was passed, "and all 100 of them said no," he said. "The law has made criminals out of the 18-year-olds," Haines added.

W. C. King, owner of the King and Queen North said he thinks more people are conscious of the law and are buying fewer drinks. "About 20 percent of our business is from ECU students and they are consuming about 25 to 30 percent less alcohol as a result of the Safe Roads Act," he said.

Local businesses are also feeling the effect of the law, Haines said. "Many business such as restaurants and convenience stores have felt the impact of the law. Let's face it, people are not going to come here if they can't drink." Haines said because Greenville is a college town and the nightclubs want to continue operating, many places will have to go private to accommodate the liquor laws. "I believe more places will go private if they continue to see a decline in clientele," Haines said.

Congress is currently proposing a new bill which would make it mandatory for states to raise their drinking age to 21. "A lot of states do not like this for the reason that if they don't raise the drinking age, federal highway funds will not be given to them. States do not like to be told what to do," Haines said. He also said the only state to show opposition to a nationwide drinking law is Louisiana. Haines said he doesn't think North Carolina will follow this trend because of the large number of highways in the state.

"I feel the only advantage to such a bill is that it would eliminate the blood border states," he said.

FBI Agent Arrested For Conspiracy

(UPI) — An FBI counterintelligence agent has been arrested and accused of conspiracy to pass American secrets to the Soviets, the first FBI special agent to be arrested on espionage charges, the agency announced today.

Special FBI agent Richard W. Miller, 47, a 20-year veteran of the agency, was taken into custody in Los Angeles shortly before midnight Tuesday. Two Soviet emigres, who came to the United States in 1973, also were arrested in the Miller case.

If convicted, Miller could be imprisoned for life. Officials said Miller is the first special FBI agent to be arrested on spy charges.

Miller was assigned to Los Angeles where he worked on "counterintelligence matters," the FBI said.

The agency said an investigation "disclosed evidence that Miller had conspired with the Soviets to pass classified FBI documents dealing with positive intelligence tasking to the government of the Soviet Union."

"Positive intelligence tasking" deals with the assigning of U.S. counterintelligence agents, sources said.

"He was fired before he was arrested," an FBI source said. The source said Miller's "objective was money" but declined to elaborate.

The source said the FBI was still trying to assess the degree of intelligence damage and it was not clear what classified information may have been transmitted to the Soviet Union.

Also arrested were Nikolay Ogorodnikov, 51, — and Svetlana Ogorodnikov, 34, both of Los Angeles. They faced the See AGENT, Page 3

ROTC A

By ROBERT SMITH

Staff Writer

Imagine yourself standing in the Mendenhall Student Center Parking lot at 3 a.m. on a rainy, cold, Saturday morning. Why am I there? What is going to happen to me? Is it really worth writing about? My questions were answered very quickly as I followed the ECU Army ROTC to the Recondo Course at Ft.

N.C. State

(CPS) — Thanks to student protest and a new student center advisory committee, it's "still rock 'n' roll" at North Carolina State University after all.

A three-week-old campus ban on "heavy metal" music was lifted last week when the administration approved a Coliseum Concert Advisory Committee to screen rock music acts, reports committee member Jeff Bender.

The ban followed a Van Halen concert where the young, predominantly non-campus crowd left the university's Reynolds Coliseum strewn with trash, Bender explains.

"The Saturday concert meant there was no clean-up until Monday," he says. "The administration decided 'We don't want this mess anymore,' and reasoned that heavy metal bands were drawing a young, non-student same charges as Miller.

The three were arrested at their homes in Los Angeles, sources said.

FBI Director William Webster said Miller was dismissed from the FBI on Tuesday after he was charged with conspiring with two Soviet-born U.S. residents to pass secret FBI documents to the Soviet Union.

"This is a most serious matter, involving a special agent alleged to have committed such a crime against the United States," Webster said.

Pee Dee

Students Want Name Changed

Well, the students have spoken. In the SGA Elections Wednesday, students, the heart and soul of this university, overwhelmingly decided that the name Pee Dee has to go. With more than 82 percent of the students who voted saying "no" to the name, we are telling the administration and athletic department to give us the chance to name our mascot something else.

The ball is in your court, Dr. Howell. And there is only one shot to take. It's an easy one. Tell the students that you work for that they can now begin the process of naming the school mascot. There should be no delay in this matter. On your orders, the athletic department and the Student Government Association can get together and plan a way for the students to name the Pirate.

The East Carolinian offers its services. We can reach the students the best and facilitate a quick and easy re-naming of the mascot.

We know you will do the right thing, Dr. Howell. We trust that when confronted with the facts, as you have been over the last several weeks, you will realize that your students were slighted and that they deserve a fair chance. The athletic department, as you know, named our mascot — we, the students, had nothing to do with it. We helped pick the symbol. About half of us agree that it is better than the old Pirate. Although he's a cartoonish-type character, he grows on you. The name, though, is stagnant and unwanted, as evidenced by the lopsided choice to dump it.

We know you realize you should have done this several weeks ago when it was first brought to your attention. But everyone makes mistakes, Dr. Howell — even chancellors of universities. But the votes have been counted, and as you said in the Raleigh News And Observer, "I don't feel strongly about it one way or the other." Well, Dr. Howell, now you know the students do.

You are, in a sense, their servant. You are there to help each of us get a top-flight education. Through this petitioning of our grievance, we are putting our understanding of American government to use. We feel strongly enough to let you know we care. We see an injustice done to us and ask that you, as our chancellor, see that the wrong done to us is righted.

We, the students, expect that today you will order the name of Pee Dee stricken from our university. The faculty doesn't like it, the alumni doesn't like it and the students have mandated that it be changed. See the error of your administration's ways, Dr. Howell. Let your students name our mascot.

And...

With the dust about to settle on the Pee Dee issue, we would like to address some of the statements made during the last couple of days.

First of all, this is important. Some members of the administration repeatedly said they did not want to discuss the issue because they felt it was not a pressing matter. If this is so, we would like to know why these people constantly defended their inactions and refused to let the students change the name when clearly everyone was against the old one.

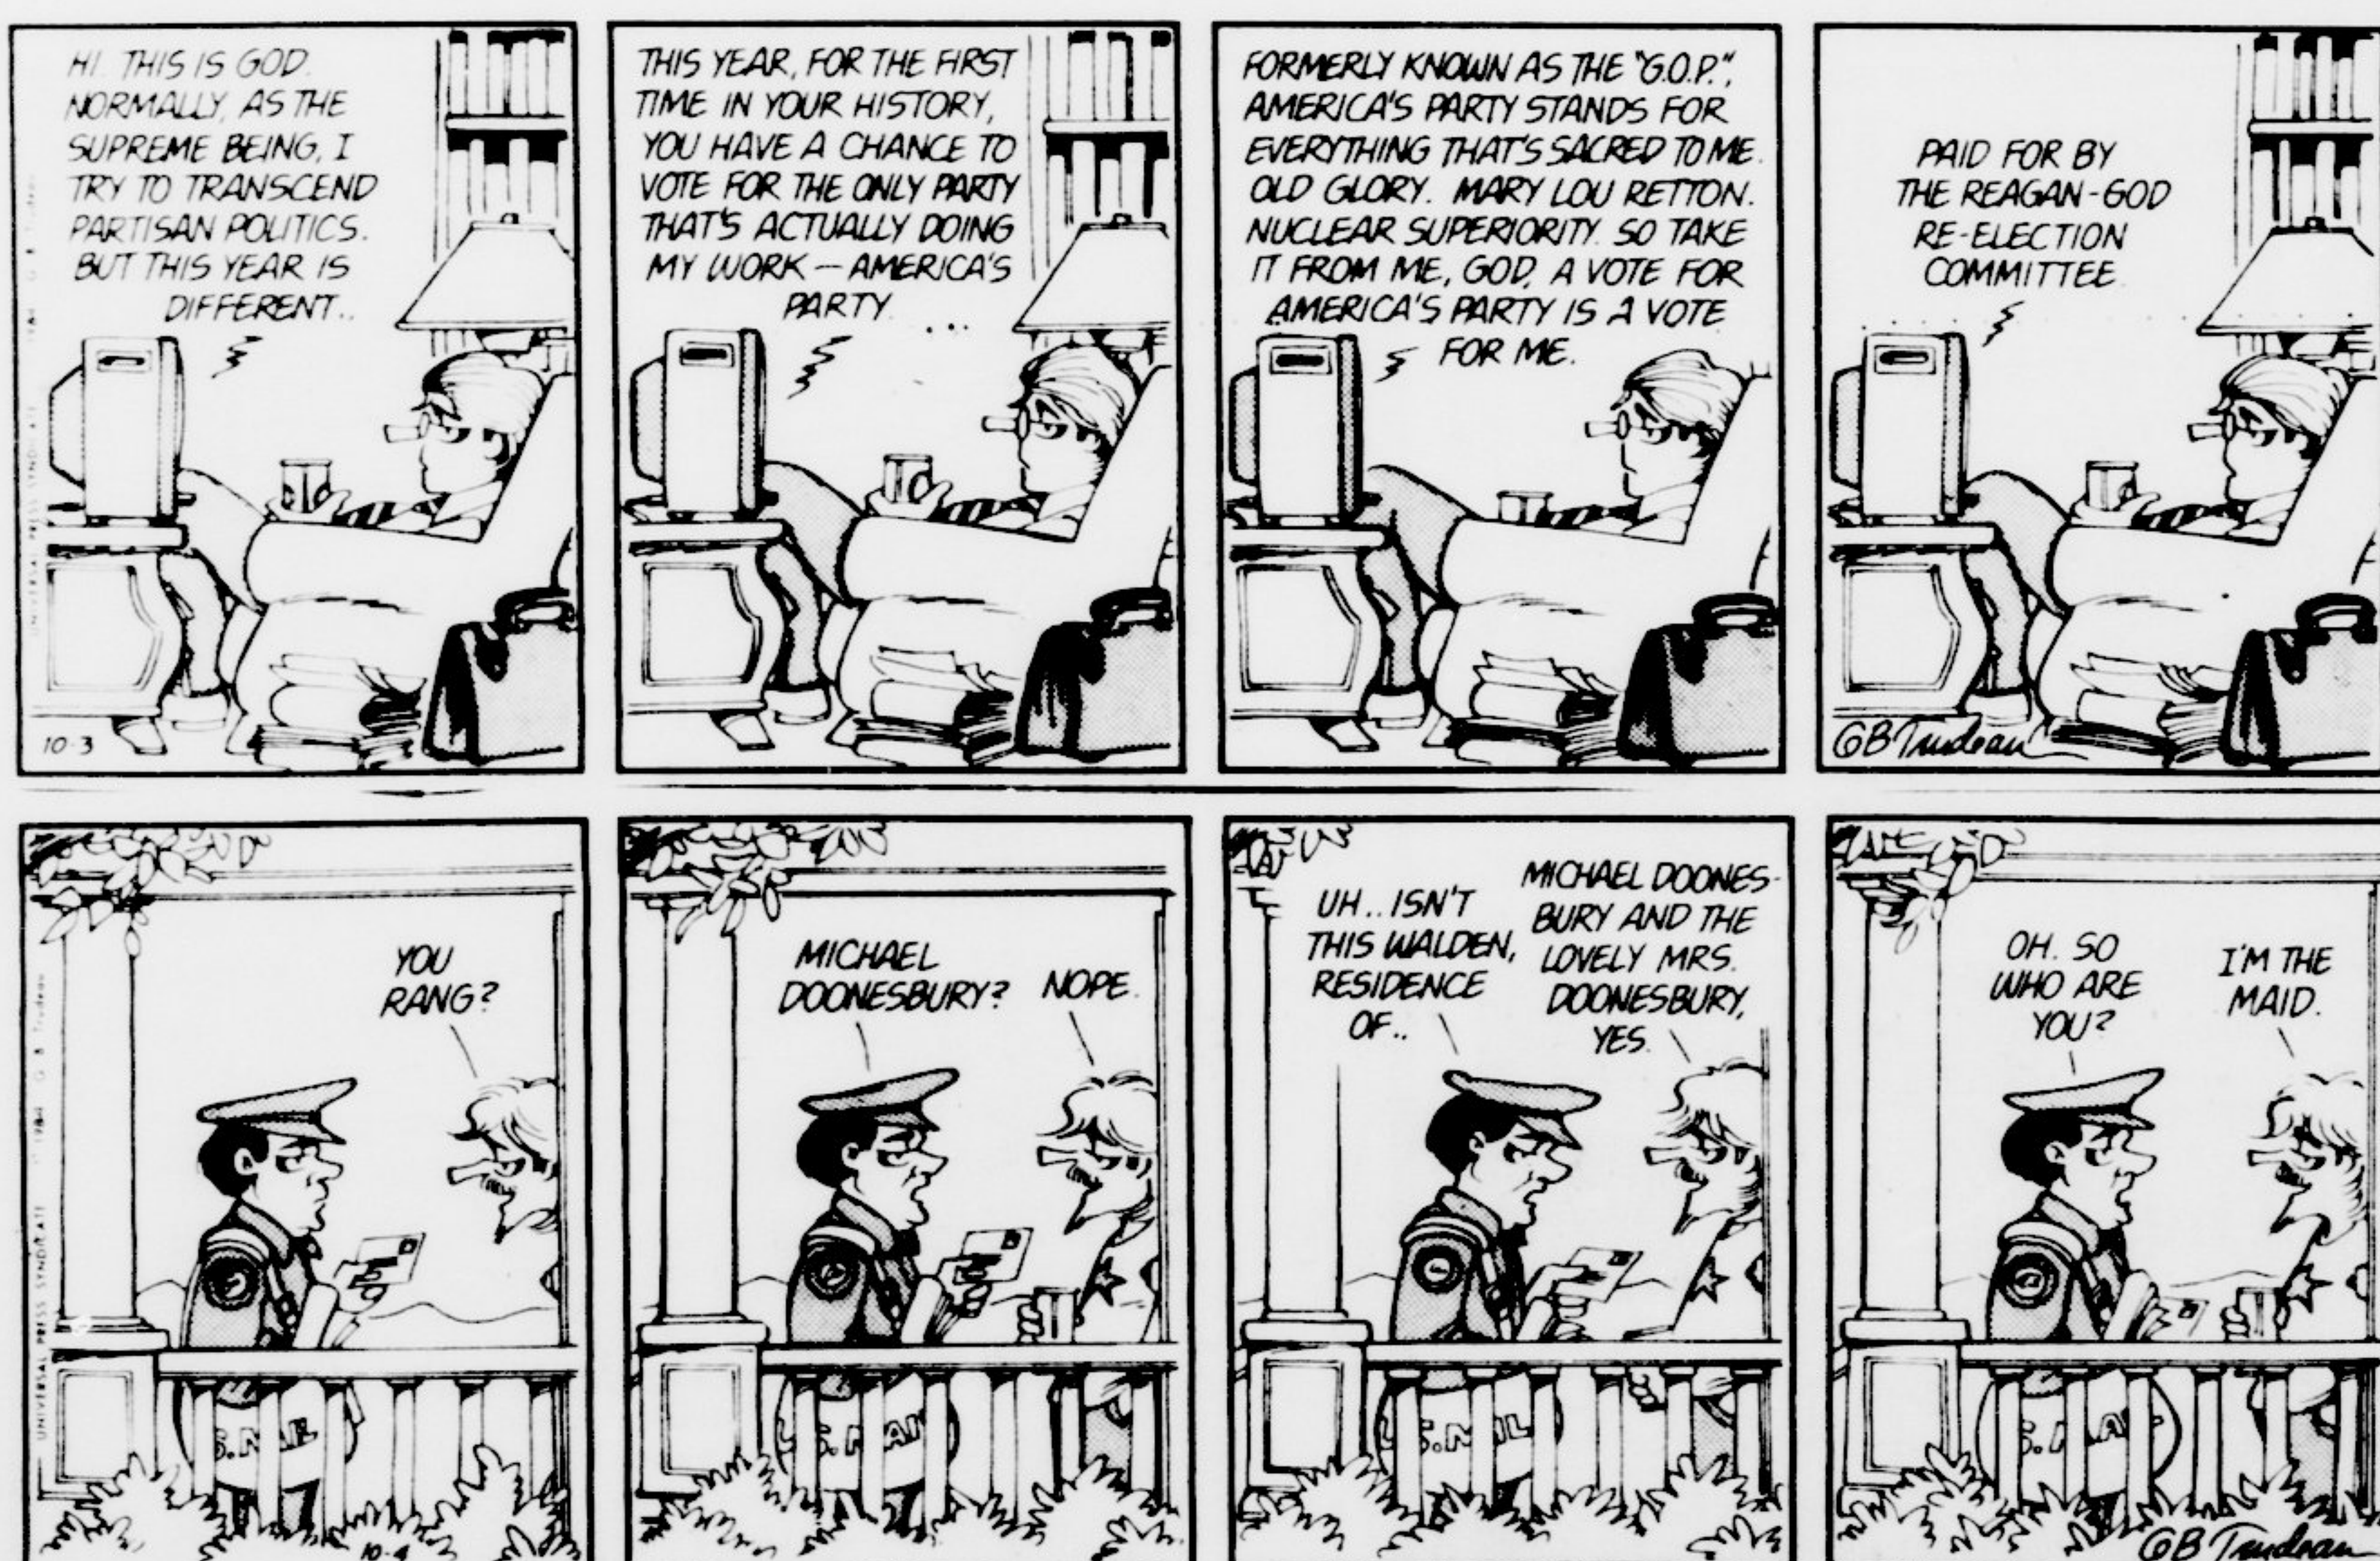

Secondly, we would like to say we hold nothing against people who are doing their jobs. We realize there are differing points of view on this issue, but we believe that everyone involved knew that what we — the students — were doing was right. Also, we applaud efforts by the university to make ECU a part of North Carolina's life. We just think the picture presented should be accurate on this matter.

Lastly, we know that in comparison to other events happening in the world, this is not as important. But that is not the point. Do not say we shouldn't pursue a concern of the students just because it's an election year or we face the threat of nuclear war. Of course those things are more important. But don't invoke them when they aren't germane to the topic.

The East Carolinian will continue to discuss these and other important things now that this is about to be settled.

Pirate Talks

Like soldiers, old pirates don't die — they just fade away. We created the Pirate of years' past to counter student apathy and to show life at game, school and community functions. (In fact, there was a female pirate initially — you were great, Kim!) The Pirate encouraged the boastful, boisterous, memorable activity referred to as spirit and having a good time living life to its fullest. Everyone just called him "The Pirate" as he yelled with and at the players, the coaches, officials and fans; the name wasn't important — he was a spirit.

Pat's Okay

Many students and members of the faculty have been asking about the well-being of Patrick O'Neill, a former East Carolinian staff member who is currently serving time for an act of civil disobedience he performed last Easter. I would like to report that Pat is alive and as well as can be expected for someone who has been transferred to several different prisons in the last couple of months. Unfortunately, his address book was taken away from him at one of these prisons; consequently, he only has those addresses that he had memorized.

Patrick is now in a minimum security prison in Atlanta, Ga., and he will most likely be there throughout the remainder of his sentence (at least 15 months). Like every other prisoner, he would love to receive correspondence. His address is: Patrick O'Neill, FPC, Box 150160, Lakewood Station, Atlanta, Ga., 30315 — 0182.

CR's Juvenile

It is to be expected, perhaps even typical of the College Republicans, to respond to the ECU Young Democrats' recent challenge to debate with juvenile remarks about myself and our group's motives. Their record as hecklers both locally and nationally is well known.

What is not as well known about the CR's is whether they can muster the courage to defend the record of Ronald Reagan. I personally find it difficult to believe that there is no one in the entire (self-proclaimed) CR membership of 80 who cannot articulate the Republican record and position. Students deserve to know what Ronald Reagan has done to them and what he will continue to do to them.

Today, we again publicly challenge the CR's to a debate to be held at a time and place mutually agreed upon. We are asking the CR's to take time from their busy schedule of heckling Democratic candidates to participate in a debate of issues.

Come on guys, you aren't afraid of debating us Democrats are you?

Ed Wrong?

In response to the Sept. 27 editorial, the following should be recognized as a true account of the facts. Due to false statements within the editorial, a rebuttal is necessary.

The poll tenders were not instructed by the elections chairperson on the correct procedure of manning the voting process. The polls were cancelled not because of "ignorance or just plain stupidity" but because an error was made in the campaigning process. We feel no one is at fault or lacks "common sense" but do acknowledge an unawareness of the rule regarding campaign literature within 25 feet of the polling booths.

According to a poll tender at the student store, common sense and free will tells you that anyone may vote for whomever they wish. Therefore, the sheets containing Greek members' names were thought to be legal. The poll tenders did not hand out the literature, so they do not feel responsible for the sheets being on the tables.

It is a small political society on campus, and the Greeks wish to participate. In an effort to arouse student involvement, the Greeks will continue to be involved in campus politics. If the few who thrive on student apathy would consider the results, they would realize that any person or organization that puts forth the effort to be involved will result in more student involvement instead of standing on the wayside passively.

Hey, Johnny

John East, please come home! The College Republicans at ECU refuse to debate! That's right, in the finest tradition of "Silent Cal," the College Republicans want to have nothing to say, and then request that they not be quoted! I suppose it's much easier to kick a candidate and tell people about a fictitious economic recovery than to come out and state what they believe in a public forum.

When the Republicans took control of the Senate and the White House in 1980, many of us Democrats were consoled by the fact that they would have to "put up or shut up." Since they can't seem to put up, I guess they have decided to opt for the latter.

Helms Not Standing Tall

After reading the letter from the chairman of the ECU College Republicans in which he portrays Jesse Helms as a man standing tall, I thought it would be appropriate to tell you the things our radical senator is standing tall for.

He stood tall for Roberto D'Aubuisson and his right-wing death squads in El Salvador, going against our country's foreign policy. He stood tall against our grandparents by opposing President Reagan's bipartisan plan to save Social Security. He stood tall against the North Carolina tobacco farmers when he went back to the Senate floor and changed his vote to be in favor of a federal tobacco tax. Finally, he has stood tall against us as college students by voting against student loans. And on Sept. 18, 1983 Sen. Helms said of public education, "I ain't got no dog in that fight."

Who has Sen. Helms been standing tall for? Surely not the people of North Carolina. It should come as no surprise when Sen. Helms refused to talk about his record on the issues in this campaign. The truth is, he's voted against us and our interests time and time again. I am sure that Sen. Helms as well as College Republicans chairman Kilcoyne is scared to death that we are going to find out.

New Sounds From The Everly Bros.

The Everly Brothers returned to the stage and produced EB '84, an album quite different from those in the past.

By JENNY MEADOR
Staff Writer

The Everly Brothers — a group that hasn't played together since 1973 — returned to the stage last September at London's Royal Albert Hall to give themselves a boost and let people know that they are back in business. People Magazine stated, "It was as if they had never been away."

After 11 years the Everlys have put out their latest album, EB '84. The cut definitely reflects the magazine's statement although critics claim it has the sound and the lyrics of the '80s.

EB '84 captures the sounds of the early '60s and brings to mind artists like Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, and even the Beatles. They still combine a unique blend of rock'n'roll, country, rockabilly, and perhaps a tinge of bluegrass on the album, but it makes you wonder if that's the sound people are looking for. If the Woodstock gathering — the resurgence of rock 'n' roll and flower children — was ever a part of your life, then maybe EB '84 will satisfy your desire for true rock 'n' roll. However, unless you're an avid rock 'n' roll buff or in your mid 30s, chances are Woodstock is no more than a cartoon character to you.

Nevertheless, the Everlys have put together a good album of versatile nostalgia. The sounds of "On the Wings of a Nightingale," written by Paul McCartney especially for the album, and "Danger Danger," a tune about a provocative young girl gone wild, reflect the upbeat sound of the smooth but quick rock 'n' roll. From here they move into the love ballad, "The Story of Me."

The experimenting stops and sweet harmonies and lyrics prevail on side two of EB '84. The 1969 classic, "Lay, Lady, Lay," sets the tone for four new mellow pop songs. The sweetest and most beautiful song, "Following the Sun," describes a lonely heart "Looking for love somewhere following the sun." The relaxing tones of the guitars and the ever-so-sweet harmony almost causes you to sink into the sounds. And the last song on the album, "Asleep," is so smooth that you can't help but feel your eyelids fall.

The Everly Brothers may not be the most contemporary rock duo around, but if you let them, their music can take you back, give you a lift, and let you relax — in harmony.

Area Benefits From Pitt Chapter Of N.C. Epilepsy Assoc.

By AMY BONESTEEL
Staff Writer

The Epilepsy Foundation of America is a nationwide organization which, with its affiliates across the country, works towards preventing and controlling epilepsy and helping victims overcome it. North Carolina's Epilepsy Association (NCEA) provides counseling, referrals to professionals, and support to the 60,000 North Carolinians afflicted with the disorder.

Another one of EANA's functions is to educate the public on what to do if someone is having an epileptic seizure. EANA suggests you keep the person calm, help him or her lie down, remove glasses or false teeth, clear the area of any sharp or dangerous objects, and loosen tight clothing.

Do not try to hold the person down or force anything between his or her teeth. After the seizure, the person should be turned on his or her side to allow saliva to drain out of the mouth; the person should also be allowed to sleep. A doctor need only be called if: 1) it is the person's first seizure, 2) the person has one seizure after another without waking up, 3) the person is not breathing normally after the seizure, or 4) the person is injured.

Epilepsy is a common neurological disorder which tends to be very misunderstood. It is not a disease, but actually a symptom of a brain disorder. Head injuries suffered in auto accidents are major causes of epilepsy, along with brain damage at birth, chemical imbalances, poor nutrition, infections, and high fevers.

The seizures associated with epilepsy can be of many different types, ranging from mild to severe. A generalized Tonic-Clonic seizure (Grand Mal) is the most recognizable. In this type, the person loses consciousness, becomes very rigid, and the extremities may begin to jerk.

An absence seizure, or Petit Mal, is most common in children. Often mistaken for day dreaming (whereby the person stares for brief periods, usually less than ten seconds), this type is easily controlled with medication.

A Complex Partial is the most common type of seizure. It involves a "clouding of consciousness" which may last minutes or hours. The person may make automatic movements during this time, and when these actions become prolonged or complicated, the person could be mistaken for having a psychiatric disorder.

Facial and partial motor and sensory seizures involve a jerking motion (motor) and a sensation (sensory) in a certain part of the body.

Epilepsy can be treated successfully with drugs, surgery, and special diets.

For additional information about epilepsy, contact the Greenville chapter of the Epilepsy Association of North Carolina at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Funding for the organization comes directly from the Pitt County United Way.

'Footloose' Playing This Weekend

By MATTHEW GILLIS
Staff Writer

Last year a motion picture event came about like no other. All across the country, people were hooked on a movie — not just any movie, but one with a simple plot (if any) and a lot of energy. In fact, that energy, found through the music and dancing scattered throughout the film, made Flashdance one of the top films of last year, as well as sending the soundtrack album to the top of the charts.

This year, another film sought to do just the same thing — and did! And this weekend, ECU has a chance to see it free...and catch the feeling of going Footloose.

As the story goes, Kevin Bacon plays a city youth who moves to a small Texas town with his family. But, as it turns out, he finds he's not exactly popular with the local folks in more ways than one. In fact, he later finds out exactly why from some of his schoolmates. It seems that the townfolk aren't particularly fond of his loud music and dancing. Some years back, a couple of youths, including the son of the very influential town preacher, were killed in a car crash after a very wild party. After that, the town decided (with a lot of support from the preacher himself) to dispose of all alcohol and any display of (gasp!) dancing, partying, and rock 'n' roll music.

It's a bad situation our hero faces. But can he go ahead and show the people he's not wrong? He's certainly going to try, and it looks like he's at least got one person on his side. Oddly enough, it happens to be the preacher's own daughter (played by Lori Singer, recently from the Fame television series), and she thinks he's not such a bad guy. But, can our hero hold on to her?

Of course, Kevin's got one more thing on his side — he's got the music, and a lot of good material throughout the film. Much like Flashdance, the music and dancing make this a high-energy hit film. It also doesn't hurt to have songs featuring artists like Sammy Hager, Bonnie Tyler, Deniece Williams, and Kenny Loggins. Little wonder the Footloose soundtrack also became a big hit.

Yet, unlike Flashdance, Footloose has a soul and determination all its own. Here, the music and magic all come together behind a story of a person fighting for what he feels is right.

But anyway — why not just find out for yourself? This weekend is your only chance to see it all. So, come down to Hendrix Theatre and cut loose!

Gallagher Changes Show Until Dec. 5

Due to other obligations, Gallagher, one of America's most unique comedians, has postponed his ECU performance from tonight to Dec. 5. Mendenhall Assistant Program Director Jon Curtis explained that Gallagher cannot attend because he is in the process of making advertisements for a new television special that he just finished.

All those holding tickets for the performance may either be refunded at the Central Ticket Office or hold them until the

Dec. 5th performance.

Gallagher, known as the master of comedy and Wizard of Odd, is the one and only inventor of the Sledge-O-Matic which will be performed at ECU in Dec. For two hours or more, this mustache-funny man immerses his audiences in his off-beat brand of honest observations. He calls his comedy "...satire because all my comedy is truth, and truth is funny. I vent frustration in society." Don't miss a show that will undoubtedly be unique.

Campus Concerts: The Amateurs, 'New Music' Show Scheduled

On Friday, Oct. 5, the Student Union Committee and West Area Campus will kick off National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week (Oct. 8-14) with the rock band The Amateurs. WZMB will assist in the event. The show begins at 8 p.m. and lasts until 10 p.m. and refreshments will be provided.

Works by Composers Jack Lennon and Ed Clonek will make up tonight's 8:15 "New Music" concert. The show, which will be held in Fletcher Recital Hall, combines music students, graduates, and faculty members into a musical ensemble that performs likeable yet serious music.

Playhouse Alters Show Dates

The East Carolina Youth Playhouse has announced a change in production dates for its upcoming children's show, Ozma of Oz: A Tale of Time. Originally scheduled for a 9:15 a.m. performance on Monday, Nov. 12, Ozma of Oz is now set for a 9:15 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 13.

Doug Ray, Director of the Youth Playhouse explained: "When we set production dates last spring, we didn't realize that Monday, Nov. 12, was a Teacher Work Day for the public schools, and of course, the children won't be in school that day. So, all we've done is shift that Monday morning performance to Tuesday performances will remain as originally scheduled: Tuesday, Nov. 13 at 7:15 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday Nov. 14 and 15 at 9:15 a.m..

All performances will take place in McGinnis Theatre. For further information call 757-6390.

"We could have won the ballgame should have won the ballgame — he didn't," East Carolina head coach Emory said in reference to his team's loss to North Carolina State last Saturday.

"When you don't stop a team's momentum play, you shouldn't win," Emory said in his weekly press conference. "Their play the sprint draw, and we didn't stop it, but we didn't know why we didn't stop it, but was the key to the ballgame."

The Pirates had many opportunities to win the game, but turnovers and penalties ended four drives in the second half, that according to Emory, all of which have resulted in field goals.

"Going into the fourth quarter I thought we would win the ballgame," Emory said. "The score was 20-14 and we had the ball on our own 48-yardline, but our offense let them down. They didn't stop us, we stop ourselves."

Emory said the biggest problem confronting the offensive unit at this point in the season is their inability to convert the important third down plays. "When a team is struggling, third down is the time when the inexperience and lack of discipline shows up."

"Our inability to convert these situations has kept us from using Jeff Heath, and you have a great kicker like Jeff, you're not able to use him."

A lot of the team's problems are stemming from the defense, especially the line. "We are not getting off the blocks or running real well," Emory said. "We are playing with five rookie tackles. We lost our defensive tackle (Joe Grinage) at Central Michigan."

"Our noseguard is not getting off the blocks and we are not getting any pass plays. We played good enough in the second half to win the football game on defense, but didn't get it done."

In an attempt to tighten up the defense, Emory has moved starting receiver Stefan Adams to free safety. The move was made to accommodate the injury to

The ECU volleyball record fell to 2-5 Tuesday night as Duke University swept three straight games 15-3, 15-6 and 15-9 to win the best-of-three match.

Now with a record of 12-1, the Blue Devils raced to a 9-0 advantage in the first game before the Pirates rallied on an illegal hit by Duke to break the scoring drought. The ECU offense only added two straight points during Ann Guida's service before the Devils closed out the game with four straight points.

ECU scored first in the second game to lead 1-0, but the Pirates seemed stunned by the quick opening loss as Duke scored four in a row during the serve of Cara Geyling to lead 4-1.

After a net serve by ECU, the situation got even worse as the Blue Devils took six straight before a sideout, increasing their lead to 10-1. The Pirate offense again failed to score and three in a row went to Duke, making it 13-1.

After another sideout and a Devil point, East Carolina's offense finally woke up as Ann Guida opened her service with an ace, which seemed to fire up the Pirates as they added four more in a five straight string, but one more point for Duke then decided the game.

ECU stiffened as a result of their improved play and the third game started with a number of sideouts before the Blue Devils scored, but the Pirates came right back on an service ace by Traci Smith to tie the score 1-1. Donna

Emory Looking For Second Victory

By SCOTT POWERS
Assistant Sports Editor

"We could have won the ballgame, we should have won the ballgame — but we didn't," East Carolina head coach Ed Emory said in reference to his team's 31-22 loss to North Carolina State last Saturday.

"When you don't stop a team's number one play, you shouldn't win," Emory said in his weekly press conference. "Their play was the sprint draw, and we didn't stop it. I don't know why we didn't stop it, but that was the key to the ballgame."

The Pirates had many opportunities to win the game, but turnovers and costly penalties ended four drives in the second half, that according to Emory, all should have resulted in field goals.

"Going into the fourth quarter I thought we would win the ballgame," Emory said. "The score was 20-14 and we had the ball on our own 48-yardline, but our offense broke down. They didn't stop us, we stopped ourselves."

Emory said the biggest problem confronting the offensive unit at this point in the season is their inability to convert the important third down plays. "When a team's struggling, third down is the time when a lot of the inexperience and lack of discipline shows up."

"Our inability to convert these situations has kept us from using Jeff Heath, and when you have a great kicker like Jeff, you've got to be able to use him."

A lot of the team's problems are stemming from the defense, especially the line. "We are not getting off of the blocks or running real well," Emory said. "We are playing with five rookie tackles. We lost our best defensive tackle (Joe Grinage) at Central Michigan."

"Our noseguard is not getting off the blocks and we are not getting any pass rush. We played good enough in the second half to win the football game on defense, but we didn't get it done."

In an attempt to tighten up the defensive secondary, Emory has moved starting wide receiver Stefan Adams to free safety. The move was made to accommodate the injury of cornerback Kevin Walker, who will be replaced by starting safety Keith Ford.

It is not known if Walker, who suffered a fractured bone in his foot, will be ready to play against Pittsburgh this weekend.

"We didn't move an offensive starter to defense not to play," Emory commented. "Stefon will get his initiation as a free safety this Saturday at 12:20 in Pittsburgh."

Another key injury was to starting offensive guard Rich Autry, who suffered a pulled ligament in his foot. He is doubtful for this Saturday's game, which is likely to hinder the Pirates already sputtering offense.

Looking ahead to the Panthers, Emory described the contest as a game between two struggling football programs. "We're 1-4, and we have to go to Pittsburgh and they're 0-4. It's going to be a game between two teams that are having a lot of problems."

"I don't know why this season has bounced the way it has, but we've got a chance to beat a very good football team in Pittsburgh, and that's what will be on our minds this week."

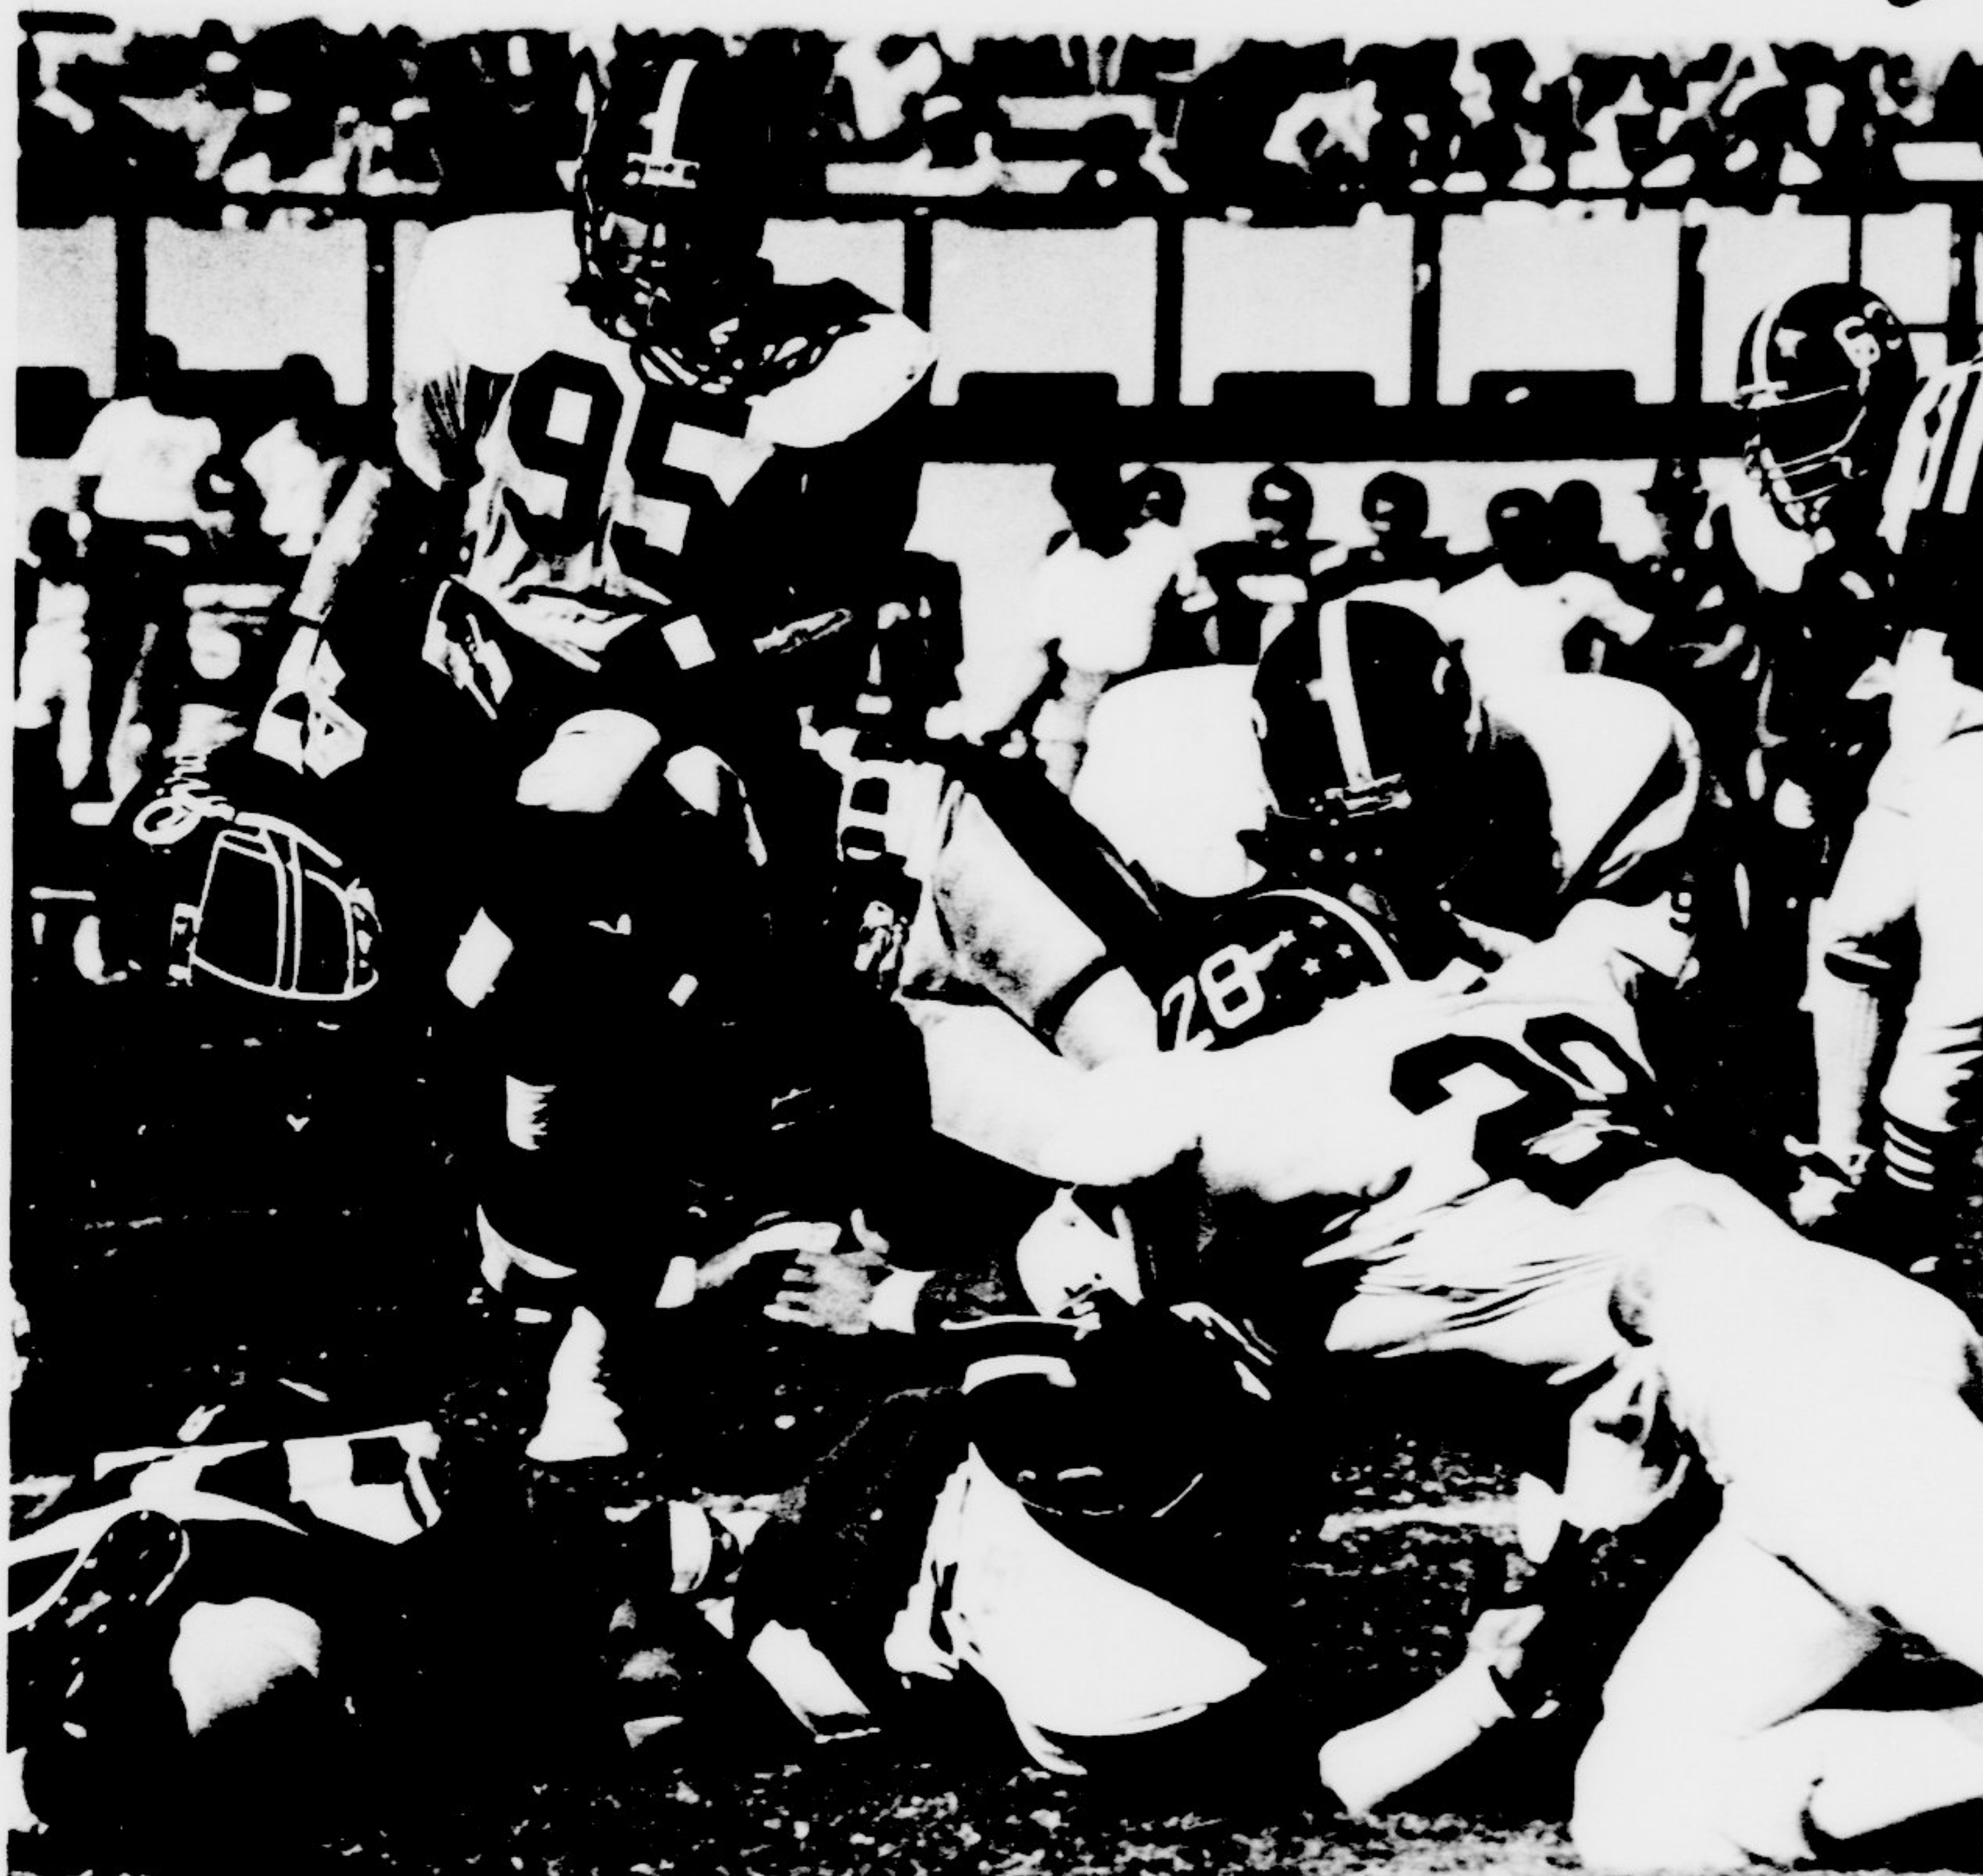

The Panthers are off to their worst start since 1972, when they went 1-10. They have opened the season with losses to Brigham Young, Oklahoma, Temple and last week to West Virginia, 28-10. But their poor start does not hide the fact that they're a good football team.

"Pitt is the best 0-4 team in the country," Emory said. "They have some of the best personnel in the country — they've just had a tough season."

The Panthers are led by offensive tackle Bill Fralic, an All-American and a strong contender for the Outland Trophy, given annually to the nation's best lineman.

Emory is disappointed with the way this season has gone for his young squad, but is far from giving up on his team. "We're improving every week. In life, it's not how you start out, it's how you finish — football is the same."

"We've only played five rounds of an eleven round fight. We've been down, but we're not out. We're going to come up swinging, and we'll be looking for a knockout against Pitt."

ECU head coach Ed Emory described his team's Saturday afternoon contest with Pittsburgh as a game between two struggling football programs.

Panther's Fralic Shooting For Heisman

This Saturday the ECU football team will take to the field with whom many consider the greatest offensive lineman in college football history, Pittsburgh's Bill Fralic.

PITTSBURGH — Bill Fralic should be painted gray. When he is finished with football, he shouldn't retire. He should be put in mothballs.

A few years ago, the University of Oklahoma had a lineman everyone called the "U.S.S. Vaughan." He was battleship big.

Compared to the University of Pittsburgh's Fralic, the U.S.S. Vaughan was a PT Boat.

If the Titanic had been as sturdy as the 6-foot-5, 285-pound Fralic, no overgrown ice cube could have sunk it.

His name may not be Theismann, but there is neither rhyme nor reason why Fralic should not win the Heisman Trophy, which is, allegedly, awarded to the best college football player.

In fact, there is afoot in the land a movement long overdue. It is time an interior lineman — a center, guard or tackle — won the Heisman.

If Heisman voters are fair and Fralic has the expected season, he is as good as gold.

But that, unfortunately doesn't mean he will win.

The last nine Heisman winners have been running backs. A quarterback, though not Notre Dame's Joe Theismann, occasionally interrupts the continuity.

The accomplishments of the runners and throwers are easily measured. Whereas who watches linemen, except to see how dirty and bloody they have become.

Pitt will put the lie to statistical shortcomings this season. Director Jim O'Brien has assigned someone to record Fralic's pancakes.

Fralic is no short-order chef. He's a tall-order filler and if people can be made aware of this, they will flock to his support.

Thus Heisman voters — will be kept apprised of the number of opponents Fralic flattens like pancakes.

Pitt's '83 highlight film should have been sponsored by Aunt Jemima: It's full of Fralic pancakes.

Interested observers need not wait for statistics or the film to judge how thoroughly the Panthers' left tackle can dominate a defensive lineman or line.

"All you have to do," Fralic said, "is watch the direction the man in front of you."

The odds are 100-to-1 that it will be backward.

If Jimmy the Greek decides to set odds on Fralic's Heisman chances, they could be higher.

"I've been told he can't win it," O'Brien said. "I know, I couldn't get him on the cover of Street and Smith's Yearbook. They said they don't put linemen on the cover."

They should, because Pitt offensive coordinator Joe Moore is right when he says leading candidate quarterback Doug Flutie of Boston College is not in Fralic's class as a college football player. People should realize there are a lot of great football players at positions other than tailback and quarterback."

The football fan has been learning to appreciate the less obvious. Merlin Olson and Deacon Jones drew attention to first the Los Angeles Rams defensive front four and, in turn, all defensive linemen.

The recognition has spread to defensive backs, and, of course, receivers always have been appreciated, albeit not as totally as those who get them the ball.

In the latest seasons, University of Nebraska offensive linemen, center Dave Remington and guard Dean Steinkuhler, attracted attention. Of course, part of the reason is that they were playing on a top-ranked team and blocking for Mike Rozier, who won the Heisman instead of them.

"The time is past due for offensive linemen," said Pitt running back coach Andy Urbanic, who coached Fralic in high school. "If an offensive lineman can't win the Heisman, it should be called a skill-position trophy."

Spikers Fall To Duke

By TONY BROWN
Staff Writer

The ECU volleyball record fell to 2-5 Tuesday night as Duke University swept three straight games 15-3, 15-6 and 15-9 to win the best-of-three match.

Now with a record of 12-1, the Blue Devils raced to a 9-0 advantage in the first game before the Pirates tallied on an illegal hit by Duke to break the scoring drought. The ECU offense only added two straight points during Ann Guida's service before the Devils closed out the game with four straight points.

ECU scored first in the second game to lead 1-0, but the Pirates seemed stunned by the quick opening loss as Duke scored four in a row during the serve of Cara Geyling to lead 4-1.

After a net serve by ECU, the situation got even worse as the Blue Devils took six straight before a sideout, increasing their lead to 10-1. The Pirate offense again failed to score and three in a row went to Duke, making it 13-1.

After another sideout and a Devil point, East Carolina's offense finally woke up as Ann Guida opened her service with an ace, which seemed to fire up the Pirates as they added four more in a five straight string, but one more point for Duke then decided the game.

ECU stiffened as a result of their improved play and the third game started with a number of sideouts before the Blue Devils scored, but the Pirates came right back on an service ace by Traci Smith to tie the score 1-1. Donna

Zeconis' superb block gave the Pirates only their second lead at that point in the series as Duke seemed to be rattled by the changing momentum.

ECU added four separate tallies to increase the lead to 6-1, but once again the balance changed and the Pirate defense seemed confused as Duke closed the gap with three consecutive points, then two more to tie the game at six.

ECU temporarily halted the Blue Devil rally, scoring two during Mary Barnham's service including a nice kill by Traci Smith, but the Pirates once again seemed to get disorganized as several balls fell untouched while players expected others to return the ball.

ECU responded with one more point to assume the lead for the third time, but the balance suddenly and decisively switched as Duke got the service and tied it up. They continued to the end as the Blue Devil's fine server Susan Wilson got rolling, serving the final six points consecutively to give Duke the game and match.

"I just didn't have them mentally prepared," said Coach Imogene Turner. "We were capable of competing with them, but our team was awed by their record."

Ann Guida put in another good performance, with some good serves in particular. Traci Smith had several excellent kills and played strong on offense and defense.

The Pirates travel to meet the Tar Heels of North Carolina in Chapel Hill tonight, then to Wilson on Monday to play Atlantic Christian at 7 p.m.

Bucs Have Varied Success In Matches

Women: The Lady Pirate tennis team remained undefeated after a 9-0 victory over UNC-Wilmington Wednesday afternoon at Minges tennis courts. The win upped the team's record to 4-0 for the season.

Number two singles player Ann Manderfield brought her record to 7-0 with a 6-2, 6-0 win over UNC-W's Angie Frazier. "I think Ann played an exceptional game of tennis," ECU's coach Pat Sherman commented.

Sheila Feeley and Karla Hoyle also remain undefeated with victories of 7-6, 6-2 and 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 respectively.

"On a whole, I was very pleased with our performance against UNC-W," Sherman said. "I did feel that some players didn't play as well as they could have, but they did an excellent job of sticking it out and winning their match."

In doubles play, The number one team of Janet Russel and Manderfield won their match 6-0, 6-4 over UNC-W's Leann Barkley and Frazier.

The number two team of Ty Myers and Feeley won 6-4, 6-3, while the third seeded team of Susie Brown and Susan Montjoy won 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

"I'm very pleased with our team's performance this season," Sherman added. "It's a big turnaround from last season. Everyone has given 100 percent at practice and in the matches — and it has certainly paid off."

The team plays Sunday at Davidson, a team that won the NAIA National Division III Championships last year.

Next Tuesday, the team travels to Peace College, a team that finished sixth in the nation last year at the junior college level.

The Pirates wrap up their fall season Thursday, October 11, as they visit a strong High Point College team.

Men: The ECU men's tennis team fell to NAIA Division III National Champs Atlantic Christian College 7-2 Tuesday afternoon.

Competing against a team the caliber of ACC, the Pirates could not afford to make any mistakes. Unfortunately, ECU was not able to sustain play long enough to capture a team victory.

"I was very pleased with the singles play," Pirate Coach Pat Sherman said. "Five of the top six singles matches split sets. Greg Willis, Galen Treble, David Creech and Davis Bagley played their best tennis of the 1984 season."

Treble (No. 3 singles) and Bagley (No. 6 singles) both took three-set victories. Each player won the first set of their match by the score of 6-2, before dropping "hard fought" second sets. In the third set, each player came through to score the only match victories of the day for ECU.

Sherman was also pleased with the play of Greg Willis, saying her No. 1 singles player turned in a picture perfect first set of tennis against ACC's Jagudish Gowdu. However, several second and third set errors cost Willis the match 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. Although Willis was unable to achieve victory, Sherman said it was the finest match Willis has played in his last three years at ECU.

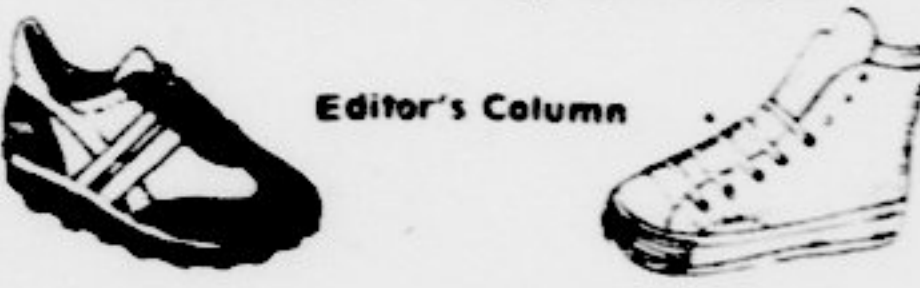

At the end of single's play,

ACC held a slim 4-2 advantage, but went on to sweep the doubles' matches for the final margin of victory. "I was very disappointed with the play of our No. 1 doubles team of Treble and Creech," Sherman said. "They were outplayed by ACC in all aspects of the game."

"We have a great deal of work to do as an entire team to improve our doubles play," Sherman continued. "We will be working hard on this to prepare for our next match."

ECU now falls to 1-4 on the fall season, and will be in action again Friday at 3 p.m. when they host High Point College on the Minges tennis courts.

ECU-Pitt Football

PITT GAME TELEVIEWED: East Carolina's game this Saturday with Pitt will be carried live on the Katz Sports Network, and will be the Eastern Game of the Week. The game, played in Pittsburgh's Pitt Stadium, will be aired along most of the East Coast and will also be carried live in the Greenville, N.C., area by WTSN-TV (NBC, Channel 7). WTSN will pick up the Katz Sports Network.

Former NFL quarterback and SBC sportswriter Len Dawson will be the color commentator, with a play-by-play voice to be announced for this week. Kickoff, 12:30 p.m. (EDT), is subject to change and may be moved to 12:15 p.m.

PANTHERS' STRUGGLING: Pitt's 1984 start to the season's worst since the 1972 season when the Panthers, under Head Coach Paul W. DePasqua, posted a 1-10 record. This season saw Pitt drop its first six games before beating Boston College 35-20, in Durham, after that victory, dropping their next four.

The 1983 team, the worst for Coach Fritz Fazio, now in his third season with Pitt, Fazio, who succeeded Jackie Sherrill in 1982, began that first season at 1-7 while his 1983 team was 2-2 after four games.

The 1972 1-10 record was also the last time a Pitt team posted a losing record.

PITT ALWAYS TOUGH: Prior to the season's 1-4 start, the Panthers have always been one of college football's heavyweights, once winning the national championship in 1956. Pitt had posted a very impressive 79-15-1 record prior to the 1984 season. That record led to a magnificent .837 winning percentage and eight consecutive bowl appearances.

WAKER IS BACK: After rushing for just 125 yards in ECU's first game, junior tailback Tony Waker returned to form against the North Carolina State Wolfpack last week. In his first game of the season, the High Point, N.C., native worked the ECU State defense for 120 yards rushing on 20 carries. The 100-yard effort was the sixth of Waker's career and his first since backing William & Mary for 135 yards and two touchdowns in 1983 with victory on Nov. 12, 83.

Senior tailback Reggie Branch cracked the 100-yard mark with his 104 yards on 21 carries. It was the second 100-yard performance of his career, with his previous being 109 yards on 16 carries against Illinois State in 1982.

Both efforts marked the first time since that William & Mary game of a year ago that an ECU back gained 100 yards on the ground.

COMMON OPPONENTS: East Carolina and Pitt share two common opponents during the 1984 season: Temple and South Carolina. Both have already played Temple, with the same result. The Owls handed ECU a 1-0 defeat on Sept. 8 in Greenville, N.C., while dropping the Panthers 13-12 in Philadelphia on Sept. 22.

Neither team has played South Carolina yet. Both ECU and Pitt play the Gamecocks in Columbia, S.C., with Pitt visiting there Oct. 13 and ECU Oct. 27.

FIRST MEETING: Saturday's game marks the first meeting between these two Division I-A Eastern Independents. East Carolina has played only one other Division I-A school from the State of Pennsylvania — Temple, with the Pirates owning a 2-1 series edge. Pitt has faced a North Carolina opponent 22 times, owning a 12-10 mark. The Panthers are: 8-8 vs Duke, 2-1 vs N.C. State, 2-1 vs North Carolina.

The last time a Pitt team faced a North Carolina school was during the 1982 season when the Panthers handed North Carolina a 7-6 defeat at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.
