Where The Action Isn't

Guess what, folks? It's Monday night in downtown Greenville and that doesn't mean a whole lot of action. As finals draw inevitably nearer, even many of the beer-drinking diehards stay in to study. Just wait until Friday.

'85 Rebel Announces Contest Winners

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

The winners of the 1985 Rebel Literary/Art annual contest were announced Friday at a reception held at the Art and Camera Gallery.

In the prose competition, Horace McCormick Jr. won first place for his short story, Winters on the Reservoir. Gary Bryant won second place for his work, Tremors.

"The judges had a hard time picking the winners," said Ellen Moore, Rebel editor, "but I feel the judges made the right choices." Chrystal Fray's The Mother's On The Bus Go Hush Hush won third place.

Poetry winners for 1985 include: First place, Peppermint Rust, Laurilyn McDonald; second place, Fireflies, Deanya Lattimore-Cobb; third place, The Conception Company, J. T. Pietrzak.

"The money for the art and writing contests will be provided by the Attic and Budweiser during a January fundraiser. We're expecting to raise approximately $775 to reimburse the Rebel accounts," Moore said.

George McKim received the Best in Show art award for his abstract painting, Tone Poem for Arnold Palmer.

In other art competition, Moore said over 157 entries were received from 82 people. The winners include: Drawing, William Leidental, Geologic Time Number 26; Mixed Media, Kara Hammond, For Barb; Painting, William Leidental, Summer Rain At Twilight; Design, Phillip Dismuke, Neck Piece; Photography, Joe Champagne, untitled.

Ceramics, V. Jane Tucker, Tea Pot Crazy; Sculpture, Carolyn Capps, Death of Bird I, II; Printmaking and Illustration, Todd Coats, Imagination.

Judges for the Prose and Poetry contests, Moore said, were Jean Morgan and Judith Suther, both faculty members from UNC—Charlotte. The art judges were Randy Osman, curator for Gray Gallery, Margaret Georgianni, visiting art instructor, Joan Moment, visiting artist and Chuck Chamberlain, chairman of design department in the School of Fine Arts.

"Winners in all contests will have their work published in the 1985 Rebel," Moore said. "Also, finalists who did not win the contests will be published. We are still accepting literature through the end of November."

The art work is on view for the general public through Friday, Nov. 16 at the Art and Camera Gallery located on Cotanche street, Moore said. "I encourage everyone to stop by and look at the work submitted by the students."

The Rebel will be ready next semester after spring break. "We will have 4,500 copies of the Rebel, which is a little more than we have had in the past. We plan to keep the same format," Moore said.

Brains Top Brawn In Mating Game

By MIKE HAMER
Staff Writer

Students at ECU choose their mates according to their intelligence, a recent survey shows. Surveys taken at universities in the '60s and '70s did not find these same results — education and intelligence were found to be relatively important in previous studies.

The survey was conducted by Hal Daniel, Robert McCabe and Sissy Quinter from the Department of Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology, and Kevin O'Brien from the department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology. The survey was initially conceived of as a way of seeing if men and women perceived the importance of the human voice in mate selection.

"We expected the results of the survey to show that males and females placed an importance on the voice when they were selecting a mate, but the voice was rated last and next to last. The males ranked the importance of the voice higher than females did. That was entirely different from what was expected," McCabe said.

In the future, the group will be doing specific research looking at the effects of different vocal characteristics in mate selection, McCabe said. "In future research we will be looking at varying female vocal characteristics such as pitch, intensity and quality in the terms of which variable is more important relative to the males' mate selection process."

The study will be published in the Spring issues of the College Student Journal.

Commenting on the results of the survey, Daniel said, "We owe a lot to the students who rated intelligence highly. It is a credit to the students at ECU that this was discovered."

Besides intelligence, ECU students rated physical attractiveness and sense of humor higher than did previous reports on mate selection that were done in the '60s and '70s. The researchers also found that sensitivity remains an important trait when considering a relationship. Ambition was also found to be relatively important.

The group found male and female respondents differed in their rankings of physical attractiveness, voice, sense of humor and employment. Males ranked physical attractiveness and voice as being more important, while ECU women ranked a sense of humor and employment as more important qualities.

"It is possible," Daniel said, "that today's college students desire partners who are more likely to succeed in a visual, seemingly narcissistic society. An intelligent, sensitive, physically attractive mate with a good sense of humor and a moderate amount of ambition appears to be a good candidate for success in finding a mate."

Quinter commented on the fact that ECU women ranked a sense of humor third in their criteria for choosing a mate. "Women are in a transition place in society," she said.

"I was really surprised that males rated intelligence of women over physical attractiveness; that was a pleasant surprise," Quinter added.

Republicans Prepared To Avoid Fighting

(UPI) — In the aftermath of their victories last week, Republicans say they are better prepared than they were in 1972 to avoid political infighting and hold onto the gains they made in North Carolina politics.

Tom Ellis, chairman of the conservative National Congressional Club, and other Republicans said they are intent on avoiding the intra-party squabbling that followed President Nixon's 1972 landslide over George McGovern. The victory helped elect North Carolina's first Republican governor and senator this century — moderate Jim Holshouser and conservative Jesse Helms.

But skirmishes flared in the mid-1970s over control of the state Republican Party between the party's moderate and conservative wings.

Ellis said his Congressional Club, aligned with right-wing organizations, would "do everything we can to be helpful" to Gov.-elect James Martin. The six-term conservative congressman had distanced his political campaign from the PAC to become the state's second GOP governor this century.

"What's the old saying? Those who don't learn from history are forced to repeat it," said Robert Hunter, a Greensboro lawyer and GOP moderate.

David Flaherty, chairman of the state Republican Party, said the discord following the 1972 election hurt the party "disastrously."

"Instead of working on unity, we just had cat fights," he said.

"People aren't going to reregister from Democrat to Republican when there's a cat fight going on."

Republicans, Democrats and political analysts have said North Carolina is moving toward a competitive two-party system that GOP leaders hope will cut into the Democrats' nearly 3-to-1 advantage in registration in North Carolina.

"I think that white people in North Carolina are clearly sensing that the national Democratic Party is leaving them," said Ellis, a longtime political adviser to Helms.

"It does not represent the values and the sentiments of the people of North Carolina," he said. "This is a nationwide trend. It isn't just true for North Carolina."

Other political observers agreed with Ellis' survey of voter distaste for Northern Liberal presidential candidates as another reason for the sweeping Republican triumph in North Carolina.

"The last national Democrat the whites voted for in North Carolina was in 1960," said Merle Black, a political science professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. That year, John Kennedy defeated Nixon by a statewide margin of 52 percent to 48 percent.

"A Democrat perceived to be a liberal is a losing proposition in this state," Black said. "Even if Mondale had run a great campaign, it wouldn't have made any difference."

SGA Opens Coffers, Approves Printer

By GREG RIDEOUT
Managing Editor

The SGA Legislature appropriated the bucks Monday night to buy students a printer that will cough out letter-quality resumes. The printer will be attached to a computer in the business lab in Rawl Building, across from the Student Supply Store.

By consent, the Legislature gave the Graduate Business Association $1,920.28 to buy the printer for the school. The group plans on having a sign-up sheet where all students can indicate an hour in which they wish to use the computer. The printer can also be used for cover letters but not term papers.

Students, the group argued, spend more than $7,000 each year at a local copying agency for resumes. The school and the GBA will maintain the equipment and help students use the computer.

The Legislature also gave the International Language Organization $240 to help pay the bills tallied up during its annual Oktoberfest. The money will be used to pay part of a $418 Serovomation charge for catering the affair.

The bill came out of the Appropriations Committee without a recommendation to the legislators because of a rule advising the Legislature not to give money for food purchases. An amendment to the bill cut the $418 to $240, which would have covered band and hall rental costs had the ILO come to the Legislature before the Oktoberfest.

Bachelor's Degree Waits For Approval

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

A recommendation to establish a new baccalaureate degree at ECU was submitted by the Education Planning and Policy Committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors at their meeting last Thursday. The issue is on the Board of Governors' agenda for their January meeting.

Angelo Volpe, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs said, "ECU officials are very optimistic that the program will be forthcoming soon." Student interest in careers in the field of communication at ECU has been very high, Volpe said. "In a recent student survey at ECU, 80 percent of 186 students showed an interest in a communications major, especially electronic/broadcasting journalism," he said.

"The recommendation submitted by the Planning Committee will not receive final approval until January, when the Board of Governors meets," Volpe said. "This has been in the workings for several years (at ECU) and I feel once it has been approved, the program will be implemented in the Fall of 1985."

Resources from the Departments of English and Theatre Arts will be combined, making it possible for ECU to offer a Bachelor of Science in Communications, Volpe said. "Right now, all ECU has to offer in the field of journalism is a Bachelor of Arts minor," he said. "If this program is implemented, we will be able to offer a major in the print and broadcast media."

Currently, similar programs are offered at Appalachian State University, UNC—Chapel Hill, UNC—Asheville and Winston-Salem State University.

Why Do Communists Church R

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK
News Editor

Church-state relations in Poland were the subject of a lecture given at ECU last Thursday by Dr. Dieter Bingen of the Federal Institute for East European and International Studies in Cologne, West Germany.

The lecture was titled "Religion is the Opiate of the People; Yet Why is Religion Tolerated in One of the Communist Countries?" and was sponsored by the Departments of Political Science and Philosophy.

Bingen said the Roman Catholic Church has "played a key role in the evolution of Poland." He said the current situation in the country has "renewed the symbolism of patriotism and Catholicism."

Since the 1970's, Bingen said, the church has become the "sole independent large organization capable of opposing Communism in Poland."

This has been due to the fact that the church has been exerting "humanist, moralist and patriotic" values contrary to the values of the government, which "the people don't agree with."

The church has assumed more influence since the Solidarity in the late '70's.

Why Do Communists Have Religion? Church Relations Intensify

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK
News Editor

Church-state relations in Poland were the subject of a lecture given at ECU last Thursday by Dr. Dieter Bingen of the Federal Institute for East European and International Studies in Cologne, West Germany.

The lecture was titled "Religion is the Opiate of the People: Yet Why is Religion Tolerated in One of the Communist Countries?" and was sponsored by the Departments of Political Science and Philosophy.

Bingen said the Roman Catholic Church has "played a key role in the evolution of Poland." He said the current situation in the country has "renewed the symbiosis of patriotism and Catholicism."

Since the 1970's, Bingen said, the church has become the "sole independent large organization capable of opposing Communism in Poland."

said. "In 1980-81, the church acted repeatedly as a fire brigade to stop threatening confrontations between Solidarity and political leaders."

"The party had lost all means of directly influencing the masses," he said.

He added that while the church was in great demand as an advisor to both the Communist Party and the trade unions, the imposition of martial law in December, 1981, was "a sign of the failure of the Catholic Church in moderating conflicts in Poland."

Despite this, Bingen said, the church had shown its power, "not as the opiate of the people, but as a real political force."

Bingen said that, following the imposition of martial law, a "common formula for compromise was sought, one in which neither the church or the Communist Party would lose face."

He said the visit of Pope John Paul II in 1983, "strengthened the conviction of the compatriots that their convictions had been worthwhile."

"He gave the society psychological relaxation but no concrete hope for change," Bingen said.

After 20 years of real socialism in Poland, the Catholic Church is not perceived as an opiate of the people by the government or society," he said.

"It has not defeated the Marxist — Leninist political party on the labor field because as a 'rationalist political entity it doesn't enter into that field directly — it has an influence on the awareness of the individual.'"

Bingen added that the church is "the most important source of Polish self-identity" and is growing in "moral strength and indirect political influence."

"It is not an opiate but a real political and societal force which has to be recognized by the government and Communist Party as a political factor which plays a dynamic role and brings new discussions on the behalf of democratization and liberalization."

This has been due to the fact that the church has been exerting "humanist, moralist and patriotic" values contrary to the values of the government, with which "the people don't agree."

The church has asserted much more influence since the visit of Solidarity in the late '70s, Bingen

Vietnam

Let's Honor Soldiers, Okay?

A day honoring men and women who have fought in wars has been a mainstay for countries throughout time. Roman gladiators, medieval crusaders and WWI trench warriors all have been remembered for their heroic efforts. Monday, we honored our War heroes. We not only paused to say thanks to those veterans who are still living, we also bowed to thank the dead. By doing so, we showed our appreciation to those who gave their lives for our country during wartime dating back to the Revolutionary War.

But Monday was a little bit more significant for one group. Vietnam veterans. For on the day before, Sunday, President Reagan accepted the Vietnam Veterans Memorial on behalf of the nation, telling those who waited more than 10 years to hear such words, "thanks for your courage."

The memorial not only includes the 500-foot black granite wall inscribed with the names of the 58,022 Americans who gave their lives in Southeast Asia, but now a statue of three soldiers has been added to honor the more than 2.7 million Americans who fought in the nation's longest and most unpopular war. Today, finally, all servicemen who were called to duty in Vietnam are welcomed home.

We would like to say thanks to those (no longer) young men who fought and died. Their honor is not tarnished because of old politicians who handled the war ineptly and wrongly. You did not lose the war; we know of your heroics — saving a downed buddy as lead whistled through the air, or helping a peasant family whose village was destroyed by bombs and tanks. The war was lost by men in blue suits who sat behind desks piled with papers full of wrong decisions. The war was lost because the leadership did not lead, and then did not leave when the time had come to go home.

Vietnam does have a lesson to teach us. Not the one that people claim, though — that of avoiding a similar war. Vietnam reinforces our tradition of tolerance and understanding. We must remember that all stories have more than one side. In this case, all had right on their side: protestor, draft-dodger and soldier. All did what they thought was right. One saw an unjust war, the other declined to participate in an unjust war and the third went to fight in that war because "it was the right thing to do."

Today, as 1984 comes to a close, we should come to grips with the splintering of our people that occurred in the '60s and '70s over Vietnam. We should be tolerant of those who fought, which we weren't before, and tolerant of those who didn't, which we suspect many today would look down upon. Each had a reason for doing what they did that was embedded just as deep as the other's in American philosophy. The right to question government and the duty to fight for democracy — each can be seen when looking at the Vietnam experience.

You might question honoring those who never gazed upon the landscape of Vietnam. We say it is in the American character to honor all points of view whether we agree or not. So today, we honor not only the soldier of Vietnam, but the society that was so tragically scarred by it. The war is over, but the lessons are still being learned. Thanks to all of you for making America better.

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

OK, RONNIE, ONCE MORE... BUT THIS TIME WITH FEELING.

Press Becomes Passive

TRB The New Republic
Ten years after Watergate, the American press seems to be losing its appetite for scandal.

The first-ever indictment of a sitting Cabinet member, Ray Donovan, has stirred little interest. Curiosity about Ed Meese's financial peccadilloes, a matter of obsessive concern just a few months ago, has been snuffed out by the decision of an "independent counsel" not to seek an indictment. Most other papers have recoiled from following The New York Post and The Wall Street Journal into the recesses of Geraldine Ferraro's genealogy.

Here in Washington, our Post has shown an amazing reticence about pursuing charges of possible cocaine use by our mayor, Marion Barry. It's been a long time since an important grand jury has been allowed to go about its business so utterly unmolested by the Post, which in the good old days could keep allegations of a minor congressman's unpaid parking tickets on the front page for a week.

The Barry story crept onto the bottom of page one for a single Saturday when the mayor (who is married) put out an official statement explaining that his regular visits to the home of a female former aide and convicted cocaine dealer were merely part of "a personal relationship," and not to buy drugs.

Then it disappeared. No "news analysis," no leaks, no editorials, no follow-ups.

The Ferraro case seems to be a turning point for the press. The Wall Street Journal argues that this simply proves a double standard: Journalists, with their left-wing bias, apply their investigative skills and their puritanical standards to conservatives, but let liberals off the hook.

To correct that alleged imbalance, the Journal editorial page has been conducting a parody of a Woodward-and-Bernstein-style investigation of Ms. Ferraro, fearlessly exposing shady business practices by deceased relatives of her husband, and suchlike matters, and meanwhile opening unctuously that if this sours people on the whole post-Watergate morality, that is fine with The Wall Street Journal.

Clearly a double standard of some sort is involved in the Post's handling of Barry. If he weren't black, and if the Post hadn't promoted him from the early days of his career, his troubles would be getting more ink. But I sense that cases like Ms. Ferraro's, and Meese's too, have genuinely given journalists pause.

They are unnerved by their own ability to plunge someone overnight into a maelstrom of unwanted publicity and legal expense. The renewed vigor of libel plaintiffs, like Gen. William Westmoreland and Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., has added worries of a more practical sort as well. Even winning a libel case can be an impoverishing experience.

Aren't politicians entitled to some privacy? Aren't some matters — sexual habits, in-laws' improprieties — irrelevant to their official duties? Aren't others — a misstatement on page six, line 17 of some form — a bit overblown? Isn't there a danger of conviction-by-newspaper, of trivializing the political discourse, of driving interesting people from public life and leaving us to be ruled by antiseptic nerds?

Oh, sure. But you can get carried away with restraint and discretion, too.

Take, for example, the notion that Meese has been "cleared" because an independent counsel appointed by the attorney general decided not to indict him. President Reagan said this, adding that the "baseless charges" against Meese were "revealed as having no foundation in fact." The press seems to agree: the story has died.

Jacob Stein, the independent counsel, ordinarily makes his living as a criminal defense lawyer. The fact that a man who spends most of his days dreaming up reasons why people aren't guilty says nothing in the Meese case worth an indictment doesn't mean the charges were "baseless."

As Stein emphasizes in his report, a decision to indict depends on other factors besides whether a crime has been committed. Subjective judgements about the severity of the offense and the difficulty of a conviction also play a role. Stein's report makes pretty clear that Meese did violate the financial disclosure laws in a fairly minor way (not worth an indictment, Stein says, except "in the most egregious cases"), and more likely than not — if not possibly beyond a reasonable doubt — accepted financial help from people he knew were seeking federal jobs.

More important, even if Meese did nothing criminal, Stein ostentatiously refuses to pass judgement on Meese's ethics. His 385-page report reveals Meese as, at the very least, a man who is monumentally incurious about why perfect strangers are so eager to do him favors. That is something worth considering, surely, before allowing him to become attorney general.

Some might describe Meese's offense as "the appearance of impropriety." But this hoary formulation has always struck me as an unfair cop-out, since the accusation itself — when picked up by the national media — is what creates the appearance. If an official has not done anything actually wrong, he shouldn't be pilloried or punished. On the other hand, if he has — and Meese has — he shouldn't be able to get off by mumbleing an apology for creating the wrong appearance.

The hang-up about illegality infects even the most excited scandal-mongers of the press. Often the real scandal isn't what's illegal, but what's legal. The Post largely, in a nostalgic throwback to the high Watergate style, has been persecuting the head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. They caught him attending a Reagan-Bush fundraiser courtesy of a FEMA consulting firm, which later billed the agency for the cost. He also took his wife with him, first class, at agency expense, to conferences in Rome, Paris, Brussels, Tel Aviv and Mexico City.

What I wonder is why a consulting firm can charge you and me $2,000 to entertain a public servant, and why he seems to spend half his time flitting first class to world glamour spots? But apparently that's perfectly OK, provided it's not a political fundraiser and he leaves his wife at home.

Don't lose heart, sleazemongers. No one is forced to become a politician and no politician asserts his right to privacy when the local paper shows up to photograph him leaving church with his family. Of course investigative zeal can go too far. But there's more danger that it won't go far enough, denying us the information we need to hold our leaders to account and — not incidentally — denying us the innocent pleasure of watching the mighty brought low.

What Year Is It?

Well, the elections are over, the ballots have all been cast and the duly elected government is solidly entrenched with popular support. The country is glowing with a growing sense of patriotism and national pride.

The government leaders see a mandate from the people to elevate the country's position in world politics. Plans are being formulated to regain political control of neighboring countries which are in the hands of their enemies.

There is a growing militarism stemming from the humiliating results of past adventures and a "we're tired of being pushed around" mentality. The youth of the nation who are too young to remember the horrors of war support this idea in increasing numbers. The Christian clergy are taking a growing role in politics. Officials and private citizens alike are having their religious leanings scrutinized.

Even the normally enlightened environment of university campuses is swept up in the fervor as students eagerly embrace the regime and its ideals.

Instructor Evaluations This Week

Where Do You Stand, Prof?

By ELAINE PERRY
Staff Writer

It's time to whip out the Number 2 pencil and critique your favorite professor, as instructor evaluations for the 1984-85 school year are conducted this week.

According to Angelo Volpe, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs, the evaluations are "a valuable experience for both the students and the teachers."

The students are given the chance to an opinion concerning classroom instruction while the instructor is given important feedback on lectures. "It is a way for the instructor to be made aware of things," Volpe said.

The evaluations are used as one piece of the total faculty evaluation process. Volpe said "after running the evaluation five or six times, you get a general baseline." However, he also stressed that "other data" is important when making personnel decisions.

Only individual professors and department chairmen receive the results of the evaluation.

The Teacher of the Year awards are given based solely on the evaluations. The two professors receiving the highest evaluation are given the award.

Last year's recipients were Holly Matthews, Anthropology and Don Biehn, Theatre Arts.

The Teaching Effectiveness Committee, headed by Belinda Lee, School of Nursing, is in the process of looking at the evaluation form and the possibility of modifying it.

The evaluation forms are distributed every year, alternating spring and fall semesters.

Resolution Passed Concerning Invasion

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK
News Editor

The Student Government legislature at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill passed a resolution last week proposing that classes be called off in the event of a United States invasion of Nicaragua.

The resolution also asked for Chapel Hill businesses to be closed and flags to be flown at half-mast if an invasion were to take place. It passed by a vote of 11-0, with two members abstaining.

The 25-member council requires a minimum of 13 students for quorum. Five members left the council meeting in an attempt to break the quorum, but the members remaining were sufficient for the resolution to pass.

ECU SGA President John Rainey said the vote was discussed at this weekend's meeting of the University of North Carolina Association of Student Governments in Chapel Hill. He said several members of the UNC-SAGA, which is composed of SGA presidents from the 16 schools in the UNC system, felt they would have protests on their campuses in the event of an invasion, but nothing on a "big scale."

"My personal feeling is that when the chief executive of this country does something, we have to support him in most cases," Rainey said.

"I don't agree with that (the resolution). You need to look at the whole picture before you start making statements like that," he added.

Columbia Spends X-mas In India

James Fox and Judy Davis in a scene from A Passage to India, a deeply personal story of love and class struggle in 1928 India.

Columbia Pictures heralds the 1984 season with the long-awaited return of a master filmmaker to the screen, with the arrival of a kindly alien to our planet and with the reunion of a pair of talents who promise ten times the laughs this Christmas.

Oscar-winner David Lean returns to filmmaking after a 14-year absence with A Passage to India, an emotional and deeply personal story of love and class struggle in 1928 India. Based on the classic novel by E.M. Forster, Judy Davis stars as a young English woman caught between the allure of the exotic India lifestyle and her own strict upbringing. Written and directed by Lean and shot on location in India and England, the film also stars Dame Peggy Ashcroft, Sir Alec Guinness, Victor Banerjee and James Fox. John Brabourne and Richard Goodwin produced. A Passage to India premiers in three cities on Dec. 14 and opens in additional markets throughout Jan.

Also opening on Dec. 14 is John Carpenter's Starman, a romantic adventure with Jeff Bridges starring as an alien who comes to earth and clones the form of the recently deceased husband of an attractive young widow, played by Karen Allen. The two embark on a cross-country chase, pursued by government officials and end up, much to their surprise, falling deeply in love. Directed by John Carpenter, the film also stars Charles Martin Smith and Richard Jaeckel. Larry J. Franco produced and Barry Bernardi co-produced from a screenplay by Bruce A. Evans and Raynold Gideon. Michael Douglas is executive producer.

Then, on Dec. 21, Dudley Moore and director Blake Edwards reunite for the romantic comedy Micki & Maude. The team who last scored such a huge hit with 10 now join to tell the story of one man's frenzied attempt to have the best of both worlds as his wife and his girlfriend become pregnant at the same time. Ann Reinking stars as Moore's wife, a successful lawyer who is too busy to give him the one thing he desperately wants — a child. Amy Irving stars as the sweet and vulnerable cellist with whom Moore has an affair and ends up marrying...also, Richard Mulligan also stars in the film, produced by Tony Adams from a screenplay by Jonathan Reynolds. Jonathan D. Krane and Lou Antonio are executive producers.

Vacations: Coping With Eating Disorders

By LEIGH COHN

Most students look forward to holiday vacations as a joyful time for reunions and large family meals; but, for people with eating disorders, these instead may be times for confrontations, lies, and painful anxiety. Bulimia, which is characterized by binge purge behavior, and anorexia nervosa, a less common but related condition of self-starvation, are dangerous epidemics affecting between 25 to 33 percent of college-aged women (also many men). Under ordinary circumstances, their lives are dominated by low self-esteem, generalized fear, and obsessive thoughts about food. During the holidays, however, these feelings are intensified. With a well-thought-out plan and plenty of motivation, these individuals can use this time off to start a program for recovery.

Although the underlying causes vary, eating disorders typically begin for psychological reasons and become addictive. Most cases are women with unrealistically high expectations of achievement, especially concerning their own appearance and weight. The initial binges might be triggered by specific events, such as moving away from home, rejection by a lover, or family pressures. The behavior often starts as a way of dieting or in reaction to a failed diet. It becomes a numbing, drug-like coping mechanism that provides instant relief for emotional pain or boredom. Bulimics often binge on several thousand calories after eating what they feel to be one bite too many at a meal. Since they have eaten more than they "should" anyway, they go ahead and binge, knowing that they will later force themselves to vomit or abuse laxatives. These purges confuse body signals causing extremely low blood sugar levels, electrolyte imbalances, and cravings for more sugary foods. This cycle perpetuates itself, dangerously upsets normal digestion, and further complicates the original psychological reasons for bingeing.

Lindsey Hall, who cured herself after nine years of bulimia, has co-written three booklets on this subject, which are used in more than 500 colleges and universities. She writes in her first booklet, Eat Without Fear. "I binged up to four and five times a day after the third year. There were very few days without one. My vision often became blurry and I had intense headaches. What used to be passing dizziness and weakness after a binge had become walking into doorjams and exhaustion. My complexion was poor and I was often constipated. Large blood blisters appeared in the back of my mouth. My teeth were a mess." The research study on which her third booklet, Beating Bulimia, is based, documents other bulimics who were hospitalized, had miscarriages, and spent more than 20 years struggling with food. Between seven and nine die due to cardiac arrest, kidney failure, or impaired metabolism.

Dr. Jean Rubel, president of Anorexia Nervosa and Related Eating Disorders (ANRED), a non-profit organization which serves as a national clearing-house of information and referrals, observes that college students commonly fall victim to food problems. "Students are vulnerable to a cycle of stress inherent in the structure of the school year. There is a separation from home and all that is familiar, anxiety resulting from having to make new friends and learn one's way round campus, plus classwork and studies which pile pressure on top of stress. All the while, women are being vigilant about presenting to the world an immaculate, thin appearance. Many students resort to disordered eating in efforts to gain some peace and release."

"That student returns home, perhaps still preoccupied with problems at school, to find a different set of pressures and expectations awaiting. To further complicate matters, holidays are traditionally times of feasting. For someone who is already terrified of weight gain, who is craving rich food after a period of dieting, the prospect of spending time around large amounts of easily available food is frightening indeed."

Students with food obsessions can use the holiday break from school to begin to get better, though recovery is rarely quick or easy. Dr. Rubel recommends that students be aware of the pressures awaiting them at home and make detailed plans for how to cope with them. They should set reasonable goals for themselves, such as planning non-food related activities, perhaps by setting a limit for weight gain, or avoiding specific incidents that may trigger binges. She adds, "If you do slip back into a food behavior, remind yourself it does not mean your plan is not effective. It merely shows you a place to make some revisions so you can more easily achieve your goals."

Most who are cured find that the commitment to getting better is made easier with the important first step of confiding in someone who can help. Vacation time may provide the perfect setting for getting support from friends or family members, who are often understanding and compassionate, despite the sufferer's fears of rejection. However, even with the help of loved ones, overcoming bulimia or anorexia nervosa may require professional therapy and medical treatment. Without proper attention, the behavior does not suddenly end and can continue for a lifetime.

Lindsey Hall's bulimia developed into a daily habit during her college years, and now she regularly speaks to students who are struggling with food. She emphasizes her success at overcoming bulimia rather than dwelling on her suffering. "I am now able to enjoy growing, touching, tasting, smelling, and eating food without the temptation to binge," Ms. Hall asserts, "the best Christmas present that people with eating disorders can give themselves is to make a devoted effort to end their food obsessions."

Leigh Cohn has published three booklets and lectured extensively on bulimia.

Ugly Bartender Sought

By TINA MAROSCHAK
Features Editor

Ever wonder who the ugliest bartender in Greenville is? Well, you will soon have your say in the matter because beginning Nov. 19, the Panhellenic Council will be sponsoring ECU's first "Ugliest Bartender Contest."

Panhellenic President Cindy Fairbanks explained that various Greenville bars (about 13), will each sponsor one bartender. From Nov. 19-21, jars with the bartender's pictures will be set up at the Student Supply Store. On Nov. 25 they will be moved to the various bars until Dec. 3. For a donation, you can cast your vote. Jars will be collected on Dec. 3 and the winner will be announced after votes are tabulated.

All proceeds are going to Muscular Dystrophy. When asked whether the winner would be offended by the "honor," Fairbanks replied that the contest is "just a fun thing. This is free publicity for the guys as well," she added.

The winner will be announced in the Dec. 4 issue of The East Carolinian.

Janina Fialkowska

Fialkowska

Pianist Visiting Campus

The ECU Artists Series Committee continues its 1984-1985 season with the appearance of one of the few female pianists of the new generation with an international career. Janina Fialkowska will perform her concert in Wright Auditorium on Monday, Nov. 19 at 8 p.m.

Fialkowska is fast becoming the standard by which other youthful pianists are measured. She was a top prize winner in the First International Arthur Rubenstein Master Piano Competition in September 1974 in Israel. Among the world-renowned pianists who judged the competition was Arthur Rubenstein himself. Maestro Rubenstein was so impressed with Miss Fialkowska's masterful playing that he became her mentor, and subsequently advisor and friend.

Since the Rubenstein competition, the Canadian-born pianist has appeared with a great number of orchestras across Canada, Mexico and the United States. She also played extensively in Europe and Israel.

Born to a Canadian mother and a Polish father in Montreal, Fialkowska started studying the piano with her mother at the age of five. Eventually she entered the Ecole Musique Vincent d'Indy, studying under the tutelage of Mlle. Yvonne Hubert. The University of Montreal awarded her both Bachelor and Master of Music degrees by the time she was 17.

The next year, 1969, her career was jolted by two events: winning first prize in the Radio Canada National Talent Festival and her journey to Paris to study with Yvonne Lefebvre.

In 1970 she entered the Juilliard School of Music in New York, where she studied with Sascha Gorodnitzki and has since become his assistant.

Aside from her successful recital and orchestral performances, Fialkowska has made two highly acclaimed recordings for RCA Records: an all-Liszt record and an all-Chopin record. The Liszt record prompted the critic from Gramophone Magazine to remark, "she is a pianist in several thousand."

Tickets for the Janina Fialkowska concert are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center; telephone 757-6611, ext. 266. The Ticket Office is open Monday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Ticket prices are $4 for ECU students and a guest, $4 for Youth (age 14 and under), $8 for ECU faculty and staff and $8 for the public. All tickets will be $8 at the door. Group rates are also available.

Southern Miss Stuns ECU, 31-27

By RANDY MEWS
Sports Editor

Reserve quarterback Andrew Anderson completed seven of 14 passes and two touchdowns to lead Southern Miss to a 31-27 victory over ECU Saturday in Ficklen Stadium.

Anderson had only completed one pass the entire season prior to ECU's season finale, but against the Pirates he connected twice with Lyle Alston for scoring strikes, the latter being the game winner with 4:28 remaining in the fourth quarter.

The Pirates dominated every statistical category, most noticeably accumulating 505 yards worth of total offense compared to only 216 yards for USM.

ECU, however, was plagued by a school record 14 penalties for 106 yards and a costly six turnovers. Return specialist Andrew Mott also added spark to an unimpressive attack as he picked up 96 return yards, 66 of which came on a third quarter touchdown that narrowed the margin to 27-17.

Although Emory gave credit to Southern Miss for what he called a "great comeback," he was obviously upset with the officiating. "I thought the officials did a terrible job," Emory said. "They were the most prejudiced, undisciplined group I've ever seen."

ECU's lack of regard for the rules also seemed undisciplined at times, but the Pirates still seemed to have the game under control when they forged to a 24-3 lead with 11:26 remaining in the first half. Pirate quarterback Ron Jones, however, fumbled the ball on his 28-yard line giving USM a golden opportunity to add a quick score before the half.

Anderson obliged, as it took the budding star only five plays to guide his team into the endzone. The touchdown came on Anderson's first touchdown pass to Alston, this one from 17 yards out.

Although Jones allowed the Eagles to get back into the game just before the second quarter had expired, he played a respectable first half as he was starting in his first game at quarterback since Sept. 8.

Jones got the Pirates moving on their first possession as Jimmy Walden broke loose for 43 yards to quickly move the ball into USM territory. ECU continued their march towards the goal line with relative ease until they were called for holding and confronted with a third and seven. But Walden got free again, this time ripping off a 21-yard gain that gave ECU first and goal inside the five and set up a Reggie Branch touchdown plunge.

The Pirates got on the board less than a minute later when Eagle starting quarterback Tommy Compton fumbled the ball on his team's third play from scrimmage. ECU was unable to pick up a first down, but settled for a Jeff Heath field goal to make it 10-0.

Mott returned the ensuing kickoff 46 yards, but the Eagles could only manage to pick up one first down, settling for a field goal of their own to narrow the margin to 10-3.

The Pirates then looked invincible as impressive running by senior fullback Reggie Branch and Walden enabled the Pirates to drive the length of the field on two consecutive possessions and build what looked like an insurmountable 24-3 lead.

USM's touchdown in the final minutes of the first half seemed to add life to the Southern Miss attack as the Eagles scored two straight touchdowns on Mott's punt return and a four-play, 74-yard drive that was highlighted by a 54-yard reception by Alston on a halfback-option pass.

The Pirates picked up another Heath field goal along the way, but that wasn't enough as another fumble spelled doom for the Bucs. Bubba Bunn coughed up the ball near midfield with about six minutes remaining in the contest, setting up the Anderson to Alston game-winning touchdown.

Eagle Coach Jim Carmody called his team's victory the greatest comeback in the history of Southern Miss since he's been associated with the university, while ECU closes out an extremely disappointing season at 2-9 — the worst record for a Pirate football team since 1957 when they posted a 1-8 record.

Pirate receiver Ricky Nichols goes up for a pass while being harrassed by a Southern Mississippi defender. The Pirates lost a heartbreaker to the Golden Eagles 31-27 at Ficklen Stadium on Saturday to finish the season 2-9.

Pirates Set To Defend ECAC-South Title

By RICK McCORMACK
Staff Writer

First year Lady Pirate basketball coach Emily Manwaring could enjoy considerable success in her season debut as two ECAC South all-conference players as well as five other letter winners return from last year.

Sylvia Bragg returns for her junior season after leading the team with a 13.4 scoring average and earning all-conference honors in just her second year.

Bragg was second on the team in both assists with 54, and steals with 49. She led the Lady Pirates in scoring in 13 of 29 games, and is in 10th place on the career scoring list with 646 points in only two seasons.

Junior forward Lisa Squirewell also made all-conference as a sophomore. She led the Lady Pirates in rebounding, pulling down 6.6 rebounds per game. She also had the highest field goal percentage on the team at 50.3 percent.

Also returning is senior Annette Phillips, who started every game last year and set a school record for minutes played with 1,091. Phillips was the team's second leading rebounder and played every minute in 12 games.

Letter winner Anita Anderson also returns for her senior season after leading the Lady Pirates in blocked shots last year. Anderson, hampered by injuries last year, showed what she can do against James Madison last season when she scored 21 points and pulled down 14 rebounds.

Sophomore letter winner Jody Rodriguez was also bothered by injuries during the first half of last season. But over the last ten games she averaged 9.3 points-per-game, and had her best outing in the championship game of the ECAC-South tourney when she poured in a career high 17 points.

Crystal Grier, a sophomore who started the last three games of last season, lettered last year and is an excellent defensive player. If she doesn't start, she'll surely be a factor coming off the bench.

Lorraine Foster also returns after missing last season. Foster lettered two seasons ago and is one of the flashier players on the team.

Alma Bethea is one of four freshmen on this year's team. While at Goldsboro, the six-foot Bethea led her high school team to the final four all three years, winning the state championship her sophomore year. She earned all-conference honors and was an honorable mention All-America her senior year.

Monique Pompili is a 5-10 freshman from Fayetteville. Pompili led Reid Ross to the state championship last year, while being selected UPI and AP all-state, as well as honorable mention All-America.

Freshman Shelly Ridgeway of Rio Grande, N.J., is a 5-7 guard who led her Middle Township High School team to the South Jersey State Championship. She lettered all four years in high school and was a member of the all-south Jersey and Cape Atlantic League all-star teams.

Victoria Watras is a 5-11 guard from Northeast Harbor, Maine. Watras was a Converse All-America as well as an all-state selection in 1984. She was the female athlete of the year for Mount Desert Island High School and was the first player male or female to score 1,000 career points at her school.

This year's Lady Pirate team should have a very good bench as their are a number of good players, and many of those are versatile enough to play more than one position.

ECU Lady Netters Finish Fall At 5-2

By TONY BROWN
Staff Writer

Greatly improved play by the ECU women's tennis team during the just concluded fall portion of the season resulted in a 5-2 dual meet record, along with a championship in the six-team Eastern Collegiate Invitational Tournament.

The Lady Pirates have already gained two more victories than the entire season last year and more than doubled last year's fall season total wins. They are the only intercollegiate team at ECU with a winning mark so far this year.

"Every player greatly improved," said Coach Pat Sherman. "Everyone played to their full potential. I'm very, very pleased with their play."

Every player came through the fall season with a winning singles record, led by Ann Manderfield at the number two seed with an 8-2 mark and Janet Russell as the top seed with a 5-3 record. They both shared a 6-1 record in doubles. Kris Sammons was undefeated in four matches as the number three seed.

Karla Hoyle helped the Pirate cause in the lower seeds at 7-3, while Sheila Feeley posted a 5-2 and Ty Myers a 5-3 record as the third fourth seeded players. Susie Brown ended at 4-3 and Susan Montjoy 3-2.

Feeley and Myers combined for a 6-2 number two doubles mark, with Myers adding one more with Karla Hoyle.

Janet Russell's 5-3 performance was outstanding in view of her number one seeded position. She amassed her wins against the best competition ECU faced. The value of her performance may be keenly felt in the spring portion of the '84-'85 season. "Russell may not be able to play in the spring," stated Coach Sherman. "She is in the nursing program and may find it necessary to concentrate on her studies."

"This is one reason the depth we showed in the fall could really mean a lot to us in the spring. If Russell is unable to play, each person will have to move up one seed."

Coach Sherman is looking for a good spring, but some dark clouds may have an effect on the team's play. In addition to Russell's possible absence, two players previously expected to rejoin the team after academic difficulties will not be eligible in the spring.

"We are expecting continued progress in '85," Sherman said. "The tough schedule will help us improve for the spring."

The Lady Pirate basketball team is set to defend its ECAC-South title when they swing into action this month. New head coach Emily Manwaring returns two all-conference players and five lettermen.

As fall semester has headed into the home stretch, so have intramural fall activities. The most recent intramural championship was held on the football fields as four co-rec teams kicked around for all-campus honors.

Playing in the final co-rec game was season favorite Third Regiment and the Eliminators. The Eliminators lived up to their name as they knocked out the Spoilers in semifinal action. No.

Schoonover

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — NASCAR Grand National driver Terry Schoonover, making only his second start on the major tracks, was killed Sunday in a wreck during the Atlanta Journal 500 at Atlanta International Raceway.

NASCAR spokesman Chip Williams said Schoonover, 32, of Royal Palm Beach, Fla., was pronounced dead at Atlanta's Georgia Baptist Hospital at 4:27 p.m.

"In this pronouncement, the hospital listed the cause as massive head and internal injuries," Williams said after Dale Earnhardt won the 328-lap race. The last driver to die on the circuit was Ricky Knotts in 1980 during a 125-mile qualifying race.

Third Regiment Wins Crown

By JEANNETTE ROTH
Staff Writer

As fall semester has headed into the home stretch, so have intramural fall activities. The most recent intramural championship was held on the football fields as four co-rec teams kicked around for all-campus honors.

Playing in the final co-rec game was season favorite Third Regiment and the Eliminators. The Eliminators lived up to their name as they knocked out the Spoilers in semifinal action. No.

1 ranked Third Regiment defeated Chaos, winning their half of the single elimination bracket. The final game was plagued with rough play as members of both teams sustained injuries. Third Regiment standout Ginger Rothermel fell victim to a broken finger during a passing play as the competitive spirit ran high on the field. Despite these few dark moments, Third Regiment was still able to pull the plug on the Eliminators. The Regiment was able to once again clinch an IRS championship in co-rec flag football. Racquetball closed out its season crowning open and intermediate champions. In the intermediate division, David Patten came out on top with Raymond Song taking open division top honors.

In volleyball action, women's sorority division Sigma Sigma Sigma lead the league with two wins. Independent division Spikers, Desistutes, Figments and Enforcers, head up the ladies league with 2-0 records. Top spikers in the fraternity division include Kappa Sig, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Pi Kappa Phi. Men's residence hall 307 Spikers and the women's dorm team Tyler Terrifics also boast winning records.

While soccer teams continue to boot it up, some teams experience more success than others at reaching their goals. Men in Booties recently defeated Fried City Force five goals to one, adding another win to their column of four. The Sewer Rats are on top in their division with a 3-0 record. The "A" squad from Alpha Sigma Phi booted the men from Beta Theta Pi 3-1, enlarging their lead over other league competitors. The ladies of sorority Chi Omega and dorm Umstead Jockeytes still lead in their leagues packing an awesome one-two punch.

Don't forget to register the pre-season basketball tournament on Nov. 26-27. The tournament will be held on the weekend of Nov. 30-Dec. 2.

Schoonover Dies At Atlanta Track

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI) — NASCAR Grand National driver Terry Schoonover, making only his second start on the major tracks, was killed Sunday in a wreck during the Atlanta Journal 500 at Atlanta International Raceway.

NASCAR spokesman Chip Williams said Schoonover, 32, of Royal Palm Beach, Fla., was pronounced dead at Atlanta's Georgia Baptist Hospital at 4:27 p.m.

"In this pronouncement, the hospital listed the cause as massive head and internal injuries," Williams said after Dale Earnhardt won the 328-lap race.

The last driver to die on the circuit was Ricky Knotts in 1980 during a 125-mile qualifying race at Daytona International Speedway. The last driver to be killed in a wreck in what NASCAR calls an official event was Tiny Lund in 1975 at Talladega, Ala.

Schoonover's death was the first driver fatality at the 1 1/2-mile track since it opened in 1960. The only other death at the speedway occurred March 19, 1979 when Dennis Wade, jackman for Dave Watson, was hit on pit road.

The wreck occurred on lap 129 when Schoonover's car smacked the outside wall after coming off turn two, careened across the track, and slammed, driver's side first, into the inside dirt embankment in turn three. The car's front end was demolished as flames briefly flashed from under the car.

"They cut the top off the car to get him out," said Bill Gazaway, NASCAR's vice president for competition. "His car went out of control in the second turn and hit the wall. It probably took 10 minutes to get him out."

Gazaway said race day chief inspector Joe Gazaway told him "the car did everything it was supposed to do."

Gamecocks Defeat FSU; Cavaliers Destroy Wolfpack

By BILL MITCHELL Staff Writer

Here's how East Carolina's opponents did in their games on Saturday.

Florida State: South Carolina, ranked 5th, defeated the 10th ranked Seminoles 38-26 to go 9-0. The Gamecocks, minus their star running back Brent Hagood, built a 31-7 halftime lead, which FSU, even with 19 second half points, could never recover from. Orange Bowl scouts are very interested in the Gamecocks, possibly pairing them with 3rd-ranked Nebraska. South Carolina still has to play Navy and Clemson, the only teams that stand in the way of their first ever undefeated season.

Temple: The Owls had an open date this week, they play West Virginia next week.

Central Michigan: Bob DeMarco threw two touchdown passes of 42 and 57 yards to split end John DeBoer to lead the Chippewas to a 51-7 Mid-American Conference win over Ball State. Senior tailback Curtis Adams rushed for 115 yards and touchdowns of two and eight yards to take him over the 4,000 yard career rushing mark. The win gives Central Michigan a 8-1-1 final record.

Georgia Southern: Emory and Henry defeated the Eagles 17-10 on Saturday. The highly ranked 1-AA Georgia Southern team ended their regular season at 8-3, and hope to get a playoff bid.

N.C.State: The Cavaliers rolled over the Wolfpack 45-0 in Charlottesville on Saturday. NCSU could only penetrate the Cavalier 40-yardline only once, in the last minute of the second half, and Mike Cotter's field goal try was blocked by Lester Lyles.

The Wahoo's turned out 274 yards rushing and 165 yards passing, while holding State to 42 yards rushing and 106 yards passing, and getting two interceptions. Barry Word started the game out with an eight-yard rush for the first touchdown, and they were up 17-0 at halftime.

The victory by Virginia ran their record to 7-1-1, which is the best they have done since 1968. The Pack, dropped close games to UNC, Clemson, and South Carolina, falls to 3-7.

Pittsburgh: The Panthers defeated Tulane 21-10 on Saturday.

Quarterback John Congemi threw two touchdown passes to Bill Wallace and ran for a third all in the first half. Tulane had four turnovers and the Pittsburgh defense helped turn these into a victory.

South Carolina: See Florida State above.

Tulsa: The Golden Hurricanes defeated Indiana State 24-17 on Saturday. Bobby Booker had a great game, rushing for 146 yards and catching a pass for a touchdown. Tulsa plays Southwestern Louisiana next week in their last game of the season.

week in their last game of the season.

East Tennessee State: Western Carolina defeated the Buccaneers 31-10 on Saturday. WCU played super football in the first half and jumped out to a 21-3 halftime lead. Then in the first three minutes of the second half Western Carolina Quarterback Milton Beech threw a 63-yard touchdown pass to Eric Rashid and that took the air out of East Tennessee State.
