Legislature Passes Resolution Urging Mascot Name Change

By JENNIFER JENDRASIAK
News Editor

The SGA Legislature passed by acclamation a resolution urging that the ECU Department of Athletics give "serious consideration" to changing the name of Pee Dee, the Pirate mascot.

The resolution was passed at Monday's SGA meeting and also stressed the fact that a majority of those voting in the recent SGA election expressed dissatisfaction with the name of the mascot.

Prior to passage of the resolution, Director of Athletics Ken Karr spoke on the history of the name Pee Dee and the reasons for its selection.

Karr pointed out that when he became athletic director in 1980, the athletic program was operating under a deficit. "Part of the problem" with his job, he said, "is identifying and maximizing revenue."

The athletic budget is approximately $3.2 million, Karr said, over $1 million of which is obtained through student fees. "The Department has the privilege of generating $2.2 million more."

Following the distribution of student football tickets, 25,000 more tickets must be "marketed," Karr said, and to this end a marketing strategy has been developed.

"Developing a new logo was part of the marketing strategy," Karr said. "We must convince people it's a good thing to come to Ficklen."

Concerning the name of Pee Dee, Karr said, "we needed to get the attention of the little ones."

Thus, area schoolchildren helped select the name for the mascot. "It seemed to lend itself to what we needed to achieve with the children."

"The mascot, by any name, has gone a long way towards achieving precisely what we wanted it to," Karr said. "We want people thinking in positive terms about our campus."

The matter of changing the name is currently in Karr's hands. "I may end up changing the name," he said. "We felt something could be gained by naming the Pirate and I feel that something was gained."

As an explanation for the fact that there was no student participation in the selection of the name, Karr said, "I was charged with the responsibility of selling 25,000 tickets and I assumed I had the responsibility to select the name."

However, Karr said the matter has been tabled for the moment and he does not intend to act on it in the near future, despite students' disapproval of the name in the elections.

Political Science Professor Predicts Possible Realignment

By GREG RIDEOUT
Managing Editor

We may be undergoing a gradual realignment in our political system, according to UNC-Greensboro political science professor Charles Pryby. There are arguments both for and against a dramatic shift in our system, but Pryby believes if one realignment is occurring it is a "secular" one.

The elections expert made his comments Thursday evening along with W. Lee Johnston, a specialist on North Carolina politics, as the last of a three-part forum on the 1984 elections sponsored by the political science and history departments with funding from the N.C. Humanities Commission and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Pryby said there isn't enough available data to thoroughly analyze the vote, but two interpretations are discernible. "One view (for no realignment) is that Reagan's victory is largely an individual triumph," he said. The other view is that "Reagan's victory is part of an emerging realignment, one that is beginning to occur now."

The last dramatic realignment was in the 1930s when the Democrats took control under the New Deal. Pryby believes that if a realignment is occurring, it's not the 1930s type.

Republican success at the presidential level, erosion of the New Deal coalition, Republican strength in growing areas of the country, shifts in the way people view the parties and an increase of young people identifying with the GOP are all arguments for a shift in the system. Arguments against this theory point out that presidential success has not trickled down to other offices. Shifts in how people perceive parties are based on the economy and therefore not fundamental. The evidence is better, proponents of this theory say, for a realignment.

Pryby does see a definite realignment occurring in Texas and North Carolina. Johnston concurs, saying this state's conservative values and God-fearing attitudes are now translating into votes for Republicans, where before they put conservative Democrats in office.

The Republican party in the state is in touch with the state's values, and they portray their opponents as against these. "If you can make Robert Morgan in 1980 running against John East a liberal, you can make Jim Hunt a homosexual. All's it takes is a little bit of money and a little bit of expertise."

Johnston said Reagan's coat-tails helped Sen. Jesse Helms and Rep. James Martin tremendously, as was the case, he pointed out, in 1972. "You had the same basic variables as you have in '84," including a good economy and a popular president.

The fight between Gov. Jim Hunt and Helms was a classic fight waged at an emotional level, Johnston said. "It was the personification of two pros going at it toe-to-toe 15 rounds. Clearly, the electorate has spoken."

Yet, Helms received about the same percentage of the vote he did in 1972 and 1978, indicating, Johnston thinks, a rockbed of conservatism in the state. "North Carolina will continue to lead the Southern conservative South and in that will be based on the moral and economic value that Helms speaks to."

Outstanding Loans Top $2,500

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

In a serious attempt to collect outstanding emergency student loans, the ECU Student Legislature has initiated a temporary program to help recoup the $2,500 loss.

"Students are going to have to pay up or else," said Kirk Shelley, speaker of the ECU student legislature. "This has been a concern of the legislature for some time," he said, "and we had to do something to help try and get the money back." No more loans are being given out because there are no more funds left in the program. If the situation is not remedied, the program may be cancelled, Shelley said.

Approximately 100 students at ECU have outstanding $25 loans. Shelley said the first warning letters have been sent, informing the students they have to repay the loans. If there is no response, a second letter will be sent, informing them they are required to meet with Ronald Speier, associate dean and director of student services.

"If the student fails to show up," Shelley said, "they face the possibility of being barred from their classes and this could really jeopardize their exam schedule." Also, the student may have to appear in front of the Honor Board and be tried for the offense of not repaying the loan.

Last year, according to Shelley, attempts were made to collect outstanding loans by filing suit against the student. However, "we felt it was not worth the trouble just to collect $25. Therefore, the new system was implemented and we feel it will be more effective and a cheaper way of retrieving the outstanding loans," Shelley said.

Another problem in collecting loans has been the fact that students who know they will not be returning to school the following semester take advantage of the loan program, Shelley said. "This poses more problems and we hope to solve them by having the student's transcripts tagged, making them unavailable upon request.

"It really is a shame that this small group of people are making it impossible for people who really need the loans," Shelley said. "I'm not saying they didn't need it at the time, but by them not paying it back, they are placing an inconvenience on other people who do need the money and can't get it because it hasn't been replenished."

A proposal has been made to the student legislature to make this a long-term policy. It is on the agenda for Dec. 3, the last SGA meeting of the semester, Shelley said.

Party Time

Students' resolve to study tends to vanish in the face of temptations such as last week's Phi Kappa Tau all-campus party.

Local Groups Prepare For Holiday

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, many ECU and Greenville organizations are donating food and services to help the less fortunate enjoy a happy Thanksgiving.

Cindy Fairbanks, president of the Panhellenic Council, said all the sororities are participating in a drive to collect canned goods. "This is where the sorority collects canned goods and distributes them to needy families," she said. Their advisor, Laura Sweet, will allocate the food through her church. Fairbanks noted this drive will also help families at Christmas.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Glenn Conway said each campus fraternity would be working on its own project to provide food for the needy.

In the Greenville area, the Salvation Army is having its annual Thanksgiving church service and dinner. "We've had many requests from people wanting to help," said Maj. Ronald Davis, commanding officer and minister. "We are seeing that these people's needs are met." Davis added that the Thanksgiving program is open to anyone who wishes to attend.

Faculty, Staff, or graduate students who are not able to go home may attend an "Orphan's Potluck" at Mindy Machanic's home. Machanic, an instructor in the School of Art said, "Since I am new in town, and it really is an annoyance for someone to go so far away at Thanksgiving, I thought I would offer a place for people to go on Thanksgiving."

At St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, the doors will open at noon Thanksgiving Day allowing anyone who wants a good meal and fellowship to do so. According to Sister Joseph, "anyone, be they poor or rich, lame or healthy, can come join us for our Thanksgiving dinner. They don't have to bring anything, but if they'd like to bring a dish, it will be perfectly all right."

"We really expect it to be a big success, because last year we had over 300 people attending the dinner," she said.

Sister Joseph said the dinner will last until 4 p.m. and will be made possible through St. Gabriel's and The Tabernacle Prayer church. St. Gabriel's is located at 1100 Ward St. in Greenville.

UNC System Presidency Not Option For Hunt

RALEIGH (UPI) — Gov. James Hunt has no intention of seeking the presidency of the University of North Carolina system when William Friday retires, a spokeswoman said Monday.

"The governor believes that that position is so crucial to the future of the state and needs a person who can devote many years to it," spokeswoman Lynne

Garrison said. "But he is not willing at this point to commit the rest of his life to that job."

"He has not made a decision about his future yet," said Garrison, who spoke with Hunt Monday.

Hunt, who lost a bid to unseat Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in the Nov. 6 election, has two months left in his second four-year gubernatorial term.

Friday, president of the 16-campus university system since 1956, announced in September he will retire by mid-1986 and he could leave office as early as next July when he turns 65.

Hunt's choices for the future include returning to private life as a lawyer, seeking the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee or running against

Sen. John East, R-N.C., in 1986.

Phil Carlton, a top Hunt adviser and longtime friend, said the governor has not ruled out any option, including a campaign against East.

But Carlton added, "I think anybody with any sense about North Carolina politics would know better than to start a campaign for anything right now."

Medical Students Seek Better Instruction

(USPS) — Think of yourself as a pre-med student. Think of endless all-nighters and equally endless hours locked in science labs. Think of days spent cramming for organic chemistry exam. And you'll think there has to be a better way.

The Panel on the General Professional Education of the Physician and College Preparations for Medicine thinks so, too. The 19-member panel recently produced Physicians for the Twenty-First Century, a 48-page report evaluating the effectiveness of current medical school education. After three years of interviewing educators and students the panel found an urgent need for improvement in current medical education.

"We perceive a continuing erosion of general education for physicians, an erosion that has not been arrested but is instead accelerating," said Dr. Steven Muller, chairman of the panel and president of Johns Hopkins University and its affiliated hospital.

In particular, the panel recommended placing more emphasis on a broad general education for pre-med or medical students. The panel also advised that medical faculty develop closer personal contact with students, and that medical school curriculum be designed to encourage more independent learning.

"The panel judges that the present system of general professional education for medicine will become increasingly inadequate unless it is revised," the report said.

Medical students need a broader general education so they might be better prepared for life in a rapidly changing profession, the panel found. Premed students currently face an unceasing barrage of technical courses which monopolize their time and stuff them with information soon to be outdated while doing little to develop their ability to learn. However, it is precisely this ability to learn that the rush of innovation in modern medicine has made far more important than the ability to cram.

The report suggests that technical courses be limited to a core group of basic sciences so premeds might be free to take more classes in humanities and social studies. Extra courses in the liberal arts would help premeds to become "independent, lifelong learners" ready for a profession driven by constant innovation.

The theft of two master keys from the rooms of two Scott dorm student staff members has created concern for campus public safety officers with the Thanksgiving holidays approaching.

"Thanksgiving holidays have always been a bad time for us for break-ins of dorm rooms," said Lt. Gene McAbee, crime prevention officer with the Department of Public Safety. "The larceny of these two keys only increases our concern for the safety of students' property in Scott dorm during the holidays."

According to McAbee, the department will attempt to increase patrols in the area of Scott dorm over the four-day break but he stressed that "no student's property in the dorm is safe from theft until the keys are recovered." He suggested residents of Scott dorm take valuable stereo systems, cameras, televisions and other articles home with them.

Rewards in the amount of $150 have been offered by the department and the dorm House Council for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the crime. "The theft of master keys is no joke, no matter what the intent of the thief was initially. If they are identified, they will be prosecuted," McAbee said.

In other crime news, a stolen truck which was reported stolen on Nov. 12 was recovered by police in Rocky Mount. At this time, no arrests have been made in connection with the incident.

Black Students Win Academic Awards

Eighteen black students were cited for academic achievement by Omega Psi Phi social fraternity during its first annual Achievement Day Program Sunday afternoon. The students were given a certificate congratulating them for having a gpa's of 3.0 or better.

The awards ceremony was conceived by fraternity president Carl Purcell Jr., who was recognized as Omega Psi Phi man of the year during the program. Paul Wood, an instructor in the School of Education and a fraternity brother, told black students that "nothing of value is ever accomplished without discipline." He told them to heed the four tenets of the fraternity — manhood, scholarship, perseverance and uplift. Wood urged black students to work hard to achieve and cautioned that black Americans are "never free until all are uplifted" from economic despair.

Special recognition was given to Hazel Morgan in the School of Nursing and Dr. Clinton Downing from the School of Education for service to the university. Students James Fennel, Stacey Heath and Rodney Sessoms were recognized from the School of Medicine.

Pee Dee

Karr Posturing Unacceptable

It would seem the ECU Department of Athletics needs a good lesson in the intricacies of cause and effect relationships.

After listening to Athletic Director Ken Karr address the SGA Legislature Monday, we find it hard to think that, as Karr would have us believe, the future of the athletic and academic programs at ECU rests on the retention of Pee Dee as the name of ECU's official mascot.

Karr gave a history Monday night of the financial problems which have plagued the football program and outlined the necessity of developing a successful marketing campaign to eliminate the deficit. So far, so good.

The fact that student fees constitute 33 percent of the total athletic budget of $3.2 million is a valid point — but not in favor of Karr's argument — a third of a few million is a lot of money. Karr does have the "privilege," as he said, of obtaining the other 66 percent from private sources.

Developing a marketing strategy stressing the school's image to generate the extra bucks is a good idea. The point is, though, how relevant is the name of the Pirate mascot to this strategy? Or, for that matter, how important is the football program in projecting what ECU is really all about?

Karr, in discussing the unveiling of the mascot at last year's ECU-N.C. State game, would like to imply that the mascot had something to do with the victory. It just ain't so.

The logo was named in an attempt to get the attention of the "little ones," those children between the ages of six and 10, Karr said. This makes them the latest victims of target marketing.

We believe children are important; they are the future. However, is it really necessary to have people who still believe in Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny dictating the choice of a name for a college mascot?

Furthermore, these children will grow up. In all probability they will be somewhat like us, and a representative sample of us dislike the name, so in all probability these "little ones" will grow out of it, too.

An athletic program and a mascot name certainly help to project the image of the university, but let's not forget we're here for an education. If the children who will become students make their choice solely on the basis of their feelings about the ECU mascot, they really aren't the kind of students we want here.

An obvious flaw in Karr's logic came when he mentioned that ticket sales doubled last year, when ECU had a nationally ranked football team. Coincidentally, this was the year the new Pirate mascot was introduced — a quirk of fate. Following the team's performance this year, ticket sales may drop next year. We can't say this will be due to Pee Dee? Can we?

A representative sample of ECU students showed overwhelming disapproval of the name during SGA elections. Karr seems to think 10 percent of the students wasn't a good sample. Tell that to the presidential pollsters who correctly projected the election's outcome.

The success of ECU's football program does not hinge on the name of the Pirate mascot, nor does ECU's future as an academic institution. We feel Karr should take the name out of the purgatory where he has placed it and act for the student good — the students who are this institution.

'Can You Say Landslide?'

Hi boys and girls! What a wonderful day in the neighborhood! Can you say Republican? I knew you could. Can you say landslide? I knew you could. Can you say Democrat? I knew you wouldn't. Boys and girls, guess what song President Reagan and Sen. Helms have been singing lately? "I'm Back in the Saddle Again!"

Well, I hate to say that I am a sore winner, but why not? Being a young Democrat for President Reagan, Sen. Helms and Gov. Martin, I think I have earned that privilege. How could anyone in their right mind possibly have thought that Walter (Mr. Electricity) Mondale and Mrs. Zaccaro could whip our great president? The only good things ever to come from Minnesota were Prince and Mary Tyler Moore. And do you really want to know where Jim stands now? On the side of the road trying to thumb a ride with Jesse back to Washington!

Seriously though, I commend the liberal Democrats for putting up such a valiant effort. But I hope they have learned their lesson. But if they haven't and they want some more, bring it on. We'll show em' our Bush in 1988!

Commies Discussed

On Nov. 3, 1979, five members of the Communist Workers Party were gunned down as they prepared to march and rally against the Klan and Nazis in Greensboro. It took only 88 seconds for the Klan and Nazis to do their work.

Regardless of the Communist Workers Party politics, they were and/or are American Citizens protected under our Constitution. Why has the government refused for five years to take direct, forceful action against these murderers?

When political people are killed in other countries, our government calls attention to the acts and presents rhetoric about the atrocities. In this case, our government has brushed the issue under the rug. Can we allow this? For if our government has chosen to overlook these murders, what else might they choose to overlook?

Our country is special, a refuge for the oppressed of the world. We believe in freedom of speech, peaceful assembly and most importantly the right to hold differing political views. Without these rights, our country would be no better than the Soviet Union. The choice belongs to us. If we are to continue to have these rights, we must be willing to fight to protect them, for that is the only way we will be assured of their continuation.

I urge the people to remember the Nov. 3 massacre and also to remember that no country is infallible, especially when it begins to take its freedom for granted.

We No Nazis

David Beard has little insight into the political process of Germany in 1933 or the United States in 1984. His ignorance is further displayed by the absence of logical fact.

First of all, during 1933 in Germany, Adolf Hitler came to power as reich chancellor by President von Hindenburg's appointment. He was not elected by any fashion even closely resembling that of our system. Also, Beard is apparently comparing our president to Adolf Hitler. That is a great injustice to democracy and a slap in the face to every democratic-loving person. Adolf Hitler was not elected to his office, let alone by more than 53 million voters as our president was.

Our economic recovery from its state in 1980 is a remarkable one. Thanks largely to President Reagan and the Congress, we are well on our way to more improvement. When Hitler became reich chancellor, Germany was in a state of disorder worse than any event in American history, with the exception of the Civil War. In 1935 when President von Hindenburg died, Hitler proclaimed himself in total charge of Germany. He used the people's bad situation to turn them into the war machine they became. In 1945, their situation was worse than before.

It is true that with the increased economic growth and the feeling of patriotism, a sense of nationalism sweeps the country, but to insinuate we will evolve as a Nazi Germany is ludicrous and idiotic. Germany's nationalism was founded of fear, hate, revenge and war. Germany's nationalism was falsely injected to try to achieve economic recovery. Our nationalism comes as a result of our economic recovery.

Beard has very eloquently stated misconception and distorted truths as his facts. I think he is only retelling against the election on Nov. 6 and its victors. I disagree with his clever imagery and find his conclusion insulting. To even imply our system is comparable to that of the Third Reich is ill-founded demagoguery in the highest form. Beard's negative outlook at our nation calls to mind the words of Rudyard Kipling: "Borrow trouble for yourself, if that's your nature, but don't lend it to your neighbors." Whether Beard wants to admit it or not, his principles are all together, and I agree with his right to express them. A freedom no one had in Nazi Germany.

Beard can pretend he's living during 1933 Germany. But for me, the year: 1984. The place: The United States of America. Don't just think about it, America!

Just Christmas Listing

By GREG RIDEOUT

Geez, seeing how there's only 35 days until St. Nick slides into Greenville, I thought I better give you The East Carolinian's Christmas list so all you guys out there can flood our offices with presents. SomeThing I Thought Of that I should do, okay?

We need earmuffs and Koala bear gloves. Seems ECU's powers-that-be don't think we students of the journalistic persuasion are entitled to heat. But freezing us will not break our spirit nor stifle our thirst for... beer. (Yes, after all we're college students first and reporters second.)

Those who occupy the news desk would like a dictionary. Now, they're not asking for an expensive deal, just something that spells the darn words right. And maybe a poster of Ronald Reagan asleep, so they can remember him the way he is so much of the time.

The features desk would like some nude photographs of Burt Reynolds and Don Rickles. You see, their walls have been bare ever since the public safety department forced them to remove the stuffed boa constrictor. If they don't get the pix of Burt and Don in their birthday suits, I hear it's going to be a watercolor of the Special Attractions Committee chairman in drag.

The general manager wants a leisure suit to wear to interviews. You know, one with a flowery shirt and seven chains. He figures it will make a big hit with the banks during his employment search. He would also like a Big Wheel, so he can go vroooooom, but don't tell anybody.

The advertising staff would like, well, basically, some good drugs. If they can't have those, they'll settle for a Mercedes and a peanut butter sandwich. And some chafe.

Everyone else up here would like a new job. I personally don't want anything. Well, except maybe this here chair. That's all. Well, maybe that lamp and that paddle. And, well, that there curtain with mayonnaise. That's all. Maybe a Frosty.

By BRIAN RANGELEY

Ten minutes after the doors opened, seat in Wright Auditorium was taken. Ferguson played to a full house last night, dazzling the audience with his artistry.

The crowd complimented the band as house lights went down, the cheers went up. The band came onto the stage, began playing. Feet began stomping the citement. Then the announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen, the great player in the world, Maynard Ferguson."

The audience erupted applause as the man walked to center stage, trumpet in keeping time with the music. Ferguson's tune to introduce himself and the band, sax player Dennis Deblaggio stepped. Ferguson for a duet.

Deblaggio turned out to be one of the members of the group. Besides complementing the songs played, that he played baritone, saxophone and flute. At the concert, Deblaggio sang solo, and play of the other musicians. The second Injuries from one of winter's greatest, the dead auto battery — can be reduced. Take some precautions before the season force, says the National Society to Prevent Automobile Accidents.

According to the Society, an estimated 13,673 of these, were to the eyes. Many resulted from the mishandling and improper starting of automobile batteries.

"Some people don't know that a battery and cigarette, or a spark from a dropped or charge cable can ignite a battery," Megredy of Cary, safety chairman of Carolina affiliate. "The explosion can cause acid into the eyes, causing severe burning, vision impairment or even blindness."

To minimize this risk, the Society urges car safety goggles in their car, and whenever working around or jump-starting a car.

"The best way to reduce the risk of a battery is to make sure it's in good working order," Megredy comments. The following are suggestions from the Society that motorists assure their car battery's peak performance — Water level. Water lost through evaporation should be replaced.

Rock queen Pat Benatar reveals yet another dimension of her musical genius with the release of her new album Tropico. Though Tropico does not surpass Benatar's previous endeavors, it is wonderfully composed and offers several pleasant surprises. ## Playhouse To O

One of the most successful plays about the stage-struck folks who keep Broadway theatres lighted is the next major production of the '84-'85 theatrical season for the East Carolina Playhouse. This is George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber's lively play, Stage Door, which will open on Tuesday, Nov. 27 and will continue through Saturday, Dec. 1 at 8:15 p.m. each evening in McGinnis Theatre.

Written by two of America's wittiest and most theatre-wise playwrights, Stage Door tells an alternately funny and touching story of the hopes and fears, successes and heartbreaks of young, eager, attractive actresses who make their headquarters at a theatrical boarding house in New York City's West Fifties. The bravely struggling debutantes of the theatre who live at the Footlights Club are typical of the aspiring ingenues who descend on Broadway and the New York theatre each season. ## Cruise To The Bahamas For Fun And Sun

By TINA MAROSCHAK

Are you looking for a Christmas present to give yourself? Something exciting, different and inexpensive? The ECU Student Union Travel Committee may have just what you're looking for — a cruise to the Bahamas. Over Spring Break, you and 43 others can enjoy five sun-filled days and four breezy, moonlit nights.

The itinerary for the week is as follows: Sunday, March 3, take a Trailways Bus to Miami, Fla.; Monday, March 4, board ship at 4 p.m. and arrive at Freeport on Tuesday, March 5; arrive in Nassau on Wednesday, March 6 and stay through Thursday; Friday, March 8, sail back to Miami; return to Greenville on Saturday, March 9.

There are seven twin rooms and eight quad rooms available on the ship. The price per person for a quad room is $449 and the price per person for a twin room is $499. This fee includes everything except spending money and food during the bus ride.

The deadline is Jan. 9. Chairperson Julie Mohan said this is the first time in about eight years that the committee has sponsored the trip. "It got too expensive with the gas shortage, but now things have evened out again," she said.

Lady Pi

By RICK MCCORMACK

When the ECU Lady Pirate basketball team travels to Fayetteville to open their season against N.C. State and UNC in the Dogwood Classic, it will be a homecoming of sorts for two ECU players.

Sophomore Jody Rodriguez and freshman Monique Pompili both played their high school basketball in Fayetteville, and ECU is trying to promote the tournament in the area.

"We've spoken to our Fayetteville Pirate's Club members and have sent fliers out to about 50 high schools in the area to get their girls' basketball teams to attend," ECU Coach Emily Manwaring said.

The Dogwood Classic will pit ECU against N.C. State the opening night, and on the second night, the Lady Pirates will face in-state rival UNC of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

N.C. State comes into the tournament ranked 19th in the Associated Press pre-season poll. While the Wolfpack is nationally ranked and from the ACC, Manwaring isn't placing more emphasis on this game than any other.

"We don't need any special in-

Men Sw

By TONY BROWN

The ECU men's swim team opened the '84-'85 campaign Saturday with a crushing 69-40 defeat of UNC Charlotte at Minges Natatorium, while the Lady Pirates fell to a powerful James Madison squad 90-50.

Neither score reflects the true nature of the contests, however. The men totally dominated UNCC by winning all 13 events, but after enough points had been scored to guarantee a win, the remaining events were conducted as exhibitions to avoid running up the score.

The women's team dropped one relay by two tenths of a second and another by one second, thus losing valuable first place points to James Madison. "Those close losses took a lot out of the team," said Coach Rick Kobe. "Two wins there could have changed the whole meet."

For the men, Bruce Brockschmidt continued his pre-season form by capturing the 200 freestyle and the 200 breaststroke, while Pat Brennan won the 500 freestyle and placed second in the 200 individual medley.

Freshman Chris Holman led the women's team, setting a new ECU record with a 2:14.17 time in the 200 backstroke and taking second in the 200 freestyle. The backstroke time qualified her for the NCAA post-season meet and would have placed her in the top eight in the NCAA last year.

"I was pleased with the efforts of both the men and women," said Coach Kobe. "UNCC has a young team, so we weren't really surprised at the score. James Madison's by far the best team in

Turnbill Leads Pirates Over Irish

By RANDY MEWS & SCOTT COOPER

Jack Turnbull poured in 21 points to lead a fired up ECU basketball squad to a 79-68 triumph over the Irish National Team in Minges Coliseum last night.

Although Turnbull enjoyed success in the middle, it was the inside play of North Carolina native and former Wake Forest star Alvis Rogers who kept the team from Ireland close. Rogers led all scorers with 25 points, pulled down a game-high nine rebounds and had a team-high five assists.

Rogers was a first-team all-ACC selection in his Demon Deacon days, and soon hopes to resume his career in the United States. He said the fast pace of international basketball is preparing him for an NBA tryout later this summer.

Last year's team leader, Curt Vanderhorst, was also impressive as he pumped in 17 points and had a team-high eight rebounds.

"Curt was shooting the ball with confidence," Pirate head coach Charlie Harrison said. "It was a big help to have Scotty (junior college transfer Scott Hardy) handling the ball — it allowed Curt more time to find his shot."

William Grady gave the crowd something to cheer about when he slammed home two of his 16 points four minutes into the game. The basket broke an 8-8 tie and spurred the ECU transition game.

The Pirates were able to build their lead to 24-18 on a Keith Sledge layup midway through the first half, but ECU was unable to maintain their lead as Peter Dam picked up two quick personal fouls.

Two free throws by Rogers brought the Irish to within 28-27 with 3:30 left in the half, but the Pirates' countered by outscoring the opposition 10-4 in the final three minutes to take a 38-31 halftime lead.

The debut of seven-footer Peter Dam was hardly impressive as his first-half play consisted of one missed field goal attempt and two personal fouls, while he finished the game with two points and four rebounds.

"As Peter said many times before the start of the season, he's just one of eleven players," Harrison remarked.

"He did show us some things tonight, but he'll have to improve. Also, when Leon Bass returns (sidelined with an injury), it will push Peter that much harder."

The Pirates opened the second half with a tenacious man-to-man defense, extending their lead to 44-33 less than two minutes into the final half of play.

The Irish were once again able to trim the ECU lead as a Curtis Harkness layup cut the margin to 50-43 with 14:42 remaining in the game. But the Pirates put the game out of reach as they outscored Ireland 24-13 over the next 10 minutes. In the last three minutes, the Irish managed to make the score respectable trimming the final margin to 79-68.

Coach Harrison substituted freely throughout the game. Every player saw action in the contest, while Roy Smith was the only Pirate to play under twelve minutes.

With a great team effort, the Pirates looked very impressive in defeating a tough Irish squad. They will officially open their season Mon. at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum against Central Connecticut.

Lady Pirates Face NCSU, UNC In Classic

By RICK MCCORMACK Staff Writer

When the ECU Lady Pirate basketball team travels to Fayetteville to open their season against N.C. State and UNC in the Dogwood Classic, it will be a homecoming of sorts for two ECU players.

Sophomore Jody Rodriguez and freshman Monique Pompili both played their high school basketball in Fayetteville, and ECU is trying to promote the tournament in the area.

"We've spoken to our Fayetteville Pirate's Club members and have sent fliers out to about 50 high schools in the area to get their girls' basketball teams to attend," ECU Coach Emily Manwaring said.

The Dogwood Classic will pit ECU against N.C. State the opening night, and on the second night, the Lady Pirates will face in-state rival UNC of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

N.C. State comes into the tournament ranked 19th in the Associated Press pre-season poll. While the Wolfpack is nationally ranked and from the ACC, Manwaring isn't placing more emphasis on this game than any other.

"We don't need any special incentive to play anyone," Manwaring said. "But, we do realize this is an excellent opportunity for our program." A win in either of these games early in the season will help us not only in terms of fan support, but it will help our players from the confidence standpoint as well."

In the first game of the classic, the Lady Pirates will face the Wolfpack with their All-America guard Linda Page.

When asked how her team will try to contain the high scoring Page, Manwaring said, "She can't score if she doesn't have the ball. We are going to try to deny her the ball and keep it out of her hands."

"I think we'll be ready when we face N.C. State," Manwaring continued. "We know what we are capable of — we just have to go out and do it."

Manwaring and the Lady Pirates have been practicing since Sept. 1 and are well prepared to open their season. "We know all of our offensive and defensive patterns, and now all we have to do is execute them," she said.

The center position, a spot that was suspect at the beginning of the season, is now starting to show promise. "The center position has really begun to show some stability," Manwaring said.

Manwaring has also been pleased by the play of her guards. "Our two experienced shooting guards have been playing well. 'Lorraine Foster and Sylvia Bragg have been providing a consistent scoring threat from the outside."

Another player who is performing well is junior all-conference performer Lisa Squirewell. "Lisa has some really good inside moves and is continuing to improve on her all-conference performance of last year."

In assessing her team's chances in the Dogwood Classic, Manwaring said, "I think we have good talent, we just have to play well together."

Squirewell's knees remain a question mark. According to the doctor, her tendonitis was probably a result of doing too much running too soon without the slow building up process which could have conditioned her knees to the pounding of the hardwood floor.

"There's not much I can do about my knees," she said. "They hurt, but I'll just have to ice them down and use ultrasonics (deep heating). I'm trying to strengthen them by lifting weights, too."

Those knees will be closely monitored as the season progresses, because they could make the difference between winning and losing for the Lady Pirates as they enter the upcoming season this Friday at the Dogwood Classic in Fayetteville.

All-ECAC Squirewell Returning Starter

By TONY BROWN Staff Writer

The play of returning starter Lisa Squirewell will be an integral part of the ECU Lady Pirate basketball team's efforts to rebound from a 13-16 record last season.

Although hampered by tendonitis in her knees last year, the 5-11 junior forward shot over 50 percent from the field and averaged more than nine points a game. She was a dominant force on the inside also. With a 6.6 per game average, Squirewell leads the returnees in rebounding averages.

The former Wake Forest-Rolesville High School center grabbed an individual game team-high 15 rebounds for the Lady Pirates and added a 14-point free throw game, another high mark for the team. She also scored in double figures 12 times, with one 20-point game, before her knee problems put her on the bench for the last six contests. Despite her injuries, she was named to the all-ECAC South squad.

"Lisa is good both defensively and offensively," said new head coach Emily Manwaring. "She has a strong inside game and a lot of finesse, which give her a big advantage in rebounding and scoring."

Squirewell became a starter during the latter part of her freshman year and has been a potent force in the Pirate game plan since. She has the ability to score in double figures, according to Manwaring, who also sees Squirewell's quick learning ability as one of her best traits.

This should be a big plus as the Lady Pirates make the move from one coaching style to another — a change that is seen as a positive factor by Squirewell. "Coach Manwaring is consistent and stays under control," she feels. "The coach last year (Cathy Andruzzi) got too emotional."

"The transition has been easy. Coach Manwaring has a different style all around. It's easier to learn now, and I think the team's attitude has improved a lot as a result. I believe we could win 20 games this year. We have the talent — we've just got to execute."

"We only lost two girls from last year's team, too. With the increased attention of the coaches, the practices have become more positive. Sometimes I get kind of lazy on defense and the coach let's me know it, but I keep trying harder. We're getting the confidence that we need to perform well."

Men Swimmers Pound UNCC; Ladies Fall

By TONY BROWN Staff Writer

The ECU men's swim team opened the '84-'85 campaign Saturday with a crushing 69-40 defeat of UNC Charlotte at Minges Natatorium, while the Lady Pirates fell to a powerful James Madison squad 90-50.

Neither score reflects the true nature of the contests, however. The men totally dominated UNCC by winning all 13 events, but after enough points had been scored to guarantee a win, the remaining events were conducted as exhibitions to avoid running up the score.

The women's team dropped one relay by two tenths of a second and another by one second, thus losing valuable first place points to James Madison. "Those close losses took a lot out of the team," said Coach Rick Kobe. "Two wins there could have changed the whole meet."

For the men, Bruce Brockschmidt continued his pre-season form by capturing the 200 freestyle and the 200 breaststroke, while Pat Brennan won the 500 freestyle and placed second in the 200 individual medley.

Freshman Chris Holman led the women's team, setting a new ECU record with a 2:14.17 time in the 200 backstroke and taking second in the 200 freestyle. The backstroke time qualified her for the NCAA post-season meet and would have placed her in the top eight in the NCAA last year.

"I was pleased with the efforts of both the men and women," said Coach Kobe. "UNCC has a young team, so we weren't really surprised at the score. James Madison's by far the best team in the ECAC South, but less than a second and a half faster for us in the two relays would have made quite a difference."

"Brockschmidt and Brennan were outstanding. It was just complete domination by the men. We have a lot of freshmen on the women's team, so this was a good experience for them."

"The women yo-yo'ed out," Kobe added. "Several swam well in one event, but did poorly in others. We've got to improve our consistency. We got down after the relays and we can't afford to let that happen."

The Pirates will be in Raleigh Tuesday to face N.C. State. The women's contest starts at 5 p.m. and the men's portion follows at 7 p.m.

Navy Stuns Gamecocks, Duke Upsets State

By BILL MITCHELL
Staff Writer

Here's a brief look at how ECU's football opponents did in their games on Saturday.

Florida State: Tennessee-Chattanooga was defeated by the 17th ranked Seminoles 37-0 on Saturday night. Bobby Bowden's team, still trying to secure a bowl bid, ran all over UT-Chattanooga on offense and stifled them on defense. The Seminoles play the Florida Gators on Dec. 1.

Temple: Jim Cooper kicked a 36-yard field goal as time ran out to help the Owls defeat West Virginia 19-17. The Mountaineers led 17-16 with 2:03 left after they scored on a 43-yard pass from Kevin White to Willie Drewrey.

After the kick, Temple drove 35 yards to the WVU 45. Jim Cooper missed his first try, but West Virginia was called for off-sides and Cooper got another chance. Temple evened its record at 5-5. West Virginia lost its third straight and is 7-4.

Central Michigan: Toledo won the Mid-American Conference title as they defeated Central Michigan 14-7. The Rockets earned a place in the California Bowl with the win. In an inspiring play, Toledo cornerback Rodney Tatum blocked Brad Tabin's punt at the Chippewa 27 and Charles Brewster scooped it up on the three and scored. Toledo entered the game with the nation's eighth ranked defense, and showed why, adding a fumble recovery and an interception to the blocked punt. The Chippewas finished their season 8-2-1.

Georgia Southern: The Eagles concluded their season last weekend.

N.C.State: Ken Harper kicked a 29-yard field goal with 1:56 left in the game as Duke upset the Wolfpack 16-13. After the field goal, Darryl Brunson intercepted a Tim Esposito pass in the final minute to seal the victory. The Devils are 2-8 and play Carolina next week. State winds up a 3-8 season.

Pittsburgh: The Panthers have an open date this week.

Tulsa: Patrick Brussard hit a 45-yard field goal with no time left to help Southwestern Louisiana defeat Tulsa 18-17. The field goal capped a 46-yard drive during the last two minutes. Tulsa was winning 10-0 at halftime after SW Louisiana had only produced 17 first half yards. But the Cajun's produced 246 yards of offense during the second half, and scored 11 points in the final four minutes. The Ca-jun's ended the season at 6-5, as did Tulsa.

East Tennessee State: The Buccaneers played Marshall, however a report on the game was not available.

South Carolina: Navy stunned the Gamecocks 38-21. Much of the credit should go to the Midshipmen's defense, which held the high-powered South Carolina offense to seven points until the final quarter. Quarterback Bob Misch threw two touchdown passes to Chris Weiler and halfback Mike Smith scored twice on short runs. Navy, who is now 4-5-1, upset the Gamecocks after losing to Syracuse 29-0 last week. The Navy offense was able to move consistently against USC, especially in the third and fourth quarters when they scored 24 points. However, even with the loss, the Gamecocks are still in the running for an Orange Bowl bid.

Southwestern Louisiana: See Tulsa above.

Southern Mississippi: The Golden Eagles played Louisville, and once again, a game report was not available.

Intramural Action

By JEANNETTE ROTH
Staff Writer

Intramural volleyball is turning into a game of upsets. Both men's and women's division top ranked teams and returning champions were defeated in recent net action. Men's top ranked Third Regiment fell to the spiking powers of the Meade Street Maulers. The returning women's champion and this season's No. 1 ranked team Sig Ep Golden Hearts, dropped to No. 2 as the Destitutes, previously unranked and underrated, stole the little sisters hearts in a close match.

Two new champions were crowned as the last round of the IRS racquetball tournament came to a close. In the open division, Raymond Song defeated the defending champion Al Smith 15-4 and 15-8. David Patton captured the intermediate division title beating Dean Wolford.

Registration for the infamous Miller pre-season basketball tournament begins Nov. 26-27. Tournament play starts the last day of the month. Attend the team captains meeting Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. in Brewster C-103.

Don't forget to enter your t-shirt design of aerobic action and win a free semester of aerobic classes. Include your name and telephone number. Entries must be turned in by Nov. 30 in room 204 Memorial Gym.

Bowling teams are rolling right along with impressive victories. Thunder Balls upset the reigning champion Powerhouse who dropped their first game in two years. Tau Kappa Epsilon has started off the season with three straight victories. In women's action, Bowler's Greene and the independent Naturals lead by Tamara Franks, head up the league while the sorority ladies of Alpha Phi and Delta Zeta share the top spot in their division.

Soccer playoff updates along with the latest in volleyball, basketball and the free throw contest headline the news in the next IRS article.
