Education in its most meaningful sense - "in the sense that it is truly the obligation of our colleges and universities" means looking forward, not backward, MaGrath said. He quoted Henry Brooks Adams' phrase: "Teachers affect eternity; they can never tell where their influence stops."

MaGrath, also a former chairman of the American Council on Education's Commission on International Education, delivered the annual Batten-Brimley Lecture of the School of Education at East Carolina University.

The responsibility for upgrading teacher education, he said, "involves a total college and university, the faculty and leaders in arts and sciences as well as

He said that teacher quality is of particular concern for colleges and universities "for the quality of those who teach is one of the most powerful determiners of the quality of entering students."

"Students who attend schools staffed by relatively untrained teachers will be poor candidates for college," he said.

MaGrath forecast that "the next 10 years offer both an opportunity and a potential disaster as we replenish our teaching force.

"Our schools must have the profession of teaching. teachers. But if colleges and universities do not prepare them, states will design alternative processes for finding teachers to staff their schools," he said.

When Christianity became prevalent, the priests wanted their converts to give up their heathen practices. The officials, therefore, christianized the ancient pagan celebration and called it St. Valentine's Day.

Sometimes a priest placed names of different saints in an urn; the young people drew these names, then during the following year each youth was supposed to emulate the life of the saint whose name he had drawn. So where does St. Valentine come in? Actually there were eight men named St. Valentine.

One story about St. Valentine states that he was a priest in a beautiul temple during the reign of the cruel Emperor Claudius. Claudius ordered all men to war but these men refused to leave their wives and sweehearts. Claudius, in retaliation, ordered no further marriage ceremonies. St. Valentine thought this unfair and continued to marry young couples. As a result, he was beheaded.

Another story states that St. Valentine was seized while aiding Christians; while in prison he fell in love with the jailor's daughter, and wrote her love letters signed "From your Valentine."

So gradually, as time passed, this new Christian holiday became a time for exchanging tion, The Dartmouth Review.

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Since we are engaged in describing an order of battle, one might add that the faculty of Dartmouth is ever so trendy-left, while the president, David McLaughlin, is a centrist. The stage is set for a very long war, the most recent episode of which was The Matter of the Shanties. A couple of months ago, something calling itself the Dartmouth Community and a strange of reasonable folk, OK as one-night stands. But pretty soon it transpired that the students had in mind a more or less permanent addition to the architecture of Dartmouth, an upsetting development to those with an aesthetic eye, and positively infuriating to those who believe that political demonstrations should be contained within a fairly short leash. The reaction of the deans was to command the students to remove their shanties. But President McLaughlin, seeking to be as permissive as possible, overruled the deans and said the shanties might stay so long as they served "an educational purpose." One can think, of course, of any number of things that would serve an educational purpose that are inappropriate exhibits in a public park, but nothing was done for weeks until last Tuesday. At which point a group calling itself

The 12 students, most of them associated with The Dartmouth Review, arrived with sledgehammers and, I kid you not, a rented flatbed truck, and before you knew it, whoosshh! Divestment City was no more.

The committee left word that it was "merely picking trash up off the Green and restoring pride and sparkle to the college we love so much." There are those who believe that a repristinated campus green is not necessarily a setback for black South Africans.

Mr. McLaughlin had been warned by politically acute observers that he had been mistaken in taking so permissive a stand on the shanties because what the left-students wanted - today as back in the '60s - was confrontation, and sure enough they got this by staging 30-hour sit-in in the office of the president a couple of days after the shanties came down. At that demonstration they were pleading the case against racism, ercising sufficient "governance," by which is meant docility to faculty edicts that, at Dartmouth, more often than not communicate faculty crotchets, as when the faculty expressed disgust a couple of years ago not with a black dean who physically bit a student editor of The Dartmout Review, but with his victim. Perhaps responding to such pressure, McLaughlin ordered quick trial and execution of the shanty-destroyers, this followed by their hiring an attorney, who has got an extension, etc., etc., etc., etc. One more scene at Dartmouth.

A good thing, in the opinion of some observers, inasmuch as Dartmouth is serving a useful purpose. When in 1968 the campus at Columbia exploded, the students destroyed scholars' papers and defecated into presidential wastebaskets and before we knew it it was so in Berkeley, and Iowa State, Cornell and Yale and Harvard and, to be sure, Kent State. The germs of that universal themselves members of a revolutionary movement. Some of those folk are these days tenured professors at places like Dartmouth College.

But this time the right is organizing, if you want to use that word for such as believe that if the left asserts the right to build shanties in the middle of the green, other students inherit the right to tear them down. As New Hampshire goes, so goes the nation.

Record Enrollment Due To Older Students Campu

WASHINGTON, DC (CPS) - In still another count of how many students are going to college this fall, the U.S. Census in school all year: In December, the American Council on Education reported national college enrollment decreased one percent this year, while a few weeks ago the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officaers reported enrollment was just about the same as in 1984-85.

Now the Census Bureau says enrollment actually has risen significantly during the decade, thanks largely to a mass movement of students over age 25 back to campus.

serving notice that it some day will base accrediting decisions on how well colleges serve older, "nontraditional" students.

In all, there were 12.3 million students in college in 1984, up from 11.7 million in 1980, the Bruno. Census Bureau announced last week.

The head count is very different from Department of Education warnings that college enrollment would drop precipitously. The department initially warned the first big drops

Campus Voice Speaker Attacks Reaganomics

What is your idea of the perfect date?

By JAY STONE Managing Editor

In an appearance at ECU last Thursday author and political activist Michael Harrington charged that the Reagan Administration is in trouble. "I think he has failed." Harrington said of Reagan. "And I think that his greatest acheivement, the one that got him reelected, was an accident." Harrington went on to allege that the economic recovery which Reagan used as a campaign issue in his successful reelection bid was the result of deficit spending on the military, a drop in oil prices and the normal business cycle rather than supply side policies. "What Reagan said was: in the '60s, under the liberals, we spent too much money on the poor, on consumption and not Yet, putting money in the hands of the rich did not enhance productivity or create jobs. Harrington said this was so, because the rich received a tax cut in the middle of a severe recession. "What those tax cuts did was finance speculation, leveraged buy-outs, green mail and corporate takeovers but they didn't create any jobs." At present, Harrington said, no sustained recovery is possible because most consumers are deep in debt and unemployment is high.

Harrington noted that four contributing factors have combined the crisis.

But, Harrington made it clear that the neo-liberalism touted by Gary Hart was an even worse answer to the crisis than traditional liberalism. But while your stepping out of your sumo suits, why not step into swimwear.

The IRS swim meet for Feb. 17-23 has been postponed, giving you sufficient time to register before the new captains' meeting date, Feb. 13. The meeting will be held in the balcony of Memorial Gym at 6pm. Go by 204 Memorial Gym and pick-up your packet today!

We encourage those interested in joining a sports club to contact the Sports Club Office, room 105 Memorial Gym. Just to name a few, the IRS includes: surfing, frisbee, ice hockey, cycling, acrosse, racquetball, karate, women's soccer, water skiing and scuba clubs. Surely one of these must tickle your fancy!

With Spring break just around the corner, why not turn that flab into muscle by working out at one of the two IRS weight rooms located at Memorial Gym and Minges Coliseum.

Each weight room provides a variety of equipment to meet the needs of everyone! Just listen ...

Memorial Gym weight room provides a system of single station fixed weights. This system provides an opportunity for quick and easy workout without the use of 'spotters' or the frequent changing of plates and collars. These fixed weight machines provide an excellent opportunity for weight lifting and strength training by males and females.

General body conditioning including the development of strength and muscular endurance can readily be obtained through the use of these machines.

Minges Coliseum weight room houses mainly free weights augumented by a nine-station universal fixed-weight machine. The use of free weights provides a better opportunity for the isolation and development of specific muscles and/or muscle groups. By changing the individual plates one can also achieve a wider range of resistance during each exercise.

Regardless of the room or type of weight which is used, the IRS provides quality equipment and time for students faculty and

If Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh had known what being stuck in the same boat would mean, chances are neither would have set foot aboard.

And if you're stuck in the same boat with a long distance company that doesn't give you all the services you need, it's easy to harbor mutinous thoughts.

But when you pick AT&T as your long distance company, you know you're in for smooth sailing. You'll get trouble-free, reliable service. Immediate long distance connections—even at the busiest hours. And long distance operators to assist you with immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling.

And you'll get discounts off our Day Rate on your state-to-state calls. With savings of over 50% during weekends until 5pm Sundays, or nights from 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Friday. And 40% discounts evenings between 5pm and 11pm, Sunday through Friday.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, sign aboard with AT&T. With AT&T Long Distance Service, you'll never be left stranded. Just call 1 800 222-0300 for more information or to choose AT&T. Reach out and touch someone."
