Gas Prices Drop Even Lower

By BETH WHICKER
Assistant News Editor

In the past two weeks, the price of self-service regular gasoline has dropped to less than one dollar a gallon at most area service stations. Moreover, owners and managers say the prices are likely to fall even lower.

The per-gallon rate has fallen about 10 cents reflecting a national trend created by a worldwide surplus of oil.

Gasoline prices in Greenville range from 85.9 cents to 94.9 cents for regular and 89.9 cents to 97 cents per gallon for unleaded.

One of the lowest prices in the Eastern part of the state can be found in Havelock which is reporting 79 cents per gallon for regular gasoline, and 85 cents per gallon for unleaded gasoline according to Charles Talley, manager of the Trade Station.

Prices in Charlotte could go down to 70 cents due to the competition among gas stations in that area added Talley.

Gasoline prices in Virginia Beach range from 78 cents to 92 cents per gallon for unleaded. However, Kill Devils Hill's prices are barely below the dollar mark. Prices in the Western part of the state range from 94 cents per gallon to 1.09 for unleaded fuel. Winston-Salem's prices are a bit lower with regular averaging 97.8 cents a gallon, and unleaded for an average of 1.06 a gallon.

Prices in Winston-Salem and larger cities may be lower because of the vast amount of competition between stations; however, last year prices were higher in Winston-Salem than the average for the Western part of N.C.

Officials of the AAA-Carolina Motor Club completed a survey last week that showed self-service regular was selling for an average of 97.4 cents and unleaded $1.06 a gallon statewide.

The prices are about 1.1 cents a gallon higher than a year ago, but unlike a year ago, prices show every indication of plunging still further, according to the AAA.

"The low price of gasoline is only temporary, the economy is based on oil prices. The price probably will not get much lower, the operating expenses would not be able to be met if the prices

Media Board Defends Moratorium Rule

By CAROLYN DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Before an attendance of about 35 minority students, last night's Media Board meeting switched to a question-and-answer session regarding the Board's two week old decision to place Expressions, ECU's minority magazine into a state of moratorium.

After taking care of regular business the Board opened the floor to questions raised by those who had come out of concern for the future of Expressions.

It was decided at the Feb. 10 meeting that it was due to problems with the staff organization. Due to staff, budget and deadline problems, according to Rudolph Alexander, director of Student Unions, the Media Board decided to freeze all funds going to Expressions and form a subcommittee to review Expressions' situation.

The audience's question raised most often asked for the exact reasons for the Board's action. In several separate responses, the Board restated in some form the reasons previously given by Alexander.

Another question put before the board regarded the length of Expressions state of moratorium.

It was made clear by Board members Alexander and Michael Smith, chairman of the Media Board, that a state of moratorium merely freezes the funding; it does not take any money away. Stressed Alexander, "The money (for Expressions) will not be frozen forever. The money has not been issued to anyone else; it is still there."

Students also addressed the Board with the idea that members acted too quickly taking action within one meeting rather than placing the topic on the agenda, to be discussed at the next meeting.

In response, Elmer Meyer, Vice Chancellor of Student Life, stated that while the Board took have a "significant and immediate" impact according to Edwards. For instance, if 440 students get an average supplemental grant of $734.00, next year there may only be enough money for 357 to receive the loan — which is 83 people less.

The 1986-1987 federal financial aid program allotment for East Carolina will suffer losses in the college work study (CWSP) program of over $41,000, Supplemental Grant funds available will drop over $61,000, and the National Direct Student Loan will decrease close to $7,000. Pell Grant is also greatly affected.

Pell Grant is not a loan, but money given to undergraduates by the federal government. Cuts will be made on a relative scale — low income families will not suffer any cuts. Middle income will suffer cuts on scale with the cutoff point being lower for those who get nothing.

With over half of all students currently using financial aid — a squeeze will undoubtedly be felt. What Edwards wants us all to know is that, "The rumors of the death of financial aid programs have been greatly exaggerated." It's true that the cuts made by this Budget Deficit Control Act will affect the amount of money available for loans; however there is still money available. Edwards says, "Don't give up — understand the situation is very serious and some cuts are immediate, but for '86 and '87 we will be operating on basically the same level (of aid available) as the last 4 or 5 years."

With a lot of negative press surrounding The Gramm-Rudman Act, Edwards is afraid that students will shy away from trying to get aid. Don't.

Edwards feels that the federal government will not overlook our country's commitment to its future by depriving intelligent young people of a higher education.

To find out more about general financial aid — the office is located in "the old cafeteria" between Jenkins and Joyner Library. If you think you qualify for aid — find out for sure — don't cheat yourself by not applying. The situation is bad, and worsening, but it isn't hopeless.

action which seemed appropriate to them at the time, the decision has been made.

In order to give students a chance to further express their opinions, a hearing will be held Tuesday, March 4 from 3:00-4:00 in Mendenhall.

Senior Council To Offer Conference

By MIKE LUDWICK
News Editor

Senior Information Night, sponsored by the Senior Class Council will take place tomorrow from 6 to 8 pm in 244 Mendenhall.

The purpose of the meeting, said Kirk Shelley, Senior Class president, "is to give students a better perspective of what they are going to be facing when they leave school."

Shelley added S.I.N. would be an excellent opportunity for seniors to get "a leg up" on graduates from other schools. He reiterated the purpose of the conference is to acquaint students with life after school.

"Senior Information Night is designed for seniors specifically," said Shelley. "This program will be offered each year, so freshmen don't have to feel like they have to come. Mainly because we'll be in a room that barely holds 200 people."

Senior Information Night will consist of six different lectures dealing with life after graduation. The topics range from Time Management to Management and Leaders of the Outside World.

Cindy Kittrell, Annual Giving director, will deliver the Time Management lecture. Shelley said Kittrell will cover such subjects as

Veterans Club Offers Service

By JENNIFER MYERS
Staff Writer

Americanism is not the stereotypical flag waver; what it really means is working together, and that is what the Veterans' Club is trying to do declared Jim Reid, president of the ECU Veterans' Club.

A veteran is anyone who has ever been in the service. On campus, veterans account for almost half of all male faculty members as well as many students taking advantage of their education benefits according to Reid.

The club, whose history follows a pattern typical of most campus veterans clubs has been active during the wars of this century, but faded out in times of peace. In fact, the ECU club had been dormant since about 1977 before it was revived last semester.

Club membership is by no means restricted to veterans. Members range from veterans to those in the reserves, to veterans' dependents to those who are interested but have no connection with the service.

Continues Reid, "Our big aim is to get people together, to keep the lines open, to offer the opportunity for people to voice their opinions."

He stresses the fact that the club members, as well as veterans in general, do not follow many popular stereotypes. "When people think of veterans, they often get a picture of Ronnie's Marauders, wiping out communism," he says. "But we are here to work together, we are people helping people. If we were not called the Veterans Club, we would be the American Club."

The club also strives to make the community more aware of veterans and their contributions. For example, many people would not be able to name the two memorials on campus dedicated to veterans. They are the on the side of Memorial Gym and Memorial Gym itself.

Memorial gym was dedicated in 1953 to the men from ECU who lost their lives in World War II. The event which prompted this dedication was the death of an ECU football coach in 1944 while in the service. John Cristenbury was the only coach in the school's history ever to have led tion rules for SGA officers from a plurality to a majority system.

The adoption of the majority system means that candidates who fail to win at least 51 percent of the total vote when in a race consisting of three or more people will face a run-off election. Current SGA Elections Chairman Sven Van Baars alleged that such a change will result in added expense for students, while speaker of the house, Kirk Shelley, denied that added expense will result from the new system.

Van Baars also argued that the majority system will result in a lower turn-out in the run-off and possibly in discouraging minority candidates from running for of-ice. Several speakers disagreed with Van Baars' charges, claiming that the new system will be more democratic.

In other action, the legislature voted down a proposal that would have set aside funds to pay groups who staff polls during SGA elections. It was alleged that the legislature should not be in the business of paying groups to do something that should be done by volunteers free of charge.

Those who argued in favor of the proposal pointed out that the elections committee was unable to enlist enough volunteers to staff polling places last year and, therefore, had to close some polls.

The SGA addressed topics including elections and medical loans at the meeting Monday night. See related story on Page 1.

Gas Prices Fall In Eastern N.C.

 were much lower," said Talley.
 Talley explained that self-service stations, such as the Trade Station are able to sell gasoline lower than the full services stations because they do not accept purchases on credit cards.
 Business is done by cash or check only. One to three percent of the profit margin is lost on credit card purchases.
 Phil Springs, manager of U-Fill'er Up reports prices of 87.9 cents for regular and 89.9 cents for unleaded gasoline. Silvers expects the price to drop even more this week, due to his competition with other self-service stations. The U-Fill'er Up only accepts cash for gasoline purchases.

"It is not going to stay this way, it's economically impossible," according to Bill Wheless, plant supervisor of Quality Oil.
 Wheless cited that regular gasoline will eventually be phased out and most consumers are not as concerned with the prices of the regular fuel.
 "I would like to see the price for unleaded gasoline stay under the dollar mark; but there is no way to tell when the prices will increase. Prices could increase as the spring and summer seasons approach," Wheless added.

Glass Found In Baby Food

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Harris Teeter Supermarkets Inc. officials ordered a variety of Gerber baby food pulled from the grocery chain's stores as a precaution when glass was found in a jar of the food, company officials said Monday.

Virginia.
 Consumers in at least 10 other states have reported finding glass in jars of gerber baby food, according to the Food and Drug Administration.
 FDA officials say the problem may be caused by chipping and breaking of glass during shipping and handling or by consumer trying to loosen lids.
 State inspectors have taken 21 jars of baby food from the Charlotte store for testing, said Bob Gordon, director of the food and drug protection division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

 "We have no reason to believe it was anything other than an isolated occurrence, but we have no way of knowing that until we get the testing done on the jars collected."

Neo-Nazism

Something Ugly Thrives

There is an old idea that is being quietly resurrected in our land. The idea is Nazism, now known as Neo-Nazism so that it fits in comfortably with Neoliberalism and Neoconservatism.

Today's modern Neo-Nazis are not exactly like their less sophisticated predecessors. They are into networking — working in coalition with groups like the Ku Klux Klan and Posse Comitatus to achieve shared goals.

In North Carolina Neo-Nazi organizations go under such names as The White Patriot Party. In the rest of the country names like Aryan Nation pretty well say it all.

These groups expound a peculiar ideology that is part reactionary and anti-democratic and part populist and economically egalitarian. While they profess to believe that race is the basis of nationhood and that, therefore, only people of the same race should live in any given nation, they also believe that corporate greed is causing grief for farmers and working people. They assert, therefore, that corporate power must be opposed. Yet, they twist the anti-corporate populist side of their message by alleging that Jews are behind most of the major economic institutions in American society.

In addition, the Neo-Nazi crowd cannot believe that the holocaust ever happened. That, they say, was just a propaganda ploy engineered by Jews to discredit Nazism. In addition, Neo-Nazis maintain that the United States suffered more casualties in WWII than any other allied nation even though it is common knowledge by now that we suffered the least of all the major allies. The Soviet Union alone suffered 22 million.

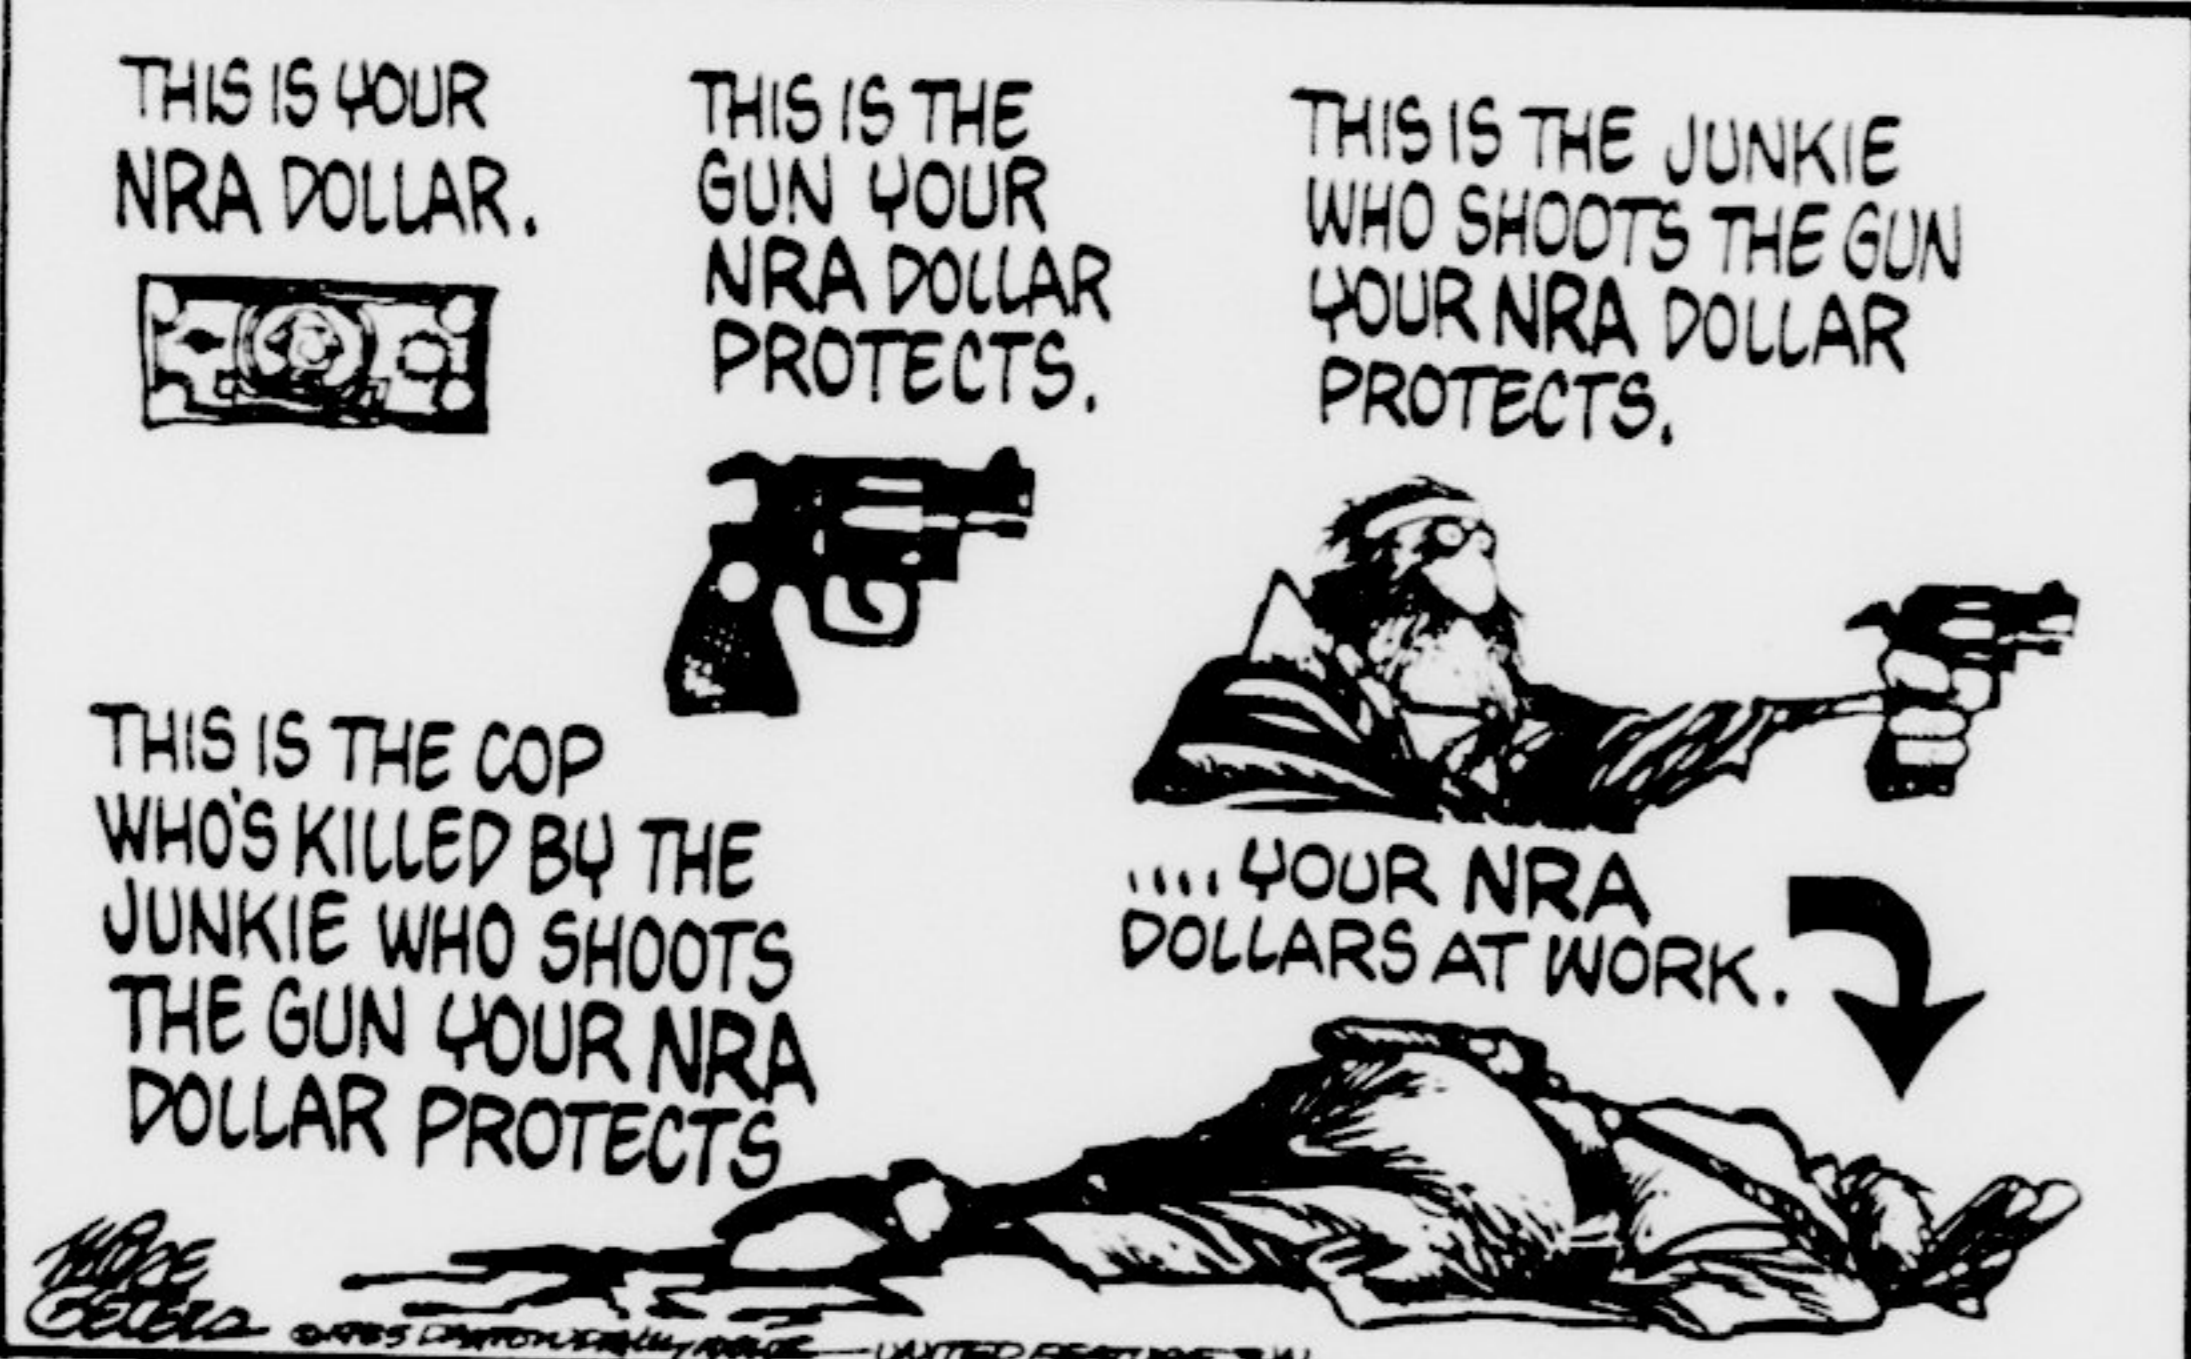

That race is not the defining characteristic of a nation should be obvious to anyone who thinks about it. To begin with there is the fact that many nations have seen the ultimate taboo in the Neo-Nazi lexicon — racial inter-breeding. It happened throughout history everytime one nation conquered another. It happened when the Romans conquered the Greeks, when the Moors conquered Spain and when the British built the British empire. Moreover, in the modern epoch geographical boundaries, religious beliefs and economics play more of a role in defining a nation than does race. The holocaust happened. It was the real thing. Six million Jews died. Socialists, homosexuals, Poles and trade unionists were also persecuted by the Nazis.

In other words, diversity was eliminated and an attempt was made to create a homogenous society. All dissent was crushed brutally, without mercy and in the name of country, family and Christianity. The Nazis too claimed to have God on their side.

Today the same claim is being made and the Neo-Nazis believe they will be successful in building a majority movement eventually. But there are a few things that these people do not realize. Their moment in history exists today because of an economic crisis that is tearing at the foundations of American society. The internationalization of trade and the slow decline of the American standard of living over the last two decades are making it evident that widescale changes must take place in American society and in the economy. They are correct in saying that corporate control of the economy has got to go. But Jewish Americans are not to blame for it as a race. And the American people will never embrace racism as a national creed. Though economic crises have always bred bigotry and prejudice historically, democracy and egalitarianism have won major gains in determining the direction of social change in past epochs. The same will prove true of the present epoch.

Howell Criticized For Recruiting

I read the 2-14-86 article in the Raleigh N&O about ECU Chancellor John M. Howell violating NCAA regulations with disgust and surprise.

Why the ancient Chancellor of a major N.C. University would take it upon himself to hit the highway on a foolhardy football recruiting trip remains to be explained. Dr. Howell, don't you know that the coaching staff is paid to recruit and you are to keep the university running?

Chancellor Howell had no more business recruiting a football prospect than coach Ed Emory would have had awarding honorary doctorate degrees.

Yet Coach Emory was unexpectedly fired due to such blatant acts as using Pepsi and Lance Cracker vending machine money to buy flowers and sympathy cards for relatives of players and coaches of his close knit Pirate squads. This money came from vending machines placed in the fieldhouse by Coach Emory and used by the football team and staff.

Perhaps Coach Emory's most serious infraction was his use of graduate assistant coaches to recruit off campus. — I guess if he would have sent Chancellor Howell, it would have been O.K.

Chancellor Howell's actions appear even more inexcusable since A.D. Ken Karr knew of the visit and apparently ignored it. Ignorance of the rules is no excuse for violating NCAA rules, especially when one is the top administrator.

After practically sucker punching Coach Emory by firing him and permanently tarnishing one of the most hardworking, loyal and dedicated coaches in the country, it has finally been publically shown what hypocrites Chancellor Howell and Dr. Karr are.

Thank you Dr. Schwary for having the courage to report Dr. Howell. It seems that you are one of the few surviving Pirates who know what the rules are.

Nuclear Apocalypse

I'm scared. We live in an age in which life as we know it could be totally annihilated in less than twenty minutes. The threat of nuclear armageddon hangs over us like dark storm clouds, booming their ominous power. Yet despite the unthinkable consequences of using such weapons I'm seeing and hearing more and more of today's youth, our future leaders, defending and advocating the build up of nuclear arsenals. This is too dangerous a toy for us to play around with.

I realize that we as a nation, are going through a resurgence of conservatism, but I don't understand what part having a death wish plays in it. Mankind has never in its long history developed a weapons system without using it. I dare to say that this new tendency is not a conservative reaction, rather it is a barely disguised shift towards left-wing militarism. I truly hope that we are not duped into thinking that the threat of mutual annihilation will keep the peace forever.

At the present time a conservative estimate would place the capabilities of the world nuclear force at being able to kill every man, woman and child on the face of the earth twenty-three times over. Once you're dead for the first time what does it matter? It is a permanent condition, I urge you to think.

What is life? I don't mean the biological definition. I mean what is it to each and every one of us, deep inside? That is not a question that can be easily answered. Everyone has their own concept of what they are really about. I want everyone to take an hour and simply think about how precious their life is, then think about how valuable it is multiplied by over four-billion times.

Why do we do this? Can people really think that we could survive even a limited exchange of these atomic monsters? The world's leading physicists all agree that if only one-third of the United States' and Soviet Union's intercontinental nuclear weapons were used, that the world would be plunged into a world wide "nuclear winter". I won't go into all the horrid details of what that entails but it is enough to point out that when the soil and natural gasses are rendered useless, that there is little chance of life reviving itself.

This brings us to the question of trying to stop a nuclear strike once it has been activated. The concept of "Star Wars" or "High Frontier" is great in theory, but do you really think it's worth risking global death on a system that can't be tested except during a war? That is like saying, "I have on a bullet-proof vest, so shoot me!"

Please people, think! Don't fall into the age old trap of "Might Makes Right". This game is too serious to be taken lightly. I don't want to die and more importantly, I want a world left for my children to grow up in peacefully. I am not a bleeding heart liberal that wants us to forget national security, rather I want us to think about global security. Life is irreplaceable, once it's gone, there is no getting it back. For the sake of everyone, don't follow a crowd blindly. This is America, each and everyone of us has a say in what happens. Express your thoughts and feelings, speak out! Be heard! Your life may depend on it.

Fraternities

What comprises a fraternity? What makes a group of young men feel so compelled to determine whether or not a certain individual should be or should not be allowed to join them in so called brotherhood? It's ironic that brotherhood should be defined by Webster's as "a state or quality of being brothers or a brother, or an association for any purpose. Brothers do not ostracize brothers. For some ECU fraternities their's is a complete brotherhood that prides itself on being a fraternity of individuals existing in a total state of hypocrisy. Their's is the pseudo world of an autocratic state. It is a sham that a person who comes to a fraternity seeking more time with existing friendships and the advantages and benefits it has to offer, should be turned away after having been extended an invitation to join because his individuality conflicts directly with a few simple and closed minded brothers caught up in their own insecurity. It is of my opinion, and I have never been a strong advocate of the greek system, that there are some serious flaws within this system. I am not writing this letter to completely malign the fraternity and sorority systems, for some of my best friends have survived and adapted well within the system and will continue to do so. There are flaws within every individual and within every system. East Carolina University, from every student to the highest position in the administration, arbitrary to the beliefs of some would be Machiavellian administrators, student administrators, self-adorning student judiciary members and a few "good ol' boy" authoritarian campus police officers, is no different. Ernest Hemingway once said, "a man who is filled with false convictions is a dangerous man, for one cannot see him as he truly is. No one can charge this of me. I believe the fraternity system is diseased with such men as these and perhaps it is better that I stay outside and retain my individuality than to endure the possibility of becoming a diseased member of the sanctimonious few. Brothers of Ronald Reagan, can you see the real me, can ya...can ya?"

Edwards House

Officials at East Carolina University made a tragic mistake in authorizing the destruction of the C. H. Edwards house on the northeast corner of Cotanche and Eighth streets. This handsome structure, rich in exterior and interior ornamentation, was built about 1929 from plans drawn by Leila Wilburn, one of the first women architects in the south and author of at least three books on popular twentieth-century styles of architecture. Recently Chancellor John Howell stated in an article in the Daily Reflector that the university had no immediate plans for the Edwards house. One wishes, then, that he had given the house the careful attention it deserved. It could have been adapted for use as a faculty club or guest house for dignitaries visiting East Carolina University. Properly refurbished and landscaped, the property would have improved the harsh appearance of the western edge of campus. Such a decision would have meshed perfectly with current plans to provide a proper "entrance" on that end of the university.

There is more to a university than parking lots and massive classroom buildings. Some attention must be given to the quality of the environment, including wooded areas and fine architecture. Only in pleasant surroundings can students and faculty find the inspiration they need to produce their best work. In the long run, I believe the university will deeply regret that it has been so thoughtless in destroying the appealing aspects of campus that its students and employees richly deserve.

Booster

BRIGHAN CITY, Utah (UPI) — The former president of the company that made the Challenger booster rockets suggested the shuttle explosion was caused by a leak in the external fuel tank — not a failure in the booster O ring seals.

Harold Ritchey, who pioneered solid propellant boosters for Morton Thiokol's shuttle program, and other analysts Sunday urged the investigation.

Last week you discussed eating a balanced diet. Are there other food facts I should be concerned about?

Hardly a day goes by without hearing that you should increase certain food types, such as milk, or vitamins and minerals such as zinc, vitamin C or vitamin E. Research continues to show that eating a wide variety from all the four basic food groups — fruits and vegetables, whole grain bread cereals, milk and dairy products, meats and fish — every day is still the best way to meet your body's nutritional needs.

Osteoporosis has received widespread attention during the past few years and many Americans are aware that it is a condition where individuals, mostly women, lose calcium

Booster Company Not Liable For Accident

BRIGHAN CITY, Utah (UPI) — The former president of the company that made the Challenger booster rockets suggested the shuttle explosion was caused by a leak in the external tank — not a failure in the booster O ring seals.

Harold Ritchey, who pioneered solid propellant boosters for Morton Thiokol's shuttle program, and other scientists Sunday urged the president's shuttle commission to consider the possibility a leak of liquid hydrogen from the external tank sparked the chain of events leading to the Jan. 28 catastrophe.

"If there were a hydrogen leak then almost everything else fits like a glove," said John Osburne, former Thiokol engineer, now a rocketry specialist at Purdue University. "It's a far better fit than to try to arrange an explanation using O rings."

One major discrepancy in the hydrogen leak theory, the scientists admit, is the existence of an extra plume of flame seen coming from the lower booster section. "The pattern (of the flame) is clearly that of escaping (solid)propellant gases," said Ritchey, who retired in 1977.

A detailed scenario, prepared by Ritchey, a copy of which was obtained by United Press International, makes these points:

A burning through of the O ring seals, which separate sections of propellant, would have split the booster in half or sent it cartwheeling away; instead the boosters performed smoothly and had to be destroyed after the shuttle blew up.

A puff of black smoke, spotted at liftoff, was consistent with the burning of a small strip of cork insulation and not the synthetic rubber seals, which have burned for a much longer time.

There was no fiery brilliance before the explosion, similar to an arch welder's torch, which characterizes burning metal, indicating the booster's metal casings were not being consumed.

A sustained 4 percent decline in thrust pressure fits neatly with test data suggesting the propellant was cold, not that it was leaking. "The hole or crevice rapidly burned out," said Martin Summerfield, chief of Princeton University's combustion research laboratories. "It does not take as long as 12 seconds to do so. One second, maybe two, is more likely."

Other scientists who do not subscribe to the O ring theory, the focus of the commission's investigation, include Henry Shuey, who has worked on space and army missile propellant systems in Huntsville, Ala., for 45 years, Ed Fitzgerald, former consultant for NASA's booster program at Georgia Tech, and Tom Sovoca, a former manager of the Wasatch, Utah, division of Thiokol.

Ritchey and the other scientists painted this scenario.

Before ignition, the main liquid fuel tank sprung a leak of hydrogen in the lower section. As it leaked, the hydrogen acted as coolant, causing a drop in temperatures around the booster casing. The hydrogen leak caught fire, burning the cork and causing the puff of smoke.

The hydrogen cooling of the solid propellant reduced the propellant's thrust by four percent, a phenomenon documented in numerous tests.

Marcos Calls For Emergency Support

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos today called on all loyalists to report to him with guns and vowed to fight "to the last drop of blood" against a newly formed provisional government set up by rebellious military leaders and headed by Corazon Aquino.

"I am telling you, our loyalists, we are here. We are not going to abandon the office of the presidency," Marcos declared in a televised address, flatly rejecting an appeal by the Reagan administration for a peaceful transition of power.

He declared a state of emergency and declared a 6 p.m. — 6 a.m. nationwide curfew to take effect immediately.

"We have no intention of going abroad," he said. "We have no intention of resigning. And we will defend to the last breath of our life and to the last drop of blood."

Loyalist elements were reportedly plotting a "do or die" attack on rebel forces to regain control of Camp Crame where rebellion leaders Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos, deputy chief of the armed forces, and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile are holed up. Military and Western diplomatic sources said they expected forces loyal to Armed Forces Chief Gen. Fabian Ver would attack the installation during the night. Marines were reported marching toward the installation.

Ramos appealed to the chief of the 1st Infantry Battalion of the Philippine Army to "disobey the illegal orders of Mr. Marcos and Mr. Ver" and call off the attack. He said the troops could join the rebel forces.

A crowd of 40,000 civilians maintained a vigil at Camp Crame and reporters said a huge group of women carrying flowers had formed a barricade where they intended to stand against the advancing Marines.

The massive display of "peoples power" halted loyalist tanks and soldiers during an advance on Camp Crame Sunday and forced them to turn back for the night.

Elements in the Philippine army and marines appeared to pose the main challenge to what rebel leaders called The New Armed Forces of the People. Rebel leaders said they had at least 50 percent of the 25,000 member military under their command after mass defections

A Story Of The American Constitution

UPI — Nine years ago, the United States celebrated the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence — the launching, if you will, of the American ship of state. Next year will come the bicentennial of the Constitution, which is the engine that saved that frail vessel from disaster before it lasted two decades, let alone two centuries. And make no mistake, the American experiment in representative government was headed for the rocks when the framers of the Constitution gathered in Philadelphia in the spring of 1787.

Christopher and James Lincoln Collier begin Decision in Philadelphia with a survey of the national condition under the Articles of Confederation, and a hair-raising tale it is.

Some of the problems have a curiously contemporary ring: "In 1785, Algerians captured two ships and held their crews and passengers for ransom. The United States, with its finances in disarray, could offer only $200 per man. The Dey of Algiers sneered at the offer and the prisoners languished in jail, some of them dying of the plague."

Meanwhile, the British and Spanish were hovering on the frontier and inciting Indian tribes to border warfare. Farmers in western Massachusetts, crushed by debt, took arms under Daniel Shays in the winter of 1787. The state militia put down Shays' Rebellion (the U.S. Army numbered about 700), but the uprising scared the rice powder out of bewigged gentlemen from Boston to Charleston.

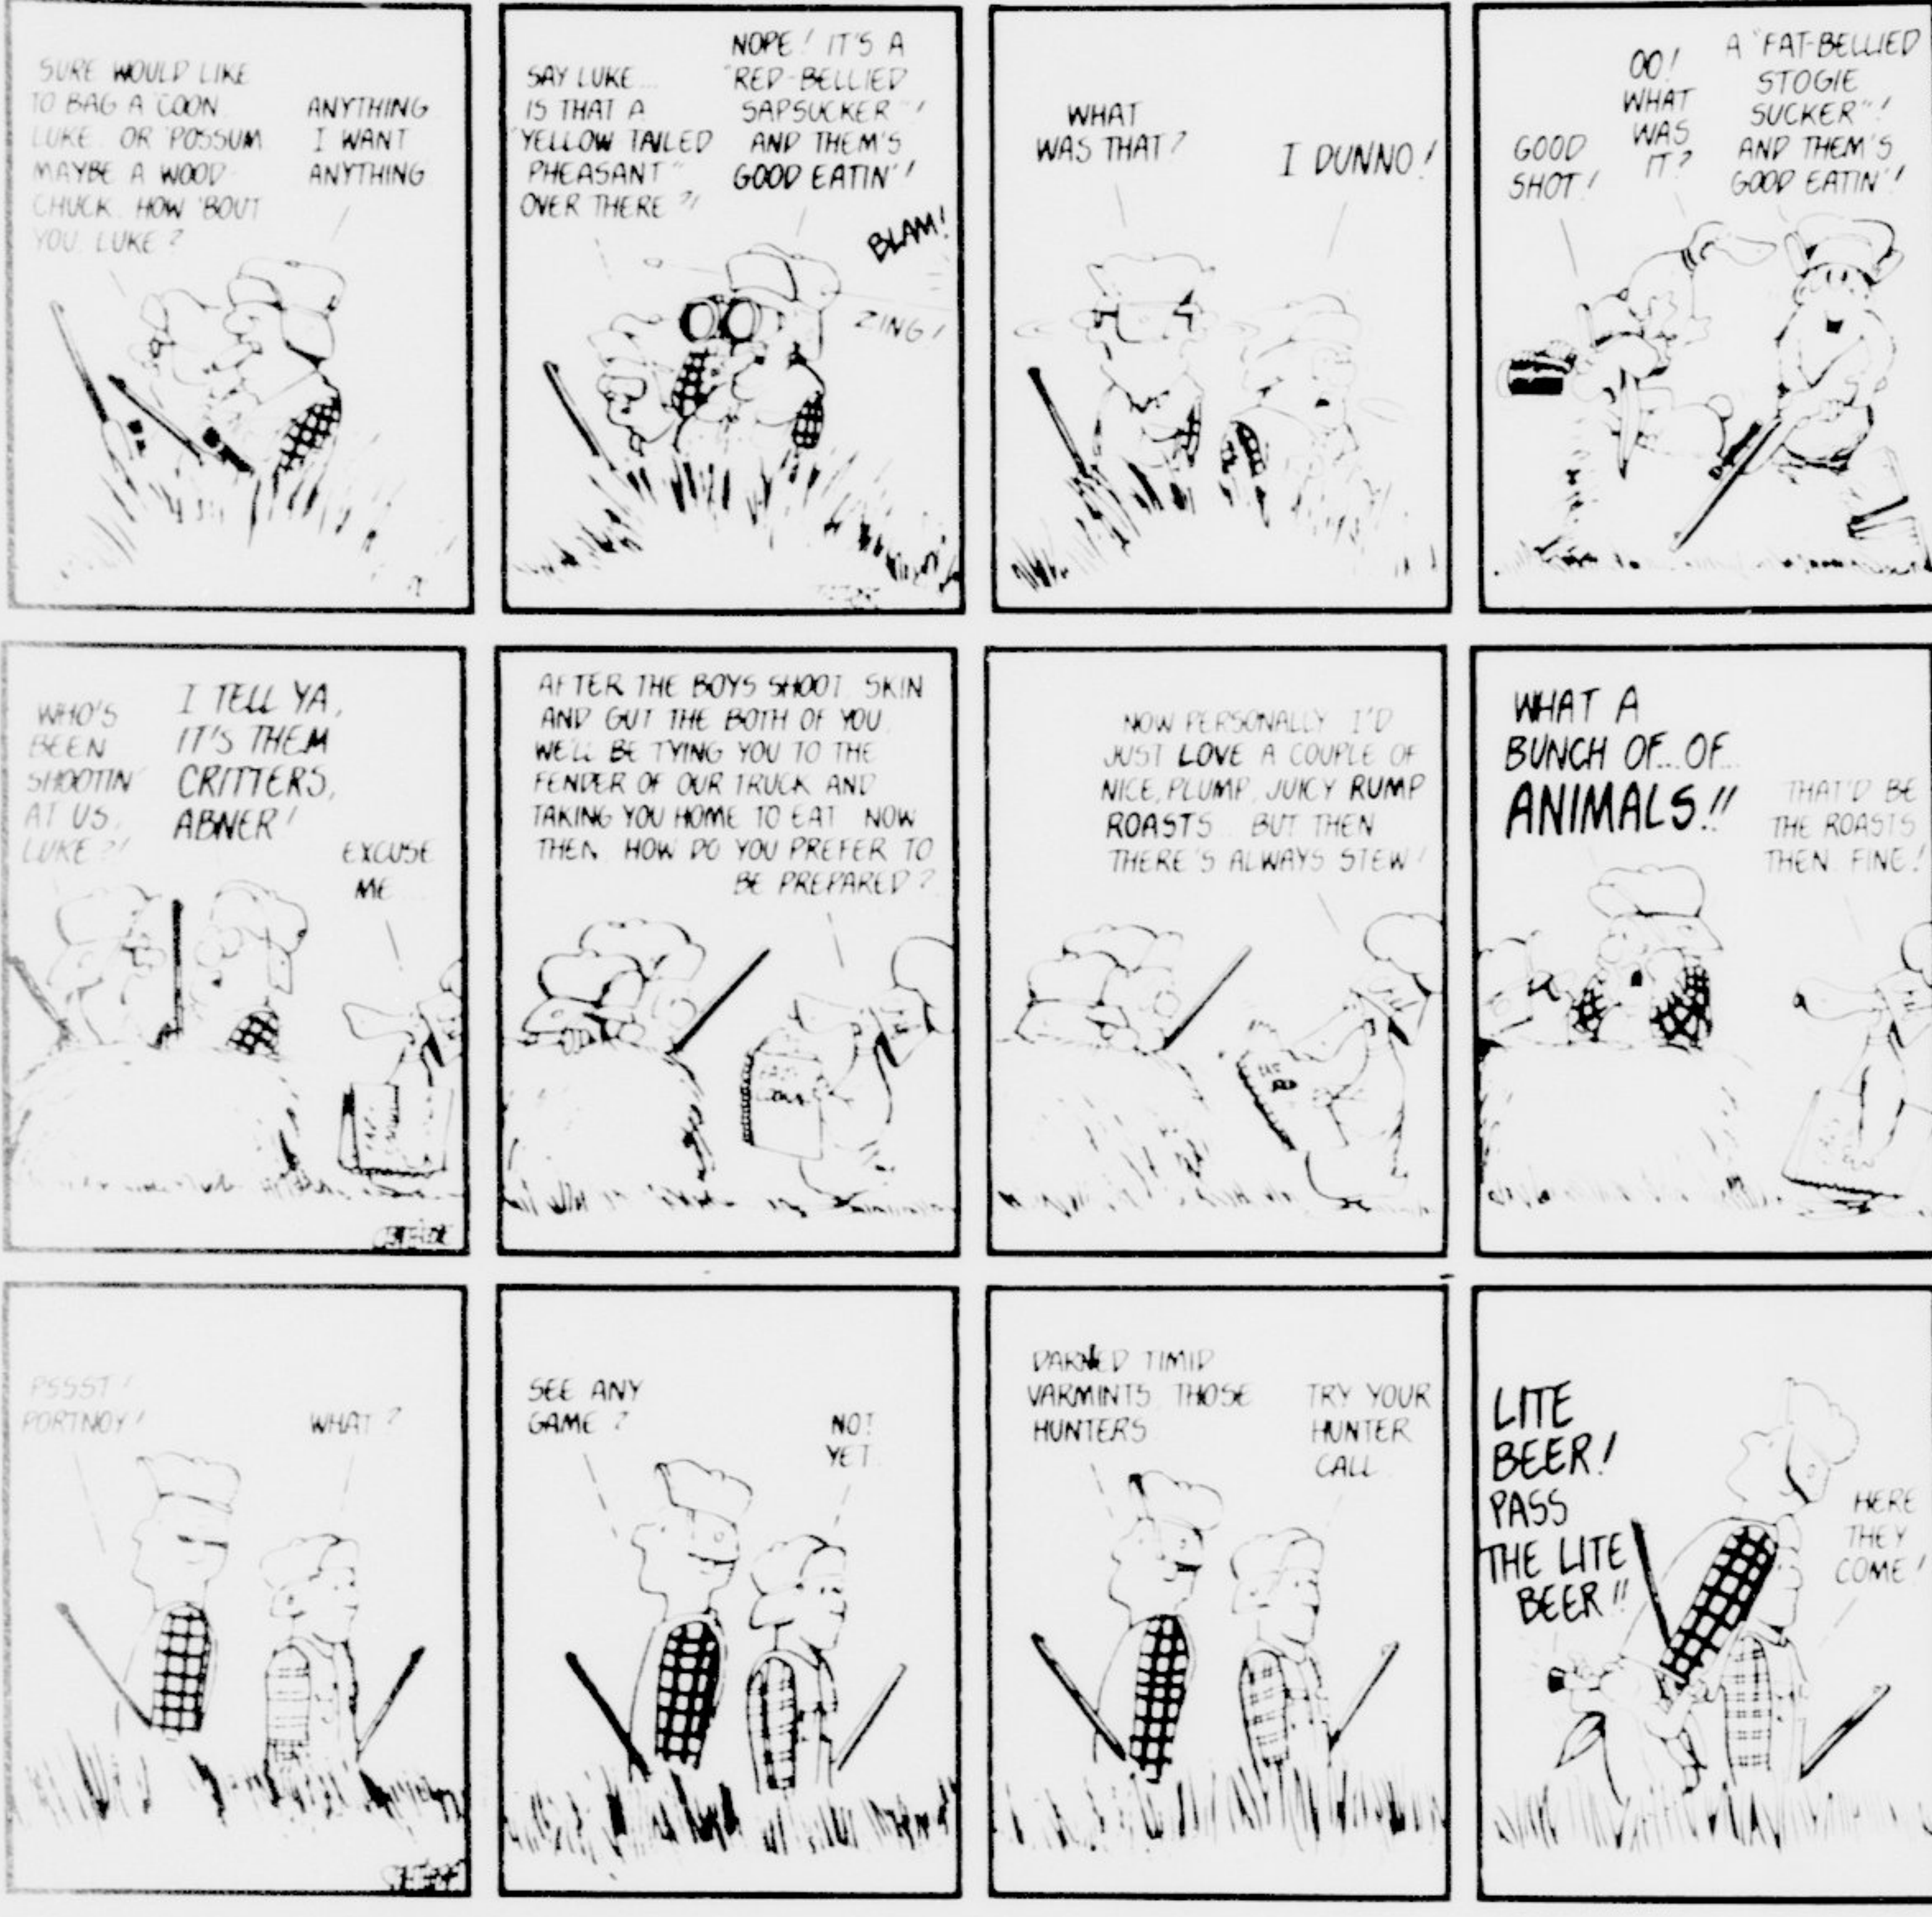

Having set this stage, the Colliers introduce and profile the men sent by the 12 states (Rhode Island, suspicious that its sovereignty was about to be deflowered, sent no one) to Philadelphia to repair the Articles.

There is George Washington, who would have preferred to tend his crops at Mount Vernon and gave no speeches until the last day of the convention; little James Madison, who arrived with a blueprint and took notes on what happened; egotist Charles Pinckney, who the authors suggest may have invented the presidency and the two-house Congress; rough-hewn and puritanical Roger Sherman, who came up with the idea of basing the House on population and giving each state an equal vote in the Senate; and James Mason, who trusted no one and fought to the last day for a Bill of Rights.

The book is a celebration of the genius of the framers, but it also ticks off their mistakes, not the least of which was countenancing slavery and failing to see it as the time bomb it was.

a well-planned one, Akagawa replied, "On the contrary. I enjoy the historicity, the variety, especially the older buildings. But, as far as the overall plan... in the 60s, it seems they began to add without a long range plan."

Akagawa seemed particularly disturbed by the amount of traffic on campus. "Cars parked on the mall seem inappropriate within the milieu of a more contemplative style of life."

"North Carolina is rich in colors, in nature and in culture," he said. "I would hope that what I provide would be for the students' education, to help them become more involved in the nature and culture of the region. I hope it would reflect the region."

Akagawa also said he would like to see students more involved in future campus planning.

"More breadth and depth of student involvement may help bring valuable artifacts of the region and their indigenous surroundings onto campus, where they take on more meaning."

Some possible sites for the installation include the courtyard of the financial aid building, the entrance to the library and the area of the medical school. Akagawa will return to ECU later this year to install his piece, when he has finished designing it.

"Certain human needs are basic," said Akagawa, "such as food, shelter, and clothing. But when so-called basic human need is fulfilled — then what? Art becomes very important to the notion of the 'fulfilling' life."

"It's a certain attitude, a gesture I hope to reflect. It's the mystery of daily life, the art in clothing, food, and shelter. It helps us in our constant search to find equilibrium."

CAA Co-Champs

Women Knock Off 18th-Ranked JMU

By TIM CHANDLER
Sports Writer

The Lady Pirates claimed a tie for the CAA regular season with their 63-59 victory over James Madison last night.

The Dukes entered the game 11-0 in the conference and 24-2 overall, and were ranked No. 18 among women's Division-I NCAA teams. Each team finishes its conference schedule with a record 11-1, as the Pirates have a 26-6 overall record.

A coin toss will be held today in the CAA commissioner's office to decide which team will get a first-round bye in the conference tournament which begins Friday in Wilmington.

The Pirates, who were playing in front of their largest home crowd of the year, got off to a fast start as they took a 4-0 lead on Alma Bethea's 17-foot jump shot with 18:17 left in the first half.

The Dukes fought back. A Donna Budd layup with 7:44 left in the half gave JMU a 16-12 lead. Then the Pirates rattled off 10 straight points to take a 22-16 lead with 4:23 remaining in the first period.

Thanks to great defensive play, the Pirates took home a 26-21 halftime advantage. The Dukes managed to shoot only 33 percent from the floor in the first half, while the Bucs went 12 of 24 for an even 50-percent mark.

The second half began with the same aggressiveness that marked the first. Sylvia Bragg connected on a layup with 19:04 remaining in the game, but that was the last score for the Pirates for nearly five-and-a-half minutes.

James Madison ran off 10 straight points to obtain a 33-30 lead with 13:59 to play. The Dukes built their lead to a many as five points (39-34), with just over 11 minutes to play before the Pirates began to make their move.

Bragg connected on a 17-foot jumper with 9:48 to play, boosting the Bucs back into the lead 40-39. But the Dukes managed to regain the advantage once again, and stretched their lead to three points (45-42) on a layup by Betsy Witman with 6:26 to play.

Then the Pirates ran off eight straight, taking a lead they never relinquished.

ECU stretched its lead to as many as nine points (62-53) with only 4:15 seconds left to play.

The Pirates improved on a lot of the statistics that haunted them in their earlier loss to the Dukes (82-55 on Jan. 27). One important change came in the rebounding department, as the Pirates snagged 31 boards compared to only 24 for JMU.

The Bucs also shot much better from the free-throw line. Head coach Emily Manwaring said that the team really practiced them (foul shots) a lot in the past couple of weeks. The Pirates connected on 17 of 21 chances at the charity stripe, for a game average of 81 percent.

Coach Manwaring commented on the aggressiveness of the game.

"It was a monster of an aggressive game," declared Manwaring.

Manwaring also stated that the win was a moral victory for ECU.

"We proved we could play with them," said Manwaring, "that we could compete with a top-20 team."

For Manwaring, this was the first time she had defeated an NCAA-ranked team while at ECU. She said that the game was the most exciting one of her career.

The Pirates were paced by three double-figure scorers. Lisa Squirewell and Sylvia Bragg led the way with 16 apiece, and Alma Bethea added another 14. Loraine Foster chipped in nine for the Bucs, while Delpine Mabry and Monique Pompili added four points each.

Last night's game was the last regular-season action for four of the Lady Pirates. They were Lisa Squirewell, Sylvia Bragg, Loraine Foster and Therese Durkin. Each of them were presented with a plaque and a bouquet of flowers before the game.

Squirewell stated at the end of the game that it had been the longest day of her life.

"I kept looking at the clock thinking it (the game) would never end," Squirewell said. She also said that she feels that this year's team is more complete than last year's.

"We wanted to make a statement tonight and we did," added Squirewell.

Live Broadcast

Lady Pirate fans should take notice that ECU's tournament action will be broadcast on the airwaves of WZMB-FM, 91.3. Mike McVey and Spike Harward will be bringing the live play-by-play action from Wilmington.

The Lady Pirates set the stage for their showdown on Monday night with James Madison for the CAA regular-season title, with an impressive 78-46 win over the Patriots of George Mason on Saturday night.

The final score was very indicative of the way the game went, as the Pirates led the entire way.

Loraine Foster's 15-foot jump shot with 18:10 left in the first half put the Pirates up 4-2, and from there they continued to build.

By halftime the Pirates had built a convincing 19-point lead, 41-22. Foster and Alma Bethea paved the way in the first half as Foster chipped in 12 and Bethea countered with 10 points of her own.

The second half began with the Pirates using a tenacious full-court press that resulted in eight-straight points for ECU, as they increased their lead to 27 (49-22).

The Pirates' biggest lead of the night came on a 20-foot jumper by Cathy Ellis. That basket gave the Pirates a 37-point lead (76-39) with 2:09 left in the game.

CAA Champions Swim Independents

By DAVID MCGINNESS
Sports Editor

The CAA-champion Pirate swimmers are gearing up for their final competition of the 1985-86 season, the National Independent swim meet in Columbia, S.C., this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Brockschmidt, Ron Fleming, Lee Hicks, Keith Kaut, Kevin Hidalgo, David Robaczewski, Eric Hawkins, Al Smith, Stratton Smith, Patrick Brennan, Jeff Brown and David Killen.

Now these twelve must try to be at their peak form for the second time this season. Although the pressure will be somewhat less than it was during the CAA tournament, this will be the fastest meet that the Pirates have ever participated in.

"This is our first time for this meet," said Pirate coach Rick Kobe, "and it's the fastest one we've ever been to."

The Pirate's competition will include Miami, So. Illinois (both ranked top 10 in the U.S.), S. Carolina, Fla. State, Tulane, Cincinnati, Old Dominion, Louisville, Va. Tech and So. Miss.

In previous years, the Buc swimmers have competed in the Eastern Regionals. However, that meet has been diminishing in prestige over the last few years, losing some of its strongest competing teams. ECU jumped at the chance to compete in the faster Independent Nationals.

Although Kobe hopes his men will be able to do well in the meet, "knowing that they gave all they had to give in the CAA championships," he believes that this competition should serve as a learning experience.

"We're going down there to swim well and swim against some of the fastest teams in the country."

Buc Comeback Fails; Mason Downs Pirates

By SCOTT COOPER
Sports Editor

Sat. Feb. 22, 1986

Ricky Wilson's game-high 23 points was enough to hold off a late Pirate comeback as George Mason squeaked by ECU 70-69 in a CAA showdown in Fairfax, Va.

The Patriots, who have already clinched the third spot in the conference, have had trouble with the Pirates. ECU defeated GMU in Minges Coliseum earlier in the year (75-67 on Jan. 25).

For the most part, the game was even as both teams grabbed 28 rebounds and committed 13 turnovers. However, Mason's tough outside shooting was hard to overcome, according to coach Charlie Harrison.

"They were taking perimeter shots and when those shots go, anyone is tough to beat, especially at home," Harrison said. "Ricky Wilson and Rob Rose... they played well, as I knew they would in their last home game."

George Mason rallied first as they opened a 28-24 lead with 5:37 left in the opening period. However, the Pirates responded and tied the game (28-28) moments later on a Leon Bass jumper.

The Patriots later opened a three-point lead (34-31) late in the period on a Robe Rose jumper, but Bass' free throws with 1:20 left gave ECU a 35-34 advantage. This was the first Pirate lead in the ballgame.

Earl Moore, who connected on six of eight shots from the floor, played a big role in the Mason victory. He scored the final four points of the half, giving the Patriots a 38-35 lead at the intermission.

In the second half, Scott Hardy's follow of his own miss cut the lead to one, while Keith Sledge's jumper gave ECU a quick lead 44-43 with 14:51 left to play.

The Patriots, behind their home-crowd support of 2,000 plus, managed to outscore the Pirates 10-0 over a run that lifted GMU to a 58-46 advantage. Mason increased their lead to its largest (at 13, 70-57) with 4:35 remaining, before ECU began its comeback.

The Bucs managed to hold the Pirates scoreless the rest of the way as ECU had a chance to win before the final buzzer.

Marcell Henry started the comeback while two Manuel Jones Baskets cut the margin to 70-63. Vanderhorst and Sledge then nailed long jumpshots before a William Grady steal and slam dunk trimmed the Mason advantage to just one, 70-69 with :22 seconds left.

Although the Patriots missed their fifth-straight front end of a one-and-one, the Bucs could not manage to sink the winning basket as GMU won 70-69.

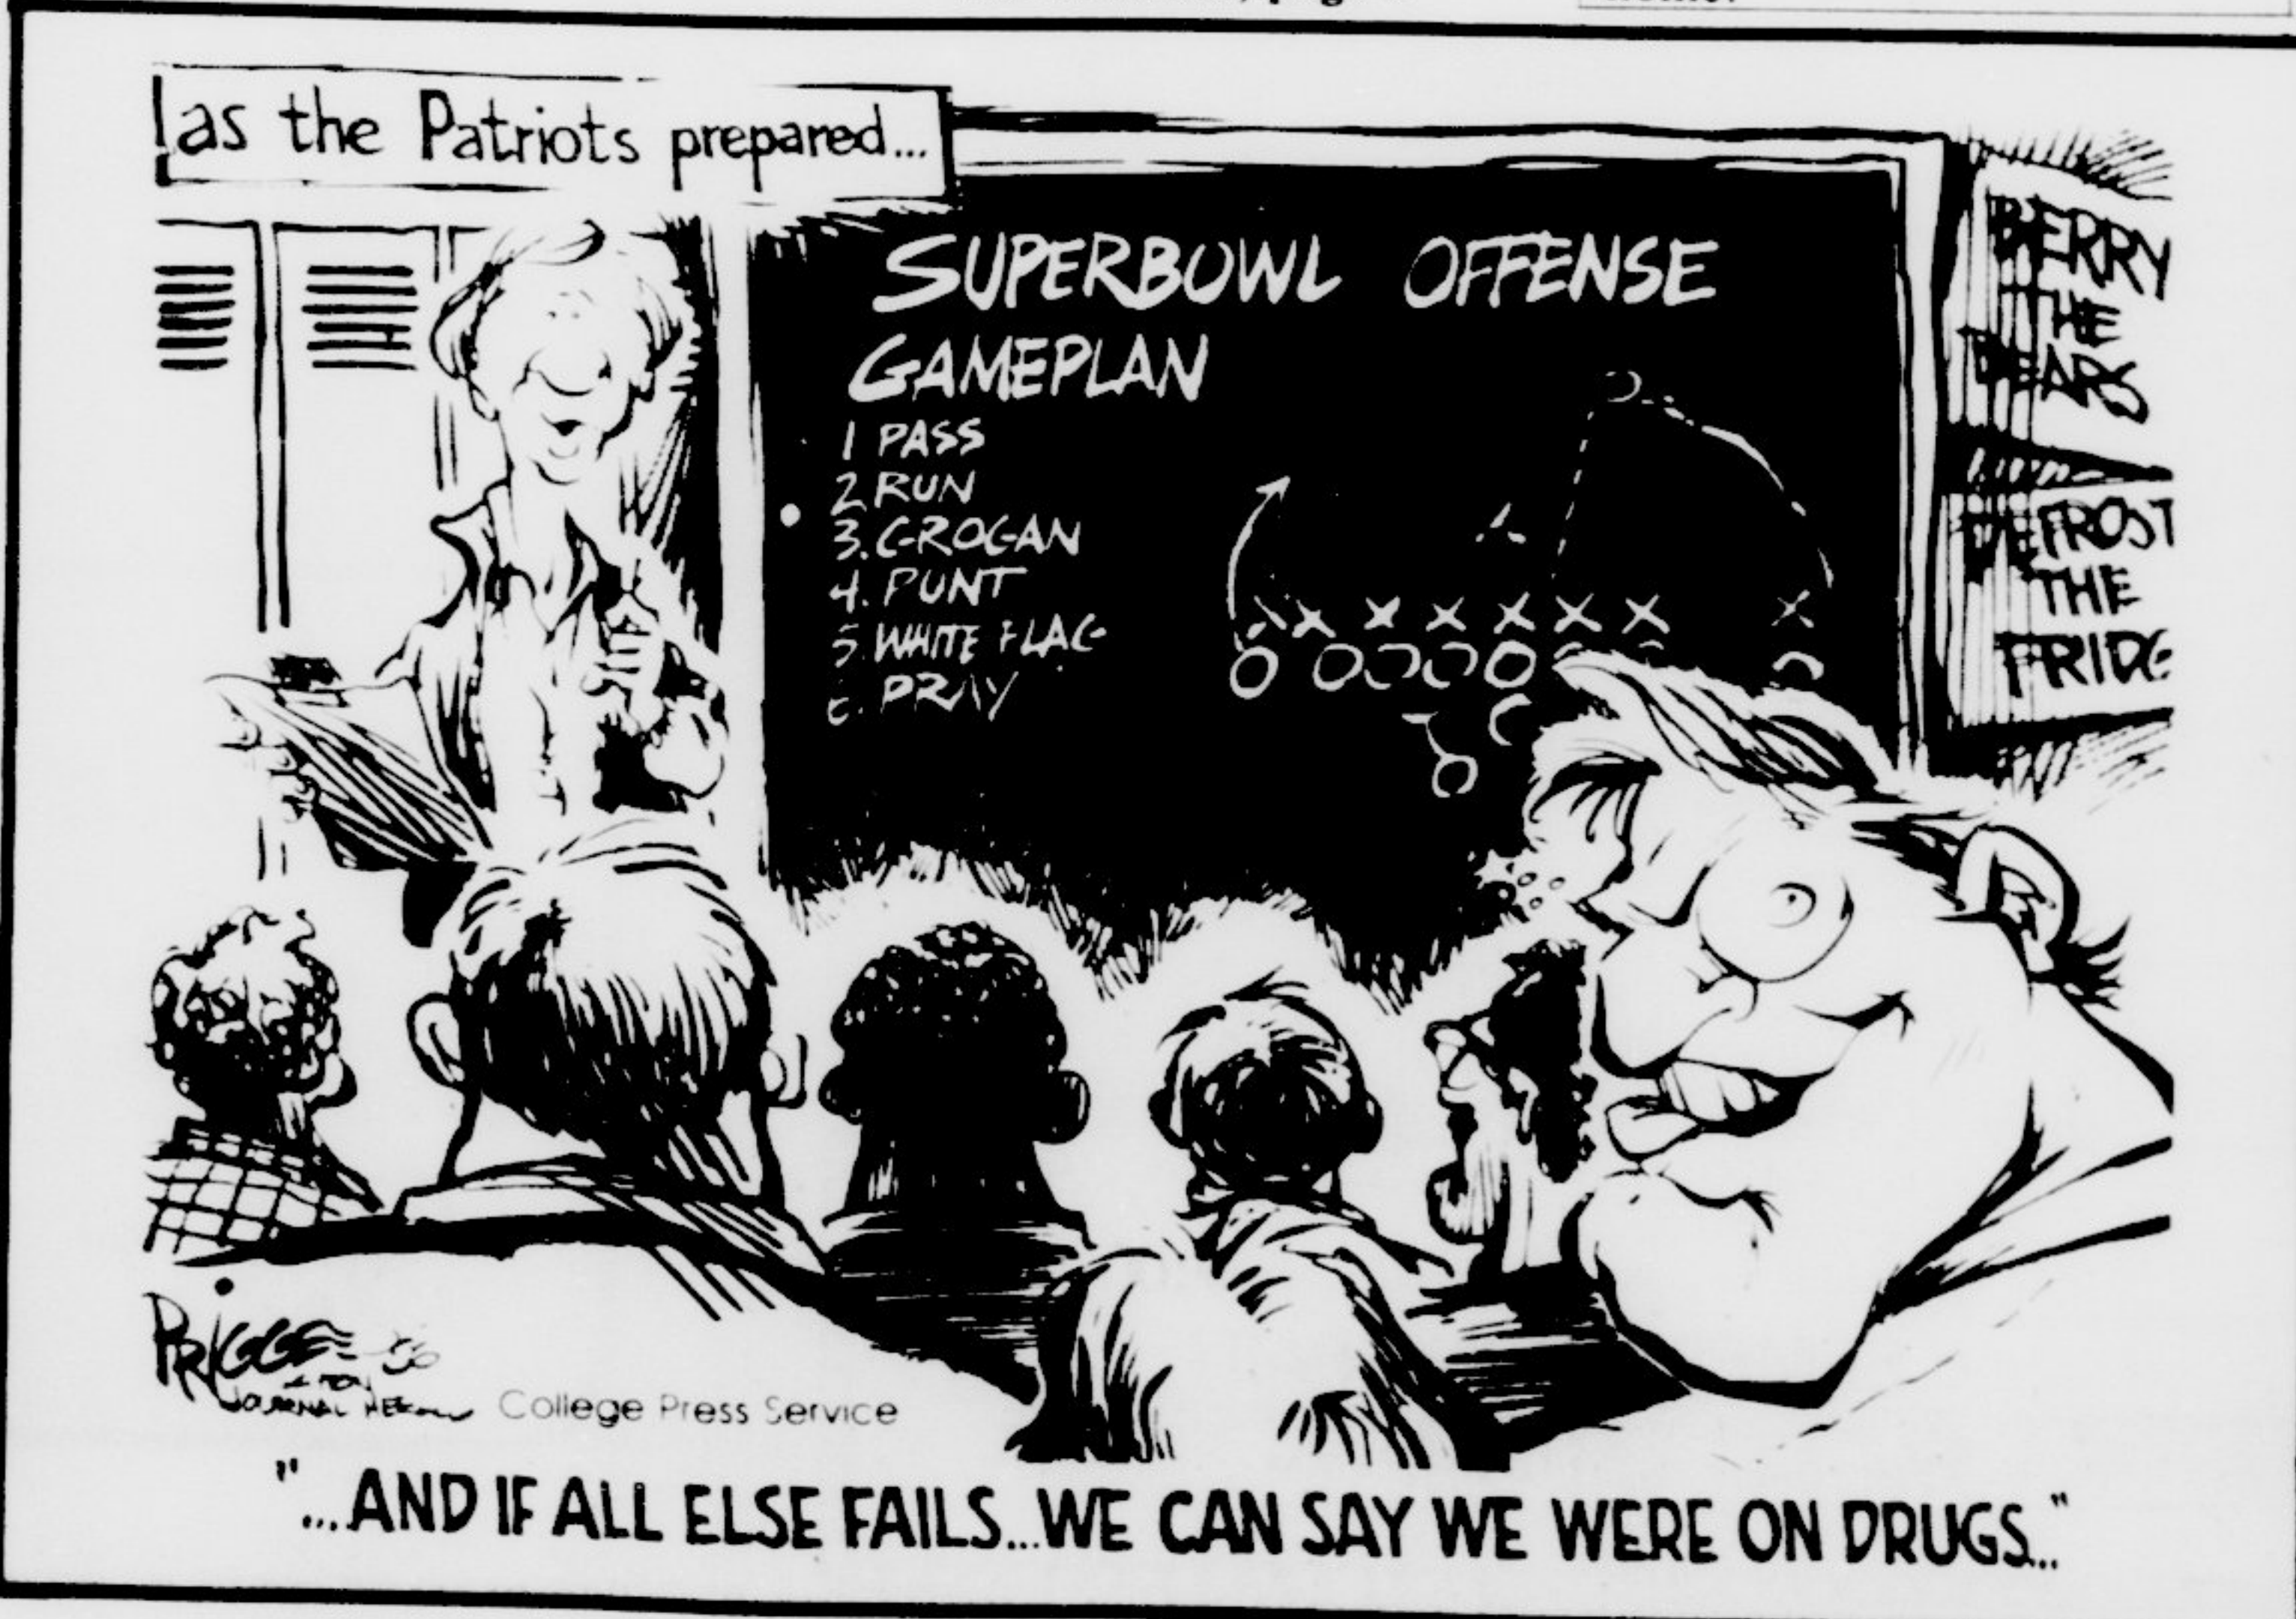

Kenny Sanders and Moore chipped in 15 and 12 points respectively. Rob Rose added 10 and a game-high 10 rebounds for the Patriots.

The Pirates were led by Henry's 20 points. Vanderhorst added 16 while Bass chipped in 11 and Jones had eight. Hardy scored only four, but handed out six assists and surprisingly grabbed a team-high six rebounds.

Miami Recruit Signs

The Pirate Football team picked up another freshman recruit earlier this week, bringing the total number of players given grants-in-aid by ECU to 27.

ECU signed Ernest Tynes of Miami, Fla. The 5-10, 170-pound senior from Miami Beach High School is a defensive back.

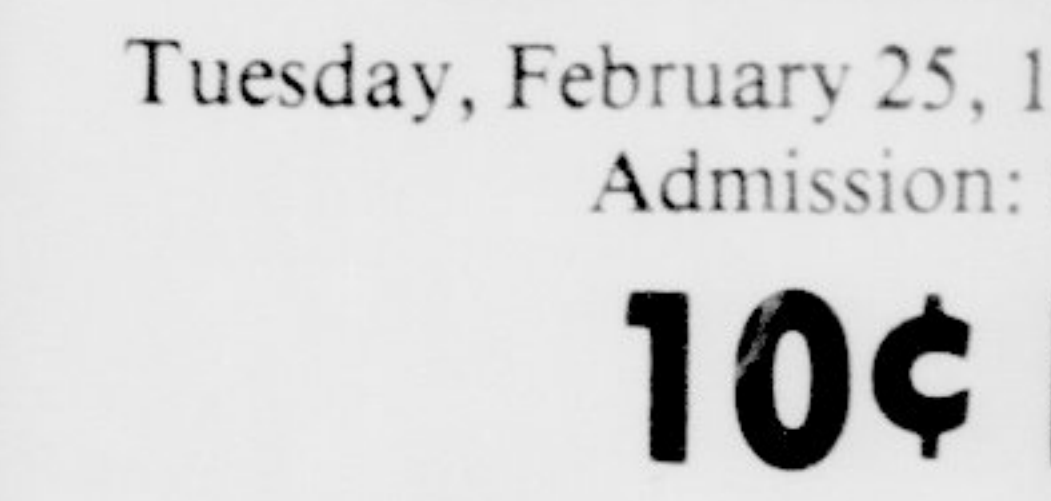

Tynes was voted one of the top 10 players in Dade County by The Miami Herald.

The highly recruited back should prove immediate help to the Buc defensive secondary as assistant coach Don Powers feels, "he's the best hitter we've seen among defensive backs."

The Pirates have now have two remaining grants this year, but are not expected to use them in the next few days.

The men from Phi Kappa Tau took second place in the meet with 40 points, but came away with the top total in the intramural point-standings race. Tau Kappa Epsilon placed third, followed by Delta Sigma Phi.

Jean Keating led her team, Zeta Tau Alpha, to all but two event titles. Her team broke two previous East Carolina intramural records while she smashed individual records of her own. In the 50-yd. backstroke, Keating got her name in the record books with a 31.80 time - two seconds faster than previous record holder Beth Carroll. The 100-yd. Freestyle event belonged to Keating as she touched under one minute with a time of 59.46 - only four seconds off the National Intramural record held by Kansas State. Zeta Tau Alpha eliminated Alpha Delta Pi and the Jarvis Wonderfish from the record books in the 200-yd. medley- and freestyle-relays.

The Intramural powerlifting meet, sponsored by Golds Gym was also a huge success with two new records in the men's division. Robert Washington overpowered all of his opponents to win the men's overall. Terry Long is no longer the strongest man from East Carolina as Washington squated an amazing 675 lbs. and dead-lifted 710 lbs.

Teresa Connolly captured the overall women's title weighting in at a light 123 lbs. Lisa Waiser won the 124-132 class, Diane L. ndsford took the 142-161 class and Becky Clark won the 162-up weight class.

Other powerlifters showed their stuff with the support of an enthusiastic crowd. Congratulations to the following men who captured individual titles: Greg Lipe, John Barns, Jim White, Willie Lewis, Sam Miller, David Stevens, and Walter Bryant.

The dates have changed for the upcoming intramural backpacking trip to the Uwarric National Forest near Asheboro, North Carolina. The hike, along the Dutchman's Creek Trail will begin Sat., April 15. Rugby Club Tops Cherry Point Team

By BILL ZIMMERMANN

The Rugby Club opened its spring season with a solid win over their down east rival, the Cherry Point Marine Air Station Rugby team.

The game was held in "perfect rugby weather" at the air station in Havelock, as the Bucs downed their marine opponents.

The fired-up marines scored the first two try's of the game with heads-up play and excellent passing on the wing. They converted only one of their extra-point attempts, giving Cherry Point a quick 10-0 lead.

But the boys from Greenville did not give up. With good defense, the ruggers kept the ball in marine territory during the remainder of the first half - giving them excellent field-goal range.

After Mike Brown converted two field goals, Wales England native Doug Eckley ended the half with a 30-meter drop kick, putting the score at 10-9 at the half.

In the second half, the marines were out for blood. Cherry Point came close on several attempts, but just couldn't put the ball in the try zone, due to the Bucs tenacious defense. On one attempt, the Marines had the ball in the try zone, but were denied a score, due to the fact that the ball must touch the ground with downward pressure on it.

Brown then scored his third field-goal of the day, giving the Bucs a 12-10 advantage. With two minutes left, Eckley iced the game with an impressive drop kick, making the final margin 15-10.

Unfortunately, the game was not without injuries. Brown was put out with a bruised kidney as Rick Musgrove suffered a twisted knee. Both will miss the UNC game this weekend.

The match with UNC-CH this Saturday will take place at the corner of Fifth St. and Memorial Dr. at 11:30 a.m. The Rugby Club would appreciate your support.
