SGA Elections

SGA elections were held Wednesday. Here, an ECU student casts his ballot for the candidate of his choice. For election results see related story page 1.

Cunanan, Jackson Win Post In Tight Race, Large Turnout

By PATTI KEMMIS
Assistant News Editor

By a difference of 13 votes, Steve Cunanan won the office of Student Government Association President over Chris Tomicic in Wednesday's elections.

Anthony Jackson won the office of vice-president over Gordon Walker by a margin of 49 votes.

"This is the closest election I've seen in my five years here," said current President David Brown.

Student Supply Store. He received a total of 1085 votes.

"It was really close," said Cunanan. "I'm just really happy. I had a lot of hard workers and that did it."

Tomicic, with a total of 1072 votes, carried Mendenhall, the Croatan, Allied Health, and College Hill.

Jackson took the Croatan, Mendenhall, Allied Health, College Hill and Slay with a total of 1106 votes.

Walker carried the remaining dorms and the Student Supply ing will take over as Treasurer and Secretary. They both ran unopposed.

Eagan said, "I'm pleased with the outcome. I think the best candidates won and I feel like we can and will work well together."

SGA legislator Dwayne Wiseman stated that he felt Cunanan and Jackson will work well together even though they did not run on the same ticket.

"Now I'd like to take the time to mend the broken fences that were made during the elections and get everyone back into a working spirit," said Jackson.

"I want to mend fences and bridge the gaps now to unify everyone and better the school," said Cunanan. "I think Tony will do a fine job. I can't wait to get in and start to work."

According to SGA Election Rules, if the election's result is within three percent of the total votes cast, a recount will be automatic for that office if the candidate desiring a recount contacts the Elections Chairperson, Sven Van Baars, within 24 hours after the final tally is posted.

The results were close enough in both the presidential and vice-presidential race that Tomicic and/or Walker can ask for a recount.

In a phone interview after the results were announced, Walker confirmed he would be asking for a recount.

Tomicic had made no comment as of 2 a.m. Thursday concerning a recount.

Cunanan

2199 students voted, which is approximately 18 percent of the campus.

Cunanan carried the dorms, which includes Clement, Fleming, Slay, and Umstead; and the

Jackson

Store with 1055 votes.

"I think this is a victory for the students with a conscience," said Jackson. "Right prevails when your heart is in the right place."

Sleeping, Partying Favorite Past-Times

By JILL MORGAN
Staff Writer

In a recent survey conducted at ECU, 25 students (13 males and 12 females) picked partying as their favorite past-time activity.

Seventeen of the 25 participants in the survey picked partying as their first choice while dating garnered 20 percent of the number one votes. Females cast all the number one votes in dating.

"The term 'dating' is an ambiguous term," said Richie Jackson and Dean McCrickland — both seniors here at ECU. "But it (dating) would be number one if the benefits were right," they added.

The survey asked students to rank the following 5 things — dating, partying, attending parties, listening to records, and sleeping — from 1-5 in order of what they like to do best. Number 1 being the favorite and 5 least favorite.

The survey was inspired by a study conducted by the Levi Strauss company. Levi called their study "501" in reference to their popular buttonfly 501 jeans.

Julie Boyle, a spokeswoman for Levi Strauss Company explains "Levi Strauss calls the study its '501 survey' because the company is researching why traditional jeans are gaining favor again on campuses.

In fact, "Jeans are more popular than ever with college students," Boyle says, adding students who have jeans wear them 75 percent of the time.

Jobs, Wealth Concern Today's Students

RIVER FALLS, WI (CPS) — Today's students may be more interested in jobs and wealth than their predecessors, but it's not because they are greedier, two University of Wisconsin professors say.

Their study of student attitudes also suggests calling collegians apathetic is a bum rap.

"I think attributing apathy to this generation of college students is misleading," maintains Bud McClure of the University of Wisconsin at River Falls.

In a sample of almost 300 students from the River Falls campus, McClure and associate Thomas Russo found students to be most concerned with issues that have immediate impact on their lives.

Students listed abortion, the nuclear arms race, drug use, pollution, conservation, politics, world hunger, unemployment, poverty and equal rights as their most important concerns.

"International issues of today are perceived to be out of control," McClure says.

In contrast, the "quiet generation" of the fifties was more orderly because "there was a sense of (national) invulnerability."

But today's students, McClure says, are not much different from their predecessors of the late sixties and early seventies.

He thinks it's because observers often exaggerate the number of students who were politically active in the sixties, and underestimate the number who are active today.

First Annual Veterans Awareness Day Success At ECU

By BETH WHICKER
Assistant News Editor

A tribute to all veterans at Memorial Gym set the pace Wednesday for the first annual Veterans Awareness Day sponsored by the ECU Veterans Club.

"Veterans Awareness Day was designed to show the ECU student body what the veterans club is about and the ideals we represent," said Jim Reid, president of the ECU Veterans Club.

noon with an opportunity for veterans and the general public to meet each other at the student store where the veterans served soft drinks.

The vets provided a wine and cheese social at Mendenhall to further mingle with the ECU student body.

"The veterans want to get better acquainted with the student body. We want to promote inner growth within our club and not become a club within ourselves. We hope Veterans Awareness Day will show the public that we are not stereotypical 'military men', but men who have made a decision and learned to make the best of it," said Reid.

A candlelight vigil was held at the American Legion Hall in honor of those soldiers still missing in action. After the vigil, veterans club members, members of the ECU student body, former POW's, and other interested groups marched three miles around Greenville.

Two movies concerning the plight of the veteran in society were shown at Hendrix Theatre at the finish of the evening.

Friday at 3 p.m. the POW flag will be raised at Joyner Library. ECU is the first educational institution to ever fly the POW flag. The flag will be flown for the remainder of the semester.

"The plight of the veteran in society has come a long way since the Vietnam era. Things have definitely changed. People have more appreciation of what a veteran is. Still, some of the public is unaware of the veterans point of view.

According to Reid, veterans have pride in their country and take American rituals very seriously. "It digs deep when a veteran sees someone not paying attention during the national anthem, or not stopping as the flag is raised or lowered."

Reid explained veterans were taught these customs while in the military and that the raising and lowering of the flag, taps being played, and the national anthem being sung are held close to the veterans heart. The veteran observes these customs with utmost respect.

"We know we are in a unique situation and we hope Veterans Awareness Day helps the public better understand our ideas as we learn to better understand the public's view," said Reid.

The ECU Veterans Club is open to all students, faculty, and staff members. The purpose of the club is to promote the American way of life, encourage mature leadership, and promote inter-branch fellowships among the veterans of the United States Armed Services, their dependents, active duty personnel, reservist, and all other interested groups.

ECU's SHS Insurance Rises

By CAROLYN DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Student health centers at colleges across the country are experiencing drastic hikes in liability insurance rates, and ECU is no exception.

In fact, ECU's health center has seen its total insurance costs increase by "at least 100 percent" in the past year and expects an ever greater increase during the next year, said James McCallum, director of Student Health Services here at ECU.

But while this increase seems to be affecting student fees and causing the elimination of services on many campuses, McCallum does not foresee such changes occurring here in the near future.

The primary reason health centers (as well as private practices) are seeing higher rates, according to McCallum, is the courts are awarding increasingly large settlements in malpractice suits. "Once a settlement is made, it sets a precedent," said McCallum. The higher the settlements become, "the higher the insurance companies must raise their fees to offset the settlements."

Between 1982 and 1985, ECU's liability insurance (which protects against malpractice suits) increased from $3,548 to $12,751. During that time, the Health Center did increase its coverage from $1 million to $3 million, a change which McCallum says accounts for a small portion of the rate increase.

When asked what changes will be made in terms of student fees or services, McCallum stated "I cannot say at this point in time."

He did note, however, because "everything done here has to be paid for by student health fees," those fees will eventually be affected. He added that fees, which were $49.50 for 1985-86, will not be greatly affected in the upcoming year.

"We don't intend to eliminate services. I would rather seek financing through other ways than through the elimination of services," said McCallum.

While some colleges are dealing with this situation by reducing staff, the size of the ECU Health Center is at its highest point in seven years.

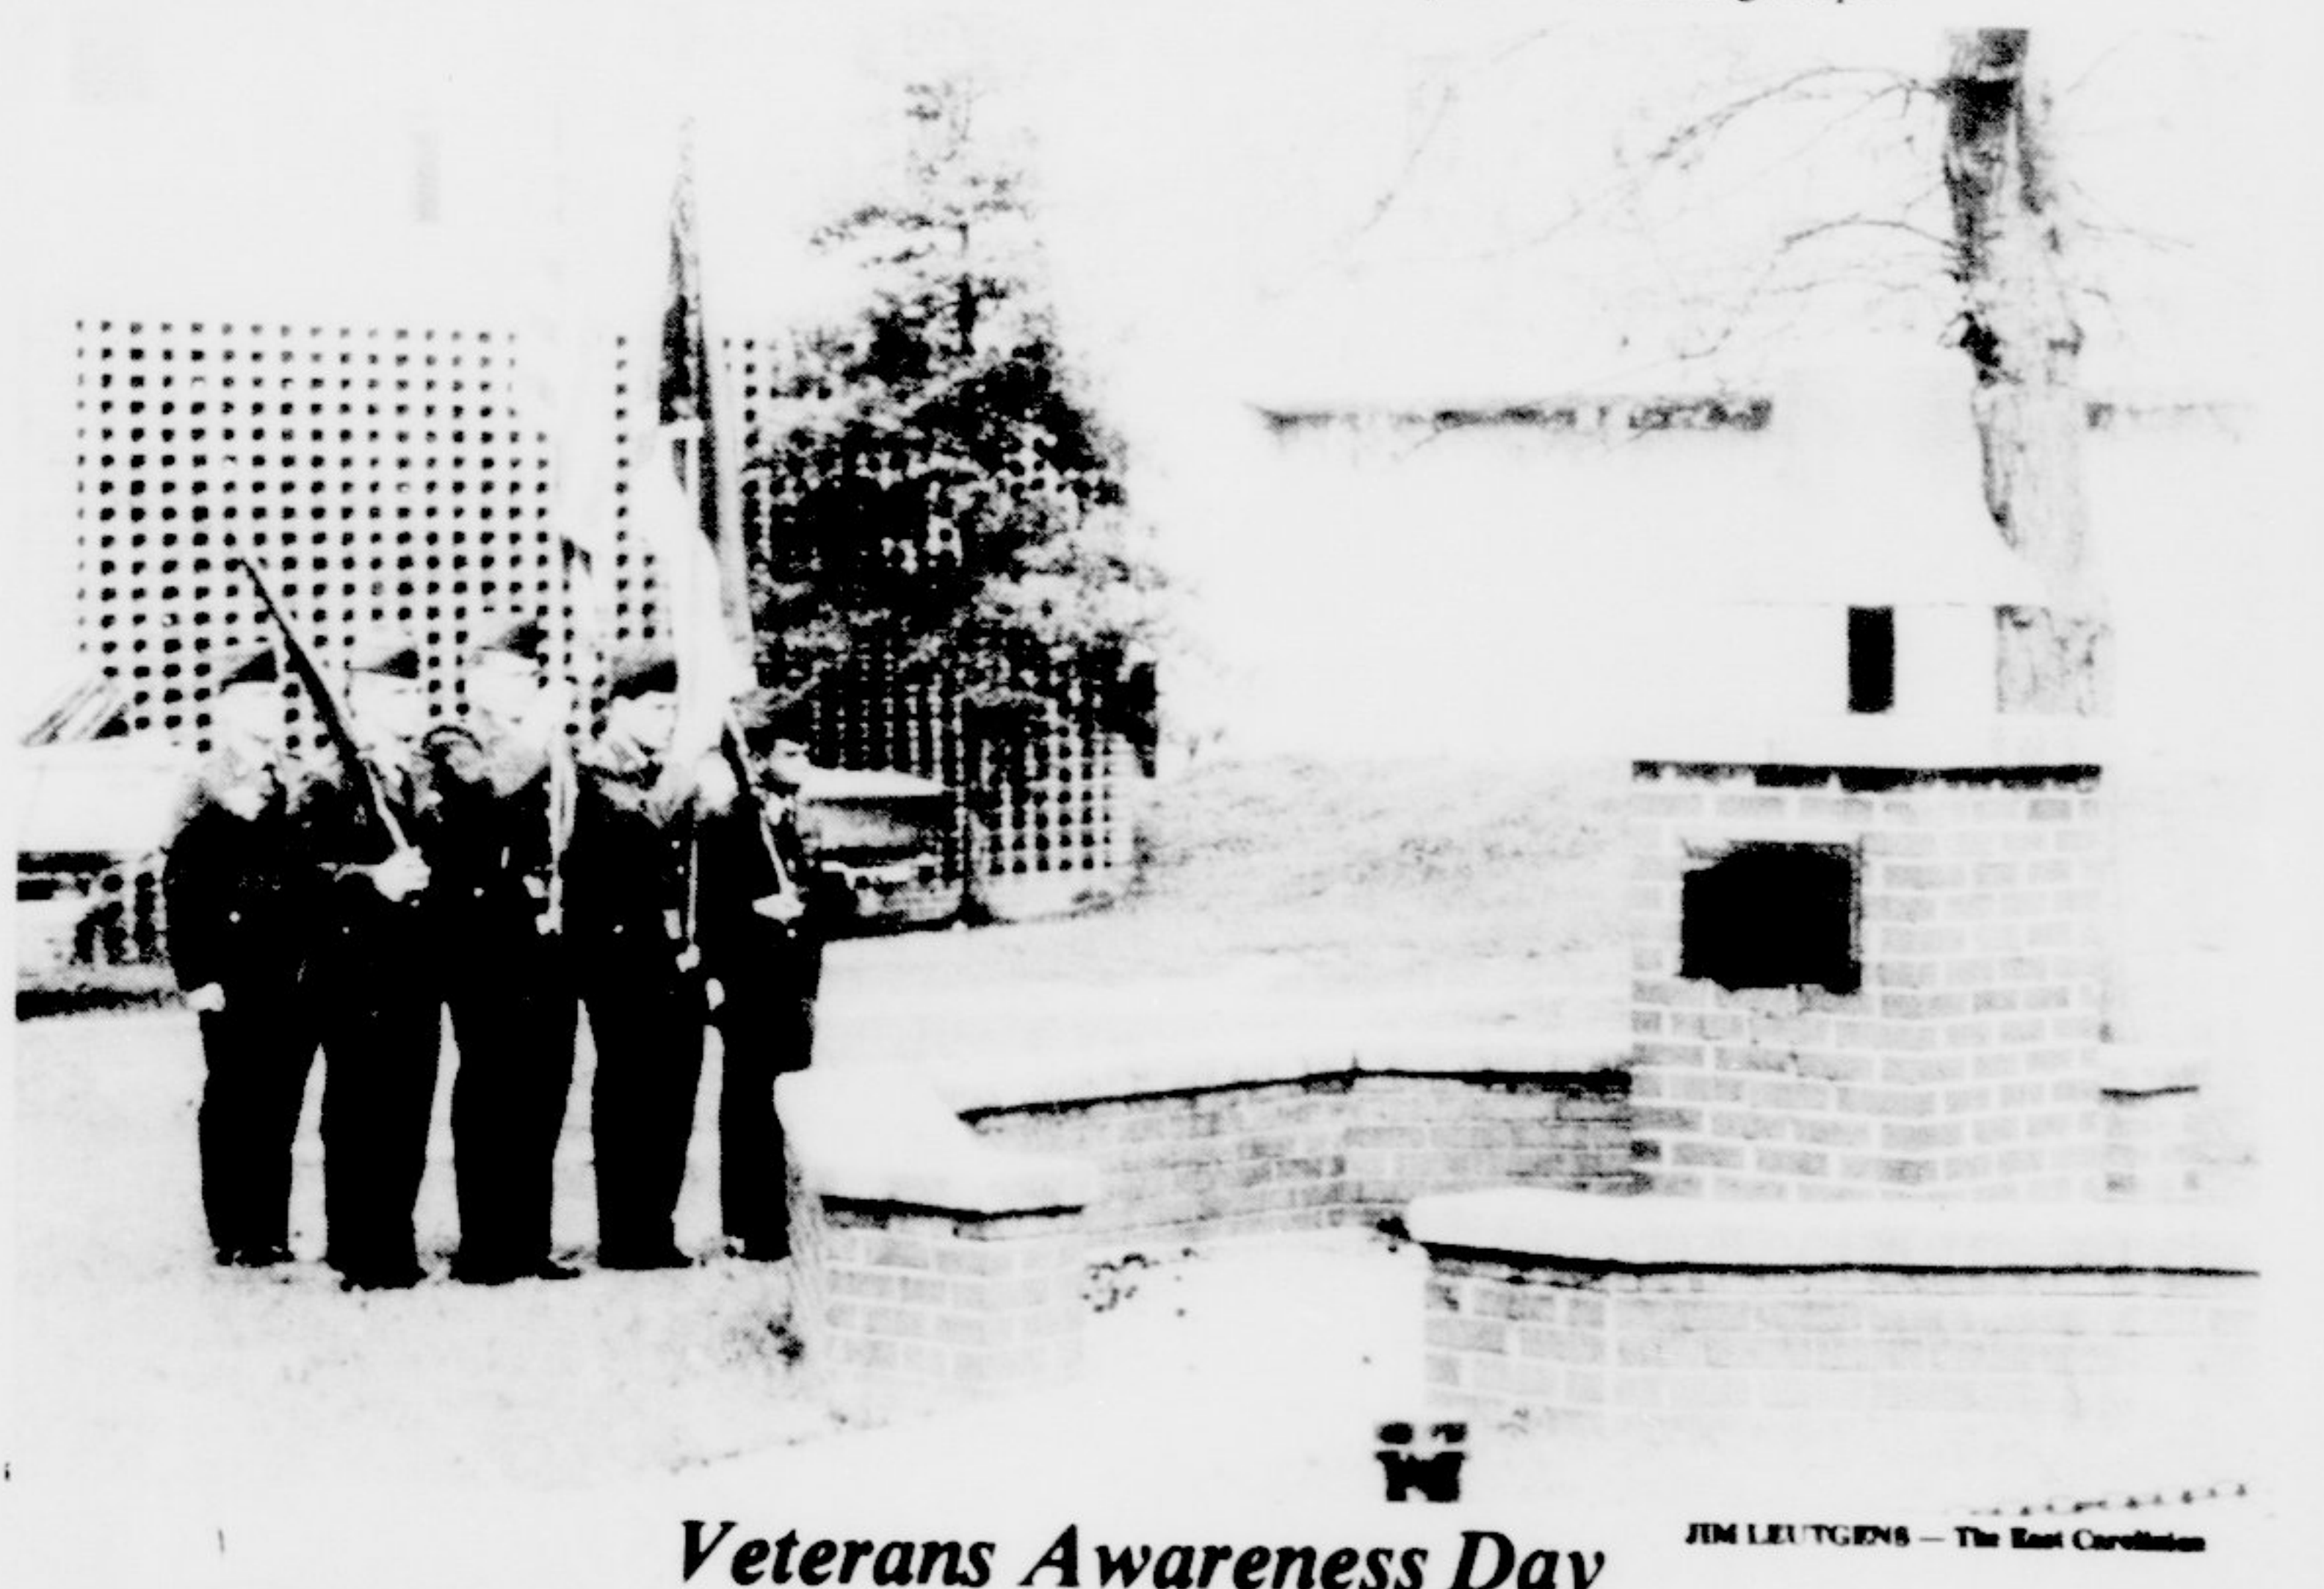

Many colleges are trying to cope with less students as well as higher insurance rates, a trend ECU appears to be bucking. Last year, the Health Center had 53,000 patient visits, and if this year follows the pattern (as it has in the past five years) it will surpass this mark.

Feminist Resumes Evoke Response

(CPS) — Women may have a hard time getting a job if their resumes evince strong feminist feelings or refer to school projects that a prospective employer may see as meaning they could cause "trouble" on the job, a new study by two professors suggests.

Employers surveyed by Michael Hitt of Texas A&M and William Zikmund of Oklahoma State seemed especially reluctant to hire female students who had done studies of job discrimination.

But corporate preferences for male applicants in general seem to be fading, Hitt adds.

Other job placement officials, however, question Hitt and Zikmund's study, and note "political" references on a resume are always a risk.

"I am not sure if (discrimination) is specific to women's groups," says Joe Santos, a placement officer at Miami of Ohio.

Employers in general seem to respond less positively "to social stands of any kind" on resumes, he observes.

Hitt and Zikmund's study suggests companies appear anxious to respond to feminist applicants with appropriate care, if not with jobs.

"The study shows companies

Students Establish Identity

The findings recently convinced a group of college presidents to resolve to make "community service" a graduation requirement. The group hoped to end students' "preoccupation" with career and material goals.

But a number of other studies, most recently from Mount Hood College in Maryland, documents that student attitudes generally change and become less egocentric during the course of college.

And many of the other impressions of students as overly materialistic are derived from studies done at "private elitist schools in the East," McClure contends.

McClure's study, done at a midwestern state school, may be more representative of student attitudes nationwide, he says.

His students' career aspirations, moreover, have more to do with "trying to establish an identity in a chaotic world," McClure concludes. He believes becoming a professional is a way of exerting control over oneself in a world frequently perceived as out of control.

"Some say it's greed, while others say it's uncertainty about the future," Green says of student career aspirations.

"When I have asked a college audience 'how many of you know people who have lost their job?' I see a sea of hands," Green adds.

This may be why "we see a lot of portfolio-building behavior" among college students, he speculates.

partially responsible for keeping jeans so popular on campuses.

The study, Boyle says "gives the company an overview of the habits of consumers. Students are the prime target (market) for our jeans."

In the Levi Strauss survey attending parties topped student's preferences, while "partying" accumulated 70 percent of the votes of more than 6,000 students as one of their five favorite activities.

"Partying is definitely a verb on campus," Boyle noted — and it is not the same thing as attending a party.

Listening to records caught 63 percent of the votes as students favorite thing to do, followed by sleeping with 56 percent. Dating brought in the least amount of votes as the favorite thing to do with only 42 percent choosing it number one.

The ECU survey found none of the students surveyed chose attending parties as their favorite thing to do while eight percent chose listening to records as their favorite past-time with sleeping earning only four percent of "favorite things to do" votes.

Kevin Hidalgo said, "This is tough because my vote changes week to week. Some weeks I like to sleep, others I like to party." Participants in the survey at ECU were asked to specify whether they are originally from North or South of the Mason Dixon line and whether they are male or female.

The only significant difference noted is that of the 12 females surveyed 5 chose dating as their favorite thing to do. Not one male chose dating as number one.

The North and South voted consistently the same in all categories revealing students consider partying their most favorite thing to do.

SGA Elections

Dirty Tricks And Foul Play

Tentative congratulations are due Steve Cunanan and Tony Jackson on their victories for SGA President and Vice-President respectively. Their races were hotly contested and each of the victors deserves an opportunity to savor his victory, though recounts have been requested.

But there were things which took place during the campaign that should not be forgotten right away. No, these things must be hashed out and discussed.

The campaign that has just recently been concluded was not completely unlike past campaigns that have taken place on this campus. It was a dirty, malicious, mudslinging and, in some respects, even racist campaign from start to finish.

Certainly I do not mean to cast aspersion or place blame on the shoulders of the candidates involved in this election. I believe all the candidates to be honorable men. Yet when those working in their campaigns spread malicious falsehoods and rip down the posters of their opponents they go too far.

It would be infinitely easier for me if I could say that wrong-doing was to be found in equal measures on both sides of this election. But I cannot.

The graphic above which I observed two Cunanan/Walker campaign workers displaying on their campaign poster is illustrative of just some of the abuses that I am speaking about.

In addition, it must be frankly stated that the fact that Cunanan/Walker posters dramatically outnumbered Tomasic/Jackson posters was not a result of any slothfulness on the part of the latter two candidates. It was a result of the fact, as many witnesses have reported, that the Tomasic/Jackson signs were simply ripped down by overzealous Cunanan/Walker campaign workers.

Allegations have been made to the effect that Tomasic/Jackson workers were guilty of the same, but this newspaper can find no evidence of it.

A letter was written to this editor alleging that Anthony Jackson had threatened to burn down The East Carolinian at a Media Board hearing. Upon investigation, the allegation proved to be patently untrue. Anthony Jackson was not even at the hearing at which it was alleged that he made the comments cited above, according to several witnesses. Because this newspaper can be held liable for printing such ungrounded allegations, we refused to run that letter.

Allegations were also made in this office that Chris Tomasic had fired a Pirate Walk employee because he was homosexual. Upon investigation that too proved to be false.

Mr. Tomasic, in his capacity as SGA Vice-President did not have the power to fire anyone from Pirate Walk. The person in question was not, in fact, fired. Moreover, Mr. Tomasic, according to Kurt Bubenhofer, Director of Pirate Walk, never mentioned or suggested that the person in question be fired.

Lastly, of course, there is the, by now infamous charge that Tomasic is Neanderthal. It is said that he beat up on the Treasurer of the SGA, Tony Braswell unjustly and without due provocation. That is what the graphic featured above refers to.

There is no way to know precisely what happened the night that the altercation between Tomasic and Braswell occurred. Suffice it to say that Tomasic was not the man who wielded the baseball bat according to Greenville Police Department reports.

That there were even comments made to the effect that Tomasic's campaign was made up of "niggers" and "faggots" is only hearsay. That is not the main issue. It is inflammatory to even mention such matters I suppose.

It is not enough to simply decry dirty campaign tactics as though they occurred equally on both sides. For they did not.

This editorial will be called partisan, biased and unfair I imagine. In fact, folks who participated in the Cunanan/Walker campaign will probably think of it as just plain mean.

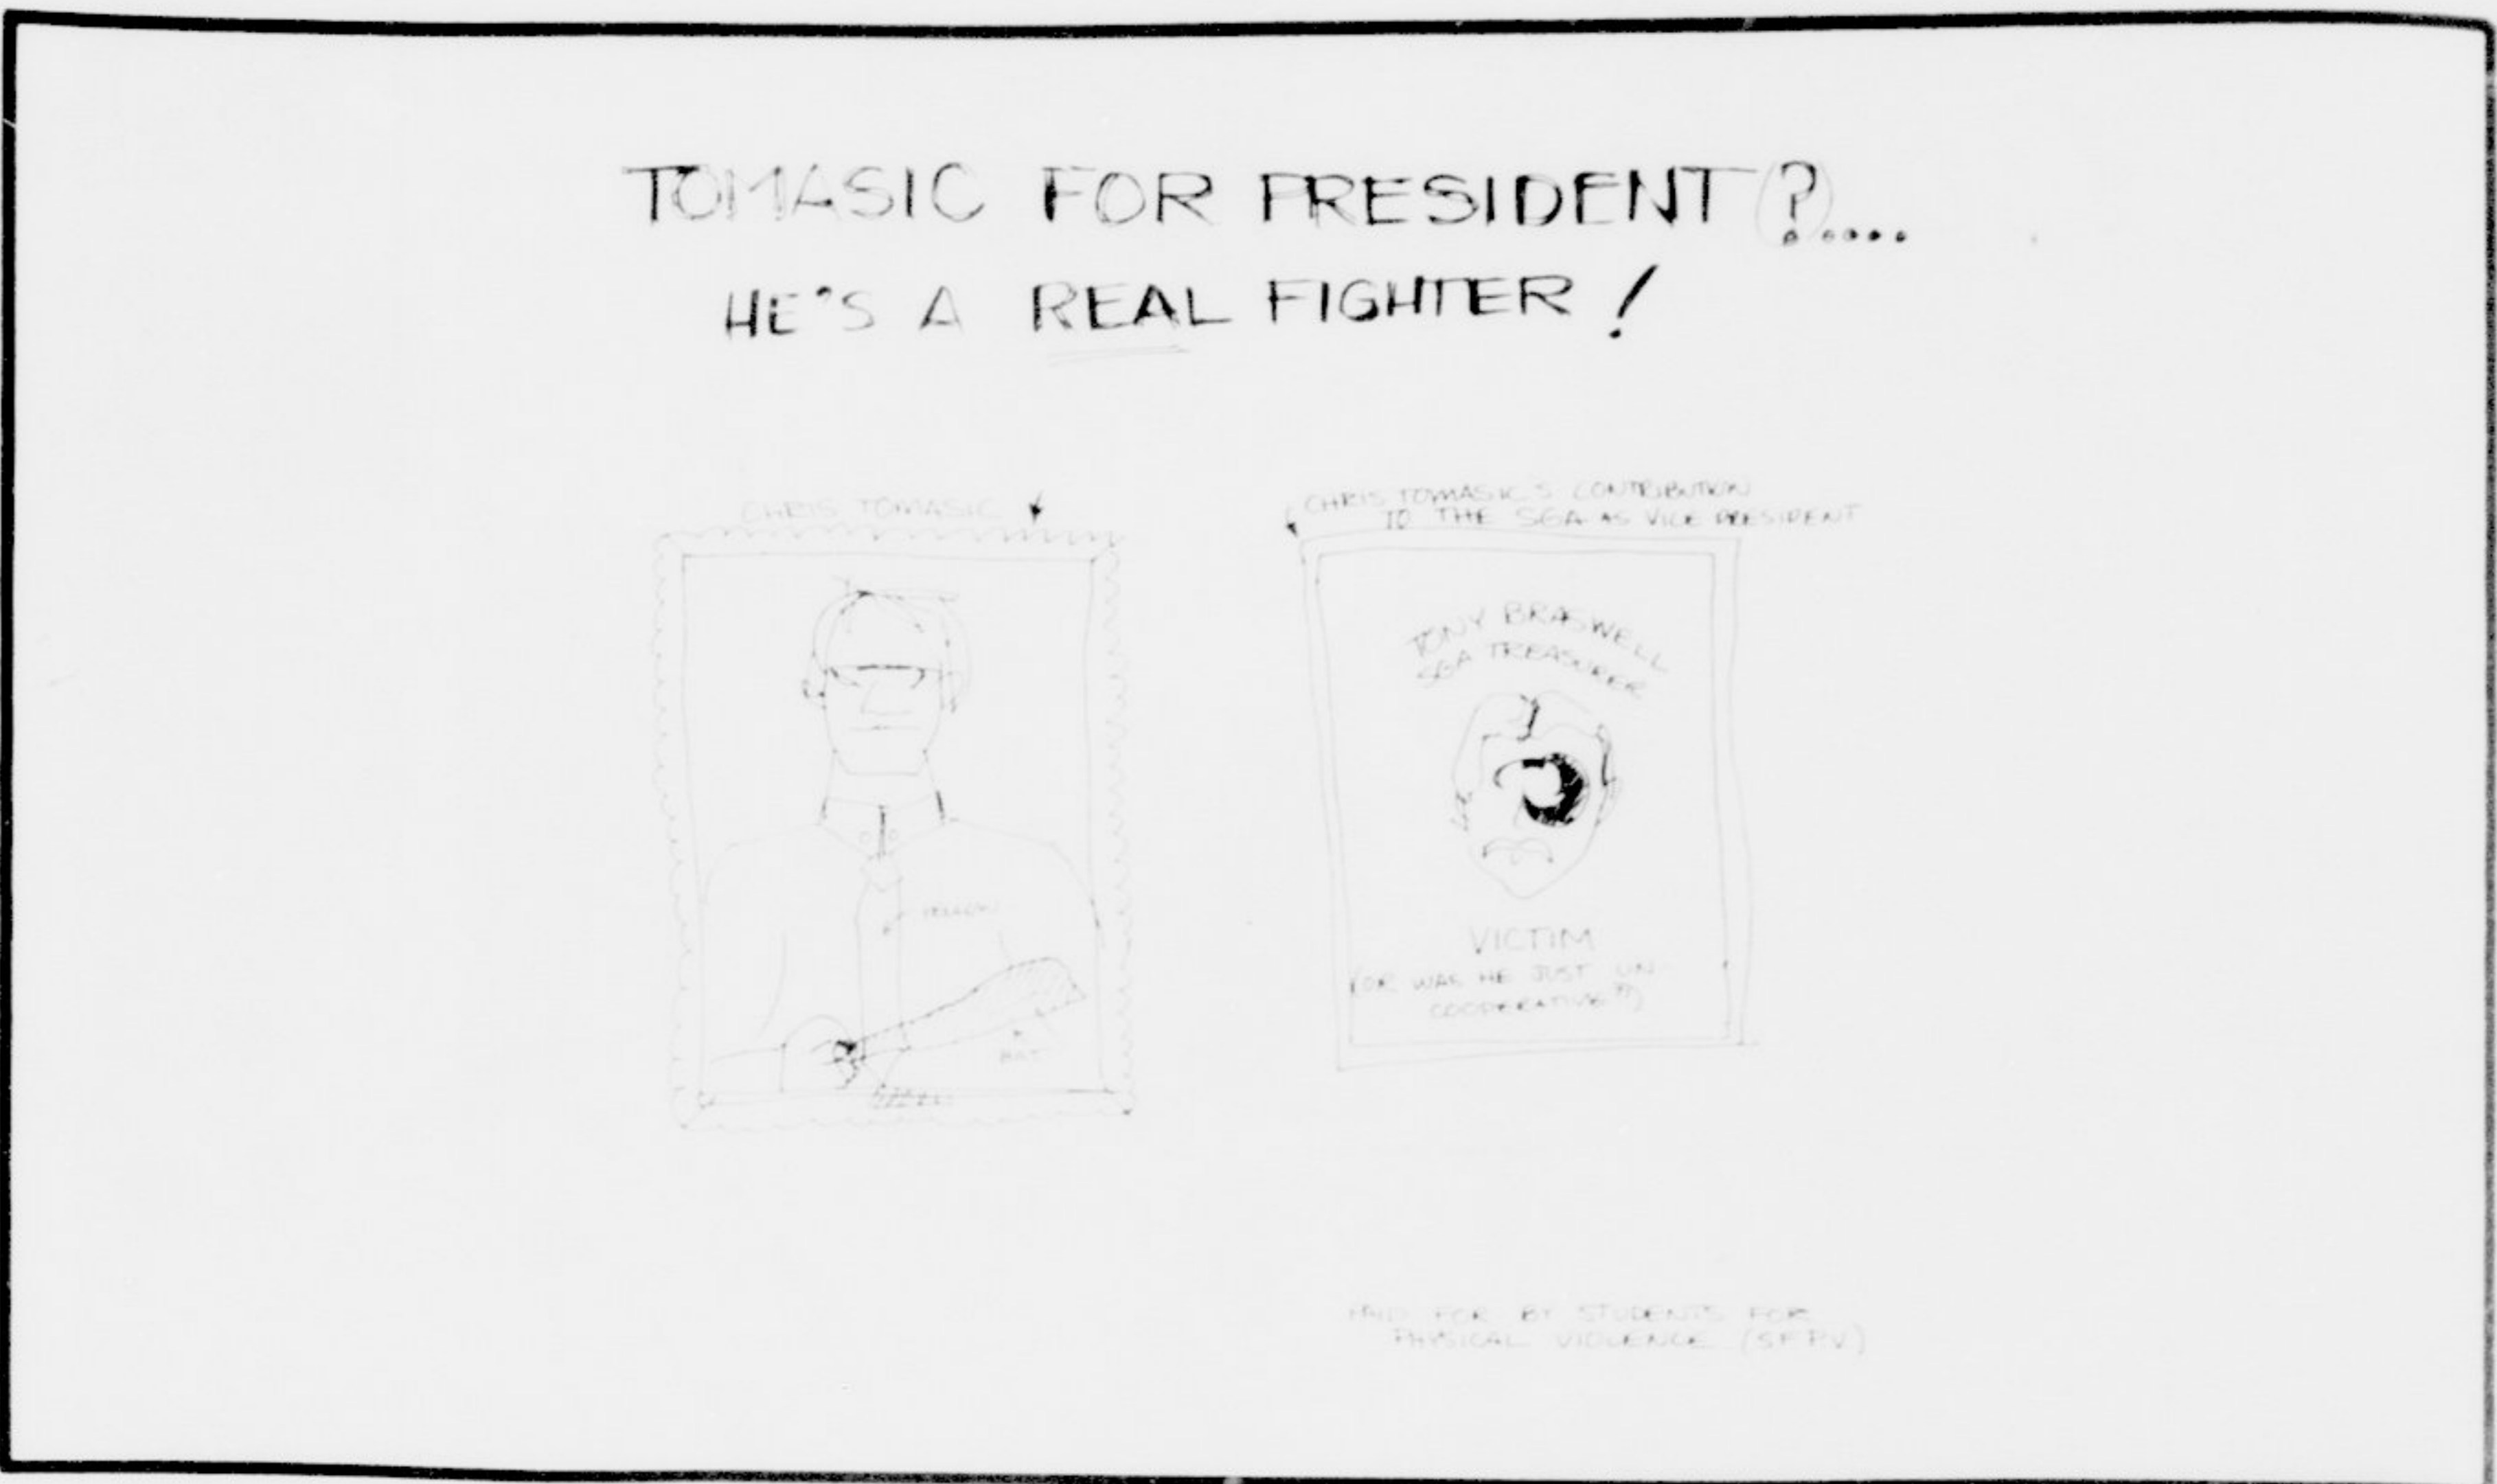

But what was done to Chris Tomasic and Anthony Jackson was mean. And if justice is to be done those who are responsible for that meanness must be held accountable.

This newspaper has no desire to change the election results. We believe that Steve Cunanan and Tony Jackson are honorable men. They will represent our school well. But Chris Tomasic and Tony Jackson deserve better than they got. They deserve apologies and they deserve to have their names cleared.

Most of all another election should never be run like the one that was just finished. The students at this university deserve better. It is not enough for a person to simply say that they cannot control overzealous campaign workers. At some point a candidate must take responsibility for what those working for him do in his name.

Three years ago a referendum was held on establishing a Public Interest Research Group on this campus and the same tactics were employed by those who opposed the establishment of the PIRG. Last year similar tactics were employed in the race for SGA president. And in years past the same sort of thing has happened from time to time.

Yes it is time to speak the truth and it is time to reform ECU politics.

The Hooligans At State

I could not help but chuckle to myself during the last three weeks over press reports of the spirited and recently destructive and nasty behavior of N.C. State students and followers. This all coming after each of their NCAA basketball tournament victories.

You see what I find so amusing is that it was only a few months ago that after the East Carolina University vs. N.C. State University football game in Raleigh, certain pompous members of the N.C. State University administration including Chancellor Poulton, publicly and through the media, chastised and lambasted ECU and the small number of spirited students involved for their victory celebration behavior. Their big crime, pushing over a small section of a 3 1/2 foot high end zone retaining fence. Boy, you would have thought it was an unpardonable sin from the NCSU administration's reaction.

But wait! What do we hear from the same administration after four Wild Hillsborough Street victory parties culminating with last Friday's four injured Raleigh police officers, 34 arrests and property damage? Not a word, not one solitary word.

In the future I suggest that Chancellor Poulton and his other officials clean up their own act before passing judgement on other state institutions' student behavior.

Now last but not least. If they want to threaten to cancel the very lucrative ECU vs NCSU football series because of the fence issue as they allegedly did, maybe they ought to also consider the following; decline all future NCAA basketball playoff invitations until they learn more about how to control their own student victory celebrations. We're no longer your step children down East, Sirs.

Walk For Peace

There was an announcement in last week's East Carolinian. It said: "WALK ON EASTER. Choose your distance, 100 yards to 13.5 miles... All viewpoints with peach goal... The error that changed 'peace goal' into 'peach goal' is not bad at that — peace is a peach and a pear and a pearl of great price.

The fruit, peace, is born after long cultivation in which work, study, prayer and witnessing all play important parts. The part of witnessing, on this Easter Star Walk for Peace, should be a joyful part, as fits this season of celebrating the triumph of Life.

To walk 13.5 miles, you should start walking at 1 p.m. at Farmville or Pictolus or Bethel (for details call: 830-0349, or 758-4906, or 825-4981). To walk 100 yards, walk from your parked car to Sycamore Hill (on Greenville Common between NCNB and Green St. Bridge), at 5:30. There and then, I think you will enjoy the half-hour ceremony at which the first live oak to be planted on the Common will be decorated with the cranes of life. Brief comments will follow from Rev. James Daily (south), Willie Mae Carney (north), a Farmville walker's spokesperson (west), Prof. William Byrd (east), David Rubenstein, and Mayor pro-tem William Hadden (Greenville).

Two of the star routes will cross the ECU campus about 5 p.m. coming from 10th and College Hill Drive. One will traverse the Mall from Flanagan to Jenkin's (Art), then proceed west to Reade Circle, Cotanche, to the Common. The other will enter at the Nursing Building, and proceed north of Speight and McGinnis, between Whichard and Cotten, thence north of Fleming, Jarvis, Art, Garret to reach 5th St. at the Methodist Student Center and on Holly to 4th to Reade to the Common.

"All viewpoints" means just that. Peace is not a goal of the "peace movement" only. For more information call 758-4906.

Jerry Falwell's Majority

Now Jerry's got a new sales pitch. To counteract the public's impressive distaste for him ("The highest negatives of anybody except Khomeini," says one Republican pollster), Falwell announced in January that the Moral Majority was changing its name to the Liberty Federation. The Liberty Federation will have a political and education arm — the Liberty Alliance — and will publish its own newspaper, the Liberty Report.

Last year, Falwell changed the name of his Liberty Baptist College to Liberty University. The school is located on Liberty Mountain outside Lynchburg, Va., which Falwell now refers to as the town of Liberty. It is not known what the residents of Lynchburg think of Falwell's decision to change the name of their town. But if they remember anything about the history of the political groups using the name "Liberty," they will ask the reverend to please shut up.

In 1934, some of the nation's millionaires created the American Liberty League. The idea for the league originated with R.M. Carpenter, a retired vice president of DuPont. Subsidized with millions of dollars from its members, the Liberty League engaged in a massive public-relations campaign, churning out pamphlets, canned news stories, press releases and radio speeches reporting that Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal was part of a worldwide Marxist conspiracy. By 1936, Republican presidential nominee Alf Landon described the league's endorsement as a "kiss of death." New York Times columnist Arthur Krock wrote that the chairman of the Republican Party "would have walked a mile out of his way rather than be seen in the company of a Liberty Leaguer."

The Liberty or Death Committee, formed in Freeport, N.Y., on July 4, 1962, carried on this tradition. The committee's main objective was to require prayer in the public schools, claiming that "the day the Supreme Court took God out of the schools, they ruled in favor of obscenity."

The Liberty Legion was established in the mid-1960s to get rid of all intellectuals, since "the word intellectual is a synonym for the word atheist and the words communism and Marxism are...synonyms for intellectualism and atheism." In 1968, it changed its name to the Liberty Party.

That same year, retired right-wing general Edwin Walker created the Liberty Network to compete with the nation's leftist newspapers and TV networks. Not much else is known about the Liberty Network: When Walker discussed it, few people could make much sense of what he was saying. "Our efforts," he explained, "will extend for all Americans, to 1968 and 1976 — very significant years — and on up to 1000 A.D." Walker said the network would investigate the Kennedy assassination. Walker became obsessed with the case after the Warren Commission alleged that Lee Harvey Oswald unsuccessfully tried to assassinate Walker just before the Kennedy assassination. The new investigation, said Walker, should focus on "the fact that Oswald knew Rubenstein and Rubenstein knew Oswald."

"Do you mean Jack Ruby?" a reporter asked.

"I mean Rubenstein," Walker replied. "You can call him anything you want!"

Last year was difficult for Jerry Falwell. On May 3 he wrote to me, saying he had "absolutely failed to raise the money necessary to keep the Moral Majority moving ahead... Repeatedly—I am asking myself and others—where we are failing? Have we won so many moral battles that our friends think the major conflict is over?... Yes we are winning the battle against the efforts of militant homosexuals... The porn kings are now losing money heavily... But now — we face the possibility of losing the most important battle of all... If this country compromises with our defense against the communist nuclear weapons, then sex and violence on television will become a moot issue... I have no intentions of allowing Tip O'Neill and Jim Wright to place my children and grandchildren in communist slavery or worse."

I didn't reply, and Jerry contacted me again in August, this time via a United Express Gram, whatever that is.

"Moments ago I was told my family and home would be blown up today..." Jerry informed me. "Militant homosexuals, pornography peddlers and abortionists have often threatened our lives... But since my return from South Africa, communist terrorists are openly threatening to kill me and my family because of my campaign to stop the Soviet Union from taking over the vital minerals, strategic sea lanes and naval bases of South Africa.

"I am willing to confront the death threats, the twisted and biased media coverage — but only if I have the help, prayers and support of my friends... I must ask you to immediately send an emergency gift of $100, $50, $25."

Again, I didn't respond. Jerry sent me a more desperate letter less than a week later: "If I cannot find the support of friends like you — I'm afraid we are in serious trouble. And pornographers, militant gays, abortionists and liberals will continue to lead this country straight down the path of moral decay."

Then there's the Liberty Lobby, based on Capitol Hill and doing well in the age of Reagan. Its orientation was summarized by its founder, Willis Carto, when he wrote to an association: "Hitler's defeat was the defeat of Europe. And America... The blame, it seems, must be laid at the door of the international Jews... If Satan himself... had tried to create a permanent disintegration and force for the destruction of the nations, he could have done no better than to invent the Jews."

And now the Liberty Federation? Suddenly, Moral Majority doesn't sound so bad.

Videos Lessen Perception In Students

CANYON, TX (CPS) — Music videos can desensitize college students to violence, a survey 700 midwestern collegians has found.

The study, released last week by Sharaf Rehman, assistant professor at West Texas State, found that after viewing music videos for a while, students became less capable of perceiving increasing levels of violence in the videos.

Rehman also found students tend to excuse violence in videos done by performers they like, and that women students in his study tended to view themselves as victims of violence.

They are not the only ones disturbed. A growing body of scholarly research seems to be supporting contentions that music videos often are unduly violent or sexual.

"I think the coupling of violence and sexual imagery is troubling," University of Georgia media researcher Joseph Dominick maintains.

Dominick and colleague Barry Sherman recently studied 165 "concept" music videos shown on MTV and two other stations that feature music videos, WNBC and WTBS, and found about 55 percent of the videos featured at least one violent episode.

The musical carnage ranks second only to prime-time network television, during which 60 percent of the shows feature at least one incident of violence. While Dominick has no scientific measure of how popular music videos are among college students, he believes they are "big on campus from my casual analysis."

"You may be teaching a young, impressionable audience that the two things (sex and violence) go together," he says.

The Georgia and West Texas studies confirmed other observers' discomfort. "My tolerance level lasts 10 to 15 minutes because of the way they portray violence and women as sex objects," says Judy Byrd of the Sisters of Justice in Canton, Ohio, about videos.

Dominick and Sherman contend "in many cases, women were presented as upper-class sex objects for lower-class males with visions of upward mobility."

They determined social status from clothes, jewelry and cars in the shows.

Page, Rogers Rock On With 2nd Firm LP

By WALT RISHEL
Staff Writer

The Firm, rock 'n' roll's oldest new group, once again proves to music listeners that they're not a band that stands tall one year and disappears the next.

With their second album, Mean Business, Jimmy Page and The Firm have established that they really do mean business, and that they are one of the top performing bands of the '80s.

Page, a former Yard Bird and Zeppelin, converged with Bad Company's Paul Rogers, along with former Manfred Mann drummer Chris Slade, and bassist Tony Franklin in 1981. Later that year they produced their first album, The Firm. With their hit song, "Radioactive," their album went on to become one of the year's best sellers. This year's album appears to be no different.

Written by Rogers and Page, parts of the album intertwine the two distinct sounds that made Led Zeppelin and Bad Company famous. However, most of the sounds you'll hear are the group's own. Such is the case with "All the King's Horses," an excellent song with a delicate mixture of the foursome's extraordinary talents.

Those two songs contain sounds that are as original as they are appealing. Page's guitar work in these songs give them a different texture. Roger's bluesy bad-boy vocals distinguish this group's sound just as they did for Bad Company years ago.

"Fortune Hunter," the hardest sounding song on the album, is reminiscent of the Led Zeppelin I album, but with a slower, more laid back tempo.

Influences from Page's years with Eric Clapton can be found in "Cadillac," another of the group's slightly hard sounding rock songs. "Live in Peace" is an excellent song with a strong meaning asking the questions, "Why can't we live in peace?... Why can't we have relief?"

Overall, their album gives off a variety of different sounds to choose from. Like their first album, however, they are far from reaching their full potential as a complete rock band. Then again there are songs on this album, such as "Live in Peace" and "All the King's Horses," which do exceed the expectations of most listeners. If Leonard Maltin were a record critic he would probably give this album a seven.

'Africa' Shuts Out Spielberg

(UPI) — Out of Africa, a period love story told against the sweeping panorama of Kenya, dominated the Oscars — winning for the best picture and director, and dealing Steven Spielberg's The Color Purple a stunning defeat.

Out of Africa and The Color Purple were both nominated 11 times. Africa won seven Oscars, but Purple failed to win a single award Monday night, and tied The Turning Point from 1977 for the most defeats in Oscar history.

Spielberg, whose movies have made more money at the box office than those of any other director, had been snubbed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences by not even being nominated as best director of the film he also produced.

In a funny, nostalgic and sentimental show that ran 15 minutes past its scheduled three hours to a worldwide audience estimated at more than one billion, Geraldine Page finally won an Oscar on her eighth try, picking up the best actress award for her touching role as a widow returning to her roots in The Trip to Bountiful.

William Hurt was named best actor for his tour de force performance in the role of a homosexual prisoner in love with his cellmate in The Kiss of the Spider Woman. "It's incredible," a surprised Hurt said. "I didn't expect to be here, so I don't know what to say... I am very proud to be an actor."

Oscars for supporting roles went to two sentimental favorites; Anjelica Huston, as a brazen Mafia princess in Prizzi's Honor, which was directed by her father, John, and which starred her longtime boyfriend, Jack Nicholson; and Don Ameche, as a man rejuvenated from a creaking oldster into a break dancing dervish by the fountain of youth in Cocoon.

In addition to best picture and the best director Oscar for Sydney Pollack, Out of Africa won five other awards — for adapted screenplay, original score, cinematography, sound and art direction. Witness — the only best picture nominee in the top 10 at the box office — was a double winner, for original screenplay and film editing. Cocoon also won a second Oscar, for visual effects.

At a post ceremony party at the Beverly Hilton Hotel where two weeks ago he was named best director by the Directors Guild of America, Spielberg was asked why Purple was shut out.

"I'll have to think of a quote later, but for now you can say we were pitched a no-hitter but the crowd still loves us."

Lionel Richie, a Grammy winner earlier this year for his work on "We Are The World," won the best song Oscar for "Say You, Say Me" from the movie White Nights.

Other winners included the epic Japanese film Ran for costume design, Musk for makeup and Back to the Future for sound effects editing.

The ABC telecast from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion was hosted by Jane Fonda, Alan Alda and comic Robin Williams, whose running line of biting jokes and impersonations of Nicholson and others kept the elegantly dressed audience in stitches.

Page, who played an aging woman tracing her roots and memories in The Trip to Bountiful, was nominated seven times previously without winning. That record is now shared by Peter O'Toole and the late Richard Burton.

Among those defeated in voting for best director was the 79 year old Huston, who won his first Oscar in 1948 for Treasure of the Sierra Madre as his father, Walter, won for best supporting actor. He had hoped to win again with his daughter.

Acting Tops Action In Film For The Heart

By DAVID BRADSHAW
Staff Writer

The Trip To Bountiful is a movie about life, death, and just about everything in between. It is about the importance of place and family — about home, and the need to stay in touch with home.

The movie is set in 1947 in the inland coastal region of Texas, yet the themes presented are timeless ones. It could just as easily be set in modern-day Greenville or in eighteenth century France.

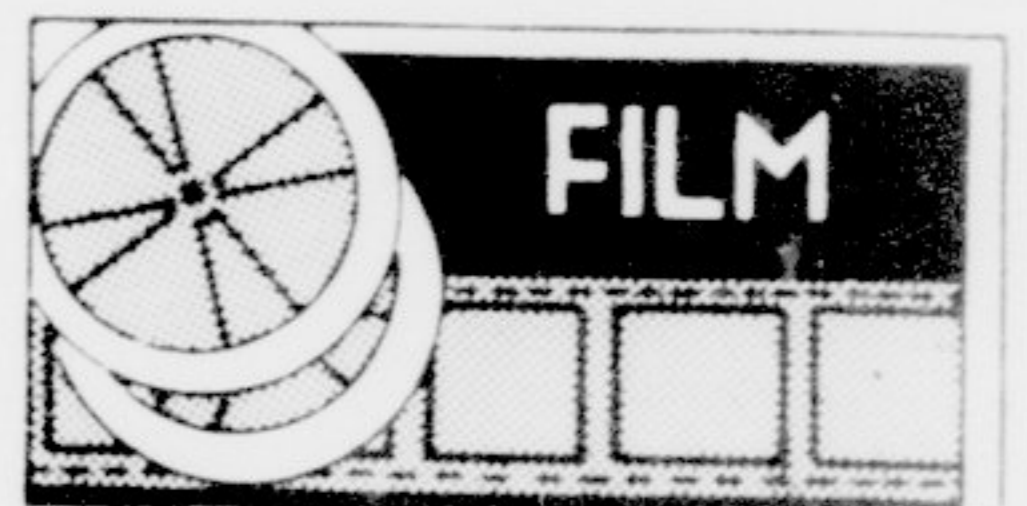

The main character in the film is Carrie Watts, played by Geraldine Page. Like Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz, she "just wants to go home." Home to Carrie is Bountiful, Texas.

Carrie is an elderly woman who is fast approaching the end of her life, yet she hasn't been to "home" in twenty years. She lives with her son, Ludie, and his wife, Jessie Mae. Because of generational differences and Carrie's longing to return to Bountiful, she decides to pack her bags, pension check and all, and move back to Bountiful.

The majority of the film deals with Carrie's "trip to Bountiful." On the way, she meets and befriends Thelma, played by Rebecca DeMornay of Risky Business fame.

Bountiful is not a film with edge-of-your-seat action. Instead it relies on the development of its characters, especially Carrie, to draw audiences into the story.

Superb acting performances made the characters very real and very memorable, and establishes a feeling of sympathy toward them. The urgency in Carrie's desire to return home is almost palpable, and the range of emotions she feels when she finally arrives is experienced as a climactic revelation.

Overall, The Trip to Bountiful is a mixture of drama and comedy, a rollercoaster ride of tears and laughter. But the movie ends on a note of optimism and renewal. In the film Carrie says, "I've had my trip, and that's enough to keep me happy the rest of my life." And that's enough to keep audiences smiling and thinking when they leave the theatre.

If you enjoy a quality movie with quality acting, and you don't mind a movie that makes you think, then The Trip to Bountiful is what you are looking for.

N.C. Publishing House To Re-issue Old Books

(UPI) — Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill, a house that has gained national attention in four years, is embarking on a unique experiment this spring — one that will undoubtedly be watched in New York.

Algonquin and its president, Louis Rubin, will re-issue at least five novels that are out of print, but with a unique twist.

"What's unusual is that the writer writes an introduction and, if the author wishes, the author can revise the novel."

"It's not unheard of, but we're making a special emphasis with the author telling about the book and how he came to write it," Rubin said in an interview.

The first of the series Cale, by Sylvia Wilkinson, will be published in April. Others planned include: The Man Who Was Not With It, by Herb Gold; Debbie, by Max Steele; Jordan County, by Shelby Foote; and Which Ones Are The Enemy, by George Garrett.

"I thought they were important books that were out of print and I thought they ought to be back in print."

Algonquin was founded in the winter of 1982 and its first book came out in the fall of 1983. It will publish its sixth list this spring.

In 1987, Algonquin will publish 20 to 25 books. When you set up a publishing house, one of the hardest jobs is to get good books. No publishing house that is any good can rely just on books that are submitted to it. You can get fiction that way. But you have to come up with ideas for books and get writers to write them, or else find good writers and find out what they want to write about and encourage them to do it," Rubin said.

Rubin, a professor of creative writing at the University of North Carolina, is an expert on southern literature. His most recent study of the subject was published by Louisiana State University Press.

Spielberg Produces As Hanks And Long Star

Walter is a lawyer for rock 'n' roll groups.

Anna is a classical musician who plays the viola.

They've been making beautiful music together, living in the apartment of her ex-husband, the magnetically egocentric Maestro, Max.

Deeply in love, Walter and Anna will soon be deeply in debt, falling into and having to survive, The Money Pit.

Tom Hanks and Shelley Long, two of today's most appealing young performers, star in the contemporary comedy directed by Richard Benjamin.

Presented by Steven Spielberg, the film from Amblin Entertainment and Universal Pictures also stars Alexander Godunov and Maureen Stapleton.

Max has been away on tour for a year and has allowed Anna to stay in his vacant apartment until he returns. Living in romantic bliss, Walter and Anna have seen their love for each other grow. In fact, the conservative Walter wants to take the next step, but Anna is not ready to marry again. She's perfectly happy to stay with Walter without any more strings attached.

Suddenly, Max returns. He's back and they're out — out of the apartment, almost out of money and into a frantic search for a roof over their heads.

Walter hopes this rush to find a home could give he and Anna the opportunity to make a further commitment to each other, cementing their relationship and lessening the chance that Max could sweep her off her feet again.

Great foundations are not built on triangles.

Walter's real estate friend tips them off to a house that is almost too good to be true. It is.

"There's something about a bargain," says Tom Hanks, "that will make people do almost anything. It gets them crazy. They can't resist it."

Except for a few minor repairs, the house seems to be in order. Only after Walter gallantly carries Anna over the threshold does the front door fall off.

Their dream house starts to fall apart and so does their relationship. They have to rebuild both.

Will they someday live happily ever after?

As director Richard Benjamin says, "If you can live through this, keeping your sanity and your sense of humor, you can live through marriage."

The Money Pit is the fourth film directed by Benjamin, whose talent as an actor have made him a star in films, television and the theatre. The first film he directed, My Favorite Year, clearly established his directing talent. He followed that with the sensitive, romantic drama Racing with the Moon, and the period action-comedy City Heat with Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds.

"For me," says Benjamin, "directing The Money Pit was the most complex and challenging production yet. Physically, it had aspects of the Olympics."

The comedy is filled with elaborately staged physical effects, most of them actually happening right in front of the cameras with split-second timing. Some sequences were shot with as many as six cameras to capture action that could only be staged once.

Steven Spielberg was first attracted to David Giler's screenplay and approached Benjamin to direct it. They were both intrigued with the interplay of characters and comedy, the counterpoint of romantic relationships and imaginative visual humor in a most contemporary situation.

Ruggers Third In Tourney

By SCOTT COOPER

GREENSBORO — The Rugby Club participated in the Third Annual Greensboro Invitational Rugby Tournament last weekend and finished with a 2-1 record while winning the consolation bracket.

East Carolina opened against Duke on Sat. March 22. Through costly penalties, the Blue Devils took an early 7-0 lead which they maintained throughout the first half.

After scoring a try (when the ball is downed in the try-zone, worth four points), Duke missed the extra point. However, they came back to score a field goal (a kick through the uprights, worth three points) from 20 meters out, ending the half with a 7-0 advantage.

The second half was all EC. Wales native, Doug Eckley, scored the Club's first try on a brilliant 40-meter scramble. Eckley used his quickness and agility to elude about 10 Duke players who could do nothing but watch as he streaked to the try zone. Steve Calcott, another Englishman, added the extra point (kicked on a vertical line from the spot on the goal line where the try was scored, worth two points), cutting the Blue Devil lead to 7-6.

With just minutes to play, Eckley responded again for the purple and gold. Eckley scrambled for the try zone, then had a brilliant assist to Bob "the Human Keg" Eason — who made the winning try. Calcott then iced the game with his second extra-point conversion. EC would go on to win 12-7.

"I'm proud of the way our team plays hard until the final whistle blows," said Club president Bill Zimmermann after the EC victory. "You can't afford to just give up when you're down, you've got to keep the pressure on."

EC then took on the South Carolina Gamecocks just one hour after the Duke game. USC was fresh as they did not have a first-round game. It was a hard-hitting defensive struggle throughout the contest.

USC, an obviously larger team, could only muster two field goals as they defeated the Pirates 6-0. EC did have some scoring opportunities in the game, but were unable to capitalize. However, EC did manage to keep the Gamecocks, who are the No. 1 team in South Carolina, out of the try zone.

"After the game, several spectators came up to me and were very impressed by the way we played and hung in there so well," Zimmermann commented.

Bucs Win Twentieth

Pirates Sweep Three

By TIM CHANDLER

The Pirate Baseball team made it three-for-three against Ohio University as they took a 5-0 decision yesterday.

Craig Van Deventer went the distance for the Pirates, moving his season record to 5-0. Van Deventer gave up only six hits, while walking three batters and striking out four.

The Pirates got their scoring underway in the second inning, when Steve Sides got on base with a single. Sides then stole second base, and scored on Mark Cockrell's single. All of this took place with two outs.

The Bucs remained silent until the fifth inning. With one out, Mont Carter got on base with a walk. Greg Hardison moved Carter to third base with a double. Chris Bradberry then brought Carter home with a single.

The Pirates struck once again in the sixth inning. Mike Sullivan led off the inning with a double. Jay McGraw then received a walk, putting runners on first and second with no outs in the inning.

Sides then bunted, moving Sullivan to third and McGraw to second with one out. Cockrell sent a sacrifice fly to center field enabling Sullivan to score, pushing the Bucs lead to 3-0.

In the eighth inning, McGraw was walked with one out, followed by Cockrell who was walked with two outs in the inning, putting runners on first and second. Jim Riley doubled home both McGraw and Cockrell giving the Pirates their final tally of five runs.

Leading hitter for the Pirates was Sullivan, as he turned in a two-for-four performance.

With the win, the Pirates picked up their 20th win of the season against only one loss. That start is the best ever in ECU history.

In the first game of the double-header with Ohio University on Tues. March 25, Winfred Johnson picked up his fifth win of the year, against no losses. Johnson went the distance for the Pirates, who won 8-6.

With the win, Johnson set a school record for wins in a career with 29. The old record was 28 wins held by Mickey Britt (1977-80).

Sophomore McGraw led the way for the Pirates in hitting as he drove in three runs.

Sullivan and Bradley also contributed two hits each to pace the Bucs.

In the nightcap, the Pirates came from behind to take a 10-5 decision from Ohio.

Heading into the bottom of the third, the Pirates seemed to be in a lot of trouble, trailing 5-0.

Then the explosion came. The Pirates sent fourteen batters to the plate, as they scored ten runs in the third inning.

Johnson led the way with a towering three-run homer, giving him 59 for his career (also a school record). With the homerun, Johnson moved to within just one homerun and one pitching victory of being the first player in NCAA history to have 60 homers and 30 pitching victories in a career.

Sullivan, the Pirates junior first baseman, also batted a roundtripper in the third inning.

Jim Peterson picked up the win for ECU as he went the distance, pushing his record to 5-1 for the season.

The next action for the baseballers will be Saturday, as they will travel to James Madison for a two-day stint with the Dukes.

The Rugby Club competed in the UNC-G Tourney and walked away with a third-place finish.

ECU Cheerleaders Optimistic

By SCOTT COOPER

No matter what the score, no matter who the opponent is, ECU will always be fully supported as long as the Pirate cheerleaders are on hand.

The ECU cheerleading squad, coached by Pam Davis, is constantly backing ECU athletics. The team took 13th place in national competition and is eagerly looking for interested students.

Coach Pam Davis stressed the need for more male cheerleaders. "The one thing I would like to get across is male cheerleading," Davis said. "We really want to emphasize how important men are (to the program). It's a masculine thing to do. If you've got good guys, you can build a better team."

"We have an ex-football player on the team and another one is trying out," Davis added. "Girls are important too, of course — it's easier to get girls, they've had high school experience."

Whether it is a guy or a girl, the cheerleaders are having tryouts for interested men or women. Beginning next Tues. Apr. 1 at 5 pm in room 142 Minges Coliseum, there will be an organizational meeting. At the meeting, Davis will discuss what is required along with some background information on the team. Clinics will be held that week with tryouts being held on Tues. Apr. 8 (the time will be announced).

Now would be a super time to get involved with the cheerleaders, according to Davis. "We finished 13th in the nation. It was a super season," Davis acknowledged. "We got recognition in Memphis and pats on the back all year."

The Pirate squad did have some tough competition in Memphis. Such schools as N.C. State (national champs this year), Auburn, Ole Miss, Nebraska, LSU and Penn State were some top names that were competing. However, the Bucs withstood the competition and fared rather well in all three events — cheer, fight song and the side-line competition.

"We finished in the finals of all three and took home the most-improved award," Davis said happily. "We were in the top-ten of everything — we felt good about that."

All the success is due to hard work. The squad practices everyday with stringent workouts. The guys are in the weight room three times a week while the ladies spend two days a week on the weights. Also, the men must run a seven-minute mile while the women must clock in under the eight-minute mark.

Davis had some basic priorities for the team. They are: 1) to support the teams, no matter what and 2) to go (and compete) to the national championship. She also said that the team is open to all suggestions and that they did not discourage anyone.

"We feel it will be a heckuva year for us," added Davis.

ECU cheerleader Tim Rochester had nothing but positive thoughts about his cheerleading experience.

"It's fun. It's always a competition — we compete every game," Rochester said. "It's a sport. I work, even more at this than other sports. I do it in spare time and am always practicing."

For anyone interested in becoming part of the ECU cheerleading squad, your chance is now. Be at Minges at 5 pm on Apr. 8 to obtain more information.

Lady Tracksters Fare Well In Meet

By WALT RISHEL

The ECU Lady track team, under supervision of second-year head coach Wayne Miller, are looking forward to a season of progress and success.

The lady Pirates began their 1986 campaign with strong efforts in the North Carolina State University Invationals and the Georgia Relays. In both events, the Lady Pirates have placed in the top-five in each category they had entered.

Sophomore Linda Gillis led the way at the NCSU Invitational with a first place effort in the 100-meter run. Her time in the event was 12.0 seconds. Lisa Poteat also contributed with a strong second-place finish in the 400-meter run with a time of 60.0 seconds.

With a combined effort, the women's team placed second in the 400 x 100 relay with a clocking of 48.3 seconds. Javelin thrower Wendy Trone finished second in the Georgia Relays with a throw of 138 feet.

Gillis feels that the team has done great, despite the fact that the seven-member team is still young (4 sophomores, 3 freshmen).

"We're just now getting into it," Gillis commented. "Being a very small team, we're progressing a great deal."

Gillis' goals for the team are to keep progressing, and for the mile-relay times to improve. On a more personal scale, her goals are to run the 200-meter race in 23 seconds, and to make the National competition. (She came within two-tenths of a second from being invited last season).

The lady Pirates next meet will be the Carolina Relays on Apr. 4-5.

The ECU cheerleaders, shown in action in last year's ECAC-South Tourney in Williamsburg, are looking for interested students.

Sullivan and Bradley also contributed two hits each to pace the Bucs.

In the nightcap, the Pirates came from behind to take a 10-5 decision from Ohio.

Heading into the bottom of the third, the Pirates seemed to be in a lot of trouble, trailing 5-0.

Then the explosion came. The Pirates sent fourteen batters to the plate, as they scored ten runs in the third inning.

Johnson led the way with a towering three-run homer, giving him 59 for his career (also a school record). With the homerun, Johnson moved to within just one homerun and one pitching victory of being the first player in NCAA history to have 60 homeruns and 30 pitching victories in a career.

Sullivan, the Pirates' junior first baseman, also batted a roundtripper in the third inning.

Jim Peterson picked up the win for ECU, as he went the distance, pushing his record to 5-1 for the season.

The next action for the baseballers will be Saturday, as they will travel to James Madison for a two-day stint with the Dukes.

Tracksters Well In Meet

The 400 x 100 relay with a clocking of 48.3 seconds. Javelin thrower Wendy Trone finished second in the Georgia Relays with a throw of 138 feet.

Gillis feels that the team has done great, despite the fact that the seven-member team is still young (4 sophomores, 3 freshmen).

"We're just now getting into it," Gillis commented. "Being a very small team, we're progressing a great deal."

Gillis' goals for the team are to keep progressing, and for the mile-relay times to improve. On a more personal scale, her goals are to run the 200-meter race in .23 seconds, and to make the National competition. (She came within two-tenths of a second from being invited last season).

The lady Pirates next meet will be the Carolina Relays on Apr. 4-5.

Consolation Champion

"Several players from South Carolina told me that this was the hardest hitting game they had played in."

The Ruggers battled the UNC Tarheel Rugby Club on Sun. March 23 for the consolation-bracket championship and a third-place finish in the tourney.

ECU dominated the entire game, however the score may not be so indicative. Eckley was again the offensive weapon for the Club as he nailed two drop-kicks for ECU. The 6-0 score was good enough to lift the Ruggers past UNC while taking third place.

The host team, UNC-G, won the tournament as the rest of the results are posted below.

Eckley and Calcott are both microbiology students from Great Britain. They, and senior rugger David Schumacher, had some comments following the tourney action.

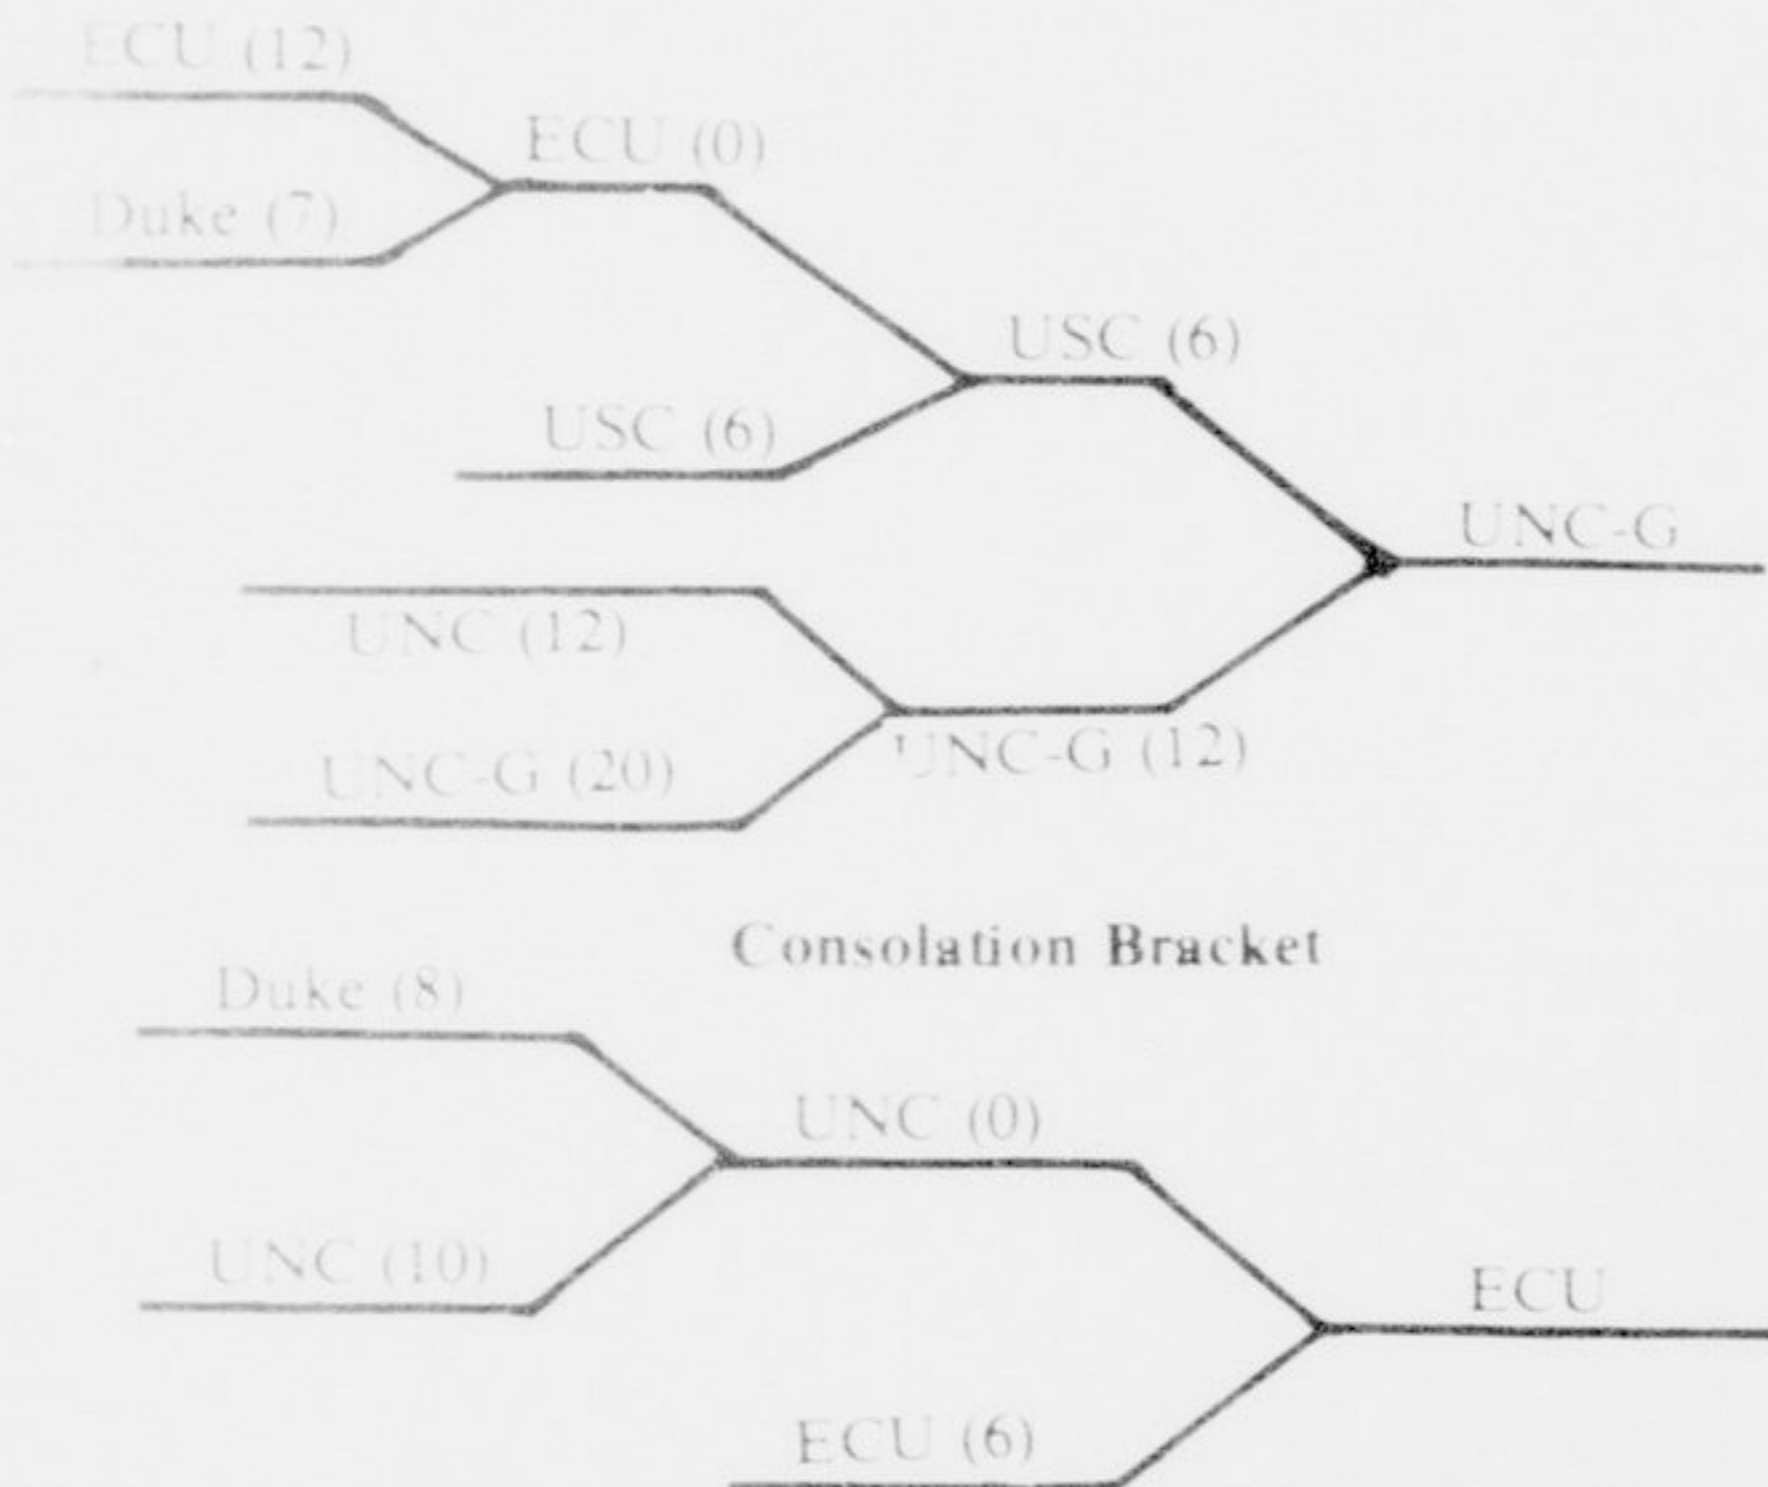

"I'm really glad I came to East Carolina," Eckley said. "I like the people in this area, and have made some really good friendships through my rugby experience here at ECU."

"It was an excellent team performance this weekend by everybody," said Calcott. "UNC-G were great hosts to an exciting and interesting tournament."

"A fantastic weekend to add to my last semester in association with the Rugby Club," said Schumacher.

The Ruggers will next be in action a week from this weekend when they travel to Wilmington to compete in the UNC-W Tournament. Some teams competing in the tournament include Davidson, Belmont Abbey, Guilford College as well as some others.

The Club will then end the season at home when they host Campbell University.
