Opinions differ about condom dispensers

By KAREN MANN
Staff Writer

Should condoms be sold in vending machines in ECU dormitories? According to Chancellor Richard Eakin the answer is no.

"We at ECU are presently making condoms available to all students through the Student Health Service. Moreover, businesses in the community present the opportunity for students to purchase condoms," he said.

Several weeks ago, the chancellor's AIDS Education Subcommittee submitted ten recommendations for preventing the spread of AIDS on campus. The chancellor supports all except the fourth recommendation, which calls for the installation of condom vending machines in dormitories as well as Mendenhall Student Center and the Belk building. Supporters of this recommendation claim that the machines would give students convenient access to condoms when the Health Center would be closed. Chancellor Eakin believes that this is not a strong enough reason to install the machines.

"A responsible adult who has a need to purchase condoms will do so beforehand," he said. Other recommendations from the committee, such as selling condoms over the counter at the Student Store, are already being acted upon.

SGA legislator Ben Eckert obtained a copy of the committee's report and on March 21 introduced a resolution to the SGA calling for support of all ten recommendations.

"I was aware that the Chancellor had seen the resolution and didn't support that part," he said. "I hope he understands there is much student support for this but I realize his right to veto." Eckert claimed that condoms can be sold in vending machines in a tasteful manner. "This wouldn't be like the stereotype of the old rest room condom machine. I wouldn't support something like that."

Legislator Allen Manning, who argued against the fourth proposal to the SGA, disagrees with this point. "As far as a tasteful environment, the seller isn't discriminating against who sees it. In a dorm lobby everyone, including parents and children will see it. You're really cloaking convenience with the AIDS scare." Manning argued that installing condom machines would bring unwanted media coverage to the university and that the condoms sold would be of questionable quality. Yet, Manning admitted that many ECU students support this legislation.

IRS decides grad students

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — Grad students around the country got a reprieve from the Internal Revenue Service March 10.

The IRS said it was going to delay prosecuting 17,000 grad students who allegedly had not paid taxes on the campus stipend they got for working as teaching assistants or research aides in 1984 and 1985.

Responding to nationwide complaints, IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs announced March 10 that his agency was going to suspend its efforts to tax the stipends until it creates "national policy" on the matter.

A two-day Sports Medicine Conference for athletic trainers, coaches and team physicians will be held April 15-16 at East Carolina University.

The conference will place special emphasis on the treatment and care of arm and shoulder injuries. Some other topics will include AIDS and the athletic trainer, abdominal injuries, and kidney and urinary tract problems in athletes.

Rod Compton, ECU director of Sports Medicine, said the program is designed to provide necessary skills and techniques in developing a systematic program of prevention, treatment and rehabilitation of athletic injuries.

SGA candidates restate their views

TIM HAMPTON
Assistant News Editor

As the April 6 run off elections for SGA president and vice president approach, the candidates are reiterating their individual stands on issues facing the future of ECU.

On the ballot are presidential candidates, Larry Murphy and Greg Thompson, and vice presidential candidates, Steve Sommers and Kelly Jones.

In interviews this week, the candidates were asked to respond on four campus issues, dorm renters rights, the parking problem, the work petition program and Pirate Walk. Here are their responses to the issues:

Dorm renters' rights
Murphy: "Dorms are like apartments. I think when it comes to a dorm situation, it is the renter's room and their rights should not be violated. Forty eight percent of ECU students live in the dormitories and their rights should be protected."

Thompson: "Being a resident advisor, I know that it is out of our jurisdiction to change the laws because dorms are state owned property. It is policy handed down by the state."

I am not aware of RAs abusing the use of the master key, but I don't think you should search a room without cause.

Sommers: "The resident advisors are getting caught in the middle of all this. They are actually making refrigerator checks for alcohol. During my campaign, I have heard at least 50 stories of people's rights being violated."

It is not the RAs at fault, it is the people putting the heat on the RAs. Why on this campus do we leave the constitution at the door? There needs to be a change in policy."

Jones: "First of all, I don't think the rights are being violated as much as Steve says they are. I called Campus Security and they said that the only reason they could enter a dorm room would be for illegal substances. Before they can search the room, they must get permission from the people."

I see no reason to take away the master keys from the RAs because it is a safety precaution. If I were getting raped in my dorm room, I would expect the RA to open the room."

Parking
Murphy: "Even though the parking plan has already been decided on, I think we should building up and not building out. Maybe we should think about building a parking deck at the bottom of college hill. I would try to push for a 1,200 space deck."

The Minges parking lot should be for freshmen and the existing freshmen lot across from Rose High should be open for commuters. The lots at Belk Allied Health should be used for commuters with a shuttle system running every five minutes.

Thompson: "I propose an option to commuters, either buy a parking sticker and park on campus or park for free at Belk Allied Health and catch a shuttle to campus."

Offering the option would give commuters incentive to park away from campus. I propose a shuttle to run every ten minutes."

Sommers: "My parking plan has four parts, 1) New lines for compact cars. 2) Carpool-have to have more than one person in the car to park on campus. 3) Proity parking-for those students who don't want to carpool make a lot for them with a higher priced sticker. Maybe $75 to $80. 4) Shuttle bus-for commuters who can't carpool. A quick ten minute shuttle from Minges, Allied Health and the Willis Building."

Jones: "I sit on the Traffic/Parking Committee, so I have seen most of the problems come through. We need to work on the reallocation of parking spaces for everybody. We need to work on the lot on the bottom of the hill. We don't need to build anymore lots, but more reallocation needs to be done."

Pirate Walk
Murphy: "It is very important to rejuvenate this program for the safety of the girls on campus which compose of 55 percent of the population. We need to think about possibly extending the hours the service is provided and extend the radius of the walkers beyond the 5th and 10th street barriers."

We need more advertisement about Pirate Walk and we need to get the head RAs of the dorms to inform the girls that the service is available for them. The most important part about Pirate Walk is communicating to the females on campus about the escort service."

Thompson: "We need to incorporate Pirate Walk with public safety. Emphasis needs to be placed on Pirate Walk to make it a more stable program."

I propose to make a work study

Edwards, others, sentenced

Theodore "Blue" Edwards, suspended this year from the ECU basketball squad for disciplinary reasons, was sentenced Monday to a three-year suspended sentence and five years of supervised probation for his part in a series of Scott dormitory break-ins in December of 1986.

The sentencing by Superior Court Judge David Reid Jr. came after Edwards' entered a plea of no contest to one count of receiving stolen property as part of a plea bargain. He had originally been charged with three counts of breaking and entering. A no contest plea is not an admission of guilt but rather an agreement not to contest the charges.

Three former ECU basketball players, Howard Brown, Tracy King and John Williams were also sentenced Monday.

Brown, now a student at Missouri Valley College, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and must remain on supervised probation for five years. Brown pleaded guilty in November to two counts of breaking and entering. He was also involved in another, earlier, dormitory break-in. His jail term will begin the first Monday after his last day of classes this semester.

King, who pleaded no contest to two counts of receiving stolen property, received a three-year suspended sentence, five years of probation and 72 hours of community service as his punishment.

Williams pleaded guilty in November to two counts of breaking and entering. He received a four-year suspended sentence, five years of supervised probation and 72 hours of community service Monday.

Each defendant must also make restitution based on the value of the items taken in the particular break-ins in which they were involved.

Chancellor's inauguration upcoming

By JEANIE WHEBY
Staff Writer

The inauguration of Chancellor Richard R. Eakin will be held April 15 at 11 a.m. in Wright Auditorium. Many events have been planned in his honor.

Eakin has been serving as chancellor since March, 1987. He chose to wait and have his inauguration in April of the following year however, because he feels that both ECU and Greenville are at their best in the spring. According to Richard Edwards, the supervisor of the inaugural events, "Chancellor Eakin believes that attention should be focused on the school instead of him; these events should celebrate the life of the University."

The inaugural planning committee, chaired by Max R. Joyner Sr. and made up of faculty, staff, alumni, and students, has been meeting since early November and has planned many events. Although the committee has mailed approximately 3,000 invitations, the general public is able to attend several of the events including a concert, an inaugural symposium and the actual inaugural ceremony.

The inaugural events begin April 14th with a concert in Wright Auditorium. The East Carolina University Choir and Orchestra with special guests will perform Bach's Passion According to St. John. The concert begins at 8 p.m.

The inaugural ceremony will be conducted the following day and will also be held in Wright Auditorium. The ceremony begins at 11 a.m. and is predicted to last until 12:15 p.m. Although the public can attend the ceremony, the Planning Committee requests that one calls in advance for a complimentary ticket so that they may estimate the number that will attend. The committee's phone number is 757-6105.

Speakers at the ceremony include Thomas Bennett, chairman of the Board of Trustees, Edward E. Carter, mayor of Greenville, and James G. Martin, Governor of North Carolina.

There will be a reception and luncheon following the ceremony that is closed for guests and friends. The luncheon is sponsored by the Student Government Association, and Scott Thomas, SGA president, will be host.

To end the events, there will be an inaugural symposium in Hendrix Theater at 2:30 p.m. the same day. This is open to the public. The topic is Leadership and Ethics and the principal speaker is Dr. Ronald Roskens, president of the University of Nebraska.

Foundation protects environment, starting new chapter at ECU

Most people do not realize the importance of the Tar River, but the Greenville chapter of The Pamlico-Tar River wants to change that.

The Pamlico Tar River Foundation (PTRF) is a non profit tax-exempt organization whose purpose is to promote and protect the natural resources and water quality of the Pamlico and Tar River.

According to Becky Leach, member of the group, "The PTRF is a group of members who are concerned with the water quality issues that concern both rivers." Leach said the PTRF serves as a watchdog for the rivers. It keeps track of all permits and public meetings of all permits and public meetings pertaining to the river.

Leach said the waters of both rivers are now turbid and murky and the PTRF wants to aid in preserving the waters.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is now in the process of studying the rivers and how to improve the water quality.

The PTRF hopes to establish a sub group on campus by meeting with prospective members interested in the environmental issues that affect the river.

"The object of this meeting is to introduce the campus community to the organization. Water quality issues that the PTRF is involved with will be discussed and Rusty Gaul will present a slide show on the PTRF," she said. Gaul, an ECU graduate, serves on the PTRF Education committee.

This committee is busy organizing an "All Species Day" planned for April 23rd. Many of ECU's faculty are already involved in PTRF. The meeting to establish a subgroup of PTRF will be held April 12 at 7 p.m. in the Biology Building Room 103-N and is open to anyone interested in attending.

Filled with students during the day, the new building has more peaceful moments through the night. (Hardy Alligood — Photolab)

College drops pre-paid tuition

(CPS) — The school that pioneered one of the now-standard experiments in helping parents prepay tuition years before their children get to college has dropped the idea.

Just weeks after the Reagan administration asked Congress to adopt a similar plan for the whole country, Duquesne University in Pittsburgh announced March 2 it was suspending its landmark prepaid tuition plan.

"The economy has changed so drastically that we have to re-evaluate the program to make certain it's a good venture," said Duquesne spokeswoman Ann Rago.

Duquesne attracted national attention in 1985 when it initiated its program that enabled parents to pay it a fixed amount that, by the time their children grew to college age, would cover 4 years of tuition at the school.

"We have been on the cutting edge by starting this program," Rago said. "Now we will be on the cutting edge in reevaluating it."

At the end of February, moreover, the National Governor's Association cautioned the federal government against adopting similar plans that would "pre-empt" state pre-paid tuition efforts that have already been adopted or are under consideration.

The governors also stated their concern that the federal government would use a tuition savings plan as an excuse to reduce student loan and grant programs.

Officials in many states also are anxiously waiting for the Internal Revenue Service to rule on the tax status of pre-paid tuition plans before proceeding with their own.

Duquesne officials said they were stopping their program because the bonds they'd invested in to help pay for it were not earning as much as they had anticipated, and because they had to raise tuition much faster than they had planned.

As a result, their investments would not return enough money to pay the tuition of the children when they finally get to Duquesne.

The 662 families already enrolled in the program will not be affected, said Rago.

Governors, legislatures and private college officials around the country have been weighing variations of the Duquesne plan, which lets parents pay a lump sum that would — after being properly invested by the school or the state — grow into enough money to pay for 4 years of college by the time the student gets to college age.

Michigan, for one, already has adopted such a plan, but is still waiting for the IRS to rule on its tax status.

The IRS is to decide if it will tax the plan the same way it taxes other investment gains.

If the IRS decides to treat a tuition investment the same way it taxes all other investments, some critics say the plan will provide too little incentive to participate. Other states are postponing establishing such programs until the IRS reaches a decision on the Michigan program.

The Reagan administration also had proposed a plan to give tax breaks to parents who buy savings bonds for their children's tuition.

While the National Governor's Association did not object to the Reagan proposal, spokeswoman Emily Young said the governors wanted to "set some parameters for federal action" when they asked the administration not to upset other state savings plans now being debated.

Still others think the plans, like Duquesne's would be destined to go broke, and require states to bail them out.

"What you may be doing," said Aims McGuiness of the Education Commission of the States, "is shifting the burden of education from the next generation of students through loans to the next generation of governors through state subsidies."

IRS decides to not prosecute grad students who misfiled

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — Grad students around the country got a reprieve from the Internal Revenue Service March 10.

The IRS said it was going to delay prosecuting 17,000 grad students who allegedly had not paid taxes on the campus stipends they got for working as teaching assistants or research aides in 1984 and 1985.

Responding to nationwide complaints, IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs announced March 10 that his agency was going to suspend its efforts to tax the stipends until it creates a "national policy" on the matter.

The tax reform act of 1986 required, for the first time ever, that grad students pay taxes on any stipends they got over and above the cost of their tuitions. It also made stipends paid in 1984 and 1985 — years before the tax reform law — subject to taxes.

About 17,000 grad students got IRS letters in recent weeks, warning them to pay taxes or face prosecution.

IRS spokesman Steve Pyrek attributed the letters to normal, computerized procedures.

Campuses automatically report the stipends they pay grad students to the IRS, whose computers, treating the money as taxable income, automatically produced and sent the threatening letters, Pyrek said.

"To be hounding these young people who are living on meager incomes is ludicrous," fumed University of Alabama graduate studies Dean William MacMillan upon hearing complaints from grad students.

At Indiana University's graduate studies office, "I had a student in my office in tears because he got a student loan and had to pay it over right away to the IRS," Sheila Cooper told the Associated Press.

After several members of Congress also complained, IRS Commissioner Gibbs announced the IRS would give up chasing down grad students at least until the end of March.

Sports Medicine conference held

A two-day Sports Medicine Conference for athletic trainers, coaches and team physicians will be held April 15-16 at East Carolina University.

The conference will place special emphasis on the treatment and care of arm and shoulder injuries. Some other topics will include AIDS and the athletic trainer, abdominal injuries, and kidney and urinary tract problems in athletics.

Rod Compton, ECU director of Sports Medicine, said the program is designed to provide necessary skills and techniques for developing a systematic program of prevention, treatment and rehabilitation of athletic injuries.

He said the program will provide instruction for certified athletic trainers, teacher-trainers, coaches, student trainers and team physicians in schools with or without a sports medicine program.

Members of the conference staff include Compton, Karen Baker and Greg Beres of the Sports Medicine Division. In addition presentations will be made by medical doctors Edwin Bartlett, James Bowman, James Carter, James McCallum, Denis McGillicuddy and Emmett Walsh. Phillip Callicutt from the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center will discuss AIDS and the athletic trainer and Robbie Lester of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction will present information about sports medicine in North Carolina.

Friday and Saturday sessions will be held in the Carol G. Belk (Allied Health) Building from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Some other activities include a tour of the National Athletic Trainers Association national office, a tour of the ECU sports medicine facilities and an eastern North Carolina style pig pickin.

Tuition for the conference is $50. For information and to register contact the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Greenville, N.C. 27858-4353 or call 919-757-6143. The registration deadline is April 1.

Causes become hip again for yuppies, others

(CPS)—Causes are hip again. But not if you are have to wear love beads.

The new volunteers are swarming to help the less fortunate at a startling rate. Perhaps most startling is their origin. These are not particularly socially conscious individuals raised on a kebbutz or a commune. These are people living in high-rises and driving cars that cost twice what most of us will be paid our first year out of college. These people are busy. They have money to burn, coffee beans to grind and brunches to eat.

Yuppies are volunteering, it's the latest thing.

Good for them. Right? What could be better than people with time, money and compassion to give? People who actually give it.

As one volunteer put it, volunteering "makes me feel lucky. When I go home and see what I have, it all means so much more."

Huh?

"There are so many social problems and so few ways to address them," notes another, adding that volunteering "makes you feel less guilty."

Shirley Keller, vice president of Workplace Programs for Volunteers, speculates this sudden increase in voluntarism is, in part, due to the need for security. Individuals feel that if they look after someone now, someone will look after them later. Probably while their friends and children are boating.

Mike King, executive VP of the organization, has a different theory.

"Why are they there? To meet other yuppies. It's better than a singles bar."

The newest trend, the compassion kick, is receiving more publicity every day. Tutors. Hospital volunteers, soup-kitchen workers. Volunteering is a lot less fun than squash, but it beats aerobics any day.

The upward mobile are anxious to help. It sounds so good. It only takes a few hours a week.

However, as a friend of mine noted, "Um, I don't mean to cut it down, but I think volunteering has been around for quite a while. It's nothing new."

She's right. I have an aunt in Washington, D.C., who, wvery holiday season, stays there. Her mother lives in Chicago, as does the rest of the family, but my aunt stays to deliver Christmas dinner to shut-ins. My aunt is no saint, but I do admire her for this. She genuinely wants to help someone. She does not do it for the sole benefit of making herself feel less guilty for owning a Cuisinart.

In many cases, a lot of the motivation is positive publicity. Companies that sponsor volunteer programs look good in the eyes of everyone but the stockholders. It bothers investors to think that their money may be poured into a company that is not putting all its effort into making more cash.

Some companies, mostly notably Atlantic Richfield Company, were forced to downplay volunteer expenditures when the company was not as profitable as it had been the previous year. Helping the less fortunate has its merits, but shareholders have their good points too.

There's something wrong with this whole rationale.

Volunteering, I always thought, was something one might do with one's extra time because there was a need to be filled. The needy take the form of homeless individuals, children with reading problems or senior citizens unable to pick up their own groceries. It could take the form of terminally ill kids.

This need, until now, had not manifested itself as a need to purge oneself of guilt or meet others who share that guilty in hopes of diffusing it.

We can only hope that the ends do indeed justify the means. Even if the helping is done for the wrong reasons, there remains the potential for an important learning experience.

Personal interaction with people in need can only raise consciousness, making individuals with the power aware of what needs to be done. After the trendiness of the whole concept wears off, maybe there will remain a core of concerned people with the means to do a lot of good.

It would be a shame if the cause became old news and was replaced by another diversion.

program for Pirate Walk in which 80 percent of the wages would be made by state funding. The other 20 percent could come from public safety or the SGA.

Sommers: "The need for Pirate Walk needs to be recognized. There has been three rapes and two attempted rapes since spring break that I know of. The engine of Pirate Walk is there it just needs oil and spark plugs.

We need consultation with women's groups on campus to find ways to run the service more effectively.

Jones: "I have done a lot of work with Captain Knox on Pirate Walk. By using auxiliary campus security officers for the service, the officers could practice law enforcement and the walkers would have sit around.

Advertisement about Pirate Walk would be well worth the money. Through ads the girls would know that the service is there for them."

The Work Petition Program

Murphy: "I think the best alternative would be to do more checking on employers of the students who say they work. Handicaps and athletes have to have this program. If elected I would try my best during the summer to try to get the program back."

Thompson: "Last year the administration did not monitor the program sufficiently. By closely monitoring the program so that it wouldn't be abused, I think the program could work. We should limit the program for the students who definitely have a time conflict with their work."

Korea, Summer Olympics topics of ECU symposium

ECU News Bureau

Korea, the host country for the 1988 Summer Olympic Games, will be the topic for a symposium, April 7, at East Carolina University.

The 14th Symposium on Asia ("The Far East in Transition: Focus on Korea") will begin at 2 p.m. in Room 1032 of the New Classroom Building. At 7:30 p.m. Dr. Donald McDonald of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University will deliver the keynote presentation in Room 1031 of the New Classroom Building.

McDonald, a research professor of Korea studies, will discuss "South Korea: The Future of Democracy."

Afternoon presentations beginning at 2 p.m. include "Security for the Olympiad and Inter-Korea Relations" by Dr. Han Shick Park of the University of Georgia. He will be followed by Thomas Dunlop of the U.S. State Department on "The United States and the Two Koreas in Transition."

All presentations are free and open to the public.

Prior to joining the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, McDonald was director of the Office of Intelligence Coordination in the U.S. Department of State and was an international relations officer in Korea. He has lectured and written extensively on Korean affairs.

Park is a professor of Political Science at the University of Georgia. He writes and lectures on human rights and Asian politics and is involved in reuniting separated Korean families.

Dunlop is director of the Office of Korean Affairs with the U.S. Department of State.

For more information about the symposium contact the ECU office of International Studies and Scholarships at 757-6769.

There is such a need for the program. Trying to balance an academic schedule working schedule is hard enough so why make it harder."

Jones: "I would reinstate the system. I would make sure that more inept forms are used because people abuse the system. I was talking to Dr. Davis in academic affairs who has a lot of good ideas on it.

They should run a through check on the work places. I think if I were a working student, I wouldn't mind filling out the addition forms."

"She's doing it the way I originally wanted to," says Paul McCartney, when asked his opinion on Tiffany's remake of "I Saw Her Standing There."

"I believe she's done the definitive version of the song. A lot of the things Tiff's put in were ideas of mine that John rejected," McCartney revealed. The question had been put to the ex-beatle last week in light of protests by many rock-n-roll purists. McCartney went on to elaborate.

"At the beginning of the song, Tiff says, 'I saw you standing there, nyah-na-na-na.' I wanted to do that. But nooooo, Mr. Lennon wouldn't have that. Ringo liked the idea, as I recall."

McCartney also pointed out that the song has been retitled, "I Saw Him Standing There."

"Again, that's another good thing. That's what I wanted to call it," the Liverpuddian added, drawing stares and lude comments from the crowd. An unruly bystander began screaming obscenities at McCartney, protesting that Lennon would have never stood for the remake.

"Well he's dead now, isn't he," closed McCartney, climbing into his Rolls-Royce.

SEEN AROUND TOWN

Alright boys and girls, here's the poop on who all might just be the latest item around Tinsel City. Remember, you heard it first from ol'

Prince Charles and Whoopi Goldberg were seen cavorting together at one of Bruce Willis' parties. A close friend of His Royal Earness disclosed a comment he overheard straight from the Prince's mouth. "We don't get much brown sugar in the Isles," Charles smirked.

William Shatner and Mother Theresa observed hanging out at Studio 54. The ex-Capt. Kirk/T.J. Hooker was heard to say, "I dig the old chick. She's a gutsy babe. Besides, you know how I like to go where no man has gone before!"

Keisha Knight-Pulliam and Roman Polanski - Famous for her role as 'Rudy' on The Cosby Show, Keisha was seen riding piggyback on the shoulders of the director of "Frantic" during her recent vacation in France. "I wish we had time to cultivate our relationship," Keisha told a friend, "but I've still got 'Cosby' and schoolwork holding me down, and for some reason Roman won't come to the States." Burgess Meredith and Meredith Family Ties. "The only way I would have stayed on is if NBC had put Burgess in the role of Steven Keaton, replacing Michael Gross." When reached for comment, Meredith (the old fogey, that is) replied only, "Wak-wak-waaaak!"

stringed, percussive instrument played with light hammers which are held in the hand — in now his principle instrument for song composition. "The hammer dulcimer is nice, but it's too pretty," Hamer notes.

"Like I say, I really like the raunchy kinds of music." Some students in Adaptive Physical Recreation at E.C.U. are working on making a special slide for him so that he can play some slide guitar, to get a raunchier, more blues-related effect.

Last fall, Hamer went out with some friends to Beau's to hear his friend Lightnin' Wells play and he says he simply had a blast dancing with his friends. Afterwards he had an idea to do a video on wheelchair dancing. He and a friend began to get excited about the prospects of the idea and pursued some funding possibilities.

The project is now underway and Hamer hopes that it will be completed by July. Hamer has written some songs to be used in the video, one of which begins with these lyrics: "I may not be walkin' baby, / but I can roll right up to you!"

"In a sense this wheelchair video is political in terms of just lettin' people know that, hey folks in chairs have fun, and they like to go out and dance," Hamer says. He certainly has become more aware of disability issues since his accident. "I'm sure that, as I keep on, I'll probably get more and more political about disability issues," he says.

"But once again, I guess I would like to tackle it in sort of the same way as tis wheelchair video: kind of on the side of 'Let's celebrate it!' So we're in chairs. Let's celebrate that!"

Scott Sawyer Trio, a band, to play Mendenhall center

The Student Union's Special Concerts Committee and the East Carolina University School of Music will present the Scott Sawyer Trio in a performance April 7, at 8 p.m. in Room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center. This concert is free, and refreshments will be served.

Joining the trio for this special performance will be East Carolina University's own jazz pianist, Paul Tardif. Tardif has performed extensively as a classical and jazz artist. Among his recent accomplishments is his performance as the pianist for the Statue of Liberty re-dedication ceremonies.

The Scott Sawyer Trio features guitarist Scott Sawyer, drummer David Via, and bassist Ben Seawell. Along with keyboardist Jim Crew, they play a variety of original music from Scott's LP, "Two Sides."

Pictured here are some of the best comic book panels of all time. Kids, see if you, the reader, can identify which books they came from. If you guess all six, we'll think about putting your name on the Fun N Games page. Here are some clues...

- Clue 1) This is the funniest panel in the history of the written word. Only the funniest plagiarist in modern comics could have written it.
- Clue 2) Three members of this "World's Greatest Comic" are shown, but the fourth might be in there too.
- Clue 3) If you can't get this one, you might as well go be a business major.
- Clue 4) and 5) They might have gotten their own magazine, but they still don't dress any better, and they still walk funny.
- Clue 6) This super hero's mode of transport was asked as a "Jeopardy" question. Were you watching that night?

East Carolina used some hitting and a little Wednesday night at Horn Field to sweep a pair of conference baseball games St. Bonaventure.

ECU won the opening game a 6-5 count, while in the night the Pirates routed the Bonnies.

In the doubleheader sweep Pirates used some key experiments that proved to David Ritchie, who played base for the first 24 games of the season, was moved to short and freshman Kevin Riggan inserted at third base.

The changes gave the Pirates a batting lineup consisting of left-handed batters, four right-handed batters and one switch hitter. The moves paid off as the Pirates hurled at the Pirates.

The opening game victory the Pirates was up in air until managed to score a single in the bottom half of the seventh.

Steve Godin led off the half of the seventh with a single. Godin then stole second and scored. Following that, Thomas struck out and Bonnies then elected to load the bases with one out.

Baseballers sweep pair from St. Bonaventure

By TIM CHANDLER
Sports Editor

East Carolina used some key hitting and a little luck Wednesday night at Harrington Field to sweep a pair of non-conference baseball games from St. Bonaventure.

ECU won the opening game by a 6-5 count, while in the nightcap the Pirates routed the Bonnies 15-

In the doubleheader sweep, the Pirates used some key lineup experiments that proved fruitful. David Ritchie, who played third base for the first 24 games of the season, was moved to short stop and freshman Kevin Riggs was inserted at third base.

The changes gave the Pirates a batting lineup consisting of four left-handed batters, four right-handed batters and one switch hitter. The moves paid off against the two right handed pitchers the Bonnies hurled at the Pirates.

The opening game victory for the Pirates was up in air until ECU managed to score a single run in the bottom half of the seventh inning.

Steve Godin led off the Pirates half of the seventh with a walk. Godin then stole second and third bases. Following that, John Thomas struck out and the Bonnies then elected to walk Tommy Yarbrough and Riggs to load the bases with one out.

Chris Cauble failed on his attempt to bring in the winning run when he grounded into a fielder's choice, however, Ritchie managed to push the winning run across when he grounded a ball to the Bonnies' second sacker Pat Johnston. The ball was fielded cleanly by Johnston, but first baseman Mike Nayman bobbled the ensuing throw to allow Yarbrough to score.

Thomas led the way at the plate for the Pirates in the game by going two-for-four with a triple and a RBI. Jay McGraw and Riggs each swatted doubles for the Pirates in the game enroute to posting one-for-two hitting performances.

Pirate hurler Johnathon Jenkins, 2-0 for the season, picked up the win on the mound in relief of starter Gary Smith. Jenkins pitched two and two-thirds innings of hitless ball.

The Pirates trailed 5-3 heading to the bottom of the fourth frame in the contest but managed to get the game knotted at 5-5 thanks to a sacrifice fly by Ritchie and a run-scoring single by Calvin Brown.

In the nightcap, the Pirates belted 10 hits and received nine bases on balls from the Bonnies' pitching staff to insure the rout. Among the 10 Pirate hits were three doubles, a triple and a pair of roundtrippers.

The Pirates broke out on top of the game early with a three-run first inning blitz. ECU went on to add four runs in the second frame to build a 7-0 lead.

The door was slammed shut in the Bonnies face in the third inning as the Pirates tacked on five more runs. McGraw's delivered a three-run homer in the inning to aid the five-run burst.

Yarbrough accounted for the only other Pirate runs in the contest when he belted a two-run homer in the sixth inning. The home run was the first of the year for Yarbrough.

Freshman pitcher John White improved his season mark to 3-0 with the win on the mound for the Pirates. White pitched four innings for the Pirates, giving up two hits and striking out three.

The doubleheader sweep pushed the Pirates record to 17-9 for the season with a key three-game series set with Colonial Athletic Association foe William & Mary this weekend at Harrington Field.

The Indians are currently second in the CAA standings after sweeping three contests from George Mason earlier this year.

The Pirates will play a doubleheader with the Indians on Saturday with the first game getting underway at 6 p.m. A single game will be played on Sunday at 1 p.m.

NOTES:

• John Adams' seven game hitting streak came to an end in the opening game against St. Bonaventure on Wednesday. Adams, however, started another hitting streak in the second game by collecting a hit.

• The doubleheader sweep of the Bonnies Wednesday night ended a two-game Pirate losing streak. Before the two wins, the Pirates had lost five of their last seven contests.

• The Pirates exhibition matchup against the Kinston Indians at Grainger Stadium is only a week away. The game will be played on Thursday, April 7 at 7 p.m.

Intramural Department is ready for annual All-Nighter

Ready to pull another "all nighter?"

Coming April 22-24, it's the Rental Tool Co./ECU Intramural Softball All Nighter! The event will be held in conjunction with the annual Pirate Purple/Gold Pigskin Pigout Party. There are no eligibility restrictions, and men's and women's teams are invited to sign up. The entry fee is set at $50 and all entry forms must be postmarked by April 13. Entry forms are available at the I.R.S. office or by calling 757-6387.

Co-Rec Volleyball action is now underway. IMA REC says put your money on Something Special, Scraggs, Likity Split, and Technics. Unfortunately, the first three will compete in the same division. Upcoming match to catch - April 11 10:00p.m. Scraggs vs. Likity Split - Minges Coliseum Court #3.

Time is running out for all you outdoor buffs to sign up for an upcoming activity. Registration closes April 5 (that's Tuesday) for the white water rafting, hang gliding and kayaking trips.

White water rafting is set for April 15-17. For just $47, which covers transportation, camping fee, food and the actual river trip, you can experience the ultimate in adventure. Hang gliding is scheduled for April 9, as is kayaking. For more information, call or stop by the outdoor recreation center.

Tennis doubles champions will be crowned next week. Action is under way in Men's Intermediate, open men's and mixed doubles. IMA REC says watch for Men's Intermediate finals to feature Madden-Miller versus Clingman-Comacho, which in layman's terms is Sigma Phi Epsilon versus Delta Sigma. Men's open teams to watch are Schecter-Harley and Cotten-Halstead.

In mixed doubles, the favorites are Belgania-Hedrick and Asaad-Eagle. Carreras-Pierce and England-Storch lead the women's pack.

Two big events are scheduled for registration as the intramurals season draws to a close. Frisbee golf registration is set for April 12. Todd Kirkpatrick is the defending novice champ, while John Brady and Susan Allen are the reigning advanced champs. Registration will be held in Memorial Gym, Room 102 at 6 p.m.

The Golf Tournament is set for registration on April 18 at 5 p.m. in Memorial Gym, Room 102. Leonard Moretz and Carolyn Oxendine are the respective men's and women's champions.

Coach K remembers Manning, Kansas

DURHAM (AP) - When Duke beat Kansas 74-70 in overtime Feb. 20, Jayhawk star Danny Manning scored 31 points and 12 rebounds - a performance good enough to win the respect of his opponents.

"What I remember most about Manning is how hard he worked," said Duke's Danny Ferry. "I was impressed by that. I knew he had great skills, but I think I underestimated him a bit. After that, he had my vote for player of the year in the country."

But Ferry and Blue Devil Coach Mike Krzyzewski know that Manning won't be the only player on the floor when they face Kansas again in the Final Four of the NCAA tournament.

"It'd be a real mistake if we concentrate solely on Manning,"

Ferry said. "They have other, like (Milt) Newton, who people don't pay much attention to, but they're great players."

"I've never felt that way because I've never been a great player, but I've seen some great players feel that way. I think you have to make Manning earn everything not to lose track of the other guys."

"You can't let their other players hurt you . . ." he said. "The focus should be how to make things difficult on Manning but we haven't come up with a game plan yet."

Manning, averaging 24.6 points and 8.7 rebounds, has scored 30 or more points 10 times this season in leading the Jayhawks to a 25-11 record.

Duke is 28-6, largely due to defense and a deep bench. However, Krzyzewski said he's a bit worried he won't have 6-8 reserve center John Smith to help guard Manning. Smith missed the Temple game with a broken hand and is lost for the Final Four.

"We'll miss Smith," Krzyzewski said. "That's not an excuse . . . but you like to use John's experience. One thing our younger players aren't attuned to is our defense. It's something you learn after a few years."

Ferry, a 6-10 second-team All-American; 6-10 reserve Alaa Abdelnaby; and 6-5 starting center Robert Brickey all will be guarding Manning at different times, Krzyzewski said.

"I think it's an evenly matched game," Krzyzewski said. "Larry (Brown's) philosophy and mine are pretty similar. Defensively, both teams play good man-to-man, both have good team unity, we use a number of players and are pretty simple in what we do. He's probably done as good a job as anybody this year in the country in coaching."

"He's a great basketball coach and a good guy," he said. "I haven't followed his career and I don't have his picture up in my room or anything, but just being friends with him over the past few years . . . to me I think he's done a great job. I like their program. I think there's mutual respect (between programs)."

Super Sport was huge success

The Intramural/Budweiser Super Sport Competition was a huge success as 20 teams battled it out on three separate days through four events under quite extraordinary conditions.

After Sunday's competition, Frisbee Golf, it looked as though the Slimy Seanymps would walk away with the top prize. Their total intramural score after six holes of Disco Golf was a whopping 100. However the Beerwolfs were close behind as were other squads who scored in the 80's and above.

Duke getting ready

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — By the end of the day, Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski will know who is staying in which hotel, who gets tickets and who gets interviews. When you're in the NCAA Final Four, you're everybody's friend.

"It's amazing how many people you haven't heard from in years you hear from this week," Krzyzewski said. Krzyzewski's East Regional champion Blue Devils meet Kansas on Saturday in Kansas City, Mo.

"Everybody wants tickets or interviews or something. I'm still worrying about who's in what

Two cagers commit

East Carolina University head championship squad at Gus basketball coach Mike Steele has received two verbal named the co-player of the year in commitments from a pair of Alabama, while Bryant was prospects for next season, tabbed as the Most Valuable Player in the Alabama state playoffs.

The commitments mark the first two received by Steele for next year's campaign.

The two are 6-3 guard Jay Sherer and 6-8 forward Brooks Bryant chipping in 13.5 points per game. Both are from Huntsville, Ala.

Both Sherer and Bryant played together on the Alabama 6-A state team visited the ECU campus.

Going into the next round of competition, teams found themselves playing human foosball and hockey shooting in Memorial Gymnasium.

In the hockey shootout event, Arthur Brunson of Oreo Cookies Dipped in Chocolate (quite a name!) ripped in 10 goals in 15 seconds to lead his squad to a 24-goal first place position following closely were the Health Nuts. The Beerwolfs tapped in 14.

The foosball competition matched team against team in a somewhat unusual rendition of the table foosball game palyed at your local bar. U-Lose came out nowhere and took the title with 145 points. Beerwolfs and Ima Who? (just guess what team this is) pulled out of the event with totals in the 140's as well. Disco Golf leaders, Slimy Seanymps fell short with a 97 total while the Oreo Cookies Dipped In Chocolate stayed in the running with 115 points.

The culmination of this madness was held at the bottom of College Hill on Tuesday in the form of an obstacle Course. Making their way in to the final event the top teams were, Beerwolfs, U-Lose, Belk Shelslocks, and Ima Who?

The Beerwolfs, took the event with a one second margin over the Slimy Seanymps followed by Skimpy and Suds Inc. The top trophies were presented to the Beerwolfs, second place overall went to U-Lose, third place was captured by Suds Inc. (who kept a steady pace throughout the competition) while the fourth and final set of trophies went out to the Belk Shelslocks.

The Department of Intramural-Recreational Services would like to thank all the participants for their time and madness along with Jeffreys Beer & Wine who so graciously provided each participant with t-shirts and top place trophies.

The Main Event winds up tonight. The finals of the 13th Annual Tau Kappa Epsilon Boxing Tournament will be held tonight in Minges Coliseum beginning at 7:30 p.m. Admission for the general public to the finals tonight will be $3, while East Carolina University students with valid identification cards can receive a $1 discount off of the regular price. Proceeds from the tournament, which is co-sponsored by C.O. Tankard and Co. and Miller Brewing Co., will go to help the St. Jude's Children Hospital. (Photo by Ellen Murphy — ECU Photo Lab)

Final Four tickets hot number

KANSAS CITY, MO. (AP) - Final four tickets in this city brimming with well-heeled Kansas fans could sell for as much $2,000, some speculators say.

Police thought it a good time to remind residents that ticket scalping in Kansas City is against the law.

"From everything we've heard today, I do believe that this will be the toughest ticket in the history of sports," Richard Konzem, a harried Kansas athletic official, said. "We could sell out the Superdome."

The Final Four long ago reached parity with the World Series on the scalpers' list of profitable events. But when the Kansas Jayhawks beat Kansas State 71-58 Sunday in the finals of the NCAA Tournament's Midwest Regional at Pontiac, Mich., they did more than join Oklahoma, Arizona and Duke in the 50th anniversary of college basketball's party. They stirred up a ticket frenzy that 36 hours later was gating strength and fury like the tornado that whisked Dorothy and Toto away to Oz. "I was told that I could probably get $2,000 per ticket on game day," said a Kansas City advertising executive with close ties to Kansas.

"If I had a bunch, I would take them to the bank and put them in the safety deposit box with the gold coins," added the man, who asked that his name not be used.

In the first semifinal game Saturday, Kansas meets Duke, the school that vanquished the Jayhawks in the 1986 Final Four. Oklahoma, another Big Eight school, meets Arizona in the other semifinal.

And thousands upon thousands of Kansans suddenly want to be there. The Jayhawk basketball tradition, in fact, was firmly established before John Wooden ever won a game at UCLA. When Kansans talk about their past, names like James Naismith, Wilt Chamberlain, Dean Smith and Phog Allen spill from the tongue.

Allen Fieldhouse, located on the Kansas campus just 35 miles or so from Kemper Arena, has been sold out for years. Students in need of pocket money can always get $40-$50 for a $10 ticket.

The populous Kansas alumni in the greater Kansas City area are mostly affluent, upscale group of professionals and business leaders. They've suffered an embarrassing football program that won only one game last year and ranked near the bottom of almost every statistic the NCAA keeps. But they love their basketball, they have money, and cozy little Kemper seats only about 17,000.

"We have been allotted 1,625 tickets for the Kemper Arena Final Four," said Konzem, KU's assistant athletic director. "It's just unbelievable how far that is from filling our needs."

To Konzem falls the terrible job of saying no to thousands of loyal supporters who helped funnel almost $2.5 million in donations into the athletic department last year.

"Supply is very, very limited. Demand is very, very large," Konzem said. "The fact that one of the teams is KU is not the only factor in this. You have Duke, an ACC school with a great basketball tradition already and a lot of loyal fans. Then you have Arizona, which is making its first trip to the Final Four and has all that excitement surrounding it and creating interest among the fans."

"And then you have Oklahoma. Not only is Oklahoma a second Big Eight school with Kansas, but it's a bordering state with Kansas and Missouri."

Anybody with a handfull of tickets and dreams for early retirement would do well to ponder city ordinance no. 26.57. It clearly says that it is against the law to "resell a ticket or entry to a public entertainment event" for more than face value.

"You can get a fine not to exceed $500, or a jail sentence of no more than 60 days, or both," police Sgt. Billy Richardson said.

I can tell you that we have done some enforcement of this law in the past."

Blue Devils to realize dream

"...I learned two years ago how hard it is to get there," Krzyzewski said.

"You dream about being there as a player and coach, and we might have teams that are better than this team... that will never make it to the Final Four. I think if we don't take time to appreciate what a special event it is and take care of that emotion then we're missing out on what it's all about."

The Blue Devils, 28-6, also must be hungry for a title, Krzyzewski. He thinks they are after losing in the 1986 championship game.

"The second feeling you have to take care of is hunger," he said. "Taking advantage of the opportunity of being there and remembering that you want to play two games, and you want to play them well and win both of them. It comes in order."

Duke will be making its sixth Final Four appearance — 1963, 1964, 1966, 1978 and 1986 — but the Blue Devils have never won the national championship.

Saturday's game against Kansas, 25-11, in Kansas City will be a rematch of the 1986 semifinal game, which the Blue Devils won 71-67. However, Krzyzewski said Duke's 74-70 overtime victory against the Jayhawks earlier this year is more significant.

"The youngsters playing for us now... were not the guys that beat Kansas (two years ago)," Krzyzewski said. "It's different. It's their turn."

Duke, which usually plays a man-to-man defense, may have problems stopping Kansas' 6-11

All-American Danny Manning inside, Krzyzewski said. Manning has been the Jayhawks leading scorer in 33 of 36 games. He's also averaging more than 24 points in four NCAA games.

"I knew he was a great player from watching him in the Pan Am trials and playing against him a couple of years ago...," Krzyzewski said. "But when we went out there (to play Kansas) this year... he's bigger, quicker and better than I thought he was. "You have to expect him to be at a top level," he said.

IMA RECK GOES HOLLYWOOD!

The success and reputation of Ima Reck has grown so rapidly that I will be taking my act on the road this summer in an attempt to pay my bills so needlessly neglected. But in the meantime, I have to dedicate this next round of top picks to two young ladies in the DIRS who have taken quite a bit of ribbing (to be kind) from a variety of participants who feel that I would be better off selling vacuum cleaners.

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

- | | |
|----------------------|--|
| (Women's Softball) | |
| 1 ENFORCERS | If IMA RECK can't win, nobody can win. End of discussion. |
| 2 THE BAKED POTATOES | These girls are cookin'. |
| 3 THE FLUNKEEZ | Inability to satisfactorily keep up with a score of 2-0 eliminates this group. Dig a little deeper in the well. |
| 4 BELK BABES | Will be especially effective on rainy nights after an impressive all-campus title game in water polo. Gives the Babes a slight edge over fifth-place team. |
| 5 ALPHA OMICRON PI | The cream of the sorority girl crop. They have all the right omicrons. |
| (Men's) | |
| 1 SUMPHTIN' SPECIAL | This category will go to the wire. Sumphtin' Special gets the nod for taking the pre-season title. It will be close though. |
| 2 EX-TERMINATORS | See above. The talent here is neck-and-neck. |
| 3 AMERICA'S TEAM | Mamas don't let your babies grow up to be cowboys! This team will be in competition right to the end, then choke. Isn't that what happens to "America's Team"? |
| 4 THE TOOTH | These guys really know how to sink their teeth into the heart of the competition. How could IMA RECK overlook a team with that determination. |
| 5 SIGMA PHI EPSILON | Always a solid competitor in any sport. When all is said and done, these guys will be in the running. |

Please don't feel offended by IMA RECK, who incidentally is feeling frisky these days. However, if you are a bottom of the barrel pick, feel free to stop by my office (wherever that is!!!)
(Bottom of the Barrel' picks are posted downstairs in Memorial Gym.)

- | | |
|----------------------|---|
| (Co-Rec Volleyball) | |
| 1 DAIN BRAMAGE | Top pick because this team is a bunch of typical jocks - major talent, minor brain. |
| 2 BURRITO CREW | A team after IMA RECK's own hungry heart. Pre-game meetings at Chico's and Taco Bell create team unity. |
| 3 ALPHA RHO MU PSI | You gotta figure they can do something with a name like that. |
| 4 S.C.U.M. | All S.C.U.M. eventually rises to the top of the pond. |
| 5 HELP WANTED | This is a paid advertisement. This team can't be counted out. To be sure they will have the needed skills on the team come playoff time. |
| 6 SCRAGS | Seriously an all-around good team. Already own co-rec bowling title, looking for more. |
| 7 LIKITY SPLIT | In a flash, it's ballgame. Will waste no time blowing by the competition. |
| 8 FREAK SHOW | Will win many matches with unfair side freak shows, simply getting the competition's attention and then serving while they're still in shock. |
| 9 TECHNICS | A team going back to the basics - using proper dunking, spiking, and serving skills. Or is it bump, set and spike? |
| 10 SOMETHIN' SPECIAL | And what's so special about this team, IMA? Somethin'. Okay. |

"All Night Long"

Be sure and get your teams together for the annual Purple Pirate Pigskin Pigout Party Rental Tool/Intramural Softball All Nighter. The event has quite a name and will have quite a reputation after this years competition.

The softball competition will fill the air on April 22-24. Men's and women's teams are urged to get their entry forms in quickly as seeds will be filling up.

A $50 entry fee is required for participants which will cover balls and officiating costs. Team winners will receive trophies and t-shirts as well as Most Valuable Player awards in both the men's and women's division. For an entry form and additional information, please contact Nance Mize or J.R. Roth at 757-6387.
