Payne tops Price, 24-23

Tommy Payne elected Speaker

Tommy Joe Payne was elected Speaker of the Legislature Monday night in the first legislature session of the year.

Ricky Price, former Speaker of the Legislature for two consecutive years, was also nominated. Payne was elected by a roll call vote of 24 to 23.

SGA President Neil Sessoms voiced his optimism for the upcoming year. Sessoms cited some progress made by the administration since it took office five months ago, such as the revamping of the refrigerator rental program, and progress by the Chancellor Selection Committee, of which Sessoms is an ex-officio member.

SGA Treasurer Craig Hales said the SGA would not have as large an operating budget as it did last year. Last year's budget was nearly $400,000, compared to an estimated $320,000 for this year.

Hales said the legislature must keep expenses to a minimum.

Two bills were passed by the legislature, one involving a $75 appropriation to the Distributive Education Club of America, and the other a $56.80 appropriation to the League of University Scholars for expenses involving an upcoming symposium.

Numerous other bills were introduced, but passed on to the Appropriations Committee for consideration.

Two resolutions were passed, one in recognition of Ricky Price, and the other formally thanking the ECU Marching Pirates for their contributions to the school.

The legislature members were reminded that if they were absent from meetings more than two times without excuse, their position would be lost, and filled by the Screenings and Appointments Committee.

A conference on Parliamentary Procedure will be held next Monday at 4 p.m. for interested legislators.

Meyers: Punishment does not fit crime

By JO ANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

Peter Meyers, Chief Counsel for the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), said he sees the inevitable decriminalization of marijuana within the next four to five years in a lecture entitled "Marijuana: The New Prohibition," presented last Thursday in Mendenhall Student Center.

"The argument for decriminalization is three-fold: first, the punishment for smoking does not fit the seriousness of the crime; second, enforcement of the existing marijuana laws wastes police time and money, when that time and money could be better spent chasing serious criminals.

"Lastly, the present marijuana laws go against the fundamental rights of the privacy [See NORML p. 5]

McCourt: judicial branch needs to build up confidence

By CINDY BROOME
News Editor

The SGA judiciary branch is comprised of the Attorney General, honor council, review board.

The honor council consists of seven members and two alternates, according to Kevin McCourt, SGA Attorney General.

The honor council handles disciplinary problems.

Students apply for the Attorney General position, said McCourt, and the applicants are screened by a committee consisting of the Dean of Men, Dean of Women, chairpersons of the honor council and review board, and former Attorney General.

James Mallory, Dean of Men, decides whether a case will be heard by the review board, which is similar to an appeals court, said McCourt.

The review board consists of seven members and two alternates.

"We need to build up confidence in the judiciary," said McCourt.

"I'm representing the students, not the legislative or executive point of view."

McCourt said he will listen to SGA President Neil Sessoms' opinions but will make his own decisions.

"I think Neil and I work well together. He realizes that I've got to make my own decisions."

McCourt said he wants to try to separate the judiciary from the executive branch, and bring the legislature a little closer to the judiciary.

McCourt said he feels the judiciary and executive branches have been too close in the past and the judiciary and the legislature too far apart.

"They've (legislature and judiciary) been apart, which is good, but too far apart. Sometimes the legislature needs the Attorney General to answer questions concerning the Constitution.

"I plan to attend all legislature sessions."

A judicial handbook describing the rules and procedures of the SGA judiciary can be picked up at the Student Supply Store lobby or at the Mendenhall Student Center information desk.

Campus police officers have recently begun enforcing the dorm visitation policy.

"With the judicial handbook, there's no excuse for those students caught in dorms after 1 a.m. not to know the right procedure," said McCourt.

McCourt said he plans to work on having 24-hour visitation.

Snow Skiing

To receive elective credit for PHYE 1105-Snow Skiing (1 s.h.) during the Spring Semester, a student must attend pre-ski classes starting Nov. 1 at 4 p.m. and continuing each Tues. and Thurs. until Dec. 8 (11 class meetings). The student must also attend the ski session at Beech Mountain, Banner Elk, NC from January 2-6. The total cost ($105) includes housing, instruction, equipment, and lift fees.

This activity may also be used to fill the Physical Education 1000 requirement. The student may pre-register for PHYE 1000, attend all class meetings and the ski session, and receive credit for the activity portion of PHYE 1000. The student will still be required to meet all physical fitness, swimming, and classroom competencies during the first part of the spring semester, but will be exempt from the activity portion of the course.

If for some reason the student does not attend either the pre-ski sessions or the actual ski sessions and has pre-registered for the course, he will be required to drop the course during drop-add period, January 10-Feb. 21, or receive an F for the course. For further information, contact Mrs. Jo Saunders at Memorial Gym 757-6000.

He will arrange a confidential (free) session with a graduate intern in the Department of Sociology's Premarriage/MARRIAGE Counseling Program Through counseling you and your partner can discover how to resolve the issues which concern you so you won't need to be "looking for your lost shaker of salt."

Registers

Freshman Registers may be picked up in room 229, the vice-president's office, in Mendenhall Student Center.

Interpersonal Research

Unmarried undergraduates between the ages of 18 and 24 are invited to participate in a research project comparing several methods intended to promote less self consciousness in heterosexual interpersonal situations.

If one is bothered by self consciousness and lack of confidence around members of the opposite sex, his participation will be greatly appreciated.

Participation will improve your understanding of the methods by which college people might learn to be more natural, less tense, and less inhibited around members of the opposite sex.

If interested in participating in this project, and will be in the Greenville area this fall, please leave your name, address, and phone number for Don Marcus, Department of Psychology, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27834, or phone in the above information to the department at 757-6800.

The project requires about one hour per week for six weeks.

Engl. Dept. offers work program for writers

ECU NEWS BUREAU

A program to enable ECU students interested in writing careers to undertake off-campus work experiences is being developed by the ECU Department of English.

The program is an outgrowth of ECU's pre-professional writing curricula and is to be coordinated with the ECU Office of Cooperative Education. Its chief purpose is to place a limited number of students in temporary internships as writers with businesses and industries.

"This effort should lead to job opportunities for fulltime students next year," said Dr. Sally Brett of the ECU English faculty.

ECU students may study the craft of writing in two English programs. One leads to the liberal arts degree in English with a Concentration in Writing, and the other, to a minor concentration in journalism.

Students will seek work opportunities in public relations, editing, writing and publishing for business and industry, as well as new writing and publishing for business.

Students will seek work opportunities in public relations, editing, writing and publishing for business and industry, as well as news writing for radio, television and newspapers.

"Such work opportunities for fulltime students should more adequately prepare those students who wish to pursue professional writing careers upon completion of their degree programs," said Dr. Brett.

She directs the English department's Concentration in Writing program, and is now developing job opportunities for students in written communications. Work experience in journalism are coordinated by Lawrence O'Keefe and Ira Baker of the ECU journalism faculty.

Unborn babies suffer from alcohol consumed by mothers

Scientists have found that many children born to women who drink excessively while pregnant have a pattern of physical and mental birth defects.

The more severe problems are called "fetal alcohol syndrome."

Growth deficiency is one of the most prominent symptoms. Affected babies are abnormally small at birth, especially head size. Unlike many small newborns, these youngsters never catch up to normal growth.

Most affected youngsters have small brains and show degrees of mental deficiency. Many are jittery and poorly coordinated, and have short attention spans and behavioral problems. Evidence to date shows that their IQs do not improve with age.

Fetal alcohol syndrome babies usually have narrow eyes and low nasal bridges with short upturned noses. These facial features make them look more like one another than their parents or brothers and sisters.

Almost half of them have heart defects, which in some cases require heart surgery.

Not every fetal alcohol syndrome baby has all of these defects but there is a relationship between the severity of physical characteristics and the degree of mental impairment. The more severely retarded youngsters are those with the most noticeable physical defects.

Fetal alcohol syndrome is a very real problem in the United States today. It is estimated that there are more than one million alcoholic women of childbearing age. And the number is growing - particularly among adolescents.

In some regions, alcoholism in pregnancy has been estimated as the third most common cause of mental retardation.

Babies of teenagers who drink heavily are in double jeopardy. They may be born too small or too soon because their mothers' bodies are not mature enough to meet the demands of pregnancy.

Last chance

Jimmy Buffett will appear here in concert this Wednesday night. Firefall will appear here Nov. 6. These two concerts are perhaps the most crucial ECU has ever had. If the Student Union's Major Attractions Committee loses money on these there will be no more concerts this year and, according to Dennis Ramsey, SU president, there will probably be no more major concerts here again.

If the ECU student body is interested in the future of major attractions on campus these two concerts must be supported.

Last year, Major Attractions lost $63,000 because of the poor attendances at the scheduled concerts. Twenty-thousand of this came from the SU savings the other $43,000 began what Major Attractions was appropriated. This year the committee received only $23,000 as a result of last year's failures.

The Student Union has gone out of its way this year trying to get student input into what concerts to schedule. The Major Attractions Committee has run surveys in FOUNTAINHEAD and has tried to encourage students to use the SU suggestions boxes. The results of these efforts have been minimal. Consequently, the committee has had to rely on radio stations and record shops to find out what performers are popular and selling the best. This guessing and hoping could be easily avoided if those students who complain about the major entertainment at ECU would only show more interest and let the committee know who they want to see.

At present ECU must choose from among those performers who are available to a small university. ECU is also at the mercy of booking agencies for when and what acts are available, without any voice in the matter. Universities such as UNC-Chapel Hill, Duke and NC State choose their own times and have a much larger choice among top names because they have reputations for enormous ticket sales, and thus can pay more for the big name performers. If ECU had more student support in its major attractions the university could afford to book top name performers.

According to Ramsey, ticket sales for the Jimmy Buffett concert are going very well so far, having sold 1,800 Monday. But they still need to sell 3,000 by Wednesday to break even.

So, this is it. The ECU student body must support the Student Union's efforts in these first two concerts or there may never be any more. And with that support, ECU could not only keep having major attraction concerts, but could eventually look toward the top names instead of having to settle for those performers who will bother with a small university with a reputation for small audiences.

League of Scholars seeks support

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

The purpose of this letter is twofold. I would like to encourage other students and faculty members to attend the League of Scholars' symposium on "The Greenville Police and Community Relations" which will be held Oct. 12 and 13 in Mendenhall, Rm. 244. I also would like to inform the student body about the League of Scholars in general by briefly describing the organization of the League.

The ECU League of University Scholars adopted its constitution during the 1969-70 school year at ECU. Automatic membership in the League is extended to recipients of either a National Merit or ECU Academic Scholarship and for any other school or departmental scholarship at ECU. All other undergraduate students at the University holding a scholarship of an academic nature are eligible to become members upon completion of the petition procedure. At the present time, a student who is eligible to become a member of the League must wait to petition for membership until the petition procedure has been defined, for this procedure was just recently adopted in the constitution. The advisory body of the League is the Student Scholarships, Fellowships, and Financial Aid Committee of ECU. Dr. John Ebbs, a faculty member of this committee also sponsors the League.

The League of Scholars meets on a monthly basis. The purpose of the organization is to promote an atmosphere conducive to the stimulation of intellect, and to the consciousness and appreciation of learning opportunities offered outside the classroom or major fields. Through these efforts it shall attempt to raise the caliber of the intellectual activities of its members and other scholars and the overall intellectual climate of the University. The League is proud of the fact that the two students in the history of ECU who maintained G.P.A.'s of 4.0 were both League members in addition to being active in other organizations.

In keeping with the purpose of the league, I want to invite all interested students, faculty and staff of ECU to attend the forthcoming symposium on Wed., Oct. 12 and Thurs., Oct. 13. An opportunity is being offered to the ECU community, the Greenville Police and Campus Police to communicate in discussion and through representative speakers at this symposium. It is hoped a better understanding and relationship between the police and ECU will be a positive result of the symposium. I am sure that it will be successful if those students who are interested will make an effort to attend some or all of the sessions which will start at 10 am and end in the afternoon on both days. The representative

Work and Correctional Services Department of ECU, Security and Traffic Department of ECU and the Greenville City Police Department.

I am excited about this symposium on the "Greenville Police and Community Relations" because it can be successful with student participation. Once again, I encourage you to participate in the symposium by coming on Oct. 12 and 13, listening to the speakers, raising questions and taking part in the discussions.

Thank you,
Suzanne Stearn, President
League of Scholars

P.S. Please notice the itinerary for the symposium which should be published in this issue of the FOUNTAINHEAD.

NORML discussion concerns legalization of 'pot' of one's home and body; it's your home and your body, and you have the right to do anything you want so long as it doesn't hurt anyone else," said Meyers.

Meyers said NORML recognizes that marijuana is a drug, but contends that it is no more harmful than legal drugs such as tobacco and alcohol.

Meyers quoted Dr. Robert DuPont, Director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, as saying that "based on today's knowledge and current use, marijuana poses less of a threat than alcohol and tobacco."

To date, ten states have passed more liberal marijuana laws, usually in the form of removing criminal penalties for possession of less than an ounce. North Carolina's law is the most severe and the most narrowly defined of those ten, according to Meyers.

"The ideal bill would be one in which there are no penalties for personal use, possession, cultivation, and transactions for insignificant profit. We go into a state asking for everything, hoping to come out with a little," said Meyers.

Meyers said, thanks to the lobbying efforts of NORML, approximately one-third of the nation's population live in decriminalized states.

"Attitudes are changing slowly. A recent poll showed that over 50 per cent of all college students favor legalization.

"At present, though, legalization is not a serious issue, and I'm not sure if it will ever come about," said Meyers.

Decriminalization does not necessarily bring about an increase in the use of marijuana, according to Meyers.

"Public opinion polls conducted in Oregon and California after their decriminalized laws went into effect showed a slight increase of about three per cent in marijuana usage, but a 47 per cent decrease in marijuana arrests in California, with an estimated savings to local California criminal justice agencies of $25 million, with concomitant savings to other state agencies," said Meyers.

Until 1915, there were no laws either prohibiting or permitting the use of marijuana, according to Meyers.

"The first laws against marijuana were passed due to racial prejudice. Marijuana was associated with American Indians and Asian immigrants," said Meyers.

The lecture was followed by a film showing highlights of two anti-marijuana films from the 1930's, "Assassin of Youth," and "Reefer Madness."

The movies depicted several purportedly true instances in which young people had been using marijuana and then gone home and axed their mothers.

"The United States' government created a false menace of marijuana and pressured other nations to pass their own anti-marijuana laws, including some nations where marijuana had been commonly used for hundreds of even thousands of years," said Meyers.

The lecture was presented by the Lecture Committee of the Student Union.

'I Never Promised You a Rose Garden'

Judging solely from the ingredients that helped formulate this movie, and the background from whence it came, one wonders how it could possibly stand out as unique. It is a wonder that director Anthony Page's I NEVER PROMISED YOU A ROSE GARDEN does.

The screenplay is based on outdated and, by contemporary standards in cinema, very ordinary material from the best-selling novel of the same name; the material is of the kind that can be very difficult to photograph for a movie—and it shows, finally, the film is the most recent entry in what has become a long list of movies depicting life in a mental institution (notably, Kesey's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest") and runs the risk of being stereotyped for this reason. What saves the film from obscurity is some authentic staging and a tour de force by Kathleen Quinlan.

Twenty-two year old newcomer Quinlan, in her first major role, plays Deborah Blake, a 16-year old who spends most of her waking hours in a fantasy land known as Yr (pronounced "yeer"). After an attempt at suicide she is institutionalized by her parents.

In the early going at the hospital, Deborah finds it necessary often to escape reality and flee to her fantasy world. Helping her in her plight is a psychiatrist (played by Bibi Anderson) called Dr. Fried. Between the doctor, an understanding orderly, and her roommate Carla, Deborah is all too quickly cured of her insanity and the film abruptly ends.

Fans of Joanne Greenberg's 1964 novel are likely to be disappointed in the film version of her work. Certainly there is always a good deal of content lost in the transition from book to movie. Screenwriters, however, should opt to retain the original message delivered in the work if the desired effect is to be achieved.

What "Rose Garden" lacks then is the substance of the original work. Gavin Lambert and Lewis John Carlino, who did the screenplay, leave us a little in the dark as to the events leading up to Deborah's schizophrenia. It is also unclear exactly how she is cured. One gets the distinct feeling that not all of their material was shot or that some of it may have been cut. If this is the case then some key scenes featuring Dr. Fried and Deborah during their skull sessions may be missing.

The question of anti-Semitism dealt with in the book is not even touched—in fact, the names are changed to protect the innocent.

In 1964 the question of society's reaction to the post-institution outpatient would have made original movie fare. But the 13 years of film art that has prospered since that date make the subject old hat. Hence, that part of the novel that author Green devoted to the topic was rendered obsolete for the movie.

What has transpired is an intense character study. Thanks largely to Quinlan's excellent performance, we are permitted to witness a disturbed young girl's struggle to grasp reality—for what it is worth.

Director Page should be praised for what he does not do to "Rose Garden." He does not turn to obscure expressionism in defining Deborah's psychosis. However, what he does is not much better. The "flight from reality" is reduced to a poorly executed costume parade as we explore her fantasy land. The movie's best moments take place in the real world and are shockingly well illustrated.

The sadistic character of Hobbs, a hospital orderly who has unusual methods of dealing with the patients, is nicely played by Reni Santoni.

The supporting cast that makes up the rest of the ward is the film's biggest asset. Veterans Susan Tyrrell, Signe Hasso, and Sylvia Sidney have a field day with their supporting roles. Watching them in the sedative line, waiting to receive their medication, one can't help but recall the similar exploits featured in "Cuckoo's Nest."

The film, which runs only slightly over 90 minutes in length, is well paced. Two years of Deborah's life fly by much too quickly. The vehicle really should have been longer. Still, a well-balanced view of the institution is achieved.

The movie ends with a freeze frame analogous to a question mark in literature. This cinematic punctuation is a perfect touch. It occurs only seconds after Deborah's Yri voices bid her farewell—but they leave her on this note: "Remember, we will always be here when you need us." She will make a go of it in the real world but she can always go back if she wants to.

"Rose Garden" is not a demanding movie. It can certainly stand on the foundation of its own merit—a rare film that offers no pat answers—it is enough here simply to raise the questions.

College Bowl orientation to be held in Mendenhall

The season is ripe for a return of campus College Bowl competition. Last year, four English majors scored a resounding victory for the English department in the competition.

Though last year's College Bowl was called "First Annual," East Carolina participated in College Bowl years ago when it was a CBS game show. The 1976-77 event marks the revival of College Bowl on campuses across the nation.

College Bowl features knowledgeable college students, four on a team, competing in answering questions from all academic areas. Questions may concern any of the liberal arts, science, math, sports, current affairs, and many other areas.

This very nature of College Bowl makes it possible for any school regardless of size to participate. College Bowl is one national "sport" that virtually every college can afford to play and has the chance to enter and win because no one school has control of brains.

Registration for intramural competition opens September 19. All that is needed is a four member team, an alternate, and a faculty sponsor. Because ECU began intramural competition in the spring last year, the English team was unable to participate in the intercollegiate competition. This year's winner will have that additional opportunity.

The English department already has a team for the 1977-78 competition and hopes to have a second one. Two of last year's winning team members, David Trevino and Jon Yuhas, have been selected to play again this year.

Though many teams were departmentally organized last year, this is not necessary. Four friends can form a team as long as they have an alternate and a sponsor. Since questions are from all academic areas are included, every team has a chance.

The ECU College Bowl competition is sponsored by Mendenhall Student Center. Registration of teams begins September 19, and orientation will be held October 6, in the multi-purpose room in Mendenhall Student Center. If anyone has questions concerning College Bowl, he may call or come by the Program Office in Mendenhall Student Center, telephone, 757-6611, ext. 213.

ECU Homecoming

Potpourri of events slated

By LYNN HUGHES
Staff Writer

This week marks Homecoming for East Carolina University and the Student Union has scheduled a number of events for the occasion.

This year's theme being "Milestones of ECU: A Tribute to Dr. Leo W. Jenkins," the entertainment begins tonight at 8:00 with a free concert featuring RAZZMATAZZ. Sponsored by the Popular Entertainment Committee, the concert will be held on the Mall, but in the case of rain it will be moved to Wright Auditorium.

Wednesday marks the JIMMY BUFFETT concert at 8 p.m. Held in Minges Coliseum, Buffett's special guest for the evening will be Jesse Winchester. Although tickets sold slowly at first, a large crowd is expected for the event. ECU student tickets are $4.00 in advance, while tickets for the general public are $6.00.

The Films Committee will present "SILENT MOVIE," a Student Union free film on Fri., Oct. 7. Held at Mendenhall Student Center Theatre, movie times are 6, 8 and 10 p.m.

Saturday marks HOMECOMING and the traditional HOMECOMING PARADE. Funded by the SGA and presented by the Homecoming Steering Committee, the parade will begin at 10 a.m., commencing on Fifth St. and concluding on Reade St. The parade will feature eight bands, 15 floats and several other marching groups. Game time is 1:30 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium with ECU hosting rival Southern Illinois. Homecoming Pirate will be crowned at halftime of Saturday's game.

Saturday night another free concert will be presented with DELUSION at the featured band. Managed by Mid-Atlantic Productions, the band portrays many popular entertainers in their music, such as KISS, BAD COMPANY, WILD CHERRY, LED ZEPPLIN, THE DOOBIE BROTHERS, and DEEP PURPLE, just to name a few. Beginning at 8 p.m. this concert is also to be held on the mall, with the rain-site being Wright Auditorium.

The Films Committee has another event in store Sun., Oct. 8 in a JAMES BOND FILM FESTIVAL. The movies will begin at 4 p.m. and will be held in the Mendenhall Student Center Theater, concluding the events of the week.

Series of Biblical etchings to be on display at ECU

Selections from "The Bible," a series of 105 etchings by Marc Chagall which are based on the Old Testament, form a new traveling show from the North Carolina Museum of Art.

The show will be on display from Oct. 9 to Oct. 28 at Mendenhall Student Center. The hours are 8:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. on weekdays and 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 midnight on weekends.

The etchings by the modern French master are a gift to the museum from Colonel Kenneth B. Bland, Arlington, Va. The 18 prints selected for the traveling show were chosen for their stylistic unity and variety of expression.

Rather than choosing traditional figures, Chagall made an arbitrary choice of subjects, taking man as his theme. According to one art historian, Chagall's precise theme is "Man who remains the same through the centuries, man whom God looked upon, with whom God spoke, who thus received his rank and dignity."

The Chagall series opens with the creation of man, depicts the spiritual fathers of the Jewish people in the greatness and humility, and reproduces the path of that people through the desert into the Promised Land.

The sequences include the conquerors, like David and Solomon, and concludes with the visions of the prophets and the forecasts of the New Jerusalem. The series was done from 1931 to 1956.

The time period in which this series was done is the same as the time of Chagall's rise in popularity in the United States. Chagall was immediately popular in Europe, but it took several years for his work to be widely noticed in the States.

Chagall is now considered one of the great modern artists. The viewing public is beguiled by his Bible and fantasy themes as unified by the constantly recurring theme of man. ILLUMINA, the Student Union Art Exhibition Committee, and sponsor of the show urges everyone to see the Mendenhall exhibit.

1980 Olympians to be prison's first inmates

By SCOTT CHRISTIANSON
Pacific News Service

What does a town of 3,000 do with a $22 million Olympic Village, suitable for 1,800 athletes-in-residence, once the Olympians have packed their bags and left?
This peaceful little resort community in the Adirondacks—scheduled to host the 1980 winter games—already has an answer, though it has been lost amid the pre-Olympic hoopla. As soon as the Olympic torch comes down, the Olympic Village will quickly be converted into a federal prison.

"We've been seeking an after-use for the Olympic Village," says Rep. Robert C. McEwen, (R.N.Y.) who represents Lake Placid's district in Congress, "and this seems to be an answer to our prayers."

Plans for the new prison, intended as a minimum security facility for mostly first-time narcotics offenders 18-25 years old, have already been funded by Congress and signed into law by President Carter.

The idea for a prison apparently grew out of the Olympic Organizing Committee's desire to attract federal funding for a housing complex that otherwise would have a life expectancy of less than two months. According to federal officials, the prison plan was the most desirable.

Congress approved the $22 million funding late this spring in the form of a supplemental budget appropriation for federal prison construction.

Rep. McEwen and other supporters of the prison—who include most of Lake Placid's political leaders and officials of the Federal Bureau of Prisons—also contend that such a facility, designed as a prison, would provide strong security for Olympic athletes.

During the 1972 Munich summer games, they point out, Arab terrorists raided the athletes' compound to seize and eventually murder members of the Israeli team.

Supporters of the prison plan also claim the prison will help provide jobs for residents of the Lake Placid area, where unemployment is running 18.4 percent.

Thus far there has been little press coverage on the prison plan and no organized protest from townspeople or athletes.

But the project does have its critics.

It "clearly violates the spirit of the games," says Andy Hall, coordinator of the National Moratorium on Prison Construction.

Critics also charge the location of the facility in the Adirondacks is inconsistent with the Federal Bureau of Prisons' stated policy of trying to locate new prisons "as close as we can humanly get to where the offenders are from."

The new prison will be located in nearby Ray Brook, about three miles from Lake Placid and hundreds of miles from the closest urban center. The 150-acre site was donated by the state, as a goodwill gesture to federal authorities.

Since the facility will house mostly first-time narcotics offenders, many inmates will almost certainly come from distant city slums.

"We have no idea what educational, vocational and community services or resources exist in the Lake Placid area that might be available to the institution," says Rep. Robert F. Drinan (D., Mass.), a critic of the project who says it was conceived and approved "without benefit of public discussion."

'Cocks hand Pirates first loss

By CHRIS HOLLOMAN
Assistant Sports Editor

In one of East Carolina's worst offensive performances of the "Dye era," the Pirates were defeated by a fired-up South Carolina team 19-16. The game, which was the first Pirate loss this year, had been pegged as a must game if the Pirates were to go undefeated this year. The game belonged to ECU until the fourth quarter, when USC middle guard Roscoe Watson began to sack the two East Carolina quarterbacks almost the minute the ball was snapped from center. His efforts, along with the rest of the Gamecock defense, destroyed the ECU offensive attack and the victory was USC's.

In the first quarter the Bucs won the toss and elected to receive. After three plays it was East Carolina fourth and one and the Pirates elected to punt. Once again, as in the past, penalties hurt the Pirates. An illegal procedure penalty cost ECU five yards. The USC was off-sides on Allen's second punt moving the ball back to where it was in the first place.

After the third punt USC took over at their 37-yard line. The Gamecocks marched all the way to the East Carolina 36 where South Carolina quarterback Ron Bass fumbled the ball. John Morris recovered for the Pirates.

From here the Pirates went all the way down to the South Carolina two. The big plays in the march were a pitch to Willie Hawkins, which netted eight yards, and a 21-yard keep by quarterback Jimmy Southerland. Later, on a third and two, fullback Theo Sutton gained one yard, but a USC penalty moved the ball ten yards and ECU got the first down. After the South Carolina defense held the Bucs near the two, the Pirates elected to kick. Junior Creech, who had his finest moments in this game, kicked a nineteen yard field goal and ECU took an early lead 3-0.

The Pirates then kicked off to the Gamecocks, who took the ball from their 12 to the Pirate 16 yard line. Most of the yards were gained through the air as the Gamecocks moved 88 yards in 15 plays. South Carolina was halted at the ECU 16 and USC's Parrish kicked a field goal of 35 yards which was good. The score at the end of the first quarter was ECU 3-USC 3.

In the second quarter, ECU received the kick but was unable to move the ball as the Gamecock defense threw the Pirates for a loss. The Pirates then punted to USC, who took over the ball on the ECU 45. On the first play Bass overthrew a pass for Logan. A flag was thrown on the play and the Gamecocks got the ball first and ten at the ECU 17. From here the Gamecocks netted a few yards before the Pirates held them at the 15 yard line. South Carolina elected to kick a 32-yard field goal which was good. USC took the lead 6-3.

After the kick East Carolina took over at their 37 after a great 34 yard return by Willie Hawkins. The Pirates then marched all the way down to the USC 17. The key play in the drive was a 17-yard pass to Terry Gallaher from Jimmy Southerland. At the 17 the Pirates decided to try the "waterbucket" play, which is fake field goal attempt. The attempt would have gotten a first down for the Pirates but once again a penalty at a crucial time halted their effort. The Bucs then elected to kick a field goal. A Creech kick was good once again and the score after his 40-yard effort was East Carolina 6-South Carolina 6.

South Carolina, under the direction of quarterback Ron Bass, then drove the Gamecocks from the USC 36 to the ECU 28. After a screen pass resulted in a loss of four yards, Bass tried to throw deep. The ball was picked off by Gerald Hall, who returned it for 16 yards.

The ball was returned to the Pirate 34 where Leander Green took over at quarterback. Green then passed to Kolanko for 13 yards. The next play was one that left the TV audience and the stadium crowd gasping in amazement. Green carried on the quarterback keep only to be trapped by two USC defenders. Just when it looked like he was going to be sacked he reversed his field and ran for 18 yards losing his jersey in the process. East Carolina then sent in Southerland, who got sacked on a blitz for a loss of eight yards. At the USC 28, ECU once again tried the "waterbucket" play, this time with success. The bewildered Gamecock defenders didn't even know what had happened until it was too late. The PAT was good and the score stood at halftime East Carolina 13-South Carolina 6.

In the third quarter USC received the ball only to lose it after four plays. A pass to Phil Logan was fumbled and after a mad scramble for the ball, East Carolina recovered at the USC 48. In their first play, Quarterback Southerland was sacked by the South Carolina defense. Two plays later a deflected pass to Gallaher was almost picked off but Gallaher managed to grab the ball just before hit the ground. The Pirates then drove down to the USC 31. It was here that Junior Creech kicked a East Carolina record 48-yard field goal to put East Carolina up by a score of 16-6 over South Carolina.

There was no more scoring until the fourth quarter, when South Carolina took control of the game. USC marched downfield in 13 plays to score their first and only touchdown of the game. The PAT was good by USC and the score was then USC 13-ECU 16.

On East Carolina's next possession they were unable to move the ball and punted back to South Carolina.

South Carolina then drove down the field again and, after being halted at the ECU 24, kicked a USC record 41-yard field goal. The score was then deadlocked at 16 apiece.

USC stops Pirates

By SAM ROGERS
Staff Writer

A placekicker by the name of Britt Parrish from Laurinburg, North Carolina, no less, ended East Carolina's dreams of an undefeated season here Saturday afternoon.

Parrish booted four field goals, the final one from 42 yards, to give the South Carolina Gamecocks a hard fought 19-16 victory over the Pirates before a homecoming crowd of 52,816 in Williams-Brice Stadium.

For the first time this season, there was no post game celebration in the Pirates dressing room.

"We just got soundly whipped in every phase in the second half," explained a weary Pat Dye after the game. "We never stopped them defensively and we never got anything going offensively. They really beat us running the football straight at us in the second half."

It was undoubtedly the Pirates worst performance of the season in the second half. Neither Jimmy Southerland nor Leander Green could get the offense moving against the Gamecocks defense. The Pirates only managed three first downs in the entire second half.

"The second half by South Carolina was the best anyone has played against us this year," said Southerland. "Their nose guard (Roscoe Watson) anticipated our snap counts plenty of times. We tried to change the count, but it just didn't work. We knew he'd probably be the quickest nose-guard all year. He hurt us worse than anyone else."

Time and time again, Watson jumped into the Pirates backfield to stop Southerland and Green, most of the time before they could even hand the ball off to one of the halfbacks.

"Watson killed us all day long," said Dye. "I thought we could have blocked him, but we couldn't. It was hard for the quarterback to get the ball out from under the center, much less to run it over to tackle."

While Southerland and Green along with the rest of the Pirates offense had their problems, one sparkle in the ECU attack was placekicker Junior Creech.

The walkon from Smithfield, N.C. had only managed to kick one of seven field goals prior to the South Carolina game. But Saturday, Creech was successful on all three of his attempts. His first one of the day came from 19 possession, they were unable to get anything, as the South Carolina defense harrassed the Pirate quarterbacks to the point that they were often not even able to make a hand off before they were sacked. South Carolina was able to get the ball back in good field position after a 23-yard punt. USC then started its winning drive. On a seven play, 40-yard drive the Gamecocks were able to drive down to the East Carolina 26-yard line. The Pirate defense held and the Gamecocks kicked a USC record 43-yard field goal to take over the lead 19-16.

East Carolina had one more chance to drive down field and score, but after getting from USC 17 to their 48, time ran out and the Pirates had lost their first game of the year by three points.

The only overall bright spot for East Carolina was the kicking of Junior Creech. Creech broke Jim Woody's old field goal record of 47 yards set against Richmond in 1973. The rest of the team played rather well until the second half when USC stormed back from ten points down to win by three.

Creech's hard work finally pays off against South Carolina yards out and gave the Pirates a 3-0 lead in the first quarter. His second three-pointer came from 40 yards out, and his last one from 48 yards set a school record, erasing the old mark of 46 yards held by Jim Woody back in 1973 against Richmond.

"I hit all three of them real solid today," said Creech. "We worked a lot more on timing last week and did more live kicking in practice. I also worked a lot on those kicks from the angle."

"I guess when you get right down to it, it's all just a matter of confidence," explained Creech. "When I was out there today I just felt like they were all going through."

So now, the Pirates have to put the South Carolina loss behind them and prepare for a tough Southern Illinois team which invades Ficklin Stadium this Saturday.

"I'm concerned about the future," said Dye. "We felt we had a shot at going all the way if we had won today. I don't know what this will do to our chances for a bowl game, but I hope it doesn't ruin it."

Buc booters split weekend pair

By ANNE HOGGE-
Sports Editor

East Carolina's soccer team faced two tough opponents this weekend, splitting a pair of "on the road" matches.

The Pirates 3-1 victory came over Guilford College, who had earlier defeated ECU in the Campbell College Classic. Both teams' scoring was done in the first half, with Guilford making the first goal. Phil Martin made the Pirate's first goal with an assist from Tim Harrison. Harrison proceeded to make the second goal with an assist from Martin. Martin then scored ECU's final goal with an assist from Mike Fetchko. Pirate goalie Mike Lawrence was credited with 21 saves, giving him a 2 four-game total of 63.

Pirate coach Brad Smith singles out a few players who were important to the ECU win. "Naturally, there's Phil Martin," said Smith. "Without him we'd have almost no offense. Mike Lawrence played extremely well, you can't say enough about anyone who makes 21 saves. Charlie Hardy played well, even though he's still not fully recovered from his injury. And halfback Tom Qualls did a good job. He is becoming the one player who picks the team up and gets them going. "All in all, it was a team effort, not a win by one individual. We played flat at first until they scored, but then we came on strong and caught them by surprise. I'm pleased with this mostly because we were able to come from behind and still win. That's the first time this year, and it's the sign of a good team.

ECU was defeated 3-0 at the hands of Appalachian in their second weekend match. Appalachian is ranked second in the South and 16th in the nation. A crowd of 4,000 attended the match, which was played on astro-turf.

"Considering our opponent, I think we played a good game," said Coach Smith. "Appalachian is in a different league from us as far as style. Their players are on scholarships, and four of their team played on the Nigerian national team.

"The astro-turf may have had a psychological effect on us, but I don't think that's why we lost. I'm just pleased we held them to three points.

"Mike Lawrence kept us in the game. He was an important factor, making 13 saves. Appalachian's coach said he's the best goalie he's seen this year. I'm also proud of our second string, who played most of the second half and didn't allow a single goal. It was the first time they'd played for that length of time. I'm happy to see we're developing some depth.

Bad offense blamed for two losses

By SAM ROGERS
Staff Writer

With poor offensive performances in both games, the East Carolina field hockey team dropped its record to 1-2 for the season with losses to both Duke and UNC-Greensboro last week.

The Pirates were shutout against Duke as the Blue Devils managed a goal in the first half and added one more in the second half to win the game 2-0 last Thursday at home.

UNC-Greensboro scored once in the first half and tacked on two more goals in the second half to beat the Pirates 3-1 Saturday in Greensboro.

Freshman Sue Jones scored the only Pirate goal against UNC-G which came in the second half.

East Carolina returns to action this afternoon when Pirates host the University of North Carolina.
