Health Services has altered its services this year to allow for extended hours and a wider variety of medications. In return, students will pay a minimal fee for over-the-counter drugs.

By Jason Williams Staff Writer

Students who get sick this semester will notice a change in the Student Health Services. In addition to extending its hours, Health Services has begun charging for its over-the-counter pharmacy medications.

"We've started charging for our pharmacy, as most all schools charge for their over-the-counter medicine. Because of this we are able to offer more medicines at reduced charges," said Kay VanNortwick, Director of Student Health Services.

now cost$1. Health Services offers a range of analgesics, antihistamines, decongestants and other popular pharmaceutical items. New this year are antacids, diarrhea suppressants and medications for nausea and motion sick-

VanNortwick said the $1 per item does not necessarily reflect

"For a bottle of Robitussin, we pay more than a dollar. For the Tylenol, we don't. We try to include popular and affordable medications.

"What prompted this action was that we received a written complaint from a student who re- a.m. sented the fact that some students were stocking up on free medicine that he paid for with his student health fee," VanNortwick said.

"The student health fee basically pays salaries for the doctors, nurses, psychologist, psychiatrist and administrative personnel. The medicine comes more through Prescription drugs will now All over-the-counter items cost $2.50, although the doctor's visit will still be free.

> "Before, when students didn't pay for it, some thought our prescription drugs were of an inferior quality. It's the same thing, of course, whether it's prepared by ECU pharmacists or someone else," VanNortwick said.

Other changes in Health Services include changes in the hours of operation and the way in which appointments are made. Appointments have been extended an hour since last semester and are now scheduled from 8:00-5:30 on weekdays. Weekend urgent care hours have been changed from 2 p.m.-4p.m. to 10 a.m.-1

Students are asked to schedule appointments for nonurgent health concerns. If a student requesting care has not made an appointment, he or she will be referred to the triage system. A triage nurse will assess the student's illness and/or injury and determine whether he or she requires urgent care, same-day care by appointment, a visit with the nurse or an appointment at a later time.

"We try to serve the student's needs," Van Nortwick said. "Westay abreast of changes in student health care needs. We also serve health education and wellness needs. As part of an educational institution, we have an educational motive as well. We want to teach students how to take care of themselves after graduation."

Campus plans cover all aspects

By Laura Allard Staff Writer

Todd Dining Hall is only the tip of the iceberg of changes called "The Visions Plan" that ECU students will witness during the next two decades.

ECU has embarked on a 20year plan to create a more distinguished campus environment, provide more completely for the needs of students and faculty members and strengthen the relationship with the city of Greenville.

The changes are an attempt to make the university "a more friendly, pleasurable experience for students, faculty, and potential students," said Richard Brown, vice chancellor of business affairs.

Many of the major repairs and renovations are the result of deferred maintenance when fund-ter. ing was low, Brown said.

The changes are " ... a drive to make this a serious university. a first-class institution that can attract the very best in students," said Bruce Flye, director of facilities and managing designer for the Flye projected overall enrollment to be 20,000 by early in the next decade, with more growth in the doctorate and masters level programs.

The Visions Plan began three years ago. With the input of students, faculty, staff, trustees and members of the community, The East Carolina University Comprehensive Facilities Master Plan developed in 1992.

The renovations outlined in this plan are divided into three phases. Phase one projects are currently underway, and scheduled for completion within five years.

Phase one began in July 1992, and includes the new Todd Dining Hall located on College Hill, renovations of Slay and Umstead residence halls, renovations of Minges Coliseum, and the demolition of the green garage located on central campus. The expansion of Joyner Library and the acquisition of the old Rose High School property are also scheduled to begin during phase one as long as the bond issue passes in November.

The library expansion will be 165,000 square feet towards Tenth Street, and will house 1.4 million new books, 100 faculty study carrels, and additional computing and television studio space.

"The library will become the to Christenbury Gymnasium evinformation hub of the campus,"

Brown said. A 10th Street entrance similar to the one on Fifth Street will be built at the new library, and a new road will connect the library to the Slay and Umstead parking area. Phase one also includes the construction of the new Student Recreation Center. The Recreation Center was approved on Aug. 15, and construction will begin in late fall or early in the spring semes-

The center, which will include six multi-purpose courts, three aerobic studios, a large weight room, an indoor track, racquetball and squash courts, indoor golf/archery facilities and indoor and outdoor pools, is scheduled to open for the fall semester of 1995.

The university plans to make the main campus pedestrian only, so commuting students who choose not to ride the bus will park at satellite lots and take the shuttles, which currently run every 10 minutes from Minges to campus. The lots on Reade Street will be paved and expanded, and several small lots will be paved and consolidated in order to provide additional spaces. College Hill will also be closed at 10th Street in order to eliminate much of the congestion at that entrance. A loop will be built through the Hill with parallel parking throughout, and a 14th Street entrance will be opened during phase two.

Phase two projects are scheduled for completion during the next six to 15 years. Highlights for phase two include an addition to and renovation of the Jenkins

Survey reveals alcohol on campus top health scourge

In a sweeping new study on alcohol on American campuses that exposed the nature, scope and consequences of collegiate drinking for the first time, nearly half the students surveyed admitted recent binge drinking prior to the survey. Forty-two percent of college students in the study imbibed five or more drinks in one sitting, defined by the study as binge drinking, in the two weeks before they were surveyed. The study, titled "Alcohol and Drugs on American College Campuses: Use, Consequences, and Perceptions of the Campus Environment," is the most comprehensive look at chemical dependency among young people in the nation's history, officials said. "This report is a challenge to every college administrator to find more effective ways to discourage dangerous, irresponsible, and in some cases, illegal behavior," said Richard W. Riley, U.S. Secretary of Education, when the research was released to the press earlier this year. While there has been speculation that males are heavier drinkers than females, the survey documents this as fact. About 28 percent of male students consumed 10 or more drinks a week, and 10 percent had 21 or more drinks in a typical seven-day period. In contrast, about 12 percent of women downed 10 or more drinks a week, while only two percent drank as many as 21 drinks in one week.

Report: top boozers in northeastern schools

The comprehensive "Alcohol and Drugs on American Campuses" survey disclosed regional alcohol drinking patterns throughout the country for the first time. The heaviest collegiate drinking takes place in the Northeast, with the average student consuming 7.1 drinks of liquor, beer or wine per week and 53 percent admitting that they indulged in binge drinking in the two weeks before being surveyed, the study said. Students in the South report quaffing 3.9 drinks per week with 35 percent saying that they did binge drinking in the two-week period.

Chapter 2

Well, that was a lot of help,

I stood on the sidewalk outside The Drunken Boar, smoking a cigarette. Father Time Beerstein's main establishment was like any other in the Brewery, scarred wood on the outside from the hundreds of brawls at night and an even worse interior from the never-ending parade of drunks. 'Stein was sitting in a booth when I walked in, flanked by two guys who looked like their upper body had absorbed pretty much all of the space between it and the head. No long-necks here, if you know what I mean. They both stepped forward to meet me, but stopped when Father Time raised his crone-like hand. "Hammered," he croaked, "it's been a long time. Have a seat."

"Not long enough," I replied as I sat on the edge of the booth, ready for any move Time's buddies might make. "Enough small talk. What do you know about Al

"Not a whole lot. The guy's been around the Brewery for a long time, though. Even longer than me, if you can believe that." 'Stein broke into a coughing fit, eventually wheezing and gasping like a fish out of water. "Sounds like I might not be here much longer, doesn't it? Better than you have thought as much," he said, slipping me a toothy grin.

"Whatever. Exactly when did he start showing his face in the

"Got me." He saw the look on my face and sobered up pretty quick. "Seriously, when I got into town, the guy was everywhere. I asked about him, but no body could seem to agree on where he came from. Some said he was a gift from the gods, others said he may even be a god himself. But I have yet to see the guy who could face down a bullet." He grinned another grin. I didn't grin back.

A place where dreams are made and unmade, lives are turned upside down and a drink is a drink. A place where you kept one hand on your wallet him everywhere. sorrows for a while. Mick Hammered had sworn never to set foot in the Brewery again. Setting out to find his old friend Al Cohol, Mick finds himself up to his neck in the seedy and fermented world of the Brewery. Every Thursday in The East Carolinian, Mick will meet a character who will expose Al in a whole new light. When it's finally over and done with, Mick—and the reader—will be faced with one of the most important questions either has ever faced.

What place does Al Cohol have in my life?

THE CASE OF THE TEN BEERS "Gritty, realistic. Hammered is the ultimate in tough, comparable to though. No doubt about that." He seemed finished, but I had one more thing to ask. "Where is he now?" "Who knows? I'm not kidding when I say this guy was everywhere. One night you'd see him at a party, the next day in some slob's medicine cabinet. If this guy's been around as long as some people say — and some say he started as early as the Old Stone Age—he could have thousands of hiding places. So your guess is as good as mine, Hammered." I stood up, adjusted my fedora and walked between Time's two glaring bodyguards. As I reached for the door, Father Time's scratchy voice stopped me.

"You know, Hammer, I probably shouldn't say this, what with my reputation and all." The hair on the back of my neck started to rise. "If you really want to find this Cohol, try the Guru. That guy knows stuff that scares even me." I tipped my fedora to the old guy, who shrugged it off and went back to his drink.

So here I was, standing on a street corner, figuring out my next move. The sun hung low in the sky, causing the riffraff of the Brewery to walk a little faster in anticipation of the night. I'd almost gotten used to these people again they had a certain flavor and smell about them that was like returning to an old friend. Except this old friend had stabbed me in the back.

I flicked my cigarette into the gutter and walked around my car to get in. Next stop ... O Great

ΑΣΦ

The Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity was nationally founded in December of 1845 at Yale University. Alpha Sig has been a strong growing chapter on the campus of ECU for many years. They give annually to the American Lung Association and enjoy a very active intramural, academic, and social life. If you are interested in rushing a fraternity go by and visit Alpha Sigma Phi.

422 West 5th St.

POT

Beta Them Pi is one of the oldest fraternities in the nation; founded on August 8, 1839. From a small town in Ohio has stemmed one of the greatest fraternities ever. Here on this campus we strive to combine all aspects of fraternity life: social, academic, athletic as well as many other activities which show the day-to-day life of a very tight brotherhood.

501 E. 11th St.

Delta Chi was founded at ECU to break away from the "norm" in fraternity life. We believe in strong Brotherhood, while maintaining each Brother's distinct personality. Delta Chi has outstanding friendship athleticism, leadership, scholarship, and most of all good times. We are looking for men that want to make the most of college life. If you would like to build a tradition rather than become part of one, Delta Chi is for you. We look forward to meeting you at rush, and remember, If you can find a better fraternity, join them at Kingston Place Clubhouse!

ATO

Delta Sigma Phi was chartered at East Carolina in April of 1971, and has continually given what it could to better the ECU Greek system. Delta Sig is based on three simple, but loyal principles: Leadership, Scholarship, and Brotherhood. Brotherhood is a phenomenon that can be felt and witnessed much better than it can be explained. It is a deep friendship with men who can always be depended upon to help when there is a need, and to be there to share the experience of self growth in the incredibly complex world of college life.

510 E. 10th St.

The Kappa Alpha Order was chartered on September 26, 1958 at East Carolina University.

At KA there is a deep tradition in preserving the quality of Southern gentlemen. Kappa Alpha's athletic program is known for its consistent rate of success. Our brotherhood would like to extend an invitation to all interested men to attend rush at our house. We are looking forward to meeting you during rush. 500 E. 11th St.

Kappa Sigma was founded on the East Carolina Campus on November 20, 1966. Since then the fraternity has strived to represent the Greek system of ECU well. Located on Tenth Street directly across from campus, the fraternity offers a convenient spot for its member to gather between classes, as well as being in easy walking distance from the residence halls. The basis of the Kappa Sig fraternity is its brotherhood and through that brotherhood we will continue to grow and prosper long into the future.

700 E. 10th St.

AXA (Most Improved Fraternity '93)

Lambda Chi Alpha is a fraternity of honest friendship. We have over 210 fraternity chapters nationally. Being a Lambda Chi means becoming a part of a brotherhood of men whose friendship will last a lifetime. Being a Lambda Chi means knowing that there will always be someone who cares about you, someone who will be anxious to help you over those rough spots in life. The Lambda Chis invite you to become a part of their association. Come by and look us over, we think you will be glad you did!

500 Elizabeth/ West 5th St.

ΦΚΨ (Highest G.P.A. Award '93)

Phi Kappa Psi is one of the newest fraternities on the ECU campus. Nationally founded in February of 1852 at Jefferson College, Phi Psi has been on the ECU campus for 4 years and has fast become a working part of the Campus Greek system. During rush, if you are interested in rushing a fraternity, try Phi Kappa Psi. We might be just what you're looking for in your college life.

ZTA House West 5th St.

Your college years are a prime opportunity to challenge yourself. This means making the most of the classes, people, and situations you encounter. Fraternities encourage this; Phi Kappa Tau is comprised of a solid brotherhood involved in a wide range of campus activities. We are also very strong on a national level, with over 100 chapters across the country and about $50,000 in academic scholarships awarded annually through our headquarters. The advantages of fraternity memberships do not end upon graduation. Phi Kappa Tau graduates have the opportunity to get together at the house every year at alumni events, such as Homecoming. So go ahead and challenge yourself, get involved with a fraternity.

409 Elizabeth St./ West 5th St.

ΠΚΑ (University Service Award/Best Philanthropy '93)

Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity was founded on March 1, 1968 at the University of Virginia. Pika at ECU is a fraternity that takes great pride in their involvement on the campus and around the community. Pika was rechartered at ECU six years ago and has flourished to be one of the greatest supporters of the Greek system. If you're thinking of going Greek this year check out Pi Kappa Alpha...it may be one of the best decisions of you college life. West 5th St.

Pi Kappa Phi was chartered at East Carolina in 1963. Since the beginning we have proven to be a strong force in the development of fine young men to serve our campus. We offer a variety of activities to excel in ranging form a string athletic program to community service and projects for the handicapped. We are known to have a very strong social program and hold many major events throughout the year. We have a very strong alumni association that helps in our endeavors. Our scholarship program helps to develop our brothers as students. So remember, when you're in a rush to the only way...GO PI KAPP! 830 Hooker Rd.

At East Carolina, Sigma Nu is a combination of rich tradition and new membership. First chartered in 1959, the Eta Beta chapter of Sigma Nu is among the oldest of all Fraternities at ECU. Fraternity life at Sigma Nu offers many things for all its members: an active social life, strong support for athletics, community service, and academics. Nationally, Sigma Nu is among the best in all categories. With over 230 chapters and 130 thousand brothers, it is the third largest fraternity internationally. Its comprehensive Educational Foundation

(L.E.A.D.) provides many scholarships and offers many great leadership development programs. We encourage you to Rush Sigma Nu and above all, GO GREEK!

618 Pitt St.

ZWE

At Sigma Phi Epsilon we believe that as well as providing numerous opportunities during the college years, the fraternity experience continues throughout one's life. Sig Ep provides an environment where a brother develops and learns many important social skills such as sportsmanship, scholarship, and communication among many others. We pride ourselves on being one of the best fraternities at East Carolina as well as in the nation. Sigma Phi Epsilon has been named ECU's most outstanding fraternity two out of three years. On a national level the North Carolina Kappa Chapter has been recognized as one of the best all-around Sig Ep chapters in the nation. Sig Ep is looking for balanced men who excel not only in academics, but in athletics, leadership, and social skills as well. We extend an invitation to all interested, qualified men with a desire to become a part of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

505 East 5th St.

The Eta Kappa chapter of Sigma Pi was the second fastest chapter in Sigma Pi International history. Sigma Pi is the up-and-coming fraternity on campus. Sigma Pi is known for its diversity among members yet has a very strong brotherhood. Sigma Pi is very competitive with each and every fraternity on campus and with your help will become an even more dominant part of the Greek system at East Carolina. If you want to go Greek, experience a great brotherhood, meet lots of people, and have a good time then go Sigma Pi. Alpha Delta Pi house 5th/Meade.

Sigma Tau Gamma has a long and proud heritage of offering young men the opportunity to broaden their lives through fraternal brotherhood. With over 100 chapters across the country, Sigma Tau Gamma is recognized nationally and has its home office in Warrensburg, MO. Our national office works closely with our chapter here at East Carolina which maximizes our bonds to one another and the community. Come see what makes Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity the most unique and diversified on campus. Sigma Tau Gamma - taking tradition to tomorrow.

1210 Dickinson Ave.

KE

Tau Kappa Epsilon, founded in 1899, has become the largest international fraternity with around 365 chapters in the U.S. and Canada. TKE calls itself "the fraternity for life" and over 100,000 members worldwide are proving it through their interest in the fraternity that continues long after graduation. TKE participates in activities ranging form sports and scholastics to community project. If you like what you hear, come on down to the bottom of the hill to the TKE house and find out if TKE is for you.

951 East 10th St.

(Chancellor's Cup Champion '93)
Theta Chi was first chartered at East Carolina on March 15, 1958. We are an established Fraternity with over 50 active brothers who pride themselves on the concept of unity and closeness within the brotherhood. Theta Chi strives among the top in athletics and scholastics and is a catalyst for individual accomplishment. We challenge you to be a part of our continued success and extend an invitation to rush Theta Chi.

Our new house location is 312 East 11th St. (758-6969). Be a part of the Greek leader of the 90's. ROLL CH!!

Health Center raises prices

Student Health Services hikes prices on prescription drugs, other medication

It seems rather obnoxious, doesn't it? It wasn't enough that tuition was raised, so a decision was made wherein a student must pay to receive over-the-counter medications at the Student Health Center. Medication that required no payment before. Come on, give us a break!

It's brilliant, in a way—who better to take advantage of than the sick and run-down? The equation goes something like this: Students get sick. Students need medicine. Student Health has medicine. They know students need this medicine and depend (somewhat) upon them to obtain said medicine. Pardon the pun, but it just makes me sick.

And to legitimize this fee implementation, Student Services can "offer more medicines at reduced charges." Curious as to what some of those medicines are? Take a gander: antacids, diarrhea suppressants and medications for nausea and motion sickness.

Question: how many times in the past year have you (yes, you) had motion sickness? And if you have had motion sickness, did you have it enough times to prompt you into a fit of rage against Student Health Services because they didn't carry Dramamine?

Supposedly, what prompted this was a written complaint by some poor student "who resented the fact that some students were stocking up on free medicine that he paid for with his student health fee." Or so Vannortwick, Director of Student Health services, says.

Sorry, but it seems highly unlikely that one mere person could sway a very powerful branch of ECU to do anything simply because they resented someone, let's say, stocking up on Nyquil. (Ever done that?)

In case you ever wondered, the Student Health Fee (of which you shelled out $114) basically pays for salaries—those doctors, nurses, psychologists, psychiatrists and administrative persons that keep Student Health cranking along.

Medicine isn't fully funded by the Student Health Fee; rather, it comes more from state grants. Grants that we all know don't usually offer as much money as you'd expect.

And we could go into a whole sob story about how the state government doesn't allocate enough funds for the university to properly serve the needs of the ECU student body, but that would be pointless.

The real problem here is the fact that overthe-counter drugs are now $1 per item, prescription drugs are $2.50 each and Student Health is passing it off as some sort of public relations, Mr. Good-Guy solution.

They've made a sneaky, money-making ploy into a seemingly innocent look-at-uswe're-taking-care-of-the-students'-suggestions-campaign.

So the next time you get an unexpected case of motion sickness, stagger yourself over to Student Health, shell out a buck and pick up some little tablets. While this is happening, be rest assured that no one is stocking up on free Immodium.

Censorship of materials only piques interest

Censorship. What an ugly word. For years now, people who "know best" have tried to tell the rest of the world what they should read, what they should watch, what they should listen to ... I'm only waiting for some one do-gooder to tell me what air to breathe or what side of the bed to sleep on.

From violence on television to explicit lyrics in music to those oh-so-nasty words in books, I've just got one thing to say: "If you don't like it, change the channel, turn it off or turn the page!" It's just that simple, people! I can't believe that our society has gone so far downhill that people can't (or won't) take the time to exercise their God-given right of freedom of choice. Call me crazy, call me stupid, call me Ishmael, just don't call me late for dinner! (Someone please tell me you got that joke.)

The most recent example of these people-who-have-nothing-better-to-dothan-stick-their-nose-somewhere-it-doesn'tbelong is an AP article from Washington that states that "parents made 347 attempts to censor books, plays and other material in their children's schools last year .... In 143 cases, ... the complaints resulted in the materialbeing withdrawn or somehow censored." This means that roughly 41 percent of this material is being taken off library shelves or reading lists.

Let me list a few examples of these awful books:

 "Sleeping Beauty" — for its violence and frightening nature. (What about Snow White, a woman who lives with seven dirty, old men? HMM?)

• "Where's Waldo?" — for a woman's partially exposed breast that probably had to be discovered under a magnifying glass. • "Dracula" (the play) — for references to God and blood.

Proponents of this "enforcement," as they call it, state that these actions only show "parents who choose to be involved in the lives of their school-age children." Involved, or in charge of? Now, I'm not saying that parents shouldn't supervise their children. What I am saying is that keeping material any material — away from children does more harm than good.

Everyone knows from pretty early on the basic rule of reverse psychology — if you tell someone not to do something, they will probably do it just out of spite. So telling a child that he can't read a book or see a play, for whatever reason, makes that same child want to read or see it all the more. What greater thrill is there than doing something you've been told not to do? If a parent wants to supervise their child (which they should), then why not read that book to your child or watch that T.V. program with him/her? As a parent, you get to spend quality time with your child and you can talk about tough questions, like violence or sex. Putting blinders on your child in the hopes that he won't ever be exposed to this darker side of mankind is naive at best and dangerous at worst. "What you don't know won't hurt you"? Untrue.

attempts directing

By Ike Shibley Staff Writer

Many actors have tried their hands at directing after years of work on the other side of the camera. The latest actor to attempt this transition is Mel Gibson. The film that he directs is called The Man Without a Face.

Gibson, like many actors/ directors, decided to cast himself in his directorial debut. He stars as Justin McLeod, a man who is severely burned in an auto accident and who becomes the tutor of a young boy with an unpleasant home life.

Charles Norstadt (Nick Stahl) detests his home. His mother (Margaret Whitton) has three different children by three different men. During the story, she meets and marries husband number five. Charles hates his oldest halt-sister Gloria (Fay Masterson) because she dislikes him. His youngerhalf-sistertalks incessantly and even though she adores Charles, he can barely tolerate her attachment to him.

Charles's one dream is to leave his family and enroll at a military academy. Unfortunately, he fails the entrance exam. In a desperate attempt to get into the school, he convinces his mother to let him retake the exam at the end of the summer but retaking the exam means a summer of studying. Charles dislikes his homelife so much that no sacrifice seems too large in order for him to gain admittance to the school and a reprieve from his

Through a series of chances, Charles meets Justin McLeod, a former teacher. McLeod takes on Charles as a pupil and helps him to realize his full potential.

McLeod lives alone. In the quiet New England town in which he resides, he has a dubious reputation because of his reclusiveness and because of his burn scars. The townspeople often refer to him as "the freak" and concoctwildstoriesabouthispast. Eventually McLeod's tutoring becomes common knowledge and the townspeople begin to worry about Charles' safety. This leads to accusations and threats. These proceedings prolong the

This last third of the film concerning the town's reaction to McLeod's tutoring darkens an otherwise bright picture. By escalating the tension in this otherwise fine story, the filmmakers

The point is, before PeeWee, Mr. Rogers was a victim. These heinous cyclical attacks on our children's friends must cease! Why don't these weak-kneed milk-sop scaredy-cat tough-guy hacks pick on someone their own size?! Grrrr.

And that's what I'm talking about. People are bullies. Remember that Christmas movie, the one about the kid shooting his eye out with the Red Rider BB gun? five straight bowl games. The Pirates are no match for the Orangemen and are not likely to catch them off guard as ECU has done in the past.

Win or lose, this game will set the tone of the season. The Pirates will be exposed and everyone will know wether or not to believe the hype. A victory here is not necessary for a successful season — if ECU keeps it respectable, it will be a moral victory.

If Pirate quarterback Marcus Crandell avoids mistakes, he will be successful and so will the team. 300 yards passing is not as important as keeping the INT column blank.

they have improved on last year. SU quarterback Marvin Graves is a legitimate Heisman Trophy candidate was the second rated passer behind Heisman Trophy winner Gino Torretta. Against the Pirates in 1992, Graves threw for 213 yards, completing 11-17 with three touchdowns and no interceptions.

The loss of wide receiver Quadry Ismail hasn't hurt a bit. Meet Shelby Hill. After playing in the shadow of "The Missile" and former Orangeman Rob Carpenter, Hill, a senior, is All-American calibre. He contemplated turning professional after last season Syracuse is one of the best but decided to finish his career at teams in the nation and has won Syracuse and is expected to be a first-round draft pick at the end of the 1993 season. Hill took three passes for 65 yards last year in Ficklen Stadium.

The Orangemen's defense ranked fifth in the nation against the run in 1992 and returned six starters. If SU stops running back Junior Smith and his backfield partner Jerris McPhail, Crandell will be forced to air the ball out frequently in his first collegiate game — which happens to be on national television. How Crandell handles himself under the pressure sets the tone for the remainder of the season.

SU's core of defensive backs are experienced and should rarely Ball State lost to the giveupalong-yardagepassplay. mendously. Conley was credited with 71 tackles last season.

Defensive end Kevin Mitchell was voted Defensive The Buc defense will have its MVP in the Fiesta Bowl and is fourthon SU's career sack list. He will need to step up.

This will be, by far, the biggesthomegame of the year. However, the Bucs may be better off playing this game in the Carrier Dome. As road favorite over the last 10 years, Syracuse is 24-5-2. Ashome favorite, They are 22-20. As the underdog, ECU has a better record on the road than at

ECU INJURY UPDATE -Redshirt freshman quarterback Chris Hester will miss the Syracuse game due to a broken right thumb. He will likely miss the first 3-4 games. The injury was suffered in the Pirates' first fall

Junior running back Damon Wilson will likely miss the Syra-

Senior defensive tackle Jeff Cooke suffered a sprained toe in practice and then dislocated a thumb later in drills. However, Cooke should play against the Orangemen.

PIRATES vs. BIG EAST -This season, ECU will play two BIG EAST football programs Syracuse and Virginia Tech. Last season, ECU played four BIG EAST teams, defeating Pittsburgh and Virginia Tech and falling to Syracuse and West Virginia.

The Pirates have a 12-28 record against schools currently those losses are against West Virginia and Miami (Fla.). East Carolina is 4-3 against Virginia Tech, 2-2 against Pittsburgh, 1-3 against Syracuse and 5-4 against Temple. ECU has never played against Rutgers and Boston College.

On the sidelines, Holcomb can easily be spotted. He is the one wearing different colored shoes. This ritual of wearing a black pant shoe and white kicking shoedates back to high school.

"I love to have mix-matched shoes cause I like to be myself," Holcomb said. "I want everyone to notice I'm an individual."

Although he expresses himself as an individual, Holcomb said he realizes it takes a team effort to win a football game.

His style is exhibited off the field as well. On ECU's campus, students walk, ride bikes or drive to class. This freshman said he opts to ride a scooter to be differ-

Kegs banned for good of school

By Robert S. Todd Sports Editor

Kegs are alters of worship at most social functions where alcohol is available. However, over the summer, kegs were banned from tailgating on ECU property in an attempt to reduce over-consumption of alcohol, improve ECU's image and reduce the university's liability in the event of an accident (a 16-year-old girl almost died from alcohol poisoning last season). Bringing kegs onto ECU property will result in the confiscation of the keg, which will then be returned to the distributor, and a possible citation. Anyone caught may also be written up, sent to the

The local beer industry may feel effects as well. Patel Dinesh, manager of the Pirates' Chest said he expects the ban to hurt quite a bit, but he will not know for sure until after the first game.

A local Anheiser-Busch distributer expects the loss of keg revenue to be made up in package

"Our local stores . . . will take a loss, where, in turn, the grocery stores should do excellent," said Wes Tinkham, a Budweiser representative. "I don't think the ban was appropriate, because there are a simple few who are in college and can't drink responsibly so that it ruins an ECU tradition for all the rest."

The tradition of kegs at taigating is something that may have been tarnishing the University's image.

"When you consider only 20 percent of the student body is of legal drinking age," Knox said, "it does not look good for the university to condone kegs and buffettype drinking situations. And, we are the only university that even allows (kegs) in those types of

U.S. Open lost most top-notch stars early

NEW YORK (AP) — In the beginning, the top half of the bers. men's draw of the U.S. Open read like a Who's Who of tennis. Now it looks like a Who Was.

Jim Courier, the world's No. 1 player and the top seed, is gone. So, too, is Boris Becker, the 1989 winner and this year's fourth seed.

No. 5 Sergi Brugera, No. 10 Richard Krajicek, No. 11 Goran Ivanisevicand No. 13 Ivan Lendl. Gone, gone, gone and gone.

Still in the title chase today in the year's final Grand Slam tournament are giant-killers Cedric Pioline of France and Magnus Larsson of Sweden, Wally Masur of Australia and eighth-seeded Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine.

Oh, what a Tuesday it was! Courier was the first to depart, driven out by the scintillating stroke production of Pioline, the tournament's 15th seed, 7-5, 6-7 (4-7), 6-4, 6-4.

"I was just more consistent and I played very good on the important points, the key points," said Pioline, emulating the effort in 1927 of Rene Lacoste, one of the famed Four Musketeers, who beat No. 1 Bill Tilden in the 1927 U.S. Open final.

After Steffi Graf, the women's top seed, escaped Gabriela Sabatini 6-2, 5-7, 6-1 in a lengthy battle, Becker followed Courier to the sideline, falling to Larsson 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Those were the headline-grab- in a quarterfinal matchup.

came back from a 5-0 fifth-set deficit to outlast Jamie Morgan 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5 and Medvedev eliminated Krajicek 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-4).
