Recently ECU and Duke University began the first phase of its project which is designed to improve the quality of health care in eastern North Carolina counties.

On Oct. 1, the two universities began the developmental phase of the project after being chosen as two of 12 institutions to receive a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation grant in the amount of $300,000. The project, dubbed "Partnerships for Training," aims to recruit and train more mid-level practitioners, which collectively includes nurse practitioners, physicians' assistants and certified nurse mid-wives. According to Doug Boyd at the Office of Medical Center News and Information, at the start of the planning phase, emphasis is placed on gauging how many students will be participating so plans for the curriculum can begin. "The 12 organizations will present their completed plans to implement their programs," Boyd said, "and at the end of a two-year evaluation process, eight of the 12 will be chosen to put their plans into action." Dean of the ECU School of Nursing, Phyllis Homs, and Mary Champagne, dean of Duke's nursing school, are working together as the directors of the project. Horns said a joint effort by ECU and Duke should prove to be a good Prank phone calls - Two students received a prank phone call from a person claiming to have struck their vehicles. Neither party received repeated calls.

October 24

Assault by pointing a gun - A student reported that an unknown black male pointed a gun at him while he was riding his bicycle northeast of Jenkins Art building. The subject did not fire the gun.

Possible suicide attempt - A non-student reported that a friend of hers may have taken an overdose of sleeping pills. Officers contacted the student at her residence hall and she advised that she had not taken the pills and gave them to the officers. The coordinator and counselor spoke with the student. The student will follow up with the counselor at her earliest convenience.

October 25

Possession of weapon - A student was arrested for possession of a weapon on campus after officers observed a rifle in his vehicle. The rifle was unloaded and secured in the gun rack. The incident occurred north of White Hall.

Damage to property - An art sculpture located on the southeast corner of Jenkins Art building was damaged when an unknown person pushed it over.

October 26

Assist rescue - A non-student was found in an intoxicated state in the road at the northeast corner of the Brody Building. Due to his intoxication and several abrasions he received when he fell down, he was transported to the hospital by Greenville Rescue.

October 29

Drug possession - An officer stopped a vehicle at Jones Hall for a one-way street violation. During a consent search of the vehicle, controlled substances and drug paraphernalia were found. Four non-students were cited.

October 30

Drug possession - A non-student was issued a state citation for possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. She was arrested for possession of Acetaminophen Oxycodone or "Percoset" that was not dispensed to her. The incident occurred in the commuter lot south of Fletcher Music building.

TOP TEN REASONS FOR VOTING FOR INEZ FRIDLEY FOR CITY COUNCIL DISTRICT 3

Inez is a proven leader. In 1987 and 1988 she was selected Greenville's Best Public Servant in a Greenville Times reader

Inez fought hard for our present recycling program, implemented in 1993, which is environmentally friendly and saves landfill space. Inez believes in public involvement. The noise ordinance critized by her opponent was adopted in 1985 and updated in 1990, both times with input from the SGA, fraternities and sororities, University officials, and the general public. The ordinance has served as a model for other university

Inez believes in strong town/gown relationships and has been involved in a National League of Cities Task Force for University-City Relations. Inez is concerned about the environment and is a member of the Sierra Club, served on the advisory board of the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation, and has been Council liaison to the City's Environmental Advisory Commission, the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Greenville Utilities Commission. Inez is a believer in greenspace and was instrumental in the establishment of the new Green Mill Run Greenway being dedicated October 29th, which extends from the ECU campus to Greensprings Park. Inez believes in strong code enforcement and does not believe that students should pay exorbitant rent for minimal housing. nez believes in sound fiscal management and is committed to creative financial solutions that offer long-term advantages over short term fixes. Inez believes in stronger police protection and has supported innovative policing techniques such as bicycle patrols, police substations, and lap-top computers in patrol cars to improve efficiency.

Inez is also an ECU graduate, who has been proud to represent the needs of students, neighbors, businesses, and the entire

Out with the old and in with the new - ECU's bank machine problems may almost be over.

.First Union has replaced one out-of-service teller machine outside of Mendenhall Student Center and Wachovia never left its original spot which leaves one void to fill. While two machines might seem appropriate to handle ECU's student banking needs, service charge is not a pretty word. Competitive banks, such as Triangle, have chosen to install machines elsewhere because parking spaces bemachines side Mendenhall are no longer available due to the rec center construction. At one time, students could drive up to the bus stop and park their cars for a few minutes (in a metered spot) in order to use the machines - not any more. The lack of parking leaves the machine available only to those who happen to be on campus or who live nearby.

Let us not forget the Cash Points machine located beside the Student Stores on central campus. Students can still drive up to that spot, but a minimum of $20 has to be SUITS YOUr taken out (possibly more than most students have). These three machines cover central and west campus, but what about College Hill? The Wachovia teller located on 10th are you Street beside the Post Office sees more than its fair share constantly of business. An ATM added to the top of College Hill (possibly in Todd Dining Hall) might alleviate some of the conhaving to gestion students often face when trying to get money from the 10th Street location. But as we all know ideas can take years to escalate into projects, especially completed trips to projects.

Who decides what machines get a spot on campus anyway? Competitive bidding allows banks to hold the supreme cash? space of ECU, but why can't all banks be allowed to share in fair competition? The university is planning to install information kiosk machines across campus and there is certainly room for as many banks as the university wants to allow.

With downtown seeming to be the favorite nightlife spot for many students, one would think downtown would be an ideal location for banking machines. But, there's only one available - in the parking lot for Chico's and Bicycle Post. This dark lot is not the ideal locale for students, primarily female students, to be withdrawing money on late weekend nights. So to retrieve money, these patrons are expected to either carry a wad of cash downtown, drive intoxicated to a bank machine, walk to Mendenhall (in hopes that one of the machines may be working) or simply do without (which can only hurt downtown establishments and banks).

So, once again, it seems as though the needs of the students are being overlooked for the convenience.

Bowling for dollars

Who says that college football is made up of amateurs? Okay, the players might be, but when it comes to coaches it's business as usual. With big money waiting in bowl berths, the stakes are high, and this is where sportsmanship is left at the stadium

There are two main problems facing college football seasons. One is that it needs a playoff system to eliminate controversy. The second is that there needs to be better regulation of the way polls are conducted.

I warn you that at no point will I be placing any sort of blame on the players for these problems. I think as they are coached.

The chief problem facing coltroversy of the 1994 season involved what. a dispute between the two unbeaten teams, Nebraska and Penn State, and who was really the national champion. They both had the same record and won their bowl games, respectfully, but the decision was left up to

This would be almost flawless except for the fact that the teams of the Pac 10 and the Big 10 didn't sign on, and, thus, still remain committed to the Rose Bowl.

Fortunately, this shouldn't be a problem this year because the highest team in either of these two conferences is Ohio State, coming in at number four. But who's to say in the

The solutions are pretty simple

The first solution is for the NCAA to reform the bowl situation. Step number one is the toughest. Tell the Pac 10 and the Big 10 that they no longer have the option to go wherever they want. This will put everyone back in the same race. Step number two is to take the top four teams and have them play the week after the regular season is over. This will still fall before exams and keep university presidents, concerned about academic schedules happy.
