A 19-year-old female non-student reported being raped in her residence on the 1400 block of 1st Street, an area heavily populated by students, Sunday night.

The rape reportedly occurred at 10:38 p.m. The alleged perpetrator was an acquaintance of the victim.

"The vast majority of sexual assaults involve people that know each other," said Tom Younce, Assistant Director of the ECUPD. "It is very unusual to have a stranger raping a young person."

The victim immediately reported the rape to the Greenville Police Department (GPD). She was then taken to the Pitt Memorial Hospital emergency room, where a rape kit was administered.

Police are currently interviewing witnesses who were apparently within the residence that evening.

"We are still in the investigative point of this case," said Sgt. Richard Allsbrook, supervisor of Family Services.

Allsbrook would not comment on whether other people were present during the alleged sexual assault.

Charges have yet to be filed in the case. After the GPD has finished investigating, the case will be presented to the Assistant District Attorney's office. The Bisexuals, Gays, Lesbians, and Allies for Diversity (B-GLAD) held a candlelight vigil Wednesday to remember Matthew Shepard, the University of Wyoming student whose death Monday brought national attention to anti-gay hate crimes.

"A 21 year old student was beaten to death," B-GLAD adviser Jeff Gersh said. "It very well could have been here. It very well could have been me."

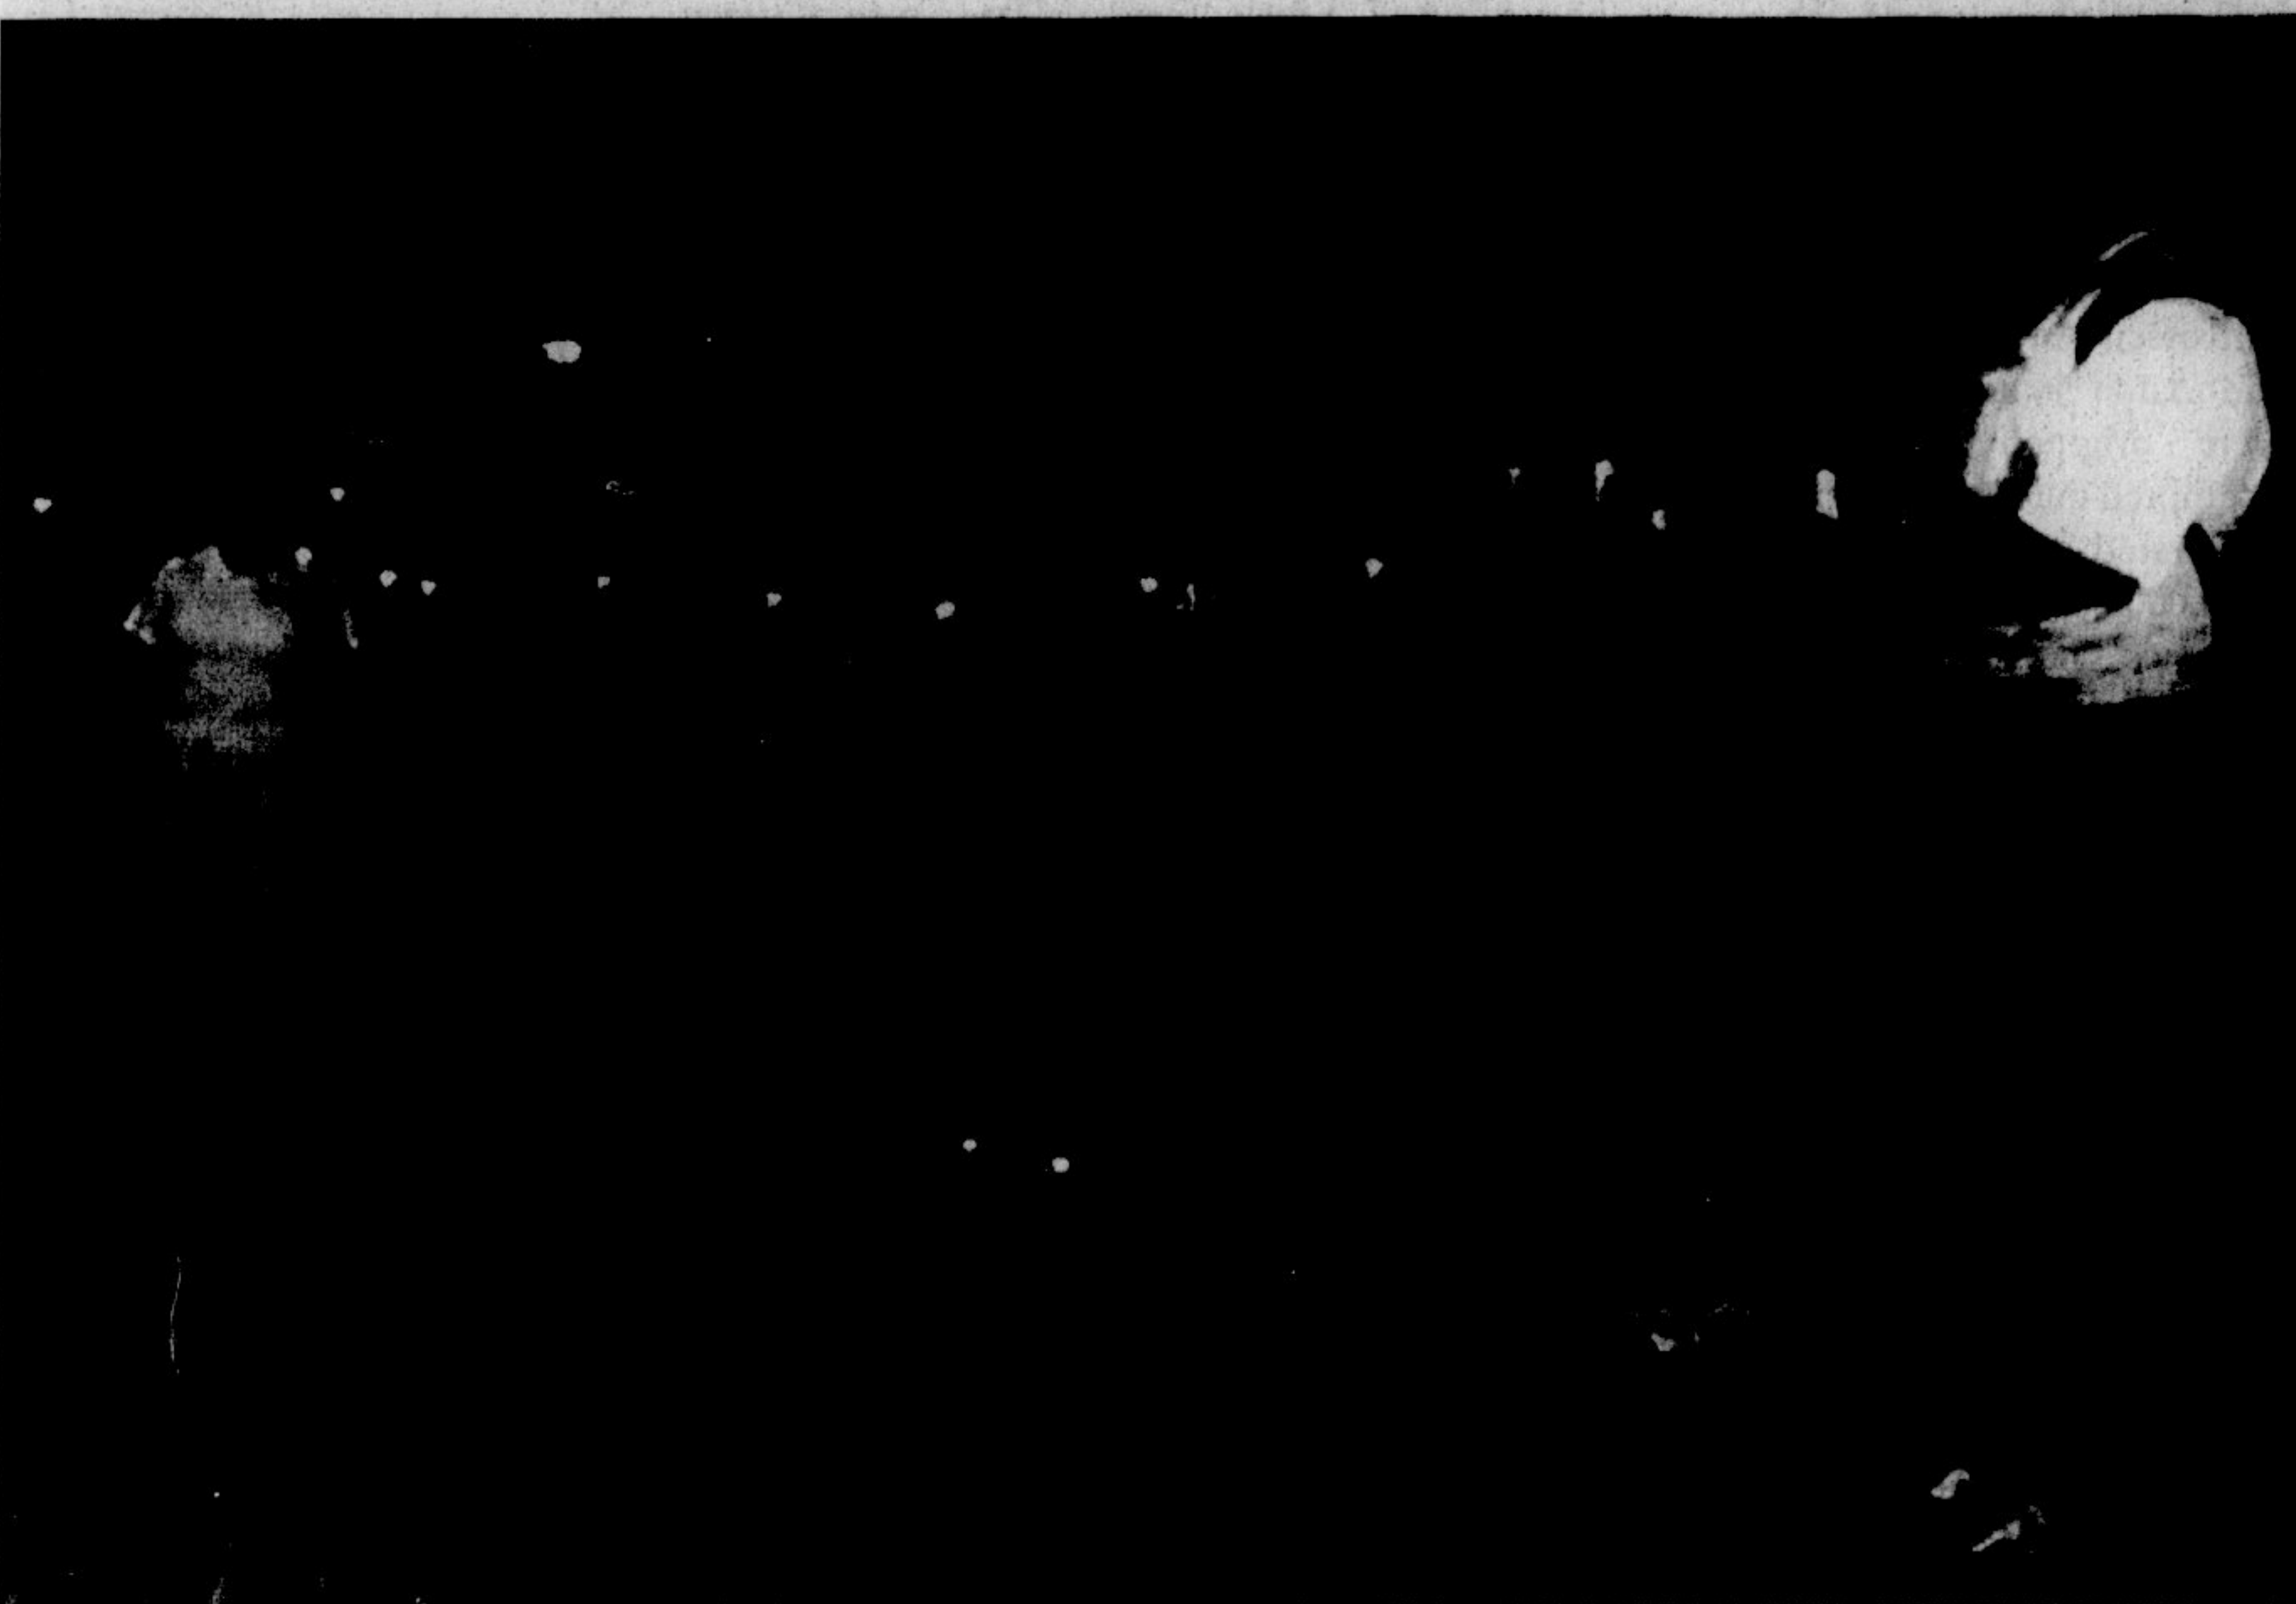

The vigil was held at 8 p.m. in front of the Sonic Plaza. Senior Johnny Holden, president of B-GLAD, Gersh, Residence Hall Association president Sherri Ingram, and Lynn Roder of Counseling and Student Development spoke at the vigil.

Holden spoke emotionally about Shepard's death and how it affected him.

"I feel angry and betrayed by a part of humanity," Holden said. "A part that is cold, cruel, without warmth, compassion, and acceptance. Never forget, never again."

Gersh spoke about hate crimes and hostile reactions some had toward Shepard's death.

"A group has decided to boycott [Shepard's] funeral, carrying placards that say things such as 'Fag Matt,' 'Burn in hell,' [and] 'No tears for queers,'" Gersh said. "[These are] supposedly

A woman who asked not to be identified stepped forward to share her experiences.

"I'm a family member of someone who's gay," she said. "I risk my job by standing up and speaking. I have been in situations with my family members where we were terrorized. I ask you to challenge your faith community and stand up for what is right."

Shepard was a former student at Catawba College. Some of those present at the vigil were acquainted with Shepard.

"I met him in Raleigh last year," sophomore Craig Garner said. "He was just an average kid. I felt like someone ripped my heart out [when I heard the news]. I don't see how humans can do this to other humans."

Holden could not recall any instances of hate crimes occurring on campus. He said that instances of harassment in residence halls were dealt with swiftly.

African-Americans' role in criminal justice discussed

More than 200 correction professionals from North Carolina and the Southeast headed to Raleigh last week to discuss the role of African-Americans in Criminal Justice.

The Annual Conference and Training Institute of the North Carolina State Chapter of the National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice (NABCCJ) took place Oct. 8, 9, and 10.

"The sense of seeing so many people together at one time [for the conference] was important," said Dr. Paul Knepper, chair of the Criminal Justice Department. "We have to know about the contributions black people have made in this country."

The theme of this year's confer-

Some of the speakers and presenters were Irving Joyner, a professor at NC Central Law School, Richard Moore, secretary of the NC Department of Criminal Control and Public Safety, 5th Judicial Court Judge Joseph E. Turner, and Gwendolyn Churn, director of Youth Services in the NC Department of Health and Human Services.

Fewer students on academic probation

This is the fourth in a series of articles intended to examine the trend of rising GPAs at ECU.

Workshops offered to raise low GPAs

JASON ZIEBART
STAFF WRITER

The past few years have seen an overall decline in the number of students on academic probation at ECU.

According to an Academic Difficulty Report from the Office of Undergraduate Studies, 355 students were on academic probation last fall. During the spring, that number jumped to 751. The number of students presently on probation is 277.

The report also included factors that students said contributed to their academic difficulty. Some said they had a lack of motivation. Others said they had an inadequate balance between extracurricular activities and class work.

The 1997-1998 Undergraduate Catalog lists academic warning, academic probation, and academic suspension as three different types of academic difficulty. Students with one to seven credit hours and no grade point average (GPA) are put on probation. Students with 8 to 31 credit hours must have at least a 1.35 GPA to avoid probation. Students with 32 to 63 hours must have a 1.6 GPA, and those with 64 to 95 hours must have a 1.8 GPA. Those with 96 or more hours must maintain a 1.9 GPA or higher. If students are attempting a second undergraduate degree, they have must have a 2.0 GPA.

Don Joyner, Assistant Dean in the Office of Undergraduate Studies, said that the definition of academic warning was changed this semester. A student with less than 32 credit hours used to be placed on warning if his or her GPA was less than 1.75, and a student with 32 or more credit hours was placed on warning if his or her GPA was less than 2.0. Now a student with any number of credit hours is placed on warning if his or her GPA is less than 2.0.

"A lot of people think [their GPAs] are too low," Joyner said.

Even with the higher standards, fewer students are on academic warning and probation than last year. According to Joyner, there are three main reasons that have contributed to this decline. The first reason is that ECU is admitting students with higher GPAs. Second, students are focusing more on academics because many programs have high GPA standards. The high

A law proposed by Senator John Warner of Virginia will allow institutions to notify the parents of students who violate rules against drugs and alcohol.

ECU is considering whether it will make use of the law by writing letters to parents of students who violate drug and alcohol laws. First the university will go through a process to get feedback from students and the community as to what these groups believe should be done.

"This is not an easy decision," said Mary Louise Antieau, Associate Dean of Student Life. "We will need input from students as to how they feel about the law."

Warner has seen drastic increases in the number of alcohol related cases involving college students in Virginia. He hopes the law will curb under-age

Wyoming student dies after beating

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) - A gay college student who was lured from a campus hangout, beaten and lashed to a split-rail fence died Monday, and the two young men arrested in the attack now face murder charges that could bring the death penalty.

Matthew Shepard, 21, died at Poudre Valley Hospital in Fort Collins, Colo., while on life support. His skull was so badly smashed that doctors could not perform surgery, hospital president Rulon Stacey said.

The University of Wyoming student had been in a coma since bicyclists found him in near-freezing temperatures Wednesday evening. They at first mistook him for a scarecrow.

Russell Arthur Henderson, 21, and Aaron James McKinney, 22, were originally charged with attempted murder, kidnapping and aggravated robbery, and jailed on $100,000 bail each.

Police said that with Shepard's death, the charges against them will be upgraded to first-degree murder, which carries a possible death sentence.

Their girlfriends - Chasity Vera Pasley, 20, and Kristen Leann Price, 18 - were charged with being accessories after the fact. Police said the women helped dump bloody clothing and initially lied about their whereabouts.

Police said that robbery was the main motive but that Shepard apparently was chosen in part because he was gay. The 5-foot-2, 105-pound Shepard had been beaten twice in recent months, attacks he attributed to his homosexuality.

In a statement issued by the hospital, Shepard's mother, Judy Shepard, urged parents to hug their children and enjoy every day with them.

"He came into the world premature and left the world premature and they are most grateful for the time they had to spend with Matthew," the hospital president said.

Of the 41 states that have hate-crime laws, 21 states specifically cover offenses motivated by the victim's sexual orientation. Efforts to pass a hate-crime law in Wyoming have failed several times.

On Monday, the giant rainbow flag that symbolizes the gay movement was lowered to half staff in San Francisco's Castro District. College students rallied in downtown Denver to remember Shepard and denounce violence. And in Laramie, where the long-planned Gay Awareness Week began, some students wore yellow and green armbands to send a message of peace.

"It's a great loss to everyone, whether they knew him or not. He was an incredible individual," said Jim Osborn, a friend of Shepard's and chairman of Lesbian Gay Bisexual and Transgendered Association, a University of Wyoming student group.

Police said the two men lured Shepard out of the Fireside bar late Tuesday or early Wednesday by telling him they were gay. The three of them got in McKinney's standards of the programs also affect the type of students that apply to ECU.

"The [academic] culture of the university is changing," Joyner said.

Finally, workshops are provided for students that are on warning or probation. They offer advice on subjects such as becoming a successful student, time management, note-taking skills, and academic motivation. They are held throughout the semester at either the Academic Support Center at Brewster B-103 or the Center for Counseling and Student Development at 316 Wright.

"I see the students coming and going to the workshops," said Shawn Coward, a tutor in the Academic Support Center. "[The workshops] are not as popular as they should be, but it gets them on the right start before they ruin their college career."

Students placed on probation are required to attend one of these workshops. They will stay on probation for the remainder of the semester and then be placed on warning or be considered in good standing depending on their GPAs. Students on warning are encouraged to attend one of the workshops, but are not required.

Later, Shepard was tied up and pistol-whipped as he begged for his life, and he was robbed of his wallet and black patent leather shoes, police said. A .357 Magnum used to beat Shepard was found at McKinney's home, police said.

McKinney's girlfriend, Ms. Price, and his father, Bill McKinney, told The Denver Post that the two men didn't set out to kill Shepard but wanted to get back at him for making passes at McKinney in front of his friends.

At the fence where Shepard was left behind, there was a single basket of flowers Monday.

Freshman Marilyn Ward, a criminal justice major, became a member of the NABJ at the conference and called it a very rewarding experience. Ward felt that future conferences should be attended by all criminal justice students.

"It was a rewarding experience to meet so many people in the field, and there are so many different options in the criminal justice field," Ward said.

The national chapter and the North Carolina state chapter met together from Wednesday through Saturday morning at NC Central University. The NABJ was started in 1973 at the University of Alabama and now has more than 4,000 members. The conference was open to any interested parties.

The NABJ prides itself on being a multiracial and nonpartisan association of criminal justice professionals and community leaders who are dedicated to improving the administration of justice. The North Carolina Chapter has over 250 active members. Membership and participation in NABJ activities are open to all, irrespective of race, creed or national origin.

Drinking

drinking at universities around the country, according to Anteau.

Between August 1997 and August 1998, cases involving underage drinking and ECU students reached 676. The new law will make it legal for ECU to send letters home to parents whether the student is on or off campus, no matter what type of police force catches the offense.

"Violations occur from many different areas of the school's alcohol laws," Anteau said. "Arrests fall into categories from DUIs, under-age drinking in dormitories, to tailgating offenses. Most of the violations occur, however, when under-age students attempt to buy liquor at ABC stores."

An 18-year-old freshman, who asked not to be identified, was fined Saturday after being caught drinking at the Homecoming game. He feels that he should not have to answer to his parents if he does not live with them.

"I don't live at home, and I pay my own bills" he said. "It was my problem, not my parents. They shouldn't be involved in this."

Sgt. LaFrance Davis of the ECU Police Department said she understands where the students are coming from and believes that people must weigh the pros and cons of the law.

"Many would say that the law infringes on the privacy of the student, but I believe that we may see a decrease in the number of cases of underage drinking if the law is passed," Davis said. "Students don't want their parents to know about their drinking habits if it can be prevented."

Greenville police attorney Blair Carr also feels that the new rule might lead to a decrease in student drinking.

The Cotten and Garrett Hall rapes are still under investigation. However, Younce said that he hopes the Garrett Hall investigation will be cleared up by the end of next week.

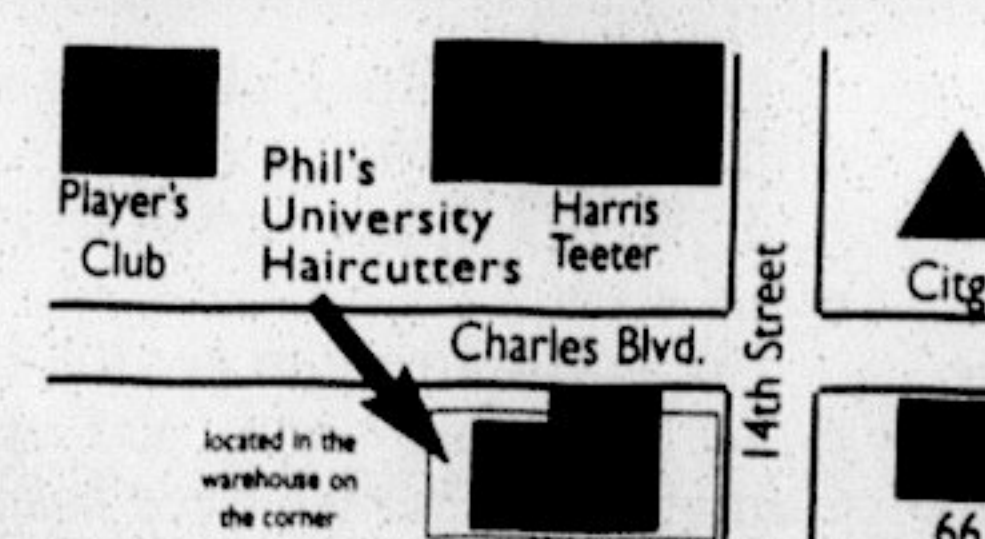

Both the ECUPD and the GPD stress prevention and education as the safest defenses against rape.

"The ECU Police Department focuses on prevention and the ECUPD also has a full time prevention officer who works with other campus organizations on the prevention of sexual assault," Younce said.

Assistant District Attorney will make a decision on whether to bring charges against the suspect.

In February, a Cotten Hall resident reported being raped in her dorm room by a stranger. On Sep. 22, a freshman reported being raped in the Garrett Hall residence of an acquaintance. In February, a 21-year-old woman claimed she was raped in the Sigma Phi Epsilon back house, but charges

Eight receive Chancellor's Award for Excellence

Recipients receive plaques, extra leave

PHILLIP GILFUS

Recently, eight members of the ECU faculty received the Chancellor's Award for Excellence during a reception at Mendenhall Student Center.

This award, which has been given annually since 1996, was presented by Chancellor Eakin to recognize staff members in various categories.

The winners were given a certificate of recognition, a purple plaque, and sixteen extra hours of annual leave.

This award, developed by the ECU Department of Human Resources, is given to staff members for various categories. In the area of devotion to duty, Carolyn Miller, Thurman Ramsey, Rudy Shepard, Mail Services supervisor, and Cynthia Smith, political science office assistant, received appreciation from the chancellor.

"I had won a business award which is given quarterly," Shepard said. "Because of that, I was nominated in the area of devotion to duty."

Other winners were nominated by their department chairs.

"My department chair and one other faculty member recommended me," Smith said.

In the human relations category, Carolina Moreno and June Urbach won.

"My supervisor wrote a letter to the award committee about my work in this department and about the volunteer work that I do outside the university," said Moreno, an x-ray technician in radiation oncology in the School of Medicine.

Moreno has also won the Governor's Award for his distinction in human relations.

"I was nominated last year, but didn't win," said Urbach, secretary in the Department of Allied Health Sciences. "I didn't even know that I had been nominated again."

The remaining awards were given to Nancy Mize for public service and Amy Grimes for safety and heroism.

"I had witnessed a lady being attacked in the parking lot of Pitt County Hospital," Grimes said. "I later testified and the criminal eventually pleaded guilty."

The Chancellor's Award for Excellence was developed by Greg Miller of Human Resources. Miller presented the idea to Chancellor Eakin and it was warmly received.

"The chancellor wanted everyone to feel like a winner," Miller said. "That is why he recognizes the winners, as well as the nominees, during the award ceremony."

The winners were encouraged to invite their fellow workers to the reception. During the ceremony, Chancellor Eakin recognized all the nominees.

Eakin also spoke about the winners and read portions of the letters that had been sent by their department chairs and reviewed by the committee.

The committee overlooking the award is part of the Praise Committee in Faculty Development. It is an eight person review committee that receives the nominations which are made during the spring. This year, most winners found out on August 1 through the mail that they won.

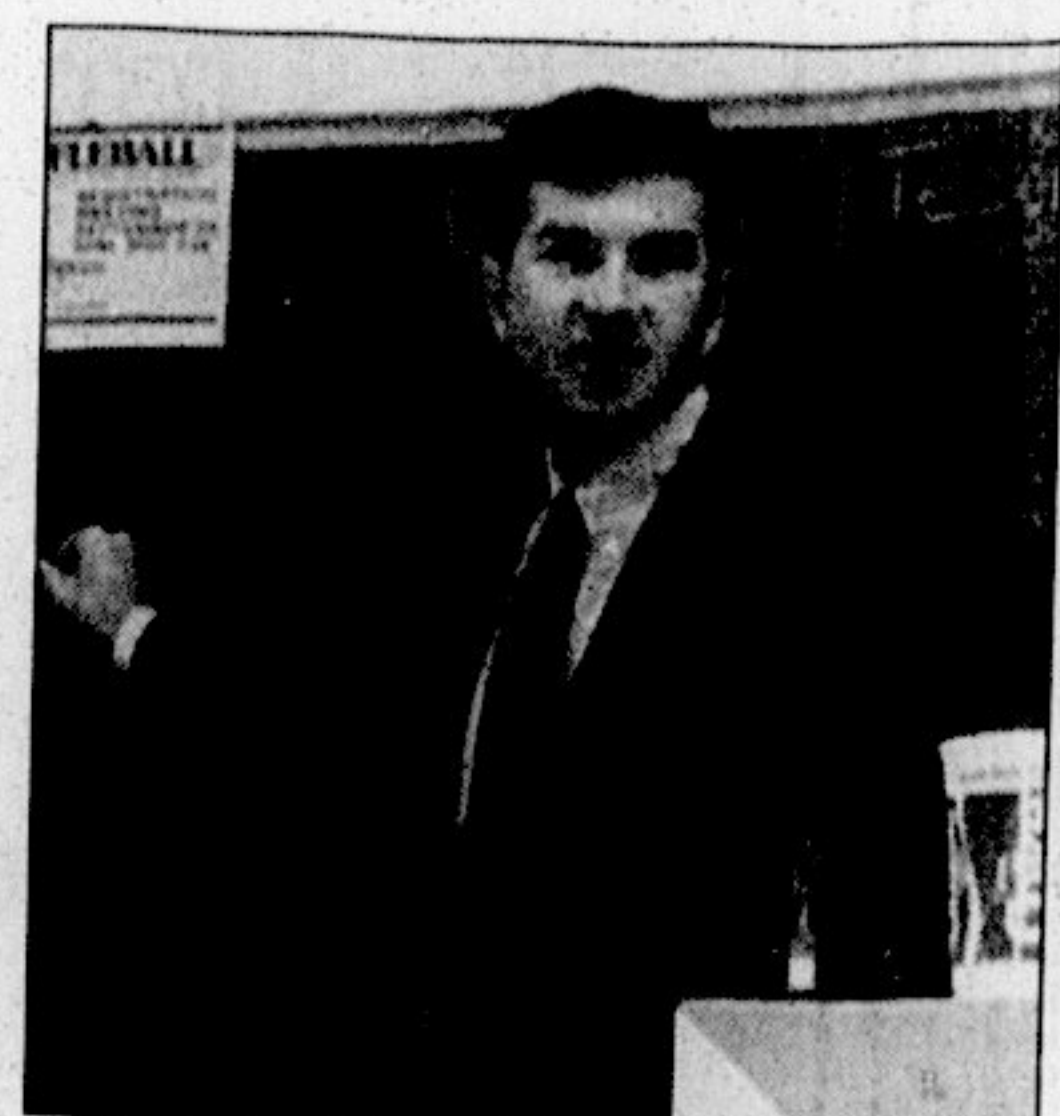

The reception at Mendenhall was enjoyed by all.

"We all felt very honored," Smith said.

Warren honored with Max Ray Joyner Award

First ever recipient chosen from slate of 24

Creating a new award is an exciting experience, but to be the first recipient is an experience a teacher will never forget.

The Max Ray Joyner Award was named after Max Ray Joyner, a former East Carolina trustees chairman, alumnus benefactor and an adult continuing student as well.

Continuing Education students nominated 24 faculty members for the award and then the faculty Senate committee on Continuing Education chose the recipient. According to Diana Henshaw, director of the Division of Continuing Education, the award was designed to "honor faculty who have taught off campus. (The award) honors and recognizes their contributions."

Louis Warren, the first winner of ECU's Max Ray Joyner Award for Faculty Service Through Continuing Education believes that the award has had a great impact on him.

"(The award) makes me realize students really take note of what I'm trying to do...it made me want to work that much harder. I have a lot to work up to and have great expectations of myself," Warren said.

Warren says that in teaching many times you don't receive a lot of needed feedback and this award, "reaffirms that I am reaching my students."

Henshaw believes Warren to be, "a fine example of (the) caring faculty who work with our off campus students."

In addition to prestige, the Max Ray Joyner Award also comes with a $1,000 dollar cash prize.

before Warren began teaching at ECU five years ago, he taught elementary and middle school grades in Moore County schools for three years.

Today Warren teaches courses in elementary and middle school grade curriculum.

Originally from Sampson County, Warren said that many of his ancestors and relatives also attended ECU and he is, "proud of the rich heritage ECU has for producing teachers, just to be on the faculty is pretty exciting."

Warren believes his teaching philosophy is to, "instill the beliefs in a student that they can achieve at anything." He explains that building self confidence is very important to bring out the best in a student.

"Sometimes," Warren said, "a student's self esteem is really low - I work on building their self confidence."

Even after the award Warren still believes there are many things he has left to learn and there is always room for improvement.

"Each year I try to get better," Warren said. "I learn a lot from my colleagues, students, clinical teachers and the meetings I attend. Teaching is such a reflective practice, I'm always trying to do things better."

Pet mistakenly named on subpoena

TOWN OF PEWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Police officer Terry Nordquist was looking for a man named Beau Humcke. Instead, he found the family's pet Labrador.

Nordquist went to the Humcke home in the town of Pewaukee to serve a subpoena on a Beau Humcke.

When the officer asked Heddy Humcke to bring out Beau, she returned with the family's pet yellow Labrador.

"We have been laughing ever since," Ms. Humcke said. "It was just the funniest thing." She and her husband, Michael Humcke own the dog.

The mix-up came after Ms. Humcke listed her dog's name instead of her own as "victim" on a form filed with town police for a court case.

Beau was injured in July when he was attacked by another dog. The injury resulted in a $100 veterinary bill.

The owner of the other dog asked for a Municipal Court trial to contest a vicious dog citation issued after the attack.

After discovering the mix-up Tuesday, Nordquist replaced the dog's name with Ms. Humcke's, and she attended the court hearing Wednesday.

"She was a substitute witness," for Beau, Michael Humcke said.

The owner of the other dog pleaded no contest to a reduced citation for having a dog run loose.

Traffic stop leads policeman to lost father

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Benitez thought the policeman was staring into his eyes to see if he was drunk, but there was another reason: Officer Kelly Benitez realized he had found his long-lost father.

"Were you ever married to a woman named Debra?" Officer Benitez asked the man in the beat-up Ford Thunderbird he had just pulled over for driving with an expired registration tag.

No, he said, but he had dated a woman with that name about 30 years ago. Then he noticed the officer's nametag.

"Oh my God, I'm your dad," the driver said.

Pirates facing Alabama

ECU on quest for fifth straight victory

TRAVIS BARKLEY
SENIOR WRITER

ECU will put its four game winning streak on the line this Saturday when the Pirates travel to Legion Field to take on the University of Alabama, who enters the game with a 3-2 record. Last week the Crimson Tide defeated Ole Miss 20-17 in overtime. Alabama's only losses have come against Florida and Arkansas.

After facing wishbone teams for the last three games, the Pirates will finally see a more traditional attack this week. Head coach Steve Logan says he just hopes his team remembers how to play against a conventional offense.

"We're going to be a little bit out of our element due to the fact that we've played three wishbone teams in a row," Logan said. "We're going to get spread out all over the field and have to see if we can remember how to line up, literally. So we've got a tall order against us."

Logan said that unlike most of ECU's previous opponents, Alabama has a variety of offensive and defensive packages.

"They've gotten themselves into some very multiple schemes on both sides of the ball," Logan said. "They've got a one-back, two-back, no-back offense, shotgun. The defense is very multiple, a lot of man coverage, very aggressive. I'd compare them favorably to Virginia Tech."

Tech blasted ECU 38-3 in the season opener. Logan feels that Alabama may have even more team speed than the Hokies.

"They're faster than Virginia Tech in my opinion, particularly on offense," Logan said. "The tailback they've got is a real deal guy. He'll be the best back we've seen this year."

That tailback, junior Shaun Alexander, leads the Crimson Tide in rushing with 551 yards, averaging 5.2 yards per carry. Alexander has scored nine touchdowns, eight rushing and one receiving to lead the team in scoring.

Much like ECU, Alabama uses two quarterbacks, senior J.D. Phillips and freshman Andrew Zow. Zow, the more athletic of the two, is slated to start against the Pirates.

"They're a little more simplistic [on offense] with the freshman," Logan said. "When the senior is in there they run a lot more stuff."

Senior nose guard Travis Darden says developing a strong pass rush will be important, regardless of who the quarterback is.

"We haven't been against an offense yet that throws a whole lot," Darden said. "They just kind of spread you out, so we've got to get a good pass rush up front. The guys are aware of that and we're going to see if we can get that accomplished."

Logan said the teams that have had success against Alabama have gone right at them.

"The two teams that hurt them ran right at them, which tends to negate some of the speed they have," Logan said. "They haven't dealt with any option whatsoever. Some of our option schemes will concern them and hopefully slow down some of their inside-out pursuit that they've got."

Starting right tackle Samein Jones said ECU's depth on the offensive line may wear down the Alabama defense.

"We substitute a lot of offensive linemen throughout the game," Jones said. "We were fresh and able to wear out UAB last Saturday. I think it will be a key for this week also."

David Garrard left high school as a highly regarded and promising quarterback prospect and came to ECU to play ball with the Pirates. He worked hard in spring practice and has lived up to all his expectations so far this season.

This fall Garrard has played beyond his years, providing ECU's football program with much needed and often explosive offensive skills.

ECU's coaches did not hesitate to redshirt Garrard when he joined the Pirates in 1997 as a 6'3" freshman from Southern Durham High School. Starting 40 games for Southern Durham, where he amassed for 9,023 yards of total offense and accounted for 113 career touchdowns, Garrard was listed among North Carolina's top 25 prospects following his senior season.

"I knew once I came to East Carolina that I would be red-shirted. It was hard at first, but I got used to it so it was all right," Garrard said.

Being red-shirted gave Garrard a chance to get more comfortable with the role of a college quarterback.

"I got to go to practice, learn the plays, go to meetings and get a feel for the college atmosphere. So I think it helped me a lot for this year," Garrard said.

It wasn't until last spring that Garrard began to raise the eyebrows of many ECU football fans. In the final scrimmage of '98 spring drills, Garrard completed 6 of 10 passes for 164 yards. He also rushed for 56 yards on 8 attempts.

"I thought I did pretty well for a freshman. I thought I was reading my keys, looking at the coverages and getting the receivers. I thought I did pretty good," Garrard said.

This summer Garrard worked hard to make himself a more complete quarterback.

"I did a lot of off-field running to get in better shape so I could be more mobile in the pocket. I was also going in film so I could read my keys a little better. I just did some extra things for this season," Garrard said.

Swimmers hold annual meet today

Competition known to predict season success

TODD TALLMADGE
SPORTS WRITER

The ECU men's and women's swim teams open their seasons today at the Purple and Gold meet.

The Purple and Gold meet is an dual meet between the teams. The men divide up evenly and swim against each other. The same is done with the women's team.

"The Purple & Gold meet tells us as a coaching staff where the teams are after almost 10 weeks of training. We start our strength and conditioning program the moment the swimmers come back for school. We swim over 50,000 yds a week, which is over 12,050 laps," head coach Rick Kobe said. "With the teams not being at top shape until sometime in January, we use this meet as a gauge as to where we want to be by then."

The meet also serves as a means of setting personal goals for many of the swimmers.

"This meet gives us feed back as to where our training is at this point. It gives me personally a marker as to where I want to be in the season," senior men's swimmer Richard Chen said.

"We use the results as an outlook for our goals on the up-coming season," senior women's swimmer Niki Kneel said.

As usual, one of the primary goals for the team this season is to come out on top within the conference.

"Our goals for the season, as they are every year, are to have an undefeated season and to win the CAA conference meet," Kobe said. "We have won conference before but have not been able to have the undefeated season to go along with it."

The men's team finished in third last season, and looks to rebound from that placing.

The women's team has won three of the last four CAA titles with a second place finish last year to UNC-Wilmington.

"Our biggest rivalry is UNC-Wilmington," senior women's swimmer Allison Holland said. "We want to get the championship back after coming in second to them last year."

Kobe feels that the year's team has the potential to reach the goals that have been set.

"This girls squad should be the best in school history," Kobe said. "We have the most depth in the distance freestyle and backstroke on both the men's and women's squad."

The Purple and Gold meet will be held today at 3 p.m. at Minges Aquatic Center in Minges Coliseum. The Aquatic Center holds over 300 people. The meets are known to produce a sell-out crowd, so arrive early for a seat and a chance to see the team in action.

Women's soccer falls to top-ranked team

Tribe shuts Pirates out in last 10 minutes of play

TRACY HAIR
SENIOR WRITER

On Tuesday, the ECU women's soccer team lost its third conference game to nationally ranked William and Mary. The Pirates are now 7-4-1 on the season and 2-3 in CAA play.

There was an obvious amount of tension during the first half of the game with the teams' goalkeepers equally on the defense from the players' attempted shots.

"William and Mary is an excellent team, one of the top ten in the nation," head coach Neil Roberts said. "We were playing under a lot of pressure."

The Pirates eventually out-shot the Tribe 8-7 after 45 minutes. In the second half, however, a corner kick from William and Mary's Missy Wycinsky, currently ranked second in the nation for scoring, eluded the Pirate defense and put the Tribe ahead 1-0 in the 80th minute. Nine minutes later, Tribe member Janet Sury scored another goal, and though ECU made five more potential shots, the shutout was determined.

"The game proved to be a big test for us, and one that I certainly don't think we failed," Roberts said. "We just learned a great deal about things to do on our attacking end in future games."

With three more games against CAA contenders scheduled throughout the rest of the season, the team intends to focus on improvement.

"We're in a situation right now to position ourselves in good seating for the conference tournament," Roberts said. "I've been real proud of the progress we've made so far, so hopefully we'll win the rest of our conference games and beat teams like William and Mary."

More action for the women will continue when the Pirates host CAA opponent James Madison Sunday at Bunting Field at 12 p.m.

The Lady Pirates dropped their third conference match Tuesday.

Golf team finishes fourth at Mocs Fall Invitational

Expectations cut short according to coach

STEPHEN SCHRAMM
SENIOR WRITER

The ECU men's golf team finished a disappointing fourth at the Mocs Fall Invitational in Chattanooga, Tenn. on Tuesday. The Pirates had high scores in the first round and shot well in the later rounds but never managed to contend for the top spot.

"I was disappointed that we didn't have a shot at winning," head golf coach Kevin Williams said. "We had a bad first round and that took us out of it."

The Pirates' final team score, 878, put them in a tie for fourth with Central Alabama and behind Coastal Carolina, Georgia Southern and Chattanooga.

"I think we are similar in talent with Coastal Carolina, Georgia Southern and Chattanooga, but after the first round we just didn't have a chance," Williams said. "We can't keep shooting ourselves in the foot. We've got to get more solid starts."

Despite the high early scores, Williams was pleased with the strong play of his freshmen. The Pirates were led by freshman Micheal Chad Webb. Webb shot a 74 in the first round and followed it up with 71 in the next two rounds to finish three-over-par and in a tie for 15th overall. Fellow freshman Frank Adams finished four-over-par and 19th overall.

"I was pleased with our freshmen. Frank Adams and Micheal Chad Webb were solid," Williams said. "Their input was invaluable."

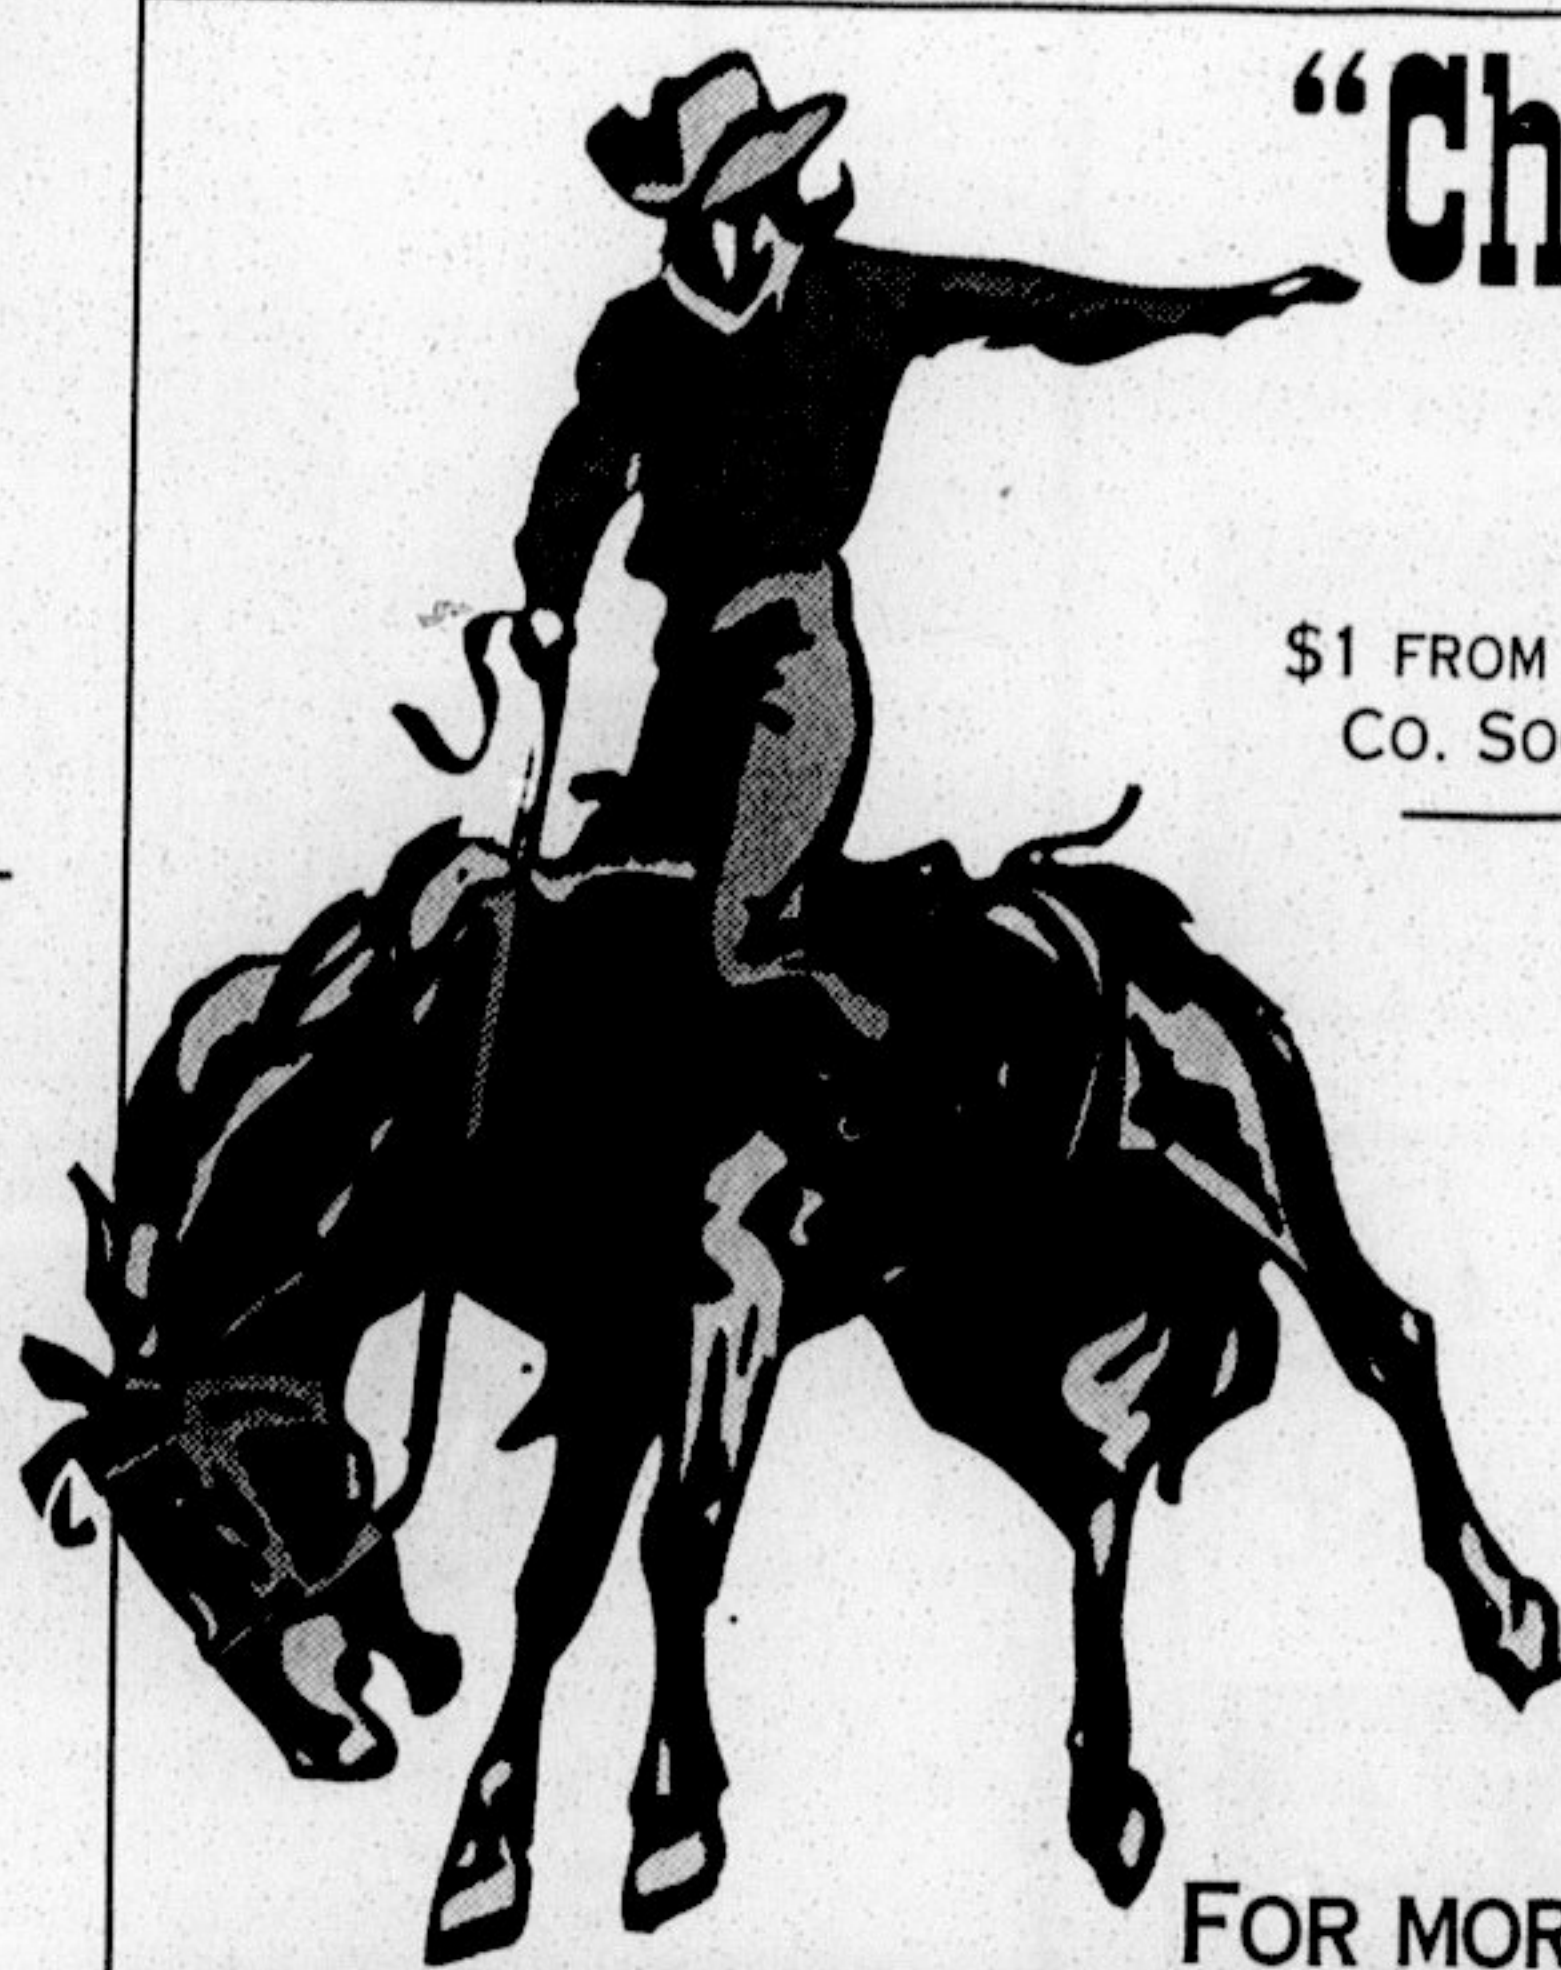

The strong play of the Pirate freshmen lightened the load carried by junior and perennial team leader Marc Miller. Miller finished in a tie for 24th overall with an eight-over-par 221.

"Marc Miller didn't play well. It used to be that when Marc was bad we were really bad. Our two [freshmen] are a lot like Marc. Micheal Chad Webb has got the lowest average on the team and Frank Adams' average would be lower if it weren't for his bad first tournament. Now, we can take the hit when Marc doesn't play well," Williams said.

The Pirates' troubles on Tuesday were due to the slow start and a lack of production from the fifth spot. The Pirates' first four competitors, Miller, Webb, Adams and Shane Robinson have carried the team thus far. The fifth spot has been the weak link.

"I'm proud of the top four guys we've got. We've just got to find that fifth guy. We haven't counted a fifth score all year. We've got a whole on our team that we've got to fill. We need someone to step forward and give a contribution from the fifth spot," Williams said.

This season, the time spent watching from the sidelines and the hard work in practice and over the summer are finally paying off. Garrard has appeared in all of ECU's five games this year. Each time, however, he has come in off the bench.

"It's been a fairly solid performance for a freshman," head football coach Steve Logan said. "He's done some nice things. But he's not anywhere near where he needs to be to get 70 snaps a game or play a whole college football game."

According to Logan, Garrard is evolving into a more complete quarterback.

"He's progressing nicely. He used to get stuck on one receiver visually and now he's moving his eyes and finds the second and third receivers," Logan said.

The process of molding Garrard into a more complete quarterback is not yet concluded.

"It seems like with any young quarterback, you get a certain number of snaps and you begin to lose your concentration. He has to get to the point where he can have 60 or 70 snaps and does not lose concentration," Logan said. "He's progressing and he's got some nice skills. It's nice to see him developing. It's a good process."

Garrard made his first appearance at Dowdy-Ficklen this year against the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga. In that game he provided the crowd with the first of many exhibitions of his explosive offensive talent. His 40-yard touchdown pass to LaMont Chappel electrified the ECU fans and started the onslaught that would result in ECU's 31-0 thrashing of the Mocs.

"It was a bootleg and I came off and I had a little pressure so I tried to scrape him. He went around me and he kind of got lost and I saw LaMont [Chappel] come out of the back end real quick. I knew I had a quick shot to get it to him and I just put it up there and it just fell right into his hands," Garrard said.

After putting up quality numbers against Ohio, Garrard came in late to preserve ECU's win over Army.

Saturday, after Ernest Tinnin threw two early interceptions against UAB, Logan turned to Garrard to jump start the Pirate offense. Garrard did not disappoint his coach, as he had possibly his greatest game yet as a Pirate. He connected on two touchdown passes and threw for a career high 189 yards in guiding the Pirates to a 26-7 win over the Blazers.

Garrard has already put his name in the future of the quarterback position at ECU, a future he hopes will come soon.

"I'm really just trying to improve my performance and get ready for the years to come," Garrard said.

At Target Pharmacy, we build relationships on trust.

What is trust? Trust isn't just about taking orders or filling prescriptions. It's about taking time with each and every guest. It's about answering questions, about your medication or any health concerns you may have. It's about peace of mind. You can always depend on Target Pharmacy to offer a wide selection of health care products, but what we're most proud of is our relationship with our guests. At Target Pharmacy, you can trust us to take care of your health needs, so all you have to do is take care of your shopping.

We're the pharmacy with the Target store all around it.

Target Pharmacies are not located in all Target stores.
