The Ledonia Wright Cultural Center has invited famed Editorial Director of Essence magazine Susan L. Taylor to speak in celebration of the inaugural Ledonia Wright Cultural Center Day.

Since joining Essence more than 30 years ago, Taylor has become an inspiration to millions as a living image of the magazine.

Taylor is an entrepreneur, author of two books and noted for her "In the Spirit" column. Taylor was called "the most influential black woman in journalism today" by American Libraries in 1994. "Through her words of inspiration and motivation, Ms. Taylor has been very uplifting to audiences across the country," said Lathan E. Turner, Ph.D and director of Intercultural Stu-

Local Judge rejects FedEx hub injunction

GREENSBORO (AP) - A federal judge denied an injunction Tuesday sought by opponents of the FedEx cargo hub, but pledged to rule within 60 days on the merits of their legal effort to halt the project.

The ruling means that crews for the Piedmont Triad Airport Authority can continue to do initial site work while legal challenges are taken up in the courts.

U.S. Middle District Court Judge Frank Bullock Jr. said that he didn't see a pressing need for an injunction because he didn't think any irreparable harm would occur before he ruled on the opponents overall legal challenge. The hub opponents, who filed the case in late January, are seeking to have the courts throw out a waterquality permit that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers issued for the project.

also ordered Phipps, 48, whose father and grandfather were North Carolina governors, to pay a $25,000 fine and serve two years of supervised probation following her release. Phipps previously had agreed to forfeit $25,000 that the government said she received illegally. Phipps was taken away after the hearing to begin serving her sentence immediately, over the objection of her lawyer. She is the first statewide officeholder to be sent to prison for crimes committed while in office.

Senior advisers said it was possible, but not likely, that Kerry would choose a nominee well before the Democratic nominating convention in his hometown of Boston in July.

Kerry's New York-to-California victories in the 10-state Super Tuesday series knocked the fight out of his spirited rival, John Edwards. The North Carolina senator, who had been the only one left with the ghost of a chance against Kerry, let the word out that he was quitting even before polls closed in the West and just as Minnesotans gathered in caucuses.

Suddenly, the Democratto-Democrat sniping is over, replaced by calls for unity, and Kerry is left with his hard-fought reward-as well as the weight of can beat Bush in the fall.

"Tonight, the message can now be heard all across our country: Change is coming to America," said Kerry, 60, a fourterm Massachusetts senator whose understated ways disguise a hotly competitive streak.

"We will fight to give America back its future and its hope."

There were grace notes in the first blush of his victory: a polite exchange with Bush, who called to congratulate him. But there is to be no grace period in their campaign fight.

told supporters.

"The Bush administration has run the most inept, reckless, arrogant and ideological foreign policy in the modern history of our country."

Kerry dominated the sixweek Democratic competition from the Iowa caucuses on, once he shook off a torpid start and overcame the fading phenomenon of Howard Dean. He has won 27 of 30 contests, putting him well on his way to winning the nomination formally once he has collected 2,162 delegates.

The Super Tuesday states awarded a mother lode of 1,151 delegates, more than half those needed, and pushed Kerry's total over 1,100. Kerry had 1,292 delegates to Edwards' 438. Dean had 182, Al Sharpton 24 and Ohio Rep. Dennis Kucinich 18. "I really want to win," Angie Kline, a St. Paul, Minn., caucusgoer, said in explaining her vote for Kerry.

"Kerry has the breadth of experience. He's had umpteen years in the Senate working on both domestic and foreign policy issues."

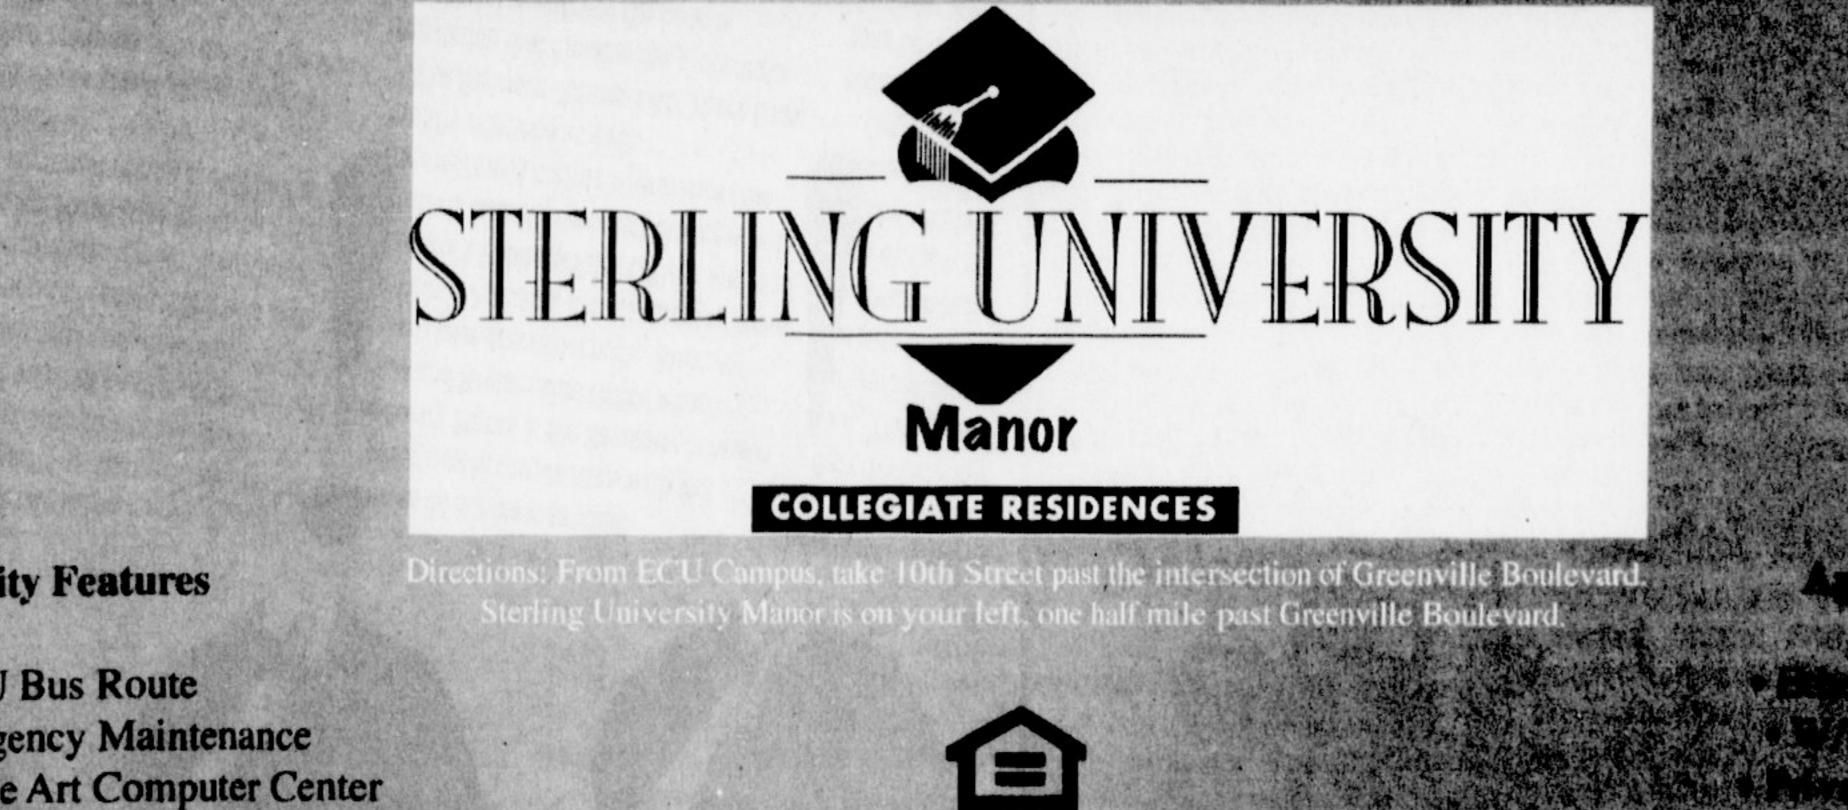

Although relentlessly upbeat and dogged, Edwards knew he had to quit, and aides tipped his hand on that plan on the eve of his formal departure.

"We have been the little engine that could," the North Carolina senator told supporters. Edwards proved an animated campaigner and sharp debater, but won only in his native South Carolina and posted several strong second place finishes.

He immediately started clos-Kerry an "extraordinary advocate for jobs, better health care, a safer world," and declaring: "These are the causes of our party, these are the causes of our country, and these are the causes we will prevail on come November."

Kerry responded in kind, calling Edwards "a compelling voice to our party" who holds "great promise for leadership for the years to come." Edwards' name will stay in play as a possible choice for running mate, although Kerry has given no hint of his pick for the ticket.

Blair recounts career in book

As if former New York Times reporter Jayson Blair hasn't already given himself a bad name, he's now made things worse.

Reported in an article by The Associated Press, the 27-year-old is taking another stab at writing when he releases his book, "Burning Down My Master's House," on March 6.

This book is a memoir about his career at the New York Times and his substance abuse problems. According to the report, the book "pretends to be a mea culpa but ends up spewing imaginary blame in all directions."

What Blair may not realize is that he's already lost any shred of credibility he had as a writer. The only thing this book could possibly do is further damage his credibility and make an even larger mockery of his name.

The Haitian disaster Iraq may have its insurgents, but it's nothing compared to the disaster in Haiti, which could not have come at a better time for President George W. Bush. In Haiti, the consequences of another Clinton-United Nation's "victory" can clearly be seen. Such calamities show why Bush is correct to be hesitant about United Nations' involvement in Iraq and also shows why United States' presence is sorely needed to keep Iraq from becoming the next Haiti 10 years from now. It also exposes how weak the United Nations is me. becoming. While the democratic nominees may harangue Bush on his Iraqi policies, I believe our Commander in Chief is doing an excellent job.

Who cares about steroids?

Nobody really cares about steroids in baseball. We don't care who's on drugs, we only want to be entertained – at any cost. Forever, we have cheered on many athletes who can't read, write or recite their ABC's. America doesn't care about morals and truth in sports, we only want our favorite team to win.

Older students matter

The presence of older students on campus has greatly increased since the mid 1990s. It seems as though a lot of people are having second thoughts about their careers so they are returning to school for more marketable training.

With this increase of older students, you would think there

I tend to think less about campus issues and how they may affect

Academy Awards chose well

It's nice that independent movies are getting more recognition in big awards shows. Whale Rider and Lost in Translation were low in hype and violence, but high in emotional appeal.

They weren't made to rake in profits – maybe that's why their integrity is so refreshing compared to all the teenaged, hormone-driven flicks, big-name sequels and thin plot lines surviving on star power.

Viewers of the Oscars who haven't seen Whale Rider or Lost in Translation will probably be interested to see why they were included with all the other big releases.

It's the Academy members' responsibility to scour the market for the best, and hopefully, this means they will enlighten their audience to find something new. So, it would be nice if the music industry would follow suit and seek to include some quality in their picks. Outkast deserved their Grammy wins, but other nominees left a little to be desired. Unfortunately, the music industry just keeps regurgitating the same old radio fluff, frequently awarding recognition based on sales instead of substance and guilt for past omissions.

Oscar ceremony too long

As millions of film buffs and celebrity watchers sat down to watch the Academy Awards Ceremony on Sunday night, many couldn't help but wonder, "Will this thing ever end?"

Lasting over three hours, while only presenting 24 awards, certain measures could have been taken to make the ceremony a little shorter, thus making it more easily digested.

Did we really need to hear the cutesy Billy Crystal's 10 minute slapstick comedy routine at the beginning of the show or performances of songs no one has even heard before?

If the ceremony is designed for honoring deserving films, then let's honor those films and nothing else.

Bye bye 'Super Sized'

McDonald's is phasing out their "Super Sized" items in order to conform to a more conventional public demand. While it's not the Burger King's or Subway's Atkin's menu, I think this is McDonald's twist on the dieting craze the world is so consumed by. Or, you could call it a marketing scheme. But haven't they been sued by obese people for selling fatty foods in the past and held strong with their defense? Why this sudden change of heart? McDonald's wants to keep up with trends, not submit to complaints by the money hungry public.

worse. Americans have real problems. Many of them are jobless with no health benefits. Parents are seeking education reform that will improve academic achievement of their children. Economically disadvantaged families are looking to the government for aid programs, and virtually all Americans want some sort of tax relief.

> Americans need to hear rational proposals - not catch phrases and quick fixes that in the long run will make the economy worse.

> The candidates need to speak candidly about these issues - even with issues like same sex marriage that might make them unpopular with certain populations.

would be an increase in political awareness as well as opinions about our campus and all it has to offer (or not), but there isn't.

Most of the problem stems from the fact that most older students are just going to school part-time and aren't concerned with what goes happens on campus. Being an older student, I must admit I am guilty of that.

In My Opinion Assault rifle ban shot down by U.S. Senate

Gun Show provision was sticking point

PETER KALAJIAN STAFF WRITER

In closed session late last week, the U.S. Senate failed to ratify a bill which would outlaw all manners of military surplus and automatic assault rifles and close a loophole allowing gun shows to sell all manner of material long banned in mainstream gun shops.

Let me assure you, I am a staunch supporter of the Constitution, and that includes the Second Amendement. I believe in the American right to bear arms ... which is to say that I believe in the spirit of the Second Amendment in the spirit in which it was added to the original draft of the Constitution. Yet, to my knowledge, nowhere in the Constitution does it specify the right to AK-47 assault rifles and .50 caliber military hardware, both of which are sink the lot to the bottom of the easily purchased at gun shows and mail-order companies all over this nation. I also understand that as a Mandatory waiting periods and Republican, George W. Bush is obligated to cater to his constituency, many of whom are very conservative and often opposed ger guard laws are all steps in the to gun control of any kind. These are the people who think that the Second Amendment is a blanket right including whatever type of arms the person United States. in question is able to get their hands on. The people who believe that step forward, but what good is a the government has no right law banning the sale of assault to impinge on the right to bear rifles in gun shops when anyone arms and all gun control measures over 18 with a valid drivers enacted in this country in the last license and a few hundred dol-50 years should be reversed. lars can walk into any one of the thousands of gun shows held

I'll admit it - I hate guns. I understand that they are a necessary evil when fighting a war or disarming a criminal, but I challenge anyone to tell me what positive effect guns have on our society at large. Guns

Now this person has a weapon capable of firing hundreds of rounds a minute.

The horror of the Columbine High School massacre in 1999 was a wake up call about assault rifles and their availability in our society.

It was later learned that the weapons used by Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris to murder 12 of their fellow students and one teacher in cold blood were purchased legally at a gun show.

Here's the problem: America is a very different place than it was when the Constitution was drafted. The systemic societal ills facing this country in the twenty first century did not exist in coloAmendment isn't going anywhere.

Very often, when I speak with someone about gun control, the argument I hear in favor of gun laws is this: If we ban lawful sales of assault rifles, then only the criminals will have them.

Therefore, to counteract the threat from dangerous people with illegal assault rifles, we should legalize all assault rifle sales, allowing us to defend ourselves.

This argument makes about as much sense as cutting off the nose to spite the face. There will always be an illegal black market for guns in this country.

But why not cut off the legal avenue for acquiring an assault rifle to further limit their avail-

Traditional college students are at an age where voting may not be on the top 10 list of priorities, but the decisions that are occurring today are the policies that we will have to live with tomorrow.

It's severely ineffective to complain about a government that may or may not be living up to the standards you think it should.

Voting is a privilege of our democratic society. It's our ticket to a better tomorrow. Improving the health of our Nation should be everyone's concern.

Guns destroy families. Violent crime, especially in Hundreds of children a year are children, was almost non-exiskilled, either by themselves or by tent. Citizens knew their neigha friend, because they had access bors and didn't lock their doors at night.

> The very idea of an automatic weapon had yet to be contemplated. Unfortunately, this is no longer the case.

> If I thought for a second that we could only take the guns from the criminals and miscreants of society, I would be all for it. As has been the case for thousands of years, a few bad apples spoil the bunch.

Bottom line: A person not looking to commit a bank robbery or armored car holdup, or drive by shooting for that matter, has no use for a military assault rifle, so why not get rid of them all together?

No one is trying to take away hunting rights or ban lawful possession of licensed firearms. Law abiding Americans who hunt deer or compete in marksmanship competitions have nothing to worry about.

Believe me; the second ability? Whether all assault rifles are legalized or all assault rifles are banned, highly motivated criminals will be able to get their hands on one.

That is reality.

I figure that stricter gun laws will go a long way in that never ending struggle to abolish crime in all its forms, but that is another conversation all together.

By ignoring the gaping gun show loophole in federal gun laws, American legislators should be held responsible every time a legally purchased assault rifle kills someone.

With such a blatant nod to the N.R.A. and right wing conservative groups who oppose gun control, President Bush has shown clearly where his true loyalties lie - with the special interests.

In the end, literal interpretation of 220-year-old laws should not be allowed to interfere with what should be the central preoccupation of every member of Congress and the president - the safety of the American public.

Shiites vent anger at United States for attacks on pilgrims

KARBALA, Iraq (AP) - Shiite Muslim mourners chanted slogans against the United States Wednesday, venting their anger at Iraq's instability after a series of suicide bombings against pilgrims. As the country began three days of mourning, officials said 15 people, some possibly Iranians, had been detained in the attacks.

U.S. administrators lowered their death count from 143 to 117, a senior coalition official said Wednesday. Iraq's Health Ministry said 185 people died. Estimates of the wounded ranged E from 300 to more than 400.

Also Wednesday, three rockets hit a telephone exchange building in Baghdad, knocking out international phone service for much of the country only days after the system was put back in service. One Iraqi worker was killed and another injured, Iraqi officials said. # Criminal investigation begun in mad cow case

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government has begun a criminal investigation into whether records may have been falsified in the nation's first and only case of mad cow disease, the at Vern's Moses Lake Meat Co. Agriculture Department's inspector general said Wednes- recall it being on its feet. One day.

The investigation is moving in parallel with a non-criminal review of the department's response to the mad cow case, as well as changes made in how it monitors and tests cials cattle for the disease, Phyllis Fong told a House subcommittee.

Fong said the criminal investigation focuses on whether the infected Holstein cow truly was a "downer" animal unable to stand or walk when it was slaughtered Dec. 9 in Moses Lake, Wash.

The department initially said the cow was a downer, and bovine spongiform encephalopathy, or BSE. Downers have a higher risk of the brainwasting disease.

But men who saw the cow just before it was slaughtered of the plant's owners, Tom Ellestad, said the cow got up after the inspecting veterinarian saw it lying down and classified it as a downer.

Department officonceded last month that the cow might have gotten back up.

The investigation is only in its first few weeks, with officials gathering documents and interviewing witnesses, Fong said. She would not talk about possible targets in the investigation nor specify who is being interviewed. "We haven't determined

Same-sex couples get marriage licenses in Oregon; New York ceremonies deemed illegal

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Gay and lesbian couples started tying the knot in Portland on Wednesday after the county issued of roses. same-sex marriage licenses, joining the rapidly spreading national movement in San Francisco and upstate New York.

About 50 people lined up for a sudden chance to wed after a Multnomah County commissioner said she would begin issuing the licenses to same-sex couples.

An ebullient Mary Li held up the very first certificate showing her and her partner's name under the Oregon seal.

"I can't describe how great it feels," Li said. She and her partner Rebecca Kennedy were also the first to be married, by a county judge.

Gay bar owners handed out free glasses of champagne and many couples carried bouquets

Meanwhile, New York's attorney general joined the national debate, saying current law prohibits same-sex weddings and that mayors should not preside over them. But he said he would leave it to the courts to decide if the law is constitutional.

"I personally would like to see the law changed, but must respect the law as it now stands," Attorney General Eliot Spitzer said in a statement obtained by The Associated Press.

Both sides of the polarizing issue have been waiting for Spitzer's opinion since Friday, when the mayor of New Paltz, a college town 75 miles north of Manhattan, married 25 same-sex couples without licenses. Village Mayor Jason West now faces 19 criminal counts and could face jail time.

"The local district attorney has the authority and responsibility to enforce the law," Spitzer said.

On Wednesday, Nyack, N.Y., Mayor John Shields said he would also start marrying gay couples and planned to seek license himself to marry his same-sex partner.

Spitzer said New York's law contains references to "bride and groom" and "husband and wife" and does not authorize same-sex marriage. Gov. George Pataki has also said that performing gay marriages is illegal, a position he affirmed on Wednesday.

"Marriage under New York State law is and has been for over 200 years between a man and a woman. And we have to uphold that law," he said.

Shields and West said they would go ahead with their plans.

"What do you do when you're faced with injustice?" Shields said. "What did the women do in the suffrage movement? They marched. They were arrested. They did what they had to do to get their rights."

Also Wednesday, lawmakers in Washington, D.C., debated the issue, with Republican senators such as Majority Leader Bill Frist asking Congress to embrace a constitutional amendment banning them.

It is with much regret and disappointment that we inform you that the 2004 Chancellor's Leadership Conference has been canceled due to the low number of student organization registrations. The Office of Student Leadership Development apologizes for any inconvenience this has caused anyone. We originally planned to have at least 200 students in participation. Unfortunately, we did not come close to meeting our goal for this spring.

Nevertheless, the Chancellors Leadership Conference will be rescheduled for the fall 2004 semester and we hope that each of you will consider working with us again. Thank you for your interest, time, contributions, ideas, understanding, and most importantly, for your support. It is our personal endeavor to work even harder to make next year's conference a huge success. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact the Office of Student Leadership Development. Have a wonderful spring semester and we look forward to your participation in the fall.

Mel Gibson co-wrote, co-produced and directed The Passion of The Christ, a look at the final 12 hours of Jesus' life.

One viewer's response to controversial film, 'Passion of the Christ'

MICAH MASSEI SENIOR WRITER

Famed reggae legend Bob Marley once said, "Every single action bares a reaction." Such a statement rings true in the case of Hollywood megastar Mel Gibson's latest film outing The Passion of The Christ, an in-depth look at the final 12 hours in the life of Jesus Christ.

Since filming began, both mystery and gossip have surrounded the media-dubbed "Mel Gibson Jesus movie." With Hollywood churning out serious "religious-themed" movies about once every decade, many Hollywood insiders wondered why the normally flashy Gibson chose to tackle such contentious subject matter.

A mainstay at the movies during the 1940s and 1950s, films concerning people and events depicted in the Bible have rarely graced the big screen in recent years. Why? Some believe any storyline involving religious themes brings too much controversy to a business where positive critical response and good box office results matter the most. With that, we come to The Passion of The Christ, a movie co-written, co-produced, and directed by Mel Gibson, who also put up the film's $25 million budget. As a film critic, watching The Passion of The Christ is quite an experience. Cinematographer Caleb Deschanel's colorful compositions sparkle. Composer John Debney's operatic score sweeps and soars. Actor Jim Caviezel handles the monumental load of portraying Jesus well, giving a performance that's quiet, yet mesmerizing. There are so many wonderful motifs to admire, that by itself, The Passion of The Christ is one of the best-made films of the year, a success in both craft and performance.

However, as good - from a filmmaking standpoint - as The Passion of The Christ may be, there has been an enormous wave of controversy surrounding the film since its inception regarding Gibson's portrayal of the Jews' involvement in both the condemnation and crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

Any issue involving religion is bound to stir up heated opinions and feelings from various groups. However, religion is one subject where historical documentation often counteracts with the "spiritual belief," leaving many to disagree.

The controversy surrounding The Passion of The Christ is no different. The argument of certain Jewish leaders (not all) feel that Gibson wrongly portrays the Jews as "killing Christ." This unfortunate stereotype, which has existed long before Gibson's new film, is not expressed in the movie. It is the Romans who in fact "kill" Him, but - based on the Gospels from which this film is adapted - the Jews order His death.

negatively the Jews are portrayed in the film. In watching the movie, the Romans are seen just as wrongful, especially considering the fact that they are the ones who actually beat, brutalize and kill Jesus. One could also mention the fact that a few of the Jewish council members are presented as not wanting to arrest Christ, or that Christ Himself was Jewish, but in actuality, sitting there debating "tick-for-tack" over and over again. Who's right and who's wrong is essentially not the point.

The point illustrated in this film is that Christ died for our sins to fulfill His purpose through God's will. Therefore, we all are responsible for His death by our sins and transgressions. Those who want to argue and debate every night on every news channel about "who's to blame" are missing the point, and their fears concerning the promotion of anti-Semitism are better founded in other more see PASSION page B4

For those of you who are fans of shows such as "An Evening at the Improv," "Whose Line Is It Anyway?" or just like to laugh out loud, Pirate Underground the time," said Ryan Phillips, is sponsoring a performance by the First Comedy Troop, also known as the Swash Improv group, Thursday, March 4 at 8 p.m. in Pirate Underground. "The Swash Improv group was formed last year by Corey Brown. The group was called the First Comedy Troop and we do straightforward improv," said Ryan Jordan, club president.

It's possible for any ECU student to get involved in improv. Swash holds auditions every year and practices in order to hone their skills so that they can give performances throughout the year in various venues.

Jordan auditioned last year. He said all the audition process consists of is coming in and playing a couple of games with the troop, warming up, seeing how you fit in with the group sophomore biochemistry major. "Once you're in, it's like an improv lab ... you warm up, work on games and get ready for the shows," Jordan said. The games are much like you would see in comedy clubs or on TV. A certain skit or topic is introduced and the group members act it out in a hilarious manner.

"A typical performance starts out with us just introducing the group, telling what we're about and then we usually do about an hour of games, an intermission and then an half an hour to another hour of games depending on the audience response," Jordan said. Swash is comprised of eight members - all ECU students. Steve Ackerman, John Cassevah, Janette DeVan, Sam Gooley, Ryan Jordan, Carla

Barrymore, Sandler share '50 First Dates'

RACHEL LANDEN

SENIOR WRITER

50 First Dates isn't your typical Adam Sandler comedy, but don't be fooled - it still contains plenty instances of Sandler's often bizarre and sometimes gross sense of humor.

No, Sandler didn't omit the wacky characters and zany situations fans have grown to love. There is a vomiting walrus, a playboy who entertains a new lisping brother on steroids and an assistant who is not quite male but not assuredly female either.

The laughs remain, but in between the jokes are gentler, sweeter moments, in thanks largely to the chemistry between Sandler and co-star Drew Barrymore.

wakes up, unable to remember anything that happened after the accident - the events of the previous day have been erased from her memory.

Therefore, Lucy's father (Blake Clark) and brother Doug (Sean Astin) recreate details of the same scene daily, from the year-old newspaper to the nearly empty shampoo bottle.

The illusion is complete and unquestioned, until local veterinarian Henry Roth (Sandler) enters the picture.

Henry, a commitment-shy woman each week, meets Lucy during breakfast at the local diner. When they both return the next day, Henry plans to pick up where they left off. The trouble is that Lucy doesn't even remember that they met.

Under the direction of Peter Segal, known for his work on Anger Management and Tommy Boy, the film mixes humor with heart. The Hawaiian backdrop adds to the romance for a truly enjoyable and feel-good experience. Don't worry about the movie being too sappy, however. Sandler is still far from being in the business of producing chick flicks. This is just one film that may suit most audiences if you don't mind the occasional crude humor, because somewhere in between is a real gem.

The Bottom Line: Barrymore brings out the best in Sandler, proving that he is more than Billy Madison or Happy Gilmore. 50 First Dates combines the best of both stars - sweet and silly.

It is their second time starring together since their collaboration in 1998's The Wedding Singer, and the onscreen pairing is simply delightful.

Barrymore's character, Lucy Whitmore, lives the same day over and over again, in a sort of Groundhog Day fashion. The movie picks up a year after Lucy loses her short-term memory in a car accident. Each morning, she romance begins. Henry dedicates his days, in between working at the aquarium with the walrus, to getting Lucy to fall in love with him again and again.

How can they have a real relationship when Lucy doesn't remember yesterday? Leave those questions and their answers up to Henry, or rather, the creative imaginations of Sandler and the rest of his crew.

Bailey gets deal done

The Champ Bailey deal with the Denver Broncos is done, assuring the Washington Redskins that Clinton Portis will join Mark Brunell and Phillip Daniels among the team's pre-free agency signings. Bailey's agent, Jack Reale, said the deal was reached late Tuesday. Bailey agreed to a sevenyear, $63 million contract with the Broncos. The deal includes an $18 million signing bonus and $5 million in other bonuses, making it one of the richest contracts ever for a defensive player. That cleared the way for the four-time Pro Bowl cornerback to be traded Wednesday to the Broncos for running back Portis, who ran for 1,500-plus yards each of his first two seasons. Denver will also receive Washington's second-round draft pick this season. League officials say the Portis-Bailey trade is the first involving two major players swapping teams since Oakland's Ken Stabler and Houston's Dan Pastorini changed cities on March 17, 1980.

Pirates climb to No. 24 in latest poll

BRANDON HUGHES SENIOR WRITER

ECU made a statement after sweeping the Keith LeClair Invitational, including two wins over nationally ranked Clemson. The entire nation will take notice of the Pirates, however, if they remain undefeated after a threegame series at No. 6 Arizona State this weekend.

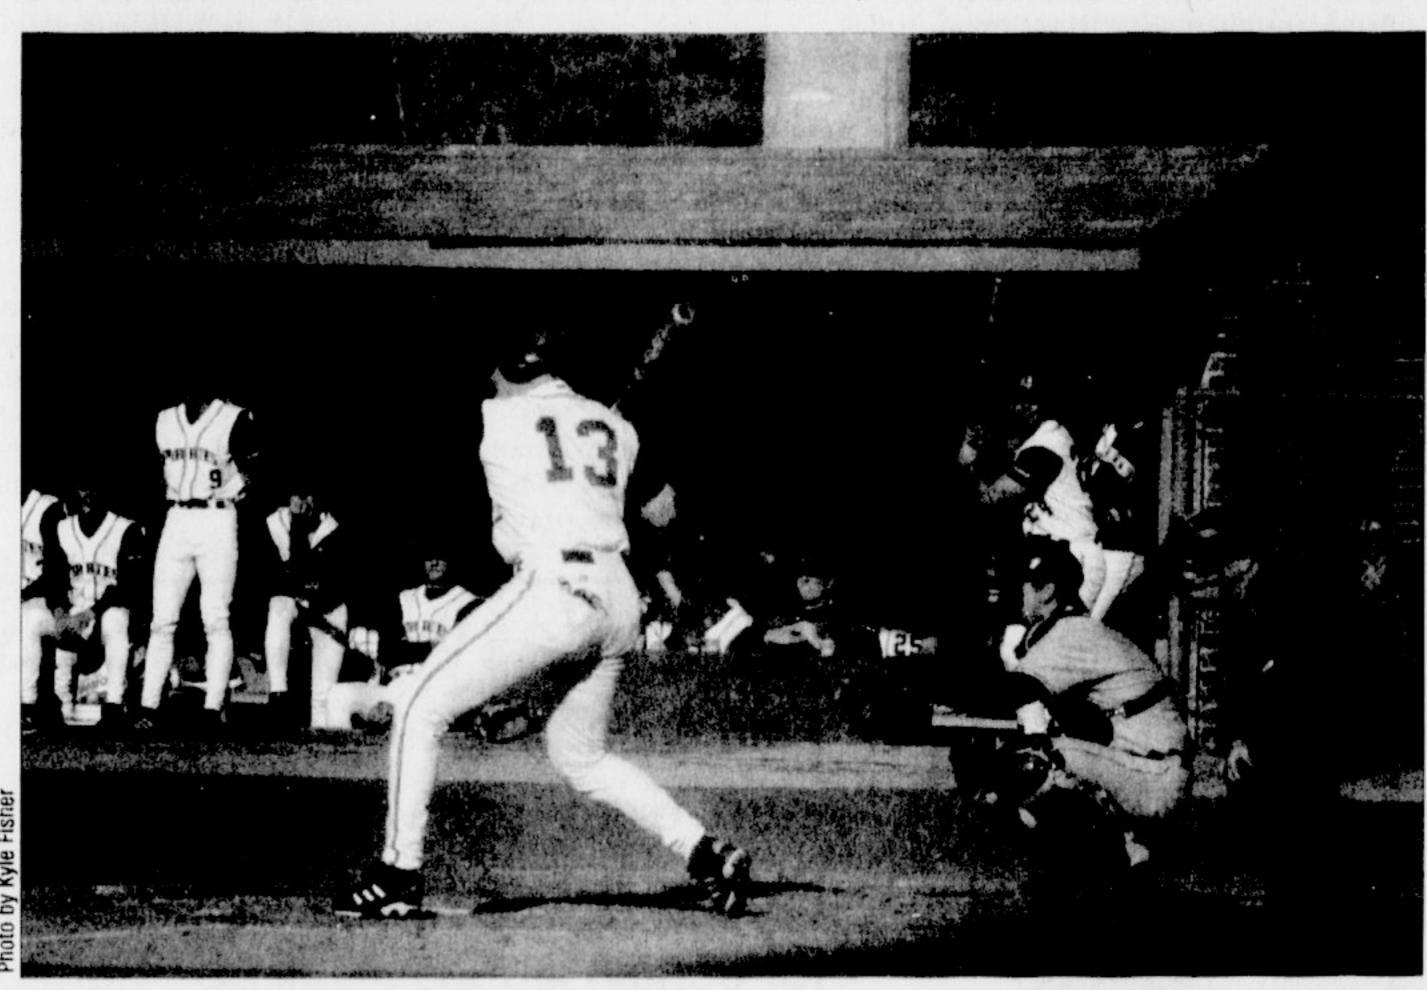

ECU may have been shunned in the latest Sports Weekly/ESPN poll by coming in at No. 24 behind teams with four and five losses and as many as eight. However, the undefeated Pirates know the next task at hand will be their toughest yet.

The Sun Devils (12-2) are fresh off a three-game sweep of Connecticut, a series in which they outscored the Huskies 52-18 and hit .442 as a team. Arizona State had some impressive wins early in the 2004 campaign, including a three-game sweep of No. 22 Florida State and a 3-1 victory over defending national champion Rice.

Arizona State may be one of the best offensive teams ECU will play all season. The Sun Devils are collectively hitting .320 with five players over the .300 mark. Dustin Pedroia leads the team in batting with a .475 average and is currently on an eight-game hitting streak.

Travis Buck, who went five-for-five with eight RBI against

The Pirates will need all of the firepower they can get against the Sun Devils this weekend.

UConn, is batting .417 with a team-high 23 RBI. The sophomore right fielder was named Pac-10 and Collegiate Baseball National Player of the Week after going 10-for-12 in the series with 13 RBI.

Colin Curtis and Tuffy Gosewisch are also having an exceptional year at the plate. Curtis is hitting .383 with four homeruns and Gosewisch is right on his heels with a .347 batting average.

will most likely see the likes of Jason Urquidez and Jeff Mousser on the mound. Both starters have an ERA under 2.00 and Pat Bresnehan is the star of the bullpen should the Sun Devils run into trouble. Bresnehan has made six appearances in relief, striking out 18 batters in 13 innings of work. The reliever is 3-0 with a 2.08 ERA.

The Pirates will counter with an even stronger pitching staff. ECU's team ERA is 1.55 and leading the way is starter Greg Bunn (2-0). Bunn's ERA is a miniscule 1.04 and the junior right-hander has struck out 23 batters in 17 1/3 innings.

intimidating duo for opposing pitchers this season. Jones is hitting .424 with five homers and an outstanding slugging percentage of 1.030. Lawhorn's stats are almost identical. The twin brother of preseason Conference USA player of the year Darryl Lawhorn is certainly bringing no shame to the family name. Trevor is batting .419 with five home runs and a team-high 13 RBI. Darryl Lawhorn has gotten off to a slow start, but emerged in the Keith LeClair tourney with a 3-for-5 performance in the 6-4 win over Clemson on Sunday.

Quarterback Jeff Garcia was released by the San Francisco 49ers on Tuesday, ending his five-year tenure with the team. The 49ers also released two-time Pro Bowl guard Ron Stone in an attempt to get under the salary cap. Garcia, a three-time Pro Bowler, was unable to agree on a restructured contract with the 49ers, who wanted to reduce his salary from the $9.9 million he was scheduled to earn in 2004. Instead, San Francisco will save $1.7 million against the salary cap by dropping Garcia, a local product who holds the franchise's single-season record for passing yardage. He has been the 49ers' starter since 1999, but Tim Rattay is expected to take over next season as San Francisco clears room under the salary cap. The 49ers waited until the last possible day to make their decision, since Garcia was due a $500,000 roster bonus Wednesday - the first day of the free agent signing period.

Brunell defers bonus to help Jags

Mark Brunell agreed to delay the payment of his roster bonus Tuesday, a move that makes it possible for the Jacksonville Jaguars to complete his trade to the Washington Redskins. Brunell agreed to delay the $2 million roster bonus from Wednesday to March 10 so the Jaguars won't have to count it against their salary cap. Brunell will sign his new, seven-year, $43 million contract with the Jaguars, who will trade him for a third-round draft pick. The Jaguars said the trade will be finalized Wednesday. The Jaguars also agreed to a new deal with defensive end Paul Spicer and punter Chris Hanson, Hanson, a 2002 Pro Bowler who missed most of last season after gouging his leg with an ax, signed a five-year, $6.5 million deal that includes a $1.3 million signing bonus. Jacksonville also released defensive end Tony Brackens with intentions on bringing him back with a lower-priced contract. Brackens was due a $1 million roster bonus Wednesday that the Jaguars don't want to pay. With the money they save from releasing Brackens and trading Brunell, the Jaguars will be $16.1 million under the $80.6 million salary cap when the free-agency period begins Wednesday.

WWE to induct Rose into hall of fame

Pete Rose will be inducted into World Wrestling Entertainment's hall of fame later this month, The New York Times reported Tuesday. Rose, major league baseball's career hits leader with 4,256, participated in three Wrestlemania events from 1998-2000 for WWE. He is ineligible to enter baseball's Hall of Fame because he's banned from the game for life. WWE chairman Vince McMahon told the newspaper Rose will be paid for his appearance at the March 13 induction and at Wrestlemania the next night at Madison Square Garden. He'll be presented by Kane, his 300-pound nemesis in the Wrestlemania shows.

Curtis is only a freshman and is complementing his solid play in center field with a team-high nine-game hitting streak. Connecticut had some success at the plate against the Sun Devils, a claim not many squads can make. The Pirates

Women to take on Charlotte today

ERIC GILMORE STAFF WRITER

The women's basketball team will try to prolong their season when they take on in-state rival and conference foe Charlotte for the third time this year tonight in Daniel-Myer Coliseum, home of the TCU Horned Frogs. Tip-off is slated for 7 p.m.

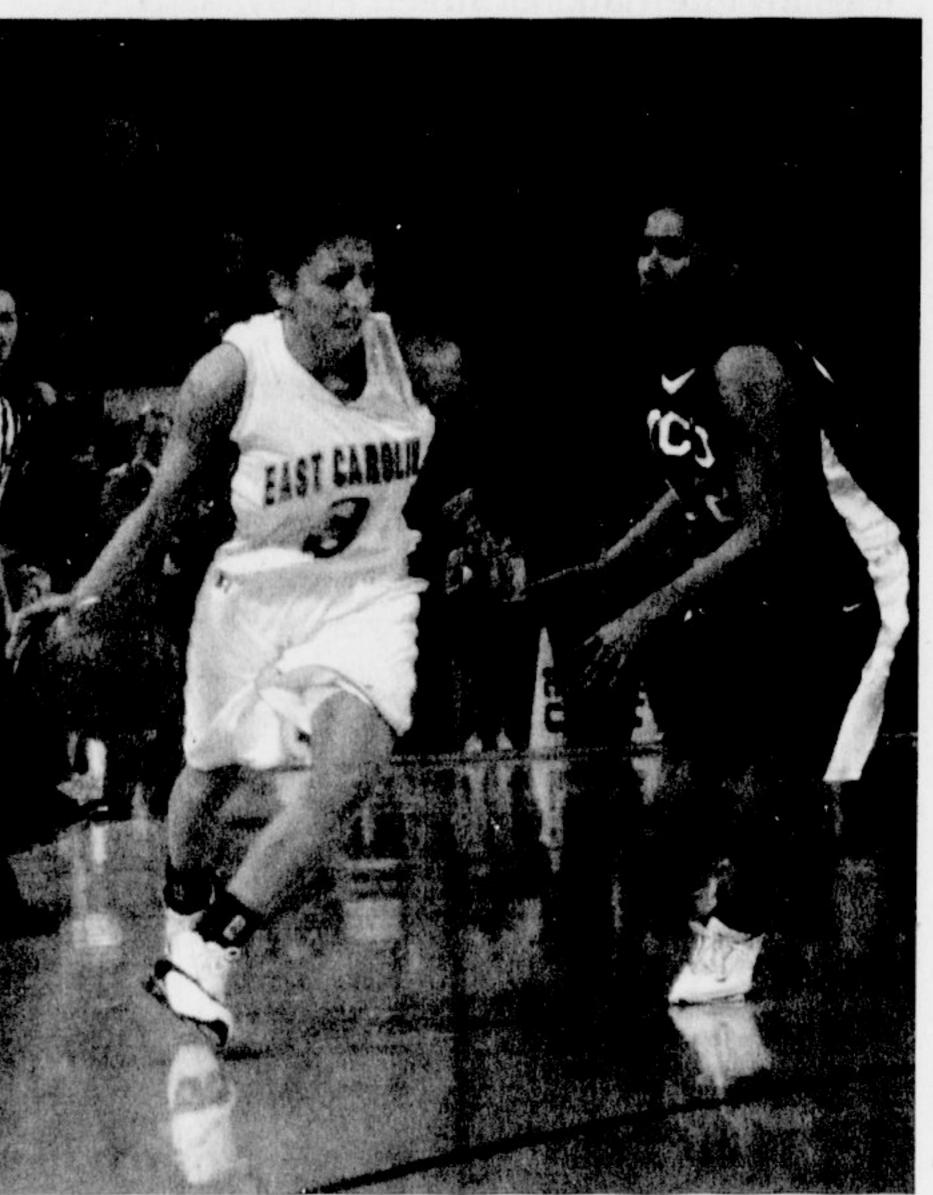

The ECU women (14-13, 5-9) are limping into the Conference USA tournament and starving for a win. The Lady Pirates have lost nine straight games after starting out the conference slate with five consecutive wins. Coach Sharon-Baldwin Tener's team has lost countless heartbreakers - four of the past seven games have been decided in overtime, with the women coming up short each time.

how hard they have played, the women haven't won since Jan. 25 and went a disappointing 0-8 in February.

This will be the 27th meeting between the 10th-seeded Lady Pirates and seventh-seeded Lady 49ers and the first at a neutral location. Charlotte leads the all time series with a 17-9 record. This will also mark the first postseason meeting between the two rivals.

Charlotte (15-12, 8-6) comes into the game with a considerable amount of momentum. Despite losing four out of their last five, the Lady 49ers walloped ECU 78-48 in the regular season finale last Friday. Charlotte used an early 23-4 run to stifle the ECU women. In the most lopsided loss of the season, the Lady Pirates failed to compete and got dominated in every statistical category.

Charlotte had five players in double figures led by Sakellie Daniels' game-high 15.

UConn, Taurasi to appear on "60 Minutes"

The highly rated CBS show "60 Minutes" will air a feature on the Connecticut women's team during its next episode on Sunday (7 p.m. ET). The feature, which will last approximately 12 minutes, will include interviews with UConn head coach Geno Auriemma and senior Diana Taurasi, last season's national player of the year who helped the Huskies win the past two NCAA titles. Now in its 36th season, "60 minutes" is one of the most successful television programs in history. The show has ranked among Nielsen's top-10 programs a record 23 consecutive seasons. This week's New Yorker magazine also includes a feature story on Taurasi.

ECU announces 2004 football schedule

Five games to be played at Dowdy-Ficklen Stadium, plus a match-up against in-state rival NC State in Charlotte, N.C., highlights ECU's 2004 football schedule released on Monday.

The Pirates, entering their second season under the direction of Head Coach John Thompson, will open their 2004 campaign on Sept. 4 at West Virginia.

The 2004 home opener is the following Saturday, Sept. 11, against in-state foe Wake Forest.

The Conference USA slate begins at home on Sept. 25 against Cincinnati. Other C-USA home dates are Oct. 9 against Tulane, Oct. 30 against Army and Nov. 20 against Memphis.

Spring intramurals heating up

Intramural softball season starts Monday

ERIC GILMORE STAFF WRITER

With the warm weather and spring rapidly approaching, intramural sports will provide a four-game softball season.

Rivaling flag football and basketball, softball is one of the biggest intramural sports.

"Traditionally we have about 100 teams that come Laura Triyoout," said nis, assistant director of intramural sports.

"The league will start on Monday, March 8. We will get four days in before Spring Break and then we will resume today. play after that." The separate divisions will be the same as any other intramural sport. There will be eight separate divisions, each for different levels of competition. # Softball drops doubleheader in C-USA opener against Houston

Behind the pitching of seniors Jamie Falco and Jenny Johnson and sophomore Crystal Briscoe the University of Houston Cougar softball team opened Conference USA play this afternoon with a doubleheader sweep of ECU by 2-1 and 4-0.

With the pair of wins Houston improves to 17-6 overall-its best start in its fouryear history-and 2-0 in C-USA action. The Pirates fall to 11-4-1 and 0-2.

Falco and Johnson combined to limit the Pirates to just one run in the first game. Falco remained perfect on the season, improving to 5-0, while Johnson set a new C-USA single-season record by recording her sixth Jaci Gonzalez worked walks with Gonzalez's plating Skender.

The Pirates escaped further damage when junior Kim Nesloney grounded out to third.

In the third the Cougars increased their lead to 2-0, when freshman Jamie Adams walked to start the inning. Junior Kristen Glowacz put two runners on with no outs when she singled through the left side of the infield. Skender popped up, but sophomore Brandi Clark loaded the bases with the one-out walk. Ferreris ripped the next pitch into deep left center to score Adams.

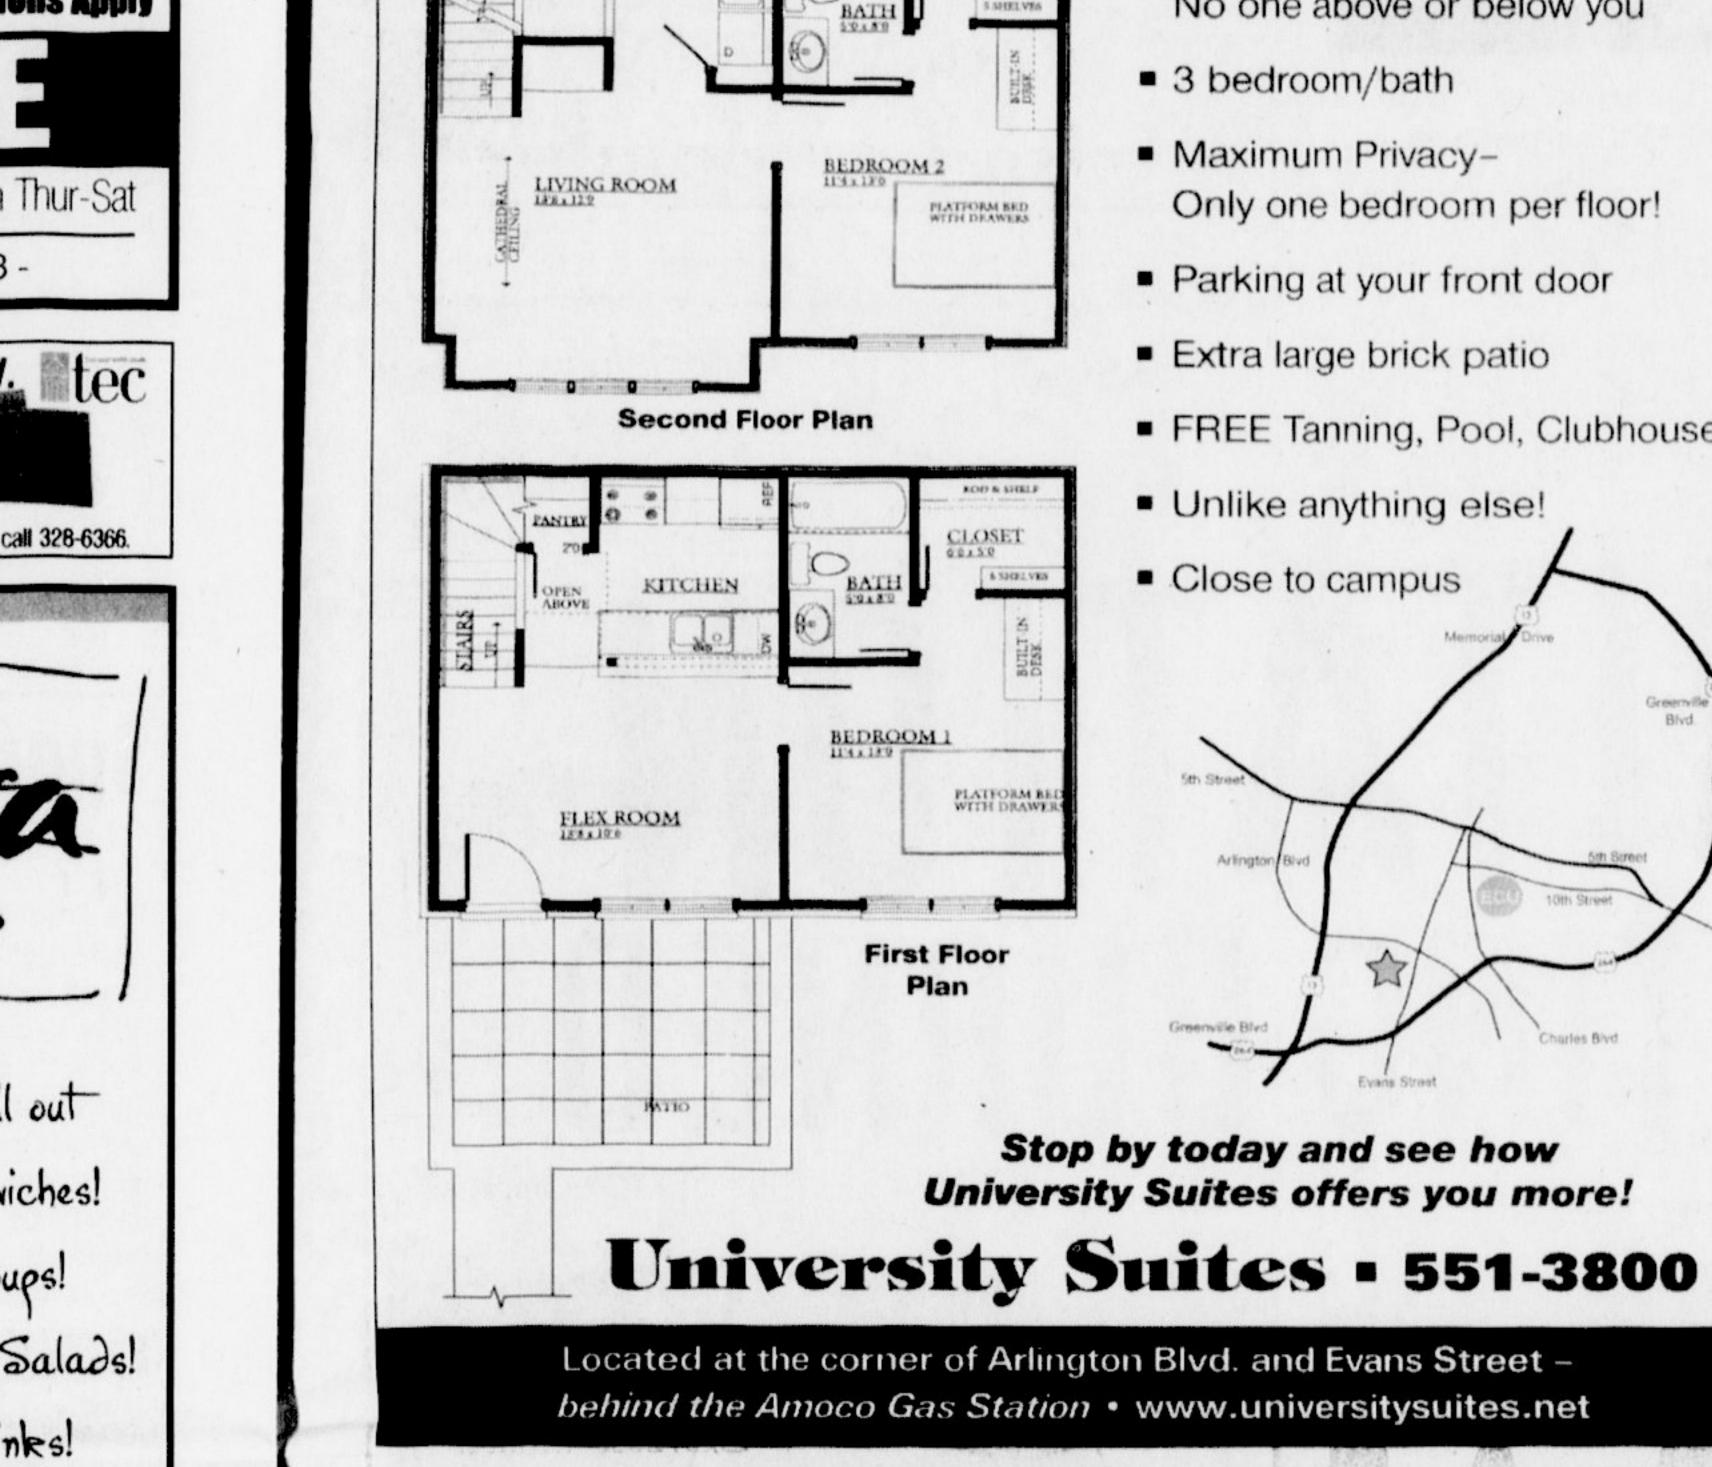

The Pirates scored their only run of the day when Kate Manuse hit a one-out home run to going the distance for the third time this season, Briscoe (5-1) walked only one and allowed just three hits.

Houston struck for all four of their runs in the bottom of the second inning. Ferreris got it started with a single up the middle but was forced on Clark's fielder's choice groundout. Junior Michelle Keith reached on a hit by pitch, and when senior Jenny Baker attempted to sacrifice the runners over, ECU's Andiey Acosta bobbled the grounder and allowed Baker to load the bases.

After a forceout at home, the Cougars plated their first run on a wild pitch by Maggie Lingo (3-2), and on an errant throw by catcher Krista Jessup, Baker scored all the way from second for a 2-0 Houston lead. Nesloney was intentionally walked to bring up Adams, who promptly laced a single into center field to score senior Lindsay Durham. Glowacz brought the final run home on a sharp single down the left field line.

The Cougars scratched one run in second and another in the third, as the UH offense worked five walks and banged out five hits against ECU starter Brentley Bridgeforth (5-2). Junior Jenilee Skender started off the second with a single up the middle, and with one out senior Arelis Ferreris moved Skender to second with a single to left field. After ECU put its leadoff runner on in the fifth, Johnson relieved Falco and worked the final three innings for the record-breaking save. Falco and Johnson combined to strike out eight Pirate batters.

Speaking of strikeouts, Briscoe set a personal best in the nightcap, when she struckout 10 ECU batters and pitched her second straight complete-game shutout. In Glowacz was 3-for-5 in the doubleheader to raise her batting average over .300 (.301) for the first time this season.

NBA has a problem with authority

(AP) — Think you've got a problem with authority?

Well, this is how conflicted people around the NBA are about the officiating at the moment: On Sunday, Rasheed Wallace actually restrained someone else from going after a ref.

That someone was his coach, Larry Brown, who put the finishing touches on one of the most lawless stretches in memory by getting himself tossed out late in the first quarter of an eventual 100-83 win by his Detroit Pistons over the Los Angeles Clippers.

The details aren't worth recounting beyond the man-bites-dog angle that Wallace, one of the league's genuine matchheads, provided by stepping between Brown and referee Bill Spooner as a peacemaker. Then again, a lot of people in the NBA have been acting funny around the officials lately. Orlando star Tracy McGrady kicked off ref-a-palooza in a game against Denver 10 days ago. Upset over a call, McGrady punted the basketball into the stands, and as soon as it was returned, punted it back into the crowd.

That same night, Wizards coach Eddie Jordan began ripping official Leon Wood right after the final buzzer and didn't stop until security guards intervened. Sensing rebellion in the air, Seattle's normally mild-mannered Ray Allen went off on the refs that night, too, though he saved his rant for the postgame.

The league responded with the usual wrist slaps, fining McGrady and Allen $10,000 each and letting Jordan off with $7,500.

Fat lot of good that did. Two nights later, the Wizards' Jerry Stackhouse vented his frustration over a call by tossing a basketball into the stands, a heave that cost him $5,000. But all those episodes did was set the stage for Wednesday night's game between the Lakers and Nuggets at Denver.

With the Nuggets leading 111-109 late in the game, a shot by Denver's Andre Miller appeared to brush the rim and teammate Carmelo Anthony got the rebound. Before he could put the ball back up, referee Michael Henderson blew the whistle for a shot-clock violation.

After huddling with fellow officials Jack Nies and Jess Kersey, they decided to instead label the call an inadvertent whistle. The Lakers won the subsequent jump ball, and Kareem Rush hit the game-winning 3-pointer with 3.2 seconds left.

After the buzzer sounded, Nuggets coach Jeff Bzdelik started raging about being robbed and had to be restrained, the refs made a dash for the tunnel while

Long-range shooting key to St. Joe's run RINGGOLD TOWERS

PHILADELPHIA (KRT)— Each St. Joseph's game, Matt Brady takes his seat on the bench, a clipboard tucked under his arm. Hands cupped around his mouth, he occasionally barks out instructions to the Hawks or offers a dig at an official.

Mostly, though, Brady trains his eyes on St. Joe's array of long-range shooters, checking such details as release points, balance, and the arc of each shot.

During this hard-to-imagine St. Joe's season – which continues Saturday with the final regularseason road game at Rhode Island, where the second-ranked Hawks will try to extend their perfect season to 26 wins – Brady has watched his work yield fantastic results.

Brady, 38, who has been Phil Martelli's top assistant for all nine seasons since Martelli barrage of three-point baskets. Entering Thursday night's games, the Hawks were third in the country in three-point shooting accuracy, at 42.2 percent. They ranked second in the country in treys made per game, with an average of 9.8. Earlier this season, St. Joe's set an Atlantic 10 Conference record by raining 20 three-pointers over Temple's zone defense.

Four of the top five three-point shooters in the A-10 are Hawks, and that doesn't include Chet Stachitas, who has connected on 46.9 percent. That would rank second in the league if he met the minimum requirement of 1.5 per game.

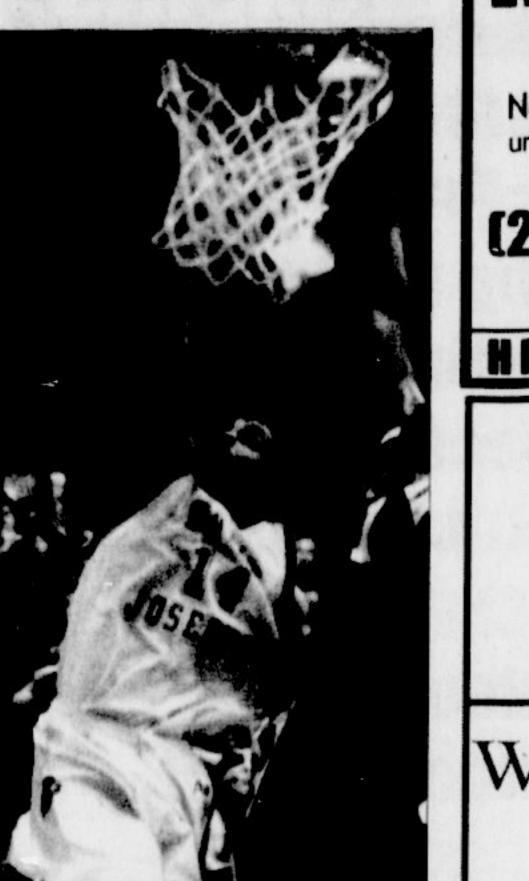

The surest shooter is Pat Carroll, whose 47.4 percentage is third in the country. Carroll came to St. Joe's a pure shooter, but Jameer Nelson, Delonte Nelson, the senior point guard who is a leading candidate for several player of the year awards.

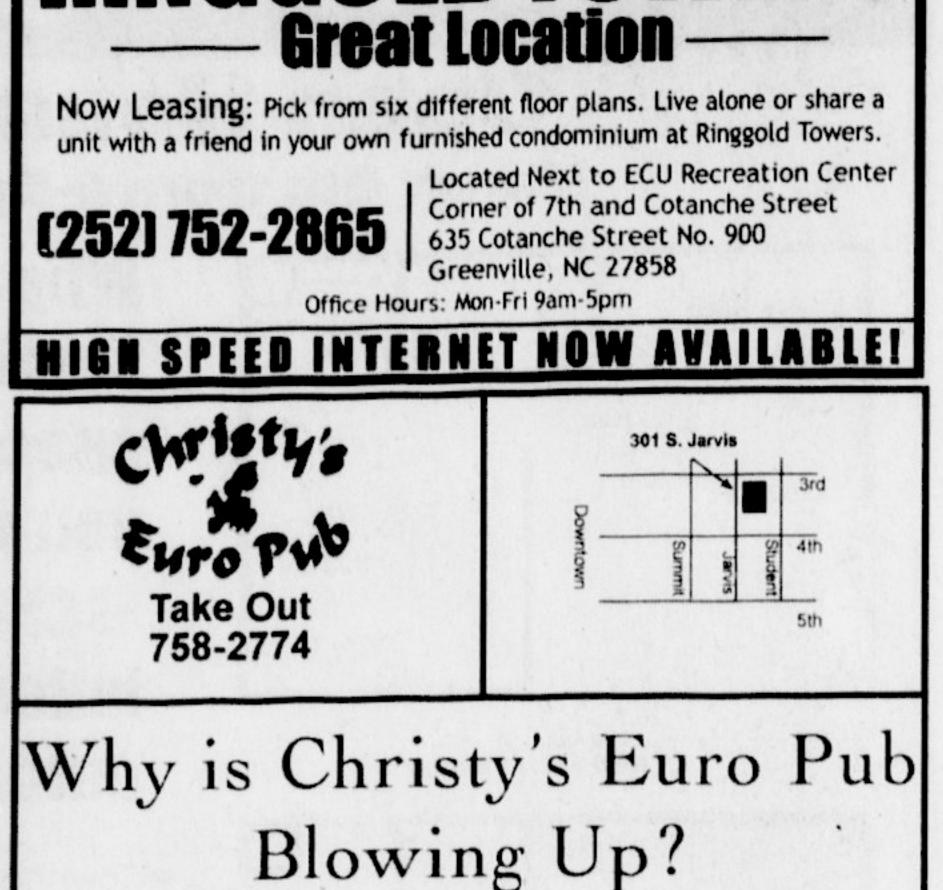

"I guess it was because I was always able to get to the basket. Now I'm a real jump shooter with range. I have to give him a lot of credit for staying with me. Every time he sees something wrong, he makes an adjustment."

When Nelson wasn't assured he would be a first-round NBA pick last season, scouts questioned his size (5-foot-11), but more so his perimeter shooting.

"Now I tell the NBA people who ask that Jameer will be a great shooter in the league," said Brady.

"I wasn't a good shooter before I met Coach Brady," said his players. He'll offer his help, but if he meets resistance, he'll let the players try to work things out for themselves. Usually, they can't, so they seek him out.

the duo was held to a combined 11 points against the 49ers. It marked the first time all year that Willis failed to reach double figures, snapping her streak at 26 games. Both saw limited action as Baldwin-Tener went to her bench to get valuable experience for younger players.

The Charlotte-ECU series this year has been an enigma. The Feb. 27 game was a 55-point turnaround from the first when ECU took down Charlotte 80-55 on Jan. 25. The Lady Pirates had just a two-point advantage at 28-26 by the end of the first half. However, after the intermission, it was all ECU.

The women outscored Charlotte 52-29 in the second half thanks to the stellar play from Willis and Jackson. Willis contributed 26 points and nine rebounds, while Jackson had nearly identical numbers with 24 points and nine boards.

Willis could be playing in her final game and will lead the Lady Pirate attack. Willis is averaging a double-double, a feat she has accomplished 14 times this season, at 19.1 points per game and 10.3 rebounds. Her totals are good for fourth and third in the league respectively. With 1,371 career points, the standout senior moved into fifth in career scoring at ECU, passing Sylvia Bragg who played from 1982-1986. The conference tournament goes from March 4 -7. The first match-up today will pit the eighth-seeded USF against ninth-seeded Cincinnati at 2 p.m. Fifth-seeded Marquette and 12th-seeded Tulane will follow at 4 pm. After the conclusion of the ECU-Charlotte tilt, sixth-seeded Memphis will try to take on 11thseeded UAB. In order for one of these teams to win the tournament, they have to face the daunting task of winning four games in four days. League champion Houston received the first seed and will take a bye. Also taking byes are twotime defending champions No. 15 TCU, No. 20 DePaul and Louisville. The Lady Pirates would face second seeded TCU in the second round if they advance past Charlotte. The women have not won in the postseason in four years. Their last win came against Virginia Commonwealth in the CAA Tournament 77-68 in 2000. Last year, the Lady Pirates season ended at the hands of eventual winner TCU, 54-44.
