Anti-Bush lobbyists voice their political opinions in Wright Plaza Tuesday afternoon in attempt to persuade student voters. A student eyewitness said while he thought their actions were unethical, he supported the fact that they were exercising freedom of speech. Another student said he was happy to see ECU students are politically active in general, and hopes to see a higher turnout of student voters in the upcoming election on Nov. 2.

Policy removes students from oncampus housing

COLE WAHAB STAFF WRITER

The new zero tolerance policy was enacted this year in attempt to keep dorm residents and others from using or marketing illegal drugs.

This policy was put into place by Campus Living in an attempt to keep the campus, its residents and students safe.

Maggie Olszewska, assistant director for the Office of Student Conflict Resolution, said the policy is a much needed one and serves an important purpose.

"The policy states that if anybody uses illegal drugs or even has drugs or drug paraphernalia either on their person or in their room, they will have their contract [with housing] cancelled," said Olszewska.

Olszewska said even though a the drugs, if the student is in the room or around someone who has drugs, the student would be held responsible.

Olszewska said the problem of drugs and substance abuse has always been an issue, but it's one that has been growing over time.

"I think, nationally, there is so much more talk about drugs and how they impact students and living communities," Olszewska said.

"The option was always there, but now it's been made a mandate."

Campus Living has taken several actions to inform students of the new policy.

When students moved into the dorms, they were required to sign a piece of paper indicating they are aware of the policy. Posters and fliers have been placed around campus and in residence halls in order to keep people informed.

ONALASKA, Wis. - President Bush and Sen. John Kerry accused each other of lacking the hardnosed resolve of Cold War presidents - from Democrat Truman to Republican Reagan – reaching across party lines a week before Election Day to try to break their campaign deadlock.

With tensions rising Tuesday in both camps, Kerry escalated his criticism of Bush over explosives missing in Iraq, asserting that the weapons could be used against American troops and citizens. He accused the president of keeping the cost of war in Iraq under wraps until after Election Day.

Dare Spurling, senior industrial distribution major, said the industrial distribution program is like a family because of Toppen's caring and compassionate teaching style.

"This is his major, the program is going to lose a lot of students," said Spurling.

Due to his being denied tenure, Toppen will have one more year before his employment at ECU will end.

According to the ECU faculty manual, tenure ensures academic freedom by allowing faculty members to express unpopular points of view by protecting them from involuntary suspension or discharge. Once tenured, the only grounds for dismissal are incompetence, neglect of duty or misconduct of such a nature as to indicate the individual is unfit to continue.

To become tenured at ECU, a professor must be approved by a committee that includes three tenured faculty members, the chairperson of the department and the dean.

The faculty manual states that approval hinges on the applicant's demonstrated professional competence, research and creative activity and service, as well as a potential for future contributions and the institution's needs and resources. It notes that teaching is the first consideration.

"What else are you keeping from the American people?" Kerry said in Green Bay.

showed the popular vote tied, 48-48, with Bush-weary voters open to change on Iraq and the economy but harboring doubts about Kerry's ability to lead the nation against terror.

New state surveys showed the race also knotted in Florida, Ohio and Pennsylvania, the three most important battlegrounds in the race for 270 Electoral College votes.

Behind the scenes, both campaigns tweaked their stump speeches, advertising strategies and get-out-the-vote drives. In addition to Wisconsin, Bush visited Iowa while Kerry traveled to Nevada and New Mexico - all toss up states.

After spending weeks casting

He said in Green Bay the explosives "could be in the hands of terrorists, used to attack our troops or our people."

Vice President Dick Cheney A Los Angeles Times poll responded for Bush from Florida, saying, "It is not at all clear that those explosives were even at the weapons facility when our troops arrived in the area of Baghdad."

> In the battle of past presidents, Bush said Democrats Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy showed "confidence and resolve in times of war and hours of crisis," asserting that Kerry lacks such mettle.

Kerry said Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Reagan all built strong alliances, a contrast to Bush who Kerry said "has failed in his fundamental obligation as commander in chief to make America as safe and secure as we should be." Later, in Nevada, the Demoand English to undecided voters. "We're in a bigger mess by the day and the president can't see it or can't admit it, but either way, America is less safe," he said. Bush made a direct pitch to wavering Democrats, particularly moderates unsure about Kerry.

"If you believe America should lead with strength and purpose and confidence and resolve, I'd be honored to have your support and I'm asking for your vote," he said.

In a gesture of moderation aimed at the same voters, Bush told ABC-TV he supported civil unions for homosexual couples "if that's what a state chooses to do." The remark upset some conservatives who not only want to amend the Constitution to ban gay marriage, as does Bush, but also would bar state approval of gay civil unions.

and why Toppen was not receiving tenure.

"Dr. Kauffmann just explained the tenure process to us," said Williams.

"He was very vague and wasn't too concerned with our feelings ... he just kept referring us to the faculty manual."

Toppen said he failed to receive tenure because he did not publish a sufficient number of articles in journals specifically relating to his department, which suggests his research and creative activities were not deemed sufficient by the committee.

Both Spurling and Williams suggested the underlying cause for the denial of tenure was preexisting animosity between Kauffmann and Toppen.

"Toppen and the department chair had conflicts," Spurling said.

Kauffman said by e-mail he is not allowed to comment on a specific tenure case, but he did note that tenure is an unbiased process.

"Tenure is a fair and balanced system that individuals choose to pursue," said Kauffmann.

"There are no surprises in it, and the expectations are clear and known."

Spurling and Williams said students and parents are writing letters to the vice chancellor, who is in charge of appeals in tenure decisions, in hopes the decision will be reversed.

Man charged with death after lengthy feud

SANFORD, NC - A feud ended with a murder charge for one man accused of shooting his neighbor at least four times after they left their homes early Sunday in their pickup trucks. Police said Horace Greely Dawson, 67, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Richard Lee Raab, 57, who was shot to death during an 8 a.m. confrontation at a street corner.

Dawson was held in the Lee County Jail without bond.

The two men lived next door to each other on Pendergrass Road for at least six years, according to Sanford police.

The crash, in which the ferry M/V Neuse rammed into its loading ramp at almost full cruising speed, resulted in no injuries to the 29 people aboard or to the vessel, Jerry Gaskill, NC Ferry System director, said Monday. The ramp and boom, which supports a hydraulic system for the ramp lift, sustained damage that could cost more than $100,000 and take as long as three weeks to repair, he said. Passengers waited aboard the ferry nearly three hours to get off. Gaskill said he spoke with those in each of the 15 vehicles aboard as they departed and urged occupants to report any damage. Capt. Roger Resor was operating the ferry when it hit the ramp at about seven later realized the bank withdrew the money from Scott Peterson's own account, one on which her name also appeared.

Jackie Peterson said that on April 17, a day before Peterson's arrest near his parents' home in San Diego, she gave him back the $10,000 she accidentally withdrew from his account, and that was why Scott was carrying so much cash when he was arrested, defense lawyer Mark Geragos suggested.

Geragos also questioned Modesto police to imply that burglars who robbed the home of one of the Petersons' neighbors around the time Laci vanished may also have been involved in her death.

"In many major in-region markets, Cingular now will have almost half of the mobile wireless market share. And in allowing the acquisition of AT&T Wireless, we permanently remove an independent source of competition to Cingular, SBC and BellSouth," Commissioner Jonathan Adelstein said.

The merger would give Atlantabased Cingular about 47.6 million subscribers. That would top Verizon Wireless, the current market leader with 40.4 million customers as of midvear, while paring the number of national cell phone providers to five. Under the FCC plan, the companies will not be allowed to merge in 16 markets and must divest themselves of assets in six additional markets. The companies must meet conditions set by both agencies for the deal to go through. A judge also still must sign off on the deal.

U.S. air strike kills al-Zarqawi aide

BAGHDAD, Iraq - A U.S. air strike in Fallujah on Tuesday killed an aide to Jordanian terrorist Abu Musab al-Zargawi, the military said. The U.S. military said the earlymorning raid struck a safe house used by al-Zarqawi's group. U.S. forces have stepped up aerial and artillery assaults on Fallujah in recent weeks in an attempt to root out insurgents. Fallujah, 40 miles west of Baghdad, fell under rebel control after the Bush administration ordered Marines to lift their three-week siege of the city in April. The United States has offered a $25 million bounty for the capture or killing of al-Zarqawi, whose group has claimed responsibility in numerous suicide bombings and beheadings of foreign hostages, including three Americans. "Recent strikes and raids targeting the Abu Musab al-Zargawi network have severely degraded its ability to conduct attacks," the U.S. statement said. It did not identify the slain al-Zarqawi aide. In London, Iraqi Foreign Minister Hoshyar Zebari said the interim government is working to achieve a political solution to the military standoff around Fallujah. "We are trying to exhaust all political channels and avenues before any final decision is made," Zebari told British Broadcasting Corp. radio. "Fallujah is one hot spot that we need really to resolve before getting to elections" scheduled for January.

Karzal winner in Afghan presidential vote

KABUL, Afghanistan - Counting in Afghanistan's presidential election concluded Tuesday, with U.S.-backed interim leader Hamid Karzai the clear winner, a senior official said. Investigators were still examining about 100 ballot boxes to clear up lingering fraud allegations, but the election's chief technical officer said the count was effectively over and done.

RALEIGH, NC (AP) - Democrat Erskine Bowles has loaned his U.S. Senate campaign an additional $1.8 million to light up the television airwaves in his neck-and-neck race with Republican Richard Burr.

The Bowles campaign, which disclosed the new loan to The Associated Press on Monday, said the former White House chief of staff needed the cash influx to run more TV ads in the final days of one of the nation's most expensive congressional races.

Bowles loaned his campaign nearly $7 million in an unsuccessful 2002 Senate bid against Republican Elizabeth Dole. Most of that money has never been repaid.

This time around, he has relied less on his personal fortune, taking only one $767,012 loan in June and another of $790,000 earlier this month. Bowles has worked to hold his own with Burr in fund-raising.

"Erskine has been extremely successful to raise the funds to run a successful campaign," said Susan Lagana, Bowles' communication director. "But he is up against an opponent who has broken the bank when it comes to special interest money."

Burr has been one of the top congressional recipients of political action committee money, receiving more than Democratic and Republican $2 million during this year's senatorial committees that see election cycle. the race as one that could tip the Bowles and national Demopower in the Senate for the next crats have hammered Burr for two years. those donations, alleging in a The National Association series of TV commercials that of Realtors and the American they have swayed his votes on Medical Association PACs have key issues during his 10 years in run ads on Burr's behalf, Bowles due Monday at the State Board elections board.

the U.S. House.

While Bowles also has taken PAC money, it is about one-third of what Burr has accumulated.

"Erskine is willing to put in his own money," Lagana said. "He's not beholden to any of these groups coming in."

Burr campaign spokesman Doug Heye called the loan a desperate attempt to win voters who have already rejected him once. Burr has been aggressive in fund raising because he knew Bowles would spend his own money at the end, according to Heye.

The two campaigns entered October even in the polls and with about the same amount of money in the bank at roughly $1.3 million.

Each campaign has received $8.1 million apiece in contributions through the end of September. But Burr held an overall edge in fund raising, taking in about $11 million to Bowles' $9 million through Sept. 30, in part because Burr last year transferred in more than $1.6 million from his House campaign coffers.

The Bowles campaign has sent a loan notice to the Federal Elections Commission, Lagana said.

Housing Services reminded students to comply with all policies around campus.

Olszewska said there have been fewer cases of substance abuse on campus this year than expected indicating the campaign may be having an effect.

"Housing advertised heavily about the policy. They set up a web page, all the RAs had to announce it during their first hall meetings, so everyone knew about this policy," Olszewska said.

Campus Living has also just released an interactive CD-ROM to all students at ECU entitled EMPOWERED: Illuminating Campus Safety. The CD is meant to inform people about various safety issues on campus including personal safety, fire safety and the zero tolerance policy.

In addition to various commentaries by students and Garrie Moore, vice chancellor for student life, the CD lists the rules and regulations residents must follow in order to maintain a safe environment on campus.

Some students don't think the new policy will accomplish anything in regard to catching people who use illegal drugs.

Josh Moore, sophomore undecided major, said he does not see the reasoning behind it. "I think it's pointless because people will do what they want to anyway. The more people that do it, the less likely it is any one person will be caught," said Moore.

Powell urges to resume talks, South Korea comes out of high alert

Colin Powell held a joint press conference with South Korean Foreign Minister Banki-moon on Tuesday in Seoul, South Korea.

Secretary of State Colin Powell urged North Korea on Tuesday to rejoin nuclear disarmament talks if it wants international aid, while South Korea ended a high alert triggered by holes cut into a border fence.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) -

South Korea, meanwhile, called on Washington and other participants in six-nation talks to show more flexibility in resolving the nuclear standoff - comments that appeared to distance Seoul from U.S. proposals.

Foreign Minister Ban Kimoon urged all participating countries in the six-nation talks to make more creative and realistic proposals to help bring North Korea to the talks as soon as possible.

Powell said Washington has no intention of changing its North Korea policy soon, but would work to resolve the nuclear dispute.

"We agreed to continue devoting maximum efforts to achieving this goal through multilateral diplomacy and sixparty talks," Powell said in a joint news conference with the South Korean foreign minister.

"Clearly, everybody wants to see the next round of six-party talks get started," Powell said, referring to the stalled talks among the United States, the two Koreas, China, Japan and Russia. "This is the time to move forward, to bring this matter to a conclusion."

He said the goal was to help the people of impoverished North Korea have a better life, in part by providing more food aid.

"We don't intend to attack North Korea, we don't have any hostile intent notwithstanding their claims," he said.

These proposals will have to address the sensibilities of all three parties and they need to be looked into fairly, intelligently and imaginatively," he told The Associated Press in Srinagar, Jammu-Kashmir state's summer capital. Kashmir, a former princely state, has been the flashpoint of two wars between India and Pakistan since it was divided following the partition of the subcontinent by Britain at independence in 1947. Pakistan and India in recent months have held a series of confidence-building talks on less contentious issues, but they have not yet started negotiations on Kashmir. Senior Pakistani and Indian officials are scheduled to hold another round of talks later this year.

Tovey said she and her graduate assistants, Pierre Holloman and Marla Vinson, organized a project in order to receive the grant. They met with Ames and had several brainstorming sessions in making the project in order to ensure they had an appropriate specified project in line for the particular grant.

"Most grant agencies are particular in what they want to fund," Tovey said.

"You must show there is a need for the program, as well as have an organized program."

After Ames revised the final proposal, they sent it off and it received acceptance.

The project will require many levels of commitment from the county and people involved. Ames said they are in the process of selecting an executive director of the program, whose salary would come from the grant.

Ames said he feels society needs to give more support to drug addicts and work with them more to help them overcome their problems rather than enact punishment without explanation.

"Simply jailing the person or kicking them out of school doesn't help," Ames said.

"It's good to provide opportunities." The program has already had a fairly successful beginning attracting between 20 - 30 workers.

community from assisting North Korea."

U.S. officials believe North Korea is biding its time on sixparty talks, sensing that Democratic candidate John Kerry might win the election and be easier to deal with than Bush.

Powell, who was in Seoul following visits this week to Japan and China, also met Tuesday with South Korean President Roh Moo-hyun and South Korea's unification minister.

Powell predicted that North Korea would return to the talks after next week's U.S. election, South Korean officials said.

Meanwhile, South Korea said that two mysterious holes found on the wire fence on the tense border with North Korea were most likely used not by communist infiltrators but by a South Korean defector to the North. It ordered its troops to stand down from a high alert.

About 60 miles north of Seoul, South Korean border guards had earlier found two holes in a wire fence at the buffer zone that has separated the two Koreas since their 1950-53 war. The conflict ended in a cease-fire, not a peace treaty, and the two Koreas remain technically at war.

The highly unusual discovery of the holes, found on the fence checked daily by troops for signs of infiltration, had triggered fears of North Korean commandoes slipping through the border and led South Korea to tighten roadblocks and traffic checks north of Seoul.

"After investigating the way the fence was cut and the foot prints in the scene, we have concluded that an unidentified person crossed into the north," said Brig. Gen. Hwang Joongsun, an operational officer of the South Korean military.

from friends and family, rather than make their decisions for themselves.

Recognizing a student's busy class and social schedule, TEC has compiled a quick list of key issues for George Bush and John Kerry. It is our hope that you can take a few minutes out of your day to read this list and decide if the candidate you plan on voting for is truly the man you want to be our next president.

Without further ado, here is the list:

General Information: Bush is a Republican, while Kerry is a Democrat. Both have held elected offices and both served in the military.

Abortion: Bush strongly favors appointing judges who will outlaw abortions, outlawing "partial birth" abortions, outlawing abortions except in cases of rape/incest and requiring parental notification for minors under 18. Kerry strongly opposes the above four abortion issues.

Gay Rights: Bush strongly favors the constitutional gay marriage ban and is strongly opposed to allowing gays to openly serve in the military. Kerry somewhat opposes the constitutional gay marriage ban and strongly favors allowing gays to serve in the military.

Here's a message from the sports world to the Yankees - "Haha."

If you are going to spit out negative statements about the leader of our country, then please make sure you're spitting out the truth. If you don't know what you stand for then keep your trap shut! You basically sound stupid in the Pirate Rant when trying to trash talk our President, because none of your facts make sense.

Why do people wear five-inch heals to gym class? Duh, you are gonna have to change anyway.

Let's get this straight right now: There are no dorms on ECU's campus. There are only residence halls. So if you are going to talk about them use the correct terminology. A dorm is a place where someone sleeps and a residence hall is a place where students live, learn, grow and build bonds through student interaction.

To the person who felt it was necessary to inform us on how many soldiers died last week in Iraq, I thought you'd like to know they died in honor. With their own will, they signed up ready to fight for this country and to help other countries in times of desperate need. Think about all the men who died years ago, and look at what you have! Lack of feedback a response in itself

RACHEL LANDEN STAFF WRITER

I have to admit it. I was feeling a little jealous about a week ago.

It all started after I read Peter Kalajian's opinion about the Confederate Flag. Since I read this particular piece on TEC's Web site, I couldn't help but notice the number of responses that had been posted in regards to Peter's opinion - at my last count, there were 117.

- there is just too much gray area that can't be ignored. Depending on your background, your station in life or any number of experiences you've had, your opinion will differ ever so slightly or significantly from mine. Recognizing this, I just don't want to rock the boat and tell you that you're wrong and I'm right. After all, that may not be true. However, because I'm not doing that in this particular column or any other I have written or probably will write, I don't expect that you'll respond to me on the newspaper's Web site. Still, I long for the day when I see a long list of messages in regards to something I have authored. Until then, I am reminded of another old familiar cliché that says something about the squeaky wheel getting the grease. It may not be fair and it certainly is frustrating but it's War. definitely applicable. Even so, I have a challenge for any of the five or ten people that read this. I'm not begging you to post any feedback - I'm just asking that in your own life, you make a concerted effort to affirm others at least as much as society seems to put them down. It may be harder to do and take some serious effort but I'm encouraging you to do something which I am working on myself. Besides, I think we're all up to the challenge.

Gun Control: Kerry strongly favors background checks on gun show purchases, while Bush is somewhat opposed to the issue.

Death Penalty: Both candidates strongly oppose abolishing the death penalty, with Kerry favoring a national review of death penalty fairness (Bush is strongly opposed to the issue).

Iraq: Kerry somewhat opposes the war in Iraq, with Bush strongly favoring the war. Both candidates strongly oppose the immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Iraq.

Information obtained from presidentmatch. com. Visit the Web site for a longer list of the candidate's stances on the issues.

I clicked on some of my past opinions and articles and counted only a handful of responses directed toward me. I savored the reading of each one - it felt like opening gifts on Christmas morning. I know that sounds cliché, but it's so exciting to get feedback from people who have read your thoughts and words. It is just that little reassurance that you aren't sending your journalistic endeavors out into a black hole. Someone is actually reading what you have written and they feel moved enough by it to let you know.

One of my roommates loyally tacks a clipping of my column to the refrigerator each week and my parents regularly send me accolades via e-mail. Sure, it's nice to have their encouragement, but she's my friend and they're my parents. Isn't supporting me part of the job description?

When I compared the number of responses I had received with those sent to Peter, Tony McKee or Eric Gilmore, I felt like I was losing a competition I had never intended to enter. It made me wonder if anyone, besides the five or so respondents and my close friends and family, is reading my words.

Of course I don't write these pieces for any potential fame or praise from others. I write them only because I want to write. It's what I like to do and I'm fortunate that someone has given me the opportunity to publish what I produce each week.

Yet I still hope when I see someone pick up a copy of TEC, they will turn to the opinion page, read my words and think about what I've said. Maybe it will mean something to them. I hope it will entertain them, cause them to reflect on an idea or simply allow them to take a break from their hectic life and spend a few minutes with something less stressful.

Even if they read it, it's doubtful they will post any online feedback just to say how they relate to my sentiments. When I don't write anything especially controversial I guess I can't expect to get a response.

It's true of editorial pieces and it's true of life. So often, people are quick to respond to the negative. Inflamma-

It may be young Asian Americans. Asian Americans between the ages of 18 and 24 have the lowest rate of voter registration among minority groups in the nation, according to Asian & Pacific Islander American Vote voter turnout than any other minority 2004. APIA Vote 2004 (www.apiavote. org) is a national coalition of nonpartisan, nonprofit groups that work to engage more in the Asian and Pacific Islander communities into the political process.

Moreover, only 34 percent of young Asian-American citizens voted in the 2000 presidential election, according to The Center for Information and Research on Civic Learning and Engagement. Do Asian Americans stereotypically only care about academics and the perfect job?

Not from my experience. Don't let such statistics fool you into thinking that young Asian Americans are politically apathetic. Most of my Asian-American friends plan to vote. And if the University of Washington campus is any microcosmic indicator of the state at large, then young Asian Americans care about the political process and the issues at #### stake.

They speak out in student senate meetings and hold elected positions. Outside of school, they're active in civil rights and cultural organizations.

Statistics don't tell whole story of voters

And once they do register to vote, many actually act to make change. Young Asian Americans had a higher group in the 2000 presidential election according to APIA Vote 2004.

Of course, like the general youth population, the attitude toward voting ranges among some young Asian Americans who I informally polled. Some have been thinking about their candidates of choice for months; some don't even know how to register; many don't care.

Young Asian Americans aren't a homogenous group of apathetic nonvoters.

So, how do you explain the statistics? Many factors need to be considered. First, many Asian Americans simply aren't eligible to vote. According to APIA Vote 2004, two-thirds of Asian Americans are foreign born. In Washington state, there are 453,000 Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders, but only one-third of them are eligible to vote.

Secondly, past family experiences may have led others to distrust the political system in general. According to some academics, many immigrants came to the United States to flee political persecution at home. Young people who grew up in such households might hold a more skeptical perspective on the political system.

And others might have grown up in households where politics never entered everyday conversation.

Of course, there's no excuse for a low percentage of registered voters among citizens. Especially not when, according to the 2000 Census, Asian Americans make up 5.5 percent of the state population. That's 2 percent more than the national average. And the numbers are rising.

Precious political influence is being wasted without voter registration and actual voting.

But these numbers shouldn't lead one to assume that all young Asian Americans are politically apathetic.

The sheer fact that some young Asian Americans are trying to change these numbers reveals their concern and investment in civic participation.

Yes, the numbers need to rise, but one shouldn't be too quick to assume that all young Asian Americans don't care.

To all of you who do not approve of my friends and I wearing our shirt collars up, I have something to say to you and that is: I will wear my Abercrombie and Fitch shirt collar in an upright position. My mommy even told me it looks good and I will continue to wear it like that along with putting an excess amount of hair gel in my hair. I will then waltz my way to class through the Wright plaza singing a song written by the Backstreet Boys and you all are going to have to live with it.

Horror movies arrive with Halloween

Films that provide extreme scares

KATHERINE DAY STAFF WRITER

Horror movies have the ability to frighten and terrify the bravest person. Able to suspend belief, people watch scary movies to evoke fear. From disturbing cult favorites to the latest teen slasher film, memories from our favorite (or scariest) movie flood our nightmares and are able to scare us just as strongly the tenth time as it did the first. It is natural to enjoy a good scare once in awhile, what horror movies encourage is the greatest fright. During Halloween, horror movies are particularly appealing for individuals seeking quick thrills. Within the genre, different types of films are made in order to appeal to the widest audience possible. Horror can have elements of suspense in them, such as Se7en, or science fiction, like Alien. Ranging from slasher themes to monster themes, scary movies reach a diverse range of tastes.

films such as Nosferatu and Bride of Frankenstein are considered classics and are watched and respected today.

Since the first horror film Le Manoir Du Diable was made in 1896, scary movies have remained a staple on cinema. It was during the 1960s that master storyteller and legendary film director Alfred Hitchcock offered a new type of film. Suspenseful and thrilling, Hitchcock's films were a precursor to the slasher films of the late 1970s. Psycho left a generation of women fearing the shower and is considered to be one of the greatest horror films.

Movies such as Psycho opened tions. It sparked a new interest in the paranormal influenced movies such as The Omen. These movies proved that horror isn't just limited to high death counts and killing people off in creative ways.

Unfortunately, many of these smart and original films are tarnished by the multitude of sequels looking to cash-out by using the name and success of the original. Great movies such as Halloween have spawned seven sequels. Friday the 13th used their killer Jason in 10 movies after the original came out in 1980. Perhaps this cheapening mass market effect can explain why the majority of critics abhor the

Josh Parker, a freshman political science major, finds horror movies to be rather fascinating.

"I enjoy movies such as Friday the 13th, that had realistic elements. It marked the re-birth of horror movies," said Parker.

Movies such as Friday the 13th came on the scene thanks to the popularity of the 1978 horror classic Halloween. The plot was simple: masked killer goes after promiscuous teens. The budget was small and the acting was mediocre, but audiences flocked to see this new film. Made on less than $325,000, Halloween went on to gross $47 million in the United States. With this new demand, studios began turning out horror movies in mass.

Not since the 1920s and 1930s have horror movies enjoyed such popularity. Even today, doors for movies that put less emphasis on blood and gore and relied on intelligent suspense to move the film. Thrillers such as Silence of the Lambs and Jaws have gone on to acquire critical acclaim and box office success. They offer an alternative for the squeamish, who may prefer suspenseful scares to gory B-movies.

"I prefer M. Night Shyamalan thrillers like Signs. They don't have a high body count, but still build up a lot of scares," said freshman musical theatre major Amina Edmonson.

The success of these films show a new demand for what horror audiences want. A wellthought script that still provides scares will leave a lasting impression on audiences and critics.

Contrasting to the earlier horror films, many movies now latest special effects.

"Movies like [John Carpenter's] The Thing have great special effects and a good story," Parker said.

Movies such as The Exorcist used great effects and an interesting screenplay to make one of the highest grossing movies of all time. Based on a true story, The Exorcist made $292.7 million and earned 10 Oscar nominahorror genre.

When A Nightmare on Elm Street came out, it was hailed as a creative and ingenious film. With the success of the first, came an additional six within the next 10 years. The franchise grossed $188,884,750 in the United States alone.

While it can be said that many of these films are poorly put together, you can't deny the success. So popular are horror movies, that they proved to be inspiration for spoof blockbusters such as Scary Movie.

"Most people are familiar with the formula horror movies provide, even if they don't watch them, that they can understand many of the jokes Scary Movie has," says senior geography major Chad Joyner.

With Halloween approaching have large budgets and use the fast, people will be looking to horror movies to make the most of this frightening time of year. Whether you choose to rent your favorite zombie movie or go to the theater to experience what horror has to offer, the heightened atmosphere of Halloween is sure to make for a frightening experience.

Independent horror film makes a debut in Greenville

'Malevolence' movie coming to Greenville

Horror movie will make audiences scream

AMANDA WINAR STAFF WRITER

With Halloween just days away, television stations start flooding the channels with the typical "scary Freddy" reruns to put you in the ghoulish spirit.

Many of you will also get in your cars late at night to drive past the abandoned houses, search through a haunted house or even take your chances in a cemetery. If you are still looking for something to "really scare you" though, you should head over to the Carmike 12 off of Fire Tower Road to see the independent film titled Malevolence. Only playing in select cities, Malevolence is a film that brings back the "classic horror" found in your other loved horror films. Malevolence was written, directed, produced and budgeted by Stevan Mena and was shot in Pennsylvania woods in 2002. Staring Brandon Johnson and Samantha Dark, Malevolence won Best Feature at NYC Horror Film Festival and Best 35mm Feature at the Long Island Film Festival. Malevolence is a story about a group of bank robbers who are hiding from the law in an abandoned house, unaware that there is a family of serial killers in the next house. They find out quickly however, when one of the bank robbers runs into the wrong house by accident.

some twists and plenty of scares. Malevolence will not leave your nerves disappointed.

Critics claim Malevolence will have you squirming, jolting and jumping out of your chairs, grabbing on to your neighbor for support and shutting your eyes with fright. And this isn't for the "horror flick rookies." Even the toughest horror critics from top film review sites like Entertainment Insiders, GoreGalore.com and Horror-Report.com have said this film will even shock and scare the most weathered horror fanatics out there. Critics from Film Threat hail that Malevolence "is relentless in its pursuit to frighten the heck* out of you, and it succeeds. By creating a killer that is so demented, yet human, Mena has also refined the modern horror tale by ridding it of all the superfluous teenaged sex romps and alcohol induced dream sequences. This film is pure terror, pure unadulterated fear." The low-budget did not stop Mena from producing a quality film that spends much of its time referring to other horror classics to get you in the Halloween spirit. So if you've got some free time and a few companions willing to be scared, it will be worth your while to go see Malevolence. Just make sure to go to the bathroom before the show, and don't be afraid to scream. It's inevitable. For more information or to see a trailer on the film visit malevolencemovie.com.

THE EAST CAROLINIAN • ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Chilling, thrilling novel perfect for spooky night

JOANNA WALDHOUR STAFF WRITER

As one reviewer states, "It is a spine-tingling thriller you'll never put down."

This fictitious novel opens with a well-known and best selling author, Paul Sheldon, getting into a horrific car accident during a harsh blizzard. Annie Wilkes comes along, recognizes him as Paul and rescues him. She takes him to her home nearby in the wilderness. Paul wakes up days later in an unfamiliar house. He discovers his legs have been shattered from the accident. Annie Wilkes introduces herself as Paul's number one fan, and also states that she is a nurse who is taking care of him. At first, Paul is very grateful to her for saving his life and for her help.

he is going to kill off her favorite character, Misery from his books, Annie forcefully demands that Paul rewrite his manuscripts in order to have Misery live. Annie turns into a manipulative, psychotic lunatic. She keeps Paul imprisoned in her house by keeping him restrained and by use of torture.

This novel is slow and may be psychologically draining, but it hits readers with the vivid descriptions of the violence, the writing style and the several large themes that are implied in the story. The novel gives the sense of isolation and desperation because it only has two characters placed in a house in the middle of a harsh winter wilderness. Readers can feel the sheer terror from Paul because they are taken into the very thoughts and dreams of his mind. It has a very chilling effect. Not for the light- hearted. Great for Halloween and has a happy reading.

With Halloween around the corner, a good suspense/horror film is a must. Last year, The Ring, Texas Chainsaw Massacre, and zombie films, such as 28 Days Later, kept us on the edge of our seats. The Grudge looks like it will fill the shoes of last year's scary movie bunch.

The Grudge, which opened Friday, Oct. 22, was directed by a Japanese director named Takashi Shimizu. Shimizu was also the director of the original Japanese version, JU-ON: the Grudge, and decided to make an English language version. It was written by Stephen Susco and Sam Raimi.

Foster done for season

The Carolina Panthers lost any hope of DeShaun Foster playing again this season when it was determined Monday the running back needs surgery on his broken collarbone. Foster, who missed his entire rookie season with a knee injury before becoming an outstanding backup to Stephen Davis last year, was placed on injured reserve. The Panthers are critically short at running back. Davis missed his fourth game of the season Sunday with a knee injury and No. 3 back Rod Smart is also out with a knee problem. Fullback Brad Hoover started Sunday against San Diego, running for 99 yards on a careertying 24 carries. Fox said the Panthers expected to fill Foster's spot on the roster with another running back. The team has worked out several veteran backs, including Skip Hicks and Stacey Mack. Carolina (1-5) has been decimated by injuries this season. Aside from the running backs, wide receiver Steve Smith is out with a broken leg, All-Pro defensive tackle Kris Jenkins is out with a shoulder injury and linebacker Mark Fields missed two games with back spasms.

The Chicago Bears will not sign Tim Couch, instead deciding to stick with the three quarterbacks on their roster. Couch, the top overall pick in the 1999 draft, had a tryout on Friday and Saturday with the Bears, who are 1-5 and have lost starting quarterback Rex Grossman for the season. He was cut this year by both Cleveland, for whom he played for five seasons, and by Green Bay. He had been bothered by a sore arm. Jonathan Quinn and rookie Craig Krenzel played a

In the first match of the tournament, the young ECU squad faced the Duke Blue Devils. After falling behind 7-0, the team pulled it together at halftime. Within the first five minutes of the second half, the Pirates played as one unit, moving the ball very effectively. The turning point of the game came when veteran winger Dave Zeckman, kicked the ball over the line of defense, ran onto the ball and touched it down in the try-zone. This magnificent play crushed Duke's spirits and ECU continued on to win the match by a score of 19-7.

The Pirates' momentum from their first win continued to work in their favor during the second match of the tournament. This time, the Pirates faced UNC-Chapel Hill, who was nationally ranked in the preseason and the favored team in this year tournament. The first ten minutes of the game was a stalemate as no team had an advantage over the other. However, with hard hitting and great team work as the game progressed, ECU was able to create scoring opportunities and took advantage of all of them.

The onslaught of opportunistic scoring began when UNC kicked the ball off to ECU. Landing in Pat Canham's hands, he broke through a few tackles, and of support. Eventually reaching speedster Jerome Leech, the ball was touched down in the try-zone. Once a lead had been built, the Pirates did not look back and were triumphant in a 30-12 win.

Having won both their previous games, ECU was set to play in the championship game against a veteran NC State squad. It represented everything one should expect out of the championship game; fierce hitting, long offensive drives, magnificent goal line stands and even sudden-death overtime.

After two halves of a hard fought battle, the score was knotted up, 13-13. As a result, there would be two ten minute halves of sudden death overtime, the Tournament. As expected, both teams came out firing on all cylinders. Once again though, through great teamwork, ECU was able to move the ball down the field and scored on the first chance they had. The game-winning play came when senior Mark Borcherding kicked the ball forward to a host of Pirate attackers. Ryan Ford recovered the kick and got tackled inches from the try-zone, when Borcherding recovered the ball and passed it to John Metcalf he dove in to the try-zone scoring the final points. thrilled with his team's victory after the game.

"Winning this tournament is amazing," said Hileman.

"It was some of our veterans' last chance to play in it. To go to the state tournament with such a young team and win it the way we did is incredible."

The win gives the men's club a huge boost in confidence and in recognition. With 26 players returning next year, Canham, a senior this year, knows the team will be well off in the following years when he is done playing at ECU.

"The outcome of this weekend's tournament was huge for our team," said Canham.

"Coming into the tournament, we knew we had an enormous amount of talent and this was going to be the big test. ECU Men's Rugby was considered the underdog in the eyes of our opponents but we have proven ourselves as a force in North Carolina and I believe we can compete with top competitors. We hope the whole ECU community will provide the necessary support that our team needs to accomplish our future goals."

The Pirates will take to action again on Nov. 6 and Nov. 13 against Dan River and UNC-Wilmington. Both games will be in Greenville at Blount Fields and will begin at 1 p.m.

he has never lived up to the hype he received out of high school. His role was limited last year and he didn't see much playing time. The first and most important thing he must do is rebound. I saw bits and pieces of that last season in exhibitions and non-conference games. Of course, this was against teams with players having the basketball ability of a senior citizen. Eroyl Bing did all the dirty work on the glass last year, and Rouse must step into that role. Secondly, Rouse must score. If he can put up 10 to 15 points a game I would be ecstatic, but he's going to have to do down low. Rouse air balled around five free throws last season, and unless he got his touch down from the line, he better earn those points from about four feet away. Thirdly, he has got to stay out of foul trouble. A team with six new faces isn't exactly what I would call deep. Any time he has to sit due to foul trouble, we have to bring in a new guy. No matter how good a freshman is, I would rather have Rouse out there simply because he has experience in Conference USA play. Japhet McNeil is another guy who has to step up. I really think this team isn't dangerous unless Rouse and McNeil are playing their best. McNeil showed the potential to be awesome last season, but more often than not was, at best, inconsistent on the hardwood. At first, I felt he was going to be a great player. He was dishing out assists as if he got paid to do it, but then conference play rolled around and Mike Cook stepped up, forcing McNeil out of the picture. With the transfer of Rivers and Robinson, we lost both our starting and back-up shooting guard. I believe Cook will move over the shooting guard position and McNeil will start at the point.

ECU hopes for more support than the NHL has right now.

Former teammates bring idea to fruition

ERIC GILMORE STAFF WRITER

Happy Gilmore always wanted to be a hockey player. In the 1996 classic movie, Adam Sandler's character tried out every year to make the local hockey team. He never quite made it. Maybe Gilmore should have talked to Brent Falcon and started a club ice hockey team.

The newest student organization is in the preliminary stages of forming a cohesive and competitive team who will compete against teams across the nation. Forty-five people have already shown interest, a staggering number for a club team. The club ice hockey team is the product of ex-teammates in Falcon, Jordan Meyers and Corey Fleitz. The three played together for four years as part of the East Coast Eagles, a traveling ice hockey team from Raleigh. "After I stopped playing with the Eagles, I had very few options if I still wanted to play," said President Brent Falcon. "You miss playing at a real competitive level with people your age. That's a main reason that we are doing this."

team had to be endorsed by the department of recreation services and also registered with Student Leadership Office.

"They have been endorsed by this department," said Gray Hodges, director of club sports.

"We support anything that is recreational, competitive or instructional that has interest. It falls under our umbrella."

The team wants to call home to a new facility currently under construction on Red Banks Road across from Overtons. The new ice rink in Greenville is called Blades on Ice and will debut after the semester ends.

Before the new rink opens, the team has scheduled two open practice sessions in Cary. Unfortunately for the team, they will have to commute in order to find a place to skate. Even then, the price of skating is no easy bill. Ice time is steep at $200 per hour, a number the newly formed team will have to pay out of pocket. In fact, fundraising isn't going to be easy for a team who will have to garner their own skates, uniforms, pads and helmets. The team will also have a limited budget because of the extensive travel and other dues involved. "It's not going to be easy," Falcon said. "Everyone I've talked to is 100 percent behind this and is willing to do a lot of work to get it going. We're not going to quit after our first setback." The teams have plans to raise money through selling t-shirts and working at Kings Dominion, but are currently open to any new ideas. The team is also looking for possible local sponsors that After last year, we have lost five players due to graduation (Derek Wiley, Eroyl Bing, Gabe Mikulas, Luke McKay and Garth Grindley) and two others transferred (Belton Rivers and Frank Robinson). The players remaining can't even play five on five without a new teammate coming onto the court and becoming the fifth. So with that in mind, I will only guarantee one thing for this season. Every game, someone who didn't attend ECU last year will start this year.

The key to this season will be the play of the new guys, but the four returnees have to step up. This includes everything from helping coach Herrion teach the new players Herrion's way of playing to asking for the ball when they're on the court. In my opinion, and I said this a lot last year, no one has to step up more than Corey Rouse.

Rouse is entering his junior season. A recruit from Kinston, and the pace of the game from that number one spot. I think many other fans were nervous when he came in and brought the ball up court last year.

Teams like Louisville are going to press the absolute hell out of him so he must remain calm. Japhet also has to play great defense that was the strongest part of his game last season. Of course, he was in a back-up role where he was only playing 10-20 minutes a game whereas this year he will be playing around 25-35 minutes, something he hasn't done since high school.

Out of the 11 guys on the team, the only two I have few worries about are Mike Cook and Moussa Badiane. These two have proved themselves against every team in C-USA.

Simply put, Cook is the man. The reason I like Cook is because the guy can just flat out ball. He's savvy, he's smart, he has great court vision, can shoot the rock from almost anywhere and he can shoot free throws. Anytime game and needs be a guy like a Ben Gordon who has the ability to spontaneously pop off 20-30 points when we need it the most.

Moussa, on the other hand, is going to block shots. He's going to get rebounds. The only question will be his scoring. We all know he can dunk. He dunked all over teams the entire season last year. But you can't always dunk. I have always felt the dunk is the most overrated play in sports. A 12-foot baseline jumper counts just as much as a dunk. Moussa needs that 12 footer in his game, along with some sort of hook shot. If Moussa can just score 10-15 points a game, I will be happy. He has the potential to score 20-30 points a night, but I don't expect it.

All in all, I really don't know what to expect this season out of this team. A part of me says all these things I have talked about will happen and we will

ECU places fourth in state tournament

The ECU Women's Rugby team traveled to Danville, Va. this past weekend to compete in the 2004 NC State Tournament. Teams from all across North Carolina came to participate in this tournament including NC State, UNC Chapel Hill, Appalachian, Elon, UNC-Greensboro and others. After having a fairly successful season, ECU was ready to play strong rugby against some in the first half as Captain Ryan Whited grabbed the ball out of the scrum and with some tricky maneuvering, scored the first try (5 points) of the game. Whited played skillfully and consistent throughout the entire game, scoring two more tries and a conversion kick (2 points) before it ended. Captain Amanda Winar also scored one try in the first half and another in the second half after a bril-

to the pitch with only 13 girls. A standard rugby game is played with 15 players per side. The ladies didn't have long to worry because UNC Chapel Hill and Blackwater Virginia were gracious enough to let ECU borrow a couple of players for the game. Lauren Schaffer rucked consistently against ASU and many of the rookies tried to compensate for the lack of familiar players. ASU ended up winning the game, but the ECU ladies were quite happy with their fourth place in the NC State Tournament. ECU's next home game is Nov. 6 at 3 p.m. at the Blount Intramural Fields. The Men's Rugby team plays at 1 p.m. on the same day as well.

we have a close game and need someone who can make those two free throws, Cook has to have the ball in his hands.

Also, while I feel he will be at the two-guard, no rule says he can't bring the ball up the court. He has great hands and is incredibly emotional.

I don't like players like Allen lverson, the type that just shoots like crazy and will score 20 or 30 a night just because they shoot 40 times. Well, I'm giving my permission to Mike Cook to do this. Anytime he shoots, it's a good shot. Anytime he drives to the hole, it's a good decision. He has got to put up double digits every make a run at the NIT. A part of me feels this is classic example of a transition year and it's hard to expect much out of the team.

I won't make my official season prediction until next week. I have not seen any of the freshmen play and will see them for the first time this Saturday at 12:30 p.m. at Minges for the Purple Gold game.

After their opening win however, ECU lost their second game to UNC-Chapel Hill. Chapel Hill, which is in a division above ECU hadn't played a game yet in the tournament.

However, UNC finally broke through the Lady Pirates defense 15 minutes into the game and scored their first try. The game progressed slowly from there and in the end ECU got a taste of their own medicine as they were blanked by the Heels, 34-0.

ECU returned on Sunday to play Appalachian State University for third and fourth place out of the eight teams entered in the tournament. Unfortunately the ladies have been lacking player commitment and substantial numbers recently, so they came

The next phase of the ice hockey blueprint is to be adopted as part of the ACCHL, or Atlantic Coast Conference Hockey League. Already participating in the league is the University of Virginia, Georgetown, George Mason, UNC-Chapel Hill, Duke and Virginia Tech. Winners of the final tournament will advance to the Division II club nationals. The team would begin competition next year during the fall semester when the season starts and lasts through February.

The league requires a maximum of 21 players be dressed. With 45 interested, the players will have to rotate tournaments. However, the team is still looking for students or faculty that "Hockey players are of a different breed. Hockey players know what I mean by that, but not many other people do."

Falcon is ready to see his hard work pay off when the team laces up the pads for the first time and gets on the ice. It will bring back memories of the Eagles.

"I definitely miss the kids from hockey and this will allow me to be around those people," Falcon said.

Make more than a living.

Make a difference.

It's never easy getting through to a kid who's troubled, hurt and angry. But you'll find it's always worth it — because there's no greater reward than giving a child the chance for a better future. And it's just one of the many benefits you'll enjoy as a youth counselor at Eckerd Youth Alternatives.

You'll teach and work outside. You'll go beyond the limitations of textbooks and lesson plans. You'll form friendships that'll last a lifetime. And you'll find the toughest job you ever took on, is also the most rewarding.

t doesn't matter who you are or what kind of life you've built. ANTERICAS WILDERNESS is built for all of us.-

From skyscraping mountains towering from above, to prehistoric land bridges stretching far and wide-no human structure can ever match the natural magnificence of America's wilderness. That's why it's so vitally important we protect it. Join us in honoring America's commitment to protecting our country's special wild places by helping us celebrate the 40th Anniversary of the Wilderness Act. Together we are preserving the legacy of the wild for generations to come.---Maya Lin, Artist
