

KENZIE HOOVER

I celebrate being Ace by sharing it. I find that if I tell friends about my experiences as an individual it can make them feel more positive about their own identity. I also love to learn about the diversity of others; it helps me appreciate the many differences we all have. This can lead to stronger understanding and the fellowship of like-minded people. I am also an advocate of visibility for the various degrees of my identity. I believe that for others to understand my orientation that I should start a conversation about who I am and what that means for me.

Kenzie is a junior majoring in Anthropology with a minor in Biology.
