

EVANDER JENNINGS

I am a transgender individual in a time where there are drastic changes taking place. I live in a state where I am not safe using the correct bathroom for fear of being arrested or worse. Yet I would not change it. The world of today is becoming more globalized, more accepting, and more people are embracing diversity and making the effort to better themselves. I celebrate diversity the way I know how, by loving, and showing compassion to those different than myself and I hope to inspire that in others as well.

Evander is a sophomore majoring in International Studies.
