Latest SGA election results announced Wednesday

Specific duties assigned to each class officer

> KIMBERLY BELLAMY NEWS EDITOR

The results for the SGA class officer election was announced on September 5, after two days of voting in Wright Place and on Onestop.

The winners of the election were Patrick Sebastian for s sophomore class, Misty Lee for junior class, Armand Vonsiatsky of for senior class, and April Paul Baer for graduate class.

Two candidates for congress & members-at-large were also voted on during this time period.

Mathew Burke and Michael Kindle were elected as representatives for congress.

Steven Grzan was voted as freshman class advocate by members of the Shipmates program.

The constitution states that they are called freshman advocates but their position is the same as class officers, according to Keri Brockett, SGA president.

Each class officer has overall duties, specific duties and project ideas that they must fulfill while holding their positions.

A theme has also been established to represent the overall goal for each class.

The sophomore class theme is campus connections and community. The junior class theme is career exploration and post-collegiate lifestyle. The senior class theme is stu-alma mater appreciation.

The freshman class theme is leadership and networking. A theme has not been chosen for the graduate class.

Some members of SGA feel that it is important for the officers to have outlined responsibilities.

"Instead of it just being an position that you can say, 'I'm sophomore class president,' this actually has a specific role," said Andrew Griffin, interim vice president.

Candidates that ran for the position as sophomore class officer was Chase Tobin with 330 votes and Preston Stanford with 311 votes. Sebastian received 608 votes.

The candidate that ran against Lee was Jessica Allen. who received 463 votes. Lee received 779 votes.

There was a close margin between the number of votes received by the senior class candidates.

Vonsiatsky received 374 votes. Michaelina Antahades trialed closely behind Vonsiatsky with 357 votes. Christie Hogan received 332 votes and Ernest Wayne Sampson received 179 votes.

The election to fill the positions of vice president and secretary will be at the first congress meeting on Monday, September 10.

New security system wants more student users

WILLIAM HALL STAFF WRITER

A new text message alert system resulted from ECU reevaluating its security system after the Virginia Tech shooting. Beginning this semester, the system will send messages to students, faculty and families in the community about campus shutdowns, evacuations, weather threats or any other states of emergency via their cell phones

However, out of the nearly 26,000 students who have enrolled in classes, only 610

Text alert service off to a slow start have registered for the service as of Aug. 17. 'Students may not fully appreciate the values of emergency text messaging," said Major Frank Knight of the ECU Police Department. "They may also be concerned with its cost."

Registration is free, according to Erica Plousse Lazure, public affairs writer for the ECU News Bureau who also worked on the text alert project.

The cost for receiving the messages will depend on the user's service provider.

During freshman orientation, a signup sheet for the text message service was made available, but very few students took advantage of it.

More non-students have taken advantage of the text alert system. Approximately 1,245 community members have access to the service, based on Lazure's data.

Lazure also stresses that the system will greatly benefit commuter students.

"It's valuable when you've just left your driveway and you get a text message saying that school is cancelled," Lazure said.

Knight is aware that the new security system is only as good as its users. "Students must take the effort to enroll,"

Knight said. This writer may be contacted at

Financial aid office runs into road blocks with issuing disbursements

Students wait long lines in Financial Aid Office for assistance during the first week.

Drop/Add deadline extended

> DAVID WILDER STAFF WRITER

ECU's new software package, Banner, delayed refunds from the Financial Aid Office and forced students to wait in unusually long lines during the first full week of school.

Banner caused problems for the Financial Aid Office because this is the first semester it has been used to process financial aid.

"I think we're close to being done with everybody," said John Durham, chief public

"The biggest problem was our inability to seamlessly merge the old system with Banner, Durnam said.

In the future, Banner will handle everything students and staff do electronically, Durham added.

'We're confident that the spring semester will run smoother," Durham said.

Although the line at the Financial Aid Office was consistently long last week, this semester was still better than previous years because "students don't have to stand in line to get their checks," Durham said.

As a result of busy phone 'lines, call centers were set up in various buildings around campus to help answer phones and allow staff in the Financial Aid Office to assist students.

Students who had pending financial aid, which means the aid was processed but not disbursed, were allowed to pay for tuition as late as Aug. 31

The add-only deadline is today at 5 p.m.

The deadlines for adding and dropping classes was extended due to the difficulties the financial aid staff faced with the new software, Durham said.

Last year 14,676 students received a total of about $148 million from ECU's Financial Aid Office. That total includes loans, grants and scholarships.

About 21,000 students received financial aid this year, Durham said.

Some students would have rather continued to use the former OneStop system.

"The difficulties faced by the ECU students could've been easily avoided by staying with the previous system," said Ian Wolf, senior English education major.

Some students aren't concerned with what system is used but just want a simple solution.

'I want my money. Usually it has been dispersed on time," said Jason Morton, junior music major.

The students in the class are required to engage in the film series by helping publicize and plan for each movie.

"Each student is responsible for film questions, filmographies and preparing questions for the public," Timberg said.

Admission standards are the same but class size increases

Freshmen enrollment increases from past years

> ALYCIA WENDT STAFF WRITER

One of the largest freshman classes was welcomed into ECU this year

An estimate of at least 4,000 freshmen from orientation are enrolled, though a definite count will not be calculated until after the drop/add deadline.

The freshman enrollment rate has risen from pervious years but the standards for students to be accepted have remained the same.

Students are reviewed on their unweighted high school grade point average, weighted class rank and SAT or ACT score.

"We continue to evaluate the 'whole student' as part of the admissions review process," said Rob Lange, associate director of the Office of Admissions.

The university is building new facilities and hiring additional faculty to meet the demands of the growing freshman population, according to senior associate director of admissions Anthony Britt.

"Several faculty members have made encouraging observations to me about the enhanced diversity of the freshman class and everyone's improved academic preparation, Britt said. "I think we have one of the best freshman classes in the history of the university."

The amount of freshmen is causing a problem with students being able to find a place to park.

There is a list of over 200 students waiting to park in the D lot.

'Fortunately, we were ready with 'Plan B.' We have given freshman temporary parking permits for the C-zone that are good through the end of September, so their parking needs have been met," said Bill Koch of Environmental Safety and Campus Parking and Transportation.

Anyone with less than 25 credit hours is generally only allowed to park in the D lot.

However, the Campus Parking and Transportation has decided to lower the credit hour requirement for students to be able to park in available spaces in the A2-zone on College Hill and the B2-zone in the Reade Street lots.

"We are working with the Registrar's office to identify the D-permit holders and the freshmen on the waiting list that meet the new credit hour requirement," Koch said.

"As we identify these individuals, we are contacting them and offering them the chance to upgrade to the B2 or A2 lot based on their dorm location."

The Campus Parking and Transportation office expects this process to be completed by the end of the week and all freshmen to be accommodated in the A2, B2 or D lot. according to Koch.

There were also problems with having dorm rooms available for freshmen.

There is no definite number of how many students are in the dorms this year, but it is higher than in past years.

There are no male spaces left in the dorms and they are not taking new male contracts at this time, according to Aaron Lucier, director of operations/associate director of

There are also some firstyear students living in upperdivision housing spaces, normally reserved for returning students, who will be offered spaces in the dorms as they become available.

This year, Belk Hall has no air conditioning and only offers single dorm rooms.

Next year, there will be air conditioning and the dorm will offer double occupancy for more available space.

While we may grow, ECU will always be committed to making certain that all of its students receive a firstclass university education," Britt said.

"I guess you could say we have some 'growing pains,' but East Carolina is a university on the move and it's exhilarating to be a part of that growth."

Vick's legal woes

Is he just a victim of racial profiling?

> JASON PATTY OPINION WRITER

Michael Vick has pled guilty to a federal dog fighting conspiracy charge. He has issued a halfhearted apology because what he did was "very immature." He has also found Jesus in record time. Mr. Vick, what you did was well beyond "very immature."

I am certainly no supporter of PETA, but they have hit the nail on the head this time. I had to turn the videos that they collected off when they aired on TV because I was sick to my stomach. The things that Vick funded, allowed to happen at his house, and worst of all, participated in, are downright stomach-turning.

However, what is most frustrating and infuriating is the NAACP's support of Vick and their claim that his treatment by the media is because he is black. Are they kidding? One of the most high-profile figures in the NFL is constantly in trouble with the law, is caught with an extensive dog fighting operation on his property (including devices for electrocution and rape so that he could breed dogs that would kill the NAACP has the gall to announce that he is being treated unfairly because he is black.

Michael Vick is not being mistreated because of his race, he is being attacked by the media and most of the general public because of his direct role in a disgusting activity that conflicts with any decent person's basic humanity. If Tom Brady or Matt Leinart had been involved in the same sort of horrible activities, they would be equally vilified for it.

R.L. White, the president of the Atlanta chapter of the NAACP, said that "...in terms of people's judgment of his guilt, that's essentially racial profiling. He's been completely vilified." Mr. White, you are correct that Michael Vick has been vilified by the media, but it isn't because of the color of his skin, it is because of his absolute lack of basic humanity.

Back to school...again

Or take it from the old guy

J.D. LEWIS OPINION WRITER

You know how nearly every class has that one creepy old guy that all the girls are scared of and all the guys just wonder why he's there in the first place? Hi, kids!

This semester marks my triumphant return to ECU. I last walked the hallowed halls of Brewster nine years ago in pursuit of a history degree. However, a series of poor choices, bad decisions and outright laziness allowed it to slip through my fingers.

I'm very fortunate that I have been able to come back and become that old guy I made fun of so long ago .... and that you all make fun of now. Don't worry, ladies, I'm really harmless; just a sad teddy bear (i.e., afraid of my wife).

A few things have changed since my first tour of duty at ECU. I still have to park 40 miles away at the football stadium, but, if memory serves, those hunting licenses we have to purchase in order to be able to park at the stadium are about $20 cheaper now.

I never had a professor nine years ago who didn't My last day at the university is think their class was the only one a student had, so they felt free to require 10 or 12 different books, expecting us to read them all, but knowing we wouldn't. Those overpriced books I'll never use again are even more overpriced now, but somewhere along the way our professors opened their eyes and took pity, and now I only have one class with more than three books.

A word about those books, ladies and gentlemen: no one's going to hold a gun to your head and make you go broke at the bookstore. There's this nifty invention called Amazon.com, and there are kind professors out there who will provide you with a list of texts if you just ask nicely. I didn't purchase a single book at the Student Stores, and I saved $85. That may not sound like much in the grand scheme of things, but it's two tanks of gas I don't have to worry about, or dinner at Outback with the wife and a lot of Jack and Cokes.

Speaking of the Student Stores, something I've noticed now that I've grown older and fatter is that the distance between there and Brewster has grown by about a half a mile. I guess I'll be buying blue books in bulk.

The bus ride from the stadium to Brewster hasn't changed much, although I seem to recall the air conditioners on the buses actually working nine years ago before the onset of global warming. I was not surprised in the least however, when, on my first day back on the bus, a kid with what Jerry Seinfeld referred to as B.B.O. sat down next to me despite numerous empty seats all around us. 105-degree weather, no A/C and funky armpits a pleasant bus ride do not make.

One thing that has changed is me. When I was at ECU the first time around, a lot of my current classmates were only eight years old. I had my chance and I blew it. I gave up on my dream of ever becoming a history professor who only assigns two books and for nine years I worked a dead-end job I hated with no future in sight.

Now I've gotten a second chance, but at what cost? Nine years of my life and thousands of dollars I can't afford (and without the benefit of financial aid).

Young people, make fun of the old guy all you want to, but pay attention to your professors too. Ask questions. Read every word of those overpriced books. Don't start writing your papers at 4:00 in the morning on the day it's due at 8:00 (been there, done that). Don't screw up like I did. I'm lucky. Not everyone may be fortunate triangle between a blonde girl, her boyfriend, and enough to get the second chance I did.

Stick with it. Do your best. If you ever ride the bus with me, have the decency to put on some deodorant.

Time to leave the 'blues' at home

Seeing red on campus

JOHN CARRERE CONTRIBUTING WRITER

With a brand new semester ahead of us and a new season for Pirate athletics on the horizon, it is necessary to address a growing problem on our campus. It is a problem that has been discussed and debated fiercely at our school, and it is time for us as students of this university to take a stand. As a student body, it is time to start leaving the t-shirts and hats of all other universities off our campus and outside of our classrooms. It may be silly for you to think that wearing a certain shade of blue or red promoting another school would be harmful, but you're making a statement of irresponsibility.

In the past 100 years, ECU has fought to make its mark in this state. Believe it or not, when you wear that "favorite" piece of clothing, you're supporting schools that never wanted ECU to exist in the first place. Let us not forget those individuals who spearheaded the assembly that wanted to refuse East Carolina College university status or fought against us having a dental school.

Our founders didn't fight diligently to gain our university status just to have its student body wear apparel promoting other schools. Yes, your great-great grandparent may have given an endowment to UNC or your father may have laid the bricks at State, but you are a student standing in'Pirate Country. It is time to start acting like it. When you wear those schools on campus, you're saying it is alright for them to look down on us and see that we're too scared to get behind our own school. Do you think their students wear purple and gold pirates on their campuses?

The next time you think of spending $20 on a shirt or hat representing another school, just remind yourself that you may be helping them buy one more basketball for practice, one more computer for learning or one more brick for building. If we are to be taken seriously by our neighbors to the west, it is time for us to start wearing our colors a little more proudly.

Our traditions here at ECU are proud and numerous and should be respected and honored. To believe otherwise is a contradiction and a slap in the face of those who have worked so hard to build this university into what it is today

It's easy to be a fair-weather Pirate when the sailing is easy and the treasure is close, but a ship divided cannot float. It is important now more than ever, as a student body, to help direct this university into the next 100 years, both academically and athletically.

As the greatest band of pirates in history, it is up to us to decide how history remembers us. As students of the Centennial class of East Carolina, do we want to be remembered for flying the banners of other schools in the heart of Pirate Nation? On the other hand, do we want to be remembered as Pirates who bore the traditional royal purple and old gold with pride and honor?

From now on, when you pull that East Carolina shirt over your head, remember that you're wearing the name of an idea and a vision that started over 100 years ago. When you put on your hat, know that there are those who have fought for you to wear those colors.

When you set foot on our beautiful campus, remember that you are the embodiment of a plan and a dream set in motion by a group of noble educators long ago. If you have yet to be properly welcomed, it would be my proud pleasure. Welcome to ECU, home of the Pirates.

Reality is scripted

Real reality is just too boring

JESSICA DUNLOW OPINION WRITER

Reality is not reality anymore. The Real World, Newport Harbor, the late Laguna Beach... it is all crap. There is no substance to it other than just watching the participating "characters" do un-realistic things.

The kids never seem to go to school or work (save Stephen from the original Laguna Beach); they live in impossibly posh pads, and have no responsibilities except to party as often and as fashionably as possible. If everyone's "reality" were like this, the world would certainly be more fun, but would be entirely slack and full of chaos.

Every show seems to have the same character make-up. Especially the always-present love the secretly seductive brown-haired boy and they "hook-up" behind the boyfriend's back and so on and there is a lot of whining.

I guess it is impossible to portray REAL reality because frankly, it is boring. I am not going to lie; I have thought (just like everyone else who has possibly watched these television shows) that if a camera followed me around it would be completely interesting and everyone in the world would what to know what was going on with my friends and me. NOT TRUE.

No one wants to watch us go and sit in class, take notes, walk or ride to our respective residences and do homework and write papers (or articles, for that matter). The kids from Laguna eventually admitted that the producers led the storylines by feeding lines and ideas to the cast members. Which is weird: why bother calling it reality in the first place? If these kids were that boring to have to make up problems and lines, why were they signed in the first place? Bring reality television to ECU and I am sure we would attract at least do it well and give them superpowers or something (Heroes), or, you know, let them break out into song and dance randomly (High School Musical). Then it would be interesting.

Tri-State Sculpture Exhibition comes to ECU

Students will be able to check out exhibits free of charge

VIRGINIA SMITH STAFF WRITER

This year ECU will be hosting the 29th annual tristate sculpture exhibition, beginning on Sept. 5 and running through Sept. 28. Sculptors from South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia will be coming into the area to display works and raise awareness about the sculpting community.

Sculptures will be displayed in the Gray Gallery during the exhibition.

According to the conference website (trisculptors. org), "the aim of the conference is to provide. . . anyone with an interest in art, but especially sculptors to par-

Sexually transmitted infections and diseases

What you need to know

CAT POTTER STAFF WRITER

If you have ever been enrolled in a health course, odds are you know what the acronyms STD, STI and HIV stand for.

Being in or having been in a health course, however, does not ensure that you know all there is to know about sexuallytransmitted diseases or infections.

Many students enter college unaware of the dangers of many STDs and lack important information about tests and treatment options available at their school's health care facility.

ECU's Health Educator Shawnte' McMillan wants to make sure students are informed about these health concerns so they can take an active approach in preventing the contraction of a sexually transmitted infection or disease.

What are the statistics for sexually transmitted diseases at ECU? Rumor has it that 1 in 3 students has an STD? Is this true? Are there more or less reported STDs now than in years past? How do we compare with other schools in the UNC system? The nation?

To answer the first couple of questions, Student Health Service does not reveal the statistics for Sexually Transmitted Infections (STIs) or Sexually Transmitted Diseases (STDs) on the ECU campus. All positive results are forwarded to the Pitt County database through the Health Department for recording purposes. Most college campuses don't reveal the number of STIs prevalent on their campus. Some researchers have estimated that, among sexually active college students, about one in three will contract an STD by the time they graduate. National statistics state that rates within this age group are rising.

What are the most common STDs?

Although there may be differences from campus to campus, Chlamydia, HPV (Human Papilloma Virus) or genital warts and genital herpes appear to be the most common STIs among college students, in general.

Are all STDs treatable?

If you are using treatable in the same context as curable, no. All STIs are not curable but there are treatments available for the STIs that have no cure. These treatments help to suppress the symptoms associated with the STI.

What exactly is the HIV virus?

HIV (Human Immunodeficiency Virus) is the virus that causes AIDS. This virus may be passed from one person to another when infected blood, semen, or vaginal secretions come in contact with an uninfected person's broken skin or mucous membranes. In addition, infected pregnant women can pass HIV to their baby during pregnancy or delivery, as well as through breast-feeding. People with HIV have what is called HIV infection. Some of these people will develop AIDS as a result of their

While many viruses can be controlled by the immune system, HIV targets and infects the same immune system cells that are supposed to protect us from illnesses. These are a type of white blood cell called CD4 cells.

HIV takes over CD4 cells and turns them into virus factories that produce thousands of viral copies. As the virus grows, it damages or kills CD4 cells, weakening the immune system.

What percentage of the ECU campus is infected by

The number of students at ECU infected with HIV is not known. It is important to remember that all students don't come to Student Health to get tested; they may go to their physician at home or to a Health Department or physician's office in the surrounding area.

Pirates to display new, more exciting entrance

ECU's football entrance will have a new look

> RONNIE WOODWARD ASST. SPORT EDITOR

Kickoff for Saturday's home opener against bitter-rival North Carolina is set for 6 p.m., but Pirate fans need to be in their seats much earlier

A couple of new, more explosive and more exciting things have been added to ECU's "purple haze" entrance, and assistant Athletics Director Scott Weatherbee believes the new additions are something that ECU students will not want to miss.

"You'll definitely want to be in your seat 15 minutes prior to kickoff, don't have an excuse that you've been waiting in line because the lines are long to get into the stadium," said Weatherbee. "We have 43,000 people to get into the stadium and they all can't come in a half hour before and expect to be in in 15 minutes ... get there early and we'll make it worth their while."

ECU College of Business Announces First Presenter for New Speaker Series

Greenville, N.C. – The College of Business at East Carolina University will feature best-selling author and businessman Juan Enriquez as its first speaker for the newly-developed Cunanan Leadership Speaker Series.

Enriquez's presentation, which is free of charge and open to the public, will be held at the Hilton Hotel in Greenville on Oct. 3 at 3:30 pm.

Enriquez is currently Chairman and CEO Biotechonomy LLC, a life sciences research and investment firm based in Boston. He is widely recognized as a leading authority on the economic and political impacts of life sciences. He is also an expert on the dynamics of the knowledge economy and the other social and political forces that are driving change in America and the world today.

He is the author of "As the Future Catches You," an analysis of the impact of genomics on business and society, as well as "The Untied States of America," which explores why, as technology advances, some countries are successful while others disappear.

Dr. Frederick Niswander, dean of the College of Business, said, "We are thrilled to bring some of our nation's most successful leaders to Greenville through the Cunanan Leadership Speaker Series. Insight from leaders such as Juan Enriquez will enrich, energize, and inform our students, faculty, and citizens alike."

In July 2007, the College of Business announced the establishment of the Cunanan Leadership Speaker Series, made possible by a gift from Steve and Ellen Cunanan of Richboro, Pa. Matching funds were also provided by the Johnson & Johnson Foundation.

The Cunanan Leadership Speaker Series is designed bring distinguished leaders to Greenville, representing for-profit and non-profit firms, entrepreneurial activities, government, and public affairs. Topics highlight leadership, professional development, ethics and the role of business in modern society.

About the College of Business at East Carolina University
The College of Business at East Carolina University was founded in 1936 and has been accredited by the AACSB since 1967. Located in Greenville, N.C., the college continues to grow substantially and now has more than 2500 undergraduate students, 710 graduate students, 110 faculty members, as well as 30 degrees, majors, and concentrations.

How do you go about getting tested for HIV at ECU?

To get tested for HIV here at ECU please call 252-328-6841 to make an appointment to have the test conducted free of charge! We currently offer the HIV test that is taken by giving blood at our lab, and the results take 2-3 weeks. The students will receive both pre and post counseling to students who are tested. In order to get their results read, students must make an appointment here at Student Health Services. Within the next couple of months students will be able to get a rapid HIV test that will allow them to get their results within an hour.

What about testing for other STDs?

Testing for other STIs is available here at Student Health. The prices vary depending on the STI and the test needed.

Suppose a student suspects they have an STD, how do they go about getting tested? Treated?

If a student suspects they have an STI, all they have to do is call 252-328-6841 to make an appointment with a provider. We have both male and female providers available to students for treatment. If the student tests positive for an STI, the provider will discuss with them treatment options available and if applicable, write them a prescription, which they can get filled through our on-site Pharmacy. If necessary, the provider will refer the student to the Health Educator for further discussion on risks and contraceptive methods they can use to help prevent further infection.

What preventative measures can students take to protect against contracting an STD?

As many students know, there is only One 100% effective method in preventing contracting an STI and that's abstinence. Other measures that should be taken are:

1. Using condoms during vaginal and anal sex and

2. Using dental dams during oral sex.

Oftentimes students forget that STIs can be transmitted via oral sex through skin-toskin contact. Herpes and HPV are two examples of STIs that are spread sexually through skin-to-skin. For example, if one mate has Herpes on their lip and gives the other mate oral sex, their partner could then develop Genital herpes.

Are there informational sessions at ECU pertaining to STDs?

Throughout the year, Student Health and Campus Recreation and Wellness (CRW) will host programs or events that educate students on STIs. Student Health Service will offer a free Chlamydia/Gonorrhea urine test from September 17th – October 12th as part of the GUESS WHO'S GOT IT? campaign. CRW will host Sexual Responsibility Week in the spring, Health 1000 teachers teach an STI section as part of their curriculum and there is a Sexual Health class offered to students through the Health Education & Promotion Department on campus. What other interesting

Never give out your social security number over the phone, by mail or over the Internet. Don't be fooled with contests or claims that you are a winner, especially if they ask for deeply personal information. These are scams that are easy to fall for, and once you fall, the consequences are massive.

The average victim spends over $1,180 and 60 hours attempting to repair the reparations. But money and time are not the only issues identity-theft victims face. Countless people suffer from other consequences, including being denied credit, legal woes, harassment from creditors to pay bills that are not theirs and even being arrested for crimes they did not commit. The consequences are great, and so is the importance of reducing each individual risk

ECU faithful receive warm welcome

GREG KATSKI SPORTS EDITOR

It is a day not soon to be forgotten by those in Blacksburg, Va. On that fateful day, April 16, 2007, 32 Virginia Tech students were gunned down by one disturbed soul, while many others were injured and scarred

September 1, 2007 is also a day that will be remembered, as a time for healing and forgiveness, faith and sorrow and, of course, all-day tailgating and smashmouth football.

In a scene unlike any other college football pregame party, ECU fans were invited, with open arms, to join the Hokie tailgating.

Trucks and cars around the stadium donned window paint thanking the Pirates for their support and even in the stadium this sentiment was echoed.

As part of Virginia Tech's pregame ceremonies, ECU Chancellor Steve Ballard, as well as Director of Athletics Terry Holland, presented a $100,00 check to the Hokie Spirit Memorial Fund to Virginia Tech President Dr. Charles Steger at the 50-yard-line. At the conclusion of the presentation two Virginia Tech cheerleaders held up a sign towards the fans at one end of the stadium that read "Thank you", while two cheerleaders on the opposite end of the field held up a sign to the stands that read "Pirates". The crowd quickly joined in the chant, and by the end the stadium was so loud, the sentiments could echo all the way

A tribute video to the victims and heroes of April 16, 2007 was also shown during the ceremonies. Fans throughout the stadium could be seen drying their eyes, as images of candle vigils, injured victims and memorial collages flashed across the scoreboard screen. The stadium was completely sober and silent for the minute and 40 seconds that the tribute ran, while "Walk Humbly Son" by Eddie from Ohio gave the soundtrack to the emotional event. Julie Murphy-Wells, the lead singer of Eddie from Ohio, is a Virginia Tech alumnus, and no other song could have fit so well with the tribute.

After 32 orange and maroon balloons were released from the field, each one symbolizing a victim of the tragedy, the teams were ready to play some football.

Even this tradition was altered, as usually the visiting team takes the field first. On this special occasion, in a symbol of equality, both squads took the field at the same time while "Enter Sandman", the electrifying Metallica classic, roared throughout the stadium.

Throughout the game there were no jeers for the Pirates and a newfound respect was apparent between the two schools.

ECU football Head Coach Skip Holtz may have encapsulated the emotion of the day best.

"It was an honor for us to have the opportunity and come up here and play in such an emotional environment for the Virginia Tech family," he said. "I really thought this was a special day and it was neat for us to be a part of it."

Pirates haven't played the Tar Heels since a 28-17 loss in UNC's first trip to Greenville in 2003. 1. Make the Pirates throw the ball The Pirates (0-1) haven't beat the Tar Heels (1-0) since 1975 and UNC holds an 8-1-1 advantage in the series. ECU passed for 119 yards against Virginia

"This is obviously a great rivalry game for our fans," said ECU coach Skip Holtz. "I hope they [ECU fans] manage themselves with the same amount of class that we just experienced at the Virginia Tech game ... you can be fierce rivals on the field but you can also play with excitement, emotion and sportsmanship.

That being said, it is still a rivalry for the East Carolina family. We are 1-8-1 in our only 10 games with [the Tar Heels] and we have lost those by an average score of 35-10. Many of our players have played with kids on the North Carolina team and we know it will be a great challenge."

Last weekend, the Tar Heels defeated bowl subdivision opponent James Madison 37-14, as freshman quarterback T.J. Yates went 13-of-18 for 218 yards and three touchdowns. The game marked the beginning of the Butch Davis era in Chapel Hill and drew a crowd of over 58,000.

While Holtz has no game experience against the Tar Heels, Davis has coached against the Pirates twice and it wasn't pleasant to say the least.

Davis holds an 0-2 record against ECU, with both losses happening when he was coaching at the University of Miami. His 12th-ranked Hurricanes were beat convincingly, 31-6, in the Orange Bowl in 1996. In 1999 his Miami team blew a 20-point lead and lost to ECU, 27-23, in a game that was played at Carter-Finley stadium in Raleigh due to Hurricane Floyd.

"East Carolina is a very difficult place to go and play," Davis told the Assoicated Press Monday. "It is loud. It is enthusiastic. Their fans do a great job getting behind their football team, and that obviously will add an additional challenge to a young team - being able to handle crowd noise and going on the road."

While ECU played three quarterbacks against Virginia Tech, junior Patrick Pinkney stood out, going 14-of-25 for 115 yards and adding 48 rushing yards.

According to Holtz, there was no controversy in selecting the starting quarterback against the Tar Heels.

"Right now this is Patrick Pinkey's job and he deserves it," said Holtz. "I was impressed with the way he played and protected the ball. He managed the game well, he gave a spark of enthusiasm to our offense and I think that is what our young football team needs right now. When [Kass] made the decision he did, he gave up the spot and [Pinkney] did a nice job of stepping up and taking it."

They're are certain aspects of the Tar Heel's offense that concern Holtz going into Saturday.

The thing that scares me the most about them right now is their skill players," he said. "They have some wide receivers that have big play potential and their quarterback has a rope for an arm. They throw the deep ball well and what concerns me are the uncontested deep balls we gave up against Virginia Tech, knowing that is one of [UNC's] strengths.

The Tar Heels deep core of talented receivers is led by sophomore Hakeem Nicks, who earned freshman All-American honors after a stellar season last year. Junior Brooks Foster and wide receiver/kick returner Brandon Tate also provide explosiveness to the UNC offense.

'Some of their [UNC's] better athletes are the wide receivers, so we'll have to come in focused and try to put a stop to those guys," said the Pirates' starting strong safety Van Eskridge.

UNC's defense is experienced, and Holtz expects the Pirates to face many of the same defensive strategies that they faced against VT.

'They are strong up the middle and their defensive front is their strength," said Holtz. "We saw this at Virginia Tech. I think their linebackers have an awful lot of experience. They are intelligent and smart and I think their safeties are very good football players."

One Pirate who should be familiar with the UNC defense is junior defensive tackle Khalif Mitchell, who played for the Tar Heels for two seasons. Mitchell made one of the most famous plays in UNC football history when he sealed the win for the Tar Heels after causing N.C. State running back T.A. McClendon to fumble on the goal line as time expired in a thrilling 2005 game in Chapel Hill.

Mitchell has waited for over a year now to get a crack at his former team and now that the time is here, he is not shying away.

'When we get this win in Dowdy-Ficklen it's going to be great," he said."These fans are going to go crazy and it is bragging rights for them and they deserve it.'

Mitchell's words undoubtedly echo a sense of confidence going into one of the biggest games in recent ECU football memory.

And if the Pirates record a victory Saturday, most will tell you this one has been 32 years in the making.

1.Get the offense going early

If ECU is going to beat the Tar Heels for the first time in 32 years, the offense must come out of the gate swinging. The Pirates cannot come out and go three and out during the first few possessions. Starting quarterback Patrick Pinkney must do a good job of managing the game to set ECU up with scoring opportunities early.

2.Don't allow the deep ball

Against Virginia Tech, the Pirates gave up some uncontested deep balls. You can bet Butch Davis knows this and will look deep to Hakeem Nicks and Brooks Foster early and often. If the Pirates are determined to stop the Tar Heels then their corners must play well or it could make for a long day in Dowdy-Ficklen.

3.The Crowd

In college football the crowd is one of the most important parts of the game. ECU must get the crowd into the game early, utilizing big plays on offense and strong defense to put pressure on the Tar Heels. As for the Pirate Nation, they must come early and stay late in support of the Pirates and in hopes of witnessing history on Saturday.

After the game, ECU coach Skip Holtz defended his play calling decision.

"We were backed up, we tried to run a fullback belly on first down and got about half a yard so I said, 'Heck, let's take a chance'," Holtz said. "We maximum protected it; we kept both backs in, we kept both tight ends in and ran Jamar Bryant on a fly pattern. My thought was we would get a one-on-one jump ball or if they ran a turn and roll coverage toward him and double team him, we throw it high and outside and it's incomplete and it's third down." ECU outperformed the Hokies for most of the first half, holding a 7-3 lead deep into the second quarter. The Pirates were efficient on offense and dominating on defense, but it was Virginia Tech's special teams that shifted the momentum of the game with a play of pure "Beamer Ball."

After the Hokies failed to move the ball with exceptional field position, Virginia Techcoach Frank Beamer opted to punt. Punter Brent Bowden, logging his first collegiate playing time, lifted a punt well into the

Hefner leads the way as ECU wins season opener

The ECU women's soccer team used excellent teamwork and trapping to thwart numerous scoring opprotunities by High Point.

Pirates dominate High Point

KATHERINE HARRY STAFF WRITER

The ECU women's soccer team started the year off right at home Friday with a 3-1 victory over High Point. Coach Donnenwirth contributes the win to his team starting the game with good energy.

The Pirates "pressured the ball excellent" according to Donnenwirth added, "We had a couple good chances in them away." ECU and Highpoint were deadlocked 0-0 at the halfway mark.

ECU controlled the Panthers to start the second half and scored their first goal of the contest with 42 minutes left to play on a header off Jami Dickerson from a Nicole Moore corner kick. Dickerson also saved a potential goal early in the second half when High Point's offense was threatening to score.

High Point answered back with 36 minutes left to play in the half, tying the score, 1-1. In less than a minute's time the the first half [but] didn't put Pirates answered back when Blair Hefner scored on a pass from Jess Swanson.

> Hefner received a pass from Sarah Kirkley at about midfield and broke away to score her second goal of the game with about 7 minutes remaining, giving the Pirates a two-goal advantage.

Coach Donnenwirth was happy with his team's performance overall.

We have more depth than last year. I think the freshman stepped in and did well and with hard work and more experience the team will continue to get better," said Donnenwirth, whose team was 10-8 a season ago.

"We need to work on our decisions and just getting used to each other's different styles. Every game is a battle. We take one game at a time; there are many games before conference. We have a tough schedule".

The Lady Pirates fell to Charlotte, 2-0, on Sunday following their victory over High Point.

ECU will host Old Dominion this Friday at 4 p.m. and Furman at 1 p.m. Sunday at Bunting Field.

Pirates prevail over tough-minded Spartans

Sophomore outside hitter Stephanie Turner broke a personal record against UNC Greensboro by knocking down five aces. Her previous career high was three aces, which she has done six times.

Focus equals victory for ECU women's volleyball

> STEPHANIE FU STAFF WRITER

The ECU women's volleyball team started off the season at the Duke Invitational. Over two days in Durham, the Pirates played against host Duke, as well as national powerhouses Purdue and Winthrop. The Pirates lost the first two matches, but beat Winthrop, 3-1.

On Tuesday, August 28, ECU played UNC Greensboro in Minges Coliseum. A large crowd of excited fans gathered to watch the Pirates take on the

The first match went well, as ECU held the lead throughout. The Pirates played strong, blocking numerous Spartan attempts. Senior Kelley Wernert helped keep the Pirates in the lead with kill after kill, tallying six for the first game.

Still in serving position, Turner persisted with another ace. Dubenion finished out the first game with a 30-24 win.

After a short break and a quick hustle with ECU women's volleyball Head Coach Chris Rushing, the Pirates were back to serve-up another battalion of points to the Spartans in the second game of the match. The Spartans managed to score the first point of the game, but Zentner quickly spiked a point, reminding UNC-G that the Pirates were still going to put up a strong fight.

Junior Trish Monroe blocked the Spartans' attempts to gain the lead with an impressive series of digs. However, the Spartans came back in the second game with a desire to win and caught up to the Pirates, 13-13. Zentner and Wernert sustained the Pirate's powerful offensive attack with four kills each, as well as an ace from Wernert, to give ECU the second game 30-20.

The third game gave way to a momentum swing, as UNC-G came back with a strong lead from the onset. During ECU's first timeout of the match, the Spartans lead, 10-4. Wernert tried to pull the Pirates ahead with seven kills during the game, but the effort proved to be insufficient as the Spartans took the third game 30-18.

After the scare, ECU came back with some persistent offensive power. ECU struggled early in the fourth game, but with the Pirates unrelenting offensive firepower from Zentner, as well as ten kills and digs from Koop and Dubenion, they won the game 30-24.

Turner had an extremely good match against UNC Greensboro and broke her own personal record with five aces.

"I thought we came out strong in the first two games and in the locker room coach said 'it's not over until it's over'," Turner commented.

Rushing, who agreed with Turner, said, "Everything was going on according to plan and what we were working on but then we went to the break; we were really flat when we came back out."

"Most of our team is freshmen and sophomores and with a young team they think that after the first two games we've won, but we have to come back strong because they are going to come back strong as well. We want to get a lot better in defense."

After a tough showing in the Tribe Classic at William & Mary that saw ECU go 0-3, the Pirates bounced back with a convincing win at Campbell, 3-1. With the victory ECU has brought it's season to a 3-5 record and will compete in the Marriott Courtyard Volleyball Challenge this weekend at N.C. State. Turner stressed the importance of every play and said, "The road is just like home; we just have to stay focused."

While Clay started the game for ECU, it was junior Patrick Pinkney that showed the poise and precision of a starting quarterback. Pinkney finished the first half completing 5-of-6 passes for 38 yards, while rushing two times for eight yards.

With Clay unable to execute the original game plan for the Pirates, Holtz opted to use a more run-oriented offense. Although Holtz denied that he would use freshman Dwayne Harris, who is listed as a wide receiver, at quarterback prior to the game, he switched Pinkney and Harris out seamlessly. The quarterback musical chairs kept the stout Virginia Tech defense off-balance and produced one extended scoring drive executed mainly on the ground.

The Pirates dominated the ground game, rushing for 142 net yards on 35 carries, while holding the Hokies to 33 yards on 31

"This team is not afraid of contact and this is a very physical team," Holtz said of his defense. "We played Virginia Tech and we challenged them, told them we we're going to have to make it a physical game and they didn't shy away from it. I was proud of the way they came out here and competed and the way they hit and lowered the shoulder.

"We've talked about if we're going to build this program and play at this level we're going to have to be physical, this is not basketball on grass and you're given pads for a reason."

ECU's defensive front seven was certainly up to the challenge and showed that it can stuff any back in the nation. Heisman-hopeful Branden Ore was held to 71 yards on 23 carries, an average of 3 yards per rush. Ore also turned the ball over, fumbling the ball near midfield in the first half.

"I think defensively we have the chance to be a pretty good football team," said Holtz. "They're past the point of what do we have to do to play and now it's what do we have to do to win. I thought they came in here ... and played an excellent football game."

Sophomore defensive end C.J. Wilson, who forced a fumble in the game, thinks the defense was well prepared for Ore.

"We had to key him [Branden Ore] because he's up for the Heisman and they run a lot," he said. "But we practice stopping the run so we just did what we do."

Quentin Cotton recorded a gamehigh 14 tackles for the Pirates.

On the other side of the ball, the offensive line played hard but youth and inexperience began to show in the third quarter. While the offense only had four penalties for 16 yards at halftime, including no false start or holding penalties, the unit racked up six penalties for 43 yards in third quarter.

Holtz was pleased with the effort from his youthful line, but believes the squad is a long way from being solidified.

"From the offensive standpoint, I think 12 penalties is ridiculous. We had 38 penalties all last year and we ended up with 12 in our opening ballgame," said Holtz. "I thought they went out there and competed, but playing hard isn't enough. You've got to learn to play smart and I think we made far too many mistakes today in order to come out here and give ourselves the chance to win.

In the end, it was inexperience and mental mistakes that cost the Pirates the upset win. Big-pass plays given up by the secondary, costly penalties and one huge turnover by ECU was enough to give Virginia Tech the victory While the Pirates didn't come away with the win, there were plenty of positives on offense, defense and special teams.

Pinkney, who finished the game 14-of-25 for 115 passing and 48 additional rushing yards, showed the country a glimpse of good things to come.

"It's all about believing," said Pinkney. "On both sides of the ball before the game we said it's all about believing and playing Starting outside linebacker Pierre Bell believes ECU can compete at the national level.

We showed the whole world that we can play at this level," he said. "The past couple of years we've showed that we can play with the top team in the country.'
