“

I participate in this movement by being as genuine and kind as I can possibly be. I spent a lot of my life afraid of being who I was, never wanting to draw attention to myself. I now try and live as freely as I can, hoping to inspire others to be themselves as well. I place importance in who I vote for and I try to get engaged politically, as we are still fighting for our rights 50 years later. I appreciate all the work done and hope for only positive growth as we move on.
