Shaw University receives Omega Psi Phi Fraternity award

The 65th Grand Conclave of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., convened in Dallas, Texas July 23-29, 1988. The theme for the week's deliberations and activities was "The Family, education, economics and citizenship empowered by our cardinal principles"-Manhood, Scholarship, Perseverance and Uplift.

Sunday, July 24, 1988 was declared "Salute to Historically Black Colleges and Universities Day." The recognitions were made to extol the historically black colleges and universities for their education of thousands of Americans, including many Omega members who have made substantial contributions to the betterment of mankind, to treasure historically black colleges and universities that have continually elevated thousands of persons who otherwise would not have received a post-secondary education and to compliment these institutions that sometimes do not receive the admiration, support, respect and recognition which is due them for the tremendous contributions they have made to America and to the

Dr. Talbert O. Shaw, president of Shaw University, accepted a plaque presented by the fraternity on behalf of Shaw University which reads, in part, "For significant contributions to the education of Black Americans—and to the betterment of mankind as a whole."

When asked about this signal honor, Dr. Shaw said, "The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity was the first fraternity founded on an historically black college campus and has been at the vanguard of financial support for black higher education. I accept this plaque with sincere appreciation and gratitude and dedicate myself to the perpetuation of the goals of this fraternity. I hope that other Afro-American organizations will continue this example set by the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity.'

The sheriff then asks this man to show him to the home of the Unbelieveable, but a true story.

Marriott settles for $40 grand in cornrow braided hairstyle dispute

By JESSE H. WALKER

A Black reservations agent at the JW Mariott Hotel in Washington, D.C. who was almost fired for refusing to unbraid her cornrow hairstyle has received $40,000 in damages from Marriott Corp., settling a discrimination complaint filed with the D.C. Office of Human Rights.

Marriott paid the money to Pamela Mitchell late last month, according to The Washington Times, which obtained a copy of the settlement agreement. The hotel corporation also agreed to pay an additional $15,000 in legal fees to Eric Steele, an attorney for Mitchell.

"It sends a signal that has to be welcomed to the civil rights community. When a corporation is held financially accountable, we hope that has a chilling effect on other corporations who might engage in similar practices," said Colleen O'Connor, a spokeswoman for the American Civil Liberties Union head-Quarters offices here in New York City.

"She (Mitchell) was humiliated and part of the damage assessment has to be the duress she was put under," said

The four-page agreement ends a controversy sparked in December when Mitchell was told to remove her cornrows, a multi-braided hairstyle worn primarily by Black women, or face termination on Christmas Eve. After Mitchell filed a complaint with the Human Rights

Office, Marriott told her she could keep her part-time job and reversed its anti-braid policy.

In April, however, the D.C. agency , led that there was cause to believe that Marriott had unlawfully discriminated against Mitchell and other female employees by refusing to let them wear cornrows. The ruling was believed to be the first in the nation to deal with the issue of whether anti-cornrow policies are discriminatory.

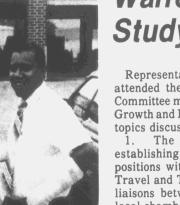

In exchange for receiving the monetary damages, Mitchell has agreed to withdraw the discrimination complaint and refrain from pushing the issue in court.

Under the settlement, Marriott also is required to clarify to all employees at the JW Marriott the policy of allowing corn-rows by posting notices on bulletin boards and stuffing notices in payroll checks.

Hyatt Hotels & Resorts also is embroiled in controversy over cornrows. In May, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission ruled that Hyatt discriminated against Black women by carrying out such a policy, a policy the Hyatt hotel chain reversed last fall.

The EEOC ruling stemmed from a complaint filed by Cheryl Tatum and Cheryl B. Parahoo, two former employees at the Hyatt Regency Crystal City who were told to remove their cornrows or wear a wig. A settlement conference between Hyatt and the former employees is scheduled later this month, according to their law-

The Black Preachers and the Black Church must play their rightful roles

By Jim Rouse

If Black America is to be saved, the Black Preachers and the Black Church will have to assume their rightful roles.

The gospel of right and wrong must be preached and lived from the pulpit. We live in an era of "Monkey see, monkey do."

The Black Preacher must speak out against the moral decay of our society. They must tear down the mistaken notion that anything goes. We must as Church people proclaim the truth and not deny that we need to be revived and turn back to God in fullness and

We must be willing to let Black folks understand that there is no "Big I's" or no" little you's" in the sight of God for out of one blood we were all created.

It's amazing that we see wisdom every day and still do not understand what is happening in this life. Simply stated no man is above or beneath another man. We all come into the world with nothing and we will take nothing Believe it or not, but I have never seen a Brinks Truck following a hearse to a cemetery.

Black folks remember when you respect yourselves and each other; let's teach our children to respect authority. Let us stop being instruments of disharmony and become instruments of peace.

Let us build up, not tear down, let us become real neighbors and watch out for each other.

Black Preachers you have the power or so you say that you have, so use it to chase the dope pushers out of the Black community.

Protect our children from the pitfalls that are waiting to destroy them by educating the parents and the congregation.

Black church, become a power house of prayer. Do not be ashamed to call a spade. Teach Black parents to let their children be children. Stop dressing eight, nine and ten year olds as if they were adults.

Give your girls dolls to play with that they can put on a shelf. We cannot afford for our little girls to continue to have babies before wisdom. We must train our sons that they are just as responsible for a new life coming as the girl that they have violated. Speak out against these old men that prey on our youth. It is our business, because we are our brothers' keeper.

2. The need for additional funds to support North Carolina state

3. The feasibility of creating permanent tours within various regions of the state, such as a

Letter to the Editor

To the editor:

Sunday editorial comment titled "Vigilance" may have been an accurate assessment given from the point of view of a non-participating third party. But the idea at the Pitt County Board of Elections monitoring itself isn't practical from the standpoint of those of us who worked hard to win an election only to have its results nullified by sloppy and careless administrative procedures. Federal observers during the Oct. 11 runoff would ensure some degree of added trust in the process. What harm could that do? And, besides, why should voters put their total trust in our board after all that has been revealed about its handling of the previous election?

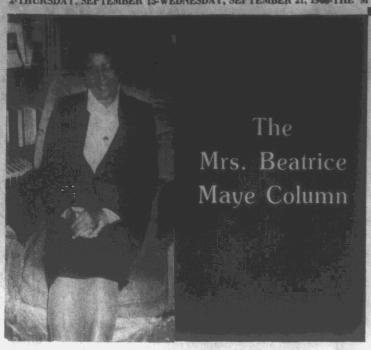

The comments in the editorial which discount the possibility of racial bias as a factor in the electoral process are predictable and difficult to refute. Racial bias, by its very nature is extremely hard to prove, even when clearly

In your previous editorials, support for a new election was made clear. I would have thought that any measures intended to ensure fairness in the new election, including federal observers, would attract your support as well. From the perspective of a participant, believe me, if ever federal observers were needed to help restore faith in local balloting, now is the time.

Michael Garrett, campaign manager Committee to Elect D.D. Garrett County Commissioner

BRINGING HOME THE GOLD . . . The Isserettes are shown at the Greenville Trailways bus station returning from their trip out west to compete in the national competition. The trip was successful for our young ladies. They took third place out of one hundred or more competing for trophies and cash prizes. The Black Community should feel very proud of these young ladies. We salute you. May the future be bright for each of you and the parents who encourage them.

Lateness and absenteeism are $two {\it of} industry's biggest problems.\$

Anyone who knows a sure cure for them could sell the secret and retire in luxury.

It's hard enough to schedule work efficiently even when everyone shows up. And when people are unexpectedly late or absent, adjustments have to be made at the last minute. These makeshift changes are usually costly and inefficient.

There is, of course, no final solution. Like death and taxes, lateness and absenteeism will always be with us. Nevertheless, there are things a supervisor can do to minimize the problem.

One is to be sure, through personal contact and explanation, that everyone appreciates the problems that lateness and absence create. Some people believe it's nobody's business but their own. They must be helped to see that their actions affect the entire group, that they are part of a team. When they are late or absent, they're letting the others down.

It's important too for the person who supervises others to practice promptness and regularity as well as preach them. Regular hours set a good example for evervone. Employees feel better about complying when they know that what's good for the gander is good for the goose, too.

Also, take more time to appreciate the work people do when they are not absent. Show them how much you count on them. People who feel needed and wanted, who know that their presence on the job is important, are less apt to be late or absent.

If excessive lateness or absenteeism continues, probe for deeper reasons. Is the job too boring? Has it lost its challenge? If so, what can you do to remedy the situ-

You will never solve these problems completely. You can, however, develop a constructive approach that holds them to a mini-

"It is one of the most beautiful compensations of this life that no man can sincerely try to help another without helping himself". Emerson

How do you motivate people to produce, to do a better job?

The answer, say motivational experts, is by fulfilling these five

....Economic security. Workers should feel that their time and effort will be fairly rewarded.

....Emotional security. Management must create a climate in which employees "trust" their superiors, and feel that their jobs contribute to a worthwhile goal.Recognition. Employees should feel that good work will be appreciated and praise.

...Self-expression. We live in a democracy.and none of us should feel that we surrender that heritage when we enter our place of employment. Employees should have the right to communicate ideas, suggestions, fears, and opinions to their superiors without fear of retaliation

....Self-respect. This is imply the need to be treated as an individual, as a human being, not a

When You ask people to do something, be sure to also tell them why. It's well worth the time and effort.

It's very easy for a busy person to fall into the habit of simply telling people to do things without further explanation. It seems like the quickest and easiest way to get things done.

But it's rarely the best way. When you ask someone to do something, take time to explain why. It's excellent habit with a lot of good side effects.

Explaining why you want something done automatically removes the curse of "bossiness". When there's a good reason why something ought to be done, it puts you in the position of simply making a logical, reasonable request. It completely removes the bad taste that comes from "ordering people around".

When you explain why, you also lessen the chance of error. People who understand why they're doing something are less apt to foul it up.

And if the situation changes, so that the action is no longer required, they'll have sense enough to stop. If they don't understand, they'll have no choice but to go blindly ahead doing what you told Explaining the reason for your request is a compliment to the people you've asked to carry it out. It shows that you think it's important that they .. should understand what they're doing and be able to use their heads. You also put them in a position to make suggestions, and these can be very helpful.

People aren't robots or push buttons. The more you can trust them like intelligent human beings with good brains in their heads, the better results will be.

Sure. there are times when the reason is so obvious to everyone that it isn't worth mentioning. And there are also times of emergency when people have to do what they are told and pronto! But the general rule still stands: 'When you ask someone to do something, explain why".

'God gave us two ears but only one mouth. Some people say that's because he wanted us to spend twice as much time listening as talking. Others claim it's because he knew listening was twice as hard as talking.

The DOPEBUSTERS

The DOPEBUSTERS emerged out of the long tradition of community service of the NATION OF ISLAM in the capital city of our nation. Washington, D.C. in response to pleas from citizens besieged by drug dealers in the Mayfair Mansions housing development. Through a unique combination of Love, Faith and Disciplined action, the criminal Dopebusters were successful in eliminating drugs from Mayfair Mansions. Now is time for the Dopebusters program to be introduced to the entire nation.

Thus, the 1st Annual Dopebusters Walk-A-Thon is designed to raise necessary funds to establish a National Dopebusters Campaign Against Drugs. If you would like to know how you can help-read further

WALK-A-THONOVERVIEW

On Saturday, September 24th, The DOPEBUSTERS will have its Annual National Dopebusters Walk-A-Thon. The Walk will take place in over 10 cities across the nation. Thousands of people will participate in this Walk Against Each city will target at least 1,000 walkers to participate.

Thousands of Brochures, Sponsor sheets, and Posters will be distributed to advertise this event and enlist walkers.

As a sponsor, your name will become a household name and a symbol against drugs in your community.

We, the Dopebusters, would like you to be on the Team in this premier event. Included is a mutual benefit package which outlines the benefits to your organization as well as to the Dopebusters. The greatest benefit will be to the community, who will be comforted in knowing that we have join our forces together to fight drugs!

The first step is to formulate a Team. Let's get together and discuss the possibilities.

We want our youth back! We need to re-train and reeducate them. We need to provide them with an alternative to drugs!!!

MAGGIE KNIGHT Owner/Stylist Second grader Antwoine Britt, 7, is certainly a model student. The son of Mr. James Jr. and Mrs. Aletha Mae Nobles Britt, of the Midgette-Anderson Field on Stantonsburg Road near Farmville is on his way to becoming a full fledge Green Belt Martial Arts Expert.

Of the seven stages in Karate, Antwoine is at stage four shortly after a year of practicing. In his home and at the Bill McDonald Karate Studio on Dickinson Avenue, there are numerous trophies of all sizes that show where he has won in competitions. But wait, there's more!!

When Antwoine is not sparring with an opponent, he's on the Principal's List at Bruce Falkland Elementary School; or maybe he is studying his favorite subjects, math and science' or maybe he's trying to accomplish his goal of becoming a professional football player. Then if he's not doing any of the above, you could probably find him at his piano lessons or in his bedroom listening to his favorite singer, L.L. Cool Jay or some other rap songs.

After talking with his father, Bro. James Britt, Jr., you kinda' get the feeling that he is proud of his son. Bro. Britt says he is careful not to put too much pressure on Antwoine, but notes that it is Antwoine who is very bright and is not afraid to venture out and try new things. He says is he fails at something he tries, he'll just keep trying until he succeeds.

Sherrie and Blackie, Antwoine's two Dobverman Pinchers are also proud of him and so are we at the Minority Voice. Keep up the good work, Antwoine. (And Mr. and Mrs. Britt.)

Proclomation of Sickle Cell Disease

Sickle-cell disease is an inherited blood disorder that causes great suffering and economic strain, particularly among Black Americans. Blood cells affected by the disease assume a sickle shape, causing lifelong anemia and debilitation. Complications may include pain, infections, and chronic disability.

One out of every 294 non-white children born in North Carolina has sickle cell disease, while one out of every ten carries the sickle cell trait.

While no cure for this disease exists, treatment is available to help those with sickle cell disease lead more productive and rewarding lives. The North Carolina

What Is Seat 'A' All About

BY JIM ROUSE

Even if you don't pay much attention to politics, the long and complicated election process has taken place in Pitt County's race for Seat A of the County Commission is something that you've heard about by now.

With all the run-offs, recounts, hearings, and news stories; it's easy to lose sight on what the race for Seat A is all about. Some people believe that the race is about unfair decisions by the county election officials that caused D.D. Garrett not to be declared the winner of the Seat. Others see it as a contest for power on the Commission between residents of North West Greenville and those who live in Northern Pitt County, including Bethel. The fact is: Seat A was recently created in an agreement between Pitt County and the Federal Government intended to increase chances for blacks in Districts 1 and 2 of electing a black representative for the County Board of Commissioners. The Seat A race is not only D.D. Garrett or any other individual. The race for Seat A is a test of whether or not blacks in Pitt County are united enough to accomplish something designed for their own good. D.D. Garrett hapdured the process to this point.

On October 11, the new election for Seat A of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners will be held. On October 12th everyone will know exactly which people in Districts 1 and 2 are really united. That's what the race for Seat A is really all about!!

Airport expansion plan impacts Black Community The proposed expansion of the Pitt-Greenville Airport has developed into the kind of problem that black citizens here have not often faced. Those living beneath the flight paths near the airport would be most directly effected by the proposed expansion. Around the nation issues about the environment have collided with concern about economic growth. The conflict between quality-oflife and progress will now cause blacks in Pitt County to deal with an issue that has now come close to home. Planes have ascended and descended over highly populated black neighborhoods for many years - ask anyone who lives in Riverdale. Lately, the number of flights have been increasing and the planes are somewhat bigger. Residents living in the area recognize the negative environmental impact of living near an expanded airport. Increased noise and the ever present possibility of a crash are examples of the environmental concerns that residents face. As if the environmental concerns aren't enough to be concerned with, the growth and progress side of the controversy are equally related to the black residents of neighborhoods near the airport. Within some of these neighborhoods are many of the unemployed and underemployed in our city. The low wage and seasoned job markets have forced many to earn salaries that don't support a decent standard of living. Only an expanded job market in the area will reverse that trend. Airport expansion supporters believe that if Greenville is to develop its growth
