Teddy White case to be reevaluated

By TIM HAMPTON
News Editor

Chancellor Richard Eakin moved to reevaluate the Teddy White case after meeting with North Carolina National Association for the Advancement of Colored People officials and local black leaders Wednesday on the ECU campus.

In reevaluating the case, Eakin reverses an earlier decision "that the actions taken by the University should not be disturbed."

The case involves an incident April 3, 1988 in which five white students were assaulted in a Garrett Dorm room by Teddy White, a black student. The incident occurred after the white students allegedly made racial remarks towards White as he worked on his car.

After being sentenced by the SGA Honor Board, White was suspended for two years from ECU. White pleaded guilty to five counts of simple assault in Pitt County Court Jan. 23.

"A lot of things were put on the table, hopefully a closer look will be made into what happened on the night of April 3," Dennis Schatzman, executive director of the NAACP, said after the meeting with the Chancellor Wednesday.

"He (Eakin) did agree to reevaluate the incident, but no other decisions have been made at this time," Ben Irons, the ECU attorney, said.

"The Chancellor agreed to look into the matter further to assure racial harassment will not happen again," Irons said. Eakin refused to comment on the latest developments after the meeting.

In attendance at Wednesday's meeting were Mayor Ed Carter, Pitt County Commissioner D.D. Garrett, and several other area black leaders in efforts to have "other voices" heard.

"Plans to develop a racial harassment policy include seeking input from all sides,"

Irons said.

In a February 8 letter to Schatzman, Eakin said the administration is working on a harassment policy. "I want to assure an environment free of racial harassment," Eakin said.

Schatzman disutes Eakin's through study into the White case in Feb. 13 letter to the Chancellor. "It is obvious to me that you have no intentions of assuring an environment free of racial harassment. Actions speak louder than words," Schatzman says in the letter.

"The case seems to be hinging on John Bateman who allegedly made the racial slurs," Schatzman said. In allegations made against the university's handling of the White case, Schatzman says "despite evidence, the five white students were never punished."

Schatzman said Bateman should be suspended from ECU for making the alleged racial slurs. Bateman is "equally guilty" according to Schatzman in the letter.

According to Schatzman, Bateman said "We didn't know you monkeys were intelligent enough to open the hood. Why don't you niggers go back to Africa? We'll f---k you niggers up if you don't like it, come up here so we can f---k you motherf---kers up and we'll f---k your bitches up too."

But Bateman said Wednesday night "I admit I did say something outside the window, but it was not racial."

Kent Holcomb, who was also in the Garrett dorm room on the night of Feb. 3, 1988, said "there were no racial statements uttered outside that window."

"I'm in the Marine Reserves and I have more friends who are black in my unit than white," Bateman said.

"Verbal provocation, however, cannot excuse Mr. White's

NAACP director says NC racist

By TIM HAMPTON
News Editor

Racism is on the rise in North Carolina, Dennis Schatzman said in a speech on the ECU campus sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi as part of Black History Month.

The self proclaimed "Prince of Darkness at ECU" for his recent involvement in the Teddy White case, Schatzman, the executive director of the North Carolina National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said "Racism and white society arrogance is on the rise in North Carolina."

"We got trouble right here in river city," Schatzman, who has been a Kappa Alpha Psi member 19 years as of Wednesday, said.

"It is time for the youth to get sick and tired of putting up with this bullshit," he said in encouraging young minorities to join the civil rights movement.

Elected the youngest judge in Pennsylvania at age 31 according to Schatzman, he said he has followed the racial inequality in law. Schatzman, who became a member of the NAACP at age 15 as a condition of his release from reform school, said people in power invent laws to justify what they do. "I hope I can instill this in you, don't take anything for truth," he added.

Citing laws centuries old which established legal inequality for minorities, Schatzman said 'stare decisis' set precedence for injustice in the 20th century.

Addressing the audience, he said "Never be ashamed of what you are or where you come from."

Quoting scripture, Schatzman said "Fight for what is right because the stone the builders refuse will become the head stone."

After his speech, Schatzman was asked about a Feb. 8 article in The Daily Reflector about racial problems at ECU.

When asked about a passage in the article reading "a black student in ECU's Student Government Association recently was showered with black and brown jelly beans during a meeting," Schatzman said, "Schatzman said he has misquoted on the word 'showered'."

We've Come A Long Way

By: James Vines

As I pulled myself up from the very dusty street and began to brush the dirt from my clothes, the other police officer walked over to me and said in a southern drawl, 'Now, boy, you let this be a lesson to you.' So my friend and I decided not to look for work anymore that day. It was very hot and walking in the sun was very uncomfortable.

The next day we decided we would look again because it was just about time for school to open, and we wanted to earn some money so that we could buy things that we needed for school.

I was not so lucky getting a job but my friend was. The job that he had called for him to go to work at four o'clock in the afternoon and eight o'clock on Saturday. After he had been there for about a month he was on a ladder one day putting up stock when one of the clerks who was white and female came over to help him finish his job since there was no one in the store to wait on. While he was up on the ladder, the young lady came up on a second ladder next to the one my friend was on. While he was still working he didn't notice that she was about four or five inches from him when he had to reach around her to put up some things that he was holding in his hands. What he didn't see was a man peering through the window from the outside. He was in a position that made it appear that my friend had put his arm around the girl as if he was hugging her and that was a big mistake. The man looking in the window ran down the street yelling as loud as he could to see a nigger hugging a white woman. In about five minutes the streets were full of white men mulling around whispering, 'Let's get that nigger.' By that time someone had called the police. After the police arrived they came in the store with their guns down shouting 'Where is the nigger that hugged the white woman?' and they all shouted at one time, 'There he is.' So they pushed him to the door and put handcuffs on him and carried him off to jail.

The next day the papers were full of the incident and it was not the way it happened. They took him down to the police station and booked him for attempted rape and to be held without bond. On the tenth of the next month which was October, court was held. On Tuesday my friend was brought into court for trial handcuffed and shackled.

The judge called my friend's case the very first and in about thirty minutes the case was over because the girl testified that he never touched her and the jury found him not guilty. So the judge put him on probation for five years and he was never to go into that store again. Time went by and my friend was doing good but he should have never tried to stay in this town. One evening a car drove up to his house, a man got out and went to his front door and knocked. He met this man at the door and he began to talk. I couldn't hear what they were saying but he soon left. The next day my friend told me he had gotten another job working nights as a cook at the White Elk Club. He worked for the club several months and everybody thought everything was fine until one day he went to work and didn't come home that night. Two days passed, then three days, then two weeks, and he still didn't come home. His mother began to worry because he was not the kind of child to stay away from home. We began to go about the neighborhood asking about him. The next day there came a heavy rain and thunderstorm. After the storm had ceased, two men who were on their way home spotted what looked like a body floating near the bridge where they were walking. They stopped to see if they could make it out and it was exactly what they thought it was.

They turned around and ran back toward the city and as they had gotten off the bridge they flagged a motorist down and asked him if he would call the police. So he brought them back to town and got the sheriff and a deputy who called the fire department. They came and fished him out of the river. After he was brought into view witnesses say that the body was bruised badly, his hands were wired behind his back, his mouth was full of rags, his feet were tied together and his face was badly beaten. The next morning the paper said he had committed suicide.

The Regional Rehabilitation Center has begun offering an Industrial Injury Program to help workers return to job

The Regional Rehabilitation Center in Greenville has begun offering an industrial injury program that will help injured workers get back on the job. The Regional Rehabilitation Center is located at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Kathy Wickizer, coordinator of the program, says injured workers will receive treatment from a multidisciplinary team consisting of professionals from occupational therapy, physical therapy, vocational services, and rehabilitation medicine. On occasion, a participant may be referred to a psychologist or other rehabilitation service.

Dr. Jozefa Debogorski, assistant professor of physical medicine and rehabilitation at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, is medical director of the program. Dr. Jacinta McElligott, also an assistant professor of physical medicine and rehabilitation at the medical school, is assistant medical director.

"None of these services are new, but they have never been offered in this type of program," said Wickizer, who is a vocational evaluator. "This is a short-term rehabilitation program for workers with an injury that limits

NAACP HOSTS BANQUET

The Pitt County Branch of the NAACP celebrated "Emancipation Proclamation" during its annual New Horizons Banquet held February 11th and 12th at the Roxy Showcase Theatre on Albemarle Avenue. A dynamic message was delivered by the young and aggressive Real Estar Magnet, Melvin "Skip" Alston. The event also recognized Pitt County Commissioner D.D. Garrett for his years of relentless service and dedication. Newly elected branch president, Gaston Monk, was on hand to congratulate Commissioner Garrett and discuss NAACP strategy. Greenville, S.C. City Parks Director, Ernest C. Adams, Jr. returned to his hometown to attend the annual affair. Here is pictured here with radio talk show host and community leader, the Rev. Michael Dixon during the reception which immediately followed the historical event.

Washington, North Carolina, is George Washington Carver's third librarian, following Mrs.
Willie Mae Gibbs.

RUTH BRASWELL JONES
has received more than sixty awards and citations during her career, primarily for her leadership in human and civil rights causes. Today Mrs. Jones chairs
the Rocky Mount Human Relations Commission and works in the soup kitchen for the homeless. She has lived in Greenville. In 1984 she received North Carolina's first distinguished Women's Award for leadership in education.

DR. A. A. BEST, a veteran physician, who instituted courses in the high schools on human sexuality in the 50's and 60's [North Carolina Joint Council on Health and Education] for the main pur-

Hill, who is one of the Daily Reflector's news editors, a positive role model for our youngsters.

When I think of police officers,
CAPTAIN NELSON STATON
stands out preeminently with his professionalism and gentlemanly qualities. He is a role model to be emulated and respected and admired.

WILLIAM BARNHILL, who transports senior citizens daily to the Pitt County Council on Aging site is a young man to be admired for he states that "I've been there. Trusting in God is the only way out of your problems." Now he is being active in Sycamore Hill Baptist Church and its activities—ushering, driving the bus, attending Sunday school, and singing in the men's choir.
Listen to his soul stirring prayers and exalting singing and you'll know that God has touched him.

JESSE EBRON, a state certified, Level 3, building inspector for the city of Greenville since 1975, is a Pitt County native who was Holyoke, Massachusetts's first Black policeman. LESTER
BROWN and LESTER ED-
WARDS are two other Black building inspectors for the city.

JOHN W. OUTERBRIDGE, a Greenville man who now lives in Altadena, California, a sculptor and educator, has worked as director of the Watts Towers, developing meaningful arts programs for all ages, and ethnicities. Many group exhibitions and examples of his work may be seen and read of in museums and books, particular-

Mrs. Beatrice Maye
1225 Davenport Street
Greenville, NC 27834

Dear Mrs. Maye:

It was a pleasure speaking with you over the telephone Friday afternoon and this morning. You seem to be an extremely busy and energetic woman and I'm pleased that I could be of help to you.

I am including a written list of black citizens who appear to have been the first to hold various jobs in city government. You asked for documentation to support this, but, unfortunately, I could find none. Legal restrictions prevent our personnel office from releasing information which may affect employees' privacy. However, I was able to glean the information provided below by conferring with Mr. Jesse Harris, Greenville's Human Relations Officer. This list represents what he could recall on the spur of the moment and could have been more extensive if we had more time for research. I hope this is of value to you as you prepare your radio programs and newspaper articles for Black History Month.

First Black police officer (about 30 years ago): Cecil Corbett.

First Black woman council member: Ms. Mildred Council.

First Black department head (1972): Jesse Harris.

First Black woman department head (Finance, 1988): Bernita Demery.

First Black recreation supervisor (about 30 years ago): Luke Hemby.

First Black fireman: Lieutenant Green (retired on disability about 1969 or 1970). Also the first Black fire officer was Captain Walter Jarrell.

First Black Woman fire rescue officer: Angela Gray.

First Black assistant chief of fire/rescue: Raymond Carney.

First Black city planner (between 1978 and 1980, she since has moved to Texas): Farice Goode.

Best wishes on this project. I'd like to meet you when you get a little more time.

Sincerely,

Greg Brown
Public Information Officer
JOHN MAYE'S DESIGNATION as a "Negro leader", in the most, meaningful sense of that abused label, was unchallenged among those who knew leadership. He was highly intelligent, articulate, and balanced. He didn't shout, indulge in name-calling, or pound tables with his ample fist. He didn't have, for he was quite sure of his ground.

Those who dealt with him soon learned that he listened well, and when he spoke, he had something worthwhile to say. JOHN MAYE both listened and talked to some of the most powerful educational forces in our country and state.

His father, a powerful and articulate Baptist minister, whose sermons could "set any church on fire", was ahead of his time in that he spoke out against racial injustice when it was not popular to do so.

MAYE was a tall, brilliant-minded youth at Fleming Street School. He played football and worked at unskilled jobs to assist his brothers and sisters financially since his parents died early.

He graduated from A & T College in 1938, where he starred in football and track, attending four years on a football work-aid scholarship. In 1972 the A & T Alumni Association inducted him into the Sports Hall of Fame, posthumously, being nominated by his friend, colleague and fraternity brother, Howard C. Barnhill.

His first teaching experience began at the Pitt County Training School in Grimesland, North Carolina as math and social studies teacher. In 1943, he became principal of the Winterville Colored High School with the railroad track dividing the elementary and high school grades. During his principalship the school's name was changed to W. H. Robinson Union School, from a retired educator who lived and taught in Winterville. The faculty grew from eight teachers to fifty-nine and from less than three hundred students to over twelve hundred with an almost completely vamped physical structure and from six graduates in 1944 to one hundred in 1965, one of his major goals that he realized before complete integration of the schools in Pitt County.

In 1976, the Pitt County Board of Education named the new facility, the library/media center at Robinson Primary School in his honor and Robinson Heights, a subdivision behind the school in Winterville, you'll find Maye Drive, a street named in his honor.

He also appears in the 1967 edition of PERSONALITIES OF THE SOUTH and the Southeastern Division of the A & T Alumni Association in 1969 named him "The Alumnus of the Year."

During his lifetime he was widely recognized as one of Pitt County's more competent high school principals who happened to be Black. He died in Greenville in 1970, leaving behind him a rich legacy and memories of outstanding service as an administrator, a leader in political, social and fraternal circles as well as in his church, Sycamore Baptist, where he was a deacon, church treasurer, and the first director of the Board of Christian Education, as well as superintendent of the Sunday School.

On his marker or tombstone are inscribed the words: "Here lies a man."

Department of Community Colleges to recognize contributions to NC System

On Friday, January 27 at 7:30 p.m., the Department of Community Colleges will recognize years of service contributed by blacks to the NC Community College System.

The banquet will be a black-tie affair coordinated by the DCC Silver Anniversary Committee, and will be held at the Marriot Crabtree in Raleigh in conjunction with the 13th Annual Conference of the Southern Regional Council on Black American Affairs (an affiliate of AACJC).

The names of all blacks (professional and/or trustees) with one or more years of service will be included in a special publication to be distributed at the banquet. Persons identified will receive invitations to be in attendance for the recognition. For further information contact the PCC Personnel Office.

Why Is It? . . .

A man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised bed, in advertised pajamas, he will brush with advertised toothpaste, wash with advertised soap, shave with an advertised razor, have a breakfast of advertised orange juice, cereal and toast, sip his advertised coffee, put on advertised clothes and glance at his advertised watch.

He will ride to work in an advertised car, sit at an advertised desk, and write with an advertised pen. Yet this man hesitates to advertise saying that advertising does not pay. Finally when his unadvertised business goes under, he will advertise it for sale.

You have to pay price if you want to be boss

Mark Twain wrote before the turn of the century that "there are two times in a man's lifetime when he should not speculate — when he can't afford it and when he can."

And, to reinforce Twain's view on speculation, a thought appeared in Ideas for Better Living, stating that: "There are two kinds of people who don't say much — those who are quiet and those who talk a lot."

Those two revelations bring us to a modern day slang quote that many of us have seen displayed in places referring to the fact that, "one has to pay the cost to be the boss."

Most will agree that there is a bit of homespun philosophy in each of those statements, but try as one may, Tony Brown can't, and certainly we here can't convince enough African Americans to take seriously those homespun words.

There seems to be a narcissistic approach among too many African Americans that makes it expedient for them to stay cozy in the carryover from their childhood days; that is: "I can make a reasonable excuse and no one will ever be the wiser. In short they remain in that childhood state that makes them vulnerable to reality. They go on and on fooling themselves.

True, most of those type African Americans want recognition from their neighbors, but fooling one's self is no way to get it.

If one is hungry, simply telling his neighbor that he has just dined on a gourmet meal does not relieve his hunger pangs.

So it is with life itself. So it is with the struggle of the race to overcome. What we need is for African Americans to start paying the cost. Sure it is high, the cost that is, but by the same token it is well worth it.

African Americans sorely need to be honest with themselves; they need to support African American causes, patronize African American businesses, donate to worthy civic causes, look before they leap, and most of all they need to keep the faith and know for certain that the race does not always go to the swift, but to those who endure to the end.

Then, of course, they should always be mindful of their great heritage, and be willing to carry the torch for those yet unborn.

With that approach in mind, we feel definitely sure that African Americans will obtain recognition and future generations will be ever grateful for the man-like stand that they took in the face of adversity.

Couple wed by candlelight

The candlelight wedding of Jewel Faye Taft of Greenville and William Arthur Knight of Alexandria, Va., took place Saturday at 6 p.m.

Bishop T.L. Davis performed the double-ring ceremony in Progressive Free Will Baptist Church. Organist Barry Dixon and vocalist Marshall V. Taylor presented wedding music.

Daughter of Bernice Taft of Baltimore, Md., and Evelyn Taft of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. The bridegroom is the son of the late Georgianna Knight and Columbus Boyd.

Bridal attendants were Kathryn Maye of Greenville, maid of honor; Belinda Council of Greenville, matron of honor; and bridesmaids, Agnes Luster of Baltimore, sister of the bride; Theresa Walker of Washington, D.C., daughter of the bridegroom; Mary Baker and Delores Tyson, both of Greenville.

Christin Hemby of Greenville was flower girl and Ryan Luster of Baltimore, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Robert Atkinson of Clinton, Md., was best man. Groomsmen included Maurice Knight of Alexandria, son of the bridegroom, Melvin Taft of Baltimore, brother of the bride, Willie E. Gaskins of White Plains, N.Y., nephew of the bridegroom, Leon Luster Jr. of Baltimore, brother-in-law of the bride, and Herman Whitley of Washington, D.C., cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin. The bodice, accented with jeweled alencon lace, featured a sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves with alencon lace inserts. The basque waistline fell to a circular skirt and chapel train bordered with lace. She wore a chapel-length veil shaped in a V, laced with pearls and attached to a beaded tiara of pearls and sequins. The bride carried a silk cascade bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, stephanotis and daisies tied with matching streamers.

The attendants wore red satin gowns with chantilly lace overlays. The necklines were scoop and the sleeves were Renaissance design. The bodices were blouson and had fitted cummerbunds. The hemlines were high-low. Each wore a spray of baby's breath in their hair and carried a white long-stemmed silk mum with matching streamers. The flower girl carried a white wicker basket tied with matching streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a red chiffon dress with a dropped waistline. Gladys Gaskins of Stanford, Conn., sister of the bridegroom, sat in honor of their mother.

Shirley Williams of Greenville directed the ceremony.

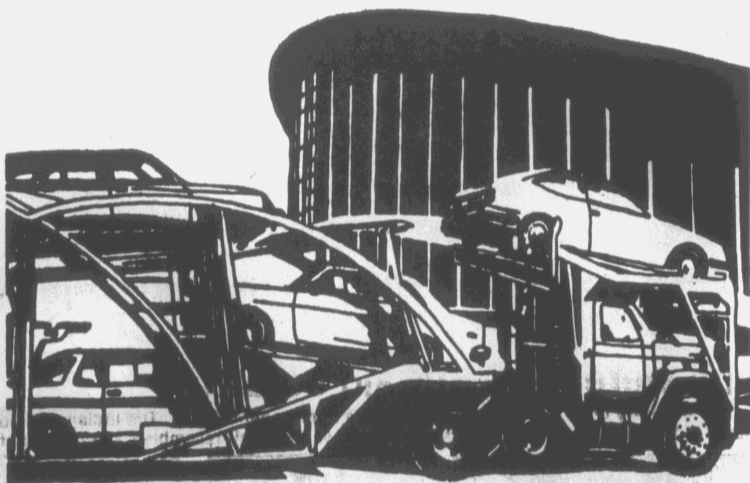

The bride's family and friends entertained at the Bachelor Benedict Club for a reception and cake cutting after the ceremony.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bride's family at the home. The bride was also honor at a miscellaneous shower.

The couple will live in Alexandria after a wedding trip to Barbados.

The bridegroom is self-employed.

1st Time Buyer's Program.

We are pleased to announce Nissan's new purchase program, good for a limited time only, just for people who've never bought a car before! You see, we believe your first car-buying experience should be as exciting (and as easy) as possible! If you:

- Have a permanent job,
- Have lived at the same address for 1 year,
- Have an income sufficient to make your payments,
- Have no credit (or a satisfactory rating),
- A valid driver's license, and
- A social security number, then you're eligible to buy one of our new Nissans! Perhaps with no cash down!

The requirements, as you can see, are quite basic and easily met. In fact, we're willing to bet you're eligible and didn't even know it!

Just think, you could be cruising down the highway in your brand-new Nissan—much sooner than you've ever dreamed possible! And by beginning with Nissan quality, dependability and value, you've already made your most important step: getting the right car.

Simply out out the credit application we've provided below. Fill it out and bring it to Leith Olds/Nissan. We'll be ready to start you on the road to your new car! And when you use your manufacturer's rebate, with absolutely no cash down!

ECU development to work with town of Murfreesboro

A downtown marketing and redevelopment plan for the town of Murfreesboro will be done by the Regional Development Institute at East Carolina University.

The institute will begin the project immediately under an $8,577 contract awarded through the town and the N.C. Department of National Resources and Community Development. Richard Brockett and Malcolm Simpson of the Regional Development Institute staff will direct the project.

"We're looking forward to working with a town that has the advantages of a college, a historical preservation district and a background of being a good place to live," said Brockett.

He said he hoped the Institute can solve some of the economic

Black History Month honors contemporary as well as past

Black History Month is the time when we focus on the rich past of African Americans and on the continuing contributions we make to America. And it's a time when, despite the many problems facing African Americans, we concentrate on the positives and honor those who have given so much.

For example, the U.S. Post Office is marking Black History Month by issuing a 25-cent stamp bearing the picture of the great labor and civil rights leader, A. Philip Randolph.

I suppose there are many people who do not know of Mr. Randolph, or of the extraordinary role he played in bringing blacks into the labor movement, removing barriers to black employment and helping to guide the civil rights movement, including organizing the great March on Washington in 1963.

During his long lifetime, Mr. Randolph went head-to-head with union bosses, employers, and even U.S. presidents. In 1941, he virtually forced President Roosevelt to issue an executive order barring discrimination in defense jobs by threatening a mass march on the nation's capital.

Black History Month also honors the many black scientists, legal experts, writers, statesmen and others who should be given greater recognition for their accomplishments.

Just to cite one contemporary example, General Colin Powell stepped in to head the National Security Council after that agency was severely damaged by the Iran-Contra scandal and the sleazy adventures of those who defied the law and their responsibilities.

General Powell not only cleaned up the mess, but presided over foreign policy initiatives that have led to a safer world and the prospects of a new, healthier relationship with the Soviets that ends the Cold War.

Now he will get his fourth star and take command of all U.S.-based troops, with responsibility for defense of the continental United States. And he's been widely talked of as the next U.S. Chief of Staff.

Thus, General Powell exemplifies the point that the accomplishments of African Americans are broad and widespread. Black History Month should be a time for schools and other institutions to honor those accomplishments, whether in the activism of civil rights or whether in such mainstream institutions as the Army or the National Security Council.

Black History Month is also a time for African Americans to renew their commitment to their community institutions, such as the church, the black colleges, and the community-based social welfare and civil rights advocacy agencies that have spearheaded our progress.

That's why one of the most important events of 1988 was the Bill Cosby family's gift of $20 million to Spelman College. It reflected so many important things - the black commitment to philanthropy, the crucial nature of black institutions of higher learning to our past and our future, and the social responsibility of blacks who have made it.

The panoply of black contributions to America and the extraordinary progress we have made despite tremendous odds is certainly reflected in the three men I've mentioned in this column - a labor leader who organized the sleeping car porters into the first effective black union and blazed a trail of leadership in labor and in civil rights for half-a-century, a military leader and presidential foreign policy advisor, and an actor, producer, and philanthropist.

John & Candi Staton Sussewell

They Will Be Ministering In Word And Song
Friday & Saturday, February 24 & 25 • 7:30 Nightly
Sunday, February 26 • 6:30 P.M.

Rev. John Sussewell and his wife, Candi Staton, were once successes in popular music.

Mr. Sussewell was a seasoned percussionist who'd played for the likes of Dinah Ross and Ashford & Simpson, while Ms. Staton scored several big R&B hits and was in demand nationwide for club dates and recording sessions.

But both maintain that their lives today are richer and fuller, and that when they became born-again Christians the subsequent changes were so beneficial they had to tell others their story.

NAACP director says he will violent reaction. Tolerance of his behavior would make it more difficult to maintain a safe campus," Eakin said. "One of the victims assaulted suffered a broken nose and another suffered serious head lacerations," Eakin said. Schatzman said White's reaction can't be condoned, he said both sides involved in the issue should have equal penalty. "But both sides should be given a fair penalty or it should be nullified," Schatzman said.

In the Chancellor's Feb. 8 letter, he states "My review of the matter indicates that Mr. White was charged and disciplined in accordance with applicable university procedures. I found no material procedural irregularities."

But Schatzman disagrees. Schatzman said Teddy White identified John Bateman as the instigator of the incident to Ronald Speier, assistant dean of student life, but wasn't part of the Chancellor's record.

He also said Speier insisted

John Eagan, the SGA public defender in 1988, defend White. Speier and Eagan misled White, according to Schatzman.

Schatzman said both Speier and Eagan "assured Mr. White that the situation would be taken care of and there would be no need to bring Mr. White's witnesses, who heard and saw Mr. Bateman's and his friends' provoking verbal assaults, to the Honor Board hearing."

White's witness to the incident, who appeared in Pitt County Court, named all but Bateman as the students making the racial slurs, according to Bateman.

In Schatzman's letter to Eakin, the NAACP director said he has asked Max Joyner, Jr., the chairman of ECU's Board of Trustees, to conduct an investigation after the Chancellor closed the White case last week.

"If Mr. Joyner goes no further than the "records" that your administration believes are complete, then we must go higher to seek justice," Schatzman said.

Our key to progress? — It's economics

By ROBERT WOODSON

The real test of black leadership is the very one that black leaders have never been compelled to take. The question they should be made to answer is this: Why have the civil rights gains of the past 20 years bypassed poor blacks, even in those cities that blacks control and dominate?

The national civil rights leaders rarely challenge themselves with that question. Instead they continue to look to white America for the key to black progress.

Several of these black leaders met during the campaign with the presidential candidates, George Bush and Michael Dukakis, still trying to appeal to white political leaders' sense of fairness toward black America. Their agenda was a familiar one: defense cuts, increased government spending on social programs for the poor, affirmative action, job training, etc.

Black leaders took the same approach more than a decade ago, meeting with President Carter early in his term to discuss the concerns of black Americans. When asked by reporters what came out of the meeting, the leaders said the president had been "responsive."

The cycle continues — disappointment with presumed white friends, disdain for alleged white enemies. Year after year, a vague agenda of jobs, peace and freedom is advanced with few, if any specific remedies for the real problem faced by black America: the need to build strong black economic institutions, not simply to redistribute income from whites to blacks.

Continued emphasis on political empowerment as the salvation for black America is misleading. This posture leads to the erroneous assumption that when blacks are in charge (hold significant offices), then all blacks will benefit. Not so.

Seven of the 12 largest American cities have black mayors, some of whom have been in office for as long as 15 years. When these mayors boast of progress made in their respective cities, they invariably point to booming downtown development. But what of the neighborhoods where the poor blacks live? Are the circumstances of their lives included in these lousy statements about "boomtowns?" Sadly, the answer is no. Poor blacks are no better off in cities controlled by blacks than in those dominated by whites.

The re-circulation of income in a community is the heart of its economic life.

Daniels is saluted in honor of Black History Month

JOE LOUIS DANIELS

In honor of Black History Month, I would like to salute Mr. Joe Louis Daniels, the first and only Black tobacco buyer for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

He started in the business in 1953, learning the trade from scratch. While working with his brother, Jessie, and the late Jack Teel, he acquired the necessary skills that for so long were forbidden to anyone of color. But in spite of all the usual obstacles in his path, he succeeded and paved the way for the doors to stay open to all of us.

As with any struggle, Mr. Daniels and wife, Medessa, have managed to strive for excellence in their life, while raising five beautiful children. The community of Scotland Neck and the nation are a better place for the efforts and success of Mr. Daniels achievements. Another step for equality.

No one is perfect, our brother Jesse would attest to that. There is an old saying 'that charity begins at home and spreads abroad." This describes the actions of our brother Jesse L. Daniels. Throughout his life Jesse has worked very diligently. As a youth Jesse matured early, faced with the responsibility of helping his mother support his brothers and sisters. As an adult, he married the late Emma Daniels and raised 5 children.

Jesse has been active in the business community for a number of years. Throughout his life he has paved the way for other blacks. Not only by his actions but also by his achievements. Jesse was one of the first black licensed tobacco buyers in the United States.

1989 Subaru 3 Year/36,000 Mile bumper-to-bumper warranty!

In the 50's Jesse made a decision, a decision that would affect him for the rest of his life. He joined the SCLS under the tutelage of the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. He has worked side by side with Dr. King and others to bring about social changes. He has been at the forefront of many marches. Jesse has also spent time in jail for the same causes that Dr. King died for, civil rights.

Not one to rest on his laurels, through his altruism and innovative ideas, he is still working to bring about changes in this racist and unjust society.

He is a firm believer in "If something is not worth dying for, it is not worth living for." and he truly lives his life this way. Jesse L. Daniels epitomizes the spirit and determination of such great men as the immortal Dr. King and Reverend Jesse Jackson.

ANN BROWN

MY MOTHER

This person may not be famous but in my eyes she's a star. She has contributed more to society than anyone I know. I'm talking about my mother, Ann Brown. She's a beautiful, caring, emotional, dedicated, and overall intelligent woman. Over seven years ago she had the incentive and wisdom to realize she wanted more out of life than what she had. So with consideration and prayer she entered a business not realizing what she would get out of it. Her life changed completely after making that commitment. Her motto was and still is God first, Family second, and Business third. With her priorities set in this order she made it to the top in no time. She's won four cars and numerous other prizes.

She helps other people by giving them a decision. The decision is if you don't like what you're doing, change. Try a business where you're the boss, you set your own hours and can make more in two hours than you can working two weeks on a regular job. She has turned many people's lives around by just spreading her love and knowledge. I feel my mother has contributed more to society than anyone.

Biography

Married to Bobby Brown for 22 years. Has three children—Tonya, 18; Jaki, 17; Bobbi, 9.

Wins another car in July (Cadillac).

Broke in two directors: Brenda Leary and Lola Thompson.

Returned from Phoenix last month where she had been two weeks.

Has over 100 people in unit which is named Brown's Busy Bees.

Independent sales director working to be national before half the year is through.

Anne's Temporaries, Inc. is aquired by the Interim Systems Group

It was recently announced, Anne's Temporaries, Inc.—based in Greenville, N.C.—was acquired by the Interim Systems Group of Chicago on December 22, 1988.

Anne's began offering temporary help service to the Greenville area in 1978 and has since opened offices in Kinston, New Bern, Rocky Mount, and Washington.

Last year, Anne's reported over 40 percent growth and was at a stage where the company needed additional capital to continue growing at this rate.

"We selected Interim Services for the acquisition," said Anne Sneed, "because we liked their people and their way of doing business."

Interim is itself a rapidly growing business, having acquired 17 independent services in 1988. It's acquisition will provide Anne's with the capital and national backing it needs to expand even further.

Anne Sneed will continue to run the company as General Manager and David Sneed will stay on as Area Sales Manager. No changes in staff or in service to clients is planned. Anne's will retain its name and its strong commitment to Eastern North Carolina.

Business Notes

Greenville native, James Adams came to WRAL-TV in 1983 from a similar position with Xerox. In 1988, many additional responsibilities were directed at James. The new accounts and assignments did not slow him one bit.

In fact, James excelled in his individual performance. While handling one of the station's largest account lists, he secured 110% of his individual budgeted goal. He exploded his new business quota by 80%.

James' contribution is greater than the revenue generated. His whole approach is within a team orientation. The entire system, i.e., people and process, has been improved through his participation. He is a leader by example. James is a graduate of East Carolina, with a degree in Business Administration. He is an active member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the Triangle Advertising Federation.

James, his wife, Cora, and daughter, Ashley, reside in Durham, and are natives of Greenville. Adams was honored for some five million dollars plus he generated through his sales.

Mr. Adams was also one of the first African-Americans to attend and graduate from ECU.
