"A Good Man Is Hard To Find" returns to the Greenville area

These words. . . "Greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world.". must have surfaced from Rev. David Payton's subconscious when he was laughed at and ridiculed as he embarked on a new mission-writing and producing a play, because of the misguided belief that "good" talent could only be found in the North. Not to be easily dissuaded, Payton pressed on with "mustard seed" faith and some local talent, and produced "A Good Man Is Hard To Find". With just the right blend of his own life experiences, his love of music and comedy, and his passion for the Word of God, Rev. Payton came up with the perfect ingredients for his "recipe" . . . ("A Good Man Is Hard To Find"). The result of which is an inspirational, yet entertaining, thought provoking dramatization of God's power to heal and set free. A play that emphatically demonstrates how faith in God can sustain families through any type of adversity. Concerns like depression, unwed pregnancies, child abuse, low selfesteem, gang violence, alcoholism, AIDS, peer pressure, parental desertion/abandonment, spirituality, homelessness, aggressive egoes, etc, and the devasting toll they take on all of us are addressed in a realistically, sobering manner. With "A Good Man Is Hard To Find", Rev. Payton demonstrates how we can successfully overcome these obstacles if we would but adopt the positive attitude of "The Little Engine" . . . ("I think I can, I think I can, I think I can") and face

Now in its 3rd consecutive year of performing to sell-out audiences in major cities like New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Orlando, etc., "A Good Man Is Hard To Find" is blazing a trail with powerful, inspiring performances making it the #1 most requested spiritual play in the country.

"A Good Man Is Hard To Find" stars D'Wayne Whitehead, Vickie Holland, national recording artist D'Atra Hicks, Palmer Williams, Reverend Sam Turner, Desmond Pringle, and a cast of seasoned performers.

Hampton Jazz Festival a success

On Friday, opening night of the 27th annual Hampton (Va) Jazz Festival, saxophonist Gerald Albright stopped, in the middle of his set, to tell enthusiastic, finger popping fans, "I love coming to Hampton! Thank you Hampton for all your wonderful support and thanks for buying our CDs!"

Later, during interviews in the Coliseum's press room, he said he likes to keep track of his record sales regionally, and his SMOOTH album is "booming" in the Hampton/Tidewater area. He and his singing side-kick, Lalah (Continued on page three)

Housing Bill passes with Clayton's changes to Section 515 Program

The U.S. House of Representatives passed the Housing and Community Development Act of 1994, H.R. 3838, that includes many of the changes to the Farmers Home Administration's Section 515 Rural Rental Housing program introduced by Representative Eva Clayton (D-N.C.).

In June, Clayton responded to a report which was presented to the Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee naming many shortfalls in the Section 515 program. Clayton submitted the bill, H.R. 4579, which reformed the program and increased funding from the

Ronald McDonald House and Ronald McDonald Children's Charities

Different organizations working toward the same goal

The Ronald McDonald House (RMH) and Ronald McDonald Children's Charities (RMCC) may share the same first names, but the two are not one in the same. They are both working toward the same goal: to help children and their families, and both are notfor-profit corporations, but the similarities end there.

"Because both Ronald McDonald House and Ronald McDonald's Children's Charities share an affiliation with McDonald's, it is easy for the public to assume we are the same," said Stephanie Barnard, Public Relations Director for the Ronald McDonald House in Greenville. "We do have several distinct differences, however."

The Ronald McDonald Houses around the world act as a lodging, or a "home away from home" for the families of seriously ill children visiting local children's hospitals. The House in Greenville primarily serves eastern North Carolina, and is called the Ronald McDonald House of Eastern North Carolina. All houses operate separately from each other, but share the same mission.

The Ronald McDonald Houses stemmed from a relationship with McDonald's in 1973, when Philadelphia Eagles football player, Fred Hill and his wife, Fran. learned that their daughter, Kim, had leukemia. The Hills noticed that other families, like them, had to drive long distances to be with their sick children only to have to eat from hospital vending machines and sleep in waiting room chairs, for lack of a better place to stay. Fred Hill and his football team decided to build these families a "home away from home" in Philadelphia. They teamed up with local McDonald's owner/operators to raise money for the purchase and restoration of a house near the hospital where families could stay.

While McDonald's helps to build Ronald McDonald Houses and contributes to their operating budgets, they do not own or operate the Houses. In fact, each Ronald McDonald House is operated by a volunteer Board of Directors. which includes McDonald's, hospital, and community representathan 150 Houses were built in cities around the world, including the four Ronald McDonald Houses in North Carolina, which are located in Chapel Hill, Durham, Greenville, and Winston-Salem. According to Mrs. Barnard, the House in Greenville was opened on Father's Day 1987. It was sponsored by Raleigh Region McDonald's Operators Association, Citizens of Pitt County, the Kate B. Reynolds Health Care Trust Fund, Branch Banking and Trust Company, The Brody Foundation, Ronald McDonald's Children's Charities and the Ashley Quinn Trust Fund, as well as many individuals and compa-

"People often assume we are funded 100% by McDonald's and therefore do not need the support of the community," said Mrs. Barnard. "In fact, McDonald's contributes about 10% of our operating budget, another 10% comes from room fees and the remaining 80% comes from the community." The fours Ronald McDonald Houses in North Carolina share the proceeds from the Michael Jordan Celebrity Golf Classic, which is held in Greenville. Other Ronald McDonald Houses throughout the nation rely on community support to start-up and operate also.

Founded in 1984, in memory of McDonald's founder Ray Kroc, Ronald McDonald's Children's Charities is a national charitable foundation that was established to promote the development and well-being of children. It has awarded over $55 million in grants Ronald McDonald Houses, and will continue to help with their fund-tion on programs that help children in three areas:1)health care and medical research, 2)education and the arts, and 3) civic and social

Ronald McDonald Children Charities of North Carolina (RMCC of NC) donates annually to the North Carolina Houses' operating and endowment funds. Each Ronald McDonald House in North Carolina must apply for grants from RMCC of NC to explain their need for money. RMCC of NC raises grant money by organizing state-wide fundraisers and Owner/Operator donations as well as in-store promotions and acrylic "houses" for collecting customer donations in McDonald's restaurants. So while Ronald McDonald Children's Charities gives money to the Ronald McDonald Houses, it does not own or operate them.

Ronald McDonald Houses and Ronald McDonald Children's Charities may be different organizations, but they share the same goal: helping children and their families to have a better tomor-

King. On Saturday, the all-jazz second night of the Festival, Jack Jenkins, a fifty-something-yearold veteran of a dozen HJFs, and one of the 31,000+ fans who filled the coliseum over the weekend, paused while "scratching -off" a Virginia lottery ticket just purchased at the special display in the Coliseum lobby. "This is the best music I've heard in years—at least, since the last time I came here for the Silver Anniversary!" The evening's bill featured acoustic guitarist Earl Klugh, pianist Ramsey Lewis, the Count Bassie Orchestra with blues crooner Joe Williams, and Jazz Explosion featuring George Duke, Rachelle Ferrell, Will Downing, and George Howard.

Later, when he joined his friends dancing to live music in a nearby hotel lounge, Jenkins said, "This trip is the highlight of my whole year! I love coming to the HJF!"

On Sunday, the closing afternoon of the Festival, an AT&T employee, who was handing out keyrings and sewing kits emblazoned with her company's logo, said, "Don't tell my boss and don't use my name, but this is the best part about working for this company—coming here, meeting these people, and tripping on this music!"

The final day's billing included makes necessary reforms to many of the programs covered under this bill. The bill includes programs directed toward the community and economic development and revitalization.

"The Section 515 Rental Housing Program has been essential to the housing needs of our citizens in rural areas," says Clayton. "It serves the elderly, the handicapped, the disabled, women and minorities."

Currently, there are more than 440,000 families being served by this program in the United States. Within the First Congressional District more than 4,000 families and 1000 elderly households are being served.

"Strengthening the 515 program, will provide many more opportunities for needy families in rural areas across the United States to reach their dream of safe, decent and affordable housing," Clayton stated.

local favorite songstress Connie Parker, R&R originator Little Richard, and soul diva Patti LaBelle.

Later, when the concert was over and the next work week became a reality, the unidentified summer sun, a local merchant who is also a music buff, smiled into his cash drawer. "This is always the best weekend of my entire fiscal year. The HJFers come here to have fun, but they don't play when it comes time to pay!"

Later, after his college chums, all HJF regulars, had said their goodbyes and packed away their good buys from his stock of African inspired paraphernalia, he said, "I can't wait for the next HJF—I just hope my shop will survive 'til then."

Now, after all is said and sung, everyone agrees that the 27th Annual Hampton Jazz Festival was a spectacular highlight in the history of this longest-running American celebration of jazz and its offspring. Every one of them is already for next year—HJF 28, June 23, 24, and 25, 1995, in the Hampton Coliseum.

This tradition that began as a one-time special event is co-sponsored by Hampton University, the City of Hampton, and New York's Festival Productions, Inc. Founded in 1968, by then-college President Jerome Holland, then-Mayor Anne Kilgore, and international jazz impresario George Wein, the annual gathering of music lovers was originally staged to celebrate the college's 100 Anniversary. It has survived four presidents of the college, and three mayors of the city. It is a brilliant jewel in the string of internationally famous Festival Productions musical showcases, which include the Newport (RI), Monterey (CA), and New Orleans(LA) Festivals.

It is a favorite of fans because it delivers three-days' worth of top-named talent for less that a week's worth of family-entertainment dollars. It is a favorite among the ducer George Duke and one of his current Jazz Explosion co-stars, vocalist Rachelle Ferrell agree, "Hampton's audiences are truly sophisticated. They appreciate good music and they let us know it!"

It is a favorite among corporate sponsors, because, with numerous production projects, lots of lobby exhibit space, and three huge video screens over the stage it gives them graphic, high visible exposure to a hard-to-reach, hard-to-sell, upscale, African-American market—and lot of potential customers.

The economic and social impact of the event is sizable and undeniable. As Festival publicists put it, in the current edition of their annually collectible Souvenir Program Book, the Festival's thousands of fans cannot be ignored, "because there are too many of you, spending too much time and

The Coliseum was decorated with banners, flyers, and special exhibit booths bearing the logos of this year's corporate sponsors. They included Coors Brewing, Anheuser Busch, Gately Communicatins Company, and Contel Cellular, as well as Crestar Bank, Burger King, and Mid-Atlantic Coca-Cola, who cooperated to sponsor the Souvenir Program Book. Banners were also displayed for USAir, the official airline of the Festival, and AT&T, the official long distance service. AT&T also sponsored the video screens for this year's festival. On behalf of the hosts and sponsors, local associate producer, John Scott, has promised another history-making list of stars and more legendary good times for fans in 1995. Announcements will be made early next year and John Scott encourages out-of-town fans, who comprise about 60 percent of the audience, to make hotel reservations early. He concludes, Nobody wants to miss this next show! It's going to be awesome-again."

Court upholds Clayton's First District

A United States District Court panel announced Monday its decision to uphold the 1st and 12th Congressional District and dismiss a challenge to a proposed redistricting plan.

"I amvery pleased that the North Carolina Federal District Courts have upheld the redistricting plan and ruled that there was no violation of any rights of the plaintiffs or their supporting intervenors," Clayton said in a news conference last night. "Hopefully this decision will set the pace for other voting rights cases now being challenged."

The court case resulted from 1992 congressional redistricting that provided representation for North Carolina's diverse population. Nearly two years ago, a panel of federal judges dismissed the suit, filed by five Democrats from Durham. However, the lower court's decision was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. In a 5-4 decision last summer the Supreme Court directed the federal district courts to make a determination.

The case was returned from the higher court back to U.S. District Court this spring.

"North Carolina courts have had a deliberate and reasoned record," said Clayton. "They followed the instructions of the U.S. Supreme Court in gathering the facts to make a determination if there has been gerrymandering.

"All the attorneys involved on our side did an excellent job," Clayton said.

WHO IS IN CONTROL?

Who knows the effect of drugs, violence (killing), alcohol related accidents and deaths, domestic violence and child abuse as seen especially on TV and in the newspa-

Surely much screening needs to be done and more emphasis placed on books and reading, school attendance and more scholarly efforts as encouraged by parents and teachers and self esteem boosted by kids themselves.

Young men, particularly, who should be holding down good jobs, preparing themselves academically, economically and morally for marriage, ownership of homes and the rearing of fine children are seen instead hanging on the streets, perhaps looking for a livelihood from drugs and drug push-

What are we doing - parents, community leaders and churches to minimize this dilemma? The question is - Who controls your life? What do you want from living? Nobody makes you do anything, not even peer pressure. You must always be in control of YOU. Put your life in God's hands. The iails are not so full that a place can't be found for you. The next statistic might or could be you. Think?

Positive Steps Toward Longevity and Youthfulness

- 1. Maintain a cheerful attitude.
- 2. Don't be a complainer. 3. Plan an assured living in-

- 5. Control your weight and reduce it if necessary.
- 6. Find something to look forward to.
- 7. Rest regularly and adequately.

Positive Steps Toward Longer Life in Retirement

1. Consider selling the old house and moving to smaller quarters. 2. Weigh carefully whether to provide greater happiness. 3. Apartment or smaller-house living seems best for most, retirement communities might prove satisfactory, if you like to see a lot

4. Don't buy a farm unless you love the soil, know something about farming, and are willing to work hard and be lonesome.

5. Moving in with son's or daughter's family is usually creating an area of turbulence. For most, it's the road to anguish rather than contentment.

Professor Blackmon Provides Assistance in Producing Future Scientists For America

PROFESSOR RONALD BLACKMON Biology Department Elizabeth City State University

Blackmon Credits Teachers for His Success

As early as the 5th grade, Ronald Blackmon had a love for plants and astronomy. He had aspirations to become a scientist and growing up in Philadelphia did not change his mind. "I grew up in a large urban area - Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. It did not have many green (trees) but there were city parks. The access to the parks and the excellent public library system enabled me to develop an interest in science," said Blackmon.

Blackmon also credits his elementary teachers who encouraged him, particularly Grace Hobson and Emma Knox. "I had the good fortune to have very caring and competent elementary teachers. These individuals guided me," Blackmon said. "They were disciplinarians."

He never deviated from his childhood dreams. Blackmon received his terminal degree from Howard University in 1988. In 1989, he received a telephone call from Elizabeth City State University's biology department and decided to join the faculty. "I enjoy interacting with students. It is my hope that in my capacity as a biology instructor at Elizabeth City State University that I can excite students about science. The future of our nation relies on our maintenance of a technologically sophisticated economy," Blackmon said.

Blackmon's positive attitude has made a difference, according to Curtis Turnage, biology department chairman,. "He is an exceptionally talented person. He is committed to the pursuit of research. And he is well aware of the significant of that research in the advancement of new knowledge in biotechnological sciences,' Turnage said. "He demonstrates an enthusiasm for the biological sciences that permeates in his association with students."

But although Blackmon is very involved in producing college scientists, he takes time to participate in an area math and science program (MSEN) to attract middle and high school students to science and biotechnology.

"My mission is to produce scientists. I can see this program making a significant contribution," Blackmon said. "One goal of the Elizabeth City State University Biotechnology Program Initiative is to provide training in biotechnology. We have received nearly $300,000 during the past two years. These funds will help us create innovative programs for this region."

If ever there was a positive role model who gives an inspirational and provocative message, it is Blackmon. He has an impeccable record of accomplishments. His resume lists numerous awards and scientific publications, but it is his personal commitment that comes through when he is discussing students and the biotechnology pro-
