ies. Yet, Vice President Gore's subsequent response was that Ms. O'Leary was doing a fabulous job reinventing government and eliminating unnecessary spending.

In the meantime, given everything that Mr. Dale and his family and former colleagues have gone through over the past two and a half years, I hope that you will direct your attorneys and surrogates to cease their senseless attacks on Mr. Dale. Enough is enough.

Attitude
"The longer I live, the more I realize the impact of attitude on life.

Attitude, to me, is more important than facts.

It is more important than the past, than education, than circumstances, than failures, than successes, than what other people think or say or do.

It is more important than appearance, giftedness or skill.

It will make or break a company...a church...a home!

The remarkable thing is we have a choice every day regarding the attitude we will embrace for that day. We cannot change our past...we cannot change the fact that people will act in a certain way. We cannot change the inevitable. The only thing we can do is play on the one string we have, and this is our attitude...

I am convinced that life is 10% what happens to me and 90% how I react to it. And so it is with you, we are in charge of our ATTITUDES."

Advice for Seniors: The Ten Commandments of Retirement by Terry Rohe

1. Thou shalt make plans. Take up a new hobby. Get active in your community, and thing that keeps your mind and body active.

2. Thou shalt look at the brighter side. Be optimistic. Remember, aging is a positive life experience.

3. Thou shalt not whine. It's a time-waster and won't win you any friends.

4. Thou shalt write one cheerful letter to someone every week. Sharing your thoughts makes you feel great.

5. Thou shalt laugh often, deeply and loudly. Laughing is not only good for the heart, but it also reminds others you still have sense of humor.

6. Thou shalt make a list of twenty things you've always wanted to do and do them one at a time. Consider retirement an invitation to finally make your dreams a reality.

7. Thou shalt wear out rather than rust out. Spend your time creating new memories. Stay active.

8. Thou shalt think big thoughts and enjoy small pleasures. Don't restrict yourself.

9. Thou shalt travel. There is no time like the present to see sites or visit family and friends.

10. Thou shalt sign your living will. Don't think of this as a negative. It's the smart thing to do as an adult.

People Manners .....

We use good manners out of respect for ourselves and others, not because others are courteous, but because we are. Even those who are rude to us should be treated politely. We shouldn't let a rude person create the atmosphere around us.

When we are gracious, we show kindness and warmth.

When we are courteous, we show good manners toward others.

When we are considerate, we are thoughtful and attentive.

When we are respectful, we admire and appreciate others.

We're gracious when we:

Ask, "May I, please?"

Respond, "Thank you."

Say, "Excuse me" or "Sir?" or "Ma'am?" when we haven't heard what was said.

Say, "Excuse me" when we walk in front of someone.

We're courteous when we:

Open and close doors for others. Assist others with coats and packages.

Ten Commandments for getting along with people

1. Keep skid chains on your tongue; always say less than you think. How you say it often counts for more than what you say.

2. Make promises sparingly and keep them faithfully.

3. Never let an opportunity pass to say a kind and encouraging word to or about somebody.

4. Be interested in others. Let everyone you meet feel that you regard him or her as someone important.

5. Be cheerful. Hide your pains, worries and disappointments under a smile.

6. Preserve an open mind on all debatable questions. Discuss, but do not argue.

7. Let your virtues speak for themselves and refuse to talk about another person's vices. make it a rule to say nothing about someone unless it's something good.

8. Be careful of other people's feelings. Wit and humor at someone else's expense are rarely worth the effort and may hurt when least expected.

9. Pay no attention to ill-natured remarks about you. Simply live so that nobody will believe them.

10. Don't be too anxious about your dues. Do your work, be patient, keep a pleasant disposition, forget self, and you will be rewarded.

Placards designed by students are featured on city buses

Bus placards featuring slogans by local Winston-Salem Forsyth County school students are currently running on city buses. The students from Bolton Elementary and Wiley Middle Schools worked with artist, Willie Birch, as part of the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art's (SECCA) recent Artist and the Community program. Structured as a series of residencies resulting in the creation of new work, Artist and the Community invites artists to focus on issues critical to Winston-Salem. Working with community-based institutions, the program forges a link between artists and diverse groups of community members.

Working with SECCA staff and Winston-Salem Forsyth County School personnel, Birch facilitated a six-week-long residency with fourth, fifth and sixth grade students from Wiley Middle and Bolton Elementary Schools. His goal was to encourage children to voice their opinions and be involved in the civic process through the creation of large and highly visible public works that cannot be ignored by adults. The group projects resulted in public bus placards that addressed racism. Examples of the students' slogans were: See No Racism, Hear No Racism, Speak no Racism; Racism Hurts; and Color Doesn't Make a Difference. Additionally, a mural (based on the theme of "unity") was painted by the Bolton students on the front of Bolton Elementary School.

The buses are currently running in the neighborhoods of Wiley Middle and Bolton Elementary Schools. The placards will remain on the city buses at least through mid-February.

Walton, and in the plans are programs coordinated with Black churches around the nation.

Farrakhan, on the other hand, has been rejected by Simon & Schuster and Random House. Farrakhan's asking $6 million for his story to be written with Nathan McCall, a Washington Post reporter, on leave. McCall's book, "Makes Me Wanna Holler: A Young Black Man in America," is out this year at Random House. The book project emerged well before the Million Man March in October. It has been stated in published news reports in The New York Observer that Harper Collins also passed on the book, and that some of the editors and staff at both Random House and Simon & Schuster were so rankled that they threatened to resign if either house published Farrakhan's book.

Our Savior

Upon the earth, our Savior walked With His disciples, He daily talked.

The words of His Father, He did speak... Those who were lost, He did seek.

To the cross, our Savior went; From the top to the bottom, the veil was rent.

In the tomb, our Savior did lay; Our Heavenly Father raised Him up on the third day.

Death, hell, and the grave, He did defeat. His mission earth, He did complete.

Our Savior's great name is known throughout the land. His Father's will He did fulfill; Now He's seated at His right hand.

CP&L brings winter heating help

Money from Carolina Power & Light's Project Share emergency heating fund is again helping warm needy households and provide life-saving warmth for low-income CP&L customers in North Carolina.

CP&L recently sent more than $332,300 in emergency heating funds to counties in CP&L's service area in North Carolina. It was the utility's first Project Share allocation in 1996 and second of the winter.

Project Share was established in 1982. Over the years, the fund has distributed more than $8.3 million to help heat more than 70,000 homes in the Carolinas. The latest allocation will help heat about 2,300 homes in North Carolina.

Funds are available through county social services departments and are used to help pay heating costs, regardless of the type of fuel used. According to the 1990 census, 14 percent of the residents in CP&L's North Carolina service area have incomes at the poverty level.

"We're grateful to our customers and employees who have contributed to Project Share over the years," said Barbara Allen, CP&L's manager of Community Relations. "Thanks to their generosity, we collected a record amount of Project Share funds in 1995."

Project Share contributions come from CP&L customers, employees, shareholders and civic, church and community groups. CP&L matches dollar-for-dollar up to $250,000 yearly. The utility and administering agencies absorb all administrative costs of the program.

Assistance is available to households that are at poverty-level income, have received a disconnection notice from their heating vendor or are out of heating fuel, and are CP&L residential customers.

For information on receiving assistance from Project Share, customers should contact their local social services department. For

First Citizens Bank salutes the accomplishments of Historically Black Colleges & Universities. Born during a time when educating African Americans was not acceptable, these institutions stand today as a proud testament to the power of the human will.

At First Citizens Bank we understand the importance of that power and appreciate the special role that these schools have played in shaping better lives. That's why, from education loans and home mortgages, to savings and investment plans, we're doing everything we can to make the power of finance available to be used by the power of your will.

There's Only One Rational Reason For Not Advertising In The 'M' Voice Newspaper.

You've Already Got More Business Than You Can Handle.

Nothing makes the cash register ring like a newspaper ad. Studies prove it. For instance, newspaper ads more than doubles the sale of package goods. (Not increases, doubles it.) And we're not talking about fire sales and cents-off items. No, we're talking package goods at full-blown, retail prices. Now that's what you call a powerful advertising medium. And coincidentally, that's exactly what consumers call it too.

In survey after survey, they cite newspapers as the medium of choice for shopping advice. The place they turn when they want to buy. The place they're actually looking for ads, not trying to avoid them. (Ha, bet you never heard anyone say that about T.V. or radio.) The point is pretty clear. You should be advertising in the 'M' Voice Newspaper. Unless of course, you've got some strange aversion to sales.
