THE LEGISLATURE.

BOTH HOUSES DULY ORGANIZED

Walser Made Speaker of the House.

(Special to the Reflector.)

RALEIGH, N. C., January 9th.

Both houses of Legislature met at noon, all members present. Those of the House were sworn in by Judge Walter Clark. Notices of several contests were given. Only four colored members. Attendance of spectators very large.

Lusk, of Buncombe, nominated Z. V. Walser, Republican, of Davidson, for Speaker and Peebles, of Northampton nominated J. F. Ray, Democrat, of Macon. Vote—Walser 72, Ray 43. Walser voted for Lusk.

L. P. Satterfield, of Person, elected Principal Clerk: J. M. Brown voted for by Democrats. John W. Chapin elected Reading Clerk; Democrats voting for H. A. Latham.

Lt. Gov. Doughton called Senate to order. Chief Clerk—W. G. Burkhead and H. E. King nominated. King elected. Reading Clerk—Spencer Blackburn and Wiley Rush nominated. Blackburn elected. Door Keeper—T. N. Halliburton and W. V. Clifton nominated, Halliburton elected. Asst. Door Keeper—Hon. Mr. Babb elected. Engrossing Clerk—Wallace and Blair nominated, Wallace elected.

Message was sent to House notifying that body the Senate was duly organized and a committee appointed to wait on the Governor and inform him the Senate had organized and ready to receive any communication from him.

Solicitor Shaw is an able prosecutor, and considering that he came here and took hold of a docket with which he was entirely unfamiliar his success so far is remarkable. He and Judge Coble are both making a splendid impression.

Entered as second-class mail matter.

The Legislature meets to day. Many predict that it is to be a truly radical body, others say that it will be conservative. The next sixty days will verify one of these predictions. The tone of the first issue of the Daily Kansan would indicate that it is to be any thing but a conservative body. It does not believe in going slow. We shall see what we shall see.

In the absence of Vice-President Stevenson and Senator Harris, who was speaker pro tem of the Senate, Senator Ransom has been elected Speaker pro tem of the United States Senate. This is an honor worthily bestowed. Senator Ransom has been in public service for a long time, and richly deserves any honor that can be conferred upon him.

Last year John Eckman, of Lawrence County, Pa., killed a couple of skunks and sold their hides for $2 each. He concluded that at that rate it would be a profitable business, says an exchange, to raise the animals for their hides. He built an enclosure of some two acres, arranging it so that the animals could not burrow under the walls, and trapped some thirty skunks to stock it. He now has 330, and expects next year to have 3,000. The skunk breeds twice in the year and produces seven to nine at a litter, so the rate of increase is kept down by a habit the animals have of killing the first litter when the second one is born. Mr. Eckman feeds the animals with offal from the slaughter house, refuse meat and milk. He says that his pets are very tame and inoffensive, and never emit their characteristic odor save when fighting. He thinks that his skunk farm will soon make him independently rich.

John Wanamaker has spent over half a million dollars in advertising and still keeps it up, advertising in papers in all sections of the country, although no house in the country is better known than his. Mr. Wanamaker is the man who recently refused a $50,000 presidency of a railroad because he didn't have time to spare from his business. The merchant who can't see the moral in this should immediately invest in some double barrel specks.

Out of 731 blind children, who are said by the census reports to be in this State, the authorities were able to get the names of only 125, and of these only 49 could be induced to enter the institution at Raleigh. The ignorance of their parents and guardians is the cause of their not availing themselves of the great opportunity.

This thing of a man taking oath when he wishes to sign an official bond that he is worth so and so above his liabilities and exemptions by law, when his oath he has taken before the tax lister shows to the contrary, is rather in consistent and a somewhat dangerous proceeding.

The Henderson Gold Leaf claims for Vance county the championship of the State on big hogs. The porker which it thinks wins the prize weighed 907 pounds gross, 830 pounds net, and produced 204 pounds of lard. That is a big hog, sure.

It isn't easy to shake off habits contracted. There is an old lady in Eastport, Maine, who years ago contracted the habit of making crazy quilts, and it still clings to her at the age of 83. She has made nine in the past year and a half.

The report of Postmaster General Bissell, giving the operations of the Postoffice Department of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1894, has been received.

Governor Fishback, of Arkansas, is a candidate for the United States Senate, to succeed Mr. Berry.

There are thirteen papers in this country over 100 years old. Eight of them are in New England, four of them in New Jersey and one in Georgia, the Augusta Chronicle, which is the sixth oldest in the United States.

The New Jersey court of errors and appeals has decided that the heirs of a man killed by a mail pouch thrown out a passing train could not recover damages from the railway company. They must look to Uncle Sam.

According to statistics four out of five suicides are men, from which it may be inferred that women do not follow the men so much as some people say they do.

A German philosopher says: "I know of but two lovely things in the universe—the starry sky above our heads and the sense of duty within our hearts."

No town can prosper unless its citizens endorse and work for enterprises that give employment to home labor and develop home resources.

"Hetty" Green, the wealthiest woman in America, has the finest collection of diamonds in the country but never a gem does she wear.

It is proposed to construct an underground railway in New York city which will cost $66,000,000.

A WISE TEXAN.

Or, How a Capitol Guide Lost a Possible Big Fat Fee.

A stranger from Texas sauntered into the capitol and fell into the hands of a guide who offered to show him the sights of the building, says the Washington Post.

"Good enough," quoth the Texan. "Before we begin, let's take a drink."

Being of an accommodating nature, the guide consented, and the two quaffed a couple of quaffs right gayly. The guide's eyes bulged when the Texan drew from his pocket a big fistful of bills in paying for the liquor, and he scented a handsome fee. He led the Texan all over the building from the crypt to the dome, and into both houses. He pointed out all the celebrities, and then, by way of a wind up, took his victim to statuary hall and placed him on one of the whispering stones.

"Stay there," the guide said, "till you hear me speak."

Then the guide disappeared in the crowd to the other stone. A lady was standing on it, and the guide waited a moment for her to leave. The Texan, who was getting uneasy, looked round, and not seeing the guide, set to thinking. Just then he saw a young girl look at him and smile, and later two boys did the same. A great light suddenly broke upon him. Instantly he left the stone, and as he disappeared from the hall and started for the big door, he muttered in the hearing of a policeman:

"I may be from Texas, and some green about city ways; but I reckon I'm a leetle too wise to be caught holding the snipe bag again."

And then he and the guide's fat fee vanished together.

Shooting But no Damage.

A few days ago a negro who works for Mr. W. B. Ricks, about 9 miles from town, became so insolent that Mr. Ricks ordered him to leave the place. While they were talking he made a motion like he was going to draw a pistol when Mr. Ricks caught him and threw him down. The negro begged to be allowed to get up, declaring that he did not have a weapon. Mr. Ricks got up and was walking off towards the house when the negro fired three shots at him, but fortunately did not strike him with either shot. Mr. Ricks went on to the house and armed himself but was prevented by his people from going back out where the negro was. Mr. Ricks fired one shot at the negro from the porch but was too far to hit him.

Another large crowd was present at the Chick concert in the Opera House last night and enjoyed it immensely. The trapeze performance by the ladies was fine.

The north bound passenger train run over and killed a colored man five miles south of Weldon Tuesday afternoon. The man was drunk and got on the track.

The train is certainly a great convenience to the people living down the road, especially such weather as this, and saves many of them taking a disagreeable drive coming to court. Numbers of them come up on the train every morning and return home in the evening.

He's a Prophet.

This cold wave to day reminds us of something we heard County Treasurer John Flanagan say Monday. A gentleman was speaking about the weather turning warm and said he was sorry to see it, as he had planned to kill hogs Wednesday. Mr. Flanagan remarked: "Never mind that. it will be plenty cold to kill hogs Wednesday." And he struck it right.
