Vol. 1. Greenville, N. C., January 19, 1895.

No. 35.

THE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY.

In the Senate the principal new bills to day were: To prohibit the printing and distribution of false and fraudulent election ballots; to repeal the act in regard to delay of freights by railways; to protect buyers against adulterated lard and butter; to abolish county boards of education and reduce salaries of county superintendents; to incorporate the Piedmont Stock Insurance Company; to compel all railways to pay taxes; to provide for compulsory education of blind children; to facilitate trials and reduce their expenses; to extend the time for the beginning of work on the Cape Fear and Northern railway. No important bills were passed.

The chief new bills in the House were: To allow county officers to give bonds in security companies; to abolish the State guard and the battalion of naval reserves; to provide for a Supreme Court reporter; to abolish inferior and criminal courts, and to establish courts of oyer and terminer; to equalize tax assessments; to provide for inspection of illuminating oils; to secure to physicians pay for their services.

There were two long political discussions in the House—one of a bill to require the commissioners of Pitt to reduce the Sheriff's bond. During this the Fusionists attacked the county government system, and gave notice they would abolish it. The bill passed.

The other debate was on a bill to allow public printing proposals to be returned to bidders, the law requiring bids and the award to the lowest bidder having been repealed the very day when the opening was required. The charge made by the Democrats was that the Fusionists opposed the bids being opened so that the lowest bid could be seen, because they wanted, under a new act, to award the printing to a partisan, irrespective of the lowest bid. The bill finally passed.

Superior Court.

The following cases were disposed of after our last report:

Curtis Harrington, Claude Harrington and Henry Harrington, assault with deadly weapon, not guilty.

Isaiah Sprewell, larceny and receiving, not guilty.

Jesse Taft, felonious assault, not guilty of secret assault but guilty of assault with intent to kill, 6 months in jail.

Hymbric Edwards, trespass, not guilty.

Redding Norris and Jesse Baker, assault with deadly weapon, plead guilty, judgment suspended on paying of costs.

Redding Norris and W. H. Norris, assault with deadly weapon, plead guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

W. H. Strum, carrying concealed weapon, not guilty.

Frank Perry, larceny and receiving, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Jerry McLawhorn and Francis McLawhorn, cruelty to animals, not guilty. Notice to James Harrington to show cause why he should not be marked prosecutor.

Court adjourned for the term on Friday afternoon and the number of cases disposed of shows that it was a busy term.

It was Judge Coble's first term and he conducted the Court in a manner pleasing to the people, winning for himself many deserved compliments. We heard his Honor express himself as highly pleased with the Greenville bar, and he also expressed much gratification at his treatment from the people of the county generally. He says Pitt is a grand county.

Judge Coble will also hold March and April courts in this county.

THE WAREHOUSE BILL UNWIS.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Mr. Belamy, of Nash county, to reduce the salary of State and county officers and tobacco warehouse charges to a fraction over half of what they are now. To our mind the intention of the gentleman who introduced this bill was pure and all right, but in the light of common sense and sober reason let us look at what the result of such an enactment upon our statute books would be to the farming element of North Carolina. The legislature being composed mainly of farmers and not made up of tobacco warehousemen, it is but natural that such a bill should meet with much favor at their hands, because naturally they calculate that the save in charges goes into the farmer's products and hence is that much made for him. But let us see. If the charges that warehouses usually collect are reduced half, instead of having a friend to see that the farmers' tobacco sells for its worth the warehouseman is utterly disempowered and unable to take any risk whatever in purchases of the farmers' tobacco. Do the farmers of North Carolina want to sell their tobacco with a man whose honest desires and intentions to see that the farmers' tobacco brings market value is so handicapped by the laws of the State that he is absolutely powerless to place his bid against that of an unfettered and unincumbered competitor? It is simply placing the power of intensified and concentrated monopoly in the hands of tobacco purchasers who see proper to take advantage of it. In the disguise of approaching the farmer with a bill purporting to be their friend and for their interest after it is fastened upon our statute books as a fixed law of the land, those very ones who are now fostering and urging the passage of the bill will find that they have been harboring an empty delusion which in the space of two years will cost the tobacco farmers of this State more money than the difference between the present and proposed charges will amount to in ten years. Such an assertion may sound wild but an actual calculation will prove it to be so. Only a cent a pound on several million pounds in two years will amount to a great deal more than some of our legislators would imagine.

There should be a mutual feeling existing between the warehousemen and planters but if the present legislature continues on in its wild and visionary schemes not telling what the feeling will be twelve months hence.

The Raleigh News and Observer has got to coming on time again. The paper has enlarged to eight pages and put on a new heading that improves its appearance.
