Married.

Mr. Mc. G. Horton and Miss Lillie Askew, of Farmville, get married to-day.

Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage in Greenville, Mr. W. J. Moore and Mrs. Lucy Brown, from near Ayden, were married by Rev. G. F. Smith.

At two o'clock this afternoon, in Carolina township at the home of Mr. J. R. Congleton, chairman of the County Board of Education, his daughter, Miss Mamie Congleton and Mr. S. M. Bailey were married by W. H. Williams, Esq. The attendants were Mr. Robert Bailey and Miss Lizzie Congleton, Mr. J. H. Keel and Miss Mary E. Bailey, Mr. John Everett and Miss Barnhill, Mr. H. A. Gray and Miss Susie Keel.

There is a time in the affairs of every man when he should gird up his loins and hustle. We commend the example of the merchants who have already advertised to the others who have not done so. Plant an ad in the DAILY REFLECTOR and it will pay you. It will help us to do better work for the town, too. See?

A large steamer struck a rock and sunk in the Ohio river near Alton, Ill. Several lives lost.

A severe blizzard is reported to be rapidly moving eastward from Colorado.

THE LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY.

The principal new bills introduced in the Legislature to-day were: To provide a reformatory for youthful criminals; to appoint a joint select Committee of Retrenchment and Reform of Public Institutions; to provide for labelling and marking convict-made goods; to protect and promote the shell-fish industry; to provide for the study of vocal music in public schools; to provide penalties for all adulterations of food; to make sheriffs and other county officer ineligible for more than two terms in succession; to enforce the just and equal payment of the debts of insolvents; to provide for the support of the public school by a direct appropriation of $150,000 from the State Treasury. A resolution was adopted instructing the Judiciary Committee of the House to draft a bill greatly increasing the jurisdiction of magistrates, so as to cover larceny and abandonment. There was considerable debate on a bill in the Senate to restore 6 per cent. as the legal rate of interest. Most of the discussion was on the penalty clause of the bill.

Help the Local Editor.

Local editors are blamed for a great many things they can't help, such as using partiality in mentioning visitors; giving news about some folks and leaving others, and so on. He prints all such items that he can find. Some people inform him of such things and others do not. An editor should not be expected to know the names and residences of all arrivals, and it is frequently the case that he is unable to ascertain them. If you will make it a point to tell us these things we will gladly mention them.

If the legislature wants to do a good thing let them railroad through a bill to change the western blizzard that is heading this way. There will be no objection to a bill of this nature being introduced and passing its several readings all the same day.

We see that there is a possibility of the legislature visiting the Newbern fair in a body. The management of the fair had better keep a sharp lookout, or that body might railroad through a bill to abolish the fair or change the time of holding it. They seem bent on changing or abolishing everything.

Those were noble eulogies in the United States Senate on last Saturday on the life of the late Senator Vance by Senators Ransom and Jarvis. No man has ever lived in North Carolina who held a warmer place in the hearts of the people than Senator Vance did and the people are ready to say amen to whatever may be said in honor of the statesman.

A touching funeral is mentioned as having taken place in Muncie, Ind., a few days ago. The child of a poor family died. They had no money to buy a coffin or pay funeral expenses. The father made a little pine coffin, placed it with the little corpse in it on a sled, and two brothers drew it to the cemetery, followed by the father and mother. That was the funeral. And yet Muncie is supposed to be a civilized and a Christian community.

To-day the Legislature will elect two United States Senators. Of course the result is not uncertain Butler and Pritchard having been nominated by the Fusion caucus will be elected. The Democrats will vote for Thos. W. Mason and Lee S. Overman. Mr. Pritchard will leave at once for Washington and be sworn in. Senator Jarvis will return to Greenville and the enemies of the people will have gained one vote in the United States Senate.

A Sample Fusionist.

William Gaston Vickers, the erstwhile Democrat, but now a Rep Pop-Con-Fusionist Representative in the lower branch of the Legislature from Durham county; who voted for Abe Middleton, a buck negro, for assistant door-keeper against Mr. Reitzel, a one-legged Confederate soldier, and who has a class in the Second Baptist Sunday School, came home last Sunday to instruct his class in the "Ways of the just." After giving his class all he could think of he went home for dinner. In the afternoon he took his accounts and went around to collect rents that were due on several of his houses he rents in and near town, stating that he considered it "no more harm for him to collect his rents on Sunday than it was for a preacher to get his salary on Sunday." No wonder he voted for Abe Middleton.—Durham Sun.

The State Guard.

North Carolina would be in a nice "fix" without her State Guard. Scenes would follow in which mobs and lawbreakers generally would fairly revel. If Wilmington were without her military companies, how long would it be before the necessity for these organizations would be keenly felt? No one but a knave or a fool would think for a moment of abolishing the State Guard.—Wilmington Star.

Religion from Congressional Lips.

Senator Jarvis, of North Carolina, and Representative Morse, of Massachusetts, delivered religious addresses at churches in Washington on Sunday. The Senator delivered an address at the young men's Gospel meeting at the Colored Christian Association rooms, 1607 Eleventh street northwest, and Representative Morse delivered a discourse on "The King's Highway" at the First Congregational church on Tenth and G streets, northwest. — Baltimore Sun.

Next year will be leap year. After that there will not be another leap year until 1904.

The Long-Handled Dipper.

Among the last letters written by Dr. Holmes was one to Charles Follen Adams, acknowledging the receipt of his dialect poem: "Dot Long-Handled Dipper," in which the genial autocrat said: "I thank you for the fresh draft from this long-handled tin dipper, which you have made a rival to the 'Old Oaken Bucket.' Some of my best drinks when I was a boy of fifteen at Andover were from a cocconut dipper, but that was not destined to immortality, like the more fortunate receptacles. I have always had a great liking for Yawcob and his young hopeful, and I hope they will long continue to make the world happier by their domestic history and family portraits."

At the Boarding House.

He drew a long breath. Being a skilled draughtsman he did this with comparative ease.

"I beg your pardon," he said to the landlady, with some severity, "I'd like to know, madam, when I'm ever going to get anything to suit me in this house."

"When you pay your board bill," replied the landlady with charming Adams avenue ablomb.

He assumed a business air at once. "Please be a little more definite," he said, and resumed his labors on the steak in front of him. — Detroit Free Press.
