THE LEGISLATURE.

TUESDAY.

Not many new bills were introduced in the Legislature to-day. Those of importance were to exempt cotton-mills and iron-furnaces from taxation, if built by foreign corporations; to aid public schools by local assessments; to repeal the act giving laborers' liens priority over mortgages; to award public printing by contract; to establish a criminal-court circuit for Henderson, Rutherford, and Polk counties; to reduce salaries of State officers.

A committee was appointed to investigate public expenditures especially in the Agricultural Department, Bureau of Labor Statistics, and Geological Survey, it being the avowed purpose of the Fusionists to consolidate all these. A special committee on election law was chosen, and was given charge of the county-government bill.

The election of Senators was held at noon. The vote was as follows: For Marion Butler and Jeter C. Pritchard (Fusionists), 43 in the Senate and 66 in the House, and for Thomas W. Mason and Lee S. Overman (Democrats), 4 in the Senate and 41 in the House.

Difficult Operation.

Dr. Charles Laughinghouse assisted by Drs. O'Hagan, Bagwell and F. W. Brown, of Greenville, Hyatt, of Kinston, and J. Taylor, of Washington, on Wednesday removed a large tumor from the stomach of Mrs. Thomas Tyson, who was brought here to the Quinn House to undergo the operation. The tumor weighed 45½ pounds and contained 32½ pints of fluid. She died that evening about 8 o'clock. Mrs. Tyson would not consent to an operation sooner and neglected it too long for her life to be saved.

The Scotland Neck Democrat now issues six pages regularly, its growing advertising patronage necessitating the enlargement. The Democrat is among the best and ablest edited papers that comes to this office and we are glad that it is so prosperous.

A Fusion caucus in Raleigh appointed Marion Butler, Harry Skinner, Richmond Pearson, T. R. Purnell and D. L. Russell to draw up the bill for a new election law and county government law. As the bosses direct the pigmies will do.

Threw Away the Paper.

They tell a good one on the new Populist sheriff of Cleveland county. He received a document in the mail the other day, but after a careful scrutiny thereof, fore and aft, he concluded it was "rot" and no good, and his wife concurring it this opinion, the document was consigned to the trash heap. (This worthy official doesn't use waste baskets.) The man who used to be sheriff happened to pass by the new sheriff's office about this time, and he was called in and the paper fished out of the trash pile and the ex-sheriff given an opportunity to pass upon it and see what a fool thing it was.

The man who had held down the job of hanging the county's criminals in the good old Democratic days now gone, looked at the paper a moment and said;

"Why, by George! this is a warrant from the railroad for $700 taxes."—Charlotte Observer.

The Burlington News tells this story of the rather unusual, if not remarkable, piece of work done by a mechanic in Alamance county: "Mr. George W. Picket went out to Mr. Henry N. Albright's a short time ago to build a new dwelling for him. He wanted it on the same spot of his old house, so George figured it out and built the new house over the old one; covered it, then took the top off the old one laid a floor, moved the family up there, tore out the old house, completed the new one and left Mr. Albright in his new home without moving. Did you ever bear of such a thing in this country?"

It is said that Colonel Breckinridge is very much humiliated at the failure of his lecture tour. We doubt it not. He could not be made to believe that the public regarded his association with Madeline Pollard as heinous until he started out on his lecturing tour. Everywhere he was received coolly. In the South the cold shoulder was turned to him in the most unmistakable manner. He has returned to Lexington a sadder and a wiser man. Now he would do well to withdraw from the gaze of the public for some years.—Richmond Dispatch.

That was a funny thing, sure enough—the adoption by the Raleigh typographical union of resolutions or felicitation upon the selection of Mr. Jeter C. Pritchard for United States Senator, for the reason that he had been for a short time, long years ago, a printer boy; and the suggestion of the Wilmington Star that the revedue officers should assemble and adopt similar resolutions, for the reason that Pritchard was a revedue officer longer than he was a printer, is as pat as anything could be.—Charlotte Observer.

A run on the Atlantic Coast Line is reported of 173 miles in 200 minutes, the engine pulling seven cars, four of them sleepers.

Where are the Tilters At?

The bargain made by Butler with Richmond Pearson and Jeter Pritchard, by which the Populist vote was to be delivered to the Republicans in exchange for a Senatorial seat for Butler and a few of the loaves and fishes for the leaders in the Populist ranks, has been carried out in good faith. Pearson has been elected to Congress, Pritchard gets the short term in the Senate, and Butler gets the long term. All the offices in sight have been parceled out; and the legislative mill has been set to work to create places for a score or so more of the faithful. So far, so good. But what about the "toiling masses," "poor farmers," the down-trodden laboring man? The big bosses are too busy now to think of things of such minor importance. "Plow On," oh ye faithless and unbelieving. Two years from now, about election time, you will be looked after again. But until then—Ta ta! Adieu! Au revoir! Good bye! Sayo nara! Pshaw! Seat? Skip the gutter! Git!

"Some day they'll wander back again"—the fellows who told you they were going to make cotton bring twelve cents a pound and corn a dollar a bushel, and who were going to distribute fifty dollars "per capita" all over this land of the free and home of the brave.

But they are busy now—very busy, and you really must wait.

Time enough to attend to you when there's nothing else to do.

Wait, till the office-seeker tires, Wait, till the century expires, Wait till you think all men are liars—

"Plow on!"—Morganton Herald.

There are 969,544 pensioners now on the rolls, and it is but fair to presume that 960,000 of these are legacies of the late war. This is 360,000 more than the entire Confederate force. There were 2,772,408 Federal troops and the pensioners now alive there fore are just about 33½ per cent. of the entire force. Either the Confederates shot as troops never shot before or there is an immense amount of lying and stealing going on somewhere.—Wilmington Review.

List Your Purchases.

Register of Deeds King says the merchants are coming forward very slow to list their purchases, only a few of them having so far complied with the law. This should have been attended to by the 10th of the month. He asks us to request them not to delay longer. A hint to the wise should be sufficient.

Those Bonds.

The Board of County Commissioners also rejected the bond of J. A. Thigpen, Populist Treasurer-elect. Thigpen gave notice of appeal. The bond of R. W. King, who was elected by the Board in December, was tendered and accepted, and the oath of office administered. King's bond was perhaps the best ever given by and an officer in Pitt county, his sureties being worth between $300,000 and $400,000. John Flanagan, who was elected Treasurer by the Board in December, having declined to qualify his successor will be elected at their next meeting. The REFLECTOR will give some figures in a later issue that will show why the Commissioners rejected the bonds of Harrington and Thigpen.
