Another issue of bonds seems a necessity as the gold reserve continues to decrease. What a pity it is that we cannot get some healthy financial legislation.

A good part of a day was wasted in the Legislature Saturday discussing a proposition to add one woman to a school committee making it stand two men and one woman. It is surprising what ideas can enter the heads of the members of the present legislature to read the arguments advanced in favor of this proposition one would think that this would be the panacea for all the ills of the public schools.

STOCKS' LUMBER YARD FIRE.

One of Zeno Stocks' ware houses, in which lime, cement, salt, barbed wire, nails etc. were stored, just north of the lumber yard office between his agricultural ware room and the C. B. & O. depot, was discovered to be on fire at 10:25 o'clock Monday night.

The fire alarm bell was sounded, which brought out the department promptly and several hundred spectators. A number of freight cars stood on the switch between the fire and the depot, and a brisk wind from the south west threatened the destruction of all, for the fire quickly spread to the lumber, and for a time the roof of the depot was literally covered with sparks and burning fragments. Fortunately a freight engine pulled in just in time to rescue the freight cars, while the fire proof paint on the depot with what water could be thrown on it preserved it from the flames. Meantime, the fire started in Mr. Stocks' big ware house which contained about 200 tons of baled straw, timothy and clover hay. Brocks & Nevins' warehouse, filled with stoneware, joined onto the north end of Stocks' building, and a heroic and successful fight continued until daylight to check the flames here. The abundance of water in the Q. tank, the metal roof and sidings of Stocks' building made this achievement possible, saving other buildings to the north including Blatchley & Co's. mill.

So many persons left the fire that a second alarm was given at 4 o'clock A. M. and a force procured to confine the fire to limits above described.

The origin of the fire is not definitely known, but incendiarism is thought probable. The loss of Mr. Stocks is thought to be about $2,000. His total insurance on lumber, buildings and contents was $2,650, but on what was destroyed only about $750, so that his net loss will not be less than $1,200.—Whitehall (Ill.) Register, Jan 25, 1895.

Mr. Stocks' was raised near Ayden and will be remembered by many. He was here in December. The REFLECTOR sympathizes with him in his loss.—Ed. REFLECTOR.

We'll Said.

Whether right or wrong makes no difference, the fact nevertheless exists that at this day everybody goes to the columns of the newspaper to find out what he wants to know about politics, religion, trade and almost everything else.

A man takes his county paper and reads it all, and he expects to find every man who has goods to sell or wants business of any kind, asking for it through the paper. If he finds only two or three stores advertised he naturally concludes that they are the only stores in town, or if there are others that they do not care for trade.

Another conclusion they come to, and it is an entirely legitimate conclusion, is that a business man who has not enterprise and liberality enough to advertise his business is so close fisted that it would be dangerous to trade with him. We are stating what we know to be true, and a word to the wise ought to be sufficient.—Warrenton Record.

Senator Wolcott and the Young Lady Applicant for a Pass.

In addition to his duties as United States senator from Colorado, Edward O. Wolcott is the general counsel of the Denver & Rio Grande railway. Of course he receives many applications for passes. A young lady living in the southern part of Colorado desired to visit Denver. She had a friend of her own sex in Denver, who was a friend of Senator Wolcott's. The young lady wrote her Denver friend a long letter, saying she would like to visit the capital, and concluded it as follows: "I wish you would ask Mr. Wolcott to send me a pass from Alamosa to Denver and return."

Of course there had to be a postscript, of which the following is a true copy:

"P. S.—I wish you would send me one of those Y. Z. corsets—the kind you wore when I saw you last. They are just too lovely for anything."

The Denver lady, in a moment of absent-mindedness, turned the letter over, indorsed a request to Senator Wolcott for a pass on the back thereof, and mailed it to Mr. Wolcott's office.

The next day she received this reply:

"My dear madam: I inclose you a pass for your friend from Alamosa to Denver and return, as requested. I would send her the corsets, but I don't know her number."

Where His Strength Sufficed.

"One of the queer things of life," says the sharp observer, "is the way in which men's wishes will control their bodily health. I stopped not long ago at a farmhouse in the Maine woods region, where the occupant had a mineral fever or, to put it in other words, a firm belief that precious metals existed in the ledges on his land. On other subjects he was in feeble health, but say gold or silver to him and he was ready for any amount of exertion. The wood pile was scant and the housewife had to do both the chopping and bringing in of the wood. The man when requested for an armful of wood languidly excused himself because he was too weak to comply. But within ten minutes of the refusal he went a half-mile over rough land and brought to the house a rock supposed to contain ore that was a heavy load for a strong man and seemed none the worse for it."
