NO STATE GUARD ENCAMPMENT.

Adjutant General Cameron Hopes, However, the Guard May be Maintained.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, RALEIGH, March 21, 95.

The late General Assembly having, by legislative enactment, reduced the annual appropriation hitherto made for the support and maintenance of the State Guard from sixteen thousand to six thousand dollars (see General Orders No. 5, current series, from this office), the commander-in-chief is, with sincere regret, compelled to inform the State Guard that, under the conditions of the new law, no annual encampment for the instruction and discipline of the troops can be held, and that the annual appropriation hitherto paid companies of two hundred and fifty dollars, has been reduced to one hundred and fifty. In view of the numerous expenses and sacrifices which the officers and men of the State Guard have for years made in order to supplement the already meagre State appropriation and keep up their respective organizations, the commander-in-chief hardly feels that he has the right to ask of them any further sacrifices. The question is one of such importance, however, involving as it does not only the power and ability of the State to enforce and sustain the laws when necessary, but the protection of the lives and property of our citizens that, trusting in the long-tried fidelity and unselfish patriotism of the State Guard, he can only express the hope and wish that if possible they will endeavor to keep up their organizations and maintain the high character for discipline and efficiency which they now enjoy until such time as wiser and more liberal public action in their behalf can be taken.

By order of the commander-in-chief.

FRANCIS H. CAMERON, Adjutant General.

Mr. David Weaver, of Steel Creek, is in a serious condition. He and a young boy were out chopping wood, when the boy's axe slipped, striking the old man on the leg and inflicting such a wound that it is feared he will never recover—Charlotte Observer.

THE WOOL IN MY CLOTHING

Grows on a sheep's back and not on a cotton stalk. It would be a good idea for you to see that your Spring Suit is made of the kind that grows on a sheep, because it is better in every respect---wears better, looks better, holds color better and is finer.

Our $5, $8 and $10 Spring Suits are made of this kind of wool and they fit just like tailor made. All grades, all colors and all shapes.

Fat or lean, I can fit you.

FRANK WILSON,

The Leader in Clothing.

P. S.---I can take your measure and make a beautiful Suit of Clothes.

Music Hath Charms.

Mr. C. D. Rountree gave a small party of friends a delightful musical concert at his residence Tuesday night. The music was furnished by Messrs. Rountree, R. B. Shaw and Ola Forbes with violins, R. Hyman with guitar, and R. L. Humber on piano. We have listened to full orchestras that made music not near so sweet as on this occasion.

NEWS OFF THE WIRE.

Served by our "Leased" Underground Cable—(Limited).

The postoffice at South Omaha, Neb., was robbed of $3,000 in cash, registered letters and stamps.

A Mrs. Williams, at Columbus, O., murdered two of her children by cutting their throats from ear to ear.

The Daily Reflector

BY ORIENTAL.

The DAILY REFLECTOR finds its way, into many a home most every day; To the brightest sanctum, and the most reclusive, Alike it carries the latest news.

And it only asks you to become its inspector, And you will admire the DAILY REFLECTOR.

Its sentiment too, is truly great, Though small in size, and of minimum weight;

Yet it stands for the truth, and turns on the light, And is death to all falsehood, but life to the right;

And assures every one who becomes its inspector,

That they'll fall in love with the DAILY REFLECTOR.

All through the cold winter just past it was small,

And seemed as an infant just learning to crawl,

But when the spring opened we find it enlarged,

And yet for subscription no extra price charged.

And it invites one and all to become its inspector,

Also to subscribe for the DAILY REFLECTOR.

Capt. E. B. Willis of the sharpie Ada Foster of Morehead City was in luck on catching croakers Friday at Cape Lookout. At one haul at ten o'clock in the morning he caught fifteen thousand. His son in another boat at the same time caught ten thousand.—Newberne Journal.

DAILY REFLECTOR.

D. J. WHICHARD, Editor.

Subscription 25 cents per Month.

Entered as second-class mail matter.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY).

The Richmond Dispatch printed much of its Bismark birthday news in German.

There is some talk of nominating Morrison for the Presidency. He is really the father of tariff reform and has the additional qualification of favoring the free coinage of silver.

Senator Cook who was elected Judge of the new criminal district formed in the east, was sworn in Monday by Judge Montgomery of the Superior Court. Mr. Cook had no commission and it was an unusual proceeding for a Judge to administer the oath of office to a man who had no commission, but such was done Monday by the non-partisan Judge of the non-partisan Supreme Court. It is probably without precedent, and looks like Mr. Cook will be put in when his case comes before this august body—non partizan Supreme Court.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Right now is the time to do most of the cultivation of a tobacco crop in the thorough preparation of the soil.

Some of the most successful tobacco growers that we have and those after whom it is well to pattern agree that a thorough preparation of the soil is the most important stage of the cultivation.

One of the most pleasant rides that we ever took with a male was made last week from this place to the home of Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse in company with Pat German. The weather was splendid the atmosphere serene and Pat, as he almost always is, was in a jolly mood and made the time pass most delightfully pleasant.

Did you ever think of it how many millions are fed and clothed and how many have the luxuries of life provided them out of the one commodity, tobacco, and yet it is not a necessity but is rated with the luxuries. At any rate the English people think so when they have to pay out a dollar a pound for all they use.

We learn that Mr. E. M. Pace, who for the past four years has been connected with the Wilson tobacco market, will be located on this market next year with Messrs. Rountree, Brown & Ernul. Mr. Pace is probably one of the oldest tobacco men in experience in the state. Years ago he inaugurated what is to-day known as the loose sales system on the Danville, Va. market. He moved from there to Lynchburg, Va., and from there to the North Carolina markets. For the past four years as above stated he has done all that he could for the Wilson market, but recognizing a year ago the superior advantages of the Greenville market over all the eastern markets, he made an effort to get here then but the opportunity not being ripe he waited till this year. Straws show which way the winds blow, and if Capt. Pace had not seen the superior natural advantages of Greenville he could never have been induced to leave Wilson to come here.

In any direction one may travel for twenty-five miles from Greenville, and in no section in the State will he find agricultural lands better adapted to diversified farming than here. No town in the State of North Carolina to-day has a better back ground or a brighter future than Greenville, surrounded as it is with the very best of tobacco land, fine truck and fruit land and last, but by no means least, there are within a radius of twenty-five miles of Greenville some of the finest grain and pasture lands in America. Here with a little experience our farmers could in a few years be placing all kinds of stock upon the market, and instead of buying western hay and even seed oats every spring they could be selling these same products upon the markets of the world. And for Greenville what does all of this mean. It means an amazing increase in its population brought about by immigration. It means an increase in its commercial intercourse with the outside world which will open up new fields of business and new channels for employment. It simply means business for the unemployed without detracting from but adding to the business of those already engaged.

A SEA-GOING PORKER.

Fed on Plum Pudding Twice Across the Pacific.

He Grew Fat on Food That Would Have Killed Ordinary Infants—His Last Voyage Did Not Promise to Be So Interesting.

Some months ago Capt. Morse, of the Alameda, was charged by a stock-raising friend in Sydney to bring him over an aristocratic pig to improve the blood of the plebeian Australian swine. The steamer captain found the pig and brought him on board the Alameda two months ago. He was a dainty little thing, with a pink nose and a confiding way that won the hearts of the passengers before the steamer had crossed the bar. He squealed so pathetically when the time for seasickness came that the captain yielded to his passengers' intercession and took him out of his box on the deck. They tied a blue ribbon around his neck, and presently the curl came back to his dear little tail, and he warmed his cold pink little nose in the hand of the prettiest passenger in the cabin. There was a baby on board, but the child did not get half the attention that was bestowed on the dainty little pig that squealed so delightfully whenever the rolling of the vessel tumbled him off his doubtful little legs.

On the third day out they had plum duff for dinner on the steamer, and seven women and four men surreptitiously slipped the pudding from their plates into their napkins and stole away from the table. They met at the little pig's box and began to feed the sweetmeat to the infant porker. An alarmed cry checked the feeding.

"You'll kill that poor little thing!" shrieked a mother; "plum pudding, and he only three weeks old!"

She had some soft bread soaked in sweet milk, but that willful pig hardly noticed it. After that there was a regular procession from the cabin table to the box on deck. No women and few men left that table without something for the little pig. The mother waited gloomily for the fulfillment of her dire prophecy, while the pig got so fat that his little legs bowed under him.

On the tenth day out the door on the pig's box was enlarged, as he could no longer pass it. On the fifteenth day one end of the box was knocked out for the same reason. At Samoa they built a new and larger box. The daily pilgrimages with delicacies from the cabin table continued and the foreordained sire of a noble line grew in popularity as well as size. There were jealousies among the passengers over the pig and charges that he was getting things that were not good for him. The blue ribbon had long ago become too small and he ate it with some blanc mange one afternoon. The ship's physician said it would not hurt him.

At last the Alameda reached Sydney and the passengers fed their pet for the last time.

But when it came to sending him ashore a stern man in uniform stood in the way. He did not dispute that this was the sweetest pig in the world, but the Australian law was strict and quarantine regulations could not be disregarded. The officer insulted everybody by speaking of the pig as "pork on the hoof." It would take a special act of parliament or an order of court, or something of that sort, to get the pig through the regulations, and while the man who sent for the pig was trying to arrange matters the Alameda sailed for home and the pig on her.

The up trip was the same as the down trip for the pig, and on the arrival of the Alameda here Capt. Morse received a cablegram advising him that the difficulties had been overcome and that there was no longer any bar to the pig's entry into Australia.

They opened the door of the box to give the pig an outing on the dock, but he could not even get his head through, and they had to knock the box to pieces to get him out.

On Saturday the Alameda sailed for Australia, and in a large pen on deck was a huge hog. The cabin passengers sniffed disdainfully when the wind blew their way and made remarks about a steamship company that permitted swine on deck.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Said by Aubrey Beardsley.

Beardsley, he—that has imitators; Beardsley, the English artist that revels in the outlandish but interesting, is coming over to talk to us in the spring. He will first finish a book, "Venus and Tannhauser," that he expects will make a stir. Beardsley is twenty-two, a consumptive, and was first an architect's clerk, and then tarried in an insurance office. But the great Burne-Jones and the great Puvion de Chavannes pulled the boy out of such uncongenial environment, and made him take up art as a profession. He claims that black and white used with feeling and art can be made to express almost anything. He allows his technique to be as old as Botticelli, but claims recognition of his idea of the value of the line. He explains that if some of his pictures are offensive he has nevertheless seen such people, and that if the sensual face has been dominant that is the face prevailing in the place he has been studying life. It was the Madonna the artists once painted, he says; now it is the new Magdalen. "The French adore her."
