TOWN ELECTION.

Two Democratic and Four Republican Councilmen.

There has not been a quieter and less interesting election in Greenville than the one held Monday. There was no contest at all, only one ticket being out in each ward. The Democrats carried the second and fourth wards, electing one Councilman in each, while the Republicans carried the first and third wards, electing two Councilmen in each.

The following were elected:

1st Ward—T. A. Wilks and Julius Jenkins, both colored.
 2nd Ward—W. H. Smith.
 3rd Ward—W. T. Godwin, and Dempsey Ruffin, colored 4th Ward—W. L. Brown.

The Result Elsewhere.

In Raleigh Monday Mr. W. M. Russ was elected Mayor by over three hundred majority. This will be good news to his host of friends here.

In Tarboro there was only one ticket in each ward, and the Democrats elected a majority of the Councilmen. This insures the reelection of Mr. W. E. Fountain for Mayor. He has served several terms and is the best Mayor the town ever had. Tarboro is to be congratulated upon keeping such a man at the head of her municipal affairs.

In Washington five Democratic and two Republican Aldermen were elected. The graded school question was defeated, nearly all the colored people voting against it.

At Grifton Monday the Democrats elected their municipal ticket by 12 majority.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

The fight between silver and gold goes steadily on. The Cook County Democratic convention met in Chicago May 4th and adopted a platform in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of at silver 16 to 1 and against an international agreement. Only a few votes were cast against it.

The case of Governor Carr against the Secretary of State to prevent the Hileman Mortgage bill from being incorporated with the acts of the Legislature was heard Saturday before Judge Starbuck and dismissed upon the ground that evidence going back of the act itself to impeach its validity or existence was inadmissible. An appeal to the Supreme Court was taken by counsel for the Governor.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Much complaint is now being made by farmers nearly all over the county on account of drowned plants.

We heard numbers of farmers say Saturday that they had made a beginning setting out tobacco. It is not a good idea to set tobacco plants in too wet land.

We understand that after the contract had been given and the lumber placed upon the spot the managers of the tobacco warehouse at Spring Hope abandoned the idea of building.

A few days ago a warehouseman told us that in discussing the matter of building a tobacco warehouse in one of our neighboring towns one of the prime movers asked him (the warehouseman) what he thought of the idea. Said he, if I were to answer your question in accord with your own views why I should be considered a wise man, but if I were to answer your question as I really think and it should be in opposition to your views, I should be considered a fool, so I prefer not to express an opinion. But I see standing off there a gentleman who you say is a stock holder in your warehouse. He is also a tobacco farmer, let us go and ask him if he intends patronizing your house when he begins to sell his crop. The gentleman was approached and when asked if he expected to sell his tobacco in the new market in the house in which he held stock bluntly replied that he did not, and that he subscribed the amount purely as a gift. This actually occurred and the names can be furnish on application.

THE BLESSED BABIES.

How the Darlings are Cared for in Other Lands.

The Indian baby is wrapped to a birchbark board, and hung up in a tree or carried on his mother's back. He has no playthings; and if he cries, no one seems to mind it much.

In South America some of the cradles are made of palm leaves. A single leaf turned up at the edge holds the baby. This cradle is often hung up in a tree, and the wind rocks the baby to sleep.

In Africa the mother carries the baby in a leather pouch slung on her back. When she gets tired of this way, she makes a hole in the sand, under some bush or shrub, and tucks the baby into it.

An Eskimo baby is tucked up in his mother's hood. It is a warm place and travelers say their chubby little faces look very good-natured and happy. When the child comes out of the hood, he is stuffed into a fawn-skin bag; and a string draws the garment together like a pudding-bag, keeping him safe and warm.

In Lapland the cradle is a piece of wood shaped like a canoe and hollowed out until it is very light. A quantity of grass is put in; and in this soft bed the baby laughs, sleeps and plays with his simple toys all the long days. When his mother goes to church, she leaves him outside to keep warm in a hole made in the snow, with a faithful dog to drive the wolves away. Sometimes several cradles are left in a cluster, when the children set up such a clatter as to disturb the meeting.

In Persia when an American baby is born, it is sprinkled with salt, and left to itself for nearly 24 hours. This is done to harden it. The baby is tied in its crib and the little feet are left bare even in the coldest weather. The mothers blacken the eyebrows and eyelashes; and a little girl's ears are pierced for rings often when a day old, and always before they are four days old.

The day a Chinese baby is born, it is called one year old. When the next New Year's day comes, even if it happens to be the day after it is born, it is two years old; and thereafter every New Year's day is its birthday. The winter cradle is shaped like an hour-glass, open above and below. The waist holds the child in, and the hands are left free to play with odd-looking rattles. If the baby is a boy, the top of his head is shaved when he is four weeks old, and after that is shaved once a week.

In India, the baby is rocked in a swing. The mother takes a long cloth and ties the two ends together over a small rafter in the low roof of the house, and puts the baby into the fold of the cloth. When they go out to work in the field, the cloth is fastened to the branch of some tree. When it gets sick, the mother thinks some of the gods or devils that the family worship must be angry; and so she calls a sacred man, who wears a yellow cloth and pretends to tell secrets, and asks him what the matter is with the child. He takes two or three little idols out of his bag, and puts them down on the ground before him, repeating some prayers to them, and then pretends to hear what they say. Then he tells the woman she has not given her offerings properly, and makes her go and bring a few pennies, a little rice, and even a chicken. These he takes for himself and goes away, telling her the child will get well.—Little Missionary.

Saved by the Kick of a Horse.

The residence of Mr. M. L. Harris, west of the city, was saved from destruction by fire yesterday in a peculiar way. Mrs. Harris was at work in the house. Mr. Harris was in the barn and his son was in a field ploughing. No one else was on the premises. John Harris, the young man who was ploughing, was kicked on the leg by the horse. He went to the house to get some liniment to apply to the wound, and as he approached, he saw that the roof of the house was on fire and blazing briskly. He and his father quickly procured a ladder and succeeded in extinguishing the fire.
The kick of a horse undoubtedly saved that house from burning.

Why the Dogs Dissappeared.

The people in one neighborhood in Pittsburg couldn't tell what became of their dogs until a pug pup disappeared and a vigilant hunt found his skin tacked up to dry in the yard of an adopted citizen from the Fatherland, who was arrested and admitted that in the last few months he and his wife had eaten eighteen dogs, and didn't care how high beef went, for it wasn't a circumstance to nice, fat dog especially woolly dog, meat anyhow.

A Preventive of Cramp.

A New York physician says that women seem more subject to writer's cramp than men; that they get it frequently when the work they are doing is surprisingly small to produce that result. He thinks the trouble must be the habit of using slenderer penholders. Large cork penholders, nearly an inch in diameter, and very light, are the best guard against the cramp, but they are worth much more as a preventive than as a cure.

A MODEST MILLIONAIRE.

John D. Rockefeller Takes Life Free and Easy.

I never saw a man take life less seriously than John D. Rockefeller.
He has an easy way of saying and doing things that appeals to the esthetic nature. That $1,000,000 suit brought by Lon Merritt is not costing him a wink of sleep. Nothing worries him, not all his millions.
At times I have known John to seem dull. I have known people to take him for a soft, slow, stupid fellow instead of the hard, gliding, firm, rocky fellow that he is. He once had an employe, a nervous, irritable young man, full of his own importance, but, withal, a capable clerk.
He occupied an office in which there was one of those pulling and lifting machines, and regularly every morning, about nine, when he was immersed in figures or correspondence, a small, black-mustached man, quiet and diffident in manner, entered, said "good morning," walked on tiptoe to the corner and exercised for a quarter of an hour. It became a bore to the clerk, who at last, unable to stand it longer, remarked, with considerable heat and fireworks, to the inoffensive but annoying stranger: "How do you expect me to do my work properly while you are fooling with that machine? I'm getting tired of it.
Why don't you put it where it won't worry a person to death?" The stranger replied with a blush: "I am very sorry if it annoys you. I will have it removed at once." A porter took it away within an hour.
A few days later the clerk was sent for by Mr. Flagler, whom he found in earnest conversation with the small, black-mustached man. The latter smiled at seeing him, gave Flagler some instructions and left the room. "Will you tell me who that gentleman is?" the young man asked, a light beginning to break upon him. "That was Mr. Rockefeller," was the reply. With a gasp for breath, the clerk staggered back to his office to think. It was his first acquaintance with the Standard Oil magnate.—N. Y.
