A LITTLE WHILE.

'Tis such a little while we walk together along life's way;
Some weary feet that in rich beside us falter each passing day;
Dear friends that greet us in the morning vanish ere it is noon,
And tender voices melt away in silence
a broken tune.

We long to see the dear familiar faces,
but all in vain;
The foot steps that kept pace with ours
so bravely come not again;
We catch the echo of a voice grown silent,
faint and afar;
A dim, white face gleams out among the shadows like some pale star.

'Tis such a little while for loving kindness or cold disdain—
To smooth the way for weary feet that falter or cause them pain.
A little while and it were unavailing kind words to say,
For those who walked but yesterday beside us have passed away.

--Lizzie Clark Hardy in Chicago Record

THE GREAT ARTIST

Notice what the Richmond (Va.) Dispatch says of Mr. Corwin's work: "Mr. Frank Corwin, the talented portrait painter, who has been making portraits in Richmond for several weeks, is certainly possessed of the genius of the true artist. We have never seen more perfect reproductions of faces by pure hand work than Mr. Corwin invariably secures in his portraits. Not only are physical characteristics of his subjects accurately copied in the minutest detail, but the expression is quite as accurately reproduced on canvass. The finish of Mr. Corwin's portraits is in harmony with the other features of his work which shows him to be an honest, conscientious artist, who values the approval of his patrons far higher than he does the money he gets from them. Mr. Corwin made a life sized portrait of us in crayon which we do not think could be improved. It is equal to the best steel engraving."

F. G. Corwin the well known artist will visit Greenville in a few days as a guest of the King House. All those wishing a high grade of portrait work will have the opportunity to get the same.

NEWS OFF THE WIRE.

Served by our "Leased" Underground Cable—(Limited).

Another colony of about 220 negroes will leave Savannah, Ga., in a few days for Liberia.

Twelve hundred employes of the Illinois Steel Company, at Chicago, are out on a strike for higher wages.

The State Treasury of Texas has become insolvent, there lacking $514,000 of being enough on hand to pay the warrants drawn against the State.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

What is Happening Over the State.

New Berne is shipping guinea-pigs, rats, and mice from the pet farm of F. E. Hege & Co.

During the storm yesterday afternoon lightning struck the dairy in Mr. E. W. Burt's yard and set on it fire. A negro man on the place put out the blaze by pouring milk on it.—Salisbury Herald.

There are now nearly twenty prisoners in Halifax jail. Eight of them are white men, four of whom are quite desperate. Jailor Reid keeps the jail guarded day and night and is quite particular how he passes near the prisoners.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

The Mallory Cheroot Co., who also make cigars, are on a boom. Orders have been pouring in on them at a rapid rate until now. we understand that they are about forty thousand cigars behind in their three leading brands. They have employed some three or four new cigar makers who will begin work immediately. This is gratifying news. We wish them continued success.—Durham Sun.

Mr. Frank J. Corwin, a nephew of the great Statesman, Governor Tom Corwin, of Ohio, Secretary of the U. S. Treasury under President Pierce, Minister to Mexico, &c., an Artist that has not only gained a reputation second to none in America, but an international recognition in Europe, will remain at the Bryan House all this week. Go and see his gems of art.—Tarboro Southerner.

Will visit Greenville in a few days.

Consider . . .

Yourself personally invited to spend as much time as you like examining goods, even if you never buy a cent's worth. This store is a store; yet it is an exhibition. There are many things here—Clothes, Hats, Furnishings—that will please the eye and grace the person, with a touch upon the pocketbook so light as to never irritate.

FRANK WILSON, The King Clothier.

The Sampson Democrat says: "Somebody asked Marion Butler why he made such a bitter speech here Thursday. He replied: 'That is the only way to keep the party together.'"

Mr. Worrel Moore, of Carolina township, was in town to day and told as the wet weather has seriously injured the fruit prospects out in his neighborhood. The apple trees especially were getting full of blight or french and he thought this crop would be a failure.

Pitt's Representatives.

The Ladies Monumental Association at Raleigh, have selected Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse, of this county, as one of the marshals at the unveiling ceremonies on the 20th. There will not be a hand-somer man in the procession. Ex Senator T. J. Jarvis is also one of the honorary marshals.

Drowned in a Spring.

We learn that on Thursday a 3-year old child of Mr. Crandall Little, of Belvoir township, fell head first in a spring and was drowned. The child was out with a nurse and while the latter's attention was directed elsewhere the little one wandered to the spring and fell in, and was dead when found.

The income tax has been reheard and the argument has closed. The court will probably render its decision this week. It was heard before a full court. Justice Jackson has sufficiently recovered to be present. He was sick during the first hearing and the court was tied on several important features of the bill. This cannot occur this time so the case will be definitely settled. It is to be hoped they may not declare the law unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court of North Carolina in the case of Ewart vs. Jones for the Judgeship of the Western Criminal Court has rendered their decision giving the place to Ewart who was elected by the Legislature as against Jones appointed by the Governor. The court was unanimous in its opinion as to Ewart's right to the office but Justice Avery dissents from the proposition announced by the Chief Justice that there is no vacancy between the ratification of the act and the election of the elector. The case Cook vs. Leares has been argued before the court but a decision has not yet been rendered. This case is different from the Ewart case in that Cook was elected before the act was ratified.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

The Danville Tobacco Journal applies to Editors Harmon and Webster. The Danville man has not mud in his eye on account of the position taken by the North Carolina editors.

The Journal aroused the ire of a couple of North Carolina editors, in its account of the testimony taken in this city in the Winston cigarette machine suit, recently. The more formidable of the two, Mr. Jno. R. Webster, not a decedent of Daniel, however is editor of Webster's Weekly, in Reidsville. Mr. Webster, generally speaking, is a fair-minded gentleman and a brilliant writer on subjects with which he is familiar, North Carolina politics, etc. But, unfortunately, at times he allows himself to become so blinded by prejudice that he goes far astray, as in the present instance.

The other irate editor is Mr. H. E. Harmon, editor of the Winston Tobacco Journal.

The Journal in the article referred to, gave a fair criticism of the evidence taken in Danville. The portion which did not meet with the approval of Messrs. Webster and Harmon is as follows:

It seems that the defendant is basing his cause more upon the hopes of proving the American Tobacco Company to be a trust, and unworthy the protection of the Government, than in the merits of his patent.

The testimony taken here was for the purpose of showing that since the formation of the American Tobacco Company cigarette tobacco has greatly depreciated in value, in consequence of this formation. The evidence, however, proved the contrary: That cigarette tobaccos were bringing better prices than any other class of tobacco except wrappers, and that if there is any difference in prices now and what they were before the formation of the company, the difference is that the average price is better now.

Mr. Webster, with red-hot zeal and no discretion, distorts the first paragraph into a positive assertion on our part that the defendants are basing their cause solely upon proving the company to be a trust, and then rants in the modern Websterian style, cultivated only by a select few of the editorial fraternity of Reidsville.

In regard to the second paragraph, he says: "Mr. Graham takes the cake, when he says the evidence taken at Danville proves the price of cutters on that market now are higher than they were before the trust was formed."

Mr. Webster shows his wisdom in this regard by quoting the Winston Journal as authority that the American Tobacco Company made one year 100 per cent on the capital invested, and hence they must necessarily get their cutters cheaper in order to declare such a dividend. Harmon in this imposed upon your too-ready credulity, Brother Webster. If you follow his figuring so implicitly, we are very much concerned lest you will soon occupy the central cell in that straight jacket institution you refer to. If the entire cutter crop was given to the American Tobacco Company, it could not declare any such dividend.

Mr. Harmon, while more gentlemanly in his article than the other brother, is just as far astray. He says:

Siding with the enemy.—Very much to the surprise of everybody an editorial appeared in Danville Tobacco Journal last week giving comfort to the enemy—to the enemy of its own as well as all other Southern leaf markets and tobacco manufacturers. It took sides with the American Tobacco Company in the suit of that concern against the Winston Cigarette Machine Company, stating that it seems, etc.

To this we have only to say that the Journal is published in the interest of the tobacco trade as a whole, and if any individual, firm or branch of the trade is "comforted" by the unbiased publication of facts as they appear in this paper, we are not only satisfied but gratified also. We cannot fabricate facts nor figures, neither can we act the ghoul in order to win trade.

Mr. Harmon further says:

Any statement that cutters are selling higher now than before the birth of the American Tobacco company is absurd. Nearly everybody outside of the trust or its influence says to the contrary. It stands to reason that with practically no competition on the markets prices should drop.

This may be true with markets. Mr. Harmon is most familiar with, but on the Danville market there is reasonable competition on every grade of tobacco, and among the most active sorts are bright tobaccos suitable for cigarette manufacturing.

The egotism of this pair of editors is sublime in the extreme. It is doubtful if the former knows a cutter when he sees it, and the latter is located on a market where but a small quantity of cigarette tobacco is sold, yet they pit their judgment against the judgment of the gentlemen who recently testified regarding the prices of cutters before and since the formation of the American Tobacco Company—gentlemen who were speculators in these goods before the formation of the American Tobacco Co., and are now competitors on this market for that class of tobacco—men whose character is above reproach. Yet this precious pair says it ain't so, because it does not suit them for it to be so.

They were Danville prices—not Winston nor Reidsville—and these editorial malcontents must remember that this is the largest bright tobacco market in the world, furnishes the golden weed to every inhabitable portion of the world, hence Danville prices cannot be gauged by the smaller markets on any type of tobacco, and especially cutters and fine goods generally.—Danville Journal.

CHINESE LAWS.

Flowery Kingdom Is Well Governed, But Largely Self-Ruled.

A Resident of Shanghai Tells of Peculiar Methods of Administering Justice—Good Home Rulers But Very Poor Fighters.

"The home life of the Chinese,"
said William Russell, of Shanghai, "appears to be little understood outside the limits of the Flowery kingdom. The most powerful institution in China is the family. The most remarkable attribute of the family is its ability to exercise judicial powers upon its members. If a Chinaman commits a minor offense, the law, as we term it, takes no cognizance of the case. The family takes upon itself the punishment of the offender by flogging or imprisonment, and the compensation of the injured party. It is only in the graver offenses, such as murder, that the culprit is handed over to judicial authority.

"The ability of the Chinese family to sustain its feudal prerogative is owing to its being part and parcel of the land itself. There are no landlords in China. The land is the property of the state and the occupiers pay a small tax to the former for the use of it. This tax must be paid whether the land is cultivated or not; no family, therefore, makes itself responsible for more land than its members can care for. The state further reserves the right where the occupiers do not do justice to their holdings to dispossess them and relet it. This land tax ranges from twelve to forty cents per acre, and the average size of each holding is nine acres. Apart from this glebe each family has the inalienable right to two acres of land, which is strictly entailed upon the family and furnishes the site of the homestead.
The members of the family who in trying their luck in the adjacent cities fail to make a success have always the ancestral home to fall back upon and the accompanying farm to work on and live by. A poor law is unknown in China, and failure is not to be found in the lexicon of the laboring class. Another point which younger nations might incorporate in their code is the respect paid to the aged in China. The old people are assigned the best rooms in the family home, and are not in any way looked upon as worn out or undesirable relations. Such conditions have obtained for hundreds of years, and suggest the thought that, wanting as the Chinese have of late been found in the fighting arena, as home rulers they can give points to the remainder of the universe."

London Deaths.

The people who die annually in London number 81,000, and it takes 23 1/2 acres of ground to give them decent burial room.

Use of the Hump.

There are some men in this world who can answer any question that is put to them, and sometimes when they do not really know what they are talking about they will give answers that are not at all bad. One of these persons was once a keeper of the London Zoo. He was pestered by questions, but he always gave an answer. On a recent occasion a countryman strolled in and, after looking curiously at the camel for a few moments, he turned to the keeper and said:

"I say, mister, what's he have a hump for?"
"What does he have a hump for?"
repeated the keeper.
"Yes; what's the good of it?"
asked the visitor.
"Why—er—to make a camel of him, of course," replied the keeper after some hesitation. "People wouldn't travel miles to see him if he didn't have that hump. Fact is, without it he might as well be a cow."
The stranger departed well satisfied.—Harper's Young People.
