The Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad.

Of all the railroads in the State, perhaps the greatest improvement of any for the past few years is the Atlantic and North Carolina. Through the energies of Hon. W. S. Chadwick, the greatest financier that the road has ever had, many wonderful improvements have been added. Before he became President the road had gone down almost to nothing, but since it has built up to a degree not excelled by any road in the State either in rolling stock or speed. Numbers of box cars, fine passenger coaches, and four large locomotives have been purchased since his connection with the road. The running time is as fast as any road. The road now has one freight, one passenger, and two through trucks trains a day. The passenger trains now leave Morehead City at 8:07 A. M. and arrive at Goldsboro at 11:25 A. M. returning leave Goldsboro at 3:20 P. M. and arrive at Morehead City at 6:37 P. M.

Besides the great improvement in the rolling stock, the road continues to pay a dividend which it never did before Mr. Chadwick became President.

I have never met two more polite or courteous gentlemen than Prest. W. S. Chadwick and Supt. S. L. Dill. M. N. H.

Mr. L. F. Evans has leased the Greenville Warehouse and will run it the coming season. Leon is a good all-around tobacco man, has had much experience in the warehouse business and will meet success.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Tobacco town is putting on a new dress indeed.

We hear that Mr. J. F. Joyner is topping his tobacco.

There is much necessity of a telephone from the warehouses down town. It will not cost much and some of our people might make a speculative investment here.

Meeting of the Tobacco Growers Association next Saturday. Let every farmer who sees this send word to the balance to come. We want a large crowd. There will be some important matters discussed that day and every farmer ought to hear it.

Mr. W. C. Moore, from near Falkland, tells us that he has invented a means by which tobacco can be cured without employing the patent system. He will exhibit next Saturday at the meeting of the tobacco growers. It will pay all who are interested to come just to see that.

Since so much has been said about the patent looping system we have made some inquiries and investigations concerning the United States patent laws. Mr. A. L. Blow and Col. Harry Skinner on the authority of the revised statutes, of the United States patent laws say that whenever any thing was in common use anywhere in the United States for a period of two years prior to the time the patent was granted, that the patent is absolutely void. If this is the case and there is no doubt about that the then only thing to do is to get up an affidavit showing that it was in common use for more than two years before it was patented and submit it to the proper authorities. We are not informed as to the methods of procedure in getting a patent set aside but we are told that it has to be done through the Attorney General of the United States.

QUINERLY, N. C., June 18 1895—Rev. C. M. Howard filled his regular appointment at Salem Sunday.

Sheriff King was here Wednesday.

Dr. W. L. Best went to Greenville Saturday.

Rev. C. Bland, of Ayden, was here yesterday.

Mrs. Spencer Brooks went to Kinston yesterday.

Mr. L. J. Chapman went to Newbern yesterday and returned to-day.

Miss Lena Brooks, of Hamilton, is visiting relatives near here.

Mr. Walter Harding and sister, Miss Sarah, attended the commencement at Chocowinity last week.

Miss Maggie Dawson, of Maple Cypress, is visiting friends in the village.

Quite a crowd from our neighborhood will attend the racing in Greenville the fourth of July.

Plums are ripe and peaches soon will be.

It is a fact that while cotton was Thursday bringing only 7 cents in New York, it brought 7½ in Charlotte. The demand by the mills is what does it.—Charlotte Times.

The Institute for the colored teachers of the county will be held in the Court House next week, beginning on Monday. On Friday the examination for certificates will be held by the County Examiner.

SUXOLOGY.

Getting Things Mixed After the Order of Mark Twain.

Man sometimes finds himself doing things or going in ways contrary to his judgment without being able at the time to give a reason satisfactory to himself, for the whereofness of such doing or going. The writer found himself in one of these inexplicable predicaments that continued for more than a day, and we were at a loss to know whether someone had got us under a hypnotic spell, whether the departed missionary had sent back some of his spirits after us, or what. But some how or other our head and feet seemed at variance, the latter showing a disposition to go in ways contrary to the dictates of the former.

The trouble started Sunday morning, when our feet tried to turn every corner and go somewhere else instead of taking us to Sunday School. Bringing the obstreperous pedals under control of our will power they were kept under subjection for a while and the spell supposed to be broken. On the way home, however, those feet became unruly again and began kicking at a pile of brick placed on the sidewalk to be used in constructing a building. This puzzled us again that our feet should be kicking so, and our head had to come into play once more to convince those pedals that there was no earthly use for such kicking, there being fully six feet of sidewalk space in which to walk by those brick.

Nothing else occurred until after dinner when it was concluded that a good nap might drive away the spirits, if such they were molesting us. But as soon as we had fairly launched in dreamland those feet commenced again. The vision took us away to Washington for an interview with the President, and we had hardly got off to talking to him when up jumped both those feet and went to kicking Grover. The old man called time, and the only apology we could offer was that something was wrong with those feet, they had got in a kicking notion, but for the life of us we could not tell what they were kicking about.

The vision changed, when along came a man with an advertising novelty in which he convinced our head there was good pay, when up came those feet again, kicking and crying "fake!" just because the novelty was not offered to them first.

Again the vision changed and those feet began taking us up Malvern Hill and the Heights of Gettysburg to view the war over again, but a passing steamer with a church excursion and "considerable dancing" set those feet to going at such a rate that we awoke with a jump.

What could be the matter with those feet? They looked like the same old number sixes, but by this time such "capers" were becoming past finding out. Night drew on and we almost feared to retire, lest our slumbers should again be broken by the unusual notions of those feet. But not so, for laying aside the robes of day all presence of an undue influence about our feet immediately disappeared, and nothing more was thought of it for the night.

Scarcely had our toilet been completed next morning when the spell returned, and those feet seemed to resume their disposition to find something to kick at. Well, the thing began to grow monotonous—especially when at our desk in the office writing copy for the day some unaccountable presence seemed rising up and getting cross-legged and tangled with what was being written.

Suddenly a servant from the house came rushing in almost breathless with a message from our better half to go out and buy a pair of socks, take off the pair we had on and send them home instant. "What's the matter with these socks we've got on?" was demanded. "Whv, sah, de wash woman has got yer all mixed up, and you got on de other editor's socks 'stead of yer own."

Quick as a flash the mystery was cleared up and the cause of all our muddle disclosed. We were not exactly standing in another editor's shoes, but were in his socks with both feet, and as the two minds don't often run in the same channel it's no wonder we thought our feet were doing lots of kicking.

As the matter is now cleared up on our side, the question that arises is: What is the other editor doing for socks this week?

Collector Rogers, of the Western District, has appointed W. O. Conner, the late Collector Carter's brother-in-law, Chief Deputy in the revenue office.

The Teacher's Assembly meets at Morehead to-morrow. This body has been a power for good to the educational interests of North Carolina. It has brought co-operation in the work, and the teachers have been much encouraged in their work. A promising programme is given for the present session.

Marion Butler says he has cut loose from both the Democratic and Republican parties. He had to cut loose from the Democrats to get an office. He joined the Republicans to get one. Now that he has one he has cut loose from them. There will be no trouble about any party getting Butler if there is anything in it for him.

Those over-inquisitive guests at the Winston hotel whose interrogative enterprise acquainted them with the fact that the ice in their tea had already been used during the day to keep a corpse cool, doubtless feel themselves amply rewarded for their industry. Folks who eat at the hotels these days and insist on knowing into the whys and wherefores of what's set before them should take the consequences with becoming resignation. They are sure to be pumping up constantly against practical illustrations of how knowledge increaseth sorrow.—Gastonia Gazette.

Proper Names in Alabama.

The singular and long name inscribed on a tombstone in Montgomery, Ala., has recently been published in the papers. As the owner of the name is dead it may or may not be genuine, but there are some live tenants on Col. Chess Howard's plantation in Crawford county who "take the cake" when it comes to names. The mother of the household is named Nina Notion Patience Peas Caroline Corn-cob Elizabeth Penny. Her husband flourishes as King Solomon's Watkins, and her favorite daughter bears the euphonious title of "Mitrelicious," and a younger son's name is "William Abraham's Bosom" all things told pray the Good Lord rock-y my Soul." He is never called anything less than "William Abraham's Bosom." They are very religious people, so another girl is named "I Will Arise and Go to My Father." She is called "Iwilla" for short.

WHAT HE WANTED.

The Little Prince Was Like Other Children.

A lady-in-waiting at the court of Empress Josephine has lately been telling some quaint storyettes of the men and women whom she met while a member of the Napoleonic household. One that she relates of the little son of Queen Hortense of the Hollands—he who might have been Napoleon III.—is of particular pertinence in these days of rampant Fauntleroyism.
The child was seated near the window, looking toward the park, and appeared to view with indifference the crowd of presents that were spread before him; his looks were constantly directed toward the grand avenue in front of the palace. Feeling impatient at his appearing less delighted than she expected, the queen asked him if he was not grateful for his grandmamma's attention in procuring every object that might contribute to his amusement.

"Indeed, I am, mamma; but I am not surprised at her kindness. She is always so good to me that I am quite accustomed to it."
"Do you find no enjoyment in those pretty toys?"
"Yes, mamma, but—"
"What then?"
"I am very anxious for something else."
"Mention it, my child. Depend upon my giving it you."
"Oh, mamma, you will refuse me."
"Is it money for the poor?"
"Papa gave me some this morning—it is already distributed. What I want is—"
"Tell me, my dearest child. You know how I love you. Rest assured, then, that I wish to begin the year by doing whatever may be most agreeable to you. What is your wish?"
"My dear mamma, I want you to permit me to walk in the pile of mud in that avenue. That will amuse me more than anything else."

"It is a lot of sthyle ye are puttin' on since your daddy got rich on sewer contracts. But your ould granddaddy mit his death fallin' aff a ladder wid a hod, Oi'm tould."
"It is a lie, so it is. Me grandfather doied like a gentleman. He was cloobed to death by a polace min."—Indianapolis Journal.

Will Connect One Way.

To-day Mr. Borden, one of the Coast Line authorities, telegraphed here to agent J. R. Moore that beginning next Sunday, 23rd, the schedule of the freight trains over this road would be changed so that the south bound train will reach Kinston every day at 4 o'clock P. M. This will enable people from this section to make close connection every day at Kinston and go through to Morehead without having to stop over in Kinston, which is even better than the twice-a-week schedule the REFLECTOR has been advocating. However, there is no arrangement for close connection on the return trip at present, but it is hoped this may be effected later.
