LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Crops are beginning to need rain.

There is much complaint made this year by the farmers on account of tobacco freckling. It is a great pity that some preventive cannot be discovered for this disease.

The lumber has been hauled and work will commence soon on the Eastern Warehouse. When it is completed the sales floor will contain 3,125 feet and hold 800 piles of tobacco. The house at present has only 7,500 feet. The addition will make it hold nearly twice as much tobacco as at present.

There ought to be a mutual interest between the warehouseman and the tobacco farmer. The warehouseman should be the farmer's best friend and farmer look upon him in the same light, yet there are some farmers who seem to think the warehouseman feels no interest in them and is only attentive to them for the hope of selling their tobacco. If this writer had tobacco to sell and had sufficient grounds to believe that the courtesies extended by the warehousemen were not genuine, he would certainly not sell his tobacco. There are some people try to get up unkind feelings between the warehouseman and farmer. Such an exhibition was manifested Saturday in the meeting of the tobacco growers. One man seemed to think the warehousemen were trying to run the association, and by his remarks endeavored to engender unkindness between the warehouseman and seller. The association was organized for the benefit of the farmers, and whatever is the farmer's interest is certainly the warehouseman's. We are of the opinion, however, that there was only one man present who had such feelings, and happily nobody who heard what he had to say was changed in mind.

A few days ago a gentleman who had traveled over the country from here to Raleigh, stopped in Greenville and while here called upon Dr. C. J. O'Hagan. Dr. O'Hagan tells us that he said in a very few years this would be a thriving little city of several thousand inhabitants. The Dr. asked him on what he based his assertion, and he said, "why here you have the very finest tobacco lands in the world and that is only half, your people are beginning to properly utilize the land by growing fine tobacco." He said that the same thing that built up Durham, Winston and other towns in the State, would in a short while be discovered here and that people would come here and avail themselves of the natural advantages of our climate and soil. Greenville, he said, was backed up by as fine a country as any town in the State.

BREAD 26 YEARS OLD

Mr. Editor:

While on a visit to the home of Mr. T. A. Nichols, a few days ago, I was shown a family relic by Mrs. Nichols. It was a piece of cotton cloth and wrapped in it were two well preserved biscuits. These biscuits were made and cooked by Mrs. Nichols' mother, Mrs. Amanda Baker, the wife of Elder Billy Baker, on the 17th day of Oct., 1869 for supper. Before the morning had dawned the death angel had visited that home and Mrs. Baker's spirit had taken its everlasting flight. Mrs. Nichols was then a beautiful young lady and took these two beautiful white loaves of bread, so nicely prepared by her mother, carefully wrapped them in this cloth and laid them away as a precious gem of memory to her dead mother, because it was the last work of her hands. The bread is as nice and as well preserved as new bread, except that it is a little yellow by age. These loaves of bread will have been cooked 26 years next October. It tastes almost as good as fresh bread and I have no doubt but there is life saving properties in the bread yet.

T. T.

The movement which has been in progress in Richmond for some time in favor of a mid-week payday and Saturday half holiday, appears to be making satisfactory progress. The Chamber of Commerce has added the weight of its influence in favor of the movement, and the probability now is that in the near future the employees will be paid in the middle of the week instead of Saturdays, and most of them will have a half-holiday on the latter day.

Dry and dusty.

Mr. J. J. Cory has started a canning establishment and is putting up whortleberries. We hope his venture will lead to a canning factory on a large scale.

LIFE'S MERRY GO-ROUND.

These Got Seats in the Band Wagon.

Mr. W. B. G. of Raleigh, came in Tuesday evening.

Miss Mamie Hyman is spending the week with her uncle, Mr. Zeno Moore.

Clever Capt. Hawks, of the passenger train, is on the sick list and lay off Tuesday when his train reaches Weldon. Capt. W. J. Hill, another very courteous conductor, is temporarily on the run.

Reserved seat tickets to "Imogene" on sale at Brown & Hooker's. Secure your seats early.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

A Perilous Precedent Averted.

The prompt upsetting of Judge Goff's political decision in the South Carolina registration case for the Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond is a fortunate circumstance, for it will put a stop to a most pernicious tendency of opinion toward a support of such quasi-judicial interference with State election laws. The brief statement of the conclusions of the court deals only with the question of jurisdiction and the method of procedure, but a full opinion by Chief Justice Fuller is promised, and it is to be hoped that it will deal with the fundamental question of Federal interference.

If the power assumed by Judge Goff were to be sustained the United States courts would become the most potent political factor in the country, interposing by injunction and mandamus to control State elections whenever a judge found the laws of the State inconsistent with his interpretation of the Federal Constitution or so executed as, in his opinion, to abridge the rights of citizens. Judge Goff's decision was not based so much upon the provisions of the South Carolina law as upon the manner in which they were alleged to have been applied.

The decision of the West Virginia politician whom President Harrison put on the bench when he failed to be elected Governor of the State was partisan in its whole tone and significance, and most mischievous in its tendency, and it is unfortunate that the condition of politics in South Carolina and the pestilent conduct of such men as Tillman and Evans should befog the public judgment on this subject. The question at the bottom of the case is too important to be determined by any passing exigency in State politics however important for the moment. No doubt gross wrongs have been committed under the election laws of South Carolina and of many other States, including New York, but that does not afford a ground for taking from States the control of elections. The idea that, because a citizen alleges that he has not been allowed to register as a voter or that the provisions of a State law put obstacles in the way of his doing so, a Federal judge may issue an injunction to prevent the holding of an election is so preposterous that it is amazing that any intelligent person should give it countenance.—New York Times.

SABBATH DESECRATION.

Like all the other laws of the Decalogue, the command to observe the Sabbath is founded upon the very nature of the creature for whose benefit it was instituted. It is no arbitrary rule laid down to gratify the caprice of a powerful being, as an exhibition of his superiority, but one of these demands of a nature which project themselves, by reason itself, into the form of a statute. Taking this view of it, the Apostle says: "The law is just and holy and good." The Sabbath was made for man, and never was a greater boon conferred upon man than when by this act, the Great Author of all good, provided a surcease from the grinding monotony of secular life and labor. Nothing is half so good for poor, tired, discouraged, heart-sick toilers as to stop the humming wheels of busy life, and listen to the voice which speaks softly in the silence, saying: "Be still, and know that I am God."

How can we have the benefit of this while all the avenues of travel and pleasure-seeking are open to our people, with special inducements to follow them up? Not only will the thoughtless multitudes, upon whom the churches have little or no grasp, be led away from all thought of God, but the thousands of employees must be doomed to a slavery worse than death. Is it not true now of railroad men, to say nothing of many other employees, making a multitude in number, that they rest not neither day nor night? What is to become of a generation, swept along by such a resistless tide of forces inevitable? Will not the friction of such a life produce a charge of nervous excitement sufficient to rend it in pieces? It does seem that such will be the result.

Our honest conviction is that railroads ought not to be operated on Sunday. To say nothing of moral law, and the law of God as expressly enunciated in the Bible the law of reason and a wise economy forbids such a wholesale disregard of human happiness. Railroads would be as profitable, the country would be as full of wealth, and the people would be infinitely happier, if all the trains were suspended on Sunday.

But aside from what railroad authorities should or should not do, it is certain that Christians have no business on Sunday trains. Let all Christians cease to patronize the Sunday train, and it will be a long step toward the reform which is needed.—Christian Advocate.

RAM'S HORN BLASTS.

Warning Notes Calling the Wicked to Repentance.

God is not an alarmist, but when there is danger ahead he wants us to know it.

Christ went about doing good. He didn't sit down in a comfortable place and talk about it.

As long as the devil can handle our money he don't care how much noise we make in church.

If God answered all prayers, the heavens would always be raining fire on somebody's head.

The man who is not religious at home, often wants to be considered extra pious in church.

Some people waste a good deal of time in praying for joy, who are not willing to become unselfish.

There are too many people who claim to love the Lord, who put rotten apples in the bottom of the basket.

It takes some people a whole lifetime to find out that no dollar is big enough to give an hour's happiness.

When the convicted sinner says, "Not to-night," the devil feels that it will be safe for him to sleep a week.

The man who looks at everything through money is more than half convinced that the devil is a gentleman.

No matter what appearances may be, God is always on the side of the man who does right and has to suffer for it.

Many a man fails to have access to God in private because he has been doing too much trumpet blowing in public.

That man is not needed as a missionary in heathen lands who has been married for years and never talks religion with his wife.

The devil is standing very close to the Christian who persuades himself that his work is more important to God than that of somebody else.

"Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." The Christian's hands should be kept so busy for God that they will have no time for gossip.

The next annual meeting of the Farmers' State Alliance is to be held at Cary, Wake county. The date is the second Tuesday in August.

The Charlotte News had been troubled with rats for some time and they were so big that they whipped out the cats. The rats suddenly disappeared and on looking for the cause it was found that a big black snake had made the News office his headquarters.

No word is more frequently misapplied than economy. It is not the most penurious administration of public affairs that is the most economical. A close-fisted policy may result in the most waste, while a more liberal policy may prove to be economy in the true sense of the word.—Durham Sun.

Humorists make more money than philosophers—Bill Nye earns now about $500 a week. Milton got $50 for "Paradise Lost" while Mark Twain received $75,000 for "Innocents Abroad." Josh Billings received $26,000 for his magazine work alone, and his literary profits ran into the hundreds of thousands. Josh Billings sold his first venture, the "Essay on the Mule," for $156. Tom Nast received for years $10,000 for the comic part of his nature as it came out through the end of his pencil.

FLOWERS IN VASES.

Different Arrangements Are Varying-ly Effective.

There is a choice in vases. All flowers look better in vases of clear crystal or pressed glass than in those of china, however rare the ware or artistic its decoration. Porcelain vases of graceful form and coloring are really completed ornaments in themselves, and they detract from the beauty of the flowers, while their own conventional daintiness also loses by the contact. Another reason for choosing clear-glass vases and jars is that through them we can catch a glimpse of stems; and this gives the flowers a more graceful, finished appearance. When opaque vases are used, those in plain, dull color, which pottery dealers call monotone, are the prettiest, a contrasting tint to the main color of the blossoms being selected. Imagine a dull-blue vase filled with black-eyed Susans of the roadside, and you have the idea.

There is, too, a choice in placing the vase. Large flowers of vivid tints can be put further away from the looker-on, and yet lose none of their effectiveness or be unseen. But a fine flower, like the forget-me-not or a cluster of bellotrope, would be lost on a mantel or high shelf. Put the delicate blossoms where their dainty color, form or perfume can appeal to everyone, while the massed and gaudy splendor of large flowers may serve to deck a dull corner or a shady, somber room.

A pretty conceit is to put in each one's own room bouquets of the flowers best loved. This is a small matter, but in discovering these favorite blossoms the home decorators will grow attentive and considerate, and perhaps learn other ways of giving pleasure to those to whom he or she owes much.

Some flowers display themselves best in low, or saucer, bouquets, and often thoughtless persons will give away the flowers almost bereft of stems. Moist sand or moss is particularly good to place such short-stemmed flowers in, as they are better kept in position. But the velvet pansies, with their modest faces, have an unexpected trick of curling
up their stems in saucer bouquets.
They are better controlled in small vases, the blossoms standing upright,
just as they nod to us from the garden bed.

Place vases when arranged as gracefully as possible before a mirror, either on the mantel or dressing case, or hang a small looking glass or scone behind the table whereon
the flowers are put. A simple bou-quet of a half-dozen single scarlet poppies, with long stems and their own leaves, a few daisies and sprays
of oats, reflected in a plain mirror, makes a long-remembered double picture of grace and beauty rarely seen, even when costly roses and ferns are freely to be had.

OCRACOKE.

The Best Resort on the Coast.

Mr. J. J. Cherry is just back from his first trip to Ocracoke, and says the management of the hotel this season is the best since the hotel has been built. Messrs. Bell and Harris, the proprietors, are young men of enterprise, and they leave nothing undone for the pleasure of guests. The fare is as good as anybody could wish for, as these dishes noticed on the bill of fare for Sunday will show: Ham and cabbage, roast turkey with oyster dressing, barbecued sheep head, fried fresh fish, oysters, corn cake, loaf bread, biscuits, vegetables, pickles and three kinds of desert.

Bath houses have just been built by the pier in front of the hotel for sound bathing and also on the beach for surf bathing. The fishing is just immense, parties bringing in trout and blues by the hundred. A good band of music is present.

Mr. Cherry has made arrangements with the Old Dominion Steamship Co. for an excursion to be run from Greenville to Ocracoke every week during the season. The steamer Myers will leave Greenville every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, connecting at Washington with the steamer Virginia Dare which arrives at Ocracoke 5 o'clock Sunday morning. The Virginia Dare will leave Ocracoke every Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, connecting with the Myers at Washington, putting passengers back in Greenville by 12 o'clock Monday. Everybody here knows the Myers and the pleasures of a trip on the Tar with jolly Capt. Bill Parvin. The Virginia Dare is an elegant new steamer, perfectly seaworthy and safe, and licensed to carry 250 passengers. The gallant Capt. Dave Hill is in command of this splendid steamer, and if you don't have a pleasant trip with him you can't enjoy anything. Get ready and try a week or longer at Ocracoke.

Housekeepers can hardly have a door or window open at night for the bugs. We never saw them more numerous and they show a great fondness for lamplight.

This week closes the time for listing taxes. Only a few more days left.

The Musical Contest.

From the Morehead correspondent of the Newbern Journal we clip the following about the musical contest before the Teachers' Assembly:

At night the musical contest, postponed from yesterday, took place, and the matter was disposed of in short metre—said to be the meter sometimes used by gas companies. Secretary Harrell said he had twelve applications to enter the contest, lying on his table, and only one of the applicants had put in an appearance, so they had determined to let this one play her part, that is her piece, and award her the medal, which seemed by common consent to be a very proper thing to do.

A spirited piece was next played by Miss Sophia Martin, M. D.—but those ominous letters don't signify, "most deadly," as we have sometimes heard them explained. She can't "doctor"—she'll ruin a dozen hearts before she cures one. They just mean our petite, lively musical director, who moves so quick and plays so rapid, she ought to reckon her age by springs not summers.

Then the contestant, Miss Lina Sheppard, of Greenville, came forward, with her pet piece familiar down to her finger ends, which was received with generous applause.

Miss Sheppard played her second piece, which she had never seen drawn at random from a pile—apparently as readily and well as the first. President Denson presented her with the Assembly's beautiful gold medal in a neat and happy little speech, and the audience cheered their satisfaction.
